PVRCHAS

PILGRIMES.

IN FIVE BOOKES.

The fixth, Contayning English Voyages, to the East, West, and South parts of America: Many Sea and Land Fights, Inuations and Victories against the Spaniards in those parts, and the Spanish Ilands, and Coast Townes on this side; Plantations in Guiana, and many strange admentarts of Englishman amongst the American.

The feuenth, Voyages to and about the Southerne America, with many Marine Observations and Discourses of those Seas and Lands, by Englishmen and others.

The eighth, Voyages to and Land-Trauels in Florida; Virgina, and other parts of the Notherne AMERICA. French Plantings, Spanifb Supplantings; English-Virginian voyages, and to the llands Azor s.

The ninth, English Plantations, Discouries, Acts, and Occurrents, in Fireinia and Summer Ilands, since the Tere 1606, ull 1614.

The tenth, English Discourries and Plantations in New England, New found-land; with the Patent and Voyages to New Sections: Relations also of the Electric feet of the Section ELIZABETH against the Spaniards.

The Fourth Part,

Unus Deus, Una Veritas.

LONDON

Printed by William Stansby for Henrie Fetherstune, and are to be sold at his shop in Pauls Church-yard at the figure of the Rose.

1625.

CAHDI

PILGRIMES.

TO THE MOST

REVEREND FATHER

GEORGE,

Lord Archb. of Canterburie His Grace,

Primate of all ENGLAND and Meseopolitan,

One of His MARKSTIRS most Howo-

His very good Lord.

Aning brought onto your Grace the Sheafe Leuinssiof my first Fruits to be waued before the Lord, I am bold now also tooffer (not after 7: but abone 77. weekes) the same both may bee hallowed by the same Priestly bandin which respect your Graces N ame which first honored my Pilgriniage, hath the last place in these Pilgrinia-Volumes, that my All might be blessed by your gracious embracing (the Alpha and Omega of my Dedications) and might bee by your Fatherly benediction commended to vulgar vse. The subshenesse of the former worke to your Graces Place and recreations, caused the former presumption: but now the Anthor, by frequent Dedications knowne and graciously acknowledged Yours (bow unprositable a seruant society) is guiltie not of single boldnesse; beautifying the Frontispice with His Highnesse Name onto your Graces entertainment (especially in this time so many wayes Festinall) that your Graces Name and entertainment might fo much more Entitle and Endeare. the same to His Highnesse. The authorising of Books in instess order belongeth to your Grace, as doth the Author also: whose mistie conceits of ignorance, or smokie vapours of ambition fuffering the exhaling rayes of Princely heat and Highnesse, hope in the Middle Region of your Gracious and vertuous moderation to be so mildly attempered, that they shall neither fall short in vanishing dewes, nor be reiested after a short blaze as falling Starres, nor transcend into combustious Comets, nor fell downe in furious Stormes, but gently descend as fresh and fruitfull Showers on the thirstie Candid Readers. Pardon farre-fetched similitudes to a Historie of farre-fetched varities, and the Elements of the world borrowed to patronife our world of literate. Elements, not being (as the commendable labours of Others) a Booke of Voyages and Tranels in the world but the VV orld bistorised in a world of Voyages and Trauels. Wherein our Ship bath beene longer in her Circum-Nanigation then any of the World-Compassers bere related; often in danger to be onerset, whiles the Authors impotent and impatient Genius filled all her sailes to the Top and Top-gallant beyond the proportion of ber balast: whereby some leakes of unwitting errors, happening in so new a course thorow so various Seas, implore your Graces indulgence to the Ship and Pilot, Sir Francis Drake a Minia sters sonne, after a bappy invironing of the Globe, feasted Queene Elisabeth aboord bis Argo, and then laid ber up at Deptford, denoting her Carkasse to Time, Her (or rather bis) exploits to Fame and Eternitie. An English Minister, beginneth and endeth his more then Greling N auigation with the glorious Name of His Maiestie, in poore, but bis best entertainment, and returning thus manned and freighted, humbly fueth to bee laid up in the Liberties and Libraries of Saint lames. Yorke-house, Westminster, and Lambith. Here also the Pilot further petitionetb, that his Body being more leakie then bis Ship, your Grace (to whom principally the promise was made) will accept this Part of payment in satisfaction of the whole debt of his Europæan Peregrination and Christian Visio tations. But a long Epistle were injurie to your Graces more necessarie imployments for the Church and State: My selfe am the Epistle, this Worke the Seale, this Epifile but the Superscription, these Pilgrimes all humble Sutors for your Gracious fauour to the worst

>bole

DEDICATORIE.

Your Graces

Chap.

SAMVEL PYRCHAS,

I to add the temperature of the section of

a. 10. Sut ster butters, injury you some see

And the state of t

Batter: Pracus

"ENGLISH VOYAGES. TO THE EAST, WEST, AND SOVTH PARTS OF AMERICA: MANY SEA AND LAND FIGHTS, INVASIONS

AND VICTORIES AGAINST THE SPANIARDS IN those parts, and the Spanish Hands, and coast Townes on this fide; plantations in Q VIANA, and many ftrange adventures of Englishmen amongst the AMBRICANS.

THE SIXTH BOOKE.

CHANGE.

A briefe Relation of the fenerall Voyages Ondertaken and performed by the Right Honorable, GEORGE, Earle of Cumberland, in bis owne person, or at his owne charge, and by his direction : collected out of the Relations and Iournals of credible nerfons Actors therein

He first Voyage of this Right Honorable Earle was intended to First voyage the South Sea : and begun from Granefend, June 26, 1 , 85, 1586. with three Ships and a Pinnace; the Red Dragon Admirall, of The Spanish 260. Tunnes, with 130. men, commanded by Captaine Rebert Englishment the Post Cifford Vice admirall, 65 to T. Widrington : the Barte Clifford Vice-admirall, of 130. Tunnes, Englis thips in with 70. men, commanded by Captaine Christopher Lifter (he his Ports of with yo. men, commanded by Laplaine Lovin your Laplain (in mercurion) had been taken priliner in Barbaria at the battell of Alcaffar, Spine and Poin which King Sebafham was flaine) the Roe Rere-admirall, ingel 1881, commanded by Captaine Hawes: the Dorother, a fmill Pinnace where not early of Sir Walter Raleighs (This voyage being published at large in expedited at Master Hakluyts printed voyages, I will here but briesh runne home, but euconer) Septemb. 7. they fell with the Coalt of Barbarie, haling ty where ho-in with the Road of Santa Cruce: after that they anchored in Rio del Oro, and fearthed up the and happily River, finding it fourteene or fifteene leagues vpward as broad as at the mouth, some two leagues preuenced, ouer. The last of September they resolved for Sierra Leona, from whence they departed the le- See Hat. tomas uenth of November. The fourth of Impurie they fell with the American thours in 20, degrees Surfa Lana, and 40. minutes South latitude, the weather temperate. Ian. 10. they tooke (a little fhort of Abraham Cock. the River of Plate) a small Portugal ship, and in her Abrabam Cock of Leigh neere London, was one of his married in that Country, who was brought home by the Admirall. They learned that in that companie. See River were fine Townes each of feuentie housholds or more. Buenes Aeres, fiftie leagues up the of this voyage, River, the rest fortie or fiftie above each other; Tuccaman the vppermost 230. leagues from the Tem. 17.63. River, the reft fortie of fitte aboue each other; I necessar the wppermont 250, teagues from the effect of the contract of 1 m which was force of Come, Cartell, Fruits, but neither Silver nor Gold, In this seed by the feet of the same and fortie Negrees. The next day they tooke another, in which were fine and fixed expeditions. thirtie Negro women, foure or fine Friars, one an Irifoman. Their Bookes, Beades, and Pictures, tion. See Hale. cost about 1000. Duckets. The Bishop of Tuccaman had sent for them to take possession of a Mo- 43. I had it also naiterie. They learned of Mafter John Drake who went in confort with Captaine Fenton, cast written.

Bbbbb 3

away necre the River of Plate, his companie taken or flaine by the Salvages: of which lohn Drake and Richard Pairmeather escaped with two or three others in a Canoa to the Spaniards and lived in those patts. Here also they tooks Colle Philips left in the Country by Sf. John Hawkins.

After countil taken they fell Aprill 3. wich the Land of Brafil in 16 digrees and a Terse, and wateredurthe Road of Commiss. They proceeded and anchored before the Towns of Baya, and found in the Nortour eight ships and one Carnell. The next day they forced the Portugal.

Bold courage, so abandon to go a she bast of those ships, and rowed the short of the in despite of infinite store of great and small that from the shoare and thips: one Hulke having in her foure and twentie pieces of Ordnance. The least of these prizes was 130. Tunnes. After this they haled the Hulke and commanded the Mafter to follow them, which he did, together with a Caruell with fifte Butts of wine. They fetched reliefe from the shoare also in despite of innumerable Indians and all the enemies forces. May 24 they tooke a flip of 120. Tunder laden with Meale and Sugar. But the voyage to the South Sea was defeated by some mens defire to returne; in which Captaine Hulks difafter. Delamour tooke a fmall Pinnace. The Flemmift Hulke taken into the Fleet in flead of the George cast off, furnished with her men, suddenly tooke fire and perished, Ship, Men, and Goods. Septemb. 29. the residue reached the Coast of England after an enprofitable and enfortunate

N the yeare 1587, when the Towne of Slawfe was befeeged by the Duke of Parma, Sir Roger Williams being Governour there, the Earle put himtelfe in perion to make proofe of his valour The Earle in Since, 83. fer . in that feruice, but at his arrivall found the Towne furrendred vnto the Duke, the faid Sir Roger being not able to hold out longer. Anno 1 <88, among ft many of the Nobility which distributed themtelues into divers of her Maiesties Shippes vpon the approach of the Spanish Armada, the Earle put himselfe aboord the Bonaduenture commanded by Captaine George Raymond; when they wanne that honour that no Sea can drowne; no age can weare out. The Queene fo accepted this Noble Earles resolution, that she gave him leave the same yeare to goe as Generall, and for his greater honour and ability was pleased to lend him the Golden Lion, one of the Shippes Royall, to be the Admirall : which he victualled and furnished at his owne charge and adventure, having Commission to pursue his intended voyage towards the Spanish coasts, under the broad Seale of England, bearing date the fourth of Ollober, 1588. Attended with many braue 30 Gentlemen he fet forth about the end of Officer, and in the Narrow Seas met with a Shippe of Dunkerke called the Hare, laden with Merchandile for Spaine, which after some fight he tooke and fent home. But contrary windes first fuspended, and after that a storme (which forced them to cut the maine Maste ouerboord) deprines him of further hopes and ability to prosecute his true defignes.

His spirit remaining neuerthelesse higher then the winder, and more resolutely by stormes compact & vnited in it selfe, he procured anew of her Maiestie the Vistory, one of the Royal Third voyage Nauie, accompanied with the Meg and Margares, two small Ships and one Carnell; which were fet forth at his charges, and manned with 400. Mariners and Souldiers : the Admirall comman- 40 ded by his Lordthip, and under him Captaine Christopher Lifter : the Meg by Captaine William Mounson Viceadmirall: the Margaret by Captaine Edward Careles alias Write Rereadmirall: the Carnell by Captaine Pigeon. The eighteenth of Inne they fet forth from Plummonth and within The League three dayes met with three French Ships, Leaguers of New Hanen, and Saint Maloes lailen with then, was ene-my to Queene New-found land fish; two of them with the Margaret not able to endure the Sea, were fent for England. The thirteenth of July his Lordship met with eleven Dutch Ships which at first made shew to abide a fight, and after a few shot yeelded and sent their Masters abourd shewing their Pasports from Hamborough, Lubecke, Bream, Pomerland and Callice: who confessed that they had lew of Lisbons, goods abound to the value of toure thouland & fine hundred pounds of a lew of Lisbons, which being delivered and diffributed, his Lordship fet faile for the Afores. The first of August he had fight 50 of Saint Michael, and to difguile himfelfe put forth a Spanish Flagge. Elpying foure Shippes in the Roade, he refolued that night to cut their Cables and to bring them away : which he accordingly performed before he was descried. The Spaniards in three of them leaping into the Sea, with much noise and outcry gave the alarme to the Town, which made many vaine shots at his Boate in the darke. The fourth was the Falcon of London, under the name of a Scottifb Ship, hauing a Scottift Pilot. The three Spaniards were laden from Smill with Wine and Sallet Oyle. The Pinnace tooke a fmall Shippe wherein was thirty tunnes of Madera wines, same Wollen Cloath, Silke and Taffata. The Carracks were departed from Tercera eight dayes before, He manned his Boates and obtained refreshing at Flores professing himselfe a friend to their King Don Antonio. From thence rowing a shipboord, the Boate was pursued two miles together by a monstrous 60 Fish, whose Finnes many times appeared about the gils aboue water toure or fue yards a funder, and his lawes gaping a yard and a halfe wide, not without great danger of ouerturning the Pinnace, and denouring fome of the company; but at the last they all escaped. Here his Lordshippe met and accepted into confort Captaine Danies with his Shippe and IIA2 E. of Cumberlands first, second, and third Voyages. Spanish defeat. LIB. VI.

GHAP.L. Prizes taken (ap. Lytters valour rafbueffe, death. Cruell thirft.

Pinnace, a Shippe of Sir Walter Raleighr, commanded by Captaine Markethury, and the Having intelligence that the Carracks were at Tercera, he came up to the road of Frall the feuen and twentieth of August, and descrying certaine Shippes at anchor close abourd the shoare, See Lingbot. he fent his Boates which boorded a Ship of 250, tunne armed with foureteene caft Peeces; and 4.96. continued fight till a supply of Boates came from the Fleete to freend them, and then reconered the prize. The Spaniards (except lebude Palma) leapt all over-boord to fwimme to the shoare, Aprize of which was so neere that the Ship was moored to the Castle, from whence the great Ordnance Per Reco-plaied all the time of the fight: onely it was not a play to the Mafter of the Caruell, whose calfe To of his legge was shot away. This Shippe came laden from Porr Rece with Sugar, Ginger, and or insures. The Ship-boates retched also out of the Roade some other small Ships laden from Guinner Shipe. with Elephants reeth, Graines, Goca nuts, and Goate Skinnes: most of which prizes he sent for taken. England, The next day, eight Englishmen prisoners ftole from Torcore in a small Boate, having moother yard for their maine faile then two Pipe staues. These told his Lordship, that the Carrackes were departed a weeke before, which moved him to returne for Fyall with purpole to

He arrived, September the tenth, landing his men, the Platforme (hot at them in their march, Fall taken) but they comming up found it and the Towns ahandoned, and tooks thereof possession. This Towns containeth 500, housholds well and strongly built of Lime and Stone, well stored with 20 fresh water, delicate Fruites and Grapes of diners forts, He fet a guard to preferne the Churches and Religious Houses, and staid there four dayes till the ransome was brought him, which was The social 2000, Duckets, most of Church Plate. He shipped from the Platforme eight and fifthe Peeces of Iron Ordnance. The Gouernour of Graciofa lent his Lordinip fixtie Butts of Wine, batexon fed his want offeelh water. A Ship of Wejmunt came thirther with a Spanit prize worth fixteene thouland pounds, and brought newes of the West Indie Fleete shortly to some; which afe ter three or four dayes playing to and fro in rough weather (Het paffe a Shippe of Saint Male, Ship of Saint which he took laden with New found-land Fish) he espied going into the hauen at Angra in Ter. Male. ers to the number of fifteene Cale, being too fare to Leeward to come neere them; and they being firong and forcified with the Caitle and Port, he was forced to give ouer. And although he

30 left's Pinnace for adnice, intending to waite for them at Sea ; yet the returned with newes that they had taken off their failes, and downe their topmasts with resolution of longer stay. Wherefre he failed to Saint Michaels; and being there repelled from watering, went to Saint Maries where they found two Brafil Ships laden with Sugar, which the Handers fought to brine a ground : but Captaine Lytter hattning the attempt in the face of the enemie and danger of continual shoare-shot, borded the vttermost, cut afunder her Cables and Hawsers and towed her servatoreus avray, whiles Captaine Daises entred the other then a ground and abandoned; and was forced to attempt. forfake her. Two men were ilaine and fixteene hurt. But a greater loffe followed whiles the His sudacious Earle in person fought to get the other ship, Captaine Lister rashly disvaluing the enemies force, enterprise and the Barre also detayning them on ground in the midst of danger from the enemie, to the loss and rathendance. 40 hart of eightie men. His Lordinip receitted three that vpon his Target, and a fourth on the fide, ring the reft. not deepe, his head also broken with stones that the bloud conered his face , both it and his legs

likewise burned with fire-balls. The Meg being leakie was fent with the prize into England, and his Lordship held his course for Spaine. By the way he tooke a Portugal thip laden from Brafil, and after that another which American thirs was one of the fifteene which had before entred Angra, being a thip of 400. Tunnes, laden from taken. Mexico and Saint John de Vibne with feuen hundred hides, fixe chifts of Cochenele, certaine chifts of Sugar and some Silver. The Captaine was an Italian, and had in her five and twentie thousand Duckets adventure. Thus full of ioy they resolved homewards, but Sea-fortimes are variable, having two inconftant Parents, Aire and Water. His Lordship sene Gap-

To taine Lefter in the Mexican prize for Portsmomb, which at Helcliffe in Cormuall was wracked. the Captaine and all his companie drowned except fine or fixe. Scarfitte of drinke caufed by Captaine 25. contrarie windes, caused his Lordship to seeke to recouer some part of Ireland for reliefe, bue for drowned. wayting for entrance was put off againe, their Beere and Water being all fpent. Three spoonfuls of vineger were allowed to each manata meale with some small reliefe squeezed out of the lees Miserable diof their wine veffels : which continued fourteene dayes without other supply then the drops of stresse for Haile and Raine , carefully faued with Sheets and Napkins. Some dranke up the foyled running want of drink water at the Scupper-holes; others faued by deutfe the runnings downe the Mails and carred Ropes; and many licked the moift Boards, Railes, and Maits with their tongues like Dogs. Yes was that Raine to intermingled with the fprie of the foaming Seas in that extreme ftorme, that it could not be healthfull : yea, some in their extremitie of thirst dranke themselves to death with their Cannes of falt-water in their hands. Notwithstanding this extreme scarsitie, his Saledeadw noble charitie caused equall distribution of the small store they had aswell to all his prisoners as to draughe. his owne people. By this time the lamentable cryes of the ticke and hure men for drinke was The Earles heard in cuery corner of the (hip : for want whereof many perished (ten or twelue enery night) equina and ... more

Second voy-

A monfitous

more then otherwise had miscarried in the whole Voyage. The storme continuing added to their milery, tearing the ship in such fort, as his Lordships Cabbin, the dining roome, and halfe

Decke became all one, and he was forced to feeke a new lodging in the hold. His minde was yet vindaunted and prefent, his bodily prefence and preventions readie. The last of November hee feake with an English thip, which promifed him the next morning two or three tunnes of Wine, but foone after unfortunately came on ground. The next day hee had fome supply of Beere, but not fufficient to enable him to wadertake for England. Hee therefore (the winde feruing) put eieth of December he fet fayle for England. His Lordship in this Vovage tooke thirteene Prizes.

At his arrivall in London, hee met with the vnfortunate newes of the death of his eldeft Sonne

Francis Lord Clifford, which died the twelfth of December, 1 89, vet was comforted with the birch of the Ladie Anne Clifferd (borne the laft of Ianuary following (his Daughter, and by the death of Robert Lord Clifford, who dyed the fourteenth of May 1 591.) his heire, now the xer-

His Honourable Sparke was further kindled and enflamed by former difafters, and obtayning of her Majettiea new ship called the Gerland, a ship of tixe hundred tunnes, added the Samfon Vice-admirall, a ship of his Lordships, of two hundred and fixtie sunnes, the Golden

With these he fet forth 1591, at his owne charge to the Coast of Spaine, where hee tooke good purchase, a ship laden at Saint Thomas with Sugars, which he was forced to east off by an irrecouerable leake : another also which after long contrary winds in her course for England, was dria uen to put into a Spanife Harbour for want of viceuals. But in two other hee was more vnfortunate. For Capvayne (Munfon being fent to dispatch the goods, and the Golden Noble to accompany them (which the nights calmenesse prohibited) the ships beeing thus severed, were by the Gallies of Penseha set voon, his Lordship being within hearing of the shot, but by reason of the calme not able to releeve them: to that the two ships were recovered . Captayne Bayly slaine.

Captayne Munfon and the rest catried Priloners to Peneche, and thence to Listone. His Lordship tall to theirs of whom he prefumed hee should take store. For feare whereof the common lort were returned a few dayes after new clothed, Captayne Manfon with fixe others only detayned. His Lordship having intelligence of a great Armada prepared in the Grome, to bee fent against the Lord Thomas Howard then Admirall of her Majetties fleet at the Aferes, attending to furnize the West Indian fleet, sent the Mooneshine with adult : otherwise the Lord Howard had runne the fortune of Sir Richard Greenwile, who loft his ship and life, or rather exchanged the one for honor, and for the other made the Spaniards the greatest loiers in fo deere a purchase.

I Lordship considering the inconvenience of her Maiesties command, not to lay any Spe- 40 to feeke out amongst the Merchants, then to make further vie of the ships Royall. And so hee hired the Tiere a thip of fix hundred tunnes, furnished by the Owners for three hundred pounds a moneth wages, in which he went in person, thereto adding his owneship the Samson, and the

These in the yeare, 1 592, were set forth, but so crossed with winds, as three moneths victuaalls were spent in Harbours, before they could get to the West ward of Plymmouth; whereby alto one of his Lordships principall designes was frustrate, which was the taking of the Carrikes outward bound, as also the meanes to performe his intended Voyage to the West Indies, Where-

Lordship, he transferred the chiefe command to Captayne Norten, and returned to London, lea-re, met two of the King of Spaines Gallions, returning from Brest in Brittanie; in fight with whom the Golden Noble received a shot in her fore-mast, which made them doubt of her further

Sufficiencie : but having fished it aswell as they could, Captayne Case her Commander espied an Argofie bound for Liftone, and gaue chase to her within shot of the Fort of Cascaigs within five fachome water of a shoald called Catchers, and there in fight of the men on shoare laid her aboard, and returned into England with her.

vpon, not like to fatisfie that expectation which might arise from a personall expedition of his $0

Thus weakned by disaduenture, he was forced to returne for England.

Golden Noble, with two small thips.

wrote to the Archdake Albert, then Vice-roy, for their good viage, otherwise threatning require 30

Noble Reare-admirall, and to them the Allegarta, and a small Pinnaffe called the Discourie, 20

tuous wife of the Right Honourable Richard Earle of Derfet.

but that which was worth more then all the reft was loft, yet, the profit redoubled his adventures. To

The Councelle

The fourth Voyage 1591.

Ship of Saint

Chance of warre: Takers

Aduife.

Fifth Voyage

Ill beginnings.

and Captayne wing inftructions with the Admirall to goe for the Afores. Captayne Norton neere Cape Finifier-Norton fubiti-

Flores courte.

The Admirall with the rest of the fleet arrived at the Afores, and having watered and refrethed at Flores (which that Iland permitted to all men of warre, as not able to withfland them) 60 put to Sea and spreading themselves, the Santa Crace was descried, which made all the hafte she could for Angra in Torcera. They hafted after, and being within hafte a league of her, they espied Sir lobu Burroughs in the Ro-bucke, a thip of Sir Walter Raleighs of two hundred tunnes (which Sir, & Birwoogh Ind ridden vnfeene on the Easterne fide of the Iland) standing to crosse the Carricker way, so that now the was forced, the wind being Westerly to luffe vp, & recouer the Road of Lagorma on the South end of Flores. The law and cultom of the Sea, making al thips of war then together (though Sea custome not formerly conforted) equall sharers according to their tunnage of the prizes gained, Captayne of sharing. Norton out of cauli respect (and not needing help) contained with Sir John Burroughs, and they agreed to board ber the next morning. But a thorme in the night forced them all from their anchors, which the next day being formwhat allaied they recoursed the road & found the Carrike warped as neer the shore as they could having indeuoted also to put ashore such goods as time would permit)and fired, with all her fayles and flags up and Ordnance laden, which went off on enery fide when the fire came to them; a fight more pleating to the Portugals then the English, whom those 10 accounted now the Owners of that confumed fubiliance. The surge also (affue of the late florme) fearly permitted their Boates to land, to feeke to get wrackes, and what the Portagali had carried afhoure : enery man (for feare of wracking the Boates on the Rockes)being vp to the neck, and some ouer head and eares before they could obtayne the flioare, where also they were forced on hands and knees to climbe vp a fleep hill, on the top whereof flood many Handers tumbling downe great flones on them. But all difficulties were made case by resolution and hope, which brought them to the Towne (now fortaken by her Inhabrants) and made them Mafters of the Towne taken.

wracked goods, which feemed so five thicker for refuge from the fire and water. Whiles they were thus employed about this buint Carrike, Sir Robert Croffe Captayne of the Forefieht of her Maielties, Mafter Tomfon Captayne of the Dainie (a fhip of Sir John Hawkins) 20 Captayne Newpore in the Golden Dragon came into this confort. They were much grieved with this spectacle, but comforted that there had but one of the five Carrickes passed, this had fallen into this terrible Purgatory, and three were stall expected. They spread themselves, & continued expecting from the nine and twentieth of Inne, till the third of August, at which time Master Tomfon first had light of the great Carricke, called Madre de Dios, and comming vp, gave her a Madre de Dios broad-fide of Ordnance; & falling a sterne came (having laden his Ordnance) again and againe to a great Cariffe deliver his peaks to hinder her way, till the reft of the fleet could come, the Carricke answering with the like. Sir lobn Burroughes and the Golden Dragon came in about three a clocke, and Sir The fight. John received a shot of a Canon Perier under water in the Bread-roome, which made him beare vp to ftop his leake. Sir Robert Croffe was the next, who to give her his broad fide, came to neere. 30 that becalming his layles he vn villingly fell aboard the Carricke, which having lashed her fast by the Strowdes, fayled away with her by her fide. The Earle of Cumberlands thips, worft of favle, were the lait which came vp, about eleven aclocke at night, not minding then to boord Oueenes faire her : But hearing the Forefight, calling to Captayne Norton, And you be men, fane the Queenes forp: danger. he gave order to the Samfon, to lay her abourd on the one fide, and promiting to doe the like in the Tiere on the other, which about twelve a clock was performed. The Tiererunning stemling aboord, broke her beake-head to the huddings; he Samfon laid the Forefight aboord, and entred thorowher into the Carricke. Whereby the Fore fuln without entring any one man, tooke op. Carrike enportunitie to free her felfe.

And now both thips companies beeing entred into the Fore-cheynes, the Fore-caffle was fo 40 high, that without any refiftance the getting up had beene d flicult. But heere was firong refihigh, that without any reminance one getting the hourd, and enflault continued an houre and an halfe, Fight and Enfo fo braue a bootie making the men fight like Dragons, till the Fore-caftle being gained, the Portugals flowed themselves in holds. The English now hunted after nothing but pillage, and were readie to goe to the eares about it, each man lighting a Candle, the negligence of which fired a Cabbin, in which were fixe hundred Cartrages of Powder, The rumour hereof made them all readie to forfake the Carrike, when Captayne Norton with some others with buckets of water, Danger by aduentured the quenching of that fire : Feare of leaks by the fight and neerneffe of the shoare fire. were great parts of his care. All these dangers freed, contention about forich a pillage was wellnigh kindling in the Commanders, beeing to divertly commanded and employed : but Sir John So Burroughes pretending the Queenes name, Captayne Norton yeelded that hee should take care of the Carricke, which he accordingly repayred, lands about eight hundred Negros on Corno, detaynes the ordinary Saylers, commits the Gentlemen to a ship of the Earle of Camberlands to bourthe boos goe whether they would, who escaped not a second rishing by other Englishmen of warre, which tooke from them (thus negligently difmiffed) nine hundred Diamonds befides other odde ends. The Earle of Cumberland had notice by a Pinnasse sent from Captayne Norton twentie dayes this Carriers before the Carricke came into England, and had Commission from the Queene for her fafe har- purchase is acbouring. Hardly the escaped the Rockes of Silly (the Tigre also participating in that danger) and tributed princame to Dartmouth, being to huge and vnweldie athip, as thee was never removed out of that cipally to Sir Harbour, but there laid up her bones. His Lordships share would have amounted according to may the Rea-60 his employment of thips and men, to two or three Millions, but because his Commission large derallo seeher enough otherwife, had not provided for the case of his returne, and substituting another in his dimensions at place, some adjudged it to depend on the Queenes mercie and bountie. Neyther yet by rea_ seods,&c. 1

fon of some mens imbezelling had her Majettie the account of the fifth part of her value; and have here followed that Relation which I found, and leave free judgement to the Reader. My copie also argueth my Lords case, which I haussmitted.

the Earle was faine to accept of fixe and thirtie thousand pounds for him and his, as our He next yeere 1 592, his Lothip procured two thips Royall, the Golden Lion Admirall commanded by himielie, the Bonaguenture Vice-admirall, and therewith employed the Backe

Sixt voyage.

1145

Two French

Chaldon, the Pilgrime, the Anthonie, and the Disconerie: which three last when hee came to the Coaft of Spaine hee fent for the West Indies. Hee tooke from the protection of fourteene great Hulkes, two French thips of Saint Malowes (which then held for the league, and vere therefore theps very rich reputed in flate of Spaniards) of great value, one of which he carried with him, and fent the other into England. The Spaniards having intelligence, fet forth an Armada against him, which rewaited for him at the llands, and the Earle hearing of their beeing at Florer, and within five leagues of them, lighted on a ship which they had sent to descry, which before shee could recouer her fleet, he tooke. He learning by these that the Spanis fleet trebled the force of his, having kept company with them one day, quitted them and kept tenne or twelve leagues diffant from them three weekes. In which space he tell sicke beyond hope of life, without returne or refrething from the thoare. Captayne Monfon with much hazard, procured him some refreshing from Corne; and leaving the reit of the ships (which tooke one Prize after) hee returned for England, this proouing the most gainfull Voyage which he made before or after.

His fickpeffa

Scout taken.

THE Antonie of one hundred and twentie tunnes, commanded by Captayne lames Langton, 20 Pilot Antonio Marsino a Spaniard, which had long lived in those Indian; and well acquainted with those Ports : the Pilgrime of one hundred transes, commanded by Captayne Francis Sling fbie, Diego Petrus a Spanifo Pilot, and the Disconerie : these three after farewell folemnely taken and given by fhot on all hands, shaped their Course for the Antillas, and fell with the lland of Saint Lucia, there and at Matinnio, refreshing themselves three dayes, they concluded to attempt Pearl-fishings. the taking of the Rancherias, which are the Pearle-fishings of Margarita, contaying fixe or feuen seuerail small Villages, which for that purpose they inhabit but not about one of citemat once, when their fishing failes there, removing to another and so by course, having emptie houfes standing alway readie for that purpoie. The Pearles for more safetie are monethly carried to the Towne of Margarita three leagues from the waters fide. They kept out of fight all day for feare of discouerie, and at night landed and visited two emptie Raucherias : but taking a Spaniard which then came thither in a Boate with two Indians, they made him their guide to the inhabited Raucheria, five leagues off, commanding the Boates to row along the sheare, and not to double the point till euening. The two Captaynes with eight and twentie men, marched by land in the heat, which with want of water much annoyed them. They came thither in the beginning of the night, and agreed to affault the place in three places at once, notwithstanding their small numbers, lest they should gather head any where. The Spaniards at first thought it had beene some falle alarme of the Governour, and bid away with this iesting, but finding it earnest. hastily fled to the woods. Thus did they take the Towne, with some two thousand pounds value in Pearle besides what other pillage the Souldiers gate. Their weapons they brake for feare of 40

Rancheria affau red and

In the morning they went aboord the fishing Boats, and tooke their Oysters gotten the night before : and gate aboord their thips (much in fulpense for them, not knowing of this fudden enterprize) the fifth day after they had gone from them. The shippes now comming before the Towne demanded ranfome for their houles and Canoas, to redeeme which from destruction they gaue two thousand Duckets in Pearle. But Caruels of aduice having every-where given intelligence of them, at Cumana they found them on their guard and returned, not without loffe, Thence they coasted Terra Farma, till they came to the Ilands of Araba and Corresao, where Arubs and Cor. they landed and refreshed themselves : Thence to Rio de Hache, which they thought to have taken, but found the enemy ready for them, with other intelligence that they had carried their 50 goods into the Mountaynes.

Serange wate-

Ellanchas on

They therefore fet faile for Hifpaniola, came to Cape Tuberone, and thence to the Bay of Saint Nucholas, and thence to Fore Plat, and others on the North fide : thence to Mona, and fo Sauona, where they watered againe, in this manner. The Hand is low deflitute of any Spring, and to the Sea a small fine Sand. Not twenty paces from the wash of the Sea digging a hole and setting therein a Hogshead (the head knocked out) water is plentifully taken, feeming to be no other then the Sea water, losing the faltnesse in that passage. Thence they went to the River of Socke, about e. I. Eastward of Saint Domingo, and went in the night 4.1. vp and fuddenly furprifed an Eftanca, that is, a Farme place, where flaues keepe the great mens cattle, make their Caffami bread, dreffe their Ginger and Fruites, and doe other offices of Husbandry. Being thereof 60 possessed, they came to parlie for ransome of their Houses, and for their Negres, for which they gaue them the flesh of thirtie Beeues with Caffani and Fruites. Beefe will not keepe in those parts aboue foure and twenty houres, volefie first falted, and then dried in the Sunne, being first cut into two sides like Bacon, without any bone left in it, nor any peece of flesh thicker then a mans hand. It must first be searched with a Knife, then rubbed over with Sale, and having fo remained twelve houres must be dried in the Sunne: and foure hot dayes drying will faue it

CH A P.I. Cap Lancaster Fights, Prifes. Eighth Voyage. Five wounds wounded. 1147

Other Estanças being likewise taken yeelded like contributions. From thence they went vp- Ri. Marracana on another River called Marracana, where there was an Ingenio of Sugars which they tooke for their provisions and caused the owner to ransome it from burning. Thence they went to the month of the harbour of Saint Domingo, and rid there at the East fide of the fame, at Point Torrofile to intercept any Shipping comming forth. The Sergeant Mayor came hither to treat for ransome of some prisoners, and with him an Englishman of Captaine Lancasters company of Captain Raymunds fleete, whole Ship was newly calt away comming out of the East Indies into Cap. Raymund. 10 those parts, a little to the West of Sain: Damingo at Acea: The Spaniards let forth two Caruels to intercept the Boates, which they did, but the Ships recoursed the taken and takers together. They brought foure braffe Falcons of Captaine Lancafters Ship, ten others of Iron they left for the heavineffe being somewhat farre from the water. They tooke also a fine Friggot hidden vnder the trees, which they brought for England. Thence they went for lamaica, and there found two Barkes laden with Hides and Canna- lamaica fifula, one of which they manned and fent for England, taken by a French man of warre by the way. Thence they went to Cuba, to Cape Cortenter, and Cape Saint Antonio, to expect thipping comming for the Hauana, but in vaine. Thus after eight moneths fpent in the Country, the Anonie and the Frigot went to the Bay of Honduras; the Pilgrime at Bay of Hondu-Hausra fpent fome few dayes, and then fet faile for England, where they arrived in Plim-month, May 14. 1594.

The Antonie and the Frigot within four leagues of Porto canallo descried seuen Shippes in the Porto canallo. Road, the least of ninescore tun. They anchored within Calinar shot of the Spanife Shippes and moored their Snips a head and sterne, and bent their broad sides vnto them, and there fought all The Sabe. that day with those seven Shippes and all night, now and then a shot : Captaine Langion sent the Boate and Shallop to the shore, from whence they brought a Frigot of twenty tunne. The next morning they fired the Frigot, and with their Boates purpoled to bring her croffe the Ada mirals halfe. But when they faw them comming, they all ranne into the Boates and got afhore.

30 The Admirall let slippe the other fixe, vinhanged their Rudders, and carried them ashore that Ships firede none should faile away with the Shippes if they were taken. They laded the Admirall with the best out of all the Shippes, and sent ashore to know if they would ransome the rest, which they delaying, they fired one of them laden with Hides and Logwood, and then another laden with Sufaparill. But the King of Spaine had forbidden them any ranfoming, and they came not. All their Ordnance was heaved operboord faving two or three Braffe peeces, in hope some English. men might be the better for them afterward. One of them was a Shippe of fine hundred tunnes. They brought away the Admirall of 250 and came into Plimmenth the fifteenth of May, the next day after the Pilorims arrivall.

A Nno 1594. The Earle of Comberland on his owne charge with the helpe of some advert- The eight of turers let forth for the Tercera Ilands the Repall Exchange, Admirall of 250. tunnes, com- 2ges 1594. manded by Captaine George Came: the May Floure Viceadmirall, of like burden, commanded by Captaine William Antonie: the Samfon Rereadmirall, commanded by Captaine Nieholas Downton, a Caruell and a small Pinnace. They fet forth from Plimmenth, April 6. In the way they tooke a small Barke laden with Galieia wines, &c. June the second, they had fight of Saint Michael; After ten dayes they descried the great Carrieke of 2000 tuns called the Cinque LLagas or Fine Wounds. The May Floure first got up to her and received an vinwelcome falutation. In the night The great Care the Samfor came in and continued the fight, and at last the Admirall. They agreed that the this called Admirall should lay the Carrake aboord in the Prow, the Viceadmirall in the Waste, and the Fine worods. 50 Rereadmirall in the Quarter. But it fell out that the Admirall laying her aboord at the looffe, recoiled a fterne, the Viceadmirall being to neere that the was faine to runne with her bolt iprit betweene the two quarters, which forced the Rereadmirall to lay her abourd Borded.

After many bickerings, fire workes flew about interchangeably. At last the Vice-admiral Carrais fired. with a Culuering-shot at hand fired the Carrick in her Sterne, and the Reare-admirall her Forecastle by a shot that gaue fire to the Mat on the Beake-head, from thence burning to the Mat on the Bolt-sprie, and so ran up to the Top-saile-yard: they plying and maintaining their fires so well with their small shot, that many of those which came to quench them were slaine. These fires encreased to fore that the Vice-admiralls fore-faile and fore-top-taile were both burnt, the Enclish Shine Reare-admirall being in like predicament, whiles the Admirall with much danger and difficultie in danger quenched the fires throwne into her from the Carrick. To fane themselves in this heat and furie. the Admirall and Vice-admirall fell off, leaving the Reare-admirall foule of the Carricks foritfaile-yard in great danger to have beene confumed with her, had they not helped her off with

Ĭŧ.

Brefe how kept there.

ILAS Unebaritable obstinacy, rich Carrike burnt. Nineb and tenth powerer. L.I.B. VI.

Pinifull dift effe of the Carrike.

In this distresse the companie brought the Commander Don Francisco de Melo to put forth a flagge of truce : but the Carricks Carpenter more desperare, comforted him with hope of quenching the fire, whereupon he cryed, Coragio, I will never yeeld, notwithflanding the protestations, contestations, and obtestations of the lamenting out-crying companie. One range maged on him, charging him with this foule vncharitablenesse, threatning vengeance on him and his for this obstinacy in suffering so many soules to perish , rather then to accept the English affiftance. Some of their chiefest, rich in chaines and jewels, cast off all, and naked as they were borne cast themselves into the Sea to adventure vpon English mercy; amongst all which, was taken vp by the Reare-admirals Boat, two men of note and three of inferiour qualitie. These three were clothed and fet on land : the other two were Dan Name Velio Periera (who had fomtimes bin Gopernour of Mozambique and Sofala, and returning for Spaine in a Carrick of great value, lok neere Bona Speranza, was now here a paffenger) and Brat Carero, Captaine of another Carrick cast away neere Mozambique, here also a pastenger. These two were brought into England and ransomed. Three impediments happened to the Affailants, the Reare-admirall hurt with a shot and made in person unseruiceable being a valiant man; the Vice-admirall slaine; and the Admirall himfelfe Captaine Came that at the first thorow both the legs , whereof thortly after his returne hee dyed. The Caruell and Pinnace were accidentally abtent : one and twentie were thine in the fight. In the Carrick were many of qualitie; and before infection had fallen amongst them neere the Cape, their number o' white and blacke men exceeded 1100, all which perished 20 but those before named. The burden of this Carrick and her lading in wealth did farre exceede the Madre de Dios, returning after a long voyage fraighted with pearles, jewels, drugs, filkes (her meanest lading pepper) besides the best of the Nazarer (lately cast away) her commodities, the Captaine whereot had beene Bras Carero aforesaid.

Another Care

The impedi-

king the Car-

They fet faile after this difafter for Flores and after some refreshing, on the nine and twentieth of Iune descryed another Carrick of 1500. Tunnes, which they supposed to bee the Saint Philip one of the King of Spaines men of warre. After some more cautelous fight occasioned by that conceit, they fent their Boat to fummon her to yeeld to the Queene of Englands thips vnder the command of the Earle of Cumberland, or elfe to vndergoe the fortunes of the Fine wounds, the forrowfull witnesses whereof they presented those two former Captaines; so whom the Generall Don Lewys de Costynio antiwered; As your Generall bath breme as the burning of the Fine 30 wounds, fo I have beene at the burning and taking of the Revenge of the Queene of Englands. Therefore let bim doe what be dare doe for bis Queene, and I will doe what I am able for my King : commanding the Boat inftantly to be gone. The fight was renewed, but intermitted by the calme, and remitted by the remisser companie, their Captaines being slaine and wounded. Whereupon they gaue ouer and arrived in England in August and the beginning of September, having done much harme to the enemie, and little good to themselves.

The ninth voyage, 1595.

a fortunate fhip to the Eaft Indian Fight.

The Earle not liking his ill partage in the Madre de Dies, not this vnhappier losse of two Carricks for want of sufficient strength to take them, builded a ship of his owne of 900. Tunnes at Desford, which the Queene at her lanching named The Seourge of Malice, the best thip 40 that ever before had beene built by any fubiect. Shee made his Lordin three voyages, and after was fold to the East Indian Companie, whence thee made many beturnes (before in the name of the Dragon related) and proved fortunate against the Portugals in the East, His Lordship had thought to have gone in her in person, and prepared the Albeda his Vice-admirall, commanded by Captaine Monfon, the Antonio commanded by Doniel Investand the old Frigot. But when he had gone as farre as Planmouth on his intended voyage, Her Majettie by Sir Francis Drake and prifed valuckis Sit labu Hankins, fent for him to resutne, which commandement liis Lordfhip obeyed, but the ly by the Dutch: thips proceeded to feeke their adventure, giving command of the Admirall to Captaine Langton; fee Hores rela- which Captaine Morfon milliking went forth letterally to feeke his owne fortant in the Alcodo The Scourge, the Antonie, and the Frigor, went together to the Afores, where first they tooked $9 Saint Thome Carnell of 100. Tunnes laden with Sugars. After Which neere the Hand of Flores in a togge they efpyed a great Ship lying by the Lee, which they conceined to be a Carrick , but found it to be the Saint Thomas, Vice-admira'l of the King of Spames fleet, lying for the waftage of the East and West Indian fleetes : with whom they fell in fo hoe a fight that three was glad to bearevo to recouer her felfe amongst the rest of her Conforts; which after the cleering of the fogge they differred not farre from them. Theree they went to the Coast of Spaine, where they tooke three Dutch thips of the East-Countries laden with Wheat, Copper, and other munitions and prouisions for the King of Spaine. Having spent their victuals they returned.

Tenth voyage.

A. 1,196. his Lordinip fet forth againe the Scowege of Malace, in which he went in personate 60 companied with the Drewl-words of the Queenes, and some other small ships; and about thirtie or forcie leagues from England was incountred with a storme, wherein the Seamee Spent her mayne mast, and was made unteruiceable for that voyage: so that hee was forced to returne for England in the Dread naught.

CHAP. L. Earle of Cumb. 11. and 12. Voyages. Sea fight. English Captolnes. 1140

He fame yeere perceiving that the Earle of Effex and the Lord Admirall were to goe to the Coast of Spaine with a great fleet of the Queenes, together with a Iquadron of Flemmil Eleuenth roy: men of warre, his Lordship thought good to a wait force gleanings in to great a Vintage, and fee age. forth the Accention of 300. Tunnes and foure and thirtie pieces of Ordnines, manned with 120. men, commanded by Captaine Francis Slingsby, chiefly to expect such thips as should come from Lisbone: The Afcenfion thus farmified , met with fuel a fret of winde that with all hafte they handed in their failes, and being within the Hooke of Godoine Sands drove with two anchors a- Godoine fandis head, till they were within two Cables length of the Sands. They then let fall drew fhort anchor, which by Gods grace stayed them till the next day noone (hoursly expecting their wrack)

To and at lait cut their Cables. Having refurnished themselves at Plimonth they fer forwards and comming to the Rocks, lay off and on. After fome fruitrated attempts by the Boat on a Caruell (in which the Captaine was fore wounded) the King of Spaines Admirall Sirage fet forth line thips against them, and himselfe and another thip laid the Aftenfion aboard, the one on the Bow. the other on the Quarter, and now the mouthes of one great Ordnance (being neere in place to Sea Bake) whifter) roared out their thunders and pierced thorow and thorow on all hands. Which ended, the Spaniards leaped into the fore-chaines and mayne-chaines, thinking to have entred the thin. but were brauely repelled. The English feeing many Spaniards together under the Admirals halfe decke, discharged amongst them a Fowler laden with case shot to their no small harme : to that the Spaniards had enough and were content to fall off. Of ours two and twentie were flaine and no hurt, which toffe lighted almuch on them which his themselves as those which tood to the fight. To prevent the like afterwards, they put fafe in hold the Chirurgeon, Carpenter, and Cooper for the publike dependance on them', and made fast the harches that others should not feeke rafuge. But the Spanish Admirall making a brauado, and feeing them readie to receive them. tacked about and went in for Liftone without any further leave-taking. The Afontion continued on the Coast till they had but fourteene dayes victuals left, and then returned with hores to themtelnes, and loile also to his Lordship.

N. 1597. the vindanted Earle having furnished and victualled his owne ship the Matica. The welstin A Scourge, undertooke a voyage in person. Under him in it commanded Captaine lohn Wats voyage. 30 outward, and Captaine lames Langton homewards. The Merchant Royal was Vicesadmiralt, Names of the commanded by Sir Iohn Barkley; Captaine Robert Flicks commanded in the Afterfilm, Rayer hips and their admiral!; Captaine Horrie Clifferd commanded the Samples, after whole death at Porto Rest ployed in the Charles of the Captaines and the Charles of the Captaines and the Captaines Christopher Colebratt was her Captaine; Master loba Ley, and homewards Thomas Goreb Capt. twelith rogtaines of the Alcedo; Francis Simgely Captaine of the Confert; Captaine Lames Lames and Of the 28c-Professor, and homewards Captaine Iohn Wats; Captaine Henrie Palmer, in the Confession, and homewards after his death his fonne William Palmer ; Hercules Folyambe Captaine of the Galtion-Conftance ; Captaine Flemming in the Affetton; Captaine Christopher Colthurft in the Guidna, homeward Gerard Middleson; Captaine Henrie Ielliffe in the Soone; Captaine Robert Carelot, and after his death Andrew Andrewes in the Antonie ; Captaine Edward Goodwin in the Penaliu: 20 Captaine Henrie Bromley in the Reyall Defence; Captaine John Dixon in the Margaret and John ; Mafter John Lea Captaine of the Barkley Bay ; William Harper Captaine of the old Friort,

To make up the score we may reckon two Birges vsed for landing of men, as occasion required. For the land Souldiers, Sir Iohn Barkley was Coronell Generall: Captaine Wallam Mefey Lientenant Colonell : Captaine Hercules Polyambe Sergeant Major : Captaine Arthur Percel Lieutenant Colonell of the Earles Regiment: Captaines, Lewis Orrell, Thomas Roberts, Heirie Gill, Thomas Cooks, Hogh Starkie, Ralph Rodgesty, Roger Torobie; Captaine Andrew Ambrews Leader of the Earles Companie: Captaine Lames Toshill Leader of Sir Iobis Barkleys Companie: Captaines, lames Enans and George Orrell Corporals of the field : Captaine lohn Man Propole Marshall : Captaine Arthur Miller Master of the Artillerie and Prouant Master,

The noble Earle thus attended and furnished (chiefly at his owne charges) fet faile with this Fleet from Portimenth the fixt of March. But you shall have a better Relator.

His Lordship having had the spoile of all things at his pleasure, prepared for the sending aboard the Ordnance, Munitions, Bels, Ginger, Sugar, &c. of braffe Ordnance hee tooke aboue fixtie peeces : fetting faile for England July 16. In which returne his Lordship lost a Barge, by his commandement funke in the Hauen to the prejudice of the Enemie. Another Barge caft away in a storme at the Bermudas. The Pegasus wracked upon Goodwin Sands, and the old Frigot upon Vibent, with the loffe of about feuen hundred men, whereof fix hundred dyed of the bloudie flix and Calenture at Porto Rico: fixtie flaine in fight, and fortie drowned in the wracks of the old Frigot and Pegalin.

Ccecc

CHAP.

CHAP. II.

The Voyage to Saint Iohn de Porto Rico, by the Right Honorable, G E O E O E, Earle of Cumberland, written by himselfe.

1446.

Orthiest of your Sexe, my chiefe Commandresse, to give content to your wish in bare plannelle. I have let downe the courles and fortunes of my late performed journey. The fixth day of March, with my whole Fleet I fet faile out of the Sound of Plumonth, the winde being prosperous though much. Wee kept altogewhen the faire passage put mee in hope that God had pre- 10

His purpole

pared this an vilooked for fortune, if it were well handled, in getting vpon the Coaft of Spaine fire intelligence whether the Carricks were gone, and how neere they were readie if not gone. The doing of which undiscourred, though I knew was hard, yet not impossible for him that could well worke : And confidering the mightie importance, I tooke the course to doe it my felfe, taking with me the Guiana and the Stone; which two I meant should onely be seene vpon the Coalt, and left the rest of the fleet, appointing them where to lye till I came vnto them. But God whose will is beyond mans resolutions, forced mee to alter this; for my Masts not made to fufficiently as I expected, both now began to flew their weaknesse, especially my mayne Mail, which I continually looked would have gone over board. My Mariners were at their wits end : and I protest I would have given five thousand pounds for a new one; the greatest part of 29 my strength both by Sea and Land having beene lost, if that ship had returned in this extremitie. Hearing all that would, I heard many opinions to little purpose, and at length resolued

Defect in the

The Burlings. Penechia.

(though many thought it dangerous) left the winde should with a storme come up at West North-weft, to goe to the Burlings and there ride, till my Masts were fished, my selfe knowing the Roade, though not any elie in my thip : the windes they spake of, I feared not; my onely doubt was that I should be discourred, being within three leagues of Penechia; Caruels comming off every day to fish ; but this extremitie forced device how to hide what I was. For goe thither I mutt, hopelesse otherwise to repaire those desperate ruines. My ship was black which well furthered my device, and though thee were great, yet thewed not to afarre off. Wherefore I came in about eight of the clocke at night vpon Thursday, when I was fire all the Fisher-men were gone 30 to fell their fifth at Lisbone, and from the mayne they could not make moe : this was the fixteenth of March. Before the morning I had downe my top-masts, my mayne yard vnrigged, and all things readie for my Carpenters to worke. The small ships with mee I made stand off to Sea all day, that not having any in my companie I should be the leffe suspected. And thus with a strange Flage and Ancient vpon my poope, I rid without giving chale to any, as though I had beene fome Merchant, every day divers thips comming by me that were both good prize, and had beene worth the taking, Vpon Sunday night the Fisher-men returne to the Burlings; wherefore to goe away undifeouered of them, and also soone to meet with my fleet, which I had appointed to tarry for mee in that heigh betwixt twentie and thirtie leagues off, and that they should keepe with them what ships somer they met, that were outward bowne : I ceased not working day 40 nor night, and by Saturday at night was readie to fet faile, when within night I heard the Ordnance goe off betwixt me and the shoare, and well knew it was a small ship of Hampton and my little Pinnace the Skout, that were in fight with a thip which they chased to windward of mee before night, and fearing their match too hard, as in truth it proued. I, for lofing time let flip mine anchor, and foone came to helpe the poore little ones much over-matched. At my first comming up free frot at me; yet forbare I, and went fo neere that I spake to them, and demanding of whence they were ? answere was made, of Lisbone. Then aftering my selfe thee was a answered as that I had three men killed, fiue or fixe shot, and my ship in fixe or seven places, some of them very dangerous. So I laid her aboard and tooke her, thee prouing a thip of Hamburgh, 50

Bifeiner good Bifeine, and would fight well, I came close to her, and gaue her my broad fide, which thee fo

Ship of Hamburg taken.

Intelligence from Lisbone. Five Carraks fine thips.

laden with Corne, Copper, Powder, and prohibited commodities. I made the more halte to end this fight, for that I would be out of the fight of the Land before day, which as I defired I was, and there met with a French man laden with Salt going into Lestone: which small Barke was very fit to ferue my purpofe. For putting fome of my men into her, I fent her into Cales Road, commanding them to fall with it by day in the morning, and keeping themselues close to shew none but the French, and make a waft to call some Portugall to them for Pilotage up the River. This device succeeded well: for betimes in the morning they were fall by a Caruell that was going to fifth, which (not suspecting them) came close to them, so as the men I put in that at them with Muskets fo fait, as not any of them durft furre to handle their failes till their Boat went aboard, and to brought them off to me. Thele men came that night from Liftone, and affu- 63 red me that the next faire winde there would come forth flue Caracks, with more treasure then euer went in one yeere for the Indues, and fine and twentie ships for Brasil. This welcome newes was accompanied with the meeting againe of my whole fleet, which at that very instant I defcryed. So none being joyned, I wished for nothing but an happy houre to see those long-looked-after Monfters, whose wealth exceedes their greatneffe, yet bee they the greatest ships in the world. My fleet being thus joyned, I called all the Captaines and Mafters aboard, and gave directions where and in what order we should lye, and how we would fight, not doubting to meete them being vndiscouered, and well knowing the way they would come. Being drawne from our rests with our ioy in our hope, wee so long continued galing for that which came not, as I began to feare fome valuckie accident, and leaving my fleet alone, with a Carrell I went in with the theare, and with her and my Boat got another Caruell, by whom I understood that the very New intellafame day that I tooke the first Caruell at the Rock, there came into Liftone a ship that brought gence. Spaniards out of England, and was in Plimonth when I came by , which affored them that I was to comne forth, and they verily beleeved was looking for them, fo as they fent Carvels of advice to fearch enerywhere for me, one of which when I returned to my fleet; I voderitood had comne by them to windward and discourred them all. So I feared it was vaine to tarry there any longer; for either they would thift their course or not come at all. So knowing that their feeling of Another atme could not hurt, I went to fee if they were comne follow downe the River, as that it were pof- tempt. fible to lay them aboard in the night where they rode. Now sgame I left my fleet at Sea. and (the winde fomething fauouring me) got in betwixt the Cat-fhips, from whence I faw them riding in the Bay of Wiers. Here had I too much of my defire, feeing what I defired to fee, but hopelede of the good I expected by feeing them; for they were where no good could bee done voon them, riding within the Castle of Saint Inlian, which hath in it aboue an hundred peeces No hope that 20 of great Ordnance; fo as though I could have got in (which I verily beleeve I could) it had not way.

beene possible to have returned, the winde being ever very feant to come forth withall, and hanging for the most part to farre Northerly, as that for feare of the Cat-ships , I must of force have comne close by their platformes. With this vnpleasing fight I returned to my fleet, and that night being the fift of Aprill, wee went altogither for the South Cape. The eight day I went from thence towards the Canaries, and the thirteenth day I came to Lancerota, where by divers both He comes of Englishmen and Spaniards I had beene informed that there dwelt a Marquelle, that was worth the Corarie. 200000 pounds, if he could be taken Juddenly : which I doubted not , having abourd mee three Rich Maror foure which had beene prisoners there, who affired me they could bring me into the Road by queffer night; and being on land could guide me to the Caftle where he dwelt, how darke forger it were.

30 But they fayled in all : for when I came to the land, they knew not where the Road was , fo as I Poore perform was forced to anchor finding ground, but where it was they knew not. And in truth, it was to mance of riets neere a ledge of Rocks, as if we had gone any further, the thips had beene in danger. In the more promiers, ning, though then I had no other hope left me to catch the Marquelle, faue onely that perhaps he would hold his Caftle; yet I thought it meete to fet all my Souldiers on shoare, for that till this Helands his time I never had given them any trayning, and well knew many of them to bee very raw and Souldiers. wnpractified to feruice at land. Wherefore my selfe then fearing an ague, tooke physick, was let bloud, and sent Sir loba Barkley with them, knowing for certaine that place could make no reli-Sir loba Barkley flance against such a force. So being landed they marched to the Towne, which the guides faid, by. was but three miles from the landing place. But it proved more then three leagues, the most wic-

40 ked marching for loofe fromes and fand that ever I faw. That night I heard not from them , nor the next day till night, when I had word brought that they had taken the Towne and Castle Towne and without refistance. Onely as they marched the people of the Countrie (I meane the Mountay- Caffie taken. ners) would watch if any straggled, and would most desperately affault them with their Lances, being fo swift of foot, as when once they runne, not any could come neere them. In the Caffle was not any thing but some few peeces of Ordnance dismounted. In the Towne (whose houses were most beggarly) some little wine onely, which little was too much; for it distempered so pooreourchase many, that if there had beene a ftrong enemie to have attempted, they should have found drun- and yet too ken resistance; the meaner fort being most ouer-thrownealreadie, and the Commanders, some diarich. stempered with wine, some with pride of themselves, or scorne of others, so as there were very

50 few of them but that fell to most diforderly ourrage one with another. And Sir loba Barkler with much griefe told me, if I tooke not some seuere course to remedie those things, he affured himselfe it would be the ruine of our voyage. Whereupon the next day I went on shoare to see my men trayned, and calling all the Commanders before me, rebuked them for those faults, and gaue Ar- The Earles ticles both for their courses at Land and Sea, reading to them my Commissions, that they might honorable care know I had full power to execute those punishments I fet downe for every offence; and affuring and wife prothem I would not be flow in doing it if they offended. The next day being the one and twentieth of Aprill , I fet faile , and betwixt the Grand Canarie and Tenerife met with the Royall Defence, a thip which thould have comne with mee out of England, but being not readie followed me; and thwart the Rocke, after I was comne from thence met with a Caruell, which by ten 60 English men that were prifoners in Liftone, was stollen forth in the night. They affored me (word Carnell ft.) lea being brought thicher that I was gone off the Coast) they resolved to fend forth the Carracks, forthby Es. and that within a few dayes they would come forth. Which I making knowne to all my Com- still captines. manders, they agreed with me that it was fit to ipend some few dayes and looke for their comming; fo did we : but not feeing them, the yeere was so farre spent that I affured my felfe they were either gone by, or would not goe this yeere, their time for doubling the Cape of Bus-Danger of late Ma Speranza being now past; for they never went out so late but once, and then were all torgoing forth for ced to returne.

the Case of

Though many would imagine the missing of this faire fortune should much have troubled me; I affire you it did not : the reason I will let you know hereafter. Now againe, calling all the Captaines and Masters aboard me, I first asked them whether they thought it was fit to tarry any longer voon that hope, telling them mine opinion how little reason there was in it, and that longer stay might much hurt our other purposes, to which all agreeing, we resolved to proceede. Then I asked whether they thought the time was not too farre spent to get Farnanbuco? to which many answered; No. And though I well knew what it was, I would not reply till I 10 had called two Portugall Pilots, which I brought with me out of England, old men that had at the least beene twentie times apiece there out of Portugall: And asking their opinions, they told vs that they had gone it at that time of the yeere, but divers times put backe, and at their best passage beene lixe or seuen weekes in gerting one degree. To which there were that anfwered, though sometimes it happened so , yet it might fall out otherwise: and if not , though we should be long in getting thither, yet there was affurance to win that place with ease, and gerting it to have wealth enough. Till this I kept fecret, what now every occasion gave mee fit time to vtter. Hauing dispatched from mee a ship that was in Trade at the Canaries and bound for Expland, and being to farre thot to the Southwards, as I was fure not to meet with any going to the Northwards; io as not any newes where I was could come into Spaine, till it came out of 20 The Farles the Indies: which winning of time would give me to good leifure to fortifie my felfe in the place whither I meant to goe, as hardly I would bee supplanted till either wee honorably quitted the morute and difc ect inplace, or had tupply; you may fee, too griedie defire is a dangerous enemie, for where I should tendments. have but lightly touched this as yet, I was almost entring into the bowels of my intention, the time ripe I faw to speake more freely then I had done. I told them I had admifedly considered, of all thefe though now pleaded, and could, as I thought, before their speech bear simulters to fifteen trea-jons for the scaping of some other course then Brail, as would have stayed all these pleadings. But I thought it better first to beare enery one fpeake his minde , and then to viter my conceit. Which though I affored my selfe was the best for vs. yet of any amongst them could give reason against it , I would not onely take it well, but be drawne to them. Then layed I before them how our men were alreadie many of 30 them ficke; and that undambredly the croffing the Linu would keeps thois from receasing all though the passage was a good at man could wish. Besides, I remembred them of intelligence ginen ut bush open the Coast of Spaine and the Hand, that the King bad fent thither to defend the place against me fix hunored Souldiers; and alfo it was theely that he had ginen order, that they faw nes themselses from ge-wough to reflig that wash their portable goods they found flee into the Mountaines, and fet their Sugar and Brasill wood on fire; then were we fure to have nothing; and lastly, if wee beat long under the Line, undoubtedly the most of our men would fall ficke, and then (bould we be forced to returne without doing any thing , for to no other place could we goe, once bearing up upon that occasion. With this I pawied, to heare if there would be any thing faid by them : but not any speaking, I said them I well perceined by their filence the doubts my worder had driven into their mindes : but not AO

His purpoles and probabi-

His forech.

to conceale any longer from them, that which butherto I had for all their goods done, the truth was I nener bad intention after I found I could not get out of England before Christmas, to goe for Brafil , but onely for the well Indies, where there were many poffibilities to make a voyage by : as first, the facking of Margarita, which they knew was rich; then Porco Rico, after that Saint Domingo, then in July the outward bound fleet would be in the Acoa, where we could not miffe them : and if thefe gane vs not content, in the end of luly or August, wee should meete the fleet at Cape Saint Antonio. Many of these reasons I vetered, more to carry my men with good liking thither, then for any thought I had of divers of them. And my speech had defired successe, for they all went with greedie desire, and hopefull expectation, I appointing them to make what halte they could to Dominica, where we would flay one for another, thinking it better to goe ftraggling thither then to goe togither, 50 They proceed, there being possibilitie to meete some purchase by the way, which we were in most likelihood of when we ipred furthest. Therefore we ipred thus till we met at Dominica, wee straggled all fauing the Alceden, the Centurian, and two Flemmings, laden with Corne, which I tooke vpon the coast of Spaine, and still carried alongst with me, as chiefe meanes to effect my most defired

They arrive at purpole. Thele with all the rest came lafely to Dominica, where wee carried our sicke people athoare the three and twentieth of May, and tarried till the first of lune.

This Iland is onely inhabited by Indians that mightily hate the Spaniard, but love the Englesh very much. They brought vs great store of Potatoes, Pines, Plantins, Tabacco, Mammyes, Indies-pepper, and other of their Countrie commodities to trade. They most defired to have Swords, Hatchets, or Kniues, and very much Clothes. But if they could get none of thefe, they would fell their commodities for glasse beades, and such trifling things. From hence I went to the Virgines Ilands which are not inhabited, and there purposed agains to muster my men, the Iland of Dominica being to wooddie as that there I could not doe it; and in the evening the third day I came there to an anchor. The next morning early I had them on shoare, and after mustering them for many respects, found it meet to speake to them, which as neere as I can remember, was thus : Kinde Countrimen and fellow Souldiers , I am fure there is none here but have marked, My Lords and the wifest wonder at my light regarding the many groffe faults committed amongst you fince my speech. comming to Sea ; suffering enery man to doe what he would, orging no man turther then he lifted: Mas ny courles drew me to this patience, onely one I will now otter, the rest being fitter to conceale to my felfe. then to make fo many acquainted with. The great hope of meeting the Caracks made me hope for a short iourney; which hapning, I thought it better to returne with enery mans good word, then by inst punishing of any to have their ill word at my returne. But that hope as you now fee is altoguber paffed, and now we are fettled to another course, which though it may be will not proue altogither to rich, and must of

TO force beene us longer abroad; yet I affure you upon my honour and confcience . I doe conftantly believe there will fpring out of it more glorie to God, more fernice to our Prince and Countrie, and more honour to our felues, then could have done by the Caracks if we had taken them all. For the better performance we must fall to another course; I in governing, you in obeying; I in directing you what to doe, you in fallowing my direction. To which end I have already delinered you certaine Articles, wherein you may fee how the breach of them shall be punished. And though these twentie dayes at the least you have had them amongst you, yet heare I there are some which wish they could but light upon so much as they would conceale from me. Base conditions be hatefull things in men professing Armes, there is none baser then theft; and no theft fo base as for a man to steale from his owne companion. And he that concealeth any Basenesse of thing gotten in this courney, stealeth from enery man in it, all going to have their part of whatfeetter is thefe.

20 gotten. This I thought not unfit particularly to touch, because the freech bath ginen great offence to the whole Armie, and no doubt may encourage some men of lend and base humours amongst us to doe the live: but let the warning I now give you drive those thoughts out of their thoughts that hold them: and be also a warning that they beedfully observe the rest of the Articles. For I assure you, my oner-patient and forced fluggift bumour is flaken off, and I will neither over-fee, nor suffer to palle unpunished ill deserners.

This delivered, I prefently thipped my men which were by mufter and gaue order to fer faile. Now having fet all things in order, and wanting nothing but fure knowledge, where might bee our lafest and most commodious landing, there were many of my Masters and Sea Captaines that would willingly have gone through the Virgines, as Sir Francis Drake did, when Sir Francis

30 hee was there. But I finding the way through the passages more certaine and safe tooke that Prese. course; more desiring to be the first that tooke Porto Rice, then the second that passed through the Virgines. And the fift day in the morning, I fent for Captaine Lanckton, and Knotsford, who was Matter of the Gallion , very expert in those Countries , and was Pilot with Ishn Hambins when hee dyed, and putting either of them into a small Pinnace, fent them before that they might make the landing place before night, and my felfe with the fleet did linger, and fo when it was darke, putting out all our failes, came to them vndiscouered, which was about one of the clocke that night. But they did mee no good, for the place they went to discouer was further They arrive as from them then they expected, so as it was darke before they came to it, and for feare of carry- the lland. ing me to leeward flayed, and told me they had done nothing. Wherefore I flood close vpon a

40 winde off and on, vntill the morning, when being close by the shoare there was to my seeming Euill surmises a smooth landing place, which by all them in my freet that were there with Sir Francis Drake, I was told was impossible to get, the winde ouer-blowing all day out of the Sea. Wherefore I tooke my Boat and Sit lobn Barkley with me, rowed thither, and found it not onely imooth, but His fearch. by the view of our eyes a most goodly sandie Bay, to march all alongst by the Sea side till wee came to the Towne. Being well pleafed with this fight I returned aboard, and gaue order to all the Commanders prefendly to land there. But by divers of them many objections were made against landing there. First, that the march seemed to be great : Then, that none knew the way: Obiections, and lastly, if the Towne flood in an Iland, as they often had heard it did, we should be forced to returne to our ships, not having meanes to get vnto them. Gentlemen, said I, a willing minde makes The Earles To long step; with great ease: I have beene sicks and am not now strong; you shall goe no suriber nor faster answere. then I will doe before you : for guides wee need no better then our eyes; the Towne flanding by the Sea fide, and we landing from the Sea fee no other but faire fandie Bayes all the way thither : fo as much neerer we might land if we were fure there were any where to leeward such a head-land as this that maketh smooth landing within it. But that being uncertaine I meane to take this, which I doe affuredly believe God bath directed us unto , for I am fare, it is better then any ener told me of. And for your last argument, that if it be an lland we shall not get into it, that reason is nothing; for you see our Boats may row by vs, and when we shall come to any water they may set vs oner, if it be deepe: in shallow places we hall paffe our felues. So all you have or can fay being now throughly answered, let me have no more speaking, but get your men all into your Boates, and follow in order as I bane directed you. I will goe before

60 in my Boss , and when you fee my Colours difflayed , make all the hafte you can to land. This doe with good heart and courige, affuring your felnes you have the mayden bead of Porto Rico, and fo possesses the keves of all the in 1.3. And though there bee not fo many millions in it as there was when a greater farce then we went without it : vet affure your felfe the Towne is rich. The last yeere there were eighteene This laden with Ginger and Sugar from it. I affure you there are mynes of gold in it. And though thefe minder of Souldiers, will, I doubt not, carry you beyond all profit. It is thought by men of indermont too frone for this Arength to carry, because it hath alreadie refiled a much firenegr force: so as we should haut institution to see proma a success success and a success of the control of t This faid, the Captaines that were there went for their men, telling all the rest my resolution. And as soone as they saw me rowe towards the shoare all followed as I had directed. Thus 10 landed we the fixt day in a most fine place, where not any wet his furniture nor faw any enemie. By which meanes all our troopes were put in good order, and we made much stronger: then a small resistance before we were martialled would have made vs. This place was leasues from the Towne, towards which we marched in the extreame heate of the day, the way being fandy, and would no doubt haue tired many, but that going all alongst by the Sea, we at pleafure marched in it when we lifted; and besides had the place wee went to, still in our fight. which standing vpon the top of an hill shewed much nearer then it was. When wee had gone fome three leagues, we law fix or feuen Horfemen; which (the forlorne hop.) comming within fixteene or twenty score of, presently turned their Horses and galloped away. Not long after nxcene or twenty increases, the first ferries, which I was most glad of; aftering my felfe there came a Negre willingly offering his fertice, which I was most glad of; aftering my felfe would have guided me to the Towne: but he not speaking Spanish nor voderstanding it, we 20 were led by him to the entrance of the Sea that maketh the Iland, where I imagined with Boates to get ouer. But of that we were hindred by a bulwarke flanding on the Iland fide clofe voon the mouth of the entrance, and having in it five peeces of Braffe. The entrance is not above fixtie wards ouer, and a little within it is stopped quite ouer with piles driven in; so as it was not peffible to get in there fo long as the enemy possessed it. Then were we at our wits end, but Laffured my felfe there was some other good way ouer where those Horsemen rid which we saw before; and with much a doe made this dumbe guide understand that I would have him carry me to the place where they went ouer, When I perceived he vnderstood me, I followed him through the most wickedeft wood that euer I was in in all my life, & at length he brought me to the reare part of all my troope. And for that it grew late, and I was loath to loofe any time, I made them 30 march, being Sir lobu Barkley: Regiment; and gaue order mine owne should come in the reare. not having place nor time then to thift them. We had not gone farre, but we croffed the footing of the Horlemen we saw before, and following them were about Sunset brought to a narrow Bridge, whereon three might goe a front about two score ouer, and to our seeming about the midit of it aftrong Grate of wood close thut; and at the further fide of the water a Block-house with Ordnance, by which there flood five Spaniards. When I and Sir lobn Barkley had viewed this place, we understood by another Negre, that comming thither, at a low water we might paffe ouer wading besides the Cause. And he telling vs that it was not low water till two of the pane out: waning of the morning, we returned to a little plaine (that we piffed by before) to reft our men and give them some refreshing, for the better inabling them to fight in the morning.

CHAP. 3.S.I. Port Ricco Doyage. A Souldiers zeale. Canaries. Cancerota taken. II 9

Negres millen-

Hu farre the same bonomable hand bath beene our Actor and Anthone: but here when hee comes to doing broats off feating and (tam Marte quam Mercurio) exchangel h words for foords, and Mercurial art into Mariall ad rof which we have mother Relator as of the roll of the Voyage: ana mere in attendance to his bonourable Master. But I cannot give him that which yet this gives bim, a name". It is a copious discourse, which we have somewhat abridged; both in that former partof the I have fines . Historie, which you already have from Him which best know it and in the rest, in some superflustice or diheard that his, graffiant feeming fuch at leaft to me, who bassing fo much works, make my folfe more to make the Reader name was Do name was 100 5 leffe prouiding neueribeleffe that not a drop of necessary bloud be lost or strange meeted, bow often some 50 tot Lapleid, we seeme to open a vaine to om redundant Aubor bleed it was another cause which made me te ane out a political descourse and State-moral mysterie of this History, written by the same Noble Commander. whose worth here we benour. The times are altered, and hemsoener Planets have their peculiar course fixed Star: must mome with their Orbe, and follow the first Momenble. The men of Bethshemeth bought dearely their prying into the Arke : and I know not how I may be tolerated to otter now in public, thefe accrety tour prints.

State-mifferies which he then in prinate counselled for his Countries good. I could also be willing, as State-myster world would be greedee of such morfels: but Actops Dogge furthing at the shadow of a more near the water, toft that which be had in bu mouth, and bu Crowe gaping to jung to place for Force di-fedin the water, toft that which be had in bu mouth, and bu Crowe gaping to jung to place for Force di-placed her felly with infle of all her other wealth and purchase. Every where in this waste worke we have pleased for size with size a mover more remain some provings, comer merce in this valet water when have been warry, and yet scarce warry concept of two danger in our warrish warring (s. wherean yet (f. and sede 60) family be it is not an inching sugar longs above vs., but there of furthers is a multisforme a taske than the water water than the second of the second perhaps bath occasioned overlight to eyes, otherwise dimme enough. Once; what seems the King and State disclaime, I disclaime also as not mine, because I and mine are theirs, and no farther desire to be or fee mine owne then in the publice of which, and for which (under God) I am have, can, write, do, feeke, acknowledge all things, I will pry in the East and West Indies rather then state at at home. CHAP.

be motines to draw you to fight, yet bane I not sold you of one. Tou being Souldiers and corrume the have inst canse to be proud of taking it, and (beleene me) assured we are to take it, now we see where to June 11, 1019 go mail make great homes, and it may be indure one brunt; but if they doe any more teare

CHAP. IIL

A large Relation of the Port Ricco Doiage , written as is reported, by that learned man and reverend Dinine Doctor LAYFIELD, bis Lordships Chaplaine and Attendant in that expedition; Dery much abbreuiated.

The Shippes emploied in the Voyage and accidents on the Coasts of Spaine. in the Canaries, and the Nauigation thence 20 Dominica.

Is Lordship being authorised by Letters Patents given at Westminster the foure- Aug. 1596. Aug. teenth of Ianuary, to leuie Forces serusceable by Sea and Land, came downe to Parte (month the eight of February , wherein nothing memorable happened till Munday, being the thirteenth of March. While we were at Morning Prayer, bis Munday, being the thirteenth of March. While we were at CMorning Prayer, bit Lording bappened to fee a Gallant of the company (purposet) I name him not) reading of Worthy 20. of Orlando Furioso 12 whom homselfic in person went presently after Service, all the 2 worthy man, Company being by, and having told him that we mught looks that God would serve vs accordingly, if we fermed not hims better; bad him be sure that if againe be took g him in the like manner, be would cast his Booke over -book a and turne bim (elfe out of the Ship. The next day by observation it was found . that towards the euening we had runne within fine or fixe and twenty leagues of the North Cape: whereupon his Lordship gaue direction to the Vice-admirall, that he should carry his Flagge in the Maine-top, and with a peece of Ordnance should hale in the rest of the Fleete to no his Lee, and that they all with him as their Admirall for the time, should this night winde South and by West; and there they shoul I ride off and on scattering themselves to the North and South in the height of the Burlings, till his Lordshippe should come to them. In the meane feafon himfelfe attended onely with the Guiana, and the Scourges from, run to fall in with the North Cape, meaning by the taking of some Caruell or some Fisherman to have some certaine intelligence in what forwardnesse the frue Carracks were which at this very time his Lordship knew were ourwards bound. The defect of his maine Malte caufed him to ftand in for the Burlings.

The Burlings is an Iland something longer then broad, and by the violent beating of the Sea. The Surfiness it felfe almost made two Ilands, and within few yeares it will be so; exceeding rockie it is and or Berlinga. barren aboue meafure. We found no living thing in it, but Lyfards and fome few Conies. Vpon thursday, being the thirteenth of Aprill, we had fight of the Ilands. The first that was The courts within kenning, was Alegranga, the most Northerly of the Canaries: we left it on the star-board Hands, fide, as also three little hils rather then the Islands having all one name of the Grange. In the afternoone we had Lancerota, one of the fix great Canaries, in cleere kenning. The next morning twixt fine and fix, we were come to an anchor in the Roade, which beareth East South-east of the lland. His Lordship had taken colde with watching the last night, whereupon he found himselfe so ill the next morning (being good Friday) that he kept his Cabbin, and was glad to take fome ftrong Physicke : He fent therefore for Sir Jobs Barkley his Lieutenant generall and gaue him order to land with certaine Companies, to the number of betweene five and fix himdred men. They were in their March by ten that morning, and marched the next way (as they thought) to the chiefe Towne of the Hand, but their foremost defire was if they might, so have furprised the Marquesse, who commandeth both that and the next Iland called Fortenentura, 29 his owne possession. The Towne is from the place they landed at, as they consecture, some ten miles at the leaft. By fine in the afternoone they entered the Towne, which befides the expe- They take the Station they found clearely quitted of the enemy, and nothing in a manner left, fatting good ffore thiefe Towne of very excellent Wine and Cheefe, After the Towne was affured, Sir John fent a troope to a of Lamereta, a frong Hold some halfe a mile of from the Towne, called the Cattle; a place which the Merquesse had fortified with good store of Municion and Ordnance. When our Troopes were come The Castle taup the Hill, they found cwixt 80. and 200. Handers and Spaniards within and about the house, ken, but without fight they quitted the place, fo that our men entered it without loffe or danger, 60 They found in it a dozen or more cast Peeces of Brasse, the least Bases, the most whole Culturing

The House it selfe built of squared stone, slanked very strongly and cunningly, both for defence and offence : the entrance thereunto not as in our Fores of equall height with the foundation and ground, but raifed about a Pikes length in height, fo that without the vie of a Ladder, there and Demiculaering, and an innumerable company of Stones laid in places of greatest aduantage.

could be no entrance there. I have heard fundry of our wifest Commanders say, that if they had drawne in their Ladder and onely shut the doore, twenty men victualled might have kept it a-The Towne gainst fine hundred. The Towne confisteth of somewhat more then a hundred houses, whose building is rade, being commonly but of one Storie; their Roofes flat and fomething floring to caft of raine, coursed onely with Canes or Straw laid vpon a few rafters, and very dirt caft vpon ail, which being hardned by the Sunne, becommeth of showre-proofe, Inhabitants.

Beafts.

The Inhabitants are of very able and active bodies, their flature commonly tall, of swiftnesse (in that Mountainous Countrie) not farre behinde their Horfes and Cammels : their Armes are Pikes and Stones; when a Peece is prefented to them, fo foone as they perceine the cocke or match to fall, they call them felues flat to the ground, and the report is no fooner heard, but 10 they are upon their teete, their itones out of their hands, and withall they charge with their Pikes , and this in feattered incounters or fingle fight (for either they know not or neglect orderly bartalion) oftner giveth then receiveth hurt. The Hand it is not round, but firetched fomewhat in length to the North-east and South-west, parted by a ridge of Hils from end to end, as Italie is by the Mountaines-Apennine. These hils are barren, otherwise then that in prettie fore they teede flocks of Sneepe and Goates. Their Vallies promife no fruitfulnesse, being very fandy and dry, something like Rye-fields in Fngland, and yet they yeelde paffing good Barley, and Wheate. Their beatts be Sheepe and Goates, few Neate, many Affes, fewer Camels, but fewelt Gennets, and thefe of no great flature. The lland is thought to exceede the

28. degrees, and some minutes) by the complexion of the Inhabitants, which is blackish, and by their Haruest-time, which was past before the middest of Aprill, and looke for a second athe middeft of bout Michaelmas, their landing there was vpon good Friday. The next day, the fifteenth of Aprill, Sir John Barkeley, being out of hope to finde the Marquelle, not knowing where to freke him, whom feare had taught to hide him telfe closely, marched backe to the Nauie, without farther arme to the Towne or Cattle, then borrowing some necessaries. There is in the Towne a Church of old, and a Frierie not yet finished. Their Church hath no windowes, nor admit eth light otherwise then by the doores; it hath no Chancell, but is one vindeuided roome, stone feates along the fides, and in the one end an Altar with the appurtenants : for the people feemeth full of ignorant Superflition, many Buls and Pardons being found in divers houses. The 30 Friery is a prettie fquare, with more commodities of fresh water and Gardens, then any other place of the Towne, even the Marquelle his house.

Wieht both in breadth and length : of the Temper a man may judge (besides that it lyeth in 20

They came that night to the waters fide, yet thought it better to lodge abroade then abourd. though there were Boates to receive them. The next day being Eafter day, his Lording having fomerhing recovered his ftrength, after dinner went alhore to the Companies, having feene them trained knowing that the enemy watched for aduantage of scatterers, faw all his men shipt first. and then himlelfe tooke Boate. The next day, being Munday, all the Captaines dined aboord the Admirall, and after dinner his Lordship caused his Commission (which was exceeding large in many points) to be openly reade; and Articles of government were given for Sea-matters to the Captaine of every Ship, and for feruice by Land to the Captaine of every company; besides 40 which Articles to the Sea Captaines, was deliuered a fealed letter, which they should open, if upon any accident they loft the Fleete, and thereby learne direction where to feeke his Lordthip. But withall it was expresly articled, that in no other case they should adventure to open it; and that if they came into any danger of being taken by the enemy, they should not faile to cast the Letter over-board fealed, as it was delivered; for in no fort would his Lordship have his purpole difclosed, no not by examination nor torture.

While his Lording was coatting neere Teneriffa, the breathes rather then windes were fodiuers, that it was doubled on every fide almost and came so close abourd the shore, that we did eafily fee into Santa Cruz, and some other coasting Townes, and might discerne the men your the hils, the rather by conic cture, by reason of the eminencie and height thereof; among which 50 there is one about the rest incomprable, generally held to be much higher then the Pyke of the Acores, being then couered with Snow, when the bottome was as hot as at Midfummer it is in England. The Iland though to the Sea a very high land, yet is full of many very fruitfull Plaines. and Vineyards, yeelding to the King yearely (by credible mens report) 28000. Buts of Cana-Riches thereof ry-Sacke. Certaine it is, that in common reputation it is held richer not onely then the reft, but Capcaia Leight euen then the grand Canaria it felfe (though it feeme not fo goodly a champion Countrie (for we had that also in very neere kenning.) And that the King effeemeth it more no man can doubt feeing he keepeth a farre greater Garrison there, then in the Canaria.

Captaine Charles Leigh which hitherto had commanded of the Alcede, on the fourth of May laft, the Fleete and in his owne Barke, called the Blacke Lee, runne himfelfe alone for the River 63 of Orenogue. His Lordship after divers confulrations determined that the Fleete should goe for Dominico (His speeches, Captaine Slingsbies employment, and other particulars, are here for bre-

An old Portugall Pilor told his Lordhip that he had beene in eight and twentie voyages into

CHAP.2. $.2. Gusts and Inwholsome raines. Black colour of the Sea, Dominica. 1157

Brafil, but at this time of the yeere onely in one; wherein, hee faith, the windes were fo contrarie, and they had so many other difficulties, that they were forced to put in againe and loose that yeeres youage; fo that the windes being in these parts at set times of the yeere, themselves alio constantly fet, we might well thinke wee should bee encountred with the same difficulties. All this while we held on our course for the West Indies, running West and by South , and West South-west, but bearing still to the Westward, both because we are likelier to keepe the fresher cale that way (though some were of contrarie opinion) and because the later wee entred within the Tropick, we should bee the likelier to meet with the Brafil fleet, whose course homewards must of necessitie be much to the North. By Wednesday the tenth of May (for till then wee 10 met not with any memorable accident, feeing to tell of the flocks of flying fishes, might infly feeme trivial) we were come fo directly vnder the Sunne, that none could fee evidently the fha- Sunne in their dow of a fule fee perpendicularly, but if there were any it inclined rather to the due South. For Zeauh, by observation by the Astrolabe (the vie of the staffe now fayling) we were found to have passed our Tropick three degrees and a halfe, and the Sunnes declination that day was precifely ewentie degrees. This was more cleerly perceived at night by taking the height of the Crofier (a flarte which of all other diffinctly to be perceiued neere the Antartick Pole, ferueth for those Souther. The Crosser, ly parts, as the leffer Beare doth to the Northerly countries.) It is a long step from the Canaries to the Welt Indies, which first of all wee had in our kenning yoon Sunday being the one and twentieth of May. But to lay, if it be but a handfull of peeble 20 stones, in this gap. Vpon Saturday being the thirteenth of May, we had the first gust, and it had Gusts. many followers, for few dayes passed without raine. When this raine began, immediately wee all felt a very noyfome fauour, it was very fulphurous, and lasted folong as the raine did. Whe- Vnwholfomis ther this proceeded of the nature of the water that fell from fo neere the Sunne, or from the thip raine. being very drie (as on land after a great drought there will rife a hot fauour) it is not cleerly knowne, nor yet determined, but that others may the better, this observation is expresfed. This fauour was not felt vpon the decks, or any where elfe befides the Cabbin, or at least not any where so much. The reason whereof may happily bee, that the aire being suddenly beaten in, and that by narrow passages, came the more violently, and by consequent the more fentibly into the Cabbin, then into other parts of the thip, and therefore what-30 foeuer qualitie it bore with it, it was there the strongliest felt. In the following of as great guits as that which came first, there was no such fauour felt, the fleet going still farther and farther from the Sunne. And which may be most to the purpose, not any of them that felt it . found any difference after it, onely the fenie was much displeated therewithall; his Lordship had at this time aken much physick, but still rather to preuent sicknesse, then for to recouer health (for God be thanked, his body was very able to obey his minde) finding no difference in the world in the working of physick there and in England. Nauigators may helpe themselues by his Lordships observation : That upon Friday being the ninteenth of May, the colour of the Sea began Colour of the femibly to alter, that whereas before it was of a cleere azure, it then began to incline to a deepe Seablack. blacke. We were that day a hundreth and fixtie leagues (or thereabouts) from the West Indies 40 and held our felues fo certainly in the height of Dominica, that wee runne a due Westerly course. It is not valikely but this colour will be found in the fame place at another time. And in such a course, wherein (besides the great difference of Cardes) a man must bee forced to trust to a dead reckoning ; this may bee some helpe to a heedfull man. Vpon Sunday in the evening his Lord-thip directed the Matter to runne that night with an easie faile, because he tooke himselfe neerer land then most of the Mariners would confent to, being himselfe the first that both spyed and cryed land; they were but few that did affent at the first : fome defired it fo much, that they durit not let themselues be ouer credulous; others happily would have had themselues the first discry. ers, but his Lordship still made it land. Wee set faile for the land, and within two houres it was Matining. made to bee Matinino. Leaving it therefore on the larboard fide , wee flood for Dominica . and Dominica. 50 within an houre or thereabouts had it in kenning.

ð. I I.

Description of Dominica and the Virgines. Their landing on Port Ricco. march, fights, and taking the Towne.

Y two in the afternoone wee were come so neere aboard the shoare, that wee were met with many Canoes, manned with men wholly naked, fauing that they had chaines Naked Indians and bracelets and some bookins in their eares, or some strap in their nostrils or lips; the cause of their comming was to exchange their Tabacco, Pinos, Plantins, Potatoes, and Pepper with any trifle if it were gawdie. They were at the first suspicious that wee were Spa-miards or Frenchmen, but being affored that wee were English they came willingly aboard. They are men of good proportion, throng, and ftraight limmed, but tew of them tall, their wits able Redpainting. purpose, they prouide shelter against the raine because it washesh of their red painting , laid so on that if you touch it, you shall finde it on your fingers. That night, having with much adoe found land, within a quarter of a mile of the shore, we ankored for that night onely, for though there were a good watering place, and a very fweete 10 riveret falt by vs, yet his Lordship ment to way ankor the next morning, and to beare in to another watering place, where withall we certainly looked for a hot Bathe. Their Oares where with they rowe are not laid in bankes as Ship-boates have, but are made like a long Battledgore, fa-

ning that their palmes are much longer then broade, growing into a sharpe point, with a rising in the middest of thema good way ; very like they are to blades of bigge Westerne Daggers, that are now made with grauing. The shankes of these Oares are of equal bignesse, and at the top croffet like a lame mans crutch. These they vie alwayes with both their hands, but indifferent-Iv as they finde cause to steere this way or that way. The next morning wee bore in to the North-west end of the Hand, where we found a goodly Bay able to receive a greater Nauie then hath beene together in the memorie of this age. There his Lordship found the hote Bathe 20 fast by the fide of a very fine River. The Bathe is as hot as either the Croffe-bathe or Kings. bathe at the Citie of Bathe in England, and within three or foure yards runneth into the River. which within a ftones cast disburdeneth it selfe into the Sea. Hereour sicke men specially found good refreshing. In this place his Lordship staied some fix dayes in watering the whole Fleete, which in that time was all come fauing the Frigat, one of the blacke Pinnaces, and one of the Flemmings (which we hoped to be before vs, for they have directions.) It was held convenient here to take a Muster of our companies, and something better to acquaint every one with his owne colours; but the weather was so extreamely toule, that in three or foure dayes spent to this purpose, there could be nothing done. Vpon Wednesday therefore, being the last of May.

it was relolued to flay no longer there, but to come gaine to ankor at the Ungines, and there beflow one day in training our men. For that was our way to Saint John de Puerte rice, whether his Lordship now declared it was his purpose to goe first of all. By this time (for his Lordship would not have any thing done in that foule weather) the other blacke Pinnace was taken down for a long Boate to ferue for the more convenient landing of our men.

That evening and the next morning all our men were brought aboord, and on thursday night Description of our failes were cut for the Virgines. To describe this Iland, it lieth North-west and South-east. the foile is very fat, even in the most neglected places, matching the Garden-plats in England for a rich blacke molde : fo Mountainous (certaine in the places where we came neere the Seacoafts) that the Vallies may better be called Pits then Plaines, and withall so vnpassably wooddie, that it is maruailous how those naked soules can be able to pull themselues through them, 40 without renting their naturall cloathes. Some speake of more easie passages in the Inland of the Iland, which make it probable that they leave those skirts and edges of their Countrie thus of purpose for a wall of defence. These Hills are apparelled with very goodly greene Trees, of many forts. The tallnesse of these vnrequested Trees make the hils seeme more hilly then of themselves happily they are: for they grow folike good children of some happy civill body, without enuie or oppression, as that they looke like a proud meddow about Oxford, when after some irruption. Tems is againe cooched low within his owne banks, leaving the earths Mantle more ruggie and flakie, then otherwife it would have bin; yea to much feeme these natural children delighted with equalitie and withall with multiplication, that having growne to a definite flature, without deare of ouertopping others, they willingly let downe their boughes, which being come to 50 the earth againe take roote, as it were to continue the fuccession of their decaying progenitors: and yet they doe continually maintaine themselves in a greene-good liking, through the liberalitie partly of the Sunnes neighbourhood, which prouideth them in that necreneffe to the Sea. of exceeding showres; partly of many fine Rivers, which to requite the shadow and coolenesse they receive from the Trees, give them backe againe, a continuall refreshing of very sweete and A Town found taftie water. For the Inhabitants of this Countrie. A Captaine or two watering neere the place where his Lordship first anchored, found a leature to rowe vpa River with some guard or Pikes and Musketers, till they came to a Towne of these poore Saluages; and a poore Towne it was of fome twenty cottages rather then Houses, and yet there was there a King, whom they found in a wide hanging garment of rich crimion Taffetie, a Spanish Rapier in his hand, and the modell of 60

WildeMaiefty, a Lyon in finning Braffe, hanging upon his breaft. There they faw their women as naked as wee had feene their men, and alike attired even to the boring of their lippes and eares, yet in that nakednesse, they perceived some sparkes of modestie, not willingly comming in the sight of ffrance and apparelled men; and when they did come, buile to couer, what should have bin betCHAP.3. S.2. Adicherie. Maid and Wife. Common diet-roome, The Virgines. 1150

ter couered. The Queene they faw not, nor any of the Noble wives, but of the vulgar many ; and the Maidens it should seeme they would not have so squemish, for the King commanded his Daughters presence, with whom our Gentlemen did dance after meate was taken away. This withdrawing of their wines feemeth to come of the common isloufie of these people; for (it is Adultery pureported) that though they admit one man to have many wives, yet for any man to meddle nifhed with with another mans wife, is punished with death, even among them. And no meruaile if the fe- death, peritie of law be fet instead of many other wanting hinderances. It seemeth that themselves are wearie of their nakednesse, for besides the Kings apparrell, they are exceeding desirous to exchange any of their Commodities for an old Walte-coate, or but a Cap, yea or but a paire

It is pretie that they fay is the difference twixt the habit of a Wife and a Maide. The Maide Difference of weareth no garter (and indeede the needeth none) but the Wife is the first night the is married maide & wife, (which is not done without asking at the least the confent of her parents) to straightly gartered. that in time the fielh will hang ouer the lift. The haire of men and women are of like length. and fath on. But of all other things it is most memorable, that whereas their Houses are private to all other vies, yet they have one common place, where all their men at least take their diet, nature teaching them that Law which in Lucurgus his mouth was thought flrange and perhaps needeleffe. The King fitteth in the fame great roome with the rest, but withdrawing himselfe Kings state. into fome more louely part, accompanied onely with three or foure of the best esteeme; their neates are their fine fruites, yet have they Hennes and Pigges, but it should seeme rather for delight, then victually their drinke is commonly water, but they make drinke of their Callain. better of their Pines (and it should seeme that might be made an excellent liquor) but the best and referred for the Kings cup onely of Potatoes : their Bread is Caffain. The last report of them shall bee what I have feene in experience, namely their great delire to vinderfrand the English tongue; for some of them will print to most parts of his body, and having told Desire to learn the name of it in the language of Dominica, he would not reft till be were told the name of it English. in English, which having once told he would repeate till he could either name it right, or at least till he thought it was right, and so commonly it should be, fauing that to all words ending in a confonant they alwayes fet the fecond vowell, as for chinne, they fay chin-ne, fo ma-20 king most of the monatillables, distillables. But it is time to leave them who are already many leagues of.

On thursday night his Lordship set saile for the Virgines , and on faturday morning had They come to them in light : and in the afternoone we were come to an ankor. On Whitlunday in the morning betimes (for there was a fit place fought out the evening before) our land forces went on My Lordsland shore, and there his Lordshippe tooke a perfect muster of them. The Companies indeede were companies as (though after much ficknesse) goodly, in number one might well say not so fewe as a thousand. fand. When the Companies had bin trained into all forts, and faces of fights, at length his Lordhippe commanded the Drummes to beate a call, and the troopes being drawne in the nearest closenesse. The speech that conveniently they might be, that he might be heard of all, his Lording Randing vader a you have be-40 great cliffe of a rocke, his prospect to the Seaward, stept vpon one of the greater stones (which relation, and added to his naturall stature, gaue him a pretty height about the other company) to commanding there ore here audience, made a speech to them.

After which, the Fleete then within one dayes failing from Pmerto rices, his Lordship pre- See before the fently appointed Officers for the field. They all made vp a dozen Companies: whereof it any names of the wanted the full number of 80, they were plentifully supplied, by a large overplus of gallant Captaines and Gentlementhat followed his Lordships colours, borne by Captaine Bressley; and Sir Jobn allo Commanders, had more then 80. so that the whole Armie appointed to Land, was neere vpon a thousand fpecially feeing the Officers of feuerall Companies were not reckoned in these numbers. The Offices thus bestowed, his Lordship forthwith commanded every man to be shipped in Boates, and 50 to goe aboord, where after dinner it was debated, whether it were better to paffe through the Unreines, a way not clearely viknowne (for divers of our company both Souldiors and Marriners had gone it before with Sir Francis Drake, in his last voyage) or else to hold the old course Sir Fr. Drake, through the Paffages. It was acknowledged that the Virgines was the neerer way, but withall none can denie, but that it was the more dangerous; for the way is very narrow (about the breadth of Thames about London) and we durit not promite our felues the continuance of a leading winde. The way through the passages was found to be farther about, but withall it was without danger, and therefore having no great hafte choose the fafer way by the passages; for (faid his Lordship) I choose rather, to be the first that shall take Puerto rice, then the second that shall passe the Virgines. The Virgines are little Hands not inhabited; some thinke for want of The Virgines

60 water, some thinke that is no cause, and that there is store of water. They are very barren and described. craggie, fomewhat like the Barlings, but being much more fandie, as it is much more hot, Among these many scattered Hands there is one called the Bird-Hand, by reason of the incredible Bird-Hand, store of Fowle, So stored is it with plentie of Fowle, that never was English Doue-coat more willing to yeelde her increase then that hillocke, for you may take with your hands onely, as much as you will to the filling of Bushels and Quarters. That evening we cut failes; and ranne force of Birds. through the Paffages in the night time.

Voon Monday afternoone, we made our felues to be not farre from Puerto rico ; and our defire was to heare in with it in the morning before day, that by that meanes we might leaft of all he discovered. For this cause therefore the Scont and the Anthony were fent before to make our landing place, and that done to returne, which was about midnight. His Lordships greatest care was and had bin tome dayes to fet his men fafely and well on land, for he doubted not to make them a way, if once they were landed without impeachment, Himfelfe therefore having commanded that Sir John Barkley should come aboord with him, tooke a Boate and went himfelfe no otherwise accompanied then with Sir John and the Cocksons gyng, to discover a landing 10 place. Without long stay he returned agains, so wet, that he was forced to change his apparell. but withall gave prefent commandement that every Captaine and Ship should put their men into Boates, and that they should follow his bloudy colours, which he would have prefently

They land vp. on the Boof Saiat loby de Puerto rico the fiat of luna

By eight of the clocke that tuefday, being the fixt of June, his Lordfhips regiment, and most part of Sir John Barkleys were landed, which amounted neere to the number of a thousand men. We began to march as toone as we could be brought into any order, & the forlorne hope drawne ont which was led by Captaine Andrewer the Commander of his Lordships private Company, which that day was brought up in the the Battell by Captaine Powell, Lieutenant Colonell of his Lordships regiment. The way we marched was along the Sea side, commonly on firme, some 20 time on loole fand, but yet it was a faire march, for three leagues at the leaft, till we met with a blacke-Moore, who we hoped should have bin our Guide (and so he was willing to be) but he neither spake good English, nor good Spanish, and besides was affrighted, fo that a great while he did millead vs; for through most vnpassable rocks and clifts he brought vs! for betwixt the clifts where we flood, and the Hand wherein the Towne flood, there we faw an arme of the Sea, in bread; h not Calieuer shot, but on the other side was a fort with fine peece of great Ordnance, and some, though not many, Musketeers; for both the evening before they had disconered our Nauie, and this morning our landing, as we were fure by divers Horlemen, whom we faw come forth to view our ftrength. Here there was offer made by fome, fo to plant a number of Musketeers in these rockes, as that they might beate them in the fort from their Ord- to nance; this was thought possible, and afterwards was done but now deferred, because though we had no annoyance of the fort, yet we knew not how to get ouer, for the depth of the paffage meetly voknown, and our Boats yet had not found any landing place neere the fort. And while here we were at a flat bay, euen at our wits end, what courfe we might take to come to the Towne, there was fent a Peece or two of great Ordnance (but without any hurt) from another fort, which standeth vpon the narrowest part of the same arme of the Sea, and was the onely pallage that was yied from the maine Hand where we were, to the Hand where the Towne is-Never milgui- Here the Nigre was fo nething comforted, and brought to the little wit he had; at length, with much a oe, being made to vinderstand, we tooke our selues to be out of the way, because wee could not paffe that way; partly with threatning and partly with promiles if he brought vs in- 40 to a better way to the Townshe began agains to leade, and we to follow with as nimble mindes as weary bodies, for we had marched from morning till now that it was even in the edge of the euening; but we would not be weary.

Bad March.

At length through many untroden pathes, or rather no pathes; but fach wodden holes, as would have raught the most proud body to stoope very humbly; he brought vs into a braten fandy way. But for all this we were not neere the Bridge which must be passed, and diverseven of our leaders began after follong and troublefome a march to faint, fo that order was guen to flav the Vanteard, when it pleased God to helpe by one meane or other to as many Horses, as kept ve from staying our march. There might be seene a poore tyred lade, without Saddle or Brille, onely with a match in his mouth very welcome to them that commanded the beftHor- To fes of England. But at length we ouercame the length of the way, and even to the Bridge were come, but it was so late, that that night we were out of hope to passe it, being (as we had great reaton to thinke) fortified against vs. Onely the Companies were commanded to keepe their guard, till his Lordfhip in person with Sir John Barkley went as quietly as they could to take view of the place; which they found to be narrow and a long Cawfe-way leading to a Bridge reaching from the one Iland to the other. The Bridge they perceived to be pulled vp, and on the other banke was there a strong Barricado, a little beyond which was a Fort with Ordnance. But how much or what we could not learne, nor by how many men it was held, yet perceived they it absolutely not to be passed but at a low water. Our Mariners and Sea-men could say little to the ebbing and flowing in this Countrie, and therefore the onely way to know the fit 50 time of affault, was to let a continual watch to give prefent information of the ebbe. The meane time the Armie was led backe to repose themselves a while,

Bridge and

In a great Lawne we all fat or lay downe, and with fresh water, which the first Negro, and another, that was afterwards taken in this wood, led our men to, they refreshed thein iclus;

fome had fome Bread, his Lordship was no niggard of that he had. His lodging that night was his Target; I lay at his head, and to my remembrance, neuer flept better. In the morning (two houres at least before day) the allarum was given very quietly, and was readily taken, for we needed not but to shake our cares. The Companies were streight ranged, and every man had forgotten how weary he had bin the last night, fo forward they were to be in service: Euen betwixt his Lord hip and Sir Ioha Barkeley there grew a little question; whether of them should have the point that day. Sir Johns answer was, that his Lordship might command them all, and therefore it was at his pleafure to have or leave the point; but fince it had pleafed him to Sir John Barke. dui le the Armie into two Regiments, and his Lordshippes Leaders had all the last day had the leri honourable Point, he tooke it to be neerer the order of the Warres if the other Regiment this day were re- ambition.

spected. This reason together with request to his honour to remember himselfe to be the Generall and therefore his place should not be so full of danger, so farre mound his Lordship that Sir Johns Regiment had the Point; neuertheleffe his Lordshippe would be at the service in person. Thus the manner of the enterprize being vpon the prefent resolved on his Lordship put himselfe into his Armour lo did all the Commanders, and who elfe had Armours, for they looked that the fernice (hould be hot, as indeede it proued, tooke their enemies Pikes, and perforce brake them.

By and by the enemies Centinell had discourred the approach of our Companies, and they The fight betooke the Alarum. It may be well laid it was well fought by the English, and if it had bin day tweat the English and if it had bin day the and Spanthat every one might have feene what he did, it is to be thought fo many would not have de- ards, 20 ferued to much commendation. The affault continued about two hourses, during which time the Spaniards were not idle. For though the affalants left no way in the world vnattempted, yet no way could they finde to enter the Gate. The Cawfey, which was the ordinarie way of passage, was purposely made so rugged: that our men to keepe them on their feete, made choise to wade. The Earles acin the water besides it. Here his Lordship was (by the stumbling of him that bore his Target) cidentall danoverthrowne, even to the danger of drowning; for his Armour fo overburdened him, that the get-Sergiant Major that by chance was next had much adoe at the first and second time to get him from under the water : when he was up, he had received so much Salt water, that it drove him to fo great excremity of prefent fickneile, that he was forced to lye downe in the very place voon the Cawfey; till being somewhat recourred, he was able to be led to a place of some more 20 fafetie and eafe; in which place the Bullets made him threatning musicke on every side. His Lordshippe being brought to this little fafe place (whence yet he would not be removed till the fight was done) Sir lobn Barkeley led on his Regiment, from whom there were not leffe then 2000. English Bullets fent among the Spaniards, who had not fo many hands as we, yet were not much behinde vs, in fending thefe heavy leaden messengers of death. For besides fix peece of great Ordnance, which were bent and played inft vpon the Cawfey, and some pretty store of Musketeers; at a port fait by the gate lay there a fowler, or a cast peece, that did more skathe, then all the reft, for that at once that many murthering that, whereupon the peece is also called a murtherer; for all this our Soldiers came to the very gate, and with Bils, some two or three that they had, wanting other fitter influments, began to hewe it. At their ports and loope

haue swamme, he had bin drowned. They that were come to the gare called to their owne

Companies, that some Pikes should be drawne to them : this word was given farther then was intended, for by and by all the Pikes were called for. Then his Lordships colours began lous that it had bin as fafe being at the entry of a breach by allault : but the end was, it could would be advantagious for vs, yet certainely it would have bin the death of many a man;

their Ordnance being bent to fcoure the Cawfey, and the ruggednesse which they had made to hinder our approach, had made vs foriske it; which if the day had once discoursed to them, they might early haue bent their Artillery to our much greater lose. But God would not haue more bloud shed, nor ours as yet to haue our wils. The Companies therefore were brought 40 holes they were at the pulh of the Pike, and having broken their owne, with their naked hands at the sates,

But for all this no entrance could be got. Sir Iohn Barkeley attempting to discouer if any Sir I. Barkless paffage might be found of either fide of the gate, twice waded to farre, that if he could not courage.

to march, and to the Cawley came, where hee was very exceeding ficke lying upon the His Lordhips ground in a place, no lesse dangerous then if he had bin voon the Cawsey; a place so peril. perill.

50 not then bee taken; the tyde came in fo fait, that what was at our knees before, was now The tide him-come vo to our middles : and besides the day began to breake, which though some thought deresh them.

off to the place where we lodged all night, before where the Chirurgians were presently to looke to the hart, which were not many, and the flaine much fewer, all vnder ficie of both forts. No Commander flame or hurt but two Lieutenants. Lieutenant Cholmley, that had fer-50 ued excellently well, and Lieutenant Belings. The loffe that the enemy had was much like, fauing that of the assaults there were some tew more slaine: from this place our Companies marched to the Sea-lide, whether his Lordship had appointed victuals to meete them. His Latdinip having given the Souldhours some time to refresh themselves, in the meane time His Latdinip went himfelfe abourd to licke that in truth he was to be feared, with purpose to repose himfelte goeth abourd,

Ddddd

His remine and second

for that night, but his thoughts were fo busied and restlesse, that within few houres he came ashore againe, and presently put in execution a purpose, which his Lordshippe had this meine time digethed : it was to land men at the other Fort. For effecting whereof he gaue direction that one of the Ships should beare in close to the shore, though it were (as indeede it proved) with apparent danger of casting her away: But the service was to be done whatsorver it cost: Withall there were in the rocks on the other fide over against the Fort(I meane that which we first came to fee, but could not come at) some fifty Musketeers placed, to beate the enemy from their Ordnance : meane while there were shipped in Boates Captaine Coach , and Captaine Orrell with two hundred Pikes and shot to land on the other side the Fort, twixt it and the Town, that they having made good the place, might either make a stand till the rest of the forces were landed (if to it were thought needefull) or elfe might march and charge the other Fort on that fide, when our Good successe men should affault it on this side. This plot tooke very good effect; for within an houre that the attempt was given, partly the Ship, and partly the Musketeers had so beaten the Fort, that the Boates had good leifure to land; whereupon within fort space the enemy quitted the place without loffe to be tooken of to our Companies : for of all ours there were not about three hurt, and one flain, onely the Ship was driven upon the rockes, and finally cast away. Their dire-Chon was that the Souldiers should make the place good (for there was no doubt of their sufficient distolo.

Ship loft. The red Fort. cal'ed Mata.

S: aniards be a-The English

take the Forts Another Fort was gone.

the English.

firength) the Boats were commanded to come backe againe to his Lerdship, who appointed to tarry at a Conduit which is in the maine Hand but from whence men might be landed betwixt the point or the Bridge, and the red fort, called Mata-diabolo. Our men were fately landed some pretty distance beyond the red Fort; where the Spaniards were ready to receive them, and a while they skirmished gallantly, but finding themselves overweake, th y made an honorable retreat till they were fallen into the wood, in the edge whereof they made their first stand. Ours marched directly to the Fert, which they found quitted, and there lodged all that night. By that time that the Boates were come backe to his Lordshio, the Moone was growne fo light, and the water fallen to fo dead an ebbe, that there was no hope of patige till the next floud. There was not fo much as a candle or a match to be feene in the Fort, whereupon his Lordship told Sir John Barkeley that he tooke that Fort also to be quitted, the rather because some were seene passing from the Fort to the Frigat. Hereupon himselfe accompanied with Sir Iohn Barkeley, went to the Cawley to fee if they could perceive any more 20 certaintie, and Captaine Rukerby was sent and brought certaine intelligence, that the enemy

By this time it was growne very late, and our men needed some refreshing: the Companies therefore were drawne vp to the place where we had lodged the last night, where having eaten fomething they were within a while brought downe to the point, where meeting with Captaine Coach and Captaine Orrell, all began to march directly towards the Towne. And now They enter the our men made but little doubt of all having once fet fafe footing in the leffer fland. It was night lefe land and when we began to march, and by breake of day we were at the Towne. This day was thurfday, march to the Iun. 8. The pallage is woodlie on either fide, and so narrow that not passing three at the most can march in ranke; and from the Towne this Fort is a mile and a halfe : yet all this way being fo 40 fit for Ambuskadoes, or for the Irilb manner of charging by sudden comming on and off, there was not a Dogge that barked at vs, fo that in great quietnesse wee came to the Towne. people able to and found it quitted of all able to make refistance : fo. besides women and men , whom eibeare times, ther age or wounds had difal-led for the warres, all the rest had quitted the Towne, and beand entited by taken themselves as to their last hope, to one of their Forts to the Sea-wards . called Mora.

d. III.

The Fort Mora beseeged and taken. The Towne described: the Mines. Purpose to hold the place; altered by the death and fickeneffe of many.

The Fort furn-

The Gouernors brauado.

Care to fauc

Free that the place was affored with sufficient guards, and euery Company quartered:

first of all the Spanuards that were left were deducted to the Prouost, and then his Lordwhipsent a Drum to summon the Fort tobe deducted to him for the Queene of England, who had fent him thither to take it. The Gouernour made answere that the King of Spaine had fent him this her to keepe it, and that fo long as he lived it should not be delivered. After this summons his Lordship tooke exceeding care for the taking in of this hold with the leaft losse of men that pussibly might be; for he considered that he was to leave a strong Garri-60 fon there, and that he must himselfe goe home well guarded. His purpose therefore was to take it without fight, onely with a straight siedge to force them to yeelding; his Lordships speciall purpose and delire was by hunger to drive them to a yeelding (as in the end hee did) but withall he prouided a batterie, if their victualls should last longer then he wished and honed. At one time therefore he tooke order to cut off all possible meanes of reliefe of victualls, by tenting Boates, which continually lay twixt the Fort and their Mayne; and withall hee prouided two plateformes, and feuerall Gabions, that from two places at once their wall might bee beaten. To this purpose there was brought from the Scourge two whole Culuerings, and two Demiculperings, and about the Towne were found foure other preces that would ferue for batterie, among the which one was that which had thin Sir Nicholas Clifford there not long before. By Sa- Sir Nicholas turday the seuenteenth of Iune the Ordnance was readie to batter. But his Lordship would not clifford, have them begin on the Sabbath day; so that it was deferred till Monday.

CHAP.3. S.3. Earle of Cumberlands inflice. Parlie, Propositions, Articles. 1162

All this while the noise of warre was not so great among vs, but that the still voice of Iu- His Lerdships flice was well heard. It is no newes that in such companies there will bee outrages committed, inflice, and fo was it there; for his Lordship publikely disarmed a very good Souldier, for ouer-violent Souldier differspoyling a Gentlewoman of her jewels. But because this was not terrible enough to the reft, med for vnand he was defirous to arme Iuitice with the authoritie of all the Commanders, forthwith hee mannerly ve caufed a martiall Court to bee called. Whereupon the Article of defacing Churches or Houses of fage to a wo-Religion, and of offering force to Women, there were two condemned to die. Hee that had man. done violence to a Spaniards wife, was a Souldier, and had given very good proofe of his va. Churches and lour, fo farre, that his Lordship had taken speciall notice of him, but being convicted of this Women secucrime, there was no place left for mercy, but hanged hee was in the market place; the Spa- Rauither exeniards as many as would come, being fuffered to be prefent at the execution. The other fellow cuted.

was a Sayler and an Officer in the Vice-admirall, for defacing fome things in the Church, with- Sacriledge out order from the Generall, hee was brought thrice to the Gibbet, and at length his Lordhin terrified, was intreated to grant him mercy. These few but indeed notable examples of justice have fince held vs in much better termes of ruly obedience.

Vpon Monday the batterie began to speake very loud: both the Gabions beat vpon a Caualero which they had made upon the Point next to the Towne. The Ordnance which they had planted thereon, by dinner time was judged to bee difmounted, and though that were the thing specially respected in the batterie, yet because the Wall and the Caualero that Hood you on it began to nod, they beat that place till towards the evening. All this while scarce was 20 there a Spaniard to be feene upon any part of their wall, whereas before the Ordnance began to play, there could not within the fight and reach of the Fort, foure or fine of the Souldiers come together, but there would a shot of great Ordnance be fent to scatter them. In the euening the Canoneers found that they had spent all the Culuering shot, and therefore shut wp that day with the leffer peeces. Against the morning there was more provided; but in the meane feafon it was perceived, that the Caualero was alreadie fufficiently beaten, and that with the next raine (which in that Countrie and time of the yeere, is neither seldome nor little) it Raines would fall, being (as all the Countrie is) of a fandie earth, it did but crumble into duft. The Canoneers therefore were appointed in the morning to beate the other Point nearer the Sea. For that fo flanked the Gate, and the breach alreadie made, that without great danger there 40 could not any approch be made, and his Lordship was growne exceeding niggardly of the expence of any one mans life. This wrought so with them in the Fort, that about one a clocke, they sent forth a Drum to Parley demandemand parley. His motion was, that two of their Captaines might be fuffered to speake with ded. two of the English. It was granted; and they met in a place of the greatest indifferency that could be found, fo that neither partie should discouer others strength. The demands were deli- Conditions uered in Paper, written in Spanish: the fumme whereof was; for themselves they deired that demanded with Colours flying, match in their cocks, and bullets in their mouth be fet beyond the Point at the Bridge, to goe whither they would. Further, they demanded all the prifoners to bee delivered without ransome, and that no mans Negroes and Slaves should be detayned from them. 50 His Lordship veterly refused any such composition, but told them because hee tooke no pleasure in Bedding Christian bloud, hee would deliuer them some Articles, which if they liked, hee would without more adoc receive them to mercy. Which Articles were thefe, delivered under his Lordships owne hand to the Gouernour.

A resolution, which you may trust to.

Am content to give your selfe and all your people their lives, your selfe, with your Captaines and Arcicks offe-Officers to passe with your Armes: all the rest of your Souldiers with their Rapiers and Dag., ted.

gers onely.

60 You shall all stay bere with me, till I give you passage from the Iland, which shall be evithin this.

Any one of you, which I shall choose, shall goe with me into England, but shall not stay longer there then one maneth, but being well fitted for the purpose, shall bee safely sent home into Spaine without ransome.

Diddd 2

It was doubted whether there were any in the Fort that spake English, and therefore some were wishing the Articles were translated into Spanish. But his Lordship peremptorily refused to feeke their language, but would have them to finde out his; but because it was now growne late, he gave them respite to thinke what they would answere till eight a clocke the next day, and promife was given on either fide, that neither should practife to put things out of the state. they now were in. The next morning rather before then after the time appointed , there returned to his Lordfhip, befides the two former Captaines, both hee that now was, and hee that had beene laft Gouernour, and withall they brought with them one of good place in his Lordships feruics whom they had taken prifoner, while he was viewing a peece of Ordnance that lay neere the Fort, Thele also required (as Captaine Lanfois and the Sergeant Major before) 10 Spaniards yould private audience who without much difficultie yeelded vpon the forelaid conditions; and farther defined they might have two Colours left them, & in lieu hereof they made promife that nothing should be tooyled in the Fort. That day the Gouernour and his Companie dined with his Lordfhip, and after dinner the Gouernour went and brought out his Companies out of the Fort

The Fort Mera (which of all forts were neere foure hundred) and delinered the keyes to his Lordship, who wherein were immediately brought in his owne Colours, and Sir John Barkleys, and placed them upon the 400. Souldiers, two Points of the Fort. The Spaniards without being pillaged (for befide all promifes his deliuered vp to Lordfhip fuffered them to carry their ftuffe away) conueyed fafely into a ftrong Caftle in the Towns called Fortileza. This Fort was taken in youn Wednesday being the one and twentieth of June, and your Thursday our fleet was commanded to come into the Harbour, for all this 20 while it had rid without. This Fort is to the Sea-ward very firong, and fitted with goodly Ordnance, and bestowed for the most advantage to annoy an enemie that possibly could bee denifed. It is held absolutely impossible that any shippe should passe that Point without finking inflantly, if the Fort doe not graunt her paffage: And the riding without the Harbour is very dangerous as wee found by the lofe of many Anchors and Cables, to the extreme danger of many of the Ships, and the finall casting away of one of them. The Fort to the landward is not altogether to firong as towards the Sea, but yet being victualled able to abide a The Towne confisteth of many large streets, the houses are built after the Spanish manner.

doores in flead of windowes for receit of aire, which for the most part of the day wanteth ne-

uer. For about eight in the morning there rifeth ordinarily a fresh breese (as they call it) and bloweth till foure or fine in the afternoone, so that their houses all that while are very coole, of all the artificiall day the space from three in the morning till fixe, is the most temperate, so very foultering, from five in the afternoone hottest of all the rest till midnight, which time

The description of the citie of two flories height onely, but very ftrongly, and the roomes are goodly and large, with great 30 of Saint Lobs de Puerto Rico.

Heathoword that then a man may well indure fome light clothes vpon him; from fixe till the breefe rife is Great dewes. Greatneffe.

Cathedrall Church defcribed.

No classe windowes. The doores, lowest part of

alto is held dangerous to be abroad, by reason of the Serenaes (they call them) which are raynie dewes. And indeed in the nights the Souldiers which were forced to lie abroad in the fields. when they awaked found as much of their bodies as lay vpwards to bee very wet. The Towne in circuit is not fo bigge as Oxford, but very much bigger then all Portesmonth within the for- 40 tifications, and in fight much fayrer. In all this space there is very little lost ground; for they have beene still building, infomuch as that within these three yeeres, it is augmented one fourth part. The Cathedrall Church is not fo goodly as any of the Cathedrall Churches in England, and yet it is faire and handsome; two rowes of proportionable pillars, make two allies besides the middle walke, and this all along up to the high Altar. It is darker then commonly Countrie Churches in England. For the windowes are few and little, and those indeed without glaffe (whereof there is none to be found in all the Towne) but covered with Canuas, fo that the most of the light is received by the doores, the greatest whereof is just in the West end to the Seaward, to that out of it a man walking in the Church may behold the ships riding in a very faire Harbour. The other two doores (besides that which is private from the Bishops 50 house) are on either fide, a little aboue their Quire. For that of all other things is the most fingular and differing from the fathion in England, that their Quire is in the very lowest and Weitermoft part of their Church, wherein is the Bishops feate rayled three good steps about the rest, and pompoully built. On either side of him seeme to sit sixe Prebends, and vpwards are places for linging men and Quirifters. Their Church wanteth no necessarie implement. On the North fide a faire paire of Organs; at either fide-doore a poore mans boxe : aboue the Organs on the same side, there is a decent Pulpit very conveniently placed; on the other side of the fide-doores, there were two Lauers for holy water, to fprinkle the Incommers, and in the South-west corner fast by the great doore is there a place seemly inclosed with Ioyners worke, where is a faire Font placed. This Church is facred to Saint John Baptist. as is all the 63 Iland: befides his Image there were many other in particular shrines, which the Souldiers could not bee held from defacing vnorderly. There are in the Citie three or foure little Chappels to Saint Anne, Saint Barbara, and others. Befides the Fort, which held out those few dayes, and is of some twice twelve score remored from the Towne: there is in the West and by South side of the Towne a strong Castle, The Castle, built of squared stone, commonly called the Kings house, named before Fortileza, wherein was found good ftore of Munition. Betwixt this Caffle, and the Fort Mora, there is another peece of fortification of squared Stone and battlemented, it also coasteth along the Sea, and may beate the harbout, So that all things confidered, it was the mightie hand of God, which with the loffe of two men onely at one that flaine with a peece of Ordnance, delivered a place of fuch ffrength, to fo small a troope of men, the rather if it be considered, that we came not thither vnlooked for ; for they had particular warning a moneth at least before, and to the waterfide where Boates vie to land out of the harbour, they had cast vp a strong ditch to impeach landing there, but God brought vs a better way. There is also a faire Frierie itanding on the North fide Monsteries of the Towne, but little distant from it: it is built of Bricke in a good large square, with a Church and Hall, and all necessary roomes for a Pryor and Couent of Fryers, it seemeth not to be perfected yet, for they are beginning of a Cloyster not yet coursed. The Couent was fled all, faning one old Fryer, who in the little broken Latine that he had told me, that they were Dominicani ordinis pradicatorum mendicantium. The scituation of this place is exceeding desighted full: it flandeth vpon the easie hanging of a hill, inclosed on three parts well neere by the Sea, The foile fandie and very light, like to our Rye-fields in England : the temper as in that height hot, and yet rather effectually and in operation, then to the lende. There books have their glewed backs, there melted and loolened; Flowers or Fruites candied in England, there lose their crust,

20 and English Comfits grow liquid. But after some little acquaintance, it is likely it would proue a very healthfull place; for though they speake of some mortality (as what place in the world is alwaies free from that scourge of God!) that hath bin there of late, yet hane I bin told by them that have lived there, in seventeene moneths there have not about two bin buried, and those of extreame age. And at his Lordships comming hither people of 80. and 90. yeares old were of good abilitie of body.

The rest of this little Iland (at the least halfe of a league in length) is for the most Woods com - Woods of replaining of the want of dreffing and industrie, yet are they all youthfully greene, and none with knowne trees, out some fruite or other, but so strange as would pose the professors of that skill in England: and in these woods Horses and Oxen grow fat, if they be suffered to rest. Therein be also some large 30 inclosures carefully dressed, not valike to our manner of dressing Hop-yards, and every hillocke laden with the fruites of the Countrie. Lemmons or rather Lymes, and the goodlieft Orenges that ever I faw are ordinarily to be found where no man fet them. In and about the Towne there is flore of Coker-nut-trees, which, befide the excellencie of the Fruite, give a very delightfull gracing to the Towne. There is not in this little Hand any knowne River or Spring', but hard beyond the point in the other Hand there is an excellent Conduit of very good fresh water, handsomely ouerbuilt with squared Stone; and in the Towne every house hath a large Well, and fome two, fo as they cannot want water in such plentie of raine, which is there both often and abundant. And if men will not lose themselves with overmuch ease and pleasure, there will be no necessarie thing wanting. But the eminent and knowne profits of this place are Ginger, 40 Sugar and Hides, befides the fecrets of the Gold Mines, how focuer of late yeares neglected. Some realons have beene given, why the King left working though be knew there were exceeding flore of Gold. The first is, the very store of Gold; for say they the sweetenesse he found, made him vnwilling to have any copartners, and therefore knowing this place to bee the neerest to the Indies to Why those those Countrimen, whom he most feared that they would in time become sharers with him, mynes are he would not lay such a baite to entice them to set footing there, where being once entered, neglected. they would not onely guild their fingers, and pay their Souldiers for the present with his Treafure, but would make this their baiting place in the longer journey to the other Ilands, and continent of the Indies, which are the very coffers whence he feedeth his warres. And if it be ob-iected, that the working in these Mines was ceased before the King had cause to feate the Eng-50 lift or French invasions thereinto, there being then no warres twixt him and them; let them reft (atisfied that with the answer made by a Spaniard to his Lordship, objecting the same, that the marres were then a brewing. Secondly, they tay that the King left working in this, because he would have all not onely this, but the other Mines alto; for he faw that all men, as they doe love wealth, so doe they also seeke after ease, And if with lesse labour they may get the same profit, none will undergoe needleffe trauell. From which generall, the descent is very easie and direct to this particular. That if in a shorter voyage and leffe time his subjects were sure to make themfelues Mafters of as much gold, as if they went farther and should come no heavier home; hee should finde but few that would fetch gold from Peru, or the other more inland parts of the Indies, when as they might have it with halfe the travell, and in halfe the time. Befides, the Spa-

60 mards great lands and pouertie of men will not fuffer all workes goe forwards at once. There are among the Spaniards whom God hath delivered to his Lordships hands, the same Lanfois of whom was spoken before. In what reckoning hee is held by the Spaniards, may bee perceiued, by their imploying him, in time of fo great necessitie. Once it is confessed, that hee almost onely was her that held the rest from present yeelding, and who after yeelding (which vet they fay was without his confent) taketh the loffe of the Spaniards most of all to heart-He seemeth truly to be wise about the common pitch of Souldiers which is his profession, yet hath he beene heard fay and proteft by the faith of a Souldier, that there is not to rich and good a myne in all the Kings Dominions to the Westward, as that of Puerto Ruce, Others whose fathers were imployed in the workes, report what their dying fathers told them. But that which maketh most of all to the purpose, is the present preparation which the King is even now a making, for the reulaing of thele workes afieth in Paerto Rico, by fetting two hundreth Negroes to worke, and for that purpose had fent great store of Mattocks and Spades thither, there found in his store-house, and for what other vie they should have needed, is not well Much time was spent in taking order how the Spaniards might be dispatched to Carthagena:

(for thither it was refolued they should bee sent) being a place so farre to the leeward of Puerto Rico . as that they neither could in hafte them telues make any head, nor fend newes to Spaine, to procure the leading of any forces thence : and in prouiding victuals for this place, and repayring Suile descreed. Thips that were first to come for England. Vpon Thursday being Saint Peters day, there was a faile discryed at Sea in the morning, and by noone thre was come into the Harbour, which with much aftonishment thee found turned English. The Spaniards had fome few dayes before reported that they looked for a ship to bring from the Hanana much of the Souldiers pay that was behinde. This held vs for the time in great suspence of hope and doubt, whether this might bee shee or no; the rather because this seemed to bee of the same bignesse that they had spoken of , but when shee was fallen into the trap , it was found indeed to bee a very Moule, where we looked for a Mountaine. For her lading was a number of poore naked Negroes from Angola to bee fold there. Yet was shee a pretie Boat, and of her lading likely to bee made of good vie. Within few dayes after there was another faile almost taken after the same manner. yet perceiving a greater fleete riding there, then thee could hope to finde Spanifo flee got her tack aboard, and went away lasking, fo that though the Affection was fent away in chace after her, yet shee escaped.

Vpon Friday being the feuenth of July, all things being made readie for their paffage, the Spaniards were imbarked in a Caruell, and in another ship, which during the time the ships rode without the Harbour, for feare of them whom shee could not passe, or enuie that they 30 should receive good by her, ranne her selfe desperately ashoare, but shee and most things in her were faued, and here face faued the lending away of a better ship. With these two, wherein the bater Spaniards were put, there were two other shipsient to wast them, wherein also wene the Gouernour and some few others, who descrued some respect. And for themselves it was permitted them to come directly home for England. The next day being the eighth of July there came to his Lordship two Negroes from the mayne Iland with a flagge of truce, and a letter from one Seralia, an ancient Commander in that Iland, and who youn a wound received in the first fight at the bridge had with-drawne himselfe into the Countrie. The effect of his defire was , that being in great distresse through feare of the English , that daily marched up and downe the Countrie, he defred his Lordship to grant him and his protection to travell without 40 danger. Whereanto his Lordship made this answere to be written, and sent him. That he must absolutely dense his request, but yet if himselfe, or any of his Nation, or any dwelling with him or them would within eight dayes come unto him to Puerto Rico, be should by the vertue of that his Letter bee protected from being taken or spoyled, by any of his Souldiers : and this bee willed him to signific to them neere about him, that they might give notice of the same throughout the whole Iland. And further, his Lordhip promised that to as many as would come, that they should both come safely, and if they so would should bee imbarked, and fent away as the Governour with the rest of the Spaniards were alreadie.

His Lordships honorable resolution and intendment was, not to come so farre from home, to take onely or spoile some place in this other world, and then run home againe : buthee had de- 50 termined (by the leave of God) to keepe Puerto Rico, if it pleafed God to give it into his hands. That was the place he meant to carry, whatfoeuer it might cost him, being the very key of the West Indies, which locketh and shutteth all the gold and oluer in the Continent of America and Brafilia. He knew that Saint Domingo might with much leffe loffe bee taken, and would bring much greater profit for the prefent; in regard whereof, and of the delire hee had his Aduenturers should become gayners, his thoughts sometime tooke that way, but finally they stayed at Puerto Purpose of flav Rico, and there letted themselves. As this was his resolution before hee had it, to was it also after he had it, and then not onely his, but every man of worth or spirit saw such reason in his Lordfnips delignments, that fome thought themselves not so graciously dealt withall, that they were taips dengaments, that forme thought the passed ouer, when others were named to stay. But God had otherwise disposed. For within a winde that his Lordship had beene in Puerto Rico, many of our men fell ficke, and at the very first not very many dyed. The Spanish as well as the English were both ficke and dyed of the ficknesse, as befides Seralia was feene in divers others. O hers fulpected their bodily labours to have procured it, and both feeme to have concurred.

the place.

fickneffe and mortaliție.

In July and August is their Winter, so called for their great raines at those times, which to bodies alreadie rarified by the heat of the Sunne then ouer them, and yet rather where vehement led of shanexercise hath more opened the pores whereby inward heat is exhaled, must needed be very dangerons. It was an extreme loolenefte of the body, which within few dayes would grow into a in luly and flux of bloud, fometimes in the beginning accompanyed with a hot Ague, but alwayes in the August. end attended by an extreme debillitie and waste of spirits: so that some two dayes before death. The diferse, the armes and legs of the ficke would be wonderfull cold. And that was held for a certaine figne of neare departure. This fickneffe vitually within few dayes (for it was very extreme to the number of fixtic eightie, and an hundred ftooles in an artificiall day) brought a languithing 10 weaknesse oner all the body, so that one mans sicknesse (if here were of any note) commonly kept two from doing duties. And this was it, which rather then the number alreadie dead, made his Lordship first thinke of quitting the place. For though towards the beginning of July, there were not much about two hundred dead, yet was there twice as many licke, and there was no great hope to recouer the most of them. The ships were left weakly manned, for when we landed we landed about a thouland men, of which the greater part was dead or made voferuiceable for the prefent. There were about fourt hundred reported dead when his Lordship left the 400 English Towne, and furely as many to ficke, that most of them could not bring themfolius aboard, before deal of ficke his Lordihip left the place. After that it was once openly given out what his Lordihip purposed, Rico then was order taken to make readie the ships, in which time these things happened. Vpon Fri-20 day the feuenth of July, there was a faile diferyed, which being come in was found to bee one of our owne, though made ours by purchase. Heretofore it was noted, that at our comming from the Canaries, wee wanted the Frigat and one of the black Pinnaces, which being fent vpon a piece of feruice with Captaine Slingsbyin the Confent, had left him, and were gone after a chace, but how farre or whither none knew till this faile came in , which told vs that they had taken that chace, whose lading was Muttons onely and Hennes, passing from one Iland to another, but the Frigat, was forced to breake open his Letter, to know his direction whither his Lordihip had appointed him to come to him. According whereunto they first stood for Margarita, where 30 not finding his Lordship, nor hearing any newes of the fleet; they put off agains for Puerto Ruo. according to the direction they had received. But by reason of the violence of the Current there not to well knowne to them, they were driven to the leeward of Puerto Rico, and so had beene at Domingo before they came to vs. There they heard newes of his Lordfhips being at Paerto Rico. and that he had taken the Towne, but the Fort held out still. Making therefore all the halte they could bearing up as high as the Paffager, they got thither at laft. The men in this flup were they which had beene in the black Pinnace, but because shee began to bee leakie, and not to brooke Black Pinnace thefe Seas, they had funke her, and put themfelues into the prize, which being of better falle funke, then the Frigat, had out-gone her some dayes sayling, for they told vs shee would also bee there within few dayes, and so shee was on Tuesday next after, having lost one man of their compa-40 nie, all the rest were very strong, and in good liking. Vpon Wednesday the nineteenth of July, there came into this Harbour a Caruell: Shee was found to bee of Margarita, laded onely with

withall they had to irrecoverably loft the ficet, that after they had there stayed fine or fixe dayes, beating up and downe to finde vs againe, but without effect. Captaine Harper that commanded paffengers that were bound for Spaine. There were also found some rags and medicine pearle, to Arbonford the value of a thousand Dockets; the men were not many, and it should seeme they had not Ducats worth further furnished themselves, then might provide them necessaries at their arrivall in Spaine, and of pearles to present their friends. Vpon interrogatories therefore he found it very certaine by the agree- found. ing confession of them all, that they were so farre from hearing of any fleet of the English in these Westerne parts, that in much securitie the Kings Chist was yet remayning in Margarua, with The Kings rich no more then the ordinarie guard. For befiles the old Garriton of about thirtie Souldiers, there Chift of peris was not any new supply. Onely they had received direction from the King, that seeing the in Margalia, 50 Chift was very rich, they should not aduenture to fend to great treasure without assured strength; and therefore his pleafure was fignified to be, that it should attend his fending of some Gallions or Frigats for the lafe wafting of the same. The Chift had not beene stirred some yeeres , and therefore rich it must needes be, in a place which so plentifully yeelded pearle. Triall was made by his Lordship with three ships; but Margarita lying South-east or South-east by South from Puerto Rieco, and the windes at that time of the yeere constantly blowing East South-east or South-east by East, they were forced backe frustrate of their hopes.

A. IIII.

d. IIII.

Purpose of returne. Treatie with the Spaniards. His Lordships departure. Description of the Iland, the Beasts, Fruits, Plants, dec.

Is Lordship after he saw it was not Gods pleasure, that this place should yet bee kent by the English, had made some offers afaire off to the Teniente, and other chiefe men that were in the mayne lland, for ranfomming their lland and Citie. To this purpose he vied one Antonio Robles, a Licenciate in physick, that had beene taken in the thin of Angola, whereof I noted fomething before. This Robles is a man, whom fomelearning IQ and much experience added to his naturall wit, had made very subtile and craftie. Hee once returned, but soone after gaue the slip, as also did two others. By reason of this accident, the old Governour and the rest of the Spansards, were restrayned of much libertie they had, and were kept in closer durance : which wrought with them in such fort , that at his Lordships returne into the Harbour, the Gouernour Pedro Suarez made offer to his Lordship, that if it would please him to fend one Vincent Lopez (that was in restraint with him) againe to negociate with the Teniente touching the ransome of the Citie and Stansies, he would become suretie for his returne. His Lordship refused to write any more to men so vnworthy of his curtesie, which they had much abused; Marry if you, said my Lord, doe see likelihood that any thing would bee effected, and would your felfe and as from your felfe write to them to perswade them for their 20 Later fent with owne good, I would vpon your word and furetiship, be content that the faid Lopez should passe, Thus vpon Tuesday the first of August, was Lopez dispatched with one Letter to the Bishop. and another to the Teniente, both from Pedro Suarez. Vpon Thursday the third day , Lopez returned. And brought his Lordship 2 Letter in shew from the Licenciate in physick, Antonio Robles, but indeed it was an answere from the Teniente, Pedre Garcia, and the rest, into whose hands the government fell, vpon the fending away of the present Governour Antonio Musichere. In this Letter, besides many idle excuses for his owne treacherous breach of promise (the convenient doing whereof was in likelihood the caufe, that he specially was deputed to write for the reft) there was offer made, that if it would please his Excellence, to set downe and send them a definite summe, which he would accept, they would looke into their present abilitie, and accor- 30 dingly would fend his Lordship assurance, that within seuen dayes it should be sent to him, to be received at the Point, where hee held continuall guard. Concluding, that in these sendings they fought nothing but delaies, his Lordship determined not to send them any more, but withall speed so make himselfe and the fleet readie for a happy, and by many much delired returne, since it was cleere, that it was not Gods pleasure, that yet this Iland should bee inhabited by the Eneldh. All the Hides therefore, and Ginger and Sugar, which either was alreadie readie or in time could be gotten, was forthwith fhipped, and so was all the munition in the Towne, all the Ordnance in any place of that Iland, which amounted in all and of all forts very neere the full number of

80 peeces of fourscore cast peeces, some of them the goodliest that euer I faw. But when they faw his Lordthis refolute to fend no more to them for negotiating touching the ranfome of their Citie; they 40 nance brought now begin to fend againe and againe to him. His Lordfhip neuer meant to deface their Citie, or to make it whice to be inhabited. But withall he tooke the likelieft wayes, to conceale this from the knowledge of the enemie, whom hee could not fo well rule with any other bit, our owne frength being now growne to weake. His Lordship therefore entertayned their offers, and to farre granted their defires, that tome in the name of them all, might with his Lordin ps Pale come to the Citie to goe through with his Excellencie. There came two, Immanuel Corders and Don Pedro de Pantoia, who without the Bishops consent, they said, offered fine hundred kintals of Ginger; at whose returne (which should bee within three or foure dayes) they did thinke that thrice fo much would be given. The fleet was not yet altogether readie, and Sir lob Barkles not yet fo well recouered of his the common dileafe, as that it was deemed fit hee should pre- 50 fently commit himselfe to the Sea, being to bee so long without a bayting place; and hee by his Lordships directions left him, might dispatch the matter. These two therefore were licensed to returne to Luisa to their friends vpon Saturday being the twelfth of August, with promife to be againe with vs on the Tuesday following. But before their appointed day his Lordship set faile : yet it is not volikely his returne was formething haltened, by an accident that fell out, The old man Pedro Suarez had a countenance that promited an honest minde, and in regard of his age and weaknesse, he was not so narrowly looked to, as for sometime hee had beene. This old sicke man found a meanes to escape the Sunday-night after they were gone to Luifa, certainly not without practice with his Countrimen; and it is thought with the privitie of his Keeper. Now this mans departure onely therefore misliked, because it was traiterous and without leave, did 60 more and more confirme his Lordship in his opinion that the Spaniards dealing with vs was traiterous, and for some other end, then was pretended. And therefore seeing his owne stay should not be needfull (for he knew Sir lohn very fufficient to dispatch any thing that was to bee done) he presently commanded that his owne ship should weigh, and with her, of great ships onely

the Samoon: of the leiler, the Royall Defence, the Frigat, the Scout, the Elizabeth, the Guana. and two little ones that were found in the Harbour, one a Frenchman, and the other a Spanish Frigat, which were rigged during our aboad there. So that his Lordship left with Sir John the Ships left with gar, which of the Nauie, the Afcantion, the Gallion, the Alcedo, the Confent, the Pegafin, the Su I. Barkles. Centerion, two frong flie-boats, and the Anthonie. The true reason of his Lordships delire to be gone from Puerto Rico quickly, was indeed a longing he had to be quickly at the llands. For hee had so plotted the voyage, that still hee would have a string left in store for his Bow. And now hee had intelligence that the fleet of Mexico, which hee knew was to goe this yeere, was even Caufe of the now yoon their dispatch. For yoon very good aduertisements he was given to vinderstand, that Earles quick to the fleet meant to dilimbogge the first light Moone in their September, which falleth out to bee departures

the feuen and twentieth of our August, and his desire was to be at the Ilands before them, which he might well hope for being in the height of the Bermuda by that time they should put forth of the Bay. Besides this he had reason to looke for the meeting of a Carack, if by the middest of September hee were at the Hands. For though they, which are homewards bound having made their voyage in the East Indies, ordinarily have timelier passage, and areat home by August, yet if any of them, which this yeere were to goe from Lifton, should be put backe againe, September 15 the moneth, wherein they were to bee expected at the Agores. And for their more certaine meeting againe with his Lordship, that so all the fleet might come home together, his Lordship left them this direction, which was given to every thip vnder his hand. Tou fhall fleere in mil 20 the Southward part of Flores: if you finde me not in that courfe, then feeke me betweet ten and fourteene le gues of Fayal, Weft South-west. If there you finde mee not , then come through betwirt Fayal near to your of the state of the most of the state of the leaue it vndefaced, faume that the Fort Mora should bee razed to the landward. Thus wee left Puerto Rice, and fleered as directly to the Hands as the windes would fuffer vs, which are there continually Eafterly, yet ferued vs fo fauourably, that blowing much at Eaft South-eaft, wee tooke our felues to hold a North North-east course, allowing our ships to drive one point to the leeward; which courie it we could hold, we hoped to weather the infamous Iland of Bermuda. notorious with vnmercifull and incredible formes of fearfull thunder and lightning. It was the The Earle de-30 fixt day after our departure from Paerto Rico, being Saturday the nineteenth of August, when I parted from fixt day after our departure from Farrio Ales, being Saturday the intellegence and a partie Rica the writ out this note, then were wee a great way from the height of the Bermada, which lyeth in La of Award.

thirtie three degrees.

Now we are in the way from Paerto Rico to the Hands of Agores, which must needes be found a long passage, and the way being not much beaten with resort of the Passengers, puts me in hope that this may be a leifurefull place, to pay a piece of a promife that I made before, to fay something more of the nature and qualitie and largenesse of the mayne Iland of Puerto Rico. The meanes which I did most wish and hope for, to enable mee the better for the payment of this debt, I could never with conveniency come by. For I alwayes waited if his Lordship would paffe ouer into the Mayne. For without him I had no great defire, and indeed I should have beene 40 quickly miffed, feeing it pleafed his Honor to vie mee in the difpatch of all things, which were The Authors to be done by warrant or direction under his hand. So that what foeuer I shall fay here, I must employment be content to report upon the report of others; and I will not tell you any thing, which (mee with the Earle, shought) my felie did not first fee reason to beleeve. The plat and figure of the Hand is a square, Of the Bure. altera parte longine, the length exceeding the breadth neere the proportion of feuen to foure; for qualitie, and it is told me, to be fixe and thirtie leagues long, and twentie leagues broad, bearing it felfe out largeneffe of from end to end neere in the same distance. It lyeth East and West: at the West end the two land of Saint corners doe fo jut out, that they make a goodly Bay betwirt them, but yet not fo profitable, lobs de Puelle because a goodly River, which would gladly disburden it selfe into the Bay, is choaked with Rico. fands, which the Seacasteth vp into the mouth of the River, which being naugable a good way yp into the Land, is within a stones cast of losing his old name, and being called the Sea, made shallow and vnsit for the receit of Vessels of burthen. There are indeed in the same Bay other leffer Ruerets, whereat Paffengers vie totake in freih water, as Sir Francis Drake did . after hee was beaten from the Citie of Puerto Rico , and put forth thence to Nombre de Dios. Vpon this part of the Hand , which is commonly called La Aquada, in English, The matering place, the greatest Commander, and of largest peffessions, is, or of late hath beene, one Chereno; whose proper land, is thought to containe in compatie and circuit neere the quantitie of ten leagues. The other end, the Easterly end is knowne by the name of La cabeça de San Inan, in English Saint Johns bead. The Citie of Puerto Rico is his right tide or arme : and the South fide about the Countrie of Choama (whither the Bishop at our comming had carried himselfe) will be answer-

60 able to the left fide or left arme, as being leffe fit for action, and his feet is the watering place. The most famous Rivers of this Iland are Ton and Baiamond, the rather because they runne into the Harbour of the Citie of Puerts Rico; whereof Toa is by much the greater, and falleth more with River Tos: the West of the Towne : This River riseth out of a Mountaine, called Guiamo, being on the South fide of the mayne Iland, fome fifteene or fixteene leagues from Paerto Rico to the Eastward;

River Baia-

Sold found the Riucts of Saint lohn de

Puerto Rico.

Basamond rifeth betwixt the parting of Toa and Luifa, and runneth a Northerly, but more Ea- 10 fterly course withall, till it mingleth it selfe with falt water on the South-west side of Paerte Rico. The Iland is watered with very many other Riuers, and Riuerets and Springs without number, or names, but those that give or take names of the Villages and Townes which stand vpon them, for the molt part runne Northerly. For besides Guiamo, which rifeth in the Countrie of Coama, and runnethinto the Southerly Sea, and the River whereon Saint German (which also is called Salamanca and Guadianilla) is situate towards the West end of the Iland neere to Cape Roxo: all the other of name runne to the leeward of the Hand, and fall into the Northerly Sea. As first and next to Puerto Rico to the Westward, the River and Towne of Saluco: next to it Guiamo, then the Recibo, twixt which and the Laguada is another, whose name I could not learne. The Laguada, whereof I spake before , and which gineth name to the Westerly end of 20 the Iland, where Sir Francis Drake (as I faid) watered, is next vnto the choaked Bay before mentioned; in which Bay at the North-west Point is the Gawaraba, which the Seas violence hath made something vnprofitable for nauigation, so that the passage to Saint Domingo, and the other leeward parts of the West Indies, are most ordinarily from the Laguada, if they of the Westerly part of the Iland have any butine fe that way. For as Saint Germans or Salamanca, though I have heard it to be a Harbour and a Sea-faring Towne, yet I am told fo much to the contrarie, as makes me doubt of the former report, though I dare not absolutely affent to this later, though a Spaniard of good vnderstanding told it me. Now, in every one of these Rivers which I have named is there gold found ordinarily before it be fought. And (I know it to bee true) when the Spaniards perceived by his Lordships manner of leaving the Citie of Puerto Rico, that he event not away 30 without purpose to returne, one of them told his Honor in plaine termes, that he could not thrust his spade into any of these named Rivers, and many other besides these, but hee should finde gold. Tais certainly is true, and I have feene the experience, that fome of the gravell of one of thefe Rivers being brought to his Lordihip because it looked rich, when triall was made, onely by washing away the find and gravell, there was comes of very good gold found in it, and that for the quantitie and proportion in great measure. Where, because we are againe fallen into this argument, I will report vnto you a certaine truth , whereby the richneffe of the mynes in Puerto Rico may be esteemed. One Ioancho de Luyando, a Mint-master in this Iland, dwelling in the Guadianilla necre to Saint Germans, or at the least having workes there, tooke a bullion or masse of gold fo pure, as it needed no further triall, that being ient to the King it was found worth three 40 thoutand and fine hundreth Duckets, and diners times he found such plates, that onely splitting them, he made himselfe trenchers of gold to eate his meat on. This man may bee judged to have beene of no great either wit or care; for it is certainly reported, that oftentimes meeting his owne flaues comming out of the Countrie to his house in Paerse Rice with flore of gold, hee did not know them to be his owne, till themselves told him so; and yet this man dyed so very rich, that he left every of his three formes a hundreth thousand Duckets; infomuch that the youngest of them being in Spaine vpon the dispatch of some businesse, which his father had left vnfettled. was there thought of flate fo good, that a Marqueffe thought his daughter well beflowed voon him in marriage, But fee how nothing will last where God with his preferring bleffing doth noe keepe things together. For at this day, scarce is there any remainder left of all his riches, and 50 this now most poore though great Lady, not being able to proportion her selfe to the lownesse of her fortune, and besides vexed with her husbands ill conditions, hath by authoritie left him, and having entered religious profession, is at this present in a Nunnerie in Saint Domingo.

Vanisie of

The foile.

I have beene very inquilitiue of the best observers, and mostable to judge among ours, that haue vpon occasion trauailed into the inparts of the Iland. They doe agreeingly tell me, first that their wayes are very myrie, or rather dirtie, as proceeding of mold rather then gravell or fand; now, the prouerbe in England is, that that Countrie is best for the Byder, that is most cumber some to the Rider. Secondly, the graffe and herbage they meet withall enerywhere is very proud and high, though somewhat course, which argueth a lustinesse, and strength of fatnesse in the soile, and which wanteth onely flore of mouther to ouer-come that luxuriant pride, and to bring it to 60 the finenesse which we most commend in England, which is made most probable, by that, which in the third place they report of their experience, that the foile is a black mold, underlaid within fome two foot, with a laire of reddifficlay, which is one of the most infallible marks by which our English Grafiers know effeir battle and feeding grounds. The whole Iland is delightfully and pleafurably divertified with Hills and Vallies. Among the Hills there is one eminent above the relt, called the Lequilla, commended with the greatest plentie and riches of mynes. And yet M. Lequilla. none of the Rivers that I can heare of, have their heads from thence, which perhaps may bee the realon, why it aboue the reit is leffe wafted. For they fay that in the other Hills also there are veines found, of whose pourtie no man needeth to complaine. This Hill which they call Loquills, is placed Easterly aboue Lussa. The Vallies are much wooddy, but in very many places interlaced with g sodly large Playnes and spacious Lawnes. The woods are not onely underlings. Woods and (as in the leffer fland for the most part they are) but timber trees of goodly talneffe and flature, fit Timber, for the building of thips, and of every part of them. For not to speake of a ship which wee our 10 felues found here a building towards the burthen of a hundreth, the great Eougonia; a ship of a thouland, having loft her Maits at Sea, had them all made here of the timber of this Iland, her mayne Malt being of two trees onely, and being there and all other wayes fitted for Spaine, was euen you the point of putting forth of this Harbour, when Sir Francis Drake and Sir Iohn Hamkins came hither with an honorable intent to take her and the foure Millions, which shee brought hither from the Hanana. For this ship was the Admirall of the fleet, which that veere went from Tierra firma; and being taken with a storme at Sca, and having lost her Masts, with much adoe recouered this Harbour, and here was againe fitted. But the Queenes Notice (vpon aduentife- Greathip aude recourred this laterous, four first the nick, that they were forced to finke her in the Harbour, foure millions ment of this accident) came to just in the nick, that they were forced to finke her in the Harbour, foure millions and that with to great hafte, that the paffengers had not time to fetch their clothes, but lading and a halfe of 20 and victuals and all was loft. Some of the ribs of this great Beaft we found here, but the marrow treasures and sweetnesse of her was gone; for shee brought in her foure millions and a halfe of treasure, for the wafting whereof those Frigats, which Sir Francis burned in this Harbour, were purposely fent, For while Sir Francis was watering at Guadalupe, fome of his fleet discouered the passage of their Frigats by Dominica; which good newes (as truly they were very good) affired Sir Franeis (as he openly told the fleet) that the treasure was not yet gone from Saint lohn de Puerto Rico,

CHAF3. S.4. Wild beards, Gingers, Sugars, bides. One man bath 12000. beenes. 1171

Lawnes of the mayne lland re graced with much varietie of many kindes of fruit; for belides the great Countries of ground where their Heards roame with fuch vncontrolled licence, as that Herds almost they grow almost wilde, the champaine which they have chosen to place their Stancies and In- wilde. 30 genies voon, are richly laden with Ginger and Sugar-cane. Their Ingenies are commonly voon Ginger and iome Ruer, or neere some moore-marrish and waterish places, for in places of that qualitie doe Sugar, their Sugar-canes prosper best. And besides, there is much vie of water for their Mills, and other works, though most commonly their Mills goe with the strength of men and horses, as I underfland, like our Horse-mills in England, which if I had seene my felfe I should have beene better able, and conleq iently more willing, to have reported to you the manner and cunning of the fame. They that have beene eye-witnesses, doe with great wonder and commendation speake of them. Their Stanfas are more inwardly placed in the Countrie, and yet a convenient neres Stanfas for nelle to fome River is defired, for more convenient carriage of their Ginger to Puerto Rice, whence Ginger. they vent their commodities into other Countries; which I take to bee some part of the cause

49 why more follow Ginger then Sugar workes, because their Stanfias doe not need such choile of place, and therefore the poorer may more eafily come by them, which yet also more eafily they let vpon, because much needeth not to set vpon the commoditie of Ginger. I have heretofore laid Ginger and in generall, that Sugar and Ginger are the greatest knowne commodities of this Iland. A third commoditie of the Iland besides Ginger and Sugar, I did before note to bee Hides. modities. Whereof without contradiction there is very great store. I have beene told by the Spaniard, that Hides. that fame (berene , whose Countrie is neere to the Laguade of the quite contrarie fide to Cape Roxo, is generally reported to feede to the number of twelve thousand head of Cattle. Where- One man ha-Roso, is generally reported to recue to the number of Cattell in this Iland is, feeing in the uing 13000.

Westerly end thereof, which is held farre worse for feeding then the Easterly, neere Saint Johns which vivally 50 bead, there is so incredible abundance. Once, it is generally spoken and beleeved, that by rea- are greater fon of this ouer-flowing of Beeues, it is lawfull for any man to kill what he needeth for his vie, then the Eaif onely hee bee so honest as to bring the skins to the proper owners. Now, these Hides must rile sale. to a huge summe of riches, considering that their Cattell are farre larger, then any Countrie that I know in England doth yeeld. For their Kine that I have feene here, are for goodlineffe both of heads and bodies comparable with our English Oxen. And I wot not how that kinde of beaft Beeurs profhath specially a liking to these Southerly parts of the world, about their Horses, none of which per there bee I have feene by much to tall and goodly as ordinarily they are in England. They are well made, fees. and well metalled, and good store there are of them, but me thinks, there are many things wan- Theirhorfes ting in them, which are ordinarie in our English light horses. They are all Trotters, nor doe I

60 remember that I have seene aboue one Ambler, and that a very little fidling Nagge. But it may be, if there were better Breeders, they would have better and more goodly increase, yet these are good enough for Hackneys, to which vie onely almost they are imployed. For Sheepe and Goates I cannot say that there are any great flocks, and of the two, fewer Sheepe then Goates. For I have feene and tasted of many Goates, but to my remembrance, I did not see one Sheepe, for as much as he affured himfelfe that thefe thips were going to fetch it home. The Playnes and The playnes.

Goates. Way the be are tear.c. We loth vet (fay they) that the lland is not without reasonable flocks; and I have beene told so, by them who have received information from their owne eyes. Neither can this scant of sheepe be laid upon the nature of the foile, as being unfit or unwilling to feed that fober harmlesse creature. but it proceedeth rather of a wochish kinde of wilde Dogs which are bred in the woods, and there goe in great companies together. This commeth to passe, by reason that these Dogs finde crabs entre if Tortoi.s.

in the woods fufficient fuffenance, and preferre that wilde libertie before domefficall, and to The wild dogs the miclues much more profitable feruice. These Dogs live of Crabs; I meane not fruits of trees: jue of Crabs, but an Animal, a living and fensible creature, in feeding whereupon, even men finde a delight, not Description of onely a contentednesse. These woods are full of these Crabs, in quantitie bigger then cuer I saw any Sea-Crabs in England, and in such multitudes that they have Berriet, like Conies in English 10 Warrens. They are in shape not different from Sea-Crabs, for ought I could perceive. For I fpeake not this out of report, but of my owne sensible experience. I have seene multitudes of them both here, and at Dominica. The whiteft whereof (for some are vgly blacke) some of our men did catch and eate with good liking, and without any harme, that ever I heard complaint of. At our first comming to Puerto Rico, the Dogs of the Citie, enery night kept a fearfull howling, and in the day time, you should see them goe in flocks into the woods along the Sea fide.

Their experi-

This wee tooke at first a kinde b-moaning of their Masters absence, and leaving of them : but when within awhile they were acquainted with vs, who at first were strangers to them, and so began to leave the howling by night, yet fall continued their daily refort to the woods, and that in companies. We understood by asking, that their resort chither was to hunt, and eate Crabs, 20 whereof in the woods they should finde store. I his then is the sustenance which the wilde Dogs of Puerto Reco finde in their woods; which either fayling them fometimes, or out of a wooluith disposition they get by liuing apart from men, they fall upon the sheepe, whereof they have made great waste; but which easily might be repayred, if the Spanierds would bee content, to fweat a little, or to be a little wearie in killing of these Dogs. Their Goates line more securely, because they love cliffes of Rocks, or the tops of Hils, and therefore they are out of the ordinarie haunt of these murderous Dogs, by reason that their ordinarie soode the Crabs are most vivally in Swine. Fowles. Pidgeons in Trees.

Sheepe.

Goares more

bottoms, and along the Sea fide. Befides Sheep and Goats there is reasonable good store of Swine, which in these Westerly and Southerly Hands yeeld most sweet Porke. I doe not remember that I have feene here either Hare or Come, but here is store of excellent Poultrie, as Cocks and 30 Hens and Capons, some Turkies and Ginny-hens, Piligeons in meruailous abundance; not in Done-houses as with vs, but which breed and build in Trees, they are both of great number and goodness. For besides other places, there are two or three little Hands hard by Puerto Rice, neere to the mouth of Toa, where a Boat may goe in an evening or morning, and fuddenly take nine, ten, or a dozen dozen; the chiefest of these three is called (as I haue heard) the Governous; Mand. I have not marked any store of Fowle vpon this little Hand, nor bave I heard of more by any that have beene in the mayne Iland. Parrots and Parrachetoes are here, as Crowes and Parrots as Dawes in England; I have ordinarily seene them slie in slocks, and except it bee some extraordinarie talkatine, they are not here much regarded, as it should feeme. Now, fruits of the Hand are abundant in number and measure, very excellent; Potatoes are 40 Pruits. ordinarie. Their Pines are in shape like a Pine-apple, and of this likenesse, I thinke, these had their names, but neither in feeling or tafte are they any thing like; for that wherewith this Pine is inclosed is not wood, but fost, that you may squease it in your hand, and so apt to bee mellow, that it will not keepe long, whereas a wooddie Pine-apple is of an exceeding durance and lafting. The taite of this fruit is very delicious, so as it quickly breedeth a fulnesse. For I cannot liken it in the palate to any (me thinks) better then to very ripe Strawberries and Creame, the rather if a man haue alreadie eaten almost his belly full: for then they much refemble a Pine; I haue seene some a quazter of a yard long at least, and in proportionable thicknesse, to bee like a Pine-apple; it groweth vpon an learb like an Artichoke. Their Mammeis are of the colour of a very darke ruffitting apple, or a leather-coat, of the bigneffe of a great Coltard, the rinde of it as 50 thicke or thicker then the barke of a Sallow, which being early pulled off discouereth a yellow, but well tafting meat, something like a Carrot roote, but much better. Within this meat, there are two or three great rugged ill-shaped stones, which (as I remember) have kirnels in them. Their Galauas are a leffer fruit, as bigge as a Peach, and without not much volike, but within not folid as the Mammeis, or as an Apple is, but full of such little feedes as a Goofe-berry hath, not io greenish, but inclining to a languine colour, the taile of this is (me thought) like to a very tipe great white Plum : this fruit is (which a man would not thinke) a remedie against the flux, and so are their Papaies, a fruit like an Apple of a waterish welsh taste. They have Plums blacke and white, their ftones much bigger, and their meat much lefte then in England, and their alio flay the flux. And so doe their wilde Grapes, which are a fruit growing in Clutters, and therein 60 onely (me thinkes) like Grapes, they are round, and as great as a good Musker-ballet, and yet have they very little meat upon them, for their itone (if that which is not hard may bee called a stone) is exceeding great for the proportion of the fruit, infomuch that the meat seemeth to be but the rinde of this stone. A stone I call it though you may put it together with your singer, but

Crowes

Pines.

Guiauas,

Mammacis.

That and Pagai ft flux. Wilde grapes.

ie hath a bitterith kirnell in it, and that which is without it is meat , and that of a delightfull faiporous tafte. Their Plantines are a fruie which grow on a shrub bet wixt an hearb and a tree, but Plantines, it is commonly called, a tree of the height of a man, the fem of it as bigge as a mans thigh, the fruit it felfe, of the bignetle and thape of a Goates home, it groweth vellowish and mellowibe. ing ripe either youn the tree, or with keeping, and then eaten raw or reafted, it is a great mear, comming neere to the rellish of an Apple-John , or a Duson that hath beene kept tillatis overripe, fauing that me thought I ftill found fome tafte of a roote in it, the meat of it is larged voin a thin skin, which being frored the long way with a knife, eafily delivereth what is within it. Their Coker-crees please the eye as well as their Nuts doe the take. The body of them is but Cocos.

10 flender, no where to bigge as a mans middle, and vowards growing proportionably leffe; till they are silen some thirtie or fortie foot high without sprig or bough, then breake out their boughs all at once, enery one whereof is just like a goodly Oftridge feather; their leaves are to commingly fet rogether, every one whereof alone is formething like a Sedge or the leafe of a wilde Lilly Vra der this bufh which is the head of the tree, doe the Coker-nuts grow, fome forcie on a cree round about the Bole, some yard downward from where the branches breake out. These trees are a very great grace to the Citie of Paerto Rice, and very many there were found in it : and he that hath feene this may fomewhat conceine of the forme of a Palmeto tree, for in thane they are not wnlike. This Palmeto tree, while it is young (and yet of good yeeres) is much of it felfe meat, and Palmetos. talted (me thought) like a Wall-nut, but iomewhat bitterish; when it is old they say it beareth 20 fruit, the Date, one of the best fruits in my judgement ; I faw not any fruit voon any of the Pat-

metoes that I faw, and therefore this shall be said onely voon the report of others. Befales theft fruits the Hand yeeldeth Figs, Pomegranates, Muske-millions, Pome-citrons very fuite (as my Other fruits, felfe faw) but it is incredible almost that is reported of them by men of good credits that also Pome-citrons grow to folinge greatnesse, as that a very little number three or foure of these will Huge Citrons lade a horfe. Limons I did not fee any, yet they fay there are fome; but of Limes the number is numberleffe ; and as for Oranges, truly I thinke they are the best easted , and most goodly in the Oranges. world. For both their fweet and fowre Oranges are full of most delicate and tafte pleasing layce, and besides they are the goodliest both in colour and greatnesse, that ever Pfaw. They have Pepper also growing voon trees, the Pepper it selfe is a little seeds of colour twike white Pepper.

20 and yellow, and inclosed in a bagge which sometime is round like a Bell, sometime it runnerh ous in a picked length like a fruit, which we gather in our Gardens in England, and eate as a fallet with Mutton. This pepper is much hotter and fronger then the blacke pepper vied with vs in our Countrie. These fruits and many more grow vpon trees, and common to them all it is, and I thinke to all the fruits of the Iland, that the fame tree at once beareth buds, greene fruit, Treesdourts and ripe fruits, and often withall feedeth.

Now if any man thinke that wee have found meates in good flore, but wet want bread and greene & ripes drinke, it may at one word bee answered, that the industrious and primarual can want an attended either. For first of all their Cassaule specially new, and carefully desired is good bread and will Cassau bread. keepe io well that fhips that goe hence to Spaine are victualled with it to the good hat the service and to find the service of a small tree, like, me thought, wom our growne Hyllope Cassuit do.

stalke, or a young Sallow, but that the leaves are not so broad, but by much stacker whom the scribts. branches of Caffauie : this roote is very full of liquor, which must be carefully prefed forth, before the dryer part bee fit to make bread. For the roote eaten with the juyce, or the juyce by it The juyce not fore the dryer part bee fit to make bread. For the roose easier who was proposed to the fitting in the belly, whereof death doth of the fitting fit is possible. The the belly whereof death doth of the fitting fit is possible to the fitting fit is the fitting fit Spaniaris generally hold it for a kinde of poyson. Yet our men (1 am told) meeting with the rootes unpressed, and mistaking them for Potatoes (whereby you may coniccture chesis shape) have eaten them without after feeling any mortall diftemper. And to a body whose natural heat is able to ouercome their cruditie and rawnesse, there is happily no prefent danger; for they tell me that of this juyce fodden, there is made a prettie kinde of drinke somewhat like final Ale. The bread which they make of this roote is very passing white, not kneaded into louises.

but rolled out in Cakes of a reasonable thicknesse, yet may they be better called thin; and of such breadth that they lap them in foldes one voon another. Besides their Cassauie , they have Mais, Mare which maketh a much finer bread, and yied of the better fort. There are two forts of Maiz, the leffer they fay not whike to Rice, in proportion and bignesse and taste; this I never law either growing or raw, but I have teene it in the difh, and at first did take it for Rice, fauing that mee thought it was something ouer-swollen; they that eate it faid, it tusted like Rice, The bigger fort of Maiz I have leene growing, and it is either the fame or exceeding like to the graine which we call Ginny wheat; it groweth up with a knotted stalke like a Reed, with large scattered leanes; it rieth to a fadome and a halfe at least in height, and at the very top shooteth out the

60 graine. Betides Maiz and Caffauie, there is good ftore of Rice growing in the lland, and where Rice, Rice will grow, who will make a question of Come. But to put it without contrations, that Corne will come up wich good increase, experience hath determined the querion. For that fame Mulato Cherene (whom I mentioned before) did make experience and did fow Corne which he resped with good increase. But because it was painefull to follow husbandrie and tillage, and (forfooth) Cassauie and Maiz would serue, the Spaniards would none, may this Molato halfe borne a flaue, would not bee at the paines to continue tillage. For drinks . the Spaniard doth here, as in Spaine hee doth, vie water for most of his drinke, which in io hot a climate, would well agree with the English after some acquaintance; ver the Spaniard hath two other forts of drinke, the one called Guacapo, made of Molaffes (that is, the courfelt of their Sugar) and some Spices; the other kinde, and vied by the better fort of them, is called Ale; which is a kinde of Bragget made with many hot spices. And if both their fayled, yet have they good fore of wines, indeed brought in from other Countries; not that this lland will not nourtifi Vines : for I have feene fome grow here in Pacrio Rico very flourishingly. But I have heard the King will not fuffer them to plant and drefle Vineyards, as a matter of policie.

I might here, and so would I make an end of speaking of the fruits of this Iland (for me thinks what bath beene taid, the weth it to be felle fufficient to line well and happily) but their Terns will not have me forget it. This hearbe is a little contemptible weed to looke upon, with a long woodden stalke creeping upon the ground, and seldome lifting it selfe about a handfull high from ground. But it hath a propertie, which confoundeth my understanding, and perhaps will feeme frange in the way of Philosophers, who have denyed every part of fense to any plant; yet this certainly feemeth to have feeling. For if you lay your finger or a flicke voon the leaves of it; not onely that very piece which you touched , but that that is neere to it , will contract it felfe, and run together, as if it were prefently dead and withered, nor onely the leaves but the very fprigs, being touched, will is distainfully withdraw themselves, as if they would slip them- 20 feliges rather then be touched, in which state both leafe and sprig will continue a good while, beforest returns to the former greene and flourishing forme. And they fay, that fo long as the parsie which touched it flanderh by it, it will not open, but after his departure it will, this last I did not my felfe obserue ; and if it be fo, it must be more then sense, whence such a sullennesse can proceed; but for the former, I have my felfe beene often an eye-witnesse to my great wonder, for it groweth in very many places in the little Iland. His Lordfhip made some of it bee put in nots with earth, and yet it liueth, and how farre it will fo continue is vncertaine. There hath beene Cinamon and fomething else given me as fruits of the Hands, but I doe thinke they are but rarities at the most, and therefore they shall not come in my bill. But now to returne to the flow steps we made towards the Hands of the Acores.

Cinamon.

Accidents by Sea in their way to the Azores and there.

N. Saint Bartholomewes eue wee had store of lightning and thunder, which besides the observation, put vs more out of doubt of our neerer approach to the Berminda. The next day about noone wee began to steere East North-east and better. Vpon Friday

Hot calme thirteens

the five and twentieth, were were melted with a greater and more imothering calme 40 then any time before ; and yet (which made it strangest) wee had out of the North-west higher Seas, then before that time I had tuer feene, in the greatest winder that we had had. The hugeneffeof this Sea was perceived not onely by the view of our fight, but rather by the extraordinarie heeling of our thip, certainly as much or more impatient of a high Sea in a calme, as of any osher weather. This calme was so extremely hor, that wee were in hope it would bee like other extreames, of no long continuance; but behold it lasted obstinately thirteene dayes, suing that Imetimes there would be some thew of a gale, but it would to instantly and frowardly leave vs, as if is hadbeene come onely so let vs he wee needed not to despaire. There had beene often fpench of a Current, that wee were to have, and fome thought that they had found it, the most duct not be apprehensine. But woon Wednesday the shintieth; it began to be cleere : for though eq the winde was not worthy to be called fo, nor fcarce by the name of a breath, and belides fo narzow, that we flood upon abowling, yet we were found in that last passed artificiall day, to have run aboug fiftie leagues at the leatt. For whereas vpon Tuelday wee were by observation found to bee almost precisely in thirtie two : vpon Wednesday at noone, wee had the Sunne in thirtie Currentin 324 three, and two terces, and eight minutes. So that in foure and twentie houses we had rayfed one degree and fortie eight minutes, which if we had run due North or South, had rifen to about foure or fine and thirtie leagues. But feeing our course was three parts of the time at East North-east. and East and by North, the thip could not bee allowed leffe way, then fiftie leagues at the least; and this being without winde, argueth a violent Current, and the rather because for the time we had a hard Sea. This was made yet more certaine by observation of the Pole-star vpon Thursday 63 at night, This opinion for a Current, was vpon Saturday Sept. 2. made undoubted, for the lubstance of the thing, I meane that there was a Current, but the circumstance feemed to varie fomthing. For the Current was then judged to fet rather to the East & by South, though this would fill the former oblemations with greater difficulties. This was perceived by many drags, which how foeuer

CHAP.3. S.5. Ignorance beneficiall, Terrible ftorme. Description of Flores. 1175

the thip fcaped, yet they still runne or were carried to the East Southerly. And then many other things purpofely cast into the Sea to make further triall, all went the same way and that a good pace though directly ahead the ship. And yet farther if there were any breath at all, it was at South-east, so that they went against the winde that was.

And now I come to that the remembrance whereof rather then present apprehension yet maketh me grake, like the man that dyed vpon the fearfull knowledge of how great danger he had paffed at Rocheffer bridge. It was a fearfull storme, which I truly not knowing how dangerfull it was, feared not much while we were in it, but fince hearing old Sea-men and of long experience fineate of it, I perceine it is good to be ignorant fometime. Vpon Thursday the seuenth of Sep- Ignorance beto tember, the gale began to be very fresh and to keepe the failes stiffe from the Mass, and so contin nesiciali.

nued all that day. Vpon Friday it began to speake yet lowder, and to whistle a good in the throwdes, infomuch that our Mafter made the Drablers bee taken off, and before night it had A terrible blowne the fore-top-faile in pieces by the board; this was taken for the beginning of a fforme, florme, and the storme it selfe was looked for: which came indeed about the shutting in of the day, with fush furie and rage, as none could fay it ftole vpon vs vnawares. For I am out of doubt that I had neuerheard any winde to high. One of our Bonnets had beene taken in in the evening, and the other was rent off with the furie of the florme. And thus (for our mayne-top faile was taken in and the top-mast taken downe) bearing onely a bare corse of each, if the ship had not beene exceeding firongly fided, fhee could not have indured fo rough weather. For oftentimes the Sea 20 would thip in waves into her of three or foure Tunne of water, which (the fhip being leakie within board) falling often, was as much as both the pumps were able to cast out againe, though they went continually all night, and till moone the next day were neuer throughly luckt, so that tiney went communate a second water, it could not have been choicin, but the mult have foundered, leging the pumpes were hardly able to rid the water that was caft in aboue harches. The Miffen-faile had beene in the evening well furled (for the winde came vpon the starboard quarter) and yet the storme had caught it, and with such violence and furie rent it, that with much adoe the Miffer, yard was halled downe, and fo the quarter decke and poope faued from danger of renting vp. All this was in the night, which made it much more hidious, specially in the fore-end of the night before the Moone got vp. The winde continued in this excelle of vio-20 lence till mid right, and then abated hee formething, but then began the effect of his blowing to fhew it felfe, for then the Sea began to worke, and fwell farre higher then before. His Lordships flaip is a very goodly one, and yet would shee bee as it were in a pit, and round about vast moun. High-swolne taines of water, to that a man might leave out the rest of the verse, and say onely undid, pontus. Sea. For I protest, besides that which was over our heads, our prospect any other way was quickly Vading pontue determined, with waves, in my confcience, higher then our mayne-top. And that (which is breaking of these valt waves vpon her. This continued all night : and though the winde fell by little and little, yet the Sea was to light, that all Saturday it was not quieted, fo that though out 40 of a ftorme, yet were wee still in a stormy Sea, infomuch that our mayne-top mait was broken. By Sinday we were come to have reasonable weather, and rather too little then too much wind. And you Monday being the eleventh of September, wee were not much from a new calme. which wee could not with much more patience have endured then a good storme; for then wee began to looke out for land, and now to come so neere, what so long wee had longed for. After the storme, the Admirall found himselfe all alone, and so were we the most part of the next day, but towards evening, came the new Frigat to vs. And a sterne her there was a ship seene, which within a day or two afterward, the Samfon came and told vs, was her felfe. With day the fif- Flores deferieds teenth of September, we had the South-well fide of it in fight, and bore in therewith till noone. His Lordship had no meaning to make any forcible attempt against it, nor to stay longer. then trange (t) round about vs : for the Sea came vpou every point of the Compaffe, so that the poore ship, nor they that directed and cunned her, could not tell how to cunne her to bee safe from the

50 to take in fome fresh victuals; for which purpole , hee lent the Boat off with an old Portugall, and an African of Mozambique, who bearing a flagge of truce, should give the Handers to vnderstand what his Lordships pleasure was, that if they would let him have things for his money, he would not vie them worle then in former times, they had had experience of him. Withall he gave the Boat commandement, that thee should bring him answere to the East North-east side of the Hand, where he meant to come to anchor, and tarry for the newes they could learne either English or Spanish. This stay in hoysing the Boat out, gave the Samson time to get a head vs, and within awhile thee was at anchor. When, behold, at the opening of the Point, first there came one faile, then two, and then three failes, and within a little the fourth was feene; it was not at first knowne what there might be, yet because the Samfon being much neerer, made no haste 60 to weigh, we thought 'hee made them to be friends. And within awhile we perceived them to have pen lengs in their fore-top-mail heads; this put vs out of doubt, that they were of our owne fleet. For his Lordflup at his departure from Puerto Rico, had given them direction that every flup flould to beare a pendent, for a marke to be knowne of their friends, and which would make fira gers neuer awhit the wifer. Thefe foure were the Merchant, the Afcention , the Confens, and the Per ifin, which by and by came to an anchor with vs. Now were wee growne a prettie frong fleet againe, either part receiving new strength of other, each having formerly lost their owne. For the storme had cattered Sir lobns companie as well as ours, though it should freme not to have beene altogether so great with them, as vs. Of Sir Iohns we had not vet, the Gallion.

the Alcedo, the Centurion, the Anthonie, the Kefar, and the Doue, which were the Flemmines.

The first newes that the Boat brought vs, made these though friends vet more welcome if that might be. For the Boat having told his Lordihip that they could not be suffered to land, vet had promite that his Lordship should have any thing that the lland would affoord. Mary (faid they)

we are ill prouided, by reason of the Kings men of warre, nine and twentie of them have within ny hopefull paffage, they were of Merchants made men of Warre, and with the rest or rather the reft with them, were fent to these Blands to wast the Caracks which were looked for at home this yeere. But the Caracks (faid they of Flores) were gone by, before their comming hither, for the fafetie whereof, they had commandement to flay if need were, till the end of this moneth.

Whither this Armada was gone they faid they knew not, nor whither it would returne, but the very last day a great Gallion was within kenning. These newes, as they gave great cause of circumipection and care, not to meet with them, whom we could not doubt to be too ftrong for knowing that the Caracks were passed, if yet they staid, it made the intelligence of the Mexico fleet more probable. And therefore if this were the caule of their flay, our hope to make fome purchace or it, made vs more willing, to have their neighbourhood. Mary, it might bee, they were tent to looke for our comming home, which they might thinke would be ftrag ling and weake, and yet on the other fide the vincercaintie of our comming either at this time or certainly this way, made this something valikely. His Lordship therefore commanded Captaine Simgley

(a fine Gentleman) to goe ashoare and to learne more certaintie what was become of the Kings fleet, and why they came. This relation was from the men of Santa Cruz: but the intelligence which Captaine Sling by brought the same night late, was from Villa de la punta Delgada, ano-his Excellencie should have any thing wherewithall they could doe him feruice, and if it would please him to come ashoare, they would take it as a great fauour. For the Kings men of Warre, they faid, that they indged them certainly to bee gone home, for they were gone hence vpon a fortnight before. The cause of their comming was to wast the Caracks, which all soure were gone by , before the Kings fleet came hither, with purpose indeed to stay till the end of this moneth for them. But fince the Caracks were come home, there had beene fent a Carnell of Admife to recall them. As for the Mexico fleet, there was not at the Ilands any newes of their com-ming this yeere. This report made by Captaine Sling by ouer-night, was confirmed early the next morning by the Gouernour himselfe of the place (a poore Gouernour scarce so good as an fame offer to his Lordship, and withall brought both Hennes and Muttons with him, which hee knew hee should not give for nothing, though hee would seeme vnwilling to receive any thing.

He having beene sometime with my Lord, and told all the newes hee remembred, was licensed, having first asked and obtayned a Passe for himselse, and a Protection for the Handers, to keepe them from spoile by ours. His Lordship granted his suit, and (which hee farther desired) that they might bee conceived in the same forme as those were which the Earle of Effex had given Enelife Constable.) But this Captaine Inan de Fraga de Mendoça, came himselfe and made the 40 ther Towne of the llands. The fumme of his report (for I was by when he made it was, that 20

vs. and therefore made vs wish they were finally gone from the Ilands; so on the other side, if 20

thefe few daves beene here, and taken almost all our prousions, for they were great ships, and In full of gallants, fine of them being the fine Caracks, that should this yeere have gone for the East Indies, but being by the Condes lying on the Coaft kept in till it was too late for them to have a-

CHAP. IIIL

The first Voyages made to diners parts of America by Englishmen. Sir SEBASA TIAN CABOT, Sir THO. PERT : alle of Sir IOHN HAWKINS. and Sir FRANCIS DRAKE, and many others : collected briefly out of Mafter CAMDEN, Mafter HAKLVYT. and other Writers.

It Schaffian Cabota wee have alreadie mentioned in the former Booke, as a great Discourser of that, which most justly should have have a significant to the state of the state great deale better might haue beene ftiled Cabotiana then America, neither Vefinting nor Columbus having discovered halfe to much of the Continent of the new World North and South as he (yea, the Continent was discourred by him, when Columbus had yet but viewed the Hands) this Herrera for the South part hath mentioned in his Relation of the River of Plate before, naming him an Englifman and for the large and his description of Mexico, with the cause of his imprisonment about speaking freely of A pezo 44.8ds

North 15 by vs in the fourth Booke dehuered. A fecond time Sir Thomas Pert and the faid Cabo- Sir T. Port Cat 14. were fet forth with a fleet to America, by King Henrie the eighth in the eight yeere of his forth by King reigne, the same perhaps which Herrera hath also mentioned, of an English ship at Hispaniola, Henrie the and other American Hands, in the yeere 1517. Maiter Hakluge hath published the Vovages of eighth. many English into those parts : as namely of Matter Robert Tomfon Merchant , and John Field, Master Tom which together with Ralph Sarre and Leonard Chilton in a ship of lohn Sweeting dwelling at Ca- som &c. diz, all Englishmen An. 1555. Sayled to H. Spaniela, and thence to Maxico in New Spaine, where See Hal. som 3: they found Thomas Blake a Scottifhman, who had dwelt there twentie yeeres. At Mexico, Robert pag. 448. Tomion and Augustine Boatio an Italian, were impriloned many moneths by the Inquisition, and Spanish Inquithen brought out in a Saint Benite (or fooles coat) to doe penance, a thing neuer feene there be- fition. fore, which caused much concourse of people, given to understand of I know not what enemies of God, and expecting to fee fome Monfters of uncomb shape. They were much pitied by the peo- Monftrous lies. ple feeing fuch personable men, but fentenced by the Archbishop to be fent back to Spame, where 20 Tomfor did his three yeeres enioyned penance at Simil. Boatio found the meanes to escape and dved after in London. Tomfon after his libertie married with a rich Spanife heire. The historie at Images this Mafter had made an Image of our Ladie of aboue 7000, pezos price, each pezo being Mafter Bades foure shillings and eight pence of our money) the Reader may fee in Maiter Haelant. Where allo is deliusted the voyage of Roger Bodenbam Englishman 1564. to Mexico: alfo of Mafter Chilton. John Chilton 1968, thither and from thence to Nueva Bifeaca, and to the Port of Nanidad on the Chiltons feuen. South Sea : to Sansonate in Guatimala, to Tecoantepec, to Soconnsco, to Nicaragua, to Nombre de travels in Nom Dies; to Potoffi. Cusco, Paita; to Vera Paz, Chiapa, three hundred leagues from Mexico. From Spaine, and Chiang he travelled thorow Hills till he came to Ecatenee, that is, The Hill of winde, in the end of Peru. 40 that Province, Supposed the highest Hill that ever was discovered, from the top whereof are seene Econtepes a hill both the North and South Seas; deemed nine leagues high. They which trauell vp it, lye at the leagues high foot ouer-night, and about midnight begin their journey, that they may travell to the top before Ifuppe ent the Sonne rife the next day, because the winde bloweth with such force afterwards, that it is should be nine impeffible for any man to goe up. From the foot of this Hill to Tecoantenec the first Towns of miles. New Spaine are fifteene leagues. From Mexico he trauelled againe to Panuco, and there fell fick, Good on of Which ticknesse in his returne benefited him; for he rell among it Caniball Indian which afraid to Harris Hawker. eate him for feare he had the pox, let him goe. Hee went to R. de las Palmas, and to the Mynes Sir Islin Hew. of Sacatecas, the richeft in all the Indies. After his returne to Mexico he travelled to other parts, him his third fpending feuenteene yeeres in his American peregrinations. Henrie Hankes lived five yeeres in voyage to Gui-50 those parts, and his observations are recorded by Master Haklays.

N. 1567. Mafter John Hawkins Generall in the Lefus, departed from Plimonth with fine o- Sir Francis Ather thips, the Minion, of which Mafter lobn Hampton was Captaine; the William and Drake John, Thomas Bolton Captaine; the Induh, of which Mafter Francis Drake was Captaine; the Saint Iohn de Angel also and the Smallow. Having on the Coast of Guinea taken some five hundred Negrous, The opinion they fayled with them to the llands of the West Indies, to fell them to the Spaniards. By tempest they were driven to the Port of Saint lobn de Vilna, where the Spanish thips with 200 000 to doe any inpounds in creature were at his mercy, but hee difmiffed them; which they repayed him with bumanity to treacherous dealing, the Spaniards perficiously fetting on the English contrarie to the Cournants Sauages pu-60 betwixt them concluded. For after that, when as the whole fleet with their new Vice-roy comvied Ch. flans ming thither had perished, if Master Hawkins had not permitted them to enter the Hauen, out of vectors in which he could eafily have kept them : they practifed fecretly and against agreement to certaine dealing to pu-Articles, affaulted the English perfidiously and treacherously, ving both fraud and scorne, min boutin which fight two thips of the Spaniards were funke, and one burnt; Some of ours were unginefic to flame.

Earle of Effex his Iland WOYAGE. 3597-

The reft (as needleffe) is omitted.

him, within two dayes of the fame day twelue moneth; and which himselfe had carefully kept When this fellow was gone, the flagge of Counfell was hanged out, &c. The returns of this fleet upon confultation after the newes aforefast, I forbeare to mention in regard of the length of this 50 discourfe. They fet forth from Flores Septemb. 16. 1598. On Michaelman day they founded, and the ground on the fallow did still more assure vs of being in the sleene : and the Scollop shells confirmed their opinion which held vs rather on the Coast of France, by the Master and others judged otherwise: whose judgement if his Lordship out of his judgement and authoritie had not contradicted and cauled them to take a more Northerly courie; all had perished in all likelihood on the Vibent and Rocks. For the next morning we faw the land of Normandie.

CHAP.

flaine, others taken and dispiteously tortured, all distressed; all their ships also sunke and burnt. faung the Minim and Induth, which were by a fforme enfuing betrayed to famine at Sea, which forced the Generall to let 114. men on shoure to the cruell mercies of the Sauages and Spaniards. Yea. one Boat not being able to get to shoare, two were drowned, the rest getting a mile thorow Mile Polips the Sea thither as they could, as Miles Philips one of that forlorne companie hath recorded, Some were dead in feeming two houres space with abundant drinking of fresh water, others two ne exceedingly with falt water and fruits they found; a shower also leaving them not one drie thread, as if Heauen had pursued the Seas challenge, without; and partly hunger, and partly the water and fruits of the Earth, within their bowels, had conspired against this poore crue. The Chiebemici Indian Sauages added their inhumanitie, killing eight of their companie in 10

the first oniet, but they yeelding (having neither weapons nor hearts to refist) the Sauges perceiuing them not to be their Spanish enemies pointed them to Tampice, faying, Tampice Christian Portof course, no, which they vnderflood not : but divided themfelues into two companies, one going Weft-David agram. ward, of which Philips was one, the other Northward, and with them David Ingram, which recovered his Countrie. After the flingings of flies, deaths by Indians, and manifold mileries, this Westerne companie got to Panneo where the Gouernor stripped them of the little which they Spanife gouer- had, and of their libertie, calling them English Dogs and Lutheran beretikes, and when they denours crucities manded helpe of their Surgeons for tuch as the Indian, by the way had wounded, hee laid, they Bould baue none other Surgeon but the Hangman : and after foure dayes fent for them out of the Prifon, and with many new Halters (wherewith they expected hanging) bound and ient them 20 to Mexico ninetie leagues diffant West and by South , with a great guard of Indians. At Mefittlan they received kind viage. One of their keepers vied them kindly, the other would ftrike them to the ground, and bid them, March, march English Dogges, Lutherans, enemies of God. Thus marching they came within two leagues of Mexico, where was our Ladies Church. Nactra Semana and therein her Image of Silver guilt as large as a tall woman, and before it as many Silver Lampes as are dayes in the yeere, which on high dayes are all lighted. Neither Horseman nor Footman will paffe by this Church without entring and praying, After their comming to Mexico many dyed, the reft had kind viage in the Hospitall, Thence they were carried to Telenco, to be vied as flaues, but by one Robert Sweeting (tonne of an Englishman by a Spanish woman) were holpen much from the Indians, or elfe had all perished.

Denillich in-quittion.

After this they were put to Spaniards as feruants, and had meanes to get somewhat for themfelues, till they became a prey to the Inquilition, which feiled their goods and perions, shutting them afunder in dungeons a yeere and halte. By frequent examinations they would have pumped Somewhat out of them in matters of faith, and not being able, they yeelding to their Affertions in that kind, craving mercie as men which came into that Countrey by diffreste of foule weather: they neuerthelese racked them to extort confession that way, which made some to fay that which cost their liues. After folemne Proclamation that all might come to this fight, they were brought in fooles Coats, with ropes about their neckes and candles in their hands to the Scaffold, George Rinely, Peter Momfrie, and Cornelina an Irillman were burnt, others condemned Three Marrys to 200, or 300, blowes on Horseback with long whips, and to ferue in the Gillies, fixe, eight, or 40 ten yeeres : others to serue in Monasteries, in the S. Bento, fooles-coates, diners yeeres, of which Philips was one. The whipping was cruelly executed on Good Friday, two Cryers going before proclaiming, behold thefe Englift Lutherans, Dogs, enemies of God: the Inquitrors themselves and their Familiars, crying, Strike, lay on those English Hereticks, Lutherans, Gods enemies. All bloudie and (wolne they returned to prison to bee lent into Spaine to performe the rest of their Martyrdome. Philips and the reft having ferned their times (in which hee learned the Mexican tongue) they had their fooles-coats hung up in the chiefe Church. The rest married there Philips escaped a fecond imprisonment and after many travels in the Countrey and dangers in Spaine, returned

63.Englishmen fenrenced ar once. Anno

23. yeeres mie Sceleson of a huge Giant. * Voderstand it of the Philippine thips. Ginger how it to England 1 c 8 2. Iob Horton another of this company hath related like adventures. He faith, that he and some to others were lent Priloners into Spaine, by the Viccoroy with Don Isan de Velasco de Varre, Admirall and Generall of the Spamib fleet, who carried with him in his ship to bee presented to the King of Spaine, the Anatomie of a Giant, fent from China * to Mexico; to the Vice-roy Don Marsin Henriques. The skull of his head was neere as big as halfe a bushell; his neck-bones, shoulder-plates, arme-bones, and all other lineaments huge and monstrous; the shanke of his skull from the ankle to the knee, was as long as from any mans ankle vp to his waste, and of bignesse accordingly. At this time were also fent to the King two chilts ful of earth with Ginger growing in them: The Ginger runneth in the ground like to Liccoras; the blades grow out of it in length & proportion like to the blades of wild Garlick, which they cut every fifteen daies, and water them twice a day. They put the blades in their potrage, and vie them in other meates, of pleafing tafte 63 and good for appetite.

Sea Monfier

When they came in the height of Bermuda, they discourred a Monster in the Sea, who shewed himselfe three times wato them from the middle vpwards: in which parts he was proportioned like a man, of the complexion of a Mallato, or tawny Indian. The Generall commanded one of his Clerkes to put it in writing to certifie the King thereof. Prefently after for the space of fixteene dayes, the weather proued very foule. Offering to make an escape they were descried and feuerely Hocked, and imprisoned a yeere in the Contractation house in Simil, and breaking prifon were taken, and by the Inquificion were fentenced : Robert Barret and Iohn Gilbert to bee Second fenburnt, leb Horrey, and lobn Bone to the Gallies for tenne yeeres, and after that to perpetual pri- tence of Inquiion. Others were adjudged to the Gallies fonce eight, fome fine yeeres. Horton ferued twelve fition. verres in hunger, thirft, cold and thripes, and after foure yeeres imprisonment in his Fooles coat, was redeemed to the fergice of Hernando de Soria, from whom after three yeeres fergice more, he ftole away and landed at Portfmonth in December 1590, after three and twentie veeres mi-10 ferable bondage.

As for Danid Ingrams perambulation to the North parts, Mafter Haklust in his first Edicion Danid Ingram. published the same, but it feemeth tome incredibilities of his reports caused him to leave him out in the next Imprefion, the reward or lying being not to be believed in truths. And for Sir Ishn Sir I. Hambini Hawkins himfelte, he had made one Voyage with three thips and three hundred Negros gotten on the Coalt of Guinea to Hilpaniola, 1562, and other Ports; and returned with a rich gaine; This encouraged him to a fecond Voyage with the Iefus, Salomon, There, and Swallow, 1:64. And haning vifited duers Ports he returned by Florida, Anno 1 e67. their vifortunate Vovage before mentioned was fet forth in which his vinuffice to Sauages was chaffifed by vinuffice of Christians, in manner as you have heard. Himfelfe with his remayning company were first endangered 20 with an extreame fforme, after that with famine his men dying continually. So that the reft being not able to manage the hip, and the winds croffing, feeking to releeve themfelves at Ponse Vedra, with fresh meate, they grew diseased and many of them died, and thereby were also in danger of a fecond Spanish betraying, which they hardly escaping arrived in England, January the twentieth 1 c68.

The Spanish indignities and treacheries were deeply lodged in the wronged minds both of Sir John Hambens, and of Captayne Drake: men borne for the honour of the English name and Na- M. Wil Hambins. tion in Marine affaires. Ser lobe Hawkins was fonne to Mafter William Hawkins of Plemmouth, a man much effeemed by King Heary the Eighth, as a principall Sea-captaine. Hee had long before armeda thip of his owne of two hundred and fifty tunnes, called the Paul of Plummonth. 30 wherewith he made two Voyages to Brafill, one in the yeere 1520, and the other 1522, in the first of which he brought a Brafilian King (as they tearmed him) to prefent him in his wilde accourrements to King Henry, It teemed, that Sea affaires and arts remayned an Inheritance, from the Father to the Sonne; and from him alfo to the Nephew, as thall after be feene : neither did the Wett of England yeeld fuch an Indian Neptanian paire as were thefe two Ocean Peeres, Han- Sir Richard kins and Drake.

A briefe Hiftorie of Sir FRANCIS DRAKES Voyages.

F Sir Francis Drake Master Camdon reports that he hath heard him say of himselfe, that he Sie Francis 40 Owasborne in the County of Denos, of meane condition; his Godfather was Francis Ruffell Drahubuth. afterwards Earle of Bedford, who gave him his name Francis. Whileshe was young, his father being called in question for Religion, by reason of the fixe Articles fet forth by King Henry a. Camdeni Elizagainst the Protestants) was driven to shift, and withdrew himselfe into Kent. After King Hen- betha gag 301. ries death, he obtayned a place in the Naut Royall to reade Service, and soone after was ordayned Deacon, and made Vicar of the Church of Vpner on the River of Medway: where by reafon of his powertie he put this his fonne to ferue a Neighbour Mariner which traded with a small Barke into France and Zeland, who brought him up in the Mariners art, and tooke fuch liking of him, that at his death he bequeathed (being a Bichelour) wato him his Barke, This Barke, His fire four voon the report of Sir Iohn Hawkons his preparations for that dilattrous Voyage 1567, hee fold dess. go and loyned to him in focietie aforefaid, and at Saint John de Vilna loft all, and hardly brought himselfebacke. Hereupon seeking by his Mariners practice to repaire his losses, and thereby, and as a man of warre, having gotten store of money together, he made a second Voyage to recouer in the Spanish Indies what there he had lost (qued licere Theologus classication facile persuaferat) Exoperationica and with a ship of warre called the Dragon, and another ship and a Pinnasse, none knowing it but & pirasica. his owne conforts, Anno 1572. Sayled to Nombre de Dies, which Towne he suddenly surprised Brakes second and loft. For having landed one hundred and fiftie men, and leaving feuentie of them in a Fort, Indian voyage, with the reft he went to the Market place, and there discharged his Calieuers and sounded a was written by Trumpet, answered in like manner from the Fort. The Townelmen hereby terrified, fled into Later Very who the Mountaynes. But fourteene or fifteene would backe with their Harq ebuses to see what the was oken by 60 matter was, and discouering the Engishmen, shot and by hap killed the Trumpeter. Herenpon the Earle of they in the Fort not feeing their Trumpet answered, after they had heard the Calieuers, Suppofed all those which had entred were flaine, and fled to their Pinnaffes. The Captayne comming with his difand feeing his men all gone, was furprized with a new feare, and leaving their furniture they course about fwamme and waded to their Pinnaffes and departed the Port. In the Sound of Dariene heehad him, intelligence by certayne fugitiue Negros of Mules comming loden with treasure from Panama to Nombre de Diss; and guided by them, intercepted two companies of Mules, and carried away the Gold only; for they were not able to carrie the Silver thorow the Mountavnes. Two dayes af. er he came to the house of Crosses, and burnt aboue 200000. Duckets in Merchandize. and so departed. When he trauelled ouer those Mountaynes hee beheld thence the South Sea : and thereby inflamed with defire of glory and wealth, was fo rapt with defire of fayling therein, that he fell there on his knees, and begged of God, and befought the fauour of God to affift Dietes you for him in that exploit, and made a folemne you to that purpose, one day to sayle on that Sea.

Negro fugi-Camden, ubi

lobn Oxenban.

the South Sea, which every day and night lay next his heart, pricking him forwards to the performance. Whiles hee was muling and hatching these haughtie Designes, John Oxenham, who in the for- 10 mer Nauigations, had ferued under Captayne Drake, both Souldier, Mariner, and Cooke . became a Captayne allo, and with a ship of one hundred and fortie tunnes, and seuentie men came to the faid Sound of Dariene, Anno 1575, and had conference with those Negroes. But hearing His audacious that the Mules were now conducted with Souldiers, hee refolued on a new Enterprize, which neuer any had attempted, and landed in that place where Captayne Drake had had conference with the Negros : and having brought his ship aground, and conered her with boughes, and hid his Ordnance in the ground, he tooke two small Peeces of Ordnance and Calieuers, with store of victuals, and went twelue leagues with fixe Negros into the mayne Land, to a River which runneth into the South Sea. There he cut wood and made a Pinnaffe fortie fine foot by the keele. and therewith went into the South Sea, to the Iland of Pearles, fine and twentie leagues diffant 30 from Panama, to watch for shippes comming from Pers thither : he tooke a Barke with 60000. Pezos of Gold, comming from Queto: and flaying fixe dayes longer, tooke another which came from Lima with 100000. Pezos of Siluer in barres, and delaying fomewhat long fent away his Prizes, and went with his Pinnasse up the River. This delay gave opportunitie of intelligence, and lohn de Ortega was fent to pursue him : at a partition of the River into three, when he was taking up the greatest, feathers of Hennes which the English had plucked, diverted him up the

Discord caufeth deftructi-Delay breeds

His prizes.

leffer ftreame, whereby hee lighted on the treasure first, Oxenbam beeing gone toget Negros to helpe him carrie his treasure, his owne men quarrelling for larger pay. Some of the English were taken, which bewrayed the frip, and the rest were betrayed by the Negros, whiles they were making Canoas for the North Sea, there to take fome Barke. They contessed that they had no 20 license from the Queene, and were all executed, but two Boyes. Thus perished Oxenbam. a man, if his Cale had beene just, worthy of lafting memory for an attempt so difficult, Quem finon tennit, magnis tamen excidit aufis. The King of Spaine fent Souldiers to take those fugitime Negros, which had affifted the Englifb, and two Gallies to guard the Coaft. This and Captayne Barkers frustrated attempts giue greater lustre to Drakes glorv. Andrew Barker of Bristoll, much wronged by the Inquisition, Anne 1576. fought to right himselfe in those parts, and came with two ships to Nombre de Dies , and the River of Chagre, eighteene leagues distant to the North-west , landed ten men to seeke intelligence of Negros, which they could not find, and most of the men also died of the Calentura. Betwixt that and Veragua he tooke a Prize, and another in the Gulfe of Hondaras. Mutuall quarrels betwirt Coxe 40 Coxes quarrels. and the Captayne betrayed them to the Spaniards, which affayling them, flue the Captayne and eight men at the Ile Francisco. After this Coxe went with his Pinnasse, and tooke the Towne of Truxille, but eight men were (by realon of men of warre chaling the ship, thus forced to shife for themielues)left there to their fortunes. Fourteene others and the Frigat with the treasure were call away. Divers of the reft after their returne were long imprisoned.

Drafes happie Circumnaui-

These indeed are pettie things to Captayne Drakes expedition in December 1577. wherein he encompassed first of any Generall, and except Canaily more fortunately then all of them together, this whole Terreftrial Globe. Hefet forth with fine thips, and one hundred fixtie three Mariners. The whole Voyage you have before at large. The Carkaffe of the shippe; or some bones at leaft of that glorious Carkaile, yet remayne at Depiford, confecrated to Fame and Pofte- to ritie; in which Queene Elizabeth being feafted, Knighted this noble Mariner: at which time a bridge of boords made for her Maieftie to paffe, fell with one hundred men thereon, of which none were hurt, as if Good Fortune had both fayled abroad, and feasted at home in that ship. The goods taken were sequestred by her Maiestie, for answere to the Spaniard if need should bee. Some principall Courtiers are faid to have refused the offer of some of this, as Piratically gotten. Bernardine Mendeza made demand for the King of Spaine, (whose Embaffadour hee was) and received answere from the Queene, that the Spaniards had vniustly prohibited commerce to the Englift, that Drate fhould legally answere it any thing were prooued against him, the goods being to that purpose sequestred, how soeuer the Spaniard had put her Maiestie to greater charges against the Rebels, which the Spaniard had railed in England and Ireland : Neither 60 did the know why her fubiects and others were prohibited the Indies, which the knew no reason to thinke proper to the Spaniards, by vertue of the Popes Bull (which could nothing oblige Princes which owed him no obedience) nor by reason that the Spaniards had arrived here and there, had directed Cottages, and given names to Capes and Rivers. Neither might thefe things

CHAP. 2. S.4. Caufes why 2. El. protected the low Countries. Saint lavo taken. 1181

linder other Princes from commerce, or to transport Colonies to places not inhabited by the Spannards (the Law of Nations not infringed hereby, feeing prescription without possession is nothing worth) the vie of the Sea and Aire being exposed to all. Nor might any people or perton challenge right ouer the Ocean, whereof neither nature; nor course of publike vie permitred possession. Yet a great part of the money was repaied after to Peter Sebura the Spanish A. gent, which he repaid not to the owners, but made vie thereof against the Queene in the affaires of the Spanish Netherlands, as was afterwards found. Thus farre briefly collected out of Master Camden and Lopez Vaz a Portugall. Men noated to have compalled the world with Drake, which have come to my hands are Thomas Drake, brother to Sir Francis; Thomas Hood, Thomas Blacco-10 ler, lohn Gripe, George a Musician, Crane, Fletcher, Cary, T. Moone, John Drake, John Thomas. Robert Winterly, Oliner the Gunner. &c.

A little before this the Prince of Orange had beene murdered, and Parry had undertaken the Came on her Maiestie, having the Cardinall Comensis instigation, and the Popes absolution to that purpose. The Spaniards bad ginen great diffaite in English and Irish rebellions, and bad lately arre-Reathe English Ships and goods in Spaine, with other unkindenesses in Belgian businesses. The Belgia ans had offered the confederate Proninces to ber Maiesties Protection and dominion. This se refused, but their Protection the accepted, having discovered the Spaniards hatred to her Religion and Nation, which how easie were it to put in extreamest execution, if the Low-Countries were subdued to his full power (their ancient primiledges being all [wallowed up) and fo England (bould be exposed to Spanish 20 machinations with such opportunities of neighbouring Earts, Forces, Harbours, and Shippings. She therefore to remove present warre and future perils from her owne Countrie, with masculine magnanimitie adventured, not for vainglory but necessitie, to undertake a businesse which made the world to wonder : being little leffe then denouncing warre to fo mighty a Monarke. She agreed with the States to minister to their aide 5000. foote, and 1000 borfe at her owne charge, to be by them after repayed, the first yeares charges in the first yeare of peace, the rest in the foure following, Flushing and the Ramekins and Brill to remaine bers in caution, &c. Her Maiestie fet forth a Booke alfo for ber instification by the ancient leagues with the Belgian Prominces for mutuall defence, the Spanish crueltie on the poore Belgians, and their nefarious denifes against her: neither had the any intent in administring these aides, but that the Low-Countries mucht entry their ancient liberty, the and her (ubietts their fecuritie, 30 and both Nations peaceable commerce. And to the end that warre might not first be brought home to ber owne doores, she fet forth a Fleete to finde the Spaniard worke abroad.

Hereupon Anno 1585. Sir Francis Drake with a Fleete of fine and twenty faile, and 2200. Souldiers and Sailers was fet forth from Plimmonth Sop. 12. Christopher Carlile his Lieutenent Sir Fr. Drakes Generall, Anthonie Powell Sergeant Maior, Captaine Matthew Morgan and Iohn Samfon Corpo- toDomingo, Oc. rall of the field : Land Captaines Anthonie Plat Edward Winter, John Goring, Robert Pen, George Barton, John Merchant, William Coull, Walter Bigs, John Haman, Richard Stanton, Captaine Marzin Frobisher Viceadmirall in the Primrofe, Captaine Francis Knolles Rereadmirall in the Gallion Leicester. Captaine Thomas Venner in the Eliz. Bonaduentere under the Generall Captaine Ed. Names of the ward Winter in the Aide; (briftopher Carlile in the Tigre, Henry White Captain of the Sea Dragon, Commanders

40 Thomas Drake Captaine of the Thomas, Thomas Seely Captaine of the Minion. Captaine Bayly of the Barke Talbot, Robert Croffe of the Barke Bond, George Fortefeue of the Barke Boner, Edward Carelesse of the Hope, I ames Erizo of the White Lyon, Thomas Moone of the Fancis, John Rivers of the Vantage, lohn Vaughan of the Drake, lohn Varney of the George, lohn Marsin of the Beniamin, Richard Gilman of the Scont, Richard Hawkins of the Ducke, Captaine Bitfield of the Swallow. Enelife Shine They tooke a Shippe of Saint Sebastrans laden with fifth, entred the Iles of Bayon, and fent to the arcited the Citie to know whether there were warres betwixt England and Spaine, and why the English cause of the Merchants and their goods in Spaine were embarged or arrested. The Governour professed his ig . breaking out norance inboth, and that this later was the Kings pleasure. After some spoiles done about Via of Hostility. go, they fell with Hierro, but the Iland being poore, departed without harme. Thence they

50 went to the Iles of Cape Verde, and at Saint Lago entred betwixt the Towne called Playa or S. Lagoraken, Praya and Saint Iago, landed 1000.men, and (the men being fled) entred the Towne and shot off all their Ordnance, being 50 peeces, and wered from the Ships to honour the Queenes day, the 17. of November. No Treature was found but Wine, Oyle, Meale, &c. They possessed it foureteene dayes. November the foure and twentieth, they marched to Saint Domingo, twelve miles within land, and found the people fled.

After foureteen dayes they departed having burned the Towne of Plays, none of the inhabitants having offered to intercede, which feemed to happen from their guiltineffe towards old Mifter William Master William Hawkins, whose men perfidiously they had murthered foure or fine yeares before, Hawkins. against their promise, putting off to the West Indies, they could not put off the effects of the Dominica.

60 aire of that Iland, which by a Calentura killed two or three hundred of their men. The first I. land which they fell with was Dominica, the next Saint Christophers, and having there ipent S. Christophers. their Christmas, they resolved for Hift aniala : and having received intelligence by a Frigot which they tooke in the way, they landed nine or ten miles to the Westward of Saint Domingoon New yeares day. About noone they approached the Towne under the conduct of Matter

Carlile.

See Candoni

1182 Domingo affaulted Ambitious Armes Cartagena taken. Mortalitie, LIB. VI

Sain: Dominge affrulted and taken.

Carlile, and 150 horfemen prefenting themselues from the Citie being retired, they divided their forces to alault both the Westerne gates at once. The Ordnance being discharged on them, they ran in to present a second charge and entred with them pell mell into the Gates, the enemy altering their fight into flight, which they made by the North gate. Both troopes met in the Marker-place and there barricadoed themselues. The Castle was abandoned the next night. They held the Towne a whole moneth. They burned many houses before they could bring the Spaniards to a price for the rantome of the reft, for which at last they paid after much spoile 2000. Duckets. The pray was not much. In the Towne-house were the Kings armes, and in the lower part of the foutchion was painted a globe of the Sea and Land, a horse standing thereon with his hinder legges, the forepart without the globe, with this motto ascribed to his mouth, Non 10 From Saint Domingo they fet faile for Carthagena on the Continent, landing fome Comva-

Ambitious Armes.

Cartigma ale k:na

Caliniura. Tile Caule.

Other Townes taken. * 50 Canden. others,Saint taught them.

is printed in

Mafter Hak

but finding

rine written

Tom. 2. part. 2.

. This voyage

nies with Captaine Carlile fine miles of, which were led on by night, the Generall with this Fleete presenting themselves before the chained Port: and having gotten the Citie, held the fame fix weekes. They tooke Alonfo Brano the Governour. After many houses burned 11000. Mortelity by a Duckets were paid for ransome of the rest from burning. The Calentura continued, killing some (being a peffilent ipotted Feuer) and ipoyling others of their firength and memory for a long time. The Screna or Euening ayre is faid to caufe it to them which are then abroad, if not of that Country : to that by holding their watch, the English were thus infected. This forced them to give over their intended voyage to Nombre de Dios, and Parama, failing therefore along it 20 the coast of Florida, they tooke and fired two garrison Townes of the Spaniards, Saint Anthonse and Saint Helena, and the Fort of Saint Iohn. Then passing along the Virginian there they tooke home the Englif Colonie there remaining with Malter Lane their Gouernour, fent by Sir Wal-Fifty of To- ter Raleigh. There are failly Mafter Camden to have beene the first bringers in of the vie of Tobacco, fince fo frequently abused by our Nation. They arrived at Portsmouth the 28. of Ju-(as may be ly 1586. They got Ordnance of Bralle about 200, peece, and about 40, of Iron. The prey was thou my) of the then more valued at 60000. h. English. There ayed (most of the Calentura) 700. persons. The industry authe letteare of the Generallin all places is remakeable, whose vigilance and bodily presence, and labour in which the Vir all bufinell- was much, that had be beene in the meaneil he had merited the highest place. To 30 ginant lay the this is fittelt in next place to adde his Cadiz exploit Anno 1587, and the taking of the rich Ca-Denill (fo appearing tothe) racke, called Saint Philip.

HE: Maiestie being informed of that invincible Armadas preparing in Spaine (which did come and was overcome the yeare after) sent a fleete of 30.131le vader the command of Sir Francis Drake: the Bonaduenture, the Lyon, the Dread-namehr, and the Rainbon were cut of her Nauv Royall chosen to this service. The 16.0f Aprill two Shippes of Midleborough which came from Cadiz (with whom we met in 40.degrees) gaue him to vnderstand that there was great prouision in Cadez and thereabout prouided to come to Lisbone, whereupon the Generall with Relation, 1 thought good all post ble speede bending himselite thither to cut of the forces and prousions, the 19. of Aprill, to interit. It one houre before the Sunne letting, entred the harbour of Calle, and the Spaulh Fleete there was writtened checked vs, at the entring thereat with the Towne Galleyes, but in short time retired under 40 one The Pinner the Fortreffe.

There were in the Roades 60. Ships, and divers other small shipping under the forcesse. There fled 20. French Shippes to port Riall, and some Spaniards, which could not be hindred of the Fleete by reason of the sholdnesse. There were sunke by vs at our comming in with shot, one Oreafer of 1000.tun, furnished with thirty peeces of Brasle, and richly laden. There were two Gallies more came prefently from port Riall, and two other from Saint Mary port, but all in vaine the expenses of powder and thor, the greatest gaine to themselves.

There were to the number of 38. Shippes taken before night, and the English victours of the Roade: the Galleyes retyring vnder the Fortreffes. Twenty Hulcks Hollanders conficated to 50 the King, and their goods fold to the Kings vie - four-teene of them were fired the other fix were at port Kiall laden with Wines and Bread, and to be presently full laden for Liftburne one Carricke of foureteene hundreth tun appertaining to the Marquelle of Saint Cruce; fine great Bifkainers fired, toure of them lading and taking in of victuals for the Kings prouision for Lilburne, the Saint was a Ship of 1000. tuns, bound for Lukburne having in her great flore of Pikes, much Iron, Nailes, Spikes, Iron hoopes, and fuch like, fired. One Shataya laden with Wines of 2 co. tuns for the Kings proution, which we brought to Sea with vs, and discharged at Sea a part of their Wines, for the proution of the Fleete, and there fired her. Three Flye-boates of foure hundreth tunnes laden with Bisket whereof the one being of two hundred tuns and vpwards, we halfe volladed and then fired her, the other two are yet with vs in company. Sometenne 60 Barkes more laden with Wines, Raisons, Figges, Oyle, Wheate, with such like, fired. By supposition the eight and thirtie Shippes and Barkes fired, sunke, and brought away with vs. amounted in judgement to thirteene thouland tuns of shipping. There rid in light of vs at port Riall, by estimation, aboue fortie faile, besides those that fled from Calle reade.

Caricke of

CHAP. A. Cales. S. Philip the first Carike which was taken. Drakes last Doyage. 1182

They o me we little case during our aboade there, which they shot from the Galleves as also from the Fortrefles and from the thore, where continually they planted new Ordnance at plan ces contenient to offend; not withit anding their Ships we continually fired as the floud came. thereby to bee cleared of them, which terrible fire was pleasant vnto vs to behold and mittigated the continual burthen of trauaile, which lay vpon vs day and night in difcharging, firing, and valading, such promitions, with observations for good and gardable defence of the enemie. It pleated the Generall, after his great care and paines day and night, to finish this happy Action in her Maiesties service, in one day and two nights, and hee came forth agains the Friday in the morning, with very little loffe, thankes be to God.

Of twelve Galleyes, and those that came from port Riall, and Saint Mary port, tenne of them came forth after vs, as it were to make some pastime with their great Ordnance. At length, the winde standing, wer cast about againe and strooke in for the shoare, and came to an anker within a league of Cales, where their Galleyes suffered vs to ride quietly. There were also three Flye Boates more at Mallegai laden with Bysket, bound for Calez, and fo for Lilborne. We understood of their great prouisions and forces prouided within the straights. We doubt not, but as God hath begunne this worke in great happineffe to the daunting of the enemie : fo God will bleffe this Armie in cutting daily their forces (horter, to the great annoyance of the enemy, and to the honour of our Prince and

Wee haus had the experience of Galley fights (wherein I can affine you) that there onely Gally-fight foure of her Maiesties Ships wil make none accompt of swenty Galleyes; so as they were alone. and not driven to guard others.

There were Galleyes had place fitter for their adnantage in fight woon shot they receined, they had prefent fuccour to ground under the towne, which they fundry times did wave, riding in a narrow gutter, the place yeelling no better, in that wee were driuen to maintaine the fane vntill wee had discharged, and fired the Shippet, which could not conueniently be done but upon the floud; that thereby they may drive cleare

We rest now victualed with Bread and Drinke, for six moneths in our Ships, and Bread be-20 fides in two five Boates to maintaine a good Armie three moneths. We restall in good love with our Generall and unitie in all the whole Fleete.

After this, they came before the hauen of Lysbon, where the Marqueffe of Santia Cruz was with his Gallies, whom the Generall inuited to some exchange of Bullets, but he refused. Thence they failed to the Azores, and met with a Portugall Carracke, called Saint Philip, which had in her voyage outward carried the three laponian Princes into the Indies. This Carracke he tooke. the first of that kinde taken by the English, ominous in the name and so it proved not onely by the loffe of to great wealth to King Philip , both in leading the daunce to others after taken, and in opening the eyes of the English to write the Indian fountaines, whence such wealth islueds wherein allothe Hollanders quickly imitated them.

To omit other braue exploits neerer home, as that most glorious of 88, and the rest : our pur- Sir French pole is to ging you the remote Voyages of this worthy Sea-man; and now lastly that last and fa- Drates last tall expedition Anne 1 egg, with fixe of the Queenes Ships and one and twenty other Ships and voyage. Barkes, containing 2500, men and boyes, intended for some special service in the West Indies. Sir Francis Drake and Sir lobn Hawkins were joyned in Commission. They fee faile from Plime month the eight and twentieth of August, November the twelfth, neere the Eastermost end of Saint luan de Puerto Rico, Sit loon Hawkins died. The hauen of Saint loon they found strongly Len Hawkins. fortified against them, but yet they fired their fine Shippes each of 200 tunnes, having in every of $.10 Part Rice. them twenty Peeces of Braffe, and richly laden. Much harme was done on both fides. The fine and twentieth they pasted by Mona. In the beginning of December, they tooke Rie de la Ha- R dela Harba 50 cha. They tooke also the Rancheria or fisher towns for Pearles. The Spannards affered to ransome taken; and their Towne at 24000. Ducates which they brought in Pearle to deately rated that the General fent them backe, and both were burnt. The feuenteenth they tooke Tapia, and after that Saint Tapia. Mariba, and the Spanib Lieutenant Generall. The feuen and twentieth Nombre de Dies was taken a Towne fibrech to raine, and very unhealthfull: the roade faire, hauing on each fide as you Nombre de Diol. come aleilee of rocks. The nine and twentieth, Sir Thomas Barkernile with 750. Land-foldiors 5.Th. Barkernile. went for Panama, a fore march thorow the woods, the way cut out of the woods and rocks, very mirie, the Speniards playing on them out of the woods. After ten leagues march, they came to a fort on the top of a hill : two fuch more were betwire that and Panama, that also strongly fortie Marchfor Pa. fied, the enemy having knowledge before of this deligne. Hereby was he forced to returne. Ia- nama.

60 nurry the eight and twentieth. Sir Francis Drate died of a fluxe. He made his brother Thomas S. Fr. Drates Drakes fonne his heire. Sit Thomas Baskermill succeeded. The fix and twentieth of February the death. Spaniards fleete of tweaty failes, and the English met; a fight followed, & continued two hours, and then they parted. A great Ship of the Spaniards that night was burned. In Aprill following they arrived at Planmonth.

In this Voyage Phane followed the printed Relation: but because another hath comme to my hands, written (as it feemes) by one offended therein, I have to thy other eare permitted him to theake, that freedome of judgement may remayne to every Reader. He semen and twentieth of August, having our diffratch from her Maiestie, wee brought all own fleet into the Sound of Plinmouth, and the eight and twentieth day wee fet fayle for our pretended Quarrell bewint the Ge Voyage. In our course alongst the Coasts of Spaine, was divers meetings with our Generals, where val-fed many rankend peeches, and fuch as Sir John Hawkins never put off till death. In this traff was put on a resolution with Sir Francis Drake, and Sir Thomas Baskeruile to take the Grand Canaria, where-Reason for and upon a counfall was beld, and therein propounded by Sir Francis, how great abenefit, much bonour, and to aganfi the Ca- good refresting was offered us, and therefore would fland on most voyces. Sir Iolin Hawkins to whom nary exploit. bee fake this veterly refused, with thefereasons following. First, there could bee no need confidering our small time out. Secondly, not possible to carrie it without haz arding all, and Thirdly, not good to lose time, which would never be recovered. To this last reason Sir Thomas Baskeruile answered. First. for time , bee-would require but foure dayes in this manner, In foure houres be would take it , and in the rest would bee burne it downe, except they would compound, thus the fourth day would be be bipped readse for our Voyage.

In this controversie Sir Francis would goe for the Canaria with such as would follow binn , and Sir Iohn Hawkins with the rest for the Indies, yet after this bard debating, at the earnest request of some friends, Sir Iohn Hawkins upon the confession of need, was content to assist them, yet in his indecement 20 labour loss with much havard of all. Then altogether standing alongit, the fixe and twentieth of Sep. tember we came to anchor afore the Fort that guards the landing place at Grand Canaria, where were put into our Boates and Pinnaffes, all our land men under the conduct of Sir Thomas Baskeruile Colonell Generall, who drew head neere the middest of the Beatche. Betwixt the Fort and the Towne, as most safety for our landing. To this place even then did the Spaniards draw two or three very small Peeces of Ordnance, with which, and with some companies of Souldiers made some shew of resistance, whereupon notwithstanding most of our smaller shipping, who accompanied our Boats with their Artillers, See Thomas made bu retraite without putting foot on land, and then to know, as it was reported, if our Generals would put their Voyage thereon or no. With this better confideration were all our men Shipped agame, and food along it to the Westermost end thereof. Here went many ashoure some for water, some for 10 plea ure, amongst whom, the eight and twentieth day was Captagne Grimstone with two more in his company flaine, and by Peafants as was thought ! with this emill beginning, this night wee weighed and flood alongst for the Indies.

Dominica.

The Grand

thirtieth day we came all to fafe anchoring at Guardalopa, onely the Delight and the Francis, two of our smallest Prinasses, who being to becomerds out of sight, was there chased by fine Spanish fries, in which Sir I. Hawires chafe the Francis was taken, the other escaped with this newes. The last of this moneth Sir John Haw-KIDS not able to beare bis oriefes out longer, fickned. Here we built feuen Pinnaffes. The fourth of No. nember were they lanched, and we flood of for Porto tico, the eight day in the way we anchored amone the Hands Virgins, where all our Souldiers were appointed to their land Captaines. The twelfth day AD we came to anchor afore the Harbour at Porto rico, where dyed Sir Nicholas Clifford, by a foot from a platforme, fitting at supper in the D:fiance, with this stot was likewife Master Brewt Browne burt, who lived but few dayer after, and this day alfo died Sir Iohn Hawking, whose death of many was much

The ciebt and twentieth of Ollober, wee came faire by the Southermost end of Dominica : and the

At Parts rice. He dyeth.

> In this Harbour rid those fine Frigats of the Kings, which came for the treasure. This place beeing well viewed by our Generall, and Colonell Generall, a counfell was beld and therem agreed , That first and most necessariest these Prigats should bee burned, and for that service was named out the next night thirtie of our Boates and Pinnasses with fire workes, and with warlibe weapons, these Frigats were fo

Treafure loft

well defended aboord, and with the Ordnance aftere, that our men returned with confuming onely one of them. out of which were faued fome of the Spaniards, who reported certainly, that there the Treasure of 50 two Millions was, and fo were our men taken in the Francis. Notwithstanding all these quickning newes after some few dayes, we weighed and stood alongst to the Westermost and of this lland, where we contented us with some refreshing of water, Oranges and Plan-tanes, here were built some Pinnasses more. At this place font hee abourd me with his warrant sortie thirteenth day, came in the same all in Pearle, and the fourteenth day came in their Lieutenaut for the Souldiers out of the Defrance. The foure and twentieth day we weighed and flood along if for me Hand. called Knaw-law, with which wee fell the nine and twentieth day, but flayed not; thus flanding along st. The first of December we arrived at Cape dela Vela, the second in the morning was put into our Boats Rin dela Mattha. and Pinnaffes, all our Souldiers for Rio dela Hatcha. This was taken, the people being all fied, yet here with fearch in the Woods, and intelligence of some Negros, was found great flore of Pearle, Plate, Iewels, Rials of Plate, Bolts of Silke, rich apparell, with much other luggage. The fixt of this moneth, 62 brought in Ser Francis from one other Towne called Rancharia, great quantitie of Pearle and lug gage, The ninth day came in some Spaniards, with intent to ransome their houses, Negros, and some Spi-

foure houres respice for further answere from their Gouernour Don Francisco Manso, bis answere was himleife would come to conference, which hee did the fixteenth day. After dinner our Generall and Colonell Generall, with the Spaniards had secret conference about this Ransoms, whereupon concluding, they absolutely broke of, and therefore in all baste was fire out me some of the houses, and the Gonernour had two boures time to cleere him of our Army. Thus baning barnt Rio dela Hatcha, Rancharia, and Tapia. The eighteenth day wee weighed and Good along for Sancta Marca, to which we came thetwentieth day, here we onely tooke fome fine Pri- Santa Marta.

delivery. But in the valuing, their quantity and quality would not be taken wherefore departed they with foners, whereof one was the Licatenant there. The one and twentieth, it was put to fire, and we (et fayle for Nombre de Dios, towbish we came the fenen and twentieth day, where in like manner the reople had 10 acquited the Towne, yet here was found by intelligence of fome Negros, as I heard, two and twentie Sowes of Silver, Gold in Bullion, Some levels, great Store of Plate, and Riall of Plate, with much other luggage. The nine and twentieth day, Sir Thomas Baskeruile. Colonell Generall with all his a- Sir T. B. skeruils blest Captaines and Synldiers tooke their sourney for Panama, now the marke of our Voyage; who neere i we ney for the mid-may being empeached by some Spaniards and Nogros, made their retreite to the Ships at Nom- Panama. bre de Dios, at this encounter were few of our men flaine, some burt, some of the which there left to the mercie of the Spaniards.

The fifth day of lanuary, all our men being skipped, the towne and Galliots put to fire, we set sayle then by the adnice of a Spaniard, for the River Nicorago, in which way we fell with one Itand called Elcudo, a Estudo.

place which affordeth nothing good, yet here wee flaged from the tenth day untill the three and twentieth. when we fet fayle and plied to the Eastward, which by Gods speciall fanour, the eight and twentieth day we came in with Porta laibella. This morning died our Generall Sir Francis Drake. This is the place Sir F. Draket where the people of Nombre de Dios meaneth to dwell at. Here found we a beginning of a strong plat- death. forme with three Braffe Peeces vimounted. In my opinion , this was our best remove , for if God had not prevented our Generals purpose for the River Niccrazo, it would have hazarded all her Maiefies Ships, farre with the reft. Here tooke we in ballast, water, mended our fayles, and calked our flips.

The eight of February, Sir Thomas Baskeruile taking upon him Generall, we all fet faile for Santa Maria homewards, but not able to recover higher then Carthagena, as wee gheffe in the Bonauenture, o with the splitting of all our sailes, put ouer for lamaica. In this course lost we the Forc-Gebt, the Sufan Parnell, the Helpe, and the Gregory. The fine and twentieth day came we faire by Canaria granda, which bore over us in the morning East North-east , and this day was all our flesh and fish frent. The second of March, making this our miserse like to be known to Sir Thomas Baskeruile, who hath ginen mee his promile to relieue mee at my need, his answere was carelely for vs, and with all faid, bee would goe in with the Iland Pinos to water, which I otterly missiked, the winde then being good to stand along st. very ill to lofe, and more for that no Englishman in our fleete either knew or ener heard of any watering or other good there.

In this reasoning betwirt vs, we descried twentie sayle of shops a head vs, who were the Kings men of Warre, wayting our home comming, it was my fortune in the Bonauenture to take to taske the 40 Vice-admirall, one of the twelne Apostles of the Kings, for so I thought by a great golden Saint, which manned her Poope. The manner of our fight and my deserving, I leave even to the report of mine enemies, vet thus much understand, their Admirals with the rest, all the next day being in the winde, was content we should passe in peace. Thus being quietly, and we all disimborned some two bundred leagues, I made a second demand of Sir Thomas, his promise for victuals, which he viterly refused, wherefore as well in regard of our Generals lacke as mine owne danger, with a flot in our fight, wherein it was indifferent with mee to line or die; I told him I must make more haste home then I presumed hee would , yet wee stayed with him two dayes longer, when in a storme I left him, and this was the fourteenth day of March.

Now for these two English Sea-worthies, as wee have begunne their American Adventures, so and ended them together, to I have thought good to infert this following centure of a Gentleman in a Letter of his, touching them both, as an Epitaph dedicated to their memory.

C lr. I have according to your request, and my owne plainnesse sent you here the comparison betweene Sthofe two Commanders Sir Francis Drake and Sir John Hawins. They were both much given to trauell in their youth and age, attempting many bonourable Voyages alike; as that of Sir John Hawkins to Guiny, to the les of America, to Saint John de Vlua. So likewife Sir Francis Drake after many Discourses of the West Indies, and other parts, was the first Englishman that did ever compaffe the World; wherein, as also in his deepe indgement in Seacanfes, he did farre exceed not Sir Iohn Hawkins alone, but all others whom soener. In their owne natures and disposition they did us much dif-

67 fer : as in the managing matters of the Warres , Sir Francis beeing of a lively first , resolute, quicke, and sufficiently valiant: The other slow, seasow, and hardly brought to resolution. In Councell Sir John Hawkins did often differ from the sudgement of others, feeming thereby to know more in doubtfull things, then he would viter. Sir Francis was a willing hearer of every mans opinion, but commonly a follower of his owne: he never attempted any action, wherein he was an absolute Commander, but hee mards Prisoners, and concluded for 24000. Pezos, every Pezo worth fine Stillings fixe pence. The

performed the same with great reputation, and did easily dispatch great matters; Contrariwise Sir John Hawkins did only give the bare attempt of things, for the most part without any Fortune or good fueceffe therein. Ser Join Hawkins did naturally bate the Land fouldier, and though hee were very popular, yet be affected more the common fort, then his equals; Sir Francis contrarily did much lone the Land-fouldier, and greatly advanced good parts, where some he found them. Hee was also affable to all men and of easte accesse. They were both of many vertues , and agreeing in some. At patience in enduring labours and hardnesse, Observation and Memory of things past, and great discretion in sudden dangers, in which, neither of them was much diffempered, and in some other vertues they differed Ser John Hawkins bad in him mercie and apineffe to forgine, and true of word; Ser Francis hard in reconciliation, and confiancie in friendship; be was withell sewere and consteam, magnanimious, and liberall. They were both faultie in ambition, but more the one then the other; For in Sir Francis was an in fa- 10 tiable defire of honor indeed beyond reason. He was infinite in promises, and more temperate in advertir, then in better Fortune. He had also other imperfettions, as apinesse to anger, and bitternesse in disgracing, and too much pleased with open flattery: Sir John Hawkins had in him malice with dissimulation, rude nessen behausour, and passing sparing, indeed miserable. They were both happy alike in being Great Commanders, but not of equal successe, and grew great and famous by one meanes, rising through their owne Vertues, and the Fortune of the Sea. Their was no comparison to bee made betweene their wel-deserning and good parts, for therein Sir Francis Drake did farre exceede. This is all I bane observed in the Voyages, wherein I have served with them.

R. M.

A briefe recitall or nomination of Souldiers, other Englishmens Voyages related as large in the printed Works of Master HAKLVYT.

Ther Voyages might here be inserted, made by Englishmen into the Bay of Mexico, as that by Captayne W. Michelfon, and William Mace of Rateliffe, in the Dogge 1589. which there tooke three shippes. They held fight with a Spanish man of Warre, who by fraud 30 fought perfidiously to obtayne that which they could not by vnspotted Fortitude. They put out a flagge of Truce, and after kinde entertaynment aboord the English, inuited them to their shippe, where they assaulted them, stabbing Roger Kong foold the Pilot to the Heart, flaying others , and forcing the rest to trust God and the Sea rather then the Deuill and the Spaniards; thus fwimming to their ship.

Treachery of Sir G. Careys.

The valiant fight of the Content, a small ship of Sir George Careys, (Lord Hundsdon, Lord Chamberlaine) 1591. June 13. with three great Spanife fhips, each of fix or feuen hundred, and one fmall hippe and two Gallies, farre more beeing flaine of the enemies then the English had Captaine New- to fight: Heaue to Mafter Hakluyts report: as also Captayne Christopher Newport his Voyage with three ships and a Pinnasse the same yeere, which tooke and spoyled Tagnana and Ocoa in 40 Histanisla, and Truxillo, besides other Prizes, and in the way homeward, were at the taking of the Madre de Dios. The next yeere Captayne Lane Gen. of Master Wats hist fleete , Captayne Roberts in the Exchange of Brist-II, and Captayne Bemanins Wood with foure shippes fer forth by the Lord Thomas Howard, Captayne Kenell of Lime-bonfe, and Captayne King of Reteliffe Road, with thirteene fayles before Hanana, wayting for purchafe.

folke. Thirteene Layles English Sir R . Dudley.

Anno 1594. the Honourable Sir Robert Dudley fet forth with two ships and two Pinnasses, and made his Voyage to Trinidada, and the Coast of Paria, returning by the Iles of Granata. Santa (ruez, Santa Inan de Puerto Rico, Mona, Zacheo, and Bermuda. In which Voyage he and his company tooke or funke nine Spanifo thips; of which one was a man of Warre of fixe hun-50 dred tins. The particulars are related by himfelfe in Mafter Hablust.

Captaine Amas Prefton. Captaine Sum-Sir Antonie Sherley.

In him alio the Reader may find the victorious Voyage of Captayne Amias Prefton, and Captayne George Summers (both fince Knights) Anno 1 595. in which the lles of Puerto Santo, and of Coche neere Margarita, the Fort and Towne of Core, the Citie of Saint Iago de Leon, were facked and burnt; the Towne of Cumana ranformed, and lamaica entred.

Captaine Par-M. Pudfey. M. Hare. Sir I. Lancafter. Fenton and Jobn Drake.

Sir Antonie Sherley. Anno 1596. fet forth from Hampton, with nine ships and a Galley, to Saint lago Dominica, Margarua, Iamaica, Bay of Honduras, and homewards by Newfoundland. M. W. Homeins. This and Captayne Parkers Voyage 1596, to the same parts and Ports, with his taking of Campeche the chiefe Towne of lacatan, and bringing thence a Frigat, laden with the Kings Tribute: Alfo the Voyages of Sir Walser Raleigh to Guiana, and other intelligences of that Nation: likewife 60 Mafter William Hawkins his Voyages to Brafill, and those of Rewiger and Borey, Pudfay, Stephen Hare, Sir lames Lancasters taking of Fernambuc : Fenton and Ward, and John Draker Voyage after his departure from Fenton vp the River of Plate, and living fifteene moneths with the Sa-Dages, Anno 1582.

CHAP.5. Chidleys Voyage to the Straits. Peter Carders strange fortunes.

All their I referre to the painfull labours of Maiter Hakluyt, who hath well deferued of the English Nation, and of these Neptunian Heroes; that I mention not the many Voyages of others in those times of difference betwixt England and Spaine, which here and there you shall finde mention of in these Relations. Alto, Aano 1589, three thips were set torth by Malter Chillie and others for the Magellan Straites, one of which arrived there and tooke there a Spaniard, one of the foure hundred which had beene fent thither to inhabit, w ich had long lived there alone, the rest being famished. They spent fixe weekes there with contrary winds, and fixe only of their company returned, they all o being racked on the Coast of Normandie, as W. Masoths one Thefe I doe but fummarily mention, as an Index rather to Mafter Haklayte labours, then with 10 any intent to give the discourse thereof. But the Brange fortunes of Peter Carder (not hitherto published) compell me to take speciall notice thereof, which himselfe hath thus related.

CHAP. V.

The Relation of PETER CARDER of Saint Verian in Cornwall, within fenen miles of Falmouth, which went with Sir FRANCIS in his Voyage about the World, begun 1 5 7 7. who with seuen others in an open Pinnasse or Shallop of fine tuns, with eight O ares, was separated from his Generall by soule weather in the South Sea, in October , An. 1578. who returning by the Straites of Magellan toward Brasill, were all cast away, faue this one only afore named, who came into England nine yeeres after miraculously, having escaped many strange dangers, aswell among divers Sauages as Christsans.

Fter Sir Francis Drake had passed the Straites of Magellan, the fixt of September 1578, and was driven downe to the Southwards in the South Sea, vinto the latitude of fiftie five degrees, and a terfe, with fuch accidents as are mentioned in his Voyage, and returning backe toward the Straite againe. The eight of October weloit light of the Elizabeth, one of our Conforts, wherein Matter Iohn Winter was, who returned by the Straites againe, as wee vinderitood afterward at With this Can;

our comming home into England; according to his Voyage extant in print. Shortly after his fe- Winter Ihaue paration from our company our Generall commanded eight men to furnish our small Pinnasse or had coference Shallop with eight men, whole names were these, my selfe, Peter Carder aforesaid, Richard Bur- in Sept. 1618. nish of London, John Cottle and another, both servants to Master John Hawkins, Artyur a Duich told me that Trumpetor, Richard loyner, servant to Vincent Scoble of Plummonth, Pasche Gidie of Salt Albe, and solemne post-AO William Pitcher of London.

This company was commanded to waite upon the ship for all necessary vies, but having not tually taken of passed one dayes victuals in vs, nor any Card nor Compasse, saving only the benefit of eight oares, the passed one dayes victuals in vs, nor any Card nor Compasse, saving only the benefit of eight oares, the vie of her in the night time by foule weather fuddenly ariting we loft the fight of our fhip, and though our Maiefly and Thip fought vs and we them, for a fortnight together, yet could we never meet together againe. her fuccessors Howbeit within two doves after we lost them, we recoursed the shoare, and relected our selues which he dewith Muscels, Oysters. Trabs, and some forts of Roots in the Woods, and within a fortnight after the lose of our confess, wee returned backe into the Straites of Magellan, and in two places came on land on the mayne of America, to relieue our selues in certaine Bayes, where wee World. found Oysters, Muscels and Crabs as before, and filled our Barricos with fresh water, and in one Thenames of 50 of these places we found Sauages, but they fled from vs.

Afterward we came to Penguin Iland in the Straites, and there wee falted and dryed many Cns. They lose their of the Penguins for our fullenance. Thence we shaped our course for Port Saint Iulian, where Sir fine, Francis Drake not many moneths before had beheaded Captayne Doutse: In this Port we stayed Their returne a day or two, and tooke fish like Breames and Mackerils, with hookes and lines. Then coffing to the Straits the land for some formight, some hundred leagues beyond the River of Plate, wee found a small and thorow the land for fome fortnight, some hundred leagues beyond the Nuclei Figure 1 and three leagues from the mayne full of Seales, whereof wee killed good from to our fuffer North Seales. nance, the young ones we found best and eate them roast. Then passing ouer the River of Plate Peneum Hand. to the North fide, we put into a small River, and went vp into the Woods fixe of vs : other two Port Saint 14remayning on the shore to looke to the Boat.

60 While we were thus feeking food in the Woods the people of the Countrey, called Tapines, fome fixthe or federate armed with Bowes and Arrowes (not fiercely at vs., and wounded vs. all Foure English very grieuoully, and foure of vo were taken by them, and neuer recourted: the rest of vo they taken by baur. purlued to our Pinnalle, and wounded vs all : but in the end we put them to flight. Thence we ges, the reft went to an Iland fome three leagues of in the Sea, not about a league in compatie. Where were wounded.

Rifff 2

dir remiyac.

P. der & Car. ser Carder and William Pucher. Here we remay ned the toace of two moneths, in all which time for our victuals, weekada froir (omewhat like vnto Oranges, growing vpon a high Tree, the leafe whereof was fomewhat like the Afren leafe, and small; white Crabs creeping upon the fand, and little Eeles which we found under the lands, but in all this Iland we could not find any fresh water in the World, in-No fresh water formuch that we were driven to drinke our owne vrine, which we faued in some sheards of certaine larres, which we had out of cur Pinnasse, and set our vrine all night to coole therein, to In

Red vrine.

drinke it the next morning, which thus being drunke often, and often auoyded, became in a while exceeding red, in all this time wee had no raine, nor any good meanes to faue it, if it had fallen, whereupon, iceing our felues in to great extremitie, wee deuised how we might get ynto the Mayne, and by good fortune, found a planke of fome ten foot in length, which of likelihood had criven from the River of Plate, whereunto with withes, wee bound fome other wood. and furnishing our felues with the foretaid fruit, Eeles and Crabs . wee committed our felues to Palage to the God; hoping with the fetting in of the tyde, and with the helpe of two poles, which we vied in fread of Oares to attay ne vnto the Mayne, which was fome three leagues off, but wee made it three dayes and two nights before we could come to the Mayne. At our comming first on land, we found a little River of very sweet and pleasant water, where 20 William Pitcher my onely comfort and companion (although I difwaded him to the contrary) o-

Sword and Target with me, I met with fome thirtie of the Sauages of the Countrey, called Target

Piteler breakes uer granke himfelte, being pinched before with extreame thirft, and to my vnfpeakeable griefe withdraking and difcomfort, within halfe an houre after dyed in my prefence, whom I buried afwell as I The next day following, as I trauelled along the shoare towards Brasill, having mine Arming

Tuppan baffe Sauages.

pan Balle, which being armed with Bowes and Arrowes, and having two or three great Rattles with itones in them, and a kind of Tabrets that they yied in flead of Drummes, they went dancing before me about a Musket shot off, and then they stayed and hanged vp a piece of a white Net of Cotton-wooll, ypon a flicks end of foure foote high, and went from it about a 20 Musket shot off : then I comming vnto it, tooke it in my hand, viewed it, and hung it vp againe, He couch with then many of them, beckning and weating with their hands, cryed vnto mee, Iyorie, Iyorie, which (as afterward I understood, by living long among them) was as much as Come baber, Then I came to them, and they friendly led me a long fome halfe a mile, all the way dancing, af well men as women, whereof there were some eight in the company, vitill we came to another Riuer fide, where they hanged up their Beds, tying them fast to a couple of Trees, being a kinde of white Cotton Netting, which hanged two foot from the ground, and kindled fire of two flicks. which they made on both fides of their Beds, for warmth, and for driving away of wilde beafts.

and having fed me with fuch as they had ; we tooke our rest for that night. The next day earely in the morning they tooke downe and truffed vp their beds, crying ti- 40

allo, tiallo, which is to fay, away, away, and marched that day towards Brafill fome twentie Sauage towne miles, and came to their Towne where their chiefe Governour was. This Towne was built four four, with four house onely, every house containing about two Bowe shot in length. and the houses made with small trees like an Arbour, being thatched over downe to the ground with Palme tree leaves: they have no windowes, but some thirtie or fortie doores on every side of this fauadron, by which each Familie paffeth in and out; their chiefe Lord, whose name was Caron, being a man of fome forty yeares old, had nine wives; but the rest have onely one wife, except fuch as are counted more valiant, then the rest which are permitted two wives, one to looke to their children at home, and the other to goe to the warres with them. This Towne contained very neere 4000 persons of all forts. The next day the Gouernour sent divers of his people a- 50 broad to bring in all forts of victuall which the Countrie yeelded, and offered them vinto me to fee which of them I liked best, among which there was great store of fish, as well Sea-fish as freshwater-fishes, many forts of Fowles, many forts of Rootes, and divers Land-beaits, as Ar-deferibed.

Hospitall en-

Caiou their

Lord,

madillos, which afterward I found to be very good meate. Of all these at the first, I onely tooke one Fowle, and a couple of filles, and bestowed the rest among their children, which procured me no fmall good will among them. Here I stated among them (being well entertained) for certaine moneths, visitl I had learned their language most part of their language, in which meane space I noted their manners, which were as followeth. They went out to the warres armed at my first comming, onely with Bowes and Ar-

Their wattes. rowes, time three or foure hundred at a time, and when they had the victory of their enemies, they tied one of their Captines to one of their company with Cotten cords falt arme to arme, and bringing them home, within two or three daies after they would tie them to a pooft, and with a malie club of red wood one of the firongest of the company (after they have drunke a certaine firong drinke with dancing round about him) at one blow flits his head a funder : this drinke is made by their women of a certaine roote called I. P. which first they seeth, and after- Their drinke ward chew in their mouthes, and then fpit it out agains into a long trough and mingle it with and drunken. water, and there let it worke two or three daies, and gate a yeeft voon it, like to our Ale; which neffe, done, they take the liquor and put it into broad mouth larres of earth, and of this both their men and women doe drinke at their teafts, till they be as drunke as Apes.

CHAP. S. Peter Carders life with the Sauages and yeelding to the Portugals. 1180

I could observe no Religion among it them, but onely that they reverence and worshippe the Moone, especially the new Moone; whereat they doe reloyce in leaping, dancing, and clapping Religions their hands. The Merchantable commodities of this Countrie, are Brafill-wood, Tobacco, red Pepper, and Cotten Wooll. They have also great flore of Apes, Monkies. Armachins. Hogges

To without tailes as bigge as ours; their Birds are Parrais, Parraketos, blacke Fowles as bigge as He teachth Doues, and Offriches as high as a man. After I had lived about halfe a yeare among frithem; and them to make learned their language, the King requested me to goe to the warres with him against his ene- Chibs. mies the Tapmeer. which I granted, but before we fet out, I shewed them a way for making of certaine Targets of the barke of a Tree some three quarters of a yeard long for defence against Arrowes, whereof we made fome hundred; and withall I wished them to make some two hundred of Clubs. Which being done we marched forward forbe 700. in number, which by mine aduice were all marked with a red kinde of Balfome from the knee downeward youn one legge to be known from our enemies (by the way it is to be noted that there are three forts of Ballamum in that Countrie, to wit, White, Red and Blacke very odoriferous and excellent good for a 20 greene wound, and the White I efferme to be beit.) In three dayes march we came to another Towne built foure square, as before I have declared, but much leffer; we set voor the Towne ... about foure of the clocke in the morning, the enemy standing youn defence of their Astowes. were much deceived by reason of our Targets, which being reconded by our Clubbes, wee immediately knocked downe to the number of two hundred, the reft, except fome twenty prifoners escaped into the woods. Here the King staied one day, and caused many of thir carkales to Man earling. be broyled upon the coales and eaten. The chiefest riches which we found here was their drinke which they yied to make themselues drunks withall; their Cotten Beddes and their Tobacco. Spoiles As for Gold and Silver they neither iceke, nor make any accompt thereof. This is to be noted. that how many men there Sauages doe kill, to many holes they will have in their vifage, be-

30 ginning first in their nether lippe, then in their cheekes, thirdly in both their eye-browes, Notes of genand laftly in their eares. Those twenty priteners which we brought home, were afterward killed rofted and eaten.

While I remay ned here among it these people, certayn Portugals accompanied with certayn Negres and Brafilians, came within some ten leagues of our town, to fee whether they could surprise any of our Sauages, and to harken what was become of me, for that they had heard by this time that some or Sir Francie Drakes company were east ashouse amongst the Sauage people, but there comming was not fo fecret, but that two of the Portugals and certayne Negros were taken, and Portugals es. after their confession , of the intent of their comming thither, they were brained with clubs, ten. broyled and eaten. These things thus passing, I became futor to the King to give mee leave to deao part his Countrey, and to goe to lome River of Brafill not planted by the Portugals , to fee if I could tpy out any English or French thip to paffe me into my Countrey, which hee in the end fauourably granted; and fent foure of his people with me to furnish me with victuals, which they His departure, did very plentifully of Birds, Fish, and Roots, for the space of nine or ten weeks, all which time they did accompany me, and I defiring to goe toward the Line, they brought me into the towne of Babia, Detodos los Sanches.

But about foure or fine miles before we came to the towne, I yeelded my felfe to a Portugal. He veeldeth called Michael Ionas, declaring vnto him that I was an Englishman, and enquired whether there himselse to a were any Englishmen dwelling in the towne, hee told me that there was one Antonio de Paua Portugali. in the towne which could speake good English, and was a louer of our Nation, and brought mee directly vnto his house. This Antonio de Pana, pittying my case, and adulting mee not to bee knowne, that I vaderstood the Portugall Tongue, brought mee to the Gouernour, whose name was Diego Vas, this Gouernour told me by Antonio de Pana , which became my interpreter, that feeing I was found in the Inland of their Countrey Westward, being a strange, contrary to their Lawer, he could doe no leffe then commit me to Prifon, and fend me into Portugall to be committed to the Gallies for tearme of life, to this I answered by the aduice of my good friend Antonio de Pana, that I came not willingly into those Dominions, but beeing by calualtie once come there, I was not taken Prifoner, but fought them out and came and yeekled my felfe into their hands, laying downe my weapons at one of his Nations feet.

Neuertheleife he fent me to Priion, whereby the meanes of Antonio de Pana, and other of His impulen-60 his friends, I was sufficiently relieued, and within one fortnight after brought againe publikely ment to the barre in the Towne-house to mine answere. There I answered the second time by Antonio de Pana, my Interpreter, that I thought it sufficient, that when I might have kept our, yet of mine owne free will I had made a long journey, with great hazard of my life through the Countries of Sauages, being Man-eaters, which favoured me to feeke the Porsugall Christians out, and Fffff 3

Deliuerance.

peaceably to put my felfe into their hands. Hereupon the Gouernor and his affiftants confulted and concluded together that I should be committed to the house of Antonio de Parme, & there remaine vntill they might write into Portugall to know the Kings pleafure concerning me. Within one years they received answer from Lisbon concerning me, that I should be forth comming. and that hereafter the King would fend further order for my transporting into Portugall. But abone two yeares passed before this order came : In which meane space, first I spent part of my His employtime in going into the fields as overfeer of my friends Negros and Savages in their planting and dreffing of their Sugar Canes, and in planting of Gingers, which grow there exceeding well, but is a forbidden trade to be transported out for hindering of other places and in cutting downe of Brafil-wood, and in bringing it downe by Rivers vpon rafts vnto the Port where the Ships doe lade it, and in feeing them gather their Cotten wooll, and picking the feedes out of it, and packing the same, and in gathering of the long Pepper both white and red. After I had fpent, some yeare and an halfe in this butinesse, my friend Antonio de Parne haning a small Barke of his owne, which he employed in carrying of wares from Port to Port, and for bringing of Sugars to places where Ships should lade, yied me, knowing I had bin brought His coast vove wp to the Sea, in these his businesses. Our first Voyage was to Ilbeos, where we left some wares, ages to libeos. and flaied there some moneth : then we went to Puerso Seguro, and there tooke in some Sugars Puerto Seguro. for Linnen Cloath, Bayes, Wine and Oyle. Then returning home, shortly after we were set Spirito Santa. forth againe in the same Barke to Spirito Sancto, and Samt Vincent, and the River Ienero, where discharging our wares to certaine Factors, and receiving Sugars and Cotten Wooll aboord, we re- 20 R.Lenge. Damae Leage an English Sure turned lafely home. In may first Voyage one Master Danid Leake an English Surgeon, lost there out of an English Shippe in the Countrie, being much fought for because of his skill, had passage with vs from Babia to Spirite Santte. Vpon my returne of my fecond voyage, my good friend Honeft Portugal Antonio de Paque aduertifed me, that a Shippe was shortly to arrive there to carry me into Portweall prisoner telling me that he should not be able any longer to helpe me, and therefore wished me to looke to my felte; but kindely offered me his helpe to conuay me away : whereupon I tooke his Boate and foure of his Negror, pretending to goe on fishing to the Sea; and so of purpose going much to Leeward of the place, I put in to Fernambuc : where the Negroes being examined Fernambuc. whence we came, and for what cause, being vtterly ignorant of mine intent, answered that they were drawn thicker by force of weather, and for their Masters sake were well intreated, and re- 20 turned home with the next winde, my felfe remaining fecretly behinde them.

Hulke with eight English. Marchant

Royall.

Within certains moneths there came thither a Hulke with eight English men and foureteens Portugals, who after some three moneths had laden the same with English and Portugal goods to come for England. The English goods belonged to M. Cordal, M. Beecher, and M. Sadler, worthipfull Merchants of the Citie of London; which had bin left in the Countrie before by the Merchant Royall. Thus passing homeward in our course as far as the Iles of the Acores, within fight of CaptainGeorge the Ile of Pike, being fine Portugall Ships in confort, we met with Cap. Reymond, and Cap. George Drake of Exeter, with two English Ships of warre, who because the peace betweene England and Spaine was broken the yeare before, commanded vs to yeelde our felues to them as their lawfull prifes, which we did al fine accordingly without any relitance. But by contrary weather we 40 were driven into Baltimore in Ireland, and within a while after we arrived in the narrow Seas in His arrivall in the hauen of Chichifter, in the end of November 1586, nine yeares and foureteene dayes after my departure out of England with Sir Francis Drake in his Voyage about the World.

My strange aduentures, and long living among cruell Savages being known to the right hono-The Q. rewar. rable the Lord Charles Howard, Lord high Admirall of England, he certified the Queenes Maiefty thereof with speede, and brought me to her presence at White-ball, where it pleased her to talke with me a long houres space of my transiles and wonderfull escape, and among other things of the manner of M. Domties execution; and afterward befrowed 22 angels on me, willing my Lord to have confideration of me; with many gracious words I was difmiffed; humbly thanking the Almighty for my miraculous preferuation, and fafe returne into my native Countrie.

To the Reader.

Sectionalds. HEre masse those read that dissimal and set all voyage of Master Thomas Candish, in which be contions of the Globe, we have presented thee)thou findest a perpetuall Sunshine, no man ener having in necre so little time compassed that huge circumference, or taken bis choise of so much more wealth then be could bring bome, or remissed his native soile with greater pompe and triumph. The clearest day bath a night , 65 I haue heard nor doth Summer last alway; the Sea bath bis ebbing as well as flowing : the Aire hath calmes and failes at his re. Stormes : the Moone bideth sometimes the Suns lustre from us by her interposition; sometimes is her selfe turne in the ti- meerely darkened by the Earths shadow. And if the Elements Scasons, and Heanens two Eyes be subference of constant inconstancie, immutable mutability; this vanishing centre of dinersified vanitie, which -jerence of comments, which we call Man; shat benein also be should not resemble this samplar of the universe, as becommend a sixthe man to be like that larger Prototype. This we see all, and feele daily in our selnes: this in Master Candish bereis Sir Francis Drakes before, the Seas two darlings, there and thence both lining and dying ; if disposation of the body may be called a death, where the soule arriveth in beauen, the name file the earth, the deedes are presidents to posterate, and England their Countrie bath the glory alone that the bath brought forth two illustrious Captaines and Generals, which have fortunately embraced the round matte of their vafte mother, without mafte of life, reputation, and substance; yea victorious ouer elements and unemies, illustrious in wealth and bonour, they have comne home like the Sunne in a Sum-

10 mers day, seeming greatest neerest bis enening home, the whole skie entertaining and welcoming him in festivall scarlets and displayed colours of triumph. No Nation else hath yeelded one, which in all these respects may be matchable. Magalianes bath left himselfe odom to his Portugals for offered service to the Spaniard, and like Phaeton thinking with Phebus bis Chariot to compaffe the World, perified midway. Midmay was Schoutens Ship and men attached, and be and his had a fertile returne. Cano came or rather flad home like Magaliane's ghoss, hardly and with a few escaping. Noost scarlly escaped taking, drowning, firing, trechery, and hossistic. Spillbergen got blowes in the South Sea where Drake and Candish were made rick, and returned an Indian Merchant. Three Dutch worthies: but all lighted their candles at these two English Torobes. Thus may me magnific Drakes swimming, and can die the memorie of our Candish. But where it is faid ye are Gods, it is added, ye shall dye like men.

20 The Sea is awaning wanering foundation, the winder theatre both for Comedies and Tracedies. You have feene Drake acting both: and in both you here finde Candish. Christ is yesterday, to day, the fame for ever; God is without fladow, (without paffibilitie or possibilitie) of change . a light in whom is no darkeneile : but fublunarie things are like the Moone their neerest Planet, which never viewes the earth two dayes together with one face. God hath made our way to him fo full of chances and changes, that our unstedie, support way on this earth, and calme-forme-voyage in the fe Seas, way make us more to mediate and thirst after that banen of instabilitie, and beauen of eternity. Some passionate freeches of Master Candilh against some primate persons not employed in this action, I have suppressed. Some others I baue let paffe; not that I charge Captaine Davis or others, but that it may appeare what Sup. Tom. 1.1.4. the Generall thought of them. Master Hakluyt hath published Mafter lanes report of this Voyage,

20 which makes more fanourable on Captaine Davis bie side. If hee did deale treacheronsty, treacherie found him out, as in his last Voyage before is declared. If any thinke the Captaine here to conceiue amille I hall be willing to have the most charitable conceit, and therefore remit the Reader to Master Hakluves Relation afore fasd, for his apologie : the fum whereof, and of that Voyage is this.

Mafter lane there relateth, that Aug. 26. 1591. Captaine Candiff fet forth from Plimmouth with three tall Shippes, the blacke Pinnace, and a Barke. Nouemb. 29, they fell with the coaft Cap Dark his of Brafile. They tooke the Towne of Santes, and burnt Saint Vincent. After a cruell florme they voyage into arrived at Port Defire, and after fell with the Magellan firaites. Occasionally (faith Inne) they the South Sea, loft Captaine Candish, and went backe to Port Desire to seeke him: and whiles Captaine Danie Milane, Hab. further intended to feeke out the Generall, a dangerous conspiracie was plotted to murther Test. 40 him by Parker and Smith. There is also a testimoniall subscribed by fortie men. Thence they returned to the Straits, and had fight of the people, which were very flrong, nimble, and naked. Sep. 12, they came in light of the South Sea, and being forced backe, the next day put forth againe, and being eight or ten leagues free from land, were repelled into the Straits. Octob.2. they put into the South Sea againe, and were free of all land, and there in a florme loft the blacke Pinnace. The Shippes company were in despaire of life, but by Gods grace recoursed the Straits, and a third time came to Port Defire; and there loft nine of their men (of which Parker and Smith were two) being on Land for Wood and Water : they knew not what became of them, but gueffed that the Saluages had denoured them. For the elementh of November, while Sugge Caple most of the men were at the Ile of Pengwins, onely the Captaine and Master with fixe others balswith dogs 50 left in the Shippe, there came a great multitude of Sauages to the Shippe (there on ground on the faces or 12312

04Ze) throwing dust in the ayre, leaping and running like bruite Beasts, having vizors on their oaze) throwing until the same systems of faces like Dogges faces indeede. We feared they would fet Dreams omie our Shippes on fire, for they would fuddenly make fire, whereat wee maruelled, fetting the pous bulhes on fire, but scared with Peeces they fled. Here they found much Scuruie-graffe which re- Men loft or couered them; and dried 20000. Pengwins, making some falt by laying the falt water on rockes taken as Kuiin holes. The fixt of February, many reported to each other their dreames of killing, and the like, set faith. and that day they loft 13. men at Placentia. Their dried Pengwins, when they came neerer the Loathforns Sun began to corrupt and there had in them a most learthforns and release to corrupt. Sun began to corrupt, and there bred in them a most loathsome and vgly worme which denoured their vietuals, cloathes, timbers, and all but Iron, not sparing their flesh when they were alleepe, 60 fo that they could fearcely fleepe. Their multitude was fuch that they could not destroy them. Another disease tooke them with swelling in their anckles, two daies after which, shortnesse of breath, then falling into their cods and yards, so tormenting them that divers fell mad and died : on fine onely did the labour of the Ship relye; and June 11.1593 without victuals, failes, or men

God guided them to Beare-hauen in Ireland.

uer, were filke- sect to fuch vicificades ; what is this little molebill of earth, this modell of clay, this moneable circum-

Tragedics.

But let vi beare Master Candish bimselse more then acting his owne part. Discite justitiam moniti. Let not prosperitie poy fon the foule, with the fting of the old Serpent, (welling in pride , ingratitude , The morall of or contempt of God, or Man : let not any magnific bimfelfe in what sever exploits , or truß in vincertaine this and other riches, or promife to himselfe the perpetual smiles of the world; and then it hall seeme no new thing, nor cauje of despaire, of thee bites in flead of hissing. Shee is a Witch which transformeth men into Swine with her Cyrcan cups, if the mindelearne not by Religion to fasten it selfe to God, to account him her with the Vyteralicus; it too mouse warme was of accession as justice as just to you, or accession time our treasures, and the present own byte calling that inheritance of the Saints in light; for which Robert, to be stripped of these Reg is a bieffed purchase; meanwhile knowing that nothing dath, shall, can happen but by his providence, which is a Father, most miss, louing, bountifull, and mercifull, which alreadie bath given vs his Sonne, doth now give bis Spris, and 10 will give us himselfe. No Rocks can wrack that Soule, no stormes oppresse, no Seas can finke, no fortunes can either puffe up with succisse, or linke and make to formbe in it selfe by any pressure to despaire. which bath thus made God her portion: rea the worst of advertises by a boly Antiperitialis doe contrast and more unite the foules forces to greater ails of fortitude in doing and suffering his Will, to whose ours cusht alway to be subordinated. It is the woice of a Pagan, but the vertue of a Christian, Omnia mea mecum porto, and with lob to fay, The Lord hath given, the Lord nath taken, bleffed bee the Name of the Lord. I bane ginen Maiter Kniuets Relation after this of Mafter Candith, as before Peter Cardet after Sir Francis Drake ; that at both ferued under them in their Difcoueries , fo ther may in this our Discouerie of those Discoueries, as Pages to those Worther; the one a Mariner wayting on a Mariner; the other a Gentleman following a Gentleman; both unmatchable by any Englith for the 20 rare admentures, disadmentures, and manifold successions of miseries in those wilde Countries, and with thole wilder Countrimen of Brailia; especially Maiter Kniuet, who between the Brailian and Portu-2211, as betwirt two Mill flones, was almost ground to poulder: whom Colds, Sichnes, Famine, Wandrongs. Culumnies, Defertions, Solstarines, Deferts, Woods, Mountaines, Fennes, Rivers, Seas, Flights, Fights; Cultummers, Legersons, some mers, Legers, wows, excumannes, termes, sames, some, tugors, rugurs, midel Beds, valued Seepass, valueds Feds, valued Seepass, valued Seepass, valued Seepass, valued Seepass, valued Seepass, valued Seepass, participation of the Magellan Straits faceceded by drowning, fautume, foreign between both some God yet delivered, that Straits) bane in various facecellions made the fabrell of their working; whom God yet delivered, that out of his manifold paines, thou maist gather this polic of pleasures, and learne to bee thankefull for thy natine freets at bome, even delights in the multitude of peace.

CHAP. VI.

Master Thomas Candish bis discourse of his fatall and disastrous voyage towards the South Sea, with his many disaduentures in the Magellan Straits and other places; written with his owne hand to Sir TRISTRAM GORGES bis Executor.

2602 Oft louing friend, there is nothing in this world that makes a truer triall of friend- 40 thip, then at death to thew mindfulnesse of loue and friendship, which now you shall make a perfect experience of ; desiring you to hold my love as deare dying poore, as if I had beene most infinitely rich. The successe of this most vnfortunate action, the bitter torments thereof lye fo heavier voon mee, as with much paine am I able to write these few lines, much lesse to make discouerie voto you of all the adverse haps, that have befallen me in this voyage, the least whereof is my death : but because you shall not be ignorant of them, I have appointed some of the most sensiblest men that I left behinde me, to make discourse vnto you of all these accidents. I have made a simple will. wherein I have made you fole, and onely disposer of all such little, as is left, The Roe-bucke left me in the most desolate case that ever man was left in , what is become of 50

her I cannot imagine : if shee bee returned into England, it is a most admirable matter ; but if fine bee at home, or any other of my goods what focuer returne into England, I have made you onely Polleffor of them. And now to come to that villaine that hath beene the death of me, and the decay of this whole action, I meane Danis, whose onely treacherie in running from me, bath beene an veter ruine of all : if any good returne by him, as ever you love mee , make fuch friends as he of all others, may reape least gaine. I affure my telfe you will bee carefull in all friendship. of my last requests. My debts which be owing be not much, &c. But I (most vnfortunate vil-

Captaine Da. Mutinous

laine) was matched with the most abiect minded and mutinous companie, that ever was carried out of England by any man living. For I protest vnto you, that in going to the Streits of Magellan, after I was passed to the Southward of the River of Plate, and had bidden the furie of 63 stormes, which indeed I thinke to bee such as worser might not bee indured : I neuer made my course to the Straits-ward, but I was in continuall danger by my companie, which never ceafed to practife and mutinie against me, And having gotten the appointed place called Port Defire, I met with all my companie, which had beene there twentie dayes before me : and had not my most true friends beene there (whom to name my heart bleedes) I meane my cousin Locke. I had been conftrayned either to have fuffered violence, or some other most disordered misse-hap. I came into this Harbour with my Boat, my ships riding without at Sea: where I found the Roes bucke, the Defire, and the Pinnace, all which complayned vnto mee, that the Tyde ranne to violently, as they were not able to ride, but were driven aground, and wished me in any wife not to come in with my thip, for that if thee should come on ground, thee would be veterly cast away: which I knew to be most true.

And finding it to bee no place for so great a ship without her vtter ruine : I forthwith commanded them, to make themselves readie to depart: they being fresh, and infinitely well relee-10 ued with Seales and Birds, which in that place did abound, and my companie being growne weake and feeble, with continual watching, pumping, and bayling. For I must say truly vnto you, there were neuer men that endured more extremities of the Seas, then my poore companie had done. Such was the furie of the Welt South-west, and South-west windes, as wer were Tempefis. driven from the hoare foure hundred leagues, and constrayned to beate from fiftie degrees to the Southward into fortie to the Northward againe, before wee could recouer neere the shoare. In which time, we had a new thift of tailes cleane blowne away, and our thip in danger to finke in the Sea three times : which with extremitie of mens labour wee recoursed. In this weakneffe, were departed for the Straits, being from that Harbour eight leagues, and in eighteene dayes, The Straits. wee got the Straits : in which time, the men in my ship were growne extreamly weake. The 20 other thips companie were in good cafe, by reason of their late reliefe.

And now we had beene almost foure moneths betweene the coast of Brasile, and the Straights. being in distance not about fixe hundred leagues, which is commonly run in twentie or thirtie dayes; but juch was the aduersenesse of our fortunes, that in comming thither wee spent the Summer, and found in the Straits, the beginning of a most extreame Winter, not durable for Extreme wine Christians. In despight of all stormes and tempests, so long as wee had ground to anchor in and ter. Twices to helpe vs, we beate into the Straits fome fiftie leagues, having (for the most part) the They enter windes contrarie. At length being forced by the extremitte of stormes, and the narrownesse of fittle leagues. the Straits (being not able to turne wind ward no longer) we got into an Harbour, where wee rid from the eighteenth day of Aprill, till the tenth of May : in all which time, wee neuer had other then most furious contrarie windes. And after that the moneth of May was come in. nothing but fuch flights of Snow, and extremities of Froits, as in all the time of my life . I never faw any to be compared with them.

This extremitie caused the weake men (in my ship onely) to decay; for in seuen or eight dayes, in this extremitie there dyed fortie men, and lickened feuentie, to that there were not fif- Death of meritie men that were able to stand upon the hatches. I finding this milerable calamitie to fall upon me, and found that befides the decay of my men, and expense of my victuall, the fnow and frost decayed our failes, and tackle, and the contagiousnesse of the place to bee such , for extremitie of Milerable froft and fnow, as there was no long flaying, without the veter ruine of vs all. What by these diffresses. extremities, and the daily decay of my men, I was conftrayned forthwith to determine fome course, and not (for all this extremitie of weather) to tarrie there any longer.

goe for China, and that there were two wayes thither, the one through the Straits, the other

Vpon this, I affembled my companie together, and thewed them that my intention was to Confultation.

by the way of Caput bone fpei; which courfe shewed them, as was well knowne to mee, as the way I had undertaken. And although that fortune had denyed us this paffage, yet I doubted not. but soone to recouer to this Cape, where I shewed them, I made no doubt, but we should releeve our felues, and performe to their contents our intended voyage, These perswasions with many others, which I vied, feemed to content them for the prefent : but they were no fooner gone from me, but forth with all manner of discontents were varipped amongst themselves, so that to goe that way, they plainly and refolutely determined neuer to give their willing confents. Some of to the belt and honestell fort hearing this their resolution, withed them rather to put vp a supplication to me, then thus privately among themselves to mutinie and murmur, which course might caule an vecer ruine to fall upon them all : affirming, that they knew me to be fo reasonable, as I would not refuse to heare their petition. Vpon this, they framed an humble supplication vnto me (as they termed it) the effect whereof was : That first they protested, to fpend their lines most willingly for my fake, and that their love was such to me, as their chiefest care was for mee, and they oriened very much to see mee put on a resolution, which (as they supposed) would be the end of my life, which was their greatest griefe. And next their owne lines would mimediately follow, both by reason of the length of the course, all which they must performe without reliefe. And further, we had not left foure moneths victuall, which might very well be frent in running a course not halfe so long. But if it would please me to 60 returns agains for the Coast of Bratile (where they knew, my force being together, was able to take any place) there we might both provide victuall to returne againe, and furnish our felnes of all other fuch wants, as these extremities had brought upon us, and at a seasonable time returne againe, and so per-forme our first intention. Now , I knowing their resolution , and finding , that in somethings their reasons were not vaine, began more feriously to looke into all my wants. First, I found my greatest decay to bee in ropes, and failes, wherein (by meanes of fuch mightie extremities) I was veterly vnfurnifha ed, for I loft a new shift of failes comming thither; and further the Defire had bidden the like extremitie, which I furnished : fo as I had left no ftore at all : for no ships carry three new shifts of failes, all which, had beene little enough for me : and last of all, our victuals to be most short. I was to fall into confideration what to doe, I knew well that the windes were fuch and fo con-Winder and tinually against ve, as by no meaner it was possible to passe through : for the violent snowers fnows violent. Were fuch, as in two dayes together we should not be able to see fine houres, the place not a leave ouer in breadth, our ships not to be handled in such extremitie of winde : no, nor Canuas to hold the furie of the winde, our men fo weake, as of one hundred and fiftie men, I had not in my ship 10 fiftie in health. And this thip comming with all her companie, was like three times to have been vpon the shoare, by reason of her vnyarie workings. These causes made mee vtterly despuire of any passage at this season : fo I resoluted the companie I would put out of the Harbour, and beat to get through, fo long as the furious and westerly windes would fuffer vs : but if they came your vs, so as we could not hold it vp, wee would then beare vp againe, and so (according to their requeft) goe for the Coaft of Brafile, which they fo much feemed to defire, and I fo much

Port S. Iulian. Port Defre.

But in truth I was forced to take that way, for that there was no place, where this ship could come into, to tarry out a winter. For Port Saint Iulian is a barred Harbour, ouer which two of my thips would not goe; and Port Defire hath neither wood, nor water : and befides that, the 20 Tyde runneth fo extremely, as it is not possible for anchors to hold, the ground being so bad, But the last cause of all to be considered, was the sicknesse of my men, having no clothes to defend them from the excreme cold. These causes, and their ardent desires of being out of the cold, mooued me to goe backe againe, for that most wicked Coast of Brafile, where I incountred all manner of misfortunes, which as I have vnripped these former, so I will briefly declare the latter.

His returne from the Strait.

We were beaten out of the Strait with a most monstrous storme at West South-west, from which place we continued together, till we came in the latitule of fortie feuen, in which place Dauis in the Defire, and my Pinnaffe lost me in the night, after which time I neuer heard of them. but (as I fince understood) Danis his intention was euer to run away. This is Gods will, that I should put him in trust, that should be the end of my life, and the decay of the whole action. For 30 had not thefe two small ships parted from vs, we would not have miscarried on the coast of Brafile: for the onely decay of vs was, that we could not get into their barred Harbours. What became of these small ships, I am not able to judge, but fure, it is most like, they went backe againe for Port Defire, a place of reliefe, for two fo small ships. For they might lye on ground there without danger, and being so few men, they might releeve themselves with Seales, and Birds. and so take a good time of the yeere, and passe the Streits. The men in these small thins were all luftie, and in health : wherefore the likelier to hold out. The fhort of all is this : Danis his onely intent was vtterly to ouerthrow me, which he hath well performed.

Grieuous

These ships being parted from vs, wee little suspecting any treacherie, the Roe-bucke and my felfe, held our courle for Brafile, and kept togetlier, till wee came in the latitude of thirtie fixe, 40 where we incountred the most grieuous storme, that ever any Christians indured youn the Seas to liue, in which forme we loft companie. Wee with most extreme labour, and great danger, got the Coast of Brafile, where we were fifteene dayes, and neuer heard of the Roe-bucke. Wee Saint Vincent, came to an anchor in the Bay of Saint Vincent, and being at an anchor there, the Gentlemen defired mee to give them leave to goe shoare, to some of the Portugals Farme-houses, to get some fresh victuals, which I granted : willing them to make present returne, knowing very well, the whole Countrie was not able to prejudice them, if they willingly would not indanger themfelues. They went to a Sugar mill hard by mee where I rode (for that was my speciall charge, that they should neuer goe a mile from the ship) where they got some victuall, and came aboard againe very well.

The next day in the morning betimes, an Indian came vnto me with Captaine Barker; which Indian ran away from his Matter, at my last being there : this Sauage knew all the Countrie. He came vnto me, and laid, that beyond a Point, not a Culuering shot off, there was a very rich farme-house, and defired ten or twelue men to goe thither. Captaine Barker being one whom I most trusted in the conduction of men, and (who ever was the most carefull in such matters of feruice) I appointed to goe, and to take some twentie or thirtie men with him; and willed him (as he had any respect or regard of my commandement) not to stay, but to come presently away, finding any thing or nothing. He forthwith tooke five and twentie men of the most principall men in the thip, and then your coulin Stafford would by no meanes bee left behinde. They departed by foure of the clocke in the morning, to as I did not fee their companie. But what should 63 I write more then this vinto you? they were all fuch, as neither respected me, nor any thing that I commanded. Away they went, and by one of the clocke, they fent my Boat againe with Ginny wheat, and fixe Hennes, and a small Hogge. I seeing no returne againe of the companie (for they had fent away the Boat onely with men to row her aboard) was very much grieued, and presently returned the Boat againe with message: That I much maruailed they would tarry at a place to long, with fo few men; and further, that it was not a Hogge, and fixe Hennes could releeue vs ; and feeing there was no other reliefe to bee had , I charged them ftraightly to come aboard presently. Thus having dispatched away my Boat for them, I still expected their present comming aboard : all that night, I heard nothing of them, the next morning I shot Ordnance, vet I faw no Boat come. Then I waighed anchor, and made aboard into the Bay, yet for all this. I heard nothing of them : then I doubted with my felfe very greatly , knowing there were no meanes left to make any manifester signes to them to hasten away. All that day I heard nothing of them , in the evening I fet failes againe, and ran into the shoare : all that night I heard no

The next morning, I faw an Indian come downe to the Sea-fide, and weaved vnto the fhin : we being desirous to heare some newes, caused a raft to be made, for Boat wee had none, and sent it ashoare, and fet the Indian aboard. When we saw him, we found him to bee our owne Indian, Captaine Barwhich had escaped away, being foare hurt in three places: who told vs, that all the rest of our terand source men were flaine with three hundred Indians, and eightie Portugals, which (in the evening) fer and twentie ypon them fuddenly. Then I demanded, why they came not aboard? the Indian answered mee. that some were vowilling to come, and the rest, did nothing but eate Hennes and Hogs, which they had there in abundance, and that they minded nothing to come aboard. I leave you to judge, in what griefe I was, to fee five and twentie of my principall men thus bately and wilfully cast 20 away : but I leave you to inquire of others, the practifes of these men, lett in writing vinto you it (hould be thought I did it of malice, which (I proteft) is farre from me, they being now dead, and my felie looking imminently to follow them.

Thus I was left destitute of my principall men, and a Boat, and had I not (by great hap the day before) taken an old Boat from the Portugals. I had beene veterly vidone. This Boat I lent to an Iland fifteene leagues off, to fee if they could heare any newes of the reft of my thips : thee returned within eight dayes, all which time I remayned without a Boat. Thus I was fixe dayes before I heard newes of any of my conforts. The feuenteenth day came in the Roe-bucke, having The Roe-bucke ipent all her Malts, but their Mifon, their Sailes blowne cleane away, and in the most miferable commethin.

case that ever ship was in : all which misse-haps falling vpon me, and then missing my small ships 20 wherein (vpon that Coast) consisted all my strength, having no Pinnaces nor great Boats left to Brassian Coast land my men in, for they were all caft away going to the Strait. I (notwithflanding the want full of flocalds of Boats and Pinnaces) determined rather then not to bee revenged of fo base Dogs, to venture and barres. the ships to goe downe the River afore their Towne, and to have beaten it to the ground, which Mat (and) forthwith I put in execution. And having gotten downe halfe the way, wee found the River so high spirit. narrow by reason of a shoald, as all the companie affirmed plainly, it was both desperate and most dangerous. For the River is all Ofe, and if a ship come aground, it is vnpossible ever to get off, for there riteth not aboue a foot water, and no anchors will hold to hale off any my thips, in fo narrow a place, as we were almost aground in wending.

Seeing this apparant danger, I forthwith bare vp out of the River, where we escaped no small 40 danger to get well out, for we had not little more water then we drew : and if thee had come aground, it had beene vnpoffible euer to have gotten her off. By these meanes of not passing the River, we were constrayned to let our revenge passe: for our Boats were so bad and small, as wee durit put no men in them. Notwithstanding wee landed, and did them much spoile vpon their Farme-houses, and got some quantitie of fresh victuals. This place being not for vs, considering our ships were notable to passe to their Towne; and further our great wants did confiraine vs to feeke some course of reliefe, which being not to bee had there, both for that wee had speyled it a little before, and also for that we could not conveniently come to doe them any prejudice, without most losse to our selves : I determined to part from thence, and to goe to a small Hand some History twentie leagues off, and there to have fitted all my necessaries, and to have cast off the Roe-bucke, for that by no meanes her wants could by mee bee furnished, and so at a seasonable time, to have gone for the Straits of Magellan againe. Which intention (I must confesse) I kept most secret, for feare of some mutinie, but shewed Hispresence. the whole Companie, that I would goe for Saint Helena, where wee should meet with the Carracks : which course I well knew did not much please them; for they defired nothing more then returning home into England, and if I had but named the Straits, they would forthwith have fallen into a most extreme mutinie : for such were the miseries and torments they had indured . as all the best fort had taken an oath upon a Bible, to die rather then euer to yeeld their confents to forting their despairing mindes as well as I might, leeing their greatest griefe was for the wants 60 of the small ships, without which, they all affirmed (and that truly) wee were able todoe nothing. For the Ports where their Townes fland, were all barred Harbours, and that it was not Necessitie e: possible to get any of these ships over them, whereby we could releeve our felues of such wants, finall stops out as we were in. These things being alleaged, I seemed to passe oueras slightly as might be, but yet the second comforted them, that we would prefently feeke some place of reliefe with all speede.

goe backe that way againe. I knowing this, feemed to speake nothing of that course, but com-

Pertural Pilots

There was a Portugall abourd me, who tooks upon him to be a Pilot, who came unto me. and told me voon his life, that he would take voon him to carry both my Shippes ouer the barre at Spiritus Santius, a place indeede of great reliefe, and the onely place in Brafile for victuall, and ali other wants, that we were in I knowing very well, that if I could bring my Shippes within fhor of the Towne, I should land my men, and further, it could not be in them to make refistance. The whole company defired this course, affirming that there was no way left to reliene all our wants but this: and that there they were in hope to finde some Shippes, to repaire the? Roe-bucke againe. I finding their willingnesse, and charging the Portugallypon his life, to tell me truely, whither the Ships might passe ouer the barre without danger; he willed me to take his life, if euer the Shippes came in leffe water then fine fathome, with fuch conftant affirmations Ior as he defired not to live, if he should not performe this. I considering the greatnesse of our wants. and knowing right well, the place to be the onely wished Towne on all the coast to relieue vs. forthwith gaue my content, and thither we went, leaving all other intentions. We anchored before the barre, and lent my Boate to found the barre, and found the deepest water to be but His ignorance, Afteene and seventeene foote (the Portugall himselfe going with them, all over the bar) the most water to be but three fathome. They comming aboord, brought me word of the truth, I called for the Fortugall, and demanded of him why he had so lied vnto me ? who aftirmed that he neuer founded the barre before, and that he had brought in Ships of 100, tuns, and that he made accompathere had not bin lefte water then five jathome. This mif-hap was no small amazement to me, and all the company, considering our distresse for water and other necessaries, and that the roade was foill, as we were scantable to ride there. so as we could neither take in water, nor doe any other buinnesse. In this meane time while wee were forming of these matters, the Ros-bucker Boate rowing further into the Baye, faw where three Shippes were at an anker, not farre from the Towne, and came aboord, and brought mee word thereof : at which newes the Companie feemed much to rejoyce, and all affirmed that they would goe with our Boates, and bring them out of the harbour. I shewed them how much the taking of them imported vs, and told them, that although the day was fpent, yet I thought the night not to be altogether inconvenient, if they would put on mindes to performe it. Refolutely my reasons were these: first they were not so sufficiently provided to defend 30 notfollowed. the mielues at that inflant, as they would be in the morning; and further I told them, that if they were not able to defend them, they would take the principall and best things out of them, being so neere the shoare, and that if they had wherewith to defend themselues, it would be leffe offensiue to vs in the night, then in the day, and we in greatest securitie, and more offensiue to the enemy, especially this exploit being to be done on the water, not landing.

These perswassons seemed a little to moue them, for they all desired to stay sull morning: yet

fome of them prepared themselves. Comming amongst them, I found them, all, or for the most part veterly vnwilling to goe that night : vpon which occasion (I confesse) I was much moued. and gave them some bitter words, and shewed them our case was not to make detractions, but to take that opportunitie which was offered vs, and not to feare a night more then a day, and told them plainely, that in refusing of this, I could flay there no longer, for ouer the barre we 40 could not goe, and the roade fo dangerous, as never Shippes rid in a worte. And further, we law all the Countrey to be fired round about, and that to land we could not without otter fooile to Their yncafe-Their volcalo-nable cagernes Shippes, fo as I intended to depart. The next morning, there was almost an vorcare amonest them, the most of them swearing that if I would not give them leave, they would take the Boats and bring away those Shippes of themselves. I comming among them, beganne to reprehend them for their raffinesse, and told them that now all opportunity was past, and that they must be contented, for goe they should not. They much importuned me, and some of the chiefest of them defired me with teares in their eyes, that they might goe, affirming, that there was no danger to be feared at all; for if they were not able to take them, they would returne againe, 50 and that to depart without attempting to doe this, was a thing that most greatly grie-

I knowing right well, that if they landed not they could receive no prejudice : for if their Ships had beene able to withflood them, it was in their power to goe from them, being flarke calme. And further I knew that no Shippes vie Brafile that be able to defend themseives from a Cock-boate : much leffe that they should be of force to offend those Boates, wherein there were fo many Musketteeres as could fit one by another. I feeing their great importunitie, was contented to give them leave to goe : and this was my charge to Captaine Morgaine (to whom at that prejent I left my directions) that first, vpon paine of his life, he should not land at all what opportunitie soeuer was offered; and that if he saw any danger in comming to these Shippes, 60 ons to Captain he should attempt no further, but returne aboord againe, but contrariwise, if he saw that the place was such, as we might land without too much disaduantage, and if we might land on plain ground, free from woods or balles, hard before the Towne, that then he would prefently repaire voto me againe, and I, and fo many as these bad Boates would carrie, would presently land up-

Thus my Boxtes departed from me, having some eightie men, as well furnished with weapons, as it is possible to fort such a number withall. Now you shall vinderstand, that in the night the Portugals had hailed the Shippes hard afore the Towne : the River where the Towne frood was not about a Bird-bolt-fhot ouer, and halfe a mile from the Towne where the Shippes rode: The place dethe night wee came in, they had new cast up two small trenches, on each side the River one, serious, where they had planted some two small bases a peece upon an hill. Right over them were thicke woods and great rockes, fo that if any were puffelled of them, they might but tumble from slowne, and beate away 1000 men. The trench on the Wester-side of the River shot at our Boats. once or twice; voon that they began to thinke with themselves what to doe, Captaine Mircan affirming the place to be verie narrow, and that they could not well paffe it without danger, To confidering the many men in their Boats, and also the charge which I had given, was such, if they faw any danger, they should presently repaire aboord, and certifie me, and not to make any further till they had understood my further determination: This Master Morgan made knowing Mid Mutiners amonest them, whereupon some of the harebraine Sailers began to sweare, that they never thought other, but that he was a coward, and now he will shew it, that durit not land voon a bable ditch, as they tearmed it. Vpon this, the gentleman was very much moved, and answefwered them, that they should finde him to be none such as they accounted him, and that, come what could happen him, he would land.

Voon this in they put the Boats betweene the two fconfes (that on the Eafter-fide they had They land not feene) and the Boats being hard vpon it, were fhot at, and in the biggeft Boat they hard two. 20 and killed one with that fhot. Vpon this, they determined, that the smallest Boate with their company should land on the Wester-side, and the other to land on the Easter-side. The small Boate landed first, and that place having but few in it, they being not able to defend themselves. ranne away, fo that our men entred peaceably without hurt of any. The other Boate drawing much water, was aground before they came neere the shoare, so as they that landed, were fame to wade about knee high in water. Now the place, or Sconfe, was in height some ten soote, made of frome (Captaine Morgan more resolutely then discreetely) scaled the wall, and ten more with him, which went out of the Boate together. Then the Indians and Portugals the wed themselves, Carraine More and with great stones from ouer the trench, killed Morgan and fine more, and the rest of them be- gan slaine. ing fore hurt, retired to the Boate, which by this time was fo filled with Indian arrowes, as of at.

men being in the Boate, there escaped not eight of them valuer, some having three arrowes flick- Many others ing in them, tome two, and there was none which escaped without wound. The furie of those are flaine or hunte rowes comming to thicke, and fo many of them being spoiled, they put the Boat from the shoare. leaving the reft on land, a spoile for the Indians.

By this time, there came two Boates full of lustie Portugals, and some Spaniards, who knowing the sconse on the Wester-side to be weakely manned, came with their Boates to the forts fide : one of them ran ashoare which was fullest of men, then our men let flye their Muskets at them, and spoiled and killed all that were in that Boate. The others, seeing their fellowes speede foill, rowed backe againe, with all their force, and got the Town againe. In this meane time the 40 great Boat being gotten of, they called to them in the Sconfe, and willed them to forfake the Fort, and to come and helpe them ; for they told them that all their men were spoiled & slaine. V pon this they strait came out of the Sconse againe, and retired to their Boat; who rushing in all together into the Boat, she came on ground, so that off they could not get her, but some must goe out of her againe: tenne of the luftieft men went out, and by that time the Indians were come Ten brane downe into the Fort againe, and shot at our men. They which were a land (perceiving the armenlos, rowes flye among them) ranne againe to the Forts side, and shot in at the lower hold with their Muskers. By this, the Boat was got of, and one that was the Mafter of the Roe-bucke(a most cow- Cowardly ardly villaine that euer was borne of a woman) caused them in the Boat to rowe away, and so basenessa left those braue men a spoile for the Portugals, yet they waded up to the necks in the water to 50 them, but those merculeffe villaines in the Boate, would have no pitty on them. Their excuse was. that the Boat was so full of water, that had they come in, she would have sunke with all them in her; thus vilely were those poore men lost. By this time, they which were landed on the other fide (the great Boate not being able to rowe neere the shoare to relieue them) were killed with stones by the Indians, being thus wilfully and vadiscreetely spoiled, which you may well perceive, if you looke into their landing, especially in such a place, as they could not escape killing with Hones. They returned abourd againe, having loft five and twenty men, whereof tenne of them were left ashoare, in such fort 15.men flaine, as I have shewed you. When the Boates came to the Shippesside, there were not eight men others wonnin the biggeit Boate, which were not most grieuously wounded. I demanded of them the ded, 60 cause of their mishappes, and how they durift land, considering my strait commandement to the contrarie; they answered mee, that there was no fault in Captaine Morgan, but the greatest occasion of all this spoile to them, happened vpon a controuersie betweene the Captaine and those Souldiers that landed with him, and were killed at the Fort, for their ill ip eches and viging of Captaine Morgan, was the cause that hee landed contrary to my com-

1108 Candishes misery by the losse of the Roe-bucke. Manifold wants. LIB.VI.

mandement, and voon such a place, as they all confessed fortie men were sufficient to spoile

I leave it to your felfe to judge, what a fight it was to mee, to fee fo many of my best men. thus wilfully spoiled, having not left in my Shippe fittie found men: fo as wee were no more then able to wave our Ankers, which (the next morning) wee did, and findius it calme wee were conftrained to come to an Anker againe; for my onely intention was, to get out of that bad roade, and to put of into the Sea, and there to determine what to doe, for that place was not for vs to tarrie in, for the roade was fo bad, as wee were not able to helpe our felues with a Boates loading of fresh water, whereof wee stood in no small want. In this dayes stay in the Roade, I comforted these distressed poore men, what I to might, and found most of their defires, to returne againe into England. Het them understand. how wee would gor backe againe to the lland of Saint Sebaftian, and there wee would water. and doe our other necessary bulinesses, and there make a resolute determination of the rest of our proceedings. This course seemed to like them all very well, but the companie in the Ree-bucke, instantly defired nothing more, then to returne home, all affirming, that it was pittie fuch a Shippe thould be call of. But in truth, it was not of any care of the Shippe, but onely of a most cowardly minde of the Master, and the chiefest of the company to re-

Now you shill understand that the Captaine was verie ficke, and fince the time that the Ship loft her Maits, the became the most labourtome Ship that ever did swimme on the Sea, so as he 20 was not able to indure in her, and at that prefent he lay aboord my Shippe, so as there was none of any truft, or accompt left in her. But fuch was the case of that Shippe (being without failes, maffs or any manner of tackle) as in the fenfe & judgement of any man living, there did not live that desperate minded man in the world, which (in that case she was then in) would have ventured to have (ailed in her halfe so farre as England: and if she doe returne, it is (in my opinion) the most admirable returne that ever Ship made, being so farre of, and in her case. These vullaines haung left in my Ship, all their hurt men, and haung aboord of them both my Surgeans. I. hauing not one in mine owne Shippe, which knew how to lay a plafter to a wound, much leffe to cure any by falues : and further, having in their Shippe three times the proportion of my victuall (wherein confifted the onely reliefe and comfort of all my company) these most 30 hard harted villaines, determined that night amongst themselves, to loose mee at their Dammable de- next convenient time they could espie, and in this case to goe for England, leaving vs in the greatest distresse that euer one Christian left another in ; for wee had all her hurt men in vs. and we had taken out of her the best part of her men not long before : fo as in running from vs, they not onely carried away our Surgeans, and all their prouision, but also our victuall, wherein confiited all our reliefe and comfort : having in them at their departure but fix and fortie men, carrying away with them the proportion for fix moneths victuall of one hundred and twenty men at large.

I leave you to consider of this part of theirs, and the miserable case I was left in, with so many hurt men, so little victuall, and my Boate being so bad, as fixe or seuen men continually bailing 40 water, were feant able to keepe her from finking; and mend her we could not by any meanes, before we recoursed some shoare: for had not these villaines in the Roe-backe (that night wee rode in this Baye) fuffered their Boate to run ashoare with Irih men (which went to betray vs) Inad raken her Boate, and funke this great naughtie Boate. Such was the greatnesse of our mishaps, as we were not left with the comfort and hope of a Boate to relieue our felues withall; we The Ree buthe not having left in the Ship scarfe three tuns of water for 140, men, the most part whereof being forfakethhim, hurt and ficke We putting out of the road the next day, they, the fame night in this case left vs. and (as I suppose) they could not accompt otherwise, then that wee should neuer agains be

The next morning looking for the Roe-bucke, we could no where be seene. I leave to you to co iudge in what plight my companie was, being now destitute of Surgeans, victuals, and all other reliefe : which in truth was fo great a discomfore vinto them, as they held themselves dead men, as well whole as hurt. The scantnesse of water made vs that we could not seeke after them, but He commeth - were inforced to feeke to this lland, with all possible speede, having to beate backe againe thither to S. Sebaflians. two hundred leagues: which place, God suffered vs to get with our last caske water, the poore men being most extreamly pinched for want thereof. Where (after we had a little refreshed our felues) we prefently mended our Boat in fuch fort, as with great labour and danger, we brought fortie tunnes of water aboord. And in the meane time fearthing our flore of ropes, tackle, and failes, we found our felues vtterly vnfurnished both of ropesand failes: which accident pleased the company not a little, for by their wants, they affuredly accounted to goe home. Then making 60 a furnity of the victuall, we found to be remaining in the Shippe (according to the rate we then lived at) foureteene weekes victuals large.

Having rigged our Shippes in fuch fort, as our small store would furnish vs, which was most meanely, for we had but foure failes (our sprite-faile, and foretoppe-faile being wanting) which two the Ship (most principally loueth) and those which we had (except her maine faile) were more then halte worne. In this poore case being furnished, and our water taken in, my company knowing my determination (which was to haile my Boate a ground, and build her a new) they forthwith openly began to mut mare, and mutinie : affirming plainely, that I neede not Murinous mend the Boate, for they would goe home, and then, there should be no vie of her. I, hearing mamuring, thele foeeches, thought it was no w time to looke among it them, calling them together, and told them, that although we had many milhaps fallen upon us, yet (I hoped) that their mindes would not in fuch fort be onercome with any of the fe misfortunes, that they would goe about to undertake any base, or difordered courfe; but that they would cheerefully goe forward, to attempt either to make themselmet fa- His persuali-

Candishes speech neglected by his mutinous company, Irishman, 1100 CHAP. 6.

10 mm, in refolutely dirag, or in living, to performe that, which would be to their perpetuall reputation: ons. And the more we attempted, being in fo weake a safe, the more (if we performed) would be to our bonours. But contrarinife, if we died in attempting we did but that which we same for which was either to performe or die.

And then I shewed them my determination, to goe againe for the Straits of Macellanic. which words were no looner vetered, but forthwith they all with one content affirmed planty. they would never goe that way againe; and that they would rather flay afhoare in that defare Hand, then in such case to goe for the Straits. I sought by peaceable meanes to perswade them. the wing them that in going that way, we fould relieve our victuals, by falling of Seales, and Birds : which (ther did well know) we might doe in greater quantitie, then our Ship could carry. And further, 20 if we got through the Stratt (which we might now easily performe, considering we had the chiefest part of Summer before us) we could not but make a most rich Voyage, and also meete againe with the two small Ships which were gone from vs : and that it was but fix hundred leagues thither; and to goe into England they had two thousand. And further that they should be most infamous to the world, that being within fix hundred leagues of the place, which we fo much defired, to returne home againe fo farre, being most infamous and bee gerly. Thele periwasions tooke no place with them, but most boldly they all affirmed, that they had fworne, they would never goe againe to the Straits; neither by no meanes

And one of the chiefest of their faction, most proudly and stubbornely vetered these words to my face, in prefence of all the reft: which I feeing, and finding mine owne faction to be to weake

20 (for there were not any that fauoured my part, but my poore coulen Locke, and the Mailer of the nifed. Ship) I tooke this bold companion by the bosome, and with mine owne hands put a rope about his necke, meaning resolutely to strangle him, for weapon about me I had none. His companions feeing one of their chiefe champion, in this cafe, & perceiuing me to goe roundly to worke with him, they all came to the Mafter, and defined him to speake; affirming they would be ready to take any course that I should thinke good of. I, hearing this, stayed my selfe, and let the fellow goe; after which time, I found them fomething conformable, at least in speeches, though among themselves they still murmured at my intentions. Thus having somthing pacified them, and perfwaded them, that by no meanes I would take no other course, then to go for the Straits, I tooke ashoare with me thirtie Soldiers, and my Carpenters, carrying sourceene dayes victuall with me 40 for them. Thus going alhoure, I hailed vp my Boate, to new build her in such fort, as she might bee able to abide the Seas , leaving aboord all my failers, and the reit, to rigge the Ship, and mend failes, and to doe other bufineffe.

And now to let you know, in what case I lay ashoare among these base men, you shall ynderfland, that of these thirtie there were virie few of them, which had not rather have gone to the Portugals, then to have remained with me; for there were some, which at my being ashoare, were making rafts to goe ouer to the maine, which was not a mile ouer, where the Portugals had continuall watch of vs, looking but for a fit opportunity to let vpon vs : being in this case, al waies expecting the comming of the Portugals, against whom I could have made no relistance, and further the trecherie of some of my companie, which defired nothing more, then to steale ouer, so to 50 betray me, I proteft, I lived hourly, as he that still expecteth death. In this case I mede all the speed I could to make an end of my Boate, that we might be able to rowe her aboord, which in twelve daies we mainely finished, which being done, I came aboord, and found all my bufinesse in good forwardnesse : so I determined with all possible speede to dispatch, and be gone for the Straits of

But ere euer we could get in all our water, and timber-wood, and other necessaries, an Irish man An Irish rascall (a noble villaine) having made a raft, got over to the maine, and told the Portugals which and trainers were there (watching nothing but an opportunitie) that if they would goe over in the night, his fellowes, they should finde most of our men ashoare, without weapon, and that they might doe with them what they would: voon this, the next night, they came ouer, and having taken some 60 of our men, they brought them where the reft lay, which they most cruelly killed, being ficke men , not able to stirre to helpe themselues. Those which were ashoare, more then the ficke men, had stolne out of the Shippe, for it was all my care to keepe them aboord, knowing well, that the Portugals fought to spoile vs, the place being so fit for them, all overgrowne with woods and bulhes, as their Indians might goe and spoile vs with their arrowes at their pleasures.

Their mani-

and we not be able to hart one of them. In the morning perceiving their comming, I fent my Boate alhoare, and rescued all my healthfull men, but five, which they found out in the night, without weapons to defend them : whereof (befides the loffe of our men) we having but foure failes, left one ashoare, which was no small mishap among the rest.

1200

The Portugals went prefently agains over to the maine, but left their Indians to keepe in the bushes. About the watering place, our men going alhoate, were shot at, and hure, and could Cap, Candilles by no meanes come to hurt them againe, by reason of the wood, and bushes. Wherefore finding my men hurt, and that by no meanes I could doe any thing there, without more lose of men (whereof I had no neede) for I had not about ninetic men left, or little ouer, notwith francing my wants of wood and water, and my Boate (not being fufficiently mended) was in no poffibilitie 10 to doe me pleafure, in this case was I forced to depart; fortune neuer ceasing to lay her greatest

> But now I am growne so weake and faint, as I am scarce able to hold the penne in my hand : wherefore I must leave you to inquire of the rest of our most vulnappy proceedings, but know this, that (for the Straits) I could by no meanes, get my company to give their confents to goe. For after this misfortune, and the want of our failes (which was a chiefe matter they alleadeed) and to tell you truth, all the men left in the Shippe, were no more then able to weigh our ankers. But in truth I delired nothing more, then to attempt that course, rather desiring to dye in going forward, then basely in returning backe againe; but God would not suffer me to dye so happy a man, although I fought all the wayes I could, still to attempt to performe fomewhat. For, after 20 that by no meanes I faw they could be brought to goe for the Straits, having fo many reasonable reasons to alleadge against me, as they had . fish, having but three failes, and the place subject to fuch furious flormes, and the loffe of one of thefe was death; and further, our Boate was not fufficiently repaired, to abide the Seas ; and laft of all, the fewnesse, and feeblenesse of our company (wherein we had not left thirty failers) these causes being alleadged against me, I could not well antiwere : but refolued them plainely, that to England I would neuer give my confent to goe. and that (if they would not take such courses as I intended) I was then determined, that Shippe and all should linke in the Seas together, Vpon this, they began to be more tracable, and then I shewed them, that I would beate for Saint Hellena, and there, either to make our selues happy, by mending, or ending. This course(in truth)pleased none of them, and yet seeing my determinati- 30 on, and supposing it would be more danger to refish me, then in seeming to be willing, they were at quiet, vntill I had beaten from 29, degrees, to the Southward of the Lauter to 20. At which time finding that I was too far Northerly, to have good winde I called them to tacke about the Shippe to the Southward againe. They all plainely made answere, they would not, and that they had rather due there, then be started in feeking an Iland, which (they thought) that way we should never get. What meanes I vied to stand againe to the Southward, I leave you to inquire of themselves : but from the latitude of 20. I beate backe againe into 28. with fuch contrary windes, as (I suppose) neuer man was troubled with the like, folong a time together. Being in this latitude, I found the winde fanourable, and then I flood agains to the Northward, willing the Mafter & his com- 40 pany to faile East North-east, and they in the night (I being a steepe) steered North-east, and meere Northerly. Notwithstanding all this most vile viage, we got within two leagues of the Iland, and had the winde fauoured vs fo, as that we might have stemmed from 18. degrees to 16. Sailors dilobe- East North-east, we had found the lland : but it was not Gods will so great a bleffing should befall me. Being now in the latitude of the Bland, almost eighteene leagues to the Westward of it, the winde being continually at East South-east, the most contrary winde that could blow : I prefently made a furuary of my victuall, and found, that according to that proportion (which we then lived at) there was not left in the Ship eight weekes victuall; which being fo farre from re-

liefe, was (as I suppose) as small a portion, as ever men were at in the Seas.

Scarfity of victuall.

His purpole

for.S. Helena,

Being to vocertaine of reliefe, I demanded of them, whether they would venture (like good 50 minded men) to beate to the Southward againe, to get this Iland, where we should not onely relieue our felues, but also to be in full affurance, either to finke, or take a Carracke: and that by this meanes, we would have a fufficient revenge of the Portugals, for all their villanies done vnto vs: or that they would pinch, and bate halfe the allowance they had before, and so to poe for England. They all answered me, they would pinch to death, rather then goe to the Southward againe. I knowing their dispositions, and having lived among them in such continuall torment, and disquietnesse; and now to tell you of my greatest griefe, which was the sicknesse of my deare kinfman lohn Locke, who by this time was growne in great weakeneffe, by reason whereof, hee desired rather quietnesse, and contenteduesse in our course, then fuch continuall disquietnesse, which neuer ceased mee. And now by this, what with 60 griefe for him, and the continual trouble I indured among fuch hel-hounds, my Spirits were cleane fpent; withing my felfe vpon any defart place in the world, there to dye, rather then thus bafely to returne home againe : which courfe, I had put in execution, had I found an Iland. which the Cardes make to be in 8.degrees to the Southward of the line. I fweare to you, I fought

CHAP.7. S.I. Mafter Th, Candishes last Will. M. Knivets Dovage with bim. 1201

it with all diligence, meaning (if I had found it) to have there ended my unfortunate life. But God fuffered not fuch happinesse to light vpon me, for I could by no meanes finde it. fo as I was forced to goe towards England: and having gotten eight degrees by North the Line . I loft my most dearest cousin.

And now consider, whether a heart made of flesh, be able to indure so many missortunes, all death.

falling your me without intermission. I thanke my God, that in ending of me, he hath pleased to rid me of all further trouble and mif-haps. And now to returne to our private matters, I have made my Will, wherein I have given speciall charge, that all goods (what source belong wnto me) Cap. candified be delivered into your hands. For Gods fake, refuse not to doe this last request for mee, I owe Will. 10 little, that I know of, and therefore it will be the leffe trouble : but if there be any debt, that (of truth) is owing by mee, for Gods fake, fee it paid. I have left a space in the Will for another name, and (if you thinke it good) I pray take in my Coulin Henrie Sackeford, hee will eafe you much in many bufineffes. There is a Bill of Adventure to my Coufin Richard Locke (if it happen the other thip returns home with any thing, as it is not impossible) I pray remember him, for he hath nothing to thew for it. And likewife Mafter Heren the Cultomer of Hampton, which is 50. pounds, and one Elies of Rescliffe by London, which is 50. pounds more, the reif haue all Bills of adventure, but the ruine in the victuall, onely two excepted, which I haue written ynto you. I haue giuen Sir George Carr the Delire, if euer thee returne, for I alwayes promised him her, if thee returned, and a little part of her getting, if any such thing happen, I 20 pray you fee it performed,

To vie complements of love (now at my last breath) were frivolous, but know : that I left none in England, whom I loued halfe so well as your selfe: which you, in such fore deserved as my hands, as I can by no meanes require. I have left all (that little remayning) voto you, not to be accomptable for any thing. That which you will (if you finde any ouerplus of remayned, your felfe specially being satisfied to your owne desire) give vnto my fifter Anne Candille. I have written to no man liuing but your felfe, leaving all friends and kinfmen, onely reputing you as Miftris Anni dearest. Commend me to both your brethren, being glad, that your brother Edward escaped so cardife. vnfortunate a voyage. I pray give this Copie of my vnhappy proceedings in this Action, to none, but onely to Sir George Coy, and tell him, that if I had shought, the letter of a dead man 30 would have beene acceptable, I would have written vnto him. I have taken order with the Mafler of my ship, to see his peeces of Ordnance deliuered vnto him, for hee knoweth them. And if the Roe-bucke bee not returned, then, I have appointed him to deliger him two braffe peeces, out of this ship, which I pray see performed. I have now no more to say but take this last farewell. That you have lost the louingest friend, that was lost by any. Commend mee to your wife, no more, but as you love God, doe not refuie to vndertake this last request of mine. I pray forget not Mafter Carey of Cockmoton, gratifie him with fome thing : for hee vied mee kindly at my departure. Beare with this icribling : for I proteft, I am scant able to hold a pen in my hand.

CHAP. VIL

The admirable adventures and strange fortunes of Master ANTONIE
KNIVET, Which went with Master THOMAS CAM-DISH in bis second Doyage to the South Sea. 1591.

What befell in their voyage to the Straits, and after, till he was taken by the Portugals.

E departed from Planmouth with fine faile of thips, determining to goe for the South Sea (the names of our Ships were thefe) the Gallion Leicester, which was our Admirall; the Roe-bucke, Vice-admirall; the Defire, the Dame, and the Blacke Pinnasse. Sixe or seven dayes after that wee were departed from the Coaft of England, we met with nineteene faile of Flemmings in the night. Not regarding what they were, our Vice-admirall tooke one of them, and all the rest escaped. In Flemmift prize the morning the Master of our Flemmilb prize was brought before the Generall, and of him wee faished with had newes of a fleet of fhips, that was departed out of Liftone for Brafile , the which newes we Englishment

Vider the Equinoctiall line, we lay fewer and twentie dayes driving too and fro without puffe

Lepanders.

of winde : In which time most of our men fell ficke of the Scurule by reason of the extreme heat of the Sonne, and the vapours of the night; not withflanding our great danger of ficknesse did not appaule the hardnesse of our hearts, being in as great extremitie as ouer men were, it happened that two men of lapan which the Generall had taken in his first voyage (bearing engie to a poore Poringall that went with vs from Planmouth; accused him to the Generall) having before confined his death in this fort : The Generall being at dinner , thefe two laporers came to his Cabbin, telling their tale to loud that every one might heare the report (which was thus) that Periocal hane the Portugall of the thip was a Traytor, and that he had often given them counfell to run away wish him at Brafil: moreover (quoth he) if it fo had pleafed God wee had taken the Towne of 20 Santos, as our Generall had pretended, from thence that hee would guide them to the South Sea, where they should be well rewarded for their intelligence; upon the which accusations, the poore Portugall was hanged. And as for his going from Sautos by land through America. to the South Sea, had beene a thing impossible, for the Countrie is all Wildernesse, and full

After we had beene fo long becalmed under the Line, we had a faire North-west winde, and in twentie dayes faile we had fight of Land on the coast of Brasile, but no man knew certainly what part it should be. At length comming neers the shoare, we espied two small ships, the one of them we tooke, the other cleaped; that wee tooke was laden with Blackamores, and some merchandife: they came from Fernambaque, and were determined to saue gone to the River of 20 Plate, By the Pilot of this flip we knew we were at Cape Frio, that is, Cold Cape. This Cape lyeth twelve leagues from the Rouer of Leners, and thirtie leagues from Santos , which was the Towns we meant totake. In this thip we tooke a Friar that hid himselfe in a Chift of meale: the night following by the directions of our new taken Pilot, wee came to a place called Ilha Grande, twelve leagues from Santos , at this place we tooke fue or fixe houles with Poringals and Sauges of the Countrie. Here weehad good flore of Potatoes, and Plantons, divers kindes of good rootes, with lome Hogs and Hennes, which was very good and comfortable for the refreshing of our men. Here we had fuch ditorder amongst our selves, that if the Portugals had beene of any courage, they might have kided many of vs. for our men would fight for their victuals as if they had beene in Christians but lewes, and they that got the beft, would get them into some 40 end from to ill hole, or into the Wilderneffe under some Tree, and there they would remaine as long as they had meat. For mine owne part (there was fuch fharking HI could in that place get neither meat nor mony, and pure hunger compelled me to goe into the Woods, to fee it wee could kill any thing will our occes, or it wooded finde force Porgoes, And is were went, wee encountred with teuen or eighcof our companie, that were tagether, by the cores about a Hogge they had killed, and the lettie was, who facult have the best states were required at that time, when curry one vied their fills, fole widy's cluster, and went a good way into the Wilderness, where we were merry for that right; the next day when the back spains with good fore of Potato rootes;

yong Whelpes for their dinner; wee gining them of our rootes they were contented that wee co In the afternoone we fet fire on a new thip, and burned all the houses, leaving the Merchant and all his Moores alhoare, we departed from thence, and having a faire winde about fixe of the Saint Schaffian, clocke watame to the Hand of San Schaffian, where wer anchored, being fine leagues from Santos. As foone as the thips were in the Highour, every Mafter and Captaine came aboard of the Generall, to know how hee pretended to take the Towne of Santos, and they all refolued that and going into the house where the Generals musicians were, wee found them dressing of eight

our long Boat and our Shallon onely with one hundred men was enough for the taking of it. For the Porgugall Pilot told was that it was of no ftrength. On Christmas-eue about sin a clocke in the night, when the Beats were to goe alhoare there were so many that would have gone, that Varuly demos- wee began to fight and cast one another over-board into the Sea; but as soone as our Generall 69 heard the noise, he commanded every man to come aboard the ship againe. I fearing the General, and being delirous to goe alboare with the first (for I had scene before that they which came last got nothing) crept vider the feate of our Shallop, where I was for the space of two hours, and the Boat being full of men, I could not get out, but there had beene imothered, if it had not

CHAP. 7. S.I. Santos taken. Kniuets purchase in the Lesuite Colledge. I. King. 1202

beene for William Waldren that was our Boatiman, and Heered the Boat, who hearing me crie vnder him, tore vp the boords, and faued my life. About three a clocke in the morning, wee met with a Canoa (which is a Boat that they make of a whole Tree) in which wee tooke foure Portweats and two Women; the one of them was going to be married that morning. After we had taken this Boat we went close to the shoare; and having tarried for our Boat an houre, we heard the Portugals ring a Bell, prefently lasper lorge the Portugall Pilot told vs, that now was the sime to land, for he knew by that Bell that they were in the middle of their Maffe, and at that instant the Friar was holding up the Bread of Sacrament before the people to worthin it.

He had no fooner spoke, but we were all on shoare, and so marching to the Church, we tooke Santertaken to every mans fword without refistance, and there we remayned till it was seven of the clocke, for the comming of our long Boat, and the rest of our companic (for we were but twentie three in all) and we durit not take lack of the Towne with fo few. By that meanes some of the Puring als that were in their houles escaped with their perions and mony. Here was good flore of victuall and great store of Success, Sugars, and Caffaute meale, of the which wee made very good bread. In the Church there were three hundred men belide women and children. Alloone as wee had taken the fack of the Towne, and placed all our men in order, word was fent to our Generall of all that had beene done. After the Generall had fent answere againe to the Towne, all the Portus gals were fet at libertie, and we fortified our felues in the Towne, keeping onely feuen or eight of the chiefest and principall prisoners, Matter Cooke Captaine of the Vice-admirall, went Cap-20 taine of all the companie that went alhoare; he faubured me very much, and commanded meeto take a Friars Cell to lodge in, in the Colledge of lefts, where hee himfelfe lodged with many Captaines and young Gentlemen. It was my chance going up and downe from Cell to Cell, that I looked vincer a bed standing in a darke hole, where I found a little chift fast nayled, and the How Anthonie fearnes thereof were white with wheat flower. I drew it forth, and finding it of great waight, Kniver found a broke it in pieces, wherein I found 1700. Rials of eight, each whereof contayneth foure shillings chift of sluct.

English. This hole I tooke for my lodging, and no man knew of my good purchase; cloth, shirts, blankers, and beds, and such stuffe no man regarded. The next day following, being S. Stenens day, the Portugals gaue vs a false alarum : the Generall came also with all the ships into the Road, and presently landed with two hundred men-20 and commanded all the outward part of the Towne to bee burned. Then hee gaue order for the building of a Pinnaffe to row with twentie Oares, and commanded all the fhips that were in the Harbour to be fet on fire. At this Towne we tooke an English man, called John King, which had Lien Ring Esbeene there fifteene yeeres. Our Generall lay in the Colledge of left all the time that we were slift man. at Santos. This Colledge had many back-wayes to the Sea-fide, and it happened one night, that lefuites Coltwo Sauages being abused by the Portugals ran away, and knowing the passages of the Colledge, ledge. came in the night to the Generals bed-fide , and brought with them Turkies and Hennes : The The General

Generall being awaked by them cryed out for helpe, One of them that could speake Portugall, by two forages fell downe on his knees, and faid, that hee came to cratte his fauour; and not to offend him. The first scarred, morning following the Generall had discourse with these two Sauages, and by them he knew of studed. 40 what strength the Portugals campe was, and how that at his going out of the Towne they were determined to give battale : likewise they told him of three great bags of mony, and a jarre, that was hid vnder the roote of a Fig tree, and guided vs where we had three hundred head of Cattel. which ferued vs all the time we were there. The Daintie being a small thip made a good voyage to Santos, for thee came in before any of our fleet, by the which meanes they laded her with Sugar, and good commodities of the Portugals thips that were in the Harbour; this thip went voluntarily with vs, and having made a good voyage, the Captaine told the Generall that he would returne for England, the Generall antive- The Daintie red, that he was determined to fend him into the Riner of Plate, and then with all his heart hee would haucreshould returne. We continued two moneths at Santos, which was the cuerthrow of our voyage, turned from 50 In the time that we were there many Canibals came vnto vs, defiring the General that he would land destroy the Portugals, and keepe the Countrie to himselfe, protesting to bee all on his side ; the Generall thanked them for their kindneffe, and told them that at that time he had a farther pretence. We found flore of gold in this Towne, that the Indians had brought from a place, called by the Indust, Mutinga, and now the Portugals have to yries there. Many of our companie coun- Mutinga felled the Generall to winter at this Towne, but he would not by any meanes. From our first feeting forth from England, till we came to Samos, I had great love to Christopher the lapon , because I found his experience to tree good in many things. This Indian and I grew into fuch friendthip one with another, that wee had nothing betwixt vs vnknowne topanders retogether. I a long time having found him true, I told him of the money I had found under tidie. 60 the Friers bed; with that hee told mee of some money that hee had got, and wee swore to part halfe from thenceforth whatfoeder God should permit vs to obtaine : fome foure dayes after that, when we were ready to depart, he told me that that time of the yeare was past, wherefore it was best to hide our money in the ground, and remaine in the Countrey. I believing his periwations, agreed to doe what he thought best; thus we determined both, that the same day we were to goe a shipboord, that then he should take all the money in a Canoa, and hide it by a River fide; in the morning I delivered all the money into his hands, and he fwore that in leffe then two houres he would returne, but I staied aboue fine houres, and might have tarried all my life, forhe was gone abourd the Ship, afterward by good meanes I got mine own-againe. and fo our former friendship was parted. Our men marched by Land from Santos, to another Towne called San Vincent, and in the way our men burned fine Engenies, or Sugar-mils, the diforder of our men was fuch at their imbarking, that if the Portugals had beene of any courage, they might easily have cut our throates, the two Indians which came at night to the Generals chamber went with vs to the Straits.

1204 Port Famine in Straits; ominous names. Kniuets toes loft with cold. LIB.VI

We departed from Santos, with a faire winde for the Straites of Magellan, fourteene dayes we had faire weather, the fifteenth day all the Masters and Captaines of the fleete comming abourd. the Admirall wonne a great fumme of money. Two dayes after wee were becalmed, and the Pilotes taking their height, found it to be in the altitude with the River of Plate. And we being farre from the shoare did beare roome for Land, determining to fend the Daintie, the Blacke Pininto the aforefaid River of Plate, but it was not the will of God that we should execute our pretence. For the same day wee thought to have descried Land, the winde At the reserver beganne to blow South-well, and the Seas were very darke, swelling in waves so high, that we great florms. could not perceive any of our accompanied ships, although we were very neere one to another. Inthis storme the Seas brake over the Poope of our shippe, and washed our men astonisht with feare into the against our Poope, and brake downe all 20 the Crow a Smal Skippers, the Roe-bucke in this storme ranne her our Gallerie : all things were cast into the Sea that stood aboue Hatches, heere miserable Fornunke before our eyes, with tune began to frowne on vsall, especially on mee, for all that I had, both in clothes and money. with the Seas that brake over her fides. Here twelue men & were cast into the Sea, all our ship aboy. The Ros- our Generall shewed himselfe to bee of a noble courage, for hee did nothing but runne up and downe encouraging his men which were all amazed, thinking that to bee their laft houre, this ftorme continued three dayes, in which time wee lost most of our sayles blowne away from

> It was the will of God, that after we had been three dayes in the storme, the wind ceased but the Seas continued fo great, that wee were not able to beare any fayle. We lying thus toft with Seas, without fight of any of our fleet, the company murmured, and wished themselves againe at 20 Santes, and indeed we al thought that the rest of our company were driven back with the storme to the Coast, thinking it best for vs to returne againe. The Generall hearing what speeches passed in the shippe, came forth vpon the halfe decke, and commanded all the company to come before him, and after he had heard them speake, he answered that he had given directions to all the Mafters and Captaines of the fleete, that what weather focuer should part them, that they should vie their indeuour to take Port Defire, and that they should tarry a fortnight, so if none of the company came, they should leave some marke on the shoare, and goe on their Voyage, with that every man was satisfied, the Generall promising twentie pounds to whomsoever could first spie a fayle, we made our course to Port Defre, and in ten dayes we safely arrived at our desired Port. where we found all our fleet but the Daintie , which was no little comfort to vs all, because the 40 time of our yeere was almost past, we stayed here but two dayes taking a few Penguins, from an Hand right before Port Delire.

When we came to the mouth of the Straits wee found the winde contrary, and were forced to lye heating before the Harbour of Port Famme, three dayes ere wee could double that Cape, for many times we did cast anchor without the Cape in twentie fathomes water, but on a sudden, the current would carrie away the fnips with Cables and Anchors affoat in the night, in this current the Roe-bucke driven with the current, fell crosse over the haze, there wee had no other remedy, but were forced to cut out cables, and folofe our Anchors. In the end with much adoe we doubled the Cape, and got into Port Famine, where wee lay a feuennight for want of winde and weather to goe forward. It the time that wee were at Port Famine, every day our so men went on shoare, to get Muscles and Fruits of the Countrey to eate, and the barke of a tree that was like Sinamon. One day the Boate being ashoare, there came to vs aboue a thousand Canibals naked, with feathers in their hands, but they would not come so neere vs, as we could touch them. If we offered them any thing, they would reach to vs with a long Pole, and whatfocuer we gave them, they would returne vs feathers for it, wee made our fignes to them for victuals, and they would thew vs by fignes, that they had none, but what they could kill with their Darts. I have told you how my chift, and all my clothes were cast over-boord, now comming to this cold Climates, and wanting clothes my hope of life was little, for here men were well at morning, and by night frozen to death. It was my fortune to goe alhoare to get some Milerable cold food, for the allowance of our thip was little, and comming aboord againe with my feete wette, and wanting shift of clockes, the next morning I was nummed, that I could not three my legs. Anthonie Kni- and pulling off my stockings, my toes came with them, and all my feete were as blacke as soote. met loft his toes and I had no feeling of them. Then was I not able to ftirre.

CHAP. 7. S.I. Harris bloweth of his nofe: Straits pursue them out of the Straits. 1205

Thus I continued for the space of a fortnight, till wee came into a faire Bay, where there were many faire Hands, and on the rockes of fome of thefe Hands, wee found Scouts made of the barkes of trees, and afterwards wee found many Indians, but none of them would come to vs. On the South-west fide of the Mayne we found a River, which wee thought had gone to the Strait and South Sea: Our long Boate was lent up this River, and found it to be very firaite and deepe. On deepe Refera the fides thereof they found great Muscles, and in them good store of Pearles, and we named it Muscles with the River of Pearles; the Bay had the name of the Malter of our Pinnalle, because he first found Pearles. it and did discouer it, called it Tobias Bay. From this place wee went further into the Straites having the winde against vs, and with the cold there died every day out of our ship eight or nine to men, tiere one Harris a Gold-smith lost his Nose : for going to blow it with his fingers , cast it Harris his hard into the fire. This lobu Chambers, Cafar Ricafen , and many that are now in England can testi- hapfie. The Generall having experience, that the wind would tarry at the least two moneths, his men died to fait, that hee thought best to returne for the Coast of Brafil, and there to separate

our fleete to the Hauens, of Santos that lye on the Coast, River of lennary, Spirite Santo, determining by this meanes, to furnish himselfe with Ropes, Sayles, and Victuals of such prices as hee How weretutdid not doubt but to take, and likewife determining to take Santos againe. The Generall came backe with this pretence for Brafill, came to Port Famine, where wee an- gellan. chored two dayes, and there tooke a note of all his men, that were living, and finding some of Generall canthem very ficke, commanded them to be fet on shoare, I was so ill in the Straites that no man dif commeth 20 thought I would have lived, and twice I was brought upon the Hatches to bee cast into the Sea; against to Port but it was the will of God, that when they had faid Prayers, as they accustomed when any man bee setteth died, and that they laid hands on me to cast me ouer-boord, If pake, defiring them not to cast me eight menon over-boord, till I was dead. At this Port Famine comming backe, the Generall would have fet shoare and me on shoare, but Captaine Cockeentreated for me ; so I remayned in the ship. I had very sorie would have clothes, the toes of my feet full of Lice, that (God is my record) they lay in clusters within my hoare with fiesh, and of many more besides my selfe; I had no Cabbin, but lay vpon a chist. Now we come them, had it out of the Straits with all our fleet, but the Dainty that loft vs in the River of Place, in the fforme not beene for that we had, and the Crom that was funke. After that we came out of the Straits, wee came be- Captain Cocte

I had no feeling were they never fo hot. That day that we departed from Port Defire, the Generall fent for all the Masters of the ships. and commanded them that till midnight they should keepe there course with him, and that when he should show them two lights, then they should cast about and beare in with the shoare, but Danis which was Captaine of the Defire, and Tobie Mafter of the Pinnaffe did deceiue vs, and went for the Straits, as I was enformed afterwards by some of there men that were taken at How the Defree Brafill, after that I was taken. Three or foure dayes after this wee had a great storme, in the and the Blacke Brafil, after that I was taken. Three or foure dayes after this wee had a great frome, in the Pinneff good 40 which the Ree-backe loft her mayne Mast, and we loft her. Now were we all alone in a great analysis good. thip, and we knew not what wee were beit to doe, but in the end wee determined to come for

Santes, hoping there to find the rest of our company. In this storme I sate on a chist, and was not Of a great able to ftirre, for ftill as the ship seeled on one tide, the chift went from starboord to larboord, and storme we bad it was the will of God, that it fell betweene a piece of Ordnance, and the Carpenters Cabbin coming backen on the one tide, and on the other fide betweene another Peece, and the Chirurgions Cabbin. Thus all the night I lay very cold, and it was the will of God that the chift neuer turned over, for if it had, I could not have escaped death, the next day the storme ceased, and most of our young Saylers, which we call men of top a yard, being wearied with their nights worke that was paft. were vnder Hatches afleepe, and would not come up to doe fome bufineffe that was to bee done. With that the Generall came downe, with the end of a Rope as bigge as mine arme, and one of the Saylers hid himselfe behind me; the Generall spying him, strooke at him, and hit me on the fide of the head, and halfe an houre after, finding me in the tame cafe that the Generall had left How the Ge mee in, they tooke me, and would have cast mee out of one of the parts of the ship , but it was nerall strooke

Wee with much adoe in the end got to the Harbour of Santos, where wee found none of our They come to company, we anchored right before a Sugar-mill, that stood hard by the Sea side, the Generall afked if there were any that would goe ashoare, then Captaine Stafford, Captaine Southwell, and Captaine Barker offered themselves to goe on shoare, and twentie more with them, the Boate 60 that they went in was made of Sugar chifts and barrell boords, they landed and tooke the Sugarmill, at the which they tooke a great Barke, and fent it laden with victuals, aboord our shippe, which was more welcome vnto vsthen if it had beene gold. Here wee continued all that day, and the next day they fent the great Boate againe laden with Sugars and Guinee Wheate, then the Generali fent them word that they should come away, but they fent him word againe, that the night at Santos, fell ouer-board by a mischance and was drowned.

fitraits of Ma-

fore Port Defire againe, and there our Boats went to Pengnin Iland for Pengnins; at this place the How I got fee 30 Generall tooke a Chirurgion who cured with words; This man comming aboord our flip, faid my himmes ab fome words ouer my feet, and I had feeling in my legges and feete which I had loft before, for ter we came the space of a fortnight, many times before this man came, I had hot Irons laid to my feet, but out of the the will of God that I spake and was faued. Here one of the Indians that came to the Generall in gainst his wills

S. Vincent.

men, and wee

loft ours with three men-And at the Service we took the Defires long Boat for the Admirall.

Port Defre.

Magellan Port Famine.

Current-

Barke like Si-Naked Sana-

in the Straits.

Thus

they had more prountion on thoare, and before all was abourd they would not come. The third day, that our men were on shoare, the Poringall let on them. They had the little Boate alhoare, but the wind being from shoare, the great Boat went not from the ship side that day, the next day that our men were flaine, our long Boate went ashoure, and brought vs newes how the little Boat was broke and how all our men were gone. One of the Indians that I have told you of landed here with our men, and having experience of the Countrey, when our men were in the hotteft of their fight ranne away, having one Arrow shot thorow his necke, and another in his mouth and out at his poale, this Indian fwamme aboutd visto vs vpon a logge, and told vs that all our men were flame.

diff before.

come curs at Santes.

The Generall thought good to goe from hence to the Iland of San Sebastian, and there if he ... did not meete with tome of the fhips, that then he would returne for England, the same day that we were to depart from Santos, the Roe-bucke past by the mouth of the River of Bertia; where we were, and that a Peece, and we answered with another, then the Roe-bucke came into vs with her Masts broken. After the Ros-bucke came to vs, we went neerer the Towne, determining to have beaten downe the Towne with our Ordnance, but wanting water, the Galleon Lecester toucht ground, and we had much adoe to get her cleere againe. Then wee landed eightie of our men, at a small River neere the Towne, where we had great store of Mandiora Roots, Potators, Plantons, and Pine Apples. The Portugals feeing our mengoing into the River, fent fix Canoas to meete them, we leeing them, made a shot at them with the chaine of our Pumpe, with that they returned, and our Boats came fafely aboord with good store of the aforenamed Roots. In 20 our thip there was a Portugall whom we tooke in the thip taken at Cape Frio, this Portugall went with vs to the Straits of Magellanus, and feeing of our overthrow, told vs of a Towne called Spirito Sancto, this Portugall laid that we might goe before the Towne with our fhips, and that without danger, we might take many Sugar-mils, and good flore of cartle.

Spirito Santo.

Portugals ad-

Portugall han-

The words of this Portugall made vs breake off our pretence that wee had for San Sebestian. and we went to Spirito Santio, in eight dayes we got before the mouth of the Harbour; at length we came to an Anchor in the Roade, and prefently we fent our Boats to found the Channell, and we found not halfe the depth that the Portugall fand we should finde, the Generall thinking that the Portugall would have betrayed vs. without any trial caused him to bee hanged, 'he which was done in a trife. Here all the Gentlemen that were living, defred that they might go ashoare 20 to take the Towns. The General was very unwilling, & told them of divers inconveniences, but all would not fuffice them, they were to importunate, that the Generali choice out one hundred and twentie men, of the best that werein both the ships , and sent Captaine Morgan a singular good Land-fouldier, and Lieutenant Royden, for choife Commanders in this action. They landed before a small Fort with one of the Boats, and drave the Portugals out of it, the other Boate went higher, when they had a very hot skirmish, and their lives were quickly shortned, for they landed on a Rocke, that it cod before the Fort, as they leaped out of the Boate, they flid all armed into the Sea, and so most of them were drowned. To be short wee lost eightie men, at this So, men flaine: place, and of the fortie that returned, there came not one without an Arrow or two in his body. and some had five or fixe.

When we saw we could doe no good at this place, wee determined to come agains for the I-land of San Sebastian, and there we meant to burne one of our ships, and from thence we determined to goe for the Straits againe, the company that was in the Roe-bucke, hearing of it, in the night runne away from vs, and we were left alone againe, well we came to San Sebastian Iland, all this while I lay under Hatches lame, ficke, and almost starued : I was not able to stirre, I was fo weake. After we came to this Iland, the first thing that was done, the ticke men were set on shoare to shift for themselves, twentie of vs were jet on shoare, all were able to go yo and downe although very weakly, but (I alas!) my toes were raw, my body was blacke, I could not speake Authory Kninet nor firre. In this cate I was layed by the shoate side, and thus I remayned from sine of the clock in the morning, till it was betweene eleuen and twelve of the clocke, that the Sunne came to 50 his higheif, and the extreme heate of the Sunne pierced through my bodic, whereby I came to my felfe, as a man awaked from fleepe; and I faw them that were let on flore with me, lye dead and a dying round about me : there men had eaten a kind of Peare, that did grow by the Sea fide which did poylon them. When I faw all these men dead, I prayted God that had rid them out of their milerable estate, and cursed my hard fortune, that Death it felfe did refuse to end my tormented and most miserable life. I looked towardes the sheare, and saw nothing but these Peale, and if I did eate them, I was fure of death, if I did not eate them, I faw no remedie but to flarue.

Venemous

Seeing in this manner, I looked towards the ship, to see if the Boate came ashoare, but (alas) all my hopes were with speed to end my life, but that it was the will of God, I saw things there 63 by the Sea fide, and it was a great ebbe; then I went creeping on my hands and my feete like a childe, and when I had gotten to the Sea fide, I faw many Crabs lye in the holes of the mudde. Ipulled off one of my flockins, and filled it with Crabs, and as well as I could, I carried them to a hollow figge tree, where I found a great fire made, to cathing them on the coles, I did eat them.

GHAP.7. S.2. Kniuets terroar and food, captivity, danger of death.

and fo I lay downero fleepe till the next day; and then I watched for the ebbe to get fome more meate. Thus I lived eight or nine dayes without fight of any man, the ftinke of fome of the dead men that the Sea came not to, was fo noy fome that I was faine to remooue from that place, and as I went along the shoare to seeke some place to abide in I passed by a faire River that went into the S:a; where I thought it good to make my abode because of the fresh water. I had not beene there fearce the space of halfe a quarter of an houre, but I saw a great thing come out termical ha of the water, with great feales on the backe, with great vgly clawes and a long tayl; this beatt a misi of the came towards me, and I had not the power to thun it, but as it came towards me I went and met the come out it, when I came neere it, I stood still amuzed to see to monstrous a thing before me. Hereupon of the water, to this beaft flood still and opened his mouth, and thrust out a long tongue like a Harping-Iron. I commended my felfe to God, and thought there to have bin torne in pieces; but this beaft turned againe, and went into the River, and I followed to the Rivers side. The next day I went farther into the lland, fearing to tarrie in this place, and I found's great Whale lying on the shoare like a ship with the keele vpwards, all coursed with a kinde of short moffe with the long lying there. At this place I made a little house, and fed on the Whale for the space of a fortnight. In this time the Generall fet forty men more ashoare, at the place where I Whale, was fee first on land, likewife the Generall trimmed his Boate at this place, and had a Not continually a fi hing, of which John Chambers his Cooke had charge, who is this day living in London. After that there men came ashoare, I left the place where I was with the Whale, and came to our 20 men and lived with them, beeing at this time reasonable well, and able to goe very well, for the vie of going into the Sea did heale my toes. After these men had beene on shoare seuen or eight dayes, we had taken wood and water for the ship, the Poringals of the River of Innuary, landed on the North point of the Iland hard by the Whale, they took two of our men and one elcaped, who came to vs in the night, and told vs that the Portugals and the Sanages were landed. That day wee had taken a great Tortois ashaore, and wee did bid the Sayler to bee of good cheere, for if it were true, it was the better for vs, for wee were fure, that the Generall would not take vs againe into the flip, with that we all commended our felues to God, and dranke to our friends in faire water, and to we determined to march along the shoare with a white shirt instead of a sligge of truce, but the Sea was so high that we could not, then we determined to watch quarterly, till 30 fuch timeas we could efpie them, I had the first watch, and watched till I was weare . so called one of my fellowes, to watch, and he answered angerly, Tit, tes a lie: with that I lay downe ty They are taken the fire as well as the reit. Before i was afleepe, the Portugals were at our doore, then I frarted and flane. up, and one of them tooke me by the legge, presently wee were all led to the shoare side, there all that were taken with me, were knocked on the heads with fire-brands, the Indian that had He (scapeth, hold of me, ftrooke twice or thrice at me with a short Bill, but I striuing, cryed out in Portugall, That if they would faue mee I would tell them newes, with that a Portugall paffed by . an I caught hold of him, fo well as I could I told him a Tale which faued my life at that time, this

Portugall game me againe to a Sawage, & I cryed to him that I would go wherfoeuer he went, then he bid me not fear for that Sauage was his flaue, and that he would carrie me to the Caprayn, fo I when wee came where any Rockes reached into the Sea; hee would take mee on his backe, and fwimme with mee round about the Rockes, till wee were free from the Rockes, thus we went almost all night, til at length we came by a great Cliffe that stood by the shore. Then the Sanape whiftled, and another Sanage answered him from the Cliffe, wherupon five or fix Portugals came forth, and amongst them came the Captaine with a piece of bread and Marmallet in his hand, and as foone as he faw me, he asked me what newes, I answered that I was very hungry, and defired him that hee would give mee some meate, and then I would tell him all the newes that I could, with that all the Portugals brake out in a laughter, and gaue me bread and fifth to eate, after

I had eaten that which they had given me, I told them the truth of all that they asked me, heere

50 they killed eight and twentie of our men, and faued only my felfe, and Henrie Barrawell who

40 was content perforce to goe I knew not whether, this Camball carried me along the ashare, and was faued by my meanes.

ANTHONY KNIVET his comming to the R of Ianero, and wlage amongst the Portugals, and Indians : his divers travels therew divers Regions of these parts.

He next day our thip weighed Anchor, and whether thee went I knew not, wee were carried by the Portugals to the River of Innero, I went with a Mellizo, which is halfe a Portugall, and halfe a Sanage that faued my life in the night w en I was taken. When we came to the Citie of San Sebastian in the River of Janero, the Portugals in the Canoas, made fuch a noyle, with Pipes and Drummes, that all the people of the Citie came to fhoare to fee vs, with that the Canoas going round, as if they were in fight, two Portugals tooks mee. and call me towards the shoare, laying, here is our prize; the tyde being strong carried mee to the mayne, where I had beene drowned had it not beene for a woman, who feeing the tyde carry me away, fent two or three flanes, and they faued mee. When I came ashoare, all the Portugals were at the Church of our Lady, and I would have gone into the Church, but the Portugals would not let me, faying, that I was not a Christian. Then I was brought before the Governour, and he gaue me to the man that had faued mee, and I was very well contented, for hee vied mee very kindly as I came with him from the Hand of San Sebastian. For the space of three moneths tha: I was with this man, I kept a house, and went to the Sea-fide with his Hogs, and there I euery day brought him home a basket of great Crabs that lie in the holes of the mud, as deepe as 10 voucan thruit in your arme. This w sa good life, my Master called me sonne, and I dined and supped with him : also I had a hanging Net to he in, and lay in the same roome which hee It happened one day being by the Sea-fide washing of little Dogs, there came a Canoa full of Portugals, and they tooke me to the Towne with them, but as foone as I landed I remembred my Matters house and ran to it. As I went I mer with Henrie Barmay : the next day the Gouernour fent for mee and examined me what I was, I told him that I was a poore ship boy, with that Henrie Barway reproued me, asking what I meant to fay to to the Governour; I replyed , that I was no other but what I had told him, then the Gouernour commanded mee to bee carried to the Sugar mill, where I was three moneths, till all the clothes that I had were torne in peeces, with working in a Barke going day and night vp and downe for Sugar canes and wood for the Mill : the miferable life that I was in made me careleffe what I did. I had neither meat nor clothes but blowes as many as Gally flaues. Then I determined to run away into the Wilderneile, for I was athamed to be feene naked of the Portugals. I made me a Cottage in a great Caue in the Wildernesse, where I was seuen moneths. In the day I fished for to live, and in the night I came to some Indians houses, and for fish they gaue me Castauie meale, and many kindes of Rootes, that served me for bread. In the end the Gouernour caused me to be sought out, and gaue mee a sute of blue clothes, and commanded me to worke in a Garden, where I carried earth, and digged the ground to plant Cabidges and Turneps.

faluted in this fort.

After that I was commanded agains to take charge of the Sugar boar, where I was worse vied 30 then ever I was before, for the Factor was a man that hated English men, and would vie me more like a Dogge then a Man. When I had concinued foure moneths in the Barke, it happened that one of the Gouernours fonnes, called Marin de Sas, came from Spirito Santo. This man pittying my poore and miterable life, defired his father that he would give mee vinto him, which his father granted, and I was very well vied of my new Mailer, two yeeres after I had ferued him. It happened that hee and his Mother in law fell out, whereupon the Governour his father fent him to a Towne, called Wyanaffes, which were in peace with the Portugals, and for Kniues and Hatchets, they fell their Wives and Children. This iourney I went with him, and we came to a Towne called lawarapipo (that is to fay) Is this the Dogge? He feeing me forward to doe him feruice, fent me from this Towne with eight of his flaues laden with Hatchets and Knines , to ano- 40 ther kinde of Canibals, called Porces, which had beene likewife friends with the Portugals, but it was long before any Pertugal had beene there, I came to the Towne of Peries, where I was

He fleeth.

His new Ma.

Wyanaffes.

Lawarapipo.

Paries.

As foone as I came into a great house, which I thought was their Kings, which they call Mo-Stronge enter. ronichana; prefently, they had hanged up a faire Not betweene two poiles, in the which I was commanded to fit downe, and as foone as I was fet, there came at the leaft twentie women, and fome laving their heads on my shoulders, and others on my knees, they began to crie out making fuch a pitious noife, that I was amazed : yet I determined to fit still till they had done. As foone as the women were gone, an old man came in, all painted with red and blacke, and hee had three great holes in his face, one in the winder lip, and one on either fide of his mouth, and in every hole so stood a faire greene stone. This Cambell came through the house where I was, with a woodden fword in his hand, and as hee came hee spake very loud, and looked as though hee had beene mad. figiking his hand on his breaft, and on his thighs; still crying out, he walked up and downe. Atter this Sauage had ended his speech, he stroke me on the head, and bad mee welcome; and commanded fuch things as were in his house to be fet before me to cate. After I had beene there two or three houres, newes went through all the Towne of my being there, and from this Towne to others that were bard by,

His danger by Whileft I continued in this Towne a Sauage called Waynembuth, who bare a great grudge to the Portugals, came where I was, with two women, and when hee came into the house where I was he laid his hands on their necks, and to came dancing before mee, thus after hee had danced fome quarter of an house, he spake to me, faying, Doest thou fee thefe women, by my valour I got their loves, and now their defire I am sworne to fulfill, which is to kill thee, as I have done many more. I antiwered him that I came not as an enemie against him, or any of his, but as a friend that brought him many things that I was affured hee wanted, and that if nothing would fatisfie him but my life. I affored him, that hee and all his Countrie would pay for it. To this hee made no answere. but went to separate my things that lay by mee to his Concubines , withall I started out of my bed, and tooke my fword in my hand, and thrust the Camball from my things, that I had almost ouerturned him, and he durft not touch them nor me any more, but stood rayling, and threatning to kill mee, and with the noise that hee made, the old man came into the house, and seeing mee fland with my fword in my hand, asked mee what was the matter, and I told him all that had palled betwixt mee and the forefaid Caniball. After hee had heard mee, hee turned to the Caniball that had offered me abufe, and asked him what reason he had to doe him so great a discredit, and to meddle with any friend of his in his Towne, and angerly commanded him to avoid his Town, To if not he would make him repent that ever he came thither; with that, for feare of afterclaps he went away with his Concubines : the next morning newes came to the Towne, that Wanambuth was comming with three hundred Cambals, and that perforce he would have me to his Towne, and that there I should be killed according to the order of the Countrie; and how hee left order with his wives to prepare wine through all the Townes in readinesse.

When the old man heard of this, hee presently commanded all his people to take their wear pons, and defired them to goe with him into the field to meet them that were comming to wrong him; whereat they all gave a great hoope, faying, that they would all die rather then Hofbitall fide they would bee diffraced. The old man embraced mee many times, and defired mee that I would line in Satarry in his house. I thanked him for his love, and told him that in any wife I would not tarry unges, 20 behinde him; fo I went with him to meet the Caniball in the field; we being a great many more then they, they ient three or foure vnto vs as messengers, that they came to be merry and to buy and fell fuch things as they had, then the old man gaue leave for them all to come into his Town. except the Caniball that had mit-vied him the day before; that night I gaue all my merchandife to the old man, and defired him for it, that hee would cause mee to bee conducted out of his Countrie; the next day following the old man gave me ieuentie flaues, and caused three hundred Bow men to goe with me till I was past the River of Paraeyna; from whence they retuined to River Paraeya their Towne, and in forrie dayes journy with eale I came againe to Ilba Grande, where I found my Master. Martin de Saa, who was v. ry glad of my returne, and for recompence of my paines. he promifed me one of them to bee my flave, bu. when hee came to the River of lanere, hee fold

so them, and gaue me nothing. After wee had beene at home two moneths, hee would have fent mee againe into the fausee countrie for more flaues, but I knew that thereby I should get nothing and refused to goe. Wherevoon hee returned me againe to his father, thinking I would rather choose to goe then serue his He returneth tather in the Sugar boat. But I was contented to goe against o his father, hoping to be better ve to his o'd Mafed then I was before : then his father commanded me to goe a fishing in a small boat for to make fler. oile for the Sugar mill. One night being vpon a Rocke fishing for Dog-fish, which the Portugals Endangeredby call Tubarones; I tooke my line, laid it vinder me and fell alleepe: about mid-night with the be- a Sharke. ginning of the floud a Dog-fash tooke my booke, and the line being vinder mee . I awaked, tooke the line in my hand, and running about the Rocke (I know not how) the line tangled about my legge, and the fifth drew me into the Sea; and affoone as I fell into the water the Sharke fwam at me as if he would have devoured me, but affoone as I faw him come neere mee, I caught hold on the hooke that was in his mouth, and firsking downwarke with my hand the Sharke I wam away againe. I now remembred a knife, that I had about my necke tyed with a firing, as the Cambals vie, and there with cut the cord, or elfe there had I ended all my miteries; all my body was torne with the Crags of the Rocke, so that for the space of a fortnight I was not able to flirre. After I was healed the Governour commanded mee againe to goe a fishing : wee had newes in the R uer of lanero that Mafter Hankins was at Cape Free, which made me the more defirous to Milter Ham. be on the Coast in hope to get to him. It happened that one day being a fishing by an Iland that tiss at Cape So lay two leagues from the shoare, Master Hameins passed by the Sea as farre as well hee could bee Frie. deferyed, but it was a very faire day : affoone as I faw the ships I fet the Indians that were with me on shoare on the Iland, commanding them to seeke prouision for vs for that night I did affure my felfe that Mafter Hawkins would refresh his men at the Hand of San Sebastian, and feeing the Another dow winde faire, and all the Indians ashoare, I hoysted faile, and tooke my course towards the Hand of bledifaster of San Sebastian, but fortune was so crosse to me, that being in sight of the ships, a contrarie winde blue with such a storme, that perforce I was driven vpon an Hand so full of Rocks, that my Boat was broken all in peeces, and my felte all cut and bruifed with the Rocks. Getting to the floare upon this Iland I remay ned three dayes without meat, or meanes to get away from the Iland, the Indians that landed upon the Iland where we were a fifting, got to the Towne and told the Governour how I had beguiled them. Presently upon that newes the Governour sent two Canoas to deferie the ships, these Canoas came on shoare at the Hand where I was, and there they found me almost starued, and all my face hurt beaten voon the Rocks.

From this place they went to the Iland of San Sebafian, and Mafter Hawkins was gone ; then they returned agains to the River of Innero, and I washrought bound with my hands behind me, on to be hanlefuites faue

Imprisoned

all the Towne rayled at me, calling me Run-away, then I was brought before the Gouernour and His imprison- he looking very angerly upon me lent me to prilon, where I was vied like a Dogge for the inace of a fortnight : for I lay on the ground, and had no meat given me, but Cassaui meale and water. Condemnati- After I had endured this miferie, I was condemned to be hanged for a Run-away and a Lutheran. and as I was going by the Colledge of Iefus, all the Friars of the Colledge came forth with a great Crucifix, and falling on their knees before the Gouernour they craued pardon for me, and I was carried agains to prilon, where I remayned three dayes longer, then I was brought forth on a Market day, with my hands and feet bound, and there in publike beaten with cordes, that I had not a whole foot of skin on all my body. After they had punished mee, as you have heard. I was commanded to be put againe in prifon, where I was for the space of a fortnight, with no meste 10 but Caffaui meale and water, my lodging was the earth, my body was all bruifed and full of wormes with lying on the ground.

After this the Governour commanded great hoopes of Iron to bee clinched to my leave of thirtie pound weight, the which I carried nine moneths, continually working in the Sugar mill like a bond-flaue. The Factor vied me more like a Dogge then a Man, for his harred was to much to me, and to all ftrangers, that I neuer came by him but I was fure of blowes. Now was my life fo intolerable, that I grew del perate and careleffe what I did to end my life. Many times I would tell the Governour now like a Tyrant the Factor vied me, but for all that he law my body black. and bruifed with blowes, he had no compatition on me. I had no meanes nor hope of any release of Diffoliorerefo- my miferable life, but to kill the Factor. Now occasion came fitly to execute my pretence, and 20 it happened thus; I comming in the night with a Barke laden with Sugar canes, after the Barke was valuden, the night being cold, I lay vpon the boards before the Fornaces, and had not refted halfe an houre, when the Factor came into the Sugar house, fo finding measleepe (as you have heard) hee ftrooke mee with a withe on the naked ribs, with fuch force, that I thought hee had broken all the bones of my body. I started up, and seeing him before mee readie to fecond his malice with another blowe, I embraced him in mine armes, and with a great knife that I had . I hurt him in the fide , the backe, and the arme ; hee cryed out I had flaine him. I thinking no lesse ran away into the chiefest of the wood, and the favourable night being darke, no man knew which way to follow mee. When day came I went wandring up and 30

He fleeth againe.

downe, praying to God to fend some Leopard, or Lion, to deuoure mee, rather then to bee taken againe by the Portugals, for I knew if the Gouernour once got mee againe, I should endure the most extreame torture that ever was invented for man. Wandring in the Wildernesse. I did hearea great notic of people, then I was amazed, knowing not what to doe to faue my life, fometimes I run like a mad man, then would I fit downe and liften if I could heare any noise, and which way somer I went I heard still the noise of people neerer me. Thus feeing Danger of 12- my felte at the last cast, I espyed a great Tree, in which grew a thing of thick long leaves, calking in a Cara- led by the Indians, Carakala; as bigge as the nest of an Eagle, I got me into that, having not beene there a quarter of an houre, many Indians came to leeke mee. and fhot many times with their arrowes at the thing where I was, when they faw that I did not flirre, they went their An waves, and I remayned all that day in the Tree, the night following, and the next day and night, I came downe very weake, for in two dayes I had eaten nothing, then the night being darke, I came to the Sea fide, fo going along by the shoare fide, I espyed a Canoa drawne to shoare, and hard by it on the ground lay three Sauages affeepe, by them lay bowes, arrowes, and rootes, with hookes to fift with, of those things I tooke what I thought best, and went along the Sea fide till I came to a Point of the I and, where I found a Sauage affeepe vpon the fands, when I Solamen milera had viewed him well I knew him to be one of my Masters slaves, who killed one of his fellowes, wherefore hee durft not goe home, I tooke his bow and arrowes lying by him and awaked him. when he faw me he began to lament, and defired that I would not carry him home to my Ma-

This Sauge was a great man in his Countrie, his name was Quarafips inca, that is, the yellow Sunne. Neuer man found truer friendlhip of any then I did of him. This Caniball and I after many discourtes determined to swim from the lland to the mayne. When we had escaped the dans His wandrings, ger of passing the arme of the Sea, at least two miles in breadth, we both landed very feeble, with the long being of our naked carkaffes in the water. Now wee are at the foot of the Mountaine called Paranapiacano, a defart, where many have beene devoured with Leopards. Lions, Crocodiles, and Surococous, and divers other Serpents. Notwithstanding all these fearful inconveniences, we chole rather to fall into the pawes of a Lion, and the clawes of the Serpent, then in- 62 to the bloudie hands of the Portugall. Seven and thirtie dayes we two travelled through this defart, every day we were in danger of our lives, for we met many Leopards, Lions, and huge Serwirch others pents, but God delivered vs from them. In this journey we eare wilde Honie and Palmetos, and a kinde of Snakes, called by the Cambals, Boaryna, After we had poffed this defart, we came into

fter, I antiwered him that my cause was ten times worse then his, and defired him to tell mee if 50

he knew any place whither wee might goe to laue both our lives, and with that told him what a champaine Countrie, where we had great flore of Pine nuts. Wandring up and downe in this Countrie, one morning we espyed smoke in a wood not farre from vs. Then wee travelled that waves, and comming neere, I knew where we were, and prefently I told Quariffacusa, that the Towne was called Pinnita, and that this was the place where Invariping had vied mee fo well, Pinnita when Wanambuth would have killed me. Now come we to the Towne, where we are very kindly received, especially of mine old friend lawaripipo.

I suppore by Incancth that fp.rtted beaft, saila Tigre.

After we had rested a little while among these Cambals, I desired them that they would some to his old host. themselves together; for in publike I would rehearse somwhat vnto them of my comming into their Countrie. Now when they were all together, I began to rehearfe vnto them how cruelly Senare of Sa-10 the Portugals did vie their Nation, in making them bond-flaues, marking them like Dogs, whip- uages. ping and tormenting them, as if they were not of flesh and bloud. I rehearsed vnto them the course of mine owne life, and defired them to remember how my Countrimen had yfed them in former times, encouraging them to bee valiant, and to pull vp their spirits, and perswading to defend themselves against such Tyrants, who vider the colour of friendship vied them most villainonfly. Then I told them that I had killed a Portugall, and that I was determined to end my life with them, if they would promife to defend mee and themselves from the Portugals. With that many of them embraced me, all together giving a great hoope, faying, as long as their lives lasted, and their Bowes brake not, that they would defend themselves and me. Here I continued nine moneths, till it happened that Martin de Saa came againe to buy more flaues. He came to a 20 Towne hard by the Hand of San Sebastian, called laquerequere, where ving the Canibals kindly, laquerequere, and giving them Knives and Hatchets and Beades, hee won their hearts to much vinto him that they gave him their Sonnes and Daughters to bee his slaves; and moreover told him, that I and Onarififacupa was at a Towne hard by. Then Martin de Saa fent foure Portugals and twentie Sauages for me to the Towne, When the Sauages of laquerequere came to Pianua, they gave fuch Sauage faith, report in all the Towns of the liberalitie of Martin de Saa , that without any deliberation they Antonie Knines bound my hands, and brought me backe againe to my Mafters fonne.

When the Canibals brought mee before Martin de Saa, all those that protested before most and brought to friendship vnto mee, are now become my greatest and most mortall enemies, and with hoo- his Master. ping and hollowing deride mee, striking mee on the head, and declaring to the Portugals, 30 how I vied great periwasions to have them become their enemies. Martin de Sas made no anfwere to all their exclamations, but commanded certaine Portugals and Indians to fee that I

runne not away. Being brought the next morning before him, hee told mee that hee did pittie my hard fortune to come to fo bad an end as I was like to come to, making mee beleeue that the Factor was dead, and therefore hee thought that the Law world condemne mee. When hee had fooken. I defired him to bee fauourable vnto mee, and that hee would confider what feruice I had done him and his father, and to thinke how vnreasonably the Factor had vied mee a long time. Then hee promised mee , that wherein hee might hee would stand my friend : then I entreated him to give mee leave in that defart to end my life among it the Canibals, where hee might well bee affured I could never hurt him nor any of his Nation : hee would not condescend 40 thereunto, but promised hee would faue my life, if I would but goe to a place in that Countrie. called Paracyua Wereob, and there to trafficke with the Canibals for Women, Boyes, and Girles. Paracyua We

Although the danger of going into the Countrie of wild Man-eaters where I neuer had beene, rest. was no lesse then the value of my life, yet considering with my selfe that my offence deserved death among the Portugals, I chose once againe rather to stand to the Heather mercy of sauage Man-eaters, then at the bloudie crueltie of Christian Portugals. And feeing my felfe in fuch extremitie, I shewed my selfe very willing and diligent to doe the Captaine service; but God His next adknowes, my hope was neuer to have feene him againe. Now goe I along it in the Wilderneise, uenture thowith twelue Sauages, I know not whither, but as they guide mee ouer huge Mountaines, and row the demany great Rivers, passing many dangers of our lives by land of Lions, Leopards, divers great farts.

So Snakes : in the Rivers , Crocodiles , Iararaquas , and Capucaras , with many other Servents that vie the water. After wee had travelled five and twentie dayes in the Wildernesse, wee came to a faire River as broad as the Thames, and the Canibals that went with mee faid that the A faire River, Towne flood by that River fide, where wee were to trafficke, but certaintie they knew not where about. Then wee made vs a Boat of the barke of a Cedar Tree, going downe the streame in it. Wee had not beene there long a going with the swiftnesse of the Current, before wee efpyed a Boate of the same fashion that ours was, with two Canibals in it, who as soone as Two Sausses. they had espyed vs would have runne away, but wee beeing better manned then they overtooke them before they got to the shoare. With mee there went one of their owne Nation by name Morology, who had beene taken by the Wayanaffes, and they fold him to the Por-60 tugals. This Morosoey spake the language of the Taymayas, which I understood very well. The two Cambals that wee tooke in the Boate, were amazed to see men apparelled, info- Apparell much that they knew not their owne Countriman that was with mee, when they faw him Rrange, apparelled like a Portugal; if they were amazed at vs , I was no leffe at them, for in Their flenge all my trauell I neuer faw the like fashion of Canibals. For when I saw them first I thought habite.

Her commark

Hhhbh 2

1212 Feathered nation. Emulations of Sauages, High hill, Venemous Snakes, LIB. VI.

Stranger na-

they had beene borne with feathers on their heads and bodies, like fowles of the aire, they had ano need their bodies with gumme of the oiletulees of Balfome, and couered themielues to artificulty with feathers of divers colours, in fuch order, that you could not have feene a toot of their skins but their legs : after wee had beholden them well and they vs , I commanded Morofceir. their Countriesan to disclose himselfe to his Countrimen, and to tell them the cause of our comming, defining them to goe to their Towne, and tell of our being there, left our fulden commine hould raile an vprore among them, the which they were very willing to doe; fo guine either of them a knife, and a few beades, they departed very joyfully.

Two hours after that they were departed from vs, there came at the least flue hundred of them firiging and rejoycing, shewing themselves very glad of our comming to traffick with them, 10 encreating vs to goe to then Towne, the which we did, where wee were received with dancing and finging of great and small, and in every house I was received with great ceremonies. and long speeches of the chiefest that were in the Towne. The next day I began to traffick with them for flaues, and I bought ninetie, all which I brought to Martin de Saa, who remayned at Ilha Grande till I returned againe. Affoone as I came vnto him, I deliuered all vnto him, deliring him to fland my friend, and to give mee leave to tarrie among the Cambals, till fuch time as hee had fooken with his fatuer in my behalfe. Laughing, hee answered that I neede to feare to goe home, for the man was recoursed, and gone to the River of Plate, and that his father was very forry, tlinking I had beene eaten by some Serpent, Leopard, or Lion. When I came before the Gouernour, he bleffed himtelre to tee mee, meruailing where I had beene to long, and tent 20 me againe to his Sugar mill, where I continued a twelve-moneth, and I had the charge to chift all the Sugar, in which time I got two hundred crownes. I determined to goe to Angola in Athio. pia; and the Gouernour gaue me his word that I shoul :, and that what suour he could show me. Tihould bee fire to haue, but when the ship was readie to depart, the Gouernour fent mee out of Towne on a sleeuelesse errand, and I remayned ashoare, and lost all that I had scraped together for my voyage.

A monet for two after this it happened that the Wayanaffes were fet on by a kind of Canibals. called Tarmaya, the Wayanaffes have traffick and friendihip with the Portugals, and the most mor-Ambijous ma, tall enemies that the Portugals have in all America, are the Taymayas. The Wayanaffes having lost lice in faunges, a great many men in a battell, not being able to make any head againe of themstelles; craued 30 exp duion a fuccour againe of the Portugals. My Masterbeing Gouetnour of the Towne, fent his sonne Exp outon 3- Martin de San with feuen hundred Portugals, and two thousand Indians. The Wayanaffes certified vinto vs that the mott that wee should bee, before wee come to the Taymayas, would

PH-47-55.

Tous the fourteenth day of October 1597, we departed on our way with fixe Canoas by Sea. some thirtie miles from the River of lannarie, for a Port called Paratee. The first day that we departed, we had a great storme, where we thought we should all have beene drowned, but it was the will of God to face our lines, with the generall loffe of all we had, the Canoas turned votide downe with the forme, wee holding faft on the bottom of them, were driven on fhoure with great hazard of our lives. From the place where we drove on shoare to the River of Wareteena it 40 was three miles, which we went by land, and fent the Canous to the River of I amuarie for victuals. We tarried two dayes at Wareteena till the aforesaid Canoas returned, the third day wee went to a place of Great Hand, called Ippon, where there dwelt two or three Portneals. Here we had great flore of Posatos & Plantons to eat. At this place we remay ned fine dayes for fine hundred Canibals, that were to come from an Hand called I awarpipo. When these Indians were come we deported in our Canoas for our defined Port called Parage. As we went in the night wee cut a great Bay of the Sea, where a Whale did ouerturne one of our Canoas, notwithitanding wee tooke the men that were in the Sea, and went on for the Harbour aforesaid. The next day the Captaine commanded all the Canoas to be pulled out of the water, and to couer them well with boughes, determining immediately to depart by land.

Danger of drawning.

Whale ouerrurneth a Ca-

11ha Grande.

That night that we came to Paratee, there came a Cariball to vs, called Alecio, from a Towne A caniball capcalled lequerequere, this Town lyeth by the Sra fide right ouer against the Iland of San Sebastian. This Inates brought eightie Bow-men with him, offering himselfe with all his companie to goe with our Captaine. The next day we departed on our voyage, through the Mountaines, at night the Captaine feeing Alecia the Camball lying on the ground, tooke away the Net that I had to fleene in, and gaus it to the Caniball, I being faine to lie vpon the earth. I complayned to some of the Portugals of the wrong that the Captaine did vie vnto mee: they answered, that his father fent me in that voyage onely to be made away; I replyed, Gods will be done. After wee had gone on our journey three dayes, we came to the bottom of a great Mountaine, called by the Indians, Paranageacano, that is in our language, The fight of the Sea; this Mountaine is to high, that 60 wee were three dayes going vp, and three dayes also going downe. Two dayes after wee were descended we came into a faire champaine Countrie like meadow ground with long graffe. and great store of Pine trees, where we lodged that night in a bottom, in which we killed aboue fixe hundred Snakes; it was the will of God that one Indian, called Ieronimo, was bit by them, and

taine with eightic jollowers.

Three dayes

CHAP.2.S.2. M. Paracoua. R. Paracua, Sauages entertainment, travell, fibrits, 1213

not any more. This Indian prefently (welled, and his blond forung out of his eyes and his nailes. and fo he died.

After that we came to travell agains through the Mountaynes fome forty dayes, then wee came to a great River called Paracuona; which River wee paffed with things made of Canes tyed R. Paracuona topether with withes, which the Portneals call langardas. We were fouredayes before we paf- how paffed. fed over this River it was to great, and ranne fo fwift. After that, wee trapelled againe fome 20. daves till we came to a great Mountayne called Panace mano apacone, we were foure dayes going up this Mountayne by reason of the great showres of raine that we had, besides wee were very weake, and all our victuals were done. But hoping to find our enemies very foome, we did four edwes to our best so hold our comming up this hill, from fixe of the clocke in the morning, till it was two journey. of the clocke in the afternoone on a rainie day, the Captaine commanded every man to make his abode for that night; whereupon I fet downe my burthen , and went into the Mountaynes to out some boughes of a Tree called Sammambaya, to court vs from the raine, the weather was for cold, and I having travelled all day without meate was to feeble, that going to cut a bough, my Histonger of tword fell out of my hand, and I face vnder a Tree, where I had made mine end, if it had not bin death, for my deere friend Henry Barrawell; who leeing that I tarried long came to feeke me, and found me in such case, that I was not able neither to speake nor stand. After he had brought me to the Campe, he layed me by the fire, I recourred and was very well.

After we had passed this Mountayne of Parcena; wee transled in a kind of low wash ground; 20 there were great store of Camibals called Pories. Vpon a sudden there would come one 100 of them out of the Wood, and affoone as they had gotten any thing from vs, would be gone, wee knew not whether : and prefently there would come as many more. There we kept very good order, and had alway very good watch, for feare they should worke vs any Treason; for all our men were very weake; within foure dayes iourney from the aforefaid Mountayne, we came to the River of Paraena, where we had great flore of fifth, but nothing elfe to eate withall. At this R. Petaree. River, one day I going a fithing, being a very rainie day, three Indians that went with mee returned againe, and left me alone. As I would have come backe, I loft my way that I had gone with the Indians through the Wilderneffe, then I returned againe to the River fide, knowing thereby I could not misse my way, still going by the Riverside homewards where the Captaine was, He loseth hir

30 being fomewhat late, suddenly I came to a place where there were at least a 100, men and wo- wari men of those Portes. I thought I ficuld have died no other death, but these Canibals did mee no harme, but only tooke away my Knife and my fish-hooke, and gaue me of their meat they were eating, which was rofted Monkeyes. After I had eaten as much as I would, they made mee a thing of dry Canes that they had to fwimme youn the water, which in a meane space carried me where the Campe lay by the River fide. Theie Canibals told vs of a Towne within two dayes iourney, where we might get Peafe and Gunie Wheate, and some Roots of Caffam. In one day we passed Paryena; and the next day wee came to travell towards the Towne that the Peries had told vs of. We were seuen dayes betweene the River and the Towne, and when we came there, we found almost nothing but women, and asking for their Husbands, they told no vs that they had gone to warre against the Taymores, and that they had killed them all at this Towne. We found a little Ginnie Wheate, but it was not ripe, of the which we fed a weeke being there, these Cambal; are called Tapuyas. Wee went forward to other Townes of a kinde of Tapuyas. Canibals, called Waanawafons, that were hard by the Tapayas. Comming to one of their Townes, Waanawafons, there came twentie old men with woodden Swords in their hands, whooping and rejoycine, which is (as I have faid) their manner of bidding welcome. After they had done, they asked what was our determination; wee told them that wee came to warre against the Tamopes, then there came an old man vnto vs all painted with red and blue, with Bow and Arrowes in his hand, and a paire of slippers on his feete, and with one of his Daughters that had beene captine to a Portugall of Santumfence, which had runne away from her Mafter, with other Captines, and fo came againe to her father. This old man, by name Carywafan, came before our Captaine, and at this Porfonous Towne all our men both Indians and Portugals fell ficke by eating of a kinde of tweete pleasant fruit, fruit that was poyfon, and had it not beene for a Gentleman called Enefrio de (ay my Mafters Kinfman, who had a piece of Vnicornes home, we had all died. At this Towne we had nothing to eate but a few Potatoes. As we came through this Towne, all the Cambais Wasnaffees ranne away from vs, with all our clothes. Now the old man with tenne luftie young men went with vs, and guided vs betweene two Mountayns, continually vp a River from morning till night, for the space of forty dayes, we were neuer out of the water from morning till night that we should River. make our abode, and entred in the morning againe.

Our men were very weake, and almost starued with hunger. The Indians died , amazed (as Of Spirits that 60 fome of them faid) with a Spirit which they call Coropio, which did kill them, many would postedied the complaine that they were politifed with Spirits called Anafah. Those that were tormented killedthem, with this Spirit, would command themselves to be bound hand & foot with their Bow strings, Master Kniust he heard one Indian voon occasion of such possession, conferring with the Spirit and threatning, if the Spirits vied them so ill they would turne to the Christians ; and thereupon the Spi, it left the perion fo poffeffed.

afcending a Mountaine. Snak-s very venemous.

Hhbbb 3

Strange difcale.

After we had done travelling up the aforefaid River, wee came into a faire Champion Countrey, all full of Pine Trees, but the Apples were not ripe, and we could find nothing to eate, but here and there a little wilde Honey; wee trauelled at leaft a moneth; the Portugals beganne to difpaire, and threw away their Peeces, being not able to carrie their clothes. In all this mifery, Hard ferui:ude the Captayne made me carry two Muskets (as I hope to be faurd) and I was faine to waite voon him every day to helpe to make his lodging, and my friend Henry Baraway, was foill, that I was many times faine to carry him on my backe, and continually to leade him by the hand. In this march were were forced to eate all our Targets, which were made of raw Hides of Buffe; likewise we did ea e a Cowesskinne, which the Frier carried with him (as he went with vs) to couer his things which I ee faid Maffe withall from the raine, happie was hee who could get a Toad or Snake to eate. After wee had paffed those Champion Countreyes, where wee lost 180. 20 of our men, we came againe into the Mountaynes, and trauelled a great Hill called Esapuca: that is so lay, the Mountaine of long flones, for there we found blacke stones of a yard long, as round as if they were made of wood. When we came to the top of this Mountayne, wee were not able to goe downe, but as you shall heare. In those Mountaynes there are great store of withes that hang from the fides and the laquetyna Trees, wee tooke of those withes, and making them Steep descent fait to a great Tree , wee were faine to flide by them at the least one hundred fathomes. In those Mountaynes, we had great store of Palmitos and wilde Honey, and many kinde of

M.ferable fa-

The Canibals that guided vs told vs, within foure dayes wee should bee with our enemies the Ground Hony. Tamojes, but wee were aboue twentie dayes, wee came into a dry blacke Champion Countrey, 30 not having in it almost any grasse, there we found good store of Honey that the Bees made in the ground, likewise we found a kind of great Beast as bigge as a Beare, and like a Beare in the bodie, but it hath a nose of a yard long, and a faire great tayle all blacke and gray, this beaft putteth his tongue through Ant-hils, and when the Antes are all vpon his tongue, hee swalloweth them vp. After we had pailed this place, we came to a Mountayne called Etambe, that is to fay, the Mountagne of greene flones; we were in as great milery as euer we were. Then the Portugals affembled together, and told the Captayne that they thought that the Canibals did leade them wp and downe of purpose to destroy them. The Captayne called the old Caniball, and told him how long we had followed him, and how he told vs before, that in twenty dayes we might eafily goe from his Towne to the Towne of our enemies the Tameyes. The old man aniwered, that 40 within two dayes he would bring vs to the Towne of our enemies, if not he would lofe his head, and that all his company should be our slaves.

from Petoffs.

Vomits and was on the farther fide from vs , and on the fide that we were on, they had good flore of Mandioqua and Pealen. Wee came before the Towne in the Evening, and lay all night in ambush. thinking to take some of them the next morning comming for their meate. That night our men eate to much Mandoco, that when we thought we should have had some skirmish, they lay all vomiting that they were not able to stand, and thirteene of them died. The next morning, when we faw no bodie ftir, we maruelled, thinking that they were in ambuth for vs, the Porta- 50 gals durft not goe over the River, for feare thereof. Then the Captayne commanded me to paffe ouer the River, the which I did vpon a woodden Target, when I came into the Towne, there was nothing but a few great pots that the Cambals had left full of greene VI heate, great flore of town for laken. Pumpions, and two great Estridges, I tooke most of the provision that I found, and layed it altogether for the Captayne, then I called for the company that they might not feare, for there was no body. At this place wee remayned two moneths, here the Captayne reaped the grounds, that the Indians had planted with Mandioque, commanding every man to make meale for his prouition homewardes, for hee faid that from thencehee would returne. Wee had nothing to cate at this place but Potatoes and Cafani Meale that wee made our selues, and of that Within two dayes according as the old man faid, wee came before the Towne by a River fide, which River is called I awary, it taketh the head from the Mountayne Potofin in Pern, the Towne

By this Towne there was a bogge, and when it rained, there would bee great store of Frogges, of them wee would take in the night with Torches of Waxe to light vs, It fell out one night that I should have beene Sentinell at midnight, and about eleuen of the clocke it rained, then I fayd to my friend Henry Barrawell, I would to God shat one night you would goe and take

CHAP. 7. S.2. Fire-Snake killed: worfe Snakes farmining: Kniucts miferies by them. 1215

fome Frogget, for you know prefently I shall bee called to watch, with that hee went and presently returned agains without any thing, and told vs, that a great Snake was by the Snake which bogges, and that it leaped up and downe after him. Then the Indians laid, that it was a kinde leapes at the of Snake that flyeth at the fire, I asked Hemy Barraway where I might finde the Snake, hee fire. told me at such a place, then I tooke the handle of an Aze beeing of a heavie blacke wood, and a little Waxe Candle in a guard, because the Snake should not spie mee; and made it very readie. When I came to the place that my friend had told mee , I lighted my Torch, and was foncere the Snake, that it I would, I could not found her, this Snake had a great Frogge in her mouth, and affoone as thee law the fire, thee put the Frogge out of her mouth, and raying vo her skinnelike the scales of a great fish with her mouth open, shee offered to flye at mee , as to foone as her mouth was open, I drooke at her, and hit her on the head and the teeth, that I crushed her braines. Assoone as I had strooke her, I threw my Torch one way, and ranne halfe a doozen steps another way, the Snake made a great noyse in the water, but I looked still towards my Torch, to prooue if it were true that they would five in the fire, but when I faw no fuch thing, I went and tooke my Torch againe, and very warily went to the place, where I had ftrooke the Snake, where I faw all her head bloudie, and her eyes broken , and fo I killed her. When I had done, I tooke a withe and bound it to her forequarters, and dragged her home to the house where I lay, when I came home I asked if I had beene called to watch, the Paringall The Snake kile and Henry Barramay faid that no man had asked for me, then I tooke a Knife, and beganne to led-20 cure a piece of the Snake for the Captayne, and would have parted the reft among the reft. As I was parting, the Enfigne of our company came to the doore, I went and opened the doore, and afloone as hee came to mee, hee strooke mee with a cudgell. I not knowing why hee should yfe mee to, came and closed with him, to both of vs went to the ground, with that the Portorals that were in the houle came and parted vs , and asked him wherefore hee ftrooke mee. then the enfigne answered that the Captaine had rifen and found no body in the watch, to that they all answered, that no man had called mee, then hee commanded mee to goe before the Captaine : hee without hearing me ipeake , commanded two Indians to binde mee to a pofte. and commanded them to take the cords of their beds and whip me, I defired that the Captaine would heare the truth, and if hee found any fault in mee, I would according to Marshall Law 20 bee hanged. Before the Indians had vntyed their beds, there came in an ancient old man . by name lohn de Solo, Captaine of our Rere-guard, and with him forme twentie Portugals, that lay in the fame house where I lay. When they faw mee bound they told the Captaine that I was not in fault, for no man had called mee. Then the Captaine commanded mee to bee vn-

tyed, and bade mee goe to my Watch, I went home and fetched my Sword, and prefently came agains where I should have watched, and when I same there, I found him that had gone his way before, and faid to the Captaine before my face, that hee had called mee . and that I made him no answere, when I saw him there, I asked him if hee was not ashamed to appuich that which was a Lye? with that hee beganne to abuse mee in vile words. calling mee English Dogge and Heretique, when I faw my felfe difgraced by a passtry Me-40 fize, I tooke my Sword with both my hands, and strooke him on the head with the Hiles, that I made a great wound.

Then the Captaine commanded mee to bee fet in the Stockes, and bound my hands, where I He is fet in the lay all that night, and the next day in the afternoone, there came two Portugals and read cer- Stockes. taine Articles against mee, which the Captaine had caused to bee made, saying, that I had killed many ficke Indians when I had found them alone, and that I had defenued death by making a mutinie in the Court of Guard by striking, that was sufficient to make an vprore. After they had read all this, they bid mee prepare my selfe for death, and so went their wayes. Within halfe an houre after the Frier came to mee, and asked mee whether I would confesse or no, I told him that I had stolne nothing from no man, and as for my sinnes God knew the secrets of all hearts. so wherefore I had nothing to confesse to him. With that after many Oracions that hee made to mee, hee went his way. All the Portugals went to the Captaine entreating him to pardon me, but hee would not heare them, defiring God that he might neuer come into Christian Countres if hee did not hang mee. Ilay all day and night in the Stocks, till it was foure of the clocke the next morning. Then the Frier came to me againe, and told mee that my houre was very neere, and defired mee to prepare my felfe to dye like a Christian, I told him I hoped the Lord would

Betwixt fix and feuen of the clock, there came the enfigne, and a Scriuener, and two or three He is brought Portugals with them, and an Indian with a cord in his hand, and by the command of the Portion to execution. tugals put it about my necke, then I was carried to the place of execution : all the Portugals haue mercie voon me.

60 being about me, I faid, Gentlemen, the Captaine putteth me not to death for the offence that lately I haue done, but a grudge he holdeth against me fallely rumered by his Cosen, who is now present, because I would not faue him; and for that, and no other matter I am condemned at this prefent. As I was speaking, the Indian that should have beene my executioner.came from the top of the house, where I should have bin executed, and thrusting me on the side of the head faid. What doeft thou prate, knowest thou not that the Captaines Father fent thee hither that thou Honest Portu- might est wener returne? with that the Portugals checkt the Indian, and lober de fof flanding with Graned del Galbo, and Postino Abanos, yea, a great many Portugals faid, what authoritie hath the Captaine to hang this man, we come not in the Kings feruice, but for our owne profits, and he is but the Governours baffard Sonne; fo they commanded the execution to be flaied, then lobs de Solo went to the Captaine, and told him, Sir, we know not where we are, and marry of one men are dead, wherefore it is not convenient at this time, that we should weaken our felues for we know not if any of vs thall returne againe or not, wherefore weedefire you to pardon this Englishman, for he is as good a Souldier as any of vs, and the man that is hurt is not in danger. The Captaine Iwore a great oath, that I should dye; then loba de Sofo; and the reft of the Per- 10 tweels, bid him thew what authoritie he had to put me to death, and if he thew not authoritie from the King, I should not dve at that time, for they were to answere for me as well as he. The Captaine came out very angerly, and made great protestations against lobs de Sofe; that hee was an voholder of mutinies. John de Sofo faid, that he would answere to all that he alleadged. and fo I was released from death. After we had beene at this place, two moneths making our prouision, we went forward to another Towne, we found great store of Gmnie Wheate newly planted; here we remained three moneths, till the Wheate was ripe, from thence all the Company returned home but my felfe, and twelve vone men; we asked leave of the Captaine to goe to feeke our adventure. The Captaine saue vs leave to doe what we would; for mine owne part, I asked leave onely for feare to goe homewards, left the Captaine should worke me some mischiefe; likewise wee didall come, we durit not returne againe, for feare of the Pories, and Lepos Tominenos, and other Canibals, left they feein g vs weake, should betraie vs.

1216 Kninet escapes banging admentures eating Christall hill Gold Stones LIB VA

. . . d. III.

thinke we flould hardly get home, for we knew not where we were, and the way that we did

Hu strange transiles with twelve Portugals, whom the Sanages did cate. His life with the Canibals : and after that with the Portugals, from whom hee fleeth to Angola, is brought backe, and after manifold chances, is shipped to Lisbone.

And the tweltie aforefaid, tooks our leaue of the Captaine, determining to goe to the South Sea, rather then returne againe without any thing. The names of the Portugals were these. Francisco Tanares, Lewes de Pino, Gonsalo Fernandes, Tomas Delmare, Lewis Loello, Matheas del Galo, Iohn de Silnefa, Petro de Casta, Antonio fernandes Gorgedias, Manuell Caldera, and my selfe Anthony Kninet. After we had departed from our Captaine. we made a great Canoa of a barke of a tree, and went downe the River called lanary for the space of Ac a weeke, that we came where we found a little Village of fixe houses, and it seemed it had beene along time fithence any inhabitants were there; when we came to this Village we left our Canoa, and determined to goe by land. In this Towne we found great store of earthen Pots, and in some of them peeces of Gold tied at lines that the Indians fish withall, likewise we found Stones as greene as graffe, and great store of white glistering Stones like Christall, but many of them were blew and greene, red and white wonderfull faire to behold : when we faw the peeces of Gold and those Stones, we made accompt that we were very neere Potafin, then we tooke our way South-welt, and went vp a great Mountaine of Wildernesse. After that, we came to a Golden Rivers place of dry Browne earth, full of hils, rocks, and many small Rivers at the head; by many of thefe Rivers we found little peeces of Gold, as bigge as an Hafell nut, and great store in dust like fand. After which, we came into a faire Countrie, and we faw a great gliftering Mountaine before vs. ten daies before we could come to it, for when we came into the plaine Countrie. and Glift:ring Mountaine. the Ant-beares, little we came to the foote of this Mountaine, where we found great flore of Tamandres.

We went along by this Mountaine at the least twenty daies, before we could finde any way to paffe ouer it; at last we came to a River that paffed vinder it, here we determined to make fome thift to get through, fome of our company faid that they thought it best to goe still along by the foote of the Mountaine, rather then to venture to goe through; for they faid, if this watergoe not through, we are all calt away, for it is impossible to returne againe against this cur- 62 rent. Then I answered, friends, we may as well aduenture our lives now as we have done heretofore in many places, if not, we must make accompt to like here like wilde Beasts, where we shall have life as long as pleaseth God, without credit, name, or Religion: wherefore I thinke that our best way is to goe through if we can, for no doubt but God that hath hitherto delivewere out of the Mountaines, and the Sunne began to come to his height, wee were not able to trauaile against it, by the reason of the glistering, that dazeled our eyes. At the last, by little and red vs from dangers infinite, at this time will not for lake vs, and questionlesse if it be our fortunes rorraffe on the other fide, we shall finde either Spaniards or Indiane, for I am sure, that each of you to pane der the sound afaire day it is to be differred from the top of Potafin to this Mountaine, After I had thus spoken, the Portugal's determined to venture to goe through; we made a great thing of great Canes, three wards and a halfe broad, and fix yards long, that we might live downe and fleepe ypon it : we killed good flore of Tamandroes, and rofted them very dry for our prouifion for we knew not how long we should be in the vaute.

CHAP.7. S.3. Terrible Caue-passage. Worse throat-passage. Kniucts Sauage-life. 1217

After we had made all ready, taking good store of wood with vs, commending our selves to God, we put our felues into the vaut, which made fuch a noise with the running of the water, that we thought it had beene tome inchantment. We went in on munday morning, and we came out on a morning (whether we were two dayes or one in the vault I know not.) As soone as we perceited light we were very glad, but when we came out, we law on every fide houses. then we tooke counted what was the best for vs to doe, to hide our felues, and see if we could raffe the Townes in the night, or to goe and submit our tekies to the Indians : we all agreed, that the best was to goe to them; then I laid, well friends, fithence we have agreed, let vs fully determine here what we shall doe and say, for questionlesse, they will examine vs what we are, and from whence we came; then the Portugals faid, we will tell them that we are Portugals, then I answered, I will tell them that I am a French man. We went towards their houses, who as foone as they had perceived vs came out hooping and hollowing with their Bowes and Arrows:

and when they came vnto vs they bound our hands, and tied cords about our middles, and foled vs to their houses: picseutly there came two or three old men, and asked what we were then the Portugals answered, that they were Portugals, and I, that I was a French man.

Within two hours after they had examined vs, they tooke one of the Portugals, and tied a The Indiana new roape about his middle, and carried him into a yard, with three Indians holding a cord on kils the Persuthe one fide, and three on the other fide, and the Portugal in the middeft, there came an old man, salt, and after the one fide, and thing, they be their and salt him that he finally had a middle of the first head and salt he first he finally had a middle of the first head a middle of the first head and salt he first head a middle of the first head and salt head a middle of the first head a an bid him looke on all things, that he liked, and told him that he fould bid them farewell, for hee fould fee them no more: then there came a luftie youg man, with his armes and face died red, and faid vnto him, doest thou fee me, I am be that bath killed many of thy Nation, and will kill thee. After he had spake all this, he came behinde the Portugell, and throoke him on the nape of the necke, Dinelish 30 that he felled him to the ground, and after hee was downe gaue him another that hee killed Butchers him; then they tooke the tooth of a Conie and opened all the upper skinne, so they tooke him by the head and the feete, and held him in the flame of the fire: after that, rubbing him with their hands, all the upper skin came of, and the flesh remained white, then they cut off his head. and gaue it to him : they tooke the guts, and gaue them to the women, after which they iointed him joint by joint, first hands, then elbowes, and so all the body. After which, they fent to eucry housea peece, then they fell a dancing, and all the women made great store of Wine: the next day they boiled every joint in a great pot of water, because their wives and children might eace of the broth; for the space of three dayes they did nothing but dance and drinke day and night : after that they killed another in the fame manner as you have heard, and so served all but 40 my felfe.

When I faw all the Portugals dead, I looked for the fame, but after the Indians had done with Hatted of the the Feafts, they came unto me and faid, Feare not, for your ancestors, have beene our friends, and we Tanosesso the theirs, but the Portugals are our enemies, and make vs flanes, wherefore we have done with them as you Pertugals. have Gene. After I had heard what they faid, I told them I had no reason to scare, for I knew they were my friends, and not mine enemies, and that I had bin a long time prifoner to the

When I had bin two moneths with these Indians called the Tamoyes, they went to warre against Tomomines, and comming to fight, we had almost lost the field, for the Tamomines were a great many more, to that we were faine to take the Mountaine : when I faw the rufticall manner

50 of their fight, that without any order they would fet vpon their enemies like Buls, I taught them how to fet themselves in Battaile, and to lye in ambush, and how to retire and draw their enemies into a frate: by this meanes, we had alwayes the upper hand of our enemies, and I was them to fight held in great accompt amongst them, for they would never goe to the field, except I went with them: in a short time we gave so many battailes to the Tomominos, that we made them leave their Countrey, and flye further from vs: fo wee lived in peace. The Tamores offered mee many wines, but I refused, faying it was not our custome to take wines out of our Countrey. After wee had conquered the Tomommes, wee lived in peace for the space of foure moneths, and then there came another kinde of Caribals, called Topinaques. These made their Topinaques. Towne very neere vs , at a Mountaine called by the Indians Taminua (that is) the Mountaine

60 of Gold. When we heard of them, we prepared to make warre against them, wee went fine thousand Mountaine of firong, in fine dayes journey we came before the Towne; but we being espied, they left their Gode. Towns and fled, we followed them tenne daies, taking many old men and women, which as we tooke them we killed: we followed them till we came to a great River fide, where we durit not raffe for feare left the enemy (hould ouercome vs at the landing, fo we returned home agains. from the River called Morgege, where we remayned ftill in peace, for the space of eight moneths till we removed our felues.

His rich appa-

At this place I went all naked with out any thing, onely a few leaves I tied before mee for shame. One day going all alone a fishing for pleasures sake, I sae downe remembring my selfe in what flate I was, and thinking what I had beene, I began to curse the time that eyer I heard the name of the Sea, and grieued to thinke how fond I was to forfake my natural! Countrey where I wanted nothing : then was I out of all hope either to fee Countrey or Christian againet fitting by the River in thefe paffionate thoughts, there came on old Indian one of the chiefelt of them. and beganne to talke with me faying. It was a good time with them when they dwelt at Cape to Frio, for then they had trade with the Frenchmen, and wanted nothing, but now they had nev-Henerswades ther Kniues nor Hatchets, nor nothing elfe, but hued in great necessitie, with that I answered them to feeke I did heartily wish, that he and his company would goe and dwell by the Sea-coast, without danger of Portugals, whereupon hee and I went home together, and the Indian reported in the Towns what I had faid voto him: the next morning there came (at the leaft) twenty of the chiefelt of them into the house where I lay, and asked me if I knew my Place certains, where they might finde any French Ships: I told them that I was fure betwixt the River of Plate, and a Riuer called by the Portugals Dos Patos, we should finde French men, and if we did not, that here the Portugal's could not hurt vs. Moreover, it were better to dwell by the Sea fide, where we should have plenty of al things, then where we did, where we had nothing to live you but roots. 30 These old men went and told the people, which all defired to see the coast, so they resolved, and making prouision, we departed from our abode, being thirry thousand of vs.

New discous-

Amazons, not a one-breaft:d

Nation, but

warlike wo-

stones, we came to a faire fandie Countrie, through which we trauelled some twentie dayes, and we went Northward for feare of comming into the Countrie where there are great store of Spamiards, and this Countrie is it felfe very populous, and are friends with the Spaniards. Therefore we changed our course and travelled all Northward, till we came into the Countrie of the Amafons, which the Indians call Mandioculyanas, then we tooke our course Southward againe. I would have perswaded the Tamores to have warred against the Amasons, but they durit not, for they faid, we know that their Countrie is very populous, and we shall be all killed. After wee came 20 to the head of the River, called Patos, there we found Canoas of barkes of trees that came downe the River fonce eight dayes, then wee found the River very broad, and many trees cut by the Riuers fide, whereby we suspected that we were neere the Sea fide, or some Town of the Waanaffer, for the Wasnaffes never inhabit far from the coast. When the Indians faw these tokens of abidances they asked me what I thought was best to doe: I answerd, I thought it best to hide our selves, and to fend some nine or ten yong men to see if they could spie any Towne, so we to circle them in their houses in the night : to that they all agreed, and ten of them were fent, they returned again at night without fight of any Towne, but they faid there went a great path by the River fide, and brought peeces of Cords that they found in the way with them. Hence we judged that we thould finde fome Towne by the River fide, and determined to goe downe the River in the night with our Canoas, to fee if we could finde the Towne.

After we had passed many a Hill, all Wildernesse and Rivers, where wee found many precious

"About foure of the clocke we came to a faire Bay, and faw the Sea; and doubling a point of the theare we espied a Towne, then as fast as we could we landed our men, and the day began to be cleare, and one of the Town comming out to the Sea fide, espied vs, whereupon all the Town role up in armes, and we had a great skirmish. We were many more in number, and had farre better order, so we put them to flight killing a great many of them : wee tooke three hundred prisoners men and women, which the Tamojes killed and did eate afterwards. These Indians are called Carisos. After we had put them to flight they went to Saint Vincents by land, and craued fuccour of the Portugals. At this Towne of the Carios we found great store of provision, Cassaui. Ginnie Wheate, Potatoes, Plantons, Pumpions, and all other fuch like that the Countrie yeeldeth, 50 and in great plenty : there likewife we found great flore of Ryals of eight, for there had beenea Caruell cait away in that place not long before, and the Spaniards were gone before by land to Bonas Ayres in the River of Place: with these Indians the Portugals had peace, but now they are in warre with them againe.

Some of the Carios went to the River of Plate to crave succour, others, as I said before, came They are affair to the Town of Saint Vincents: from Saint Vincents, newes was fent to the River of laners, from led by the Por- thence the Portugals made a Nauie of Canoas and Caruels, of the which the Governours some Marten de Safa (which was come home from the River of Janary, where I departed from him) was come againe as Captaine of all the Portugals, and comming upon vs in the night, they leized our Towne: about three of the clocks, an Indian that came with the Portugals beganne to fpeake very load to the men of the Towne, that they should not stirre, for if they stirred they 60 should be all put to the sword. When the Tamojes heard the Indian speake, they began to rusell with their Bowes and Arrowes, making a great noise, with that the Portugals shot of a Peece, then they all lay downe in their beds, like men without lines or foules; when the day was cleare, and my Mafters Sonne faw me adue, he bleft himfelfe, and asked me what was become of my companions, I told him that the ludium had killed them, and eaten them. After that about Heretumeth ten of the clocke, all the Indians were brought out of their houses, and being examined, some or his Mifter. them (aid that I bid them kill them, & if many of them had not been, I had died for it, but it was The Portugils Gods will to discouer the truth by their own mouthes; then the Portugals killed all the old men kill 10000 and and women, and all those that had beene particuler actors of the Portugals deaths, which were in Copting 200000 all 10000, and 20000, were parted among it them for their flaues. I came againe to my old Mafter, and was fent with the Tamoyes to a Sugar Mill that my Mafter had newly made. There I went (till to the woods with the flages to draw out great peeces of To Timber for the space of three moneths : then was newes brought from Cape could, that the Camibals, called Vartacalles, were come to make their abidance a little Southward of the Cape, in certaine places, where before the Tamoyes had inhabited. The Saluador Coria de Sala fent his Sonne Ganfalo Corea de Safa, with whom I went againft my will. We trauelled eight daves by the Seatide, where we had alwayes great flore of Fish. After that we came to a place. called the Scance, visit is to fay, the Stone bonfe, as fitting a thing as euer I faw, for it vvas a great huge rocke, Tale of Sint and it hath an entrance like a great doore, voichin it, as any Hall in England; the Indians fay that Thomas, future. there Saint Thomas did Preach to their forefathers there: hard by standeth a Stone as bigge as ring like Saint foure great Canons, and it standeth vpon the ground vpon foure stones little bigger then a mans Frincies Lee finger. like stickes; the Indians say that was a miracle which the Saint shewed them, and that good. 20 that Stone had beene Wood : likewife by the Sea fide there are great Rockes, woon them I faw great flore of prints of the footing of bare feete; all which prints were of one bigneffe. They fay that the Saint called the Fishes of the Sea, and they heard him. From thence we went through the Wilderneffe, foure daves till we came to a great Mountaine, called Aboulanga retam; by the Sea fide of that Mountaine, we found a fmall Towne of Tamores, that had elegated in the time of the first conquest, that Saluador Corea de Sala made againit that kinde of people, and neuer were heard of till now that wee found them by chance. Old Captaine:

CHAP.7. S.2. Thousands flaine and taken. Tale of S. Thomas. Resolute Jauage. 1210

The Captaine of them was (as they she wed by signes) one hundred and twenty yeares old, and ver was very luftie : he had in his lippe a great hole, and on either fide of his cheekes a great hole. and in either of them a faire greene Stone. After we had taken this small Towne, wherein there 30 were fine hundred foules, we asked if they knew where the Wastacaffes were, they told vs all that they knew very well, to in three dayes they guided vs into a low leggie Countrie, where the Wastacaffes were: when we came to their habitation, this Aboufanga came among the thickelt of the Portnoals, and faid thefe words; He that never faw Abonfanoalet him looke on me now. and they that dare follow me shall see my valour: and so with his Boweand his Arrowes, he ran amongst the thickest of the enemy, where he was shot with one and twenty Arrowes. In that enterprise we all faw him kill three of the Wartacaffer. When we came to the fight, all the Wartacaffes ranne away & we tooke but one of them: for all the Abonfanga was fo hurt, he lived toure houres: the Pertugals asked him why he had beene so desperate ? he told them that he had lived all his life a free man, and that he had beene a great warrier, and would rather dye then be their High spirit of a 40 Captine. Then he asked Baptisme, and defired them that they would tell him somewhat of God, Sauage.

for he faid what foeuer they told him he would beleeue; the Portugall Frier told him that God was the fauer of foules and the giver of life, and that if he truely repented and would be Baptifed he should be faued; he answered, that all that was told him he truely beleeved, and debred that with speede he might be Baptised, and so died, calling to God for mercy till his last houre: from this place we returned home.

After we came home again, his fon Gonfalo Corea de Safa, reported fo well of me, that his father commanded me to waite on him whither locuer he went: newes came at that time from Portugall of a Nauie of Shippes out of England, that were come to Brafil; whereupon the Gouernour commanded a Fore to be made of his owne cost vpon a rocke that standeth on the mouth of the ha-

50 uen, so neere the River side, that three moneths after it was done, the Sea carried it away, with What became all the Ordnance in it. I have told you before that three moneths after I was taken, the Defire of the 13, mon came from the Straits to a great Hand, where fixteene of her men were flaine, and one taken, by (fo many M. name Andrew Towers : this man was a Philitian, and did many cures, the Portugals tooke him lane reckofor a Sorcerer, for he would prognosticate many things; he had but one eye, and the Portugal, neth) left our faid that in his eye which was out, he had a familier : this man tooke vpon him to make a deuile his Ship. to take the peeces of Ordnance out of the Sea, which was this; he caused to be made a suite of Leather all greafed and pitched, that no water could enter into it, then he caused a great head to be made all pitched, with a great noie, & at the note were three bladders, and at the mouth two; he intifed me to vindertake to goe down into the Sea in that, faying it was very easie to be done. Andrew Town

60 I told him, that if I might be well recompensed, I would venture my life to doe it; then he made deuise, it knowne to the Gouernor, that if I were well paid, I would venture my life, then the Gouernour called me and faid. I will give you ten thousand Crownes, and a Pasport to goe for your Countrie, or whether you will, if you put a Ring into the eare of one of the Peeces. I told him, I would doe my beft by Gods helpe.

Afcer

His mad aduentare.

Mallangano 1

in Affice DCC

His etcape to

And Battell.

Angola.

After the deuile of Leather was made, most of the Portugals went to the place, where the pieces were loft with great folemnitie, praying to God to fend me good lucke. Putting on the fitte of Lether. I was call into the Sea in eighteene fathome deepe, with a mightie great from twed about me. The head was to bigge, all pitched and tarred, that the weight of the fione (for it was great only) carried me downe, and it was a great paine vnto me, for the weight of the stone carried me downeward, and the water by reason of the head bare mee vpward, that I thought the cord I was tied withall, would have cut me in pieces. When I felt my felfe fo tormented. I tooke a Knife that was tyed in my hand, and cut the cord, and affoone as I came aboue water. I tore the bladders from my face, and cut my fure before, for I was almost stifled, and for the space of a moneth, I knew not what I did.

Continually I delired my Mafter, to give meleave to get my living, intending to come into my Countrey, but the Gouernour, would not let me goe from him. When I faw no meanes to get leave of my Mafter, I determined to runne away to Angola; for to ferue the King as a Souldier in Mallangano, till fuch time that I might paffe my felre to the King of Anteca, which warreth against the Portugals, and so have come through Prester Johns Countrey into Turkie. On the fenen and twentieth day of June 1597 I embarked my felfe voknowne to my Mafter in a fmall thip of one Emanuell Andrea, for to come for Angola. In this Voyage wee were driven fo neere the Cape of Good Hope, that we thought all of vs should have been east away, the Seas are there To great; and by reaton of the current they brake in fuch fort, that no shippe is able to endure. There we brake both our mayne mast and our Melen. I: pleased God to send vs the wind East- 20 ward, which brought vs to our defired Harbour Angola. Wee had beene fine monethes in our Voyage, and by that meanes other shippes that departed two monethes after vs were there before vs. when I heard that there were thips of the River of Ienero, I durit not goe alhoare for feare of being knowne of some of the Portugals, the next day after that wee came into the Harbour: there came a great Boate aboord vs, to aske if wee would fell any Caffani meale, wee told them we would, and asked them whether they went with their Boate, they answered, that they tarried for the tyde to goe up to the River of Guar fa Tomafongano, then I thought it a fit time for my purpole, and so embarked my felfe in the Barke, the Portugals maruelled to fee mee goe willingly to Masangono; for there men dye like Chickens, and no man will goe thither if he can choose. Nine daves we were going up the River of Guanfa, in which time two Portugall Souldiers dyed, the Countrey is fo not that it pierceth their hearts, three dayes after I had beene in Ma-Gangano, Don Francisco de Mendosa Fortado, the Gouernour of the Citie of Congo, having receiued a Letter from Saluador Coria de Safa, who was his great friend, fent a Purlumant for me, who brought me by Land through the King of Congos Countrey, and in fixe dayes we came to a Towne called Saint Francis, (where the Gouernour was) hard by the Kingdome of Manicongo, when I came before the Gouernour hee vfed mee very kindly in wordes, and asked mee, what I meant to cast my felfe away wilfully in Masangano, then I told him , how long I had ferued Saluador Corsa de Safa ; and in how many dangers I had beene for him and his Sonne, without ever having any recompence of any of them, and there- 40 fore I thought it better to venture my life in the Kings feruice, then to line his Bond-flaue. The lent backe to Governour commanded me to be carried to Angola, and charged a paire of bolts to bee put vpon my legges, because I should not runne away. About a fortnight after I was sent backe againe in a Carnell of Francis Lewes, and in two moneths we arrived in the River of lenero, and I was car-Nil habet infaried with my bol.s on my legges before the Gouernour; when he faw me, hee beganne to laugh

rie well.

lix paupertas aurus inte. And to least with mee, faying, that I was welcome out of England. So after many leasts hee dunius hombies Captain Cocke.

He is raken &

After I had beene with the Governour agains fome two monethes, then came a small man of Warre to great Hand, the Captaines name was Abram Cocke, he lay in waite for the ships of the 50 Riper of Plate, and had taken them if it had not beene for five of his men, that ranne away with his Boate, that discouered his beeing there, for within a seuennight after hee was gone, three Carnels came into the lame Road where he was. Thele five men were taken by a Frier that came from San Uncents, and were brought to the River of lenero, I being at this time in some account with the Gouernour, fauoured them aswell as I could, especially one of them, by name Richard Bett, becaufe that they all faid, that hee was a Gentleman, after that wee had beene in the Towne together about some three moneths, one of them called Thomas Cooper , being married, had his house by the Sea lide, where he vied his Trade, we were then nine Englishmen, and three Dutchmen, and wee determined when the shipping came from the Riuer of Plate, that wee Heixis perfidi. Would take one of them comming into the Harbour, this Heixi alwayes went with me to a Por- 60 Heiris berhal. oulnelle tohis tugals house where I was very well beloued. One night hee comes into the house, and steales a-Countrimen, way a boxe; that had fixtie Rialls of eight in it, and two or three pieces of Holland, I defired him to reflore the fame, but this Hesse being a fwaggering companion vied me most vilely in words, and went and told the Gouernour, what wee all had determined, and faid that wee were Here-

'pake, hee bade pull off my boles from my legges, and gaue mee cloth, and vied mee ve-

rickes, and that he himfelfe was a Catholicke, that day at night I should have stolne the Key of the Kings Store-house to have taken Muskers and Powder, and have carried it to Thomas Courses houle, but it was Gods will that he had accused ve before I had done it, or elfe we had beene all hanged for it. We being all before the Gouernour, and denying that we had ever meant any such matter Heart faid, Sir, fend to Thomas Coopers house, and your hall find 20; Moskets and nowder. that Anthony hath Rolne out of the Kings Store-house for that purpole, if your Worthip find it not to, fay that I am a lier, and a falle dealer. Then the Governour fent vs all to Prifpin, & himselfe and Heist, went to T. Coppers house, where they found no finch matter. He went to the Kines Store-house and faw that nothing was stirred; w' eremon hee was somewhat apery with To Heire, because he had taken him with an vntruth, and taid, that he never faw men of to perverse and vile condition as we were to feeke the defituation of each other. Vpon oceafion of this Mexit Heists milera his ill demeanure not long after, the Conernourient him to Angela, and from thence Don Franchic dea h. cifco fent him to Mafangano, where he dyed in a milerable effete. Prefently after that Andrew Towres, was accused for eating fieth on the Friday, and for that was put in pricen, and paid too. Rials of eight, and was fet at libertie, within a moneth after he had bin out of prilon, he rawaway to Fernambucke. the Gouernour being informed of ittent two small Carnels after him to bring him back againetin one of the small Carnels went his some Garfalo Corcade Safa, and the High Priests Nephew, and a great many more young Gentlemen. After they were out on the Mayne. and almost abourd of the ship that Andrew Towers was in on a sudden, there came a great storme. 20 that the small Caruell that the Gouernours forme was in, could not endure the Sea, but was fain to run on thore on the Coast, where three of their company were cast away, one of them begins the High Priefts Nephew, and I thinke that they had bin all drowned, if it had not bin for Martin de Safa, that was at that place with 100. Haves making Bratill ready for a thip of his Fathers, the other Caruell followed him to Fernambuque, and brought him backe againe to the River of Ienero, where hee was put in prison and should have bin hanged, but that all the Towne begged him, he was fent to Majongona where he dyed.

Anno Dom. 1598. there came two Dutch thips being Captaine of them; lafter Fernandes a Two Dutch Dutchman, and leave of the Governour after he had the wed his Licence out of Portugally fet all thips, his goods on the re, and had bought and fold for the space of titree monethes in the Towne, and 20 made great store of money. At the time of his going away, the Kings Officers faid that his Licence was not good, and would have stopped his ships, then the Governour faid, why looked you not to that before, feeing I gave them leave to come in your words, faying, that his difpatch was good, answere it how you can, for feeling he came in with leave and upon my word he shall goe out without any hearing, and so he departed for Angela.

After that, the Gouernor General of all the Coast of Brafil; Don Francisco de Sala; came to the River of Ieners, with two Hulkes, and being enformed that Infper Fernandes was at Angola, her fent a Caraell thither, that his ships should be kept for the King, her hearing of it went about his ships, and went away in spight of the Portugals; the same yeere thete came Francisco de mondunfa de vefconfales for Gouernour to my Matters place, that day the Hulke which the new Goao uernour was in, came to the mouth of the Hauen, the Governour Saluador Corea de Safa; was at a Sugar-mil that he had newly finished. The aforesaid, when the came to the mouth of the Hauen beganne to shoot off her Ordnance, the Gouernour not knowing what it should bee, pretently caused a great Canoa to bee made readie, for immediately, hee would goe to the Towne to see what was the matter, within halfe an houre after we had ben out at Sea, to come to the Towne. what was the matter, writing marte an industry and the Canoa, there my Matter had bin caft away, if God first, He fueth his and I had not laid hands on him, for all his flaues fwamme away to the shore, and Henry Barra- Haster, was with them, only I, and Domingos Gomes a Molato flaue that my Matter carried with him in the Sea, and betweene vs, we got him to the Canoa, where he held fast, till wee drew neere the shore, where the Sea brake like Mountaynes, there we had like to have bin all cast away for the Sea would calt ve against the Hils of fand , and carrie vs backe againe to the Sea; after I had gor my felfe ashore, I looked towards the Sea, and faw my Master come in a great wane, and as the wave brake, I and my deere friend Domingos Gomes tooke hold of him and dragged him our of the Sea; but we both thought that hee would have dyed, for hee could not speake, then wee tooke him betweene vs by the legges vpon our shoulders, and made him vomit a great deale of water, and forecoursed him, when I faw him well, I told him that the Sea knew no Gotternours better then other men, thenext day the Governour went home by land, and found the other Governour in the Towne, for whole comming I did not a little reloyce, for then I thought the time was come that I long had defired, hoping thortly to come into my Countrey.

In the same yeere there came foure Hollanders, and anchored before the Citie in the mouth of Co the Hauen, ti en all the Towne rose vp in Armes, my Master was at his Sugar-mill, and I remayned in the Towne to wayte on my Miftris. When fine faw the Portugals runne up and downe with their Armes, the commanded me to take a Musket, and bade mee goe to one of the Forts, the which I did according to her command: the new Governour came to the Fort where I was, and viewed the men that were in the Fort, and commanded one of his men to give vs

Powder and thot. After I had spoken with the new Gouernour (who liked mee very well, because he said I was ready with my Peece, and praysed the English Nation to be very good Souldiers,) One John de Selnera told him, that he were best take heed of me, that I ranne not away to the Hollanders, for I had done greater matters then that, and that he knew I made no account to from abound of them in the night voon any piece of wood, and rehearfed many things that I had adventured in the time that my Mafter was Governour. The new Governour came and tooke me by the hand, and carried mee to Prison, where I lay 27. dayes, till the Hulkes were departed from the mouth of the Hauen, and went to Great Hand, then I was fet at libertie. After that the Governour Generall had beene at San Vincents some two moneths, there came a great Hulke of Amsterdam, called the Golden World, and a Captaine that was called Lawrence Buter, the to Hulke had beene at Saint Thomas Iland, and an Iland called the Prince, and from thence to the Straits of Magellan, where many of her men dyed, and by contrary wind they were compelled to returne to the Coast of Brafill, this Hulke comming to San Vincent, fent her Boate to tell the Governour that they were Merchants, and that if they would give them leave, they would graffigue with them, the Gouernour Generall made them a Certificate under his hand and Seale, that they should have no wrong but pay the Kings Custome and goe their wayes when they would. and whether they would: with that the Captaine of the Hulke put into the Harbour: & commanded his goods to be fet on shore. Every day he was visited by the Governour Generall abourd his thip, and promifed him great courtefie. After that the Captayne had landed all his goods, and mott of all the Hollanders were ashore, a great many Portugals went abourd the Hulke with Git- 20 ternes finging and playing. When the Flemmings faw them come in that fort they mistrusted nothing, the Portugals danced in the ship and dranke with the Flemmings, and vpon a sudden when the Flowmores thought least of them, they drew their Swords and killed two of them, and poffest them selves of the Hulke for the King.

In the beginning of the yeare of the Lord 1599, there came nine Hulkes before the Citie of

Flemmine taken treche. roufly.

of Portugals.

Bacia, but they could do no good. After the Gouernour Generall had been some foure moneths at San Vincents, my Mafter had fome businesse thither, and I went with him, when we came to San Dincente the Governour Generall was departed fiftie leagues within the land, at a place where he was enformed of fome Mynes of Gold, but when he came thither, he found that they were not worth the working, then he determined to fend farther into the Land to a place called Esapufick, 30 I being there, and knowing the place was commanded by the Gouernour Generall to goe this Mynes of gold, ther, when we came to the aforetaid place, we found very fingular good Mynes, and wee brought of the foyle to the Gouernout Generall, and many small peeces or Gold that we found in mamy places where the water washed aways the Earth, the Gouernour Generall tooke it, paying vs for it more then it was worth, and fent it to the King with a Sey, for to confider whether it should be wrought or not, the Gouernor Generall fent likewise 40000, pounds worth of Plate, that he had wrought out of the Myne of Saint Paul, which is twelve leagues from San Vincents, In the time that I went to Examplishe, my Master was gone home, then I served as a Souldier for the space of three moneths, that shipping went to the River of Leners; then the Governour General I required my paines very honourably, and sent me backe against o my Master. After that 40 my Malter fent to a place called the Organs, which Hill is to bee feene from the River of Jenere, where we found a little Myne of Gold, and many good stones. There came a Hulke out of Spaine that brought a Bishop, and a Spanish Gouernor to goe from thence in small shipping to the River of Place, and from thence to Somma. A little after that, this Hulke arrived at the River of lenero. Divers frayes, where fell a difeafe in the Country like the meazels, but as bad as the plague, for in three mo. neths their dyed in the River of leners, aboue three thouland Indians and Portugals: this difeafe

Author, which bere followed, was generally in all parts of the Countrey. At this time going up and downe from the Sugaras in other pla- mill to the thip, in the night with a Barke lading of Brafill for the Hulke, with the Ayre one of ees of the Hi- my legges (welled, that I could not firre : it is common and very dangerous in those Countries florie, for bre- when a man is hot, to come in the Ayre, especially in the night, for being a hot Countrey, it hath 50 omitted. Legge fwolne

The Oreas

The fourteenth of August 1601. Saluador Corea de Safa; Gouernour of the River of lannary. embarked himselfe in the aforesaid Hulke with his Wife Donenes de Sofo, determining to make his Voyage to Fernambuque, we fayled East to Scaward. The fitteenth day wee kept still Eastward to the Sea. The fixteenth day we kept North-east, and about tenne of the clocke we had fight of the Cape a piercing ayre, and fuddenly striketh in any part of the bodie. I was very ill for the space of a

The feuenceenth, eighteenth and nineteenth, having the wind North-west, we kept stil Eastward for feare of the fands and cliffes called Aborollas , they lye betweene the Cape and Spirito Same. The twentieth day having the winde South, wee fayled our course North-east. This courie we kept till the five and twentieth of the moneth, then the winde turned Northward, we made East to Seas this course we were faine to keepe till the last day of the moneth, the first of February, the winde being at South-west wee sayied North-east along the Coast, till the seuenth day of the moneth. The eight day the Mafter and the Pilot tooke the height of the Sun.

and were ten degrees and an halfe Southward of the Line. As the Mafter and the Pilot were talking together concerning the Voyage, there came a Sea-foule, and fitting upon the backe flav. cast out two or three little fishes, with that a Spaniard called lasper Conquero, who had some experience of the Coalt, faid to the Master take heed, for I am afraid you are neerer the shoate, then you take your selfe to bee , for you know not how the current driveth you Westward voon the Coaft, the Flemmings bade him meddle with his owne bufineffe, and that they knew what to do without his counfell, the Pilot made himfelfe forty leagues from the shore, & directed his course North. The ninth day at midnight wee deforied Land, the Pilot prefently cast his Lead, and found but eight fathomes water, then he commanded the Saylers to cast about, the which they Danger at Sea 10 did, the wind being at North-east, and wee being neere the shore, could not beare vp to Sea: for wee faw Clifts both on the starboord and larboord fide of vs, and before wee could get out our

Anchor, we were driven so neere the Clifts on the lee side of vs, that wee had no other remedie. but to runne upon the Rockes, where we had beene all cast away, but that it was the pleasure of God to deliver vs, for wee lay with the Prow of our ship vpon one of the Rockes for the space of halfe an houre, and we were faine to cut off both our Masts, and to cast many chists over-boord. chinking it had beene impossible to saue any thing, but it was the will of God when wee least thought of it, that a great Sea brake ouer the Rocke, and put vs into eight fathomes water, betweene the Rockes and the Cliffes, fo by the providence of God, wee were delivered out of the aforefaid danger.

The next day we saw Cambali along the shore, then the Gouernour commanded mee to be see onshore to talke with the wilde people, and to know of them vpon what Coast wee were, or if we might soe to Fernambuque by land, the Captaine commanded a Mamaluke, called Antonia Mamaluke, of Fernandes to goe with me athore, but when we came to land, this Mamalake durit not goe on Mefizon shore, for feare of the wilde Cambals, so I went alone, and saluted them according to the fashion of the Country, then I enquired of them, how they called the place where they were they told of the Countrey, com a conquestion of the River of Toades, likewife they faid that we were River of toades, likewife they faid that we were River of toades. very neere the River of Saint Francis, and Northward, we had the River called Saint Michelland that they were flaues to the Portugals of Fernambucke, having driven cattle to Bara: and now they returned home againe. One of these bond-slaves went abourd the shippe with mee, and tal-30 ked with the Gouernour, the next day, the Gouernours Wife entreated her husband, that hee would leave the Hulke, and goe by land, the which he did at his wifes request, so commanding all his Treasure to be fet on thore, we left our thip, the Gouernour commanded the Master to take Fernambuquo if it were possible, if not that he should goe to Baya, and from thence into Portugall, with any ships that thould depart from thence, this Hulke had nine tunnes of Silver in her, Nine tuns of the which incharged to Diego de Guadro, by the Gouernour Generall Don Francisco de Sasa; and filuere at Fernambuquo, the charge of it was given to my Master Saluador Corea de Sasa, from the place where we were driven on thore to Fernambucke, is fortie leagues. In this journey from the Riner of Toades, or from the Clifts called Baylhas Deamrobrio did I and Domingos Gomes alway carrie a Boxe of pure Gold of my Mafters, some twelve leagues, from the aforelaid River of Toades to a 40 place called by the Indians V panafon; are three leagues, this V panafon; is a very fingular good place Places on the to take fresh water, from Vpauason to another River called Casuays, is one league from the Ca-Coash fuages, to the River of Saint Michellare foure leagues, at this River dwelleth a very rich Mamalucke, John de Reche, at this River we rested three dayes. The Governour Generall fraughted a fmall fisher Boare at this place, and determined to goe to Fernambuque in it.

The same day that wee made sayle in the smal Barke from the River of Saint Michell, there arose a great storme from that North-east, and we were faine to take the River of Saint Michels A florest. againe with great hazard of our lines, for the winde being very great, wee were driven youn a Rocke that lyeth South-west from the mouth of the River very neere the shore, all those that could iwimme leaped into the Sea; and so the Barke was lighter, and swamme off the Cliffe,

50 then the Gouernour and his Wife faid that they would goe by Land, fo the day after we departed from the Ruer of Saint Michels to another great River called Ves, this River is three leagues from Saint Michel, heere my small ship may enter and take fresh water, and kill great store of fresh fish, from thence we went to another River called I aquareaficke, from this place the Governour fent me and Antonio Fernandes before to a small Village to prouide some prouision against his comming, there was in our company a Portugalicalled Rafiel Penera, that perforge would go with vs, we told him that we had many great Rivers to paffe, and that it were better for him to tarrie with the Gouernour and his Wife, he not regarding our words went with vs. so we departed all three of vs, the next day after wee had departed from the Gouernour, wee came to a very faire River called Saint Antonio, that which we paffed vpon a langure made of Canes, from 60 thence wee went to a place called by the Indians Amrecuua Prisems, this is the Harbour of

Frenchmen, from thence wee came to a great faire River called Camarijuna, wee went on to the River of Stones. We departed from thence vp the River on a Mangada, made of three dry pofts pinde together, the next morning we landed in a faire Champaine Countrey, where we faw great flore of Cattle, and a Sugar-mill grinding of Canes, to which wee went, the Owner of the Mill was a high Dutchman, to whom we deligered the Gouernours Letter, the which as foone as hee had read, prefently he commanded two Beenes to be killed, and fent away with tenne bushels of Callani meale, and many Hens and Turkeyes, and wee two were very honourably yied torthe trace of a weeke that we were there, from thence wee departed to a place called Porto de Culus. three leagues from the Arefeene, this is an excellent Hauen for all weathers, and all the veere long, there is at the least two thousand chiffs of Sugar. At this place Mannell Masquerennas met vs with two hundred Horse, and then after two dayes rest we came to Fernambuone.

Twentie daves after we had beene in the Towne lelifiano Cuello, fent word to Manuell Mafquerennas, how that he was believched in Rio Grande, by the Putewaras, and that if he were nos prefently ayded by him, he should be forced to lote the Kings Towne, with the loffe of all their to liues . Mafquerennas prefently determined to got himfelfe , and left the Towne of Fernambuque in charge to my Matter Saluador Corea de Saa; and thus we departed from Fernambuque with toure hundred Porsugalls, and three thousand Indians, and in feuen dayes journey we came to Rie Grande, having many a brave skirmish, with divers Canibals in the way. As foone as wee were come refore the Towne our Captaine made a long speech to all the Poringals and Indians, incouraging them against those Infidels whole Armie was at the least fortie thousand strong, and defired them all to confesse to their Ghostly Fathers and to take the Communion, for the next morning he was resolved to give the onlet on his enemies, the which was very bravely performed, for the Caribals the nay before in a skirmish that they had, did take two hundred prisoners, and having killed many of them to eate, not expecting our comming in the chiefelt of their featt, and their 20 drinking we fet vpon them, the people of the Towns on the other fide, hearing the rumour, iffued for h, thus taking them on the fudden, wee made fuch flaughter among them, that they were forced to remooue their fiege, with the loffe of three thousand prisoners, and five thousand that were flaine. The King of these Canibals was called Peraiswath that 18 to fay, the finne of a fib, when this Heathen Prince faw himfelfe ouerthrowne with fo fmall a number as wee were, in comparison of his multitudes, he tent certayne of his men to Mannell Masquarennas to treate of peace, upon these conditions, that if he would release all those prisoners, and admit him and all his Nation to live as free men, that then hee and all his would fubmit themselves as subjects vato him and be baptized, which offer indeed wasaccepted of by Masquaremas, and thus one of the greated Prounces of all the North part of Brafilia, became fubicct to the King of Spaine. 30
This conquest beeing ended, our Captaine Generall Masquarennas presently built two strong Forts hard by the Towne, on the River fide, and fent to Fernambuquo for forty cast Peeces of Iron, placing twentie in either Fort, many Souldiers, got at this conquest very rich stones, both Diamonds, Rubies, and great store of blue Saphires, in some small Villages that stood by the Sea Ambergreece, fide. We found great store of Ambergreece, which the Indians call Parapoun Arepoty, here fortune was some what fauourable vnto me, for I got about fine hundred Crownes in this journey. After this co: quest was ended, Manuell Masquarennas returned againe to Fernambuquo.

Turner I was

acqu mied with and re-

Where I found my Matter Saluador Corea, de Saa, readie to fhip himtelfe for Portugal, in the fame thip that brought him from the River Inners, which by this time was come from Bayera, after wee were let ashore at the place, called Ous Bufibos de don Rodrigo, where we had all like to have 40 beene call away, at my returns from Rio grands to Fernambrano, I met with two Englishmen, the one of them a Gentleman called Thomas Turner, the other Muserane, Pilot of a Fly-boate of Malter Newtons a Merchant of London, Mafter Turner by my admice, went to the River of lanero, and from thence to Angola, where he made great profit of his Merchandize, for which hee thanked me after we met in England. Now to my storie. The thirteenth of August 1596. Salceiucd of him nador Corea de Saa, Lord Gouernour of the River of Innero, Captaine Generall of Spirito Santo, Porta Scoura, Santos, and San Vincent, departed from Fernambuquo, with fifteene Hulkes of after M.Kn.uet Hamborough, leven Fly-boates of Omden and Hamborough, and at the least twentie Carvels, all of them being laden with Sugars. The old Mary of Hamborough wherein the Gouernour came was Admirali, a thip of feuen hundred tunnes, the Owner whereof was called Hans Burgo, the 50 new Mary Vice-admirall a ship of fine hundred tunnes, the Owner called Adrian Cornelias, Rere-admirall a thip of fine hundred tunnes, the Owner called Conrado, likewife another great thip came with vs, called the George of one Hans Duke, the Danid and others, with this fleete we departed from Fornambaquo, the fifteenth of August 1599. and in two monethes fayle wee arrived at Lilbone, where I continued with the Gouernour in his house for the fpace of nine moneths, after which time I fell very ficke, and by this time having spent all that I brought with me from Brafill, my mifery great, and had beene a great deale greater, had it not beene for a vertuous English woman, which I met withall in a Nunnery, and in that time that I was riueth at Life there, thee made her approbation. By God first, and by her meanes I was faued from dying a most

His fickneffe,

After my comming to Lifbone, I fell very ficke in my Mafters house, where I lay in a backe roome having only a piece of an old mat for my bed, thus I lay for the space of sicke weekes, in the greatest mifery that could be, for first I was sicke of a burning Feuer, none came at mee but a poore flaue ofn.y Mafters, for before this time my deare friend Domingos Gomes was dead, this flave in love to me, fometimes would bring me meate and water, fometimes I was two daies without either meate or drinke : in the end of this fixe weekes, Thomas Mulerane and Mafter Thomas Turned came to me with some Dutchmen, and they amongst them gaue me twelve thillines : I had receited fo many bountifull gifts before of my vertuous friend Miltris Foller, that I would have chosen rather to have died, then she should have knowne my want; but Thomas Muserane of Rateliffe, knowing how much she favoured me, did periwade me to write vnto her. the which (although vn willingly) I did; presently vpon the receit of my letter, I received from her fiftie Crownes, and every day was visited from her, yet for all this my sicknesse grew to be such, that those that faw me thought that I could not escape, except I had the helpe of some 10 Doctor, then by her meanes, reporting that I was her kiniman, I was carried to the Kings Hospitall, where in two moneths I recoursed, being one and twentie times let bloud, and short-Iv after that I was past all danger, I was very kindely discharged out of the Hospitall, with ten shillings in my purie.

After I came forth of the Hospitall, I thought with my selfe, that the best way was to leave my Masters house, and determine how to get my liuing by some other meanes : with this determination I went to the Kings Custome house, where I met with many men of all Countries. there I met with fome Scotchmen, feeking of one that could fpeake the language; I hearing them, offered my feruice, & after that, I had asmany customers as I could turne my hands vnto, and got by them for interpreting veriegood maintenance: many Duich Merchants would have had me 20 gone backe againe in their affaires for Brafil, and the Indies , but I still had a delire first to come to England, thinking that there I should finde some meanes to set forth my selfe in some good fathion, but alas I finde that want hath no preferment : now for my comming into England, my determination was to have tarried somewhat longer then I did, but that my fortunes were and are euerlike to be croft, for living as I have told you in verie good fashion, maintaining my selfe verie well by foraine Merchants, that could not speake the Spanis tongue : one day amongst the reft in the Kings Cuftome house I met with one who told me that my Master Salmador Corea de Sas, did command me to come to him againe, if not, that he would make me be brought whither I would or no : in briefe, I made little account of his meffage, and held on my course with them by whom I lived, but now my old friend, imprisonment, and miserie comes againe, and 30 I am as farre from my long defired home as ever I was, for Saluador Corea de faa, feeing I would not come at him, incenst the Viceroy Christopher de Moneo against me, telling him what harme Imight doe if I got into my Countrie, I prefent ypon this was taken in the streete as if I had beene fome notorious villaine, carried to prifon, cast in a dungeon, where I lay (God be my witneffe) three daies without meate, or fight of light; in the end I espied a little glimpse of the light, and clambering up the wall, in delpaire and halfe madde, I broke downe a peece of a boord that flood before an Iron grate, there I cried out in fuch fort that a great many came to the window, where many pittied me, but none could helpe me, &c.

8. IIII.

The diners Nations of Sanages in Brasil, and the adiopning Regions: their dinersities of Conditions, States, Rites, Creatures, and other things remarkeable, which the Anthor observed in his many yeares manifold percerinations.

He Petinares are not of fo wilde and barbarous conditions as many other Prouinces are The Petinare 50 in Brasil; for if you come as a Merchant vnto them, they will trafficke with you, if as described.

Warrier, they will fight very valiantly. They are men of good stature, their bodies are all carued with very fine workes, and in their lips they make a hole with a Roe-bucks horne, and when they come to mans estate, they cut the hole of their lippes with a Cane, and then the hole being bigge they weare a greene Stone therein, and he that hath not this failing is counted a petant. Thefe Caribals have no religion, they may take as many wives as they will, or as they No fee forme can get : the women can take no more husbands but one, except her husband give her leave in of Religion, publike before them all, then the may take whom the will. When thefe Indians goe to the wars, Warres, their wives carry all their provision in Baskets on their backes : thefe Canibals goe all naked, and Region, inhabit on the Northerne parts of Brafil from Baya to Rio Grande: they have no certainty of Dict. so meate but rootes, and if they kill any wilde Beart or Foule in the Mountaines, when he comes home, looke to which of his wives he giveth that which he bringerh, with her he will lye that night; then the prefently goeth to the water, and watheth her telfe, and lying downe in a net, commandeth all the reft of her husbands wives to ferue her; which they doe very obediently Ricco of while for that day. When the time commeth that any woman is to be deliuered of Childe birth, the birth Sharkes denoured by Sharkes. Crocodiles. how and why raken.

Crab lice.

Cape, and all the Portugals and Blackamoores were eaten. I have icene them take great dog-fiftee by the taile, and dragge-them alhoare. In this place I have feene very great water Alioares (which we call in English Crocodiles) feuen yards long. This Crocodile hath great scales, and long clawes very vely to be seene. The Portugals, when they know where any of these great ones are, doe fifth for them with a chaine, and great Iron booke, and for bait they tie a Cock or a Hen to the booke, they take this paines to take him because his Cods are very great, and better then any muske. At this place, the Mountaines are fo full of Crab-lice, that weeknew not what to doe. they would flick in our skins that we could not get them off, but were faine to take drie flraw 10 and finge our felues, as you would finge Hogs, and to rid our felues of them. Here also wee had great flore of wilde Hogs, and a kinde of wilde Fe wle as bigge as Turkies, called Matas.

with any kinde of Nation, but doe ease all kinde of people, Frenchmen, Portugals, and Blacka.

moores. Many times whileft I was at the River of lanuarie, fome thips were cast away at this

Abanlanga, is the name of a valiant Caniball, that is adioyning hard by the Wataquazes, thefe Canibals are a kinde of the Tamores. Some twentie yeeres agone there was a Gouernour among them, called Mendelan, in the River of lanuarie, who made warre against the Tamoyes, and in the end over runall their Countrie or Province; onely this Aban anga remayned hidden in Dungeons and great Holes with fome fortie or fittle of his Countrimen. It was our chance going to warre with the Waraquazes to come through this Towne, and there we had newes by Abanfangas people, that he was at warre against the Wasaquazes; whereupon we made Spies to see if we could take him, before that we would fet upon the Wataquazes. One evening, we heard a great 20 noise of Canibale, then the Captaine lending out fome Spies, my felte being one, wee faw that it was Abanfanga, and his companie, that had raken fine Wataquazes, and with great stirre were killing of them to eate. Affoone as we had efpyed all that we could, wer returned agains to the Captaine, and told him what we had feene, and that night circled Abaufanes. and tooke him prijoner, with fixtie young men of his companie; wee asked of him our belt course, to warre against the Waraquazes, he told vs, that he was rather to take our aduice, then we to aske his, that he vied no policie but to fight in open field, and if we would, we should fee how he made warre ag .i. if his enemies : the next day, we being hard by the Inhabitants of the Wataquazes ; Aban. lanea came forth, and joyned all his companie together with leave of our Captaine, and affoone as they were all readie with their bowes and arrowes, hee ran into the thickest of his enemies. 30 with all his companie, where eighteene of his companie were prefently killed, and most of them fore hurt, he himfelte being that in one and twentie ports. In our fight he killed three Wataquazes before hee fell; the Portugals kept still by the woods side, and with their peeces killed one hundred and thirtie Wataquazes, the wilde people were fo amazed when they heard our peeces goe off, that they thought the Deuili had beene among it them, and every one began to flie as fait as he could, the Portugals following them, found Abaufanga in the field hurt, as you have heard. This Aban lane a affoone as he perceived the Portugals to stand amazed at him, defired them to tell him somewhat of God, for he said, that Frenchmen had told him that there was a God, and that he which beleeved in him should be faued. The Portugals telling him of their faith, hee faid that hee beleeved in that God, and defired to bee baptifed, and had his name given him John. For the 40 space of two houres that this Indian lived, hee did nothing but call upon God, and so ended his

The Wayanaffes. The Wayanaffes, inhabite eighteene leagues Southward of the River of lannarie, at a place called by the Portugals, Ilba Grande, that 18 to fay, The great Iland. Thele Canibals are of low itature, great bellies, and broad feet, very Cowards, of a reasonable good complexion. They doe not carne their bodies , neitheir doe they glorie fo much to eare mans flesh , as the Tamojes, the Tommenos, and other Canibals doe. The Women are bigge in the body, and very vgiv but they have very good faces. The Women of this Countrie doe paint their bodies and faces with a thing called in their language Urucu; it groweth in a round Cod like a beane, and that maketh a red inke like Oker; which maketh them feeme most vgly. The haire both of men and women 50 groweth long by the fides, and on the crowne all shaven like Franciscan Friars. These Cambals Ive in Nots made of barkes of trees, and likewife when they travell through the Wildernelle, fuch promition as they have, they carrie in little Nets at their backs; they are neuer without Tabacco. they effeeme it more then any thing that they have in their Countrie, and with it do heale their wounds, when they are hurt. When the Poringals doe stand in need of slaues, they doe come to Ilha Grande, and there they shall be fure to meet with some of the Wayanasses a fishing then they thew them Kniues, Beades, and Glasses, telling them what they would have for merchandise, and prefently they will goe to a place called in their language lawarapipo, which is their chiefelt Towne, and from thence bring all fuch as they meane to fell to the Sca fide, and as good cheape life, being one hundred and twentie yeeres of age, as he shewed vs by fignes.

Tabacco,

Panting.

as you can you may buy or them. The Topinaques inhabite at Saint Vincents, they are men of good stature, and of reasonable good complexion; their women are all painted with divers colours, and on their heads, they weare a thin barke of a tree like a Ribband : the Cambals eate mans flesh as other Cambals doe. they adore no Idoll , neither have they any kinde of Religion , onely when they kill any man, they all paint their bodies with a kinde of fruit, called Janipano, and all their heads are let with feathers, and great flones in their vnder-lips, with Rattles in their hands, and thus they will dance for three dayes together. I was amafed to fee how they would drinke a filthy drinke without breaking of their bellies, and asked them how they were able to fland to long and drinke to much of that filthy drinke; they answered me, that Tabacco did make them as fresh as if they had done nothing. Among these Caribals there is great store of gold in many Hills hard by the Sea tide, and now the Portugali have fome of those places. I would wee had the reit. Here I end to discourte any farther of the Canibals that dwell by the Sea fide, till I have told you of fuch Nations as I met withall when I went through the Countrie, and how I came agains to the Sea: I to have told you in the first booke of my travell, how that five or fixe yeeres after I had beene taken by the Portugals, I went to warre against the Canibals with the Portugals. Now by the grace of God, as neere as I can I have told you of all the Nations, that I faw, and converit with in nine moneths, that I trauelled through the Wildern-ffe with the Portneals, and a yeere and eleven moneths that I passed with the Canibals themselves.

CHAP.7. S.A. Bearded Sauages, civill, women faire, Weeping-welcome, Wild doos. 1220

He Canibals called Pories, inhabite at the least one hundred miles within the land, they are Canibals called noit like voto the Wayanaffes, men of low statute, they live onely on Pine nuts, and small Poiks. Cocos that are as bigge as Apples, but they have shills like Wall-nuts, somewhat harder, the In- Small Cocose dians call them Errires. They are of good complexion, and effeeme very much of clothes if they 20 can get them; the women are all painted with divers colours, as red, blue, and yellow; they are in peace with the Portugals, and warre with no Nation, neither will they eate mans flesh, if they have any other meate; they lie in little Nets made of barkes of trees, they have no houses but two or three boughs tyed together, couered with Palme leaves if it happen to raine. In this part of the Countrie I faw great store of Leopards, and Lions; the Indians call the Leopard, lawarile, and the Lions, lawarofon; and many great Cats of mountaine, which the Indians call Mar-

carabite. here you may have of the Indians for a Knife or a Combe, five or fixe Gallons of Bal-

After you have passed the famous River of Paraeyna, you shall come into a Countrie of Cari. The Mologabals, called Molopaques; they are much like unto Dutchmen in bigneffe, very faire of complexi- ques, bearded 20 on, they have all beards like other men; fo hath not any other kinde of Canbals, except it bee couller then here and there one. Most of them doe couer their prime parts, they are very civill in their beha-others. uiour : their Townes are very itrong, all circled with walls made, of earth and great logs , they have houses severall every man with his familie. They have only among it them whom they call Houses several Moronishaua, which is their King, but we taw no difference betweene him and the rest, but only the name, and he had (as I remember) thirteene wives, and no other had fo many. Among the thefe Canibals we found good itore of gold, the which they doe not esteeme, neither doe they vie Goldit for any thing , but to tie on their filhing lines , when iffy goe a fishing in the River of Para, where they take great itore of good fish. Para is beyond Paraeyna eightie leagues : thefe Indians River Parae doe not worke in the mynes for gold, as the Spaniards doe, but onely take such percesas they Mynes. 40 finde when the raine hath washt away the earth : for where the mynes of gold are there are no trees, but are drie Mountaines of black earth, which the Indians call Tainquara; and the Mountains where the Molopaques doe finds this great flore of gold, is called Exepararange: if these Ca. nibals had the knowlenge of God, I might bolily fay, that there are not any in the world like them. The women are goodly of person, faire of complexion, as our English women are, they Faire womens are very modest and civill in their behausour, you shall neuer see them laugh, they are people very capable to conceine any thing, they have their haire fo long, that they tie it about their middles with the barke of a tree, wherewithall they couer their nakedneffe, they efteeme very much of it. Their harre is of colours like our English women, fome yellow, fome white, fome browne : the women that have not long haire, to couer their nakednesse, doe weare a kinde of Furre, which they call Samyathwason. These Canibals doe cate mans flesh, I was not past nine or ten dayes among them, therefore I cannot relolue you further of their suffomes. In that time I was with them I taw no manner of Religion among them, they doe keepe very good order, obeferring times to eate their meate, at noone, and at night, and that doth not any other Nation 4- Mooleig mongit them, they are very cleanly in what locuer they doe.

Then wee came to a faire champaine Countrie, where wee found a kinde of Cambals, called The Motaya Motavas. Associate these Canibals heard of our being in their Countrie, they all lett their houfes, and came to meet vs dancing and finging, telling vs that they were very glad of our comming into their Countrie; they brought Ginny Wheat, Pepper, and divers kinde of rootes to prefenc vs, and craued our friendfhip, defiring vs, that we would aide them against the Tamoyes. We de-

60 firing nothing more, told them that to that purpose we were come. Assoone as wee came to the Weeping we houses of thete Can.bals, all the women would lit about vs, and laying their hands on our bodies, come. they would weepe most bitterly. After that, every one of them would bring such victuals as they had; fome brought boyled Frogs, others brought Serpents, and Snakes, which wee found Very good, other tome brought Munkers, and a kind of wilde Dogge that they kill in the Moun- Wilde Dog taines. The men brought vs mans flesh rosted, drie, as black as a coale, and told vs that it was of a Tamora that they had killed, and defired as that we would eate of it, thinking they had prefented vs a great and daintie dish. When they saw that wee refused to eate mans tiesh, they fell a laughing and some of them said that we knew not what was good meat. These Canibals are men of imali stature, browne of complexion, they goe all naked, they weare their haire (as now we doe in England) below their eares, and so doe the women. As their haire groweth long, they burne it with fire, making it equall fo artificially, that you cannot perceive but that it was one with Sizors. They will not have any haire grow on their eye-browes, nor on their chin, but still as it groweth they pull it away with a shell : their food is Guny wheat, and Roots, Frogs, Snakes, Serpents, Crocodiles, Monkeis, Dogs that they kill in the Wilderneffe, Leopards, and Cats of 19 Mountaine; all this is good meat among it them, and we found them very good, and were very glad when we could get them to eate.

The Legos.

Then we came to a kinde of Camball, called Lopos, the Portugals call them Bilreros, these Canibals are alwayes in the Mountaines of Pine trees, and have not any other thing to live on : I neuer faw any houses that they dwell in, but boughs tyed together with rines of trees, these Camibals would come to vs, and tell vs of many things, and would goe with vs two or three dayes, and then would run away from vs, and many times when they did meet with any of our Indians, or our Portugals, they would take away fuch things as they had about them, and fend them away without any hurt to their persons. As wee went through this Countrie we found many mynes Go'din plen- of gold, and among ft thefe Indians our Captaine got good ftore of it, and many good ftones. In 20 all America, there is not a richer pare then this, but it is fo farre within the Land, and that Countrie is so populous that as yet neither Poringall nor Spaniard can inhabite there. They are men of small stature, and very browne of complexion, their bodies are all painted as the other Caribals before named. The women are as browne of complexion as the men, and very rude and shamelesse, for in their behaulour they differ not from wilde beafts, but in all things live

The Waranawa'ens, fimple fauszes.

After we had passed this Province, we came into the Province of the Wayanamalous, where we found them in small Townes built by a Rivers side, and found these the simplest Nation of all other : for these Canibals would stand and gaze upon vs like herds of Deere, and never say any thing vnto vs. Here we found great store of Ginny wheat, and pompions that weedid eate. In 30 many Bogs hard by their Towne we killed good ffore of Crocodiles, and did eate of them, for in this journey we were almost started. These Cambals are of a good stature, bigge, and tall of bo-. die, and very cleane made of their lims, very sufficient to behold; but they are a kinde of lane people, that care not for any thing, but will lie all day lafing in their houses, and neuer goe abroad but for their victuals. The women are of good stature, they are of a dunne pale complexion, and they doe prouide Pompions and Rootes for their husbands. Here we were all, or most of vs very ficke with eating of a kinde of fruit, which the Indians call Madipuera, this fruit is as bigge as a Horse plum, as yellow as gold, the kirnell of it is as sweet as any Almond, of this frust did most of our companie eare, and of them dyed sixteene, and many others sicke for a fort-

Venemous

Affoone as our companie had recourred we went on our way to feeke out the Tamores, having for our guides fixe of the Motayes, who carried vs at the least two moneths up and downe the Wildernesse, euery day making vs beleeve, that we should come vnto our enemies Countrie. They brought vs at last to the fight of two Townes along by a River fide. The Porsugals after they had feene how great the Townes of the Canibals were, durft not adventure to passe over the River, for feare left the Indians had espied vs, and were layne in ambush. There was not any of all the companie, Portugall nor Indian, that durst to goe over the River; the Captaine and the chiefest of the Portugals agreed together and made me goe to the Towne, whether I would or no. When I faw that there was no remedie, I tooke my leaue of them all ; for I thought verily that I went Mony firshes. to the flaughter house, or at least to have lived a Comball with them during my life. With these 50 two extremities in my thought, commending my foule and bodie to Almightie God: I fwam ouer the Riner upon a little Target made of Corke, and affoone as I had landed I went firaight to the Towne, where I found nothing but two tame Estridges : he people had espyed vs, and were run away. When the Portugals had newes from me that there was no body, then they were fo ges. Riuer*lewary*. valiant as Lions, firiting who should get first into the Towne, this was the River of lawarie. the Towne is called Mennare. Here it was that I should have beene hanged, for striking of Antonio Martines in the Court of guard, after I had killed the great Serpent, called Serocuen. In this Towne we found great flore of Given wheat, and Pompions dried in the smoke, In this Towne likewise we had great store of drie Tabacco, and Potato rootes : wee found great store of gold in peeces, and also flore of Cristall, and many other good stones; some found Diamonds, and a kind 62 of blue stones that the Portugals did esteeme of very much, and called them Pedras de Sangua,

Gold, Criftall and Icmmes. The Serpent Serecues defl:ange forme and qualities,

Tame Effrid-

The Serpent that I killed was thirteene span long, it had four and twentie teeth, as sharpe as any naile, about the necke it had greater fiels then the other parts of her body; the shels were blacke and raffet like a coller, and on her body they were ruffet and darke greene; vnder her belle all ineckled with black and white. It had foure sharpe feet, no longer then a mans finger, it had a conque like a harping Iron, her taile was like a straight Bull horne, all black and white listed. From one of these did the Lord defend me, and permitted me to kill one of them with the helue of an axe in the night. The Indians dare not goe to kill one of them except they goe fine or fixe of them with howes and arrowes. All kinde of wilde heafts, Lions, or Leopards, all kinde of Snakes, but only this, doe feare the fire, and if they come where the Indians leave any fire travelling through the Wildernesse, if any of these Serpents doe finde it, they never leave beating themfelues in it, till they either kill themselues or put out the fire. These Serpents when they feeke 10 their prey will stand about a small tree or a bough, and when any wilde beast passeth, hee falleth woon him, thrufting his taile into the fundament of whatfoever it ferzeth on.

After we had remayned at this place a fortnight, or three weekes, the Portnoals did refolue to come back agains without any purchase, there the Captaine gaue up his authoritie, and joyned hintelfe with his friends to feeke the neerest way home, then did I and twelve young men of the Portugals determine to goe to the South Sea by land, for we knew by the Notes of the Motares. that we were not farre from Perm, and Cufco, and we knowing how poote our effaces were, and the great famine we had passed comming to the Towne of Mennere, made vs afraid to goe back againe, that way which we had come, and for mine owne part, I encouraged the twelve young Particular all that I could to goe forward, for I had furely beene knocked on the head if I had gone 20 back ut my Captaines companie. With much adoe, wee thereon refolued to feeke our fortunes in the Wildernesse. After we were departed from our companie, wee came to many Mountaines. where we found good store of gold, and many precious stones; when wee came into this Countrie, wee thought wee had beene in the Pronince of Pers, wee had fuch plentie of mynes. and there was not one of vs but had flore of itones, that those which we tooke as to day, wee would shrow away to morrow to take other better then them which we had before. Thus wee travelled some two moneths in the golden Countrie, till at the last wee came to that great and most Two moneths Grange Mountaine of Criftall. This Mountaine is of a huge height, that it feemeth to be within trauellin a the cloudes, and so steepe that it is impossible to goe ouer the top. Here it was that wee passed golden Counthrough the Vault, and in truth it was one of the greatest dangers, and the most desperate that tries 30 euer I was in.

Affoone as we had paffed this danger, it was the pleafure of God to deliver vs into the hands Vauk-firaits. of our mortall enemies the Tamojes, where my twelve companions were killed and eaten. onely my felfe remayned among these Canibals a yeere and eleven moneths, in the which time I went many times to warre against other Proninces that were loyning woon the Countrie of Tamoyes, and (I thanke God) prospered so well that I was very much esteemed of them, and had a great command over them when they went to the field. Thele Tamoper be as proper men at any bee in Tamper proper all Europe; they vie to make holes in their vpper-lips like the Petewares; most of them are of a men. very faire complexion. The men have their heads alwayes fet with feathers of divers colours which sheweth very pretily, they goe starke naked. The women are as proper as any Nation 40 can be, tall, comly, well legd, cleane made of body, very small in the waste, very faire of complexion, fine handed, and very comly faces. They vie a kinde of carning ouer their breafts, which becommeth them very well. Here the Canibals esteeme not any more of gold, or precious stones, Store of gold. then wee doe of any itones in the ftreets : if the Spaniards had knowne of this Countrie, they needed not to have gone to Pera, there is not like vnto this for all kinde of rich metals, and many kinde of precious stones. In this place I lived eighteens moneths, and went naked as the Canta bals did. After I had lived with these Canibals the time that you have heard, I was in great fauour and credit with them , infomuch that they would not doe any thing before they had made me acquainted withall : I have told them many times of the comming and going of our English ships to the Straits of Magellan, and how well we did vie all kinde of Nations, and what kinde 50 of all things necessarie wee had for their vie. These wordes made the Cambals desire to come to the Sea coast, and asked of mee how it were possible for them to come to dwell by the Sea without being flaues to the Portugals: I told them that I knew many places where English men and French men did vie to come, but that neither Porngall, nor Spaniard was never there. After I had His journe told them what I thought best, we all agreed to come through the Prouince of Tocoman, and so with the Sato the Sea, betweene the River of Plate and Saint Vincents. This Countrie of Tocoman is all fan- ges. die, and in it inhabite the Pigmers; I have feene many of them among ft the Spaniards at the RiPigmers dwels uer of Plate. They are not altogether to little as weet peake of them here in England: their inha- ling in Cauca bitation in Tocoman is in Caues of the ground. In this Countrie the Inhabitants in many places have fuch Wheat as we finde in England, and Caffaui meale.

This Tocoman is judged by the Spaniard to be the end of Brafill, and the entring into Pers; for in Tocoma there are all kinde of Brafila Rootes, and all kinde of Corne, at well as Pers; this Countrie yeeldeth nothing to the Spanisods, but wilde Horles, and the Indians of Tocomun are mortall enemies to all the Inhabitants of Pern; therefore the Spaniards doe keepe this Countrie because they keepe the Provinces of Pers in feare, or elie they would rise vp against the Spaniards. After we had passed this Countrie, we came to a River that runnetti from Tecomon to River running Chile, where we tartied foure daies making Canoas to paffe the River, for there were fo manie Crocodiles, that we durft not paffe it for feare of them : after we had paffed this River, we came Mountaines of to the Mountaine Detodas Metalas, that is, of all Metals. At thisplace divers Spaniards and Pontugals have beene, and certain lawleffe men were let on thoare on this coaff by one Pedro de Charamento, which came to this place, and fet vp a great Croffe, and on it writ, that the Countrie was the King of Spaines; the which I put out, and writ that it was the Queene of Englands. This hill is of divers kinde of Mettals, Copper and Iron, some Gold, and great store of Quicke-sither. It is verie high, and all bare wir. out any Trees. Here likewite was a little Church made, where we found two Images, one of our Lady, and another of Christ crucified. When the Tamores 10 faw those fignes, they thought that I had betraied them, and (indeede) I was amazed, thinking that we had beene in some part of the River of Plate, and because the Indians should not be difcouraged. I shewed my selfe to be very glad, and told them that I knew those were signes that my Countrie men vied to make when they came into frange Countries : with these persivations I made the Tamojes to come on their journey to the Sea; where otherwise if I had told them it had bin let up by the Spaniards, the feare that thepoore Cambals stood in of them had bin encase h to have made them all returne againe from whence they came. At the last we came to the Sea. as I have told you, to the Towne of the Cariyobs: this Towne standeth in a fine pleafant place. hard by the coast in a faire Bay, where one hundred Ships may anker without any danger. And in this place you shall alwaies have great store of fish. In this Countrie, for a Knife or a till hooke, 20 you may buy a dozen of skinnes of very good Furre; and if you will, thefe Indians will goe flor any trifle) and feich two or three baskets of Mettals, and fome have had fuch good lucke, that for two or three Glailes, and a Combe or two, with some Kniues, they have got the value of foure or file thousand Crownes in Gold and Stones. The Towne food upon a hill, but we puld it Jown. But when we were taken by the Portugals, and that the Cariyon were reftored against to their Countrie, they did scituate againe with in the same place where they were when we draue them out of their Countrie. Here the Portugals did binde mee, and would have hanged mee for the twelue Portugals that the Cambals had killed and eaten:

The Carriebs.

The Carriebs are men of good stature, and very valiant : they make holes in their under linne as the other Canibals doe, These Canibals likewise eate mans flesh, and speake the same language to that the Tamojes doe; the women are very comely, the most of them are of a faire complexion: they weare their haire loofe about their eares, and all their bodies are died with blacke, and their faces withered, and yellow, their breits are all carued with divers colours, which befeemeth verie well. Here is the end of my travell through America; with the Cambals, from whence I returned againe to my Mafter Saluador Corea de Safa; where I was worfe then ener I was before.

The Giants of Port Defire, and inhabitants of Port Famine : also Angola, Congo, and Massangana, and Angica, Countries of Africa.

T Port Defire, which is the next haven to the straits of Magelan, inhabited Giantsof fif- 40 A teene or fixteene spans of height. Laffirme, that at Port Defire I saw the footing of them, by the thoare fide, that was about foure foote of one of our mens in length; and I faw two of them that were buried newly, the one of them was foureteene spannes long. After I was taken with the Spaniards, the Defire, one of our Shippes that had beene all alone at Port Defire, loft nine men and a boy, and two or three of them that had beene taken on the coast of Brast, laid that thefe Giants did throw flones of fuch bigneffe at them out of firings, that they were faine to weigh anker, and to lye further from the shoare. I saw another of these in Brafil, that was taken by Alonfo Dias a Spaniard, that with foule weather was driven out of Saint Inhans; this was but a young man, yet about thirteene spannes long. This Port Defize is a faire pleasant Countrie, it 50 hath many fine Rivers, and the Spaniards doe affirme, that from this place it is easie to goe to the Indians Chele, which is a very rich Countrie. In Port Defire, in many small Rivers there is great flore of Pearle, and Currall. Here you may have great store of Penguins and Seales at an Hand that lieth a mile Southward of the mouth of the hauen, These Giants whereof I have spo-Giants habitken, goe all naked, they weare their haire long to the shoulders. He whom I faw at Brafil, was a man of faire complexion, and very well proportioned according to his long flature; and this is all that I can report of them, for I know not their behaniour, but as the Portugals and Spaniards indge, they are no better then the Man-eaters of Brafil.

Port Famine in the Straits of Magelan. Wide moushed men.

A youth 1 to 1; ans high.

chile.

At Port Damine the Generall would have left mee, Here inhabit a kinde of strange Canibals, fhort of body, not aboue fue or fix spans high, and very strong and thicke made : their moutles 62 are verie bigge, and reach almost to their eares; they eate their meate in a manner raw, for they doe nothing but forch it a little in the fire, and logate it, and with the bloud that runneth from their mouthes, they smeare all their faces, and their breaits, and lay vong feathers on their bodies to the bloud that clingeth to their skinnes like Glue. When we were at the straits in this place, there came about four or five thousand vinto vs of them, but they never brought vinto vs any thing but Feathers and Pearle as much as we would (for there is great flore in this Port Famine) all the while that we were at it. These Canibals would never let vs come so neere them. as to touch any of them, for feare we should take them; when they would give vs any thing they would tie it at the end of a long staffe, and so likewite we did to them. Here our Generall lete fenen ficke men ashore; the Snow lyeth all the yeare on the Mountaines, and it is so cold in June. and Iuly, that our men did freeze, and many of them loft their toes, as I my felfe for one, for in Extreme cold one night that I lay moilt of my feete, I loft three of my toes on one of my feete, and foure of the and maked toppes of the other foote; fome had their feete trozen fome their noles, as Harris a Gold-fmith, people. To Henry Barramell, that was taken with me, loft his haire from his head, and was all bald for a Herris the veare or two in Brafil: yet for all this cold, all the Inhabitants goe naked, except here and there Gold mith. He one weare feale skinnes, or the skins of some wilde E'afts, of the which there are many, as Leo-Barrewell. pards. Lions, and a kinde of Beafts bigger then Horles, they have great eares aboue a spanne long, Beafts bigger and their tailes are like the tailes of a Cowe; thefe are very good, the Indians of Brafil call them then Horfes at Tavermafon : of thele Beatts I faw in Ethiopia, in the Kingdome of Manicongo, the Portugals call the Magellan them Gombe : farther within the Straits at Tolisbay, we found many barkes of trees , that the frais, called Indians of the Strates doe fifth in, thefe Indians would not come neere vs, but full as they fpied Tape: praces, in our Boates they would runne away, but we plainely faw that they were men of good stature, ther he mea. and of white skinnes; they goe all naked both men and women. And thus I end my trauell neih Zebra or 20 of America.

CHAP.7.S.4, Extreame cold. Angolas King and Kingdome described

Angola is a Kingdome of it felfe in Ethiopia, where first the Portugals did begin to inhabit : Tom. 1.p. 1002. the Countrie of Angela commeth along the coast, as Portugall doth vpon Spaine, so doth Angela Of Angela to runne vpon the Kingdome of Longa and Manicongo. In Angola the Portugals have a Citie, called curof grafilias the Holy Ghoft, where they have great store of Merchandile, and the Moore doe come thither is before deliwith all kinde of fuch things as the Countrie yeeldeth, fome bring Elephants teeth, fome bring livered. Negro flaves to fell, that they take from other Kingdomes which joyne hard by them ; thus doe they wie once a weeke, as we keepe Markets, so doe all the Blackamoores bring Hens and Hoes; which they call Gula, and Hennes they call Sange, and a kinde of Beatt that they take in the Wildernesse like a Dogge, which they call Ambroa: then they have that Beast which before I have an told you of, called Gumbe, which is bigger then a Horie. The Black amoores doe keepe good Lawes, The Kings and feare their King verie much : the King is alwaies attended with the Nobles of his Realme, Pompe, and whenfoeuer he goeth abroad, he hath al waies at the leaft two hundred archers in his guard. and ten or twelve more going before him finging and playing with Pipes made of great Canes, and foure or fine yong Moores comming after him as his Pages, after them follow all his Noblemen. When there falleth out anie contropertie among them, they crave battell of the King, and then they fight it out before him. They come before the King and fall flat on their breafts, then Rives of the they rife up and kneele on their knees firetching out their armes, crying Mahobeque benge, benge; people, then the King striketh them on the shoulders with a Horse-taile, then they goe to the Campe, and with their Bowes they fight it out, till they kill one another. After the battell is done, if ao any liueth, he that liueth falleth downe before the King in the same manner as he did when he went to the field, and after a long oration made, he taket h the Horfe-taile from the Kings shoulder, and waueth it about the Kings head, and then lateth it on his shoulder againe, and goeth away with great honour, being accompanied with all the Nobles of the Court : the Moores of Angola doe know that there is a God, and doe call God Cari pongos, but they worthip the Sunne and the Moone.

The Countrie is Champain plaine, and drie blacke earth, and yeeldeth verie little Corne, the most of any thing that it yeeldeth is Plantons, which the Portugals call Baynonas, and the Moores call them Mahonge, and their Wheate they call Tumba, and the Bread Anou; and if you will buy any Bread of them, you must say Tala Cuna anen tumbola gimbo, that is, gine me some bread, here accounted a man of any account in Brafil or in Portugall, and thus they bring the poore Morres to be in a most damnable bondage under the colour of love. The Countrey of An. gola yeeldeth no stone, and very little wood: the Moores doe make their houses all couered with earth; these houses are no bigger then a reasonable Chamber, and within are many partitions.

50 to money. Their money is called Gull ginbo, a shell of a fish that they finde by the sheare fide, and from Brafil the Portugals doe carrie great ftore of them to Angola. These Moores doe efteeme verie much of red, blew, and yellow cloathes, they will give a flave for a span of cloath in breadth I meane, and the length of it of the breadth of the peece, those peeces of cloth they weare about their middles, and under it they hang the skin of a great Weafell before them, and another behinde them, and this is all the garments that they weare. A Weazell in their language is called Wezels thin Pucen. You can doe a Blackamoore no greater difgrace, then to take away his Skinne from be- affected. forehim, for he will dye with griefe if he cannot be reuenged; the Portugals doe marke them as we doe Sheepe with a hot Iron, which the Moores call Crimbo, the poore flaues fland all in a Branded berow one by another, and fing Mundele que sumbela be Carey ba belelelle, and thus the poore rogues are beguiled, for the Portugals make them believe that they that have not the marke is not guiled flaves.

made of great Bulruthes fowed together with the rindes of a Tree. They doe make cloth like Sparke of Veluet (but it is thinner) of the barke of a Tree, and that cloth they doe call Mol-Taking of Ele- lelleo. The Elephants doe feed in the Euening and in the Morning in low marifles as there hee many. The Moores doe watch which way they come, and affoone as the Elephants are at meat. they digge great holes in the ground, and cover them with flicks, and then they cover the pits with earth, and when they have made all readie they goe to the Elephants, and shoote at them with their Arrowes, and affoone as the Elephants feele themfelues hurt, they remeat whatforuer they fee before them, following after the Blackamores that chale them, then they fall into the deepe pits where after they are once in, they cannot get out. The Moores of Angola are as in blacke as let; they are men of good flature, they never take but one Wife, whom they call Mocasha. These Moores doe cut long streakes in their faces, that reach from the top of their cares to their chinnes. The women doe weare shels of fishes on their armes, and on the small of their legges. The Law amongst them, is, that if any More doe lie with an others wife, hee shall lose Circumcifion, his cares for his offence. These Moores doe circumcize their children, and give them their names, as wee doe when we baptize. Angola may very eafily be taken: for the Portugals have no Forts to defend it of any fireneth.

The King of Congo is the greatest King in all Athiopia; and doth keepe in the field continually Extie thousand Souldiers, that doe warre against the King of Vangala, and the King of Angola; this King is a Christian, and is brother in Law of Armes with the King of Spaine, his feruants of 20 his honfe are most of them all Portugals, and hee doth favour them very much. The King is of a verie liberall condition, and verie fauourable to all Trauellers, and doth delight verie much to heare of forreigne Countries. He was in a manner amazed to heare how it was possible her Maiestie had lined a Maiden Queene so long, and alwaies reigned in peace with her lubiest. When I was brought before the King, and told him of my Countrie; what plentie of things we had, if the Portugals had not liked of it, they would interrupt my speech, and the King would shew himfelfe verie angrie, and tell them that euerie man was best able to speake of his Countrie, and that I had no reason but to tell him that which was true. The King of Congo, when hee goeth to the Campe to fee his Armie, rideth vpon an Elephant in great pompe and maieflie, on either fide of the Elephant he hath fix flaues two of them were Kings, that he himfelfe had taken in the field; all the reit were of noble birth; some of them were brothers to the King of Ancies, and fome of them were of the chiefest bloud of the great King of Bengala. These noble slaves at cuerie command of the King of Congo; doe fall flat on the ground on their brefts, When the King doth ride as you have heard, they carrie a Canopie as it were a cloth of State over his head. His two Secretaries, the one a Nobleman of Spaine, the other a More, doe ride next after him, Before him goeth at the least fine hundred Archers, which are his Guard, then there followeth a More, which doth nothing but talke aloud in praise of the King, telling what a great Warriour he hath beene, and praising his wisdome for all things that hee hath accomplished verie honourably to his great fame of such as knew him. When this King of Congo commeth to his Hoft, all the Souldiers as he passeth, fall flat on their faces to the ground. He neuer commeth into his Host after 40 any battell, but hee dubbeth at the least twentie Knights Portugals, and as many Moores, githing them verie great living according to their callings, and the feruice that they have done. The brother of this King was in Spaine, at my comming from thence for Ambassadour from his Here the Portugall Captaine would have taken mee perforce, to have beene a common Soule mination at that time was to have gone for the Countrie of Prester lobn, for I had a great delire to fee the River of Nilo and lerufalem (for I accounted my felfe as a loft man, not caring into what Countrie or Kingdome Icame) but it was not the will of God, that I should at that time obtaine my defire. For travelling through the Kingdome of Congo, to have gone to the King- 50 dome of Angila, It was my fortune to meete a companie of Portugall Souldiers that went to a Conquest, that the King of Spain had newly taken, called Masangana; which place is on the bor-See Tom. 1.17: ders of Anguca. Here they made me serue like a Drudge, for both day and night I carried some 6-3. And Battell ftone and lime to make a Fort. It lieth right under the Line, and standeth in a bottome in the middle of foure hils, and about are many fogges, but not one River. It is the vnfirmest Countrie vnder the Sunne. Here the Portugals die like Chickens; you shall see men in the morning verie lustic, and within two houres dead. Others, that if they but weat their legges, presently they swell bigger then their middle; others brake in the sides with a draught of water. O, if you dil Sickly difpose know the intollerable heate of the Countrie, you would thinke your selfe better a thousand times dead, then to line therea weeke. There you shall fee poore Souldiers lie in troupes, gaping 62 like Camelians for a puffe of winde. Here lived I three moneths, not as the Portugals did, taking of Phylicke, and euerie weeke letting of bloud and keeping close in their houses when they had any raine, observing houres, and times to goe abroad morning and Evening, and never to dier, but the King commanded that they should let mee goe whether I would, and my deter-

Of COMES.

Angicans described, Perewares language, Ringes CHAP.7. S.5.

to eate but at fuch and fuch times. I was glad when I had got any thing at morning, noone or night, I thanke God I did worke all day, from morning till night, had it beene raine or neger for great heate. I had alwaies my health as well as I have in England. This Countrie is verietich, Gold. the King had great fore of Gold fent him from this place: the time that I was there, the King of Angica had a great Citie at Masangana; which Citie Paulas Dias, gouernour of Angola, tooke Paul Dias, and testcated there, and finding hard by it great flore of Gold, fortified it with four Forts, and walled a great circuit of ground round about it, and within that wall, now the Portugals doe build a Citie, and from this Citie euerie day they doe warre against the King of Angica, and haue Angica burne a great part of his Kingdome. burne a great part of this famguount.

10 The Angiest are men of goodly stature, they file their teeth before on their vipper lawe and division with on their vader lawe, making a distance betweene them like the teeth of a Dogge; they doe ant.

eate many field, they are the stubbornest Nation that lives under the Sunne, and the resolutest in the field that euer man faw; for they will rather kill themselves then yeelde to the Portugals: Of Mahumeten the held that ever man laws to the same of Moores thefe are the blackeft; they doe live Religion if the in the Law of the Turkes, and honour Mahomet, they keepe manie Concubines as the Turkes Author were doe, they wash themselus euerie morning vowards, falling flat on their faces towards the East, not deceived They weare their haire all made in plaits on their heads, as well men as women: they have good by occasion of ftore of Wheate, and a kinde of graine like Fetches, of the which they make Bread: they have their circumgreat store of Hennes like Partridges, and Turkies, and all their feathers curie on their backes: in divice is 20 their houses are like the other houses of the Kingdomes aforenamed. And thus I end, shewing common ro you as briefe as I can, all the Nations and Kingdomes that with great danger of my life I travel. Christian and led through in twelue yeares of my best age getting no more then my tranell for my paine. From this Ethnicks, with Kingdome Angica, was I brought in Irons againe to my Master Saluador Corea de fa fa, to the Mahumetans, Citie of Saint Sebastian in Brasil, as you have heard. Now you have seene the discourse of my trauels, and the fashions of all the Countries and Nations where I have beene, I will by the helpe of God, make you a short discourse in the language of the Petimeres, which language all the Inhabitants of Brafil doe understand, especially all the coast from Fernambucque to the River of Plate, the which I hope will be profitable to all travellers, and of them I truft my pames thall be well accepted of.

30 First, you must tell them of what Nation you are, and that you come not as the Portugals doe. for their wives and children to make them bondflaves.

We are Englishmen, as you all know that in [times past had peace with you.

Now knowing the neede and want that thers had, for the love that both your ance-Want, we are come to renew our anciet amity. | passms.

Ore uqureiuna que se neering peramoya werisco Catadoro wareny orenysbe berefor.

Coen pecotene Comanere pipope pewsena bareyou have of all fuch things as before your Fa- | fer opacatubage berna oweryco coen pecotene fou fe. Core mandoare peramoya way souba, ore ranoya frours and ours did beare one to another, and | wasfonna refer eteguena refer pecotene pararaua, for the loue and pittie that we have of your ore in ibewith ore ramoya pereri focatumorn on

The description of diners Rivers, Ports, Harbours, Ilands of Brasil: for instruction of Nauigators.

So Io Grande, is called by ve the great River, lately was conquered by a Portugall, called Rio Grande, Manuell Masquerenbas. It is aboue two leagues broad in the mouth, and on the South-east fide frandeth a great Fort made by the foresaid Manuell Masquarenbas: that Countrie is plaine and fandy in many places, especially neere the Sea, and yeeldeth Sugar Canes in abundance. On the coast are many great Biyes, where the Indians doe oftentimes finde great ftore of Ambergreese : within this place, there is also store of Wood, Pepper, Ginger, and Waxe. Ambergreese, Here inhabit a kinde of Cambals, called Petymares : these Cambals have had trafficke a long time with France, and amongst them there are many that can speake French, which are Bastards, begotten of Frenchmen.

On the coast of Brasil there are three Rivers of Paraeyua: one is this that lieth next to Rio Paraeyash :? Gande, the other is a great River that runneth through the Countrie almost as farre as Lymo, Rivers, and commeth out betweene Cape Frio and Spirito Santio : the third is a faire River that lieth be-60 tweene the River of Plate and Saint Vincents. This Pareyna whereof we ipeake, is a faire great Bay, where thipping being neuer to great may enter, within this Bay vpon a hill, you thall fee a faire Citie, and on the Sea fide ffandeth two small Forts. You may anker neere the shoare, as the entrie of this Bay, you shall be three hils of red earth on either side of the harbour, which the Portugals call Bareras Mermethies.

Kkkkk 2

A Ringricalled

Guyana, is a small River that lieth by Paraena, it belongeth to lasper Designera, who was chiete Iustice of all Brafil. In the mouth of this River standeth a great rocke, which is continu-Canada I mean and ally couered with Sea Foules. This River hath two fadome water in the mouth, a quarter of a Barr Book, mile within this Ruer, on the South-west fide, you may take fresh water, and great store of Cattell : voon this River there are great store of Sugar Mils, and continually you shall have in this River imall Carvels that fish, and carry Sugar from thence to Fernambuquo: likewife here is great ftore of Brasil, Pepper, Ginger, and Cotten, Cocos, Indian Nuts, here likewise inhabit Pe-

Etamariqua in the Indian language is a bed, it is a point of the land like a Cape: the point runneth halte a mile into the Sea, and vponit the Portugals haue built a Towne, you may anker 10 end a piece, very neere the shoare, both on the South-west and on the North-east side of the Towne, in seven I was Live and eight fadome water. All the Countrie till you come to Cape Augustin, is low land, and to faile from thence to Fernambuquo is no danger, but the clifts which lye along the coaft, as faire as the River Saint Francis, which are alwayes feene, the Seas when there are any Spring tides. doe overflow the land behinde : moreover if any winde blow from the East, it beateth the Sea into hils of the Clifts, that it maketha great noise. Wherefore the Indians call it the Land of the Bell, Here are reasonable store of Sugars, and great store of Coco Nuts.

On the North fide of Fernambuque, you shall fee white Downes, and when you are past all the Downes on the South, you are by Capignramiring, which is a place where alwaies you shall fee Filter-men in small Boates or langades; and from thence to Fernambuquo, are fue or fix miles, 20 and fo if you be under 8. degrees, you shall see a flat land even and bare, called Capitana; then you must take heede you runne not Southward, for then you runne vpon a point of the land, called by the Portugals Punte de Olynda, which is foure leagues from the Cape, and firetcheth into the Sea as farre as Cape Augustin. As soone as you have doubled this point, you must take heede you put not in with the Towne of Olynda, which you shall see; for if you doe, you will runne voon the Sands, called by the Portugals Baybos de S. Antonio, which lye at least foure or fine miles into the Sea, being neere the shoare, you shall see the Shippes that lye at anker ouer the Clifts, called by the Portugals Arecias: this place is a league from Fernambuquo, being the harbour where all the Shipping that goes from Fernambuque doe arrive; from this place to the Cape you shall fee the Clifts as if it were a wall made by Bricklayers, no higher in one place then in another, but all 30 euen. The Towne of Fernambuquo is scituated vpon a hill, and very strongly entrenched round about, on the Sea fide euery twelue score, standeth a small Fort or defence for Soldiers, with foure cast Peeces, and so they scowre all the shoare from the Arecia, where the Shippes lye to the point of Olynda, which is the farthest part of the Towne Northwards, from the Areciae where the Ships Ive commeth a River through the land, a Harquebuffe shot from the Sea coaft. and runneth right behinde the Towne from the South to the Weft and Eaft, which maketh the Towns almost an Hand, all but a little part of the North side.

The Cape of Saint Augustin is a Point of land that runneth into the Sea two or three miles: from the Sea you shall see three hils, called by the Petiwares, Aquare Wason Remitum, they will feeme vnto you like the backe of a Camell, and now you may easily know it, for you may lee 40 a Church that the Portugals have built; and halfe a league towards the South, you shall fee the Iland of Saint Alexxo.

The lland of Saint Alexo is long and narrow : it lieth within a league of the shore, and Il of S. Algxo. ftretcheth North-east and South-west, you may anker betweene the shoare and it all weathers, for the Hand hath very faire Baies, where you may lye inten or twelue fadome water. Vpon this Hand you may take wood or fresh water. Parin Derales.

Porto Docalno lyeth Southward of the Hand of Saint Alexo, it is a flat land, you neede not feare the comming in by the rockes, for hard by them you shall have foureteene fathome weater. Here you shall have great store of Cattell, and Sugars. This Countries plaine low land, and all planted with Sugar Canes: you shall know this harbor very easily from the Southerne point of 50 the Iland Saint Alexo, for when it ebbeth, you shall see a faire Bay, and all the shore bare almost to the Cape, being blacke ground.

River of flones Eight leagues Southward from the Porto de calno, is the River of flones. Southward of it vou shall fee three great red Hills, which stand over the River of Camarysuna, which is a league from this River, you shall see from Sea a great Bay run within the Land, and before the mouth of it many great Rocks, to come to this Bay you must come close to the shoare on the South-west side, and after you bee in the Bay keepe full West, and it will bring you to a River that runneth into the Land at the least twentie leagues. In the mouth of this River dwell fixe or feven Portugals, that keepe Cattell for lobn Pays, but they are of no strength. Here you may take water at pleafire, and alwayes in thole houses, that stand in the mouth of the Riuer, you shall have good flore for Cassum meale. If you be of any strength, that you dare goe ten or twelve miles up the Riuer of you shill take good store of Sugars, for there standeth three or foure Sugar mills onely, an other on the Rener fide; likewise here is good store of Brasill, and Pepper, Cotton, and many other merchandite.

CHAP.7. S.S. Rivers, of Stones, S. Antonio, Crossdiles, S. Michael. Alaqua. 1220

Camarrians (as I have faid) lyeth a league Southward from the River of flones, to know it Camarriana wou shall see three Hills of red ground, called by the Portugal's, Barees Vernellies, this place is not inhabited: the mouth of this place is narrow, and hath not aboue fine foor water, but you may anchor in the Bay hard by the River , and fend your Boat fafely for frelh water without danger. or to filh with your Net, for there is great fore of fresh fish of all kindes.

The River of Saint Antonio lyeth feuen leagues from Camerinua, it is a faire great River , ly. The River of erh some fiftie leagues within the Land, hath foure fathom water at the comming in . but is so Saint Asionie. narrow that no fhip can come in. It is a very good place for you if you fland in neede (having falt) to make your promision, for there you shall have great store of all kinds of fish, especially of Sale.

10 a kinde of fift, called by the Indiant, Varana, which is as bigge as an Oxe. After you are within Fift Process this River, you shall have high land on both fides, and you must be carefull and keep good watch. for yo this River dwellerli a kinde of people, called Caraja, their people if they fee you ynornnided will fight with you, but if they fee you able to defend your felues, then will they bring fuch things as they have to traffick.

The Harbour of French-men called by the Indians, Auroma pialane, lyeth two learnes South A place called ward from the River of Saint Amonio. It is a small Bay, that may be knowne by a high Hill that the Harbour of flandethouer it, which is all full of Brafill trees. To enter into this Harbour, you must marke Frenchmen. the Cliffes, and when you are to the North of them all but one, you may fafely come within a ftones cast to the shoare. When you have landed if you want fresh water, you must feeke on the 20 South fide of the Hill, and you shall finde a streame that runneth out of the Hill into a great Cie fterne of ftone, which is made out of a Rocke, you cannot miffe of this place if you feeke for it.

for all the way you shall see small Rocks, and mens names written in them.

This River in our language is called the River of Crocodiles, for in it there are many, which the Rivercalled Indians call faquares; it is narrow, and in the mouth of it flandeth a white Rocke. To enter it laquareafiche. you must take heed you keepe on the North side of this Rocke, and you shall finde nine and ten toot water ; after you be within it you shall come to a great Bay, and on the North-east side you fhall finde a small River, where you may take fresh water, but let every man take heed how hee leaneth into the water, for the Crocodiles lie by the banke-fide hidden, and if any thing fall into the water presently they kill it. Here is nothing to bee had valeffe you will fish for the Croco-30 diles, and take the Bladders or Cods of muske from them ; here you need not feare any inhabitants, except you be efpyed by fome paffengers that goe to Fernambnane.

Alaqua is a very faire River, that lyeth foure leagues Northward from the River of Saint Alaqua. Michael and three leagues Southward from the afore [aid River of Crocodiles. On either fide of it you shall fee a great Hill, called by the Portugals, Os Campes. You shall finde but seuen or eight foot water at the comming, and very cleere from any Rocks, but after you bee within, you shall finde many bankes of fand, where you shall kill good store of fish, and alwayes you shall bee fure to have Caruells fishing in this place, at the comming in on both fides you may take

Before the River of Saint Mishael you shall fee the Cliffes like Arecines of Fernambuque; you River of Sains must enter at the end of the Cliffe, hard by the shoare on the South-west: and you must marke a Michael. small Cliffe that lyeth betweene the mouth of the River and the shoare, this Cliffe you leave betweene you and the shoare, and betwint this Cliffe and the great Rocks you may enter it : three fathom water. But take heed when you enter, that you faile not towards the North-east, although you fee the Bay great, for you shall run voon many great banket of fand, therefore you must keepe West still within a stones cast of the shoare, so shall you be fure to keepe in the Channell. Thus you must faile till you discouer a house, that you shall see doubling a Point sull South from you, then your best is to anchor, for if you goe farther, you are in danger except you know the Channell very well. In this place dwels a Portugall, called loba de Rocho: and vp a River that you shall see runne into the Land dwell many Portugals, where they have a Church with 50 Friars to say Masse. Here you shall have good store of Cattell if you need, and Brasill wood, Caffaui meale; and in this River you shall have good store of Oisters, and in them you shall find many great Pearles : likewise here is good store of Balsom oile, and trees of All Nestee, which is a very precious and rich wood, fingular good for bruifes, or old hurts: also here is good store of Tae bacco. This place is eight leagues from the River of Toades, where we were driven on the Rocks, because we knew not where wee were, for it is a singular good Harbour to enter, if a man know the comming in betweene the Rocks, called, Os Bayos de Don Rodrigo. Because the Indians indeed doe kill many Toades, therefore they call it Cornoen, that is to The Harbour. fay, the River, or water of Toades, I tell you the name in the Indian language. Because in all placealed The Riv ces you shall haue of them, and so you may know when they tell you where you are. When you wer of loades. are in ten degrees and an halfe Southwards of the Equinoctiall Line, you shall see fine hils and the three that standeth on the North side of this place whereof wee speake are round and high, the other two that stand on the South, not farre in distance one from another, are long and lower then theother, if you come neere the shoare, you shall see a great many of small Rockes, and a great Bay which is the place I speake of, right before this Bay you shall see two great Rockes, to

Kkkkk 2

Cama

Prices.

goe into this Harbour, you must passe betweene these Rockes which are called Bayor de don Rodrieg, Wen you are entred you may anchor hard by the Rockes, and found the Channell . which will lyc North-eatt from you. Here you may have fresh water vo the River, but it will be hard for you to find, theretore your best is to goes quarter of a mile by the Sea fide, and you shall fee a faire River, where you may take water at pleafure, and kill good ffore of fish. At this place comming from the Rulet of leners, in the night we were driven voon the Rockes for want of a Pilot that knew the Coaft.

Hot that knew the back, betweene this and the Cape Frie, because I know them not but by report of other Traughlers, and merefore I leave it to them, for I will write no more but what I have feene, and amable to proue when time thall ferge, and thus I end thewing you all that I to have feene on the Coaft Northward of Cape Frie, which is in our Language Cape Cold, Cape Frio is a point of the Land than runneth into the Sea at leaft twelve mile, it leth under 22. degrees. At this Cape you may have fight of a great Mountaine, that you may fee ouer it called abusango Retambuera, here you may anchor on the East-fide of this Cape in a Harbour called Abaya formozo. Here you may have great store of Brassell-wood, and in this Bay you shall find often times good store of Amber-greece, and on the North side of this Bay you shall fee a great River called vparafon, where you may kill good store of many kinde of fishes, and in the mouth of this River you shall have great store of Corall, if you will dragge for it.

Saquarema is a River, where the Frenchmen did traffique with the Canibals called Tamores: it Howeth foure leagues Stuthward from the Cape. This River is narrow at the comming in, you finall find twelve foote water, till you be three or foure leagues up the River. You shall find tresh water on either fide of the Ruser, and great flore of Braffell-wood, all along the Riserfide. On the South fide of this Riser you shall lee a great hill which the Indians call Boppena, that is, The retten Whale, for you shall see the top of it like a dead Whale. If you want refreshing, you may have good there of Potato Roots there, Plantons, Lemons, Orenges, and many other good Roots as bigge as great Turnips, which the Indians call Caranajon.

Lives is a league Southward of the River of Saquarena, It is (as I have faid in the description on of my travell) a great and huge Rocke, hollow within, where the Indians fay that the feruant of God did preach anti them, which they call Topansa, spera, be fore the mouth of this Rock to-wardes the Sea standard another stat Rocke, that reacheth somewhat into the Sea; upon it 30 you shall see the prints of barefeet, here if you fish with Lines, you may quickly lad your shippe. A little behind this stone boole, you shall see a fine River of water, where you shall finde many pretie greene stones that Indians doe vie to weare in their lips. You may anchor within a Musket shot of the shore, but it is verie dangerous if the wind be in the East.

Pirateninga is fine leagues to the Southward of Elioca, right before it standeth a small Hand.it Principal is inhabited by the Partie, It., It is a Bay that pinneth betweene two Mountaines a mile and Mountaines mile and Mountaines mile and Mountaines on more within the Land. There I have feene a Mermaid and many other strange fishes. You may by the Author. lie with your shipping at the Hand, and fend your Boates ashore, where you shall find great store of Cattle: and you may take good hore of all kind of fishes it you will, either with Hook or Net. Here you may have Oranges, Lemmons, and Cassaui Meale, and all other such things that the 46 Countrey yeeldeth, but you must be alwaies fure to keepe good watch, for feare of the Portneals of the River of Innuary, which are hard by you. The River of lanuary lieth three leagues from Pirateninga, it is a great Arme of the Sea, that lorge, and Ci. runneth into the Land at the least fourteene miles; on the mouth of this place, fland foure Ilands, and now the best marke that it hath to be knowne, is a Fort that standeth on the North fide of the comming in of the Harbour, vpon a Rock. On the South fide flandeth a Hill that reacheth into the Sea, which the Portugals call Camo, that is, The top of a flip, for it feemeth like the maine top-faile of a fhip from Sea. Hard by the Sea fide on the foote of this Hill on the North fide of the Hill as you faile into the Harbour; standeth a Rocke of great height made like a Sugarloafe, and is called by the Portugals the Sugar-loafe. In the midft of the going in, in the mouth 50 of this River lieth a Rocke plainly to bee feene, to goe in you must keepe betweene the Rocke and the Fort, that flandeth on the North fide of you. When you are entred the mouth of the River and are past the Fort, you shall see an Iland lie right before you, and even with a Church called Santa Lucia, this lland is called the lland of Brigalion, You must be sure to passe on the North fide of this lland, and affoone as you have paffed it, you shall see all the Citie both on the Hill, and on the Sea fide. Then you must take heed that you goe not right to the Towne, for you shall run vpon certaine shelues of sand, that lie right before the Towne all along to a small Iland called the Iland of Saint Bent, this Iland lieth a quarter of a mile from the Iland of Bragation, and East-Iland of Briward of this Hand of Saint Bent, standeth a great Rocke, you may faile betweene the Rocke and the lland, and assoone as you have entred, betweene them you may anchor hard by the lland, and 60 then you shall see a Church standing vpon a Hill which is called Saint Bent, then you need not feare to goe right before the Towne, within a Caleeuer shot of the shore from the Towne, you thal fee on the North-east thore a towne of Canibals, called Saint Lorenzo, which is in peace with the Portugals, and within the Bay you shall finde many Rivers and Sugar-mils, where there is high Hill, and on either fide both on the South-well and North-east is low Land, in this place led Waratinh. you cannot enter with any thip, but you may anchor betweene the Hands, and lendryour Boses athere. If you goe vp, you shall find good store of Potatoe Roots, Plantons, great store of Oranges and Lemmons, and many other kind of faints, which are very good to releeve ficke men. If you will hih with your Net, heere you hall kill all kinde of good hihes, but alwayes bee fure to keepe good watch, for the Portugals are very neere you.

Waratine lieth three leagues from the River of lannery, you may know it by two:llands that

From the River of Waratine for the space of fourellagues is all fandy low Land; you shall see Cermine Is an a high Hill which the Indiani call Marambayapnam, that is in our Language, the end of Warre; lands called right ouer against this point you shall fee a great Hand at the comming in of this Harbour , you by then the need not feare, for hard by the shore, you shall haup twentiefathome water. When you are in the Hand he mouth of this Harbour right before, you hall fee a white Rocke, which will lie full West from you : you must leaue the Hand Southward from you, then shall you descrie another great Hand galled Eperya; at a point of this Iland that lieth full Well, towards the firme Land, you hall fee two small Hands, and when you are right against those two Hands you shall see a faire Bay, where: you may anchor at pleature to come into this Bay, you must enter between those two Hands there Inaue tooken of. I doe describe this Harbour vnto you aboue many good Harbours that you have find, because you may depart from hence with any wind, for the mouth of Marambana heth South-eath from you, when you are in this Harbour, then you have another going out that lieth

North-east from you, from this Port where you half anchor called Epeara. If you want victuals: fer your ships, you may take your Boat or your Pinnaffe, and goe out betweene the two Hands that you entred, and when you are betweene those Hands you shall see a flat broad Hand, which will lye flat South-weit from you; this Hand the Indians called Sapannera; that is, the morning and this is the Hand that I was driven vpon, when I runne away to Mafter Hanking, as I have told you in the discourte of my troubles , you must come with your Boat to this Hand, and 'your must be fure to passe betweene the West shore and the Hand; and assoone as you have passed the point of this Iland, you shall fee three Hils of red Earth one hard by another. You must leane one of them West from you, then may you land your men at pleasure, when you have landed, you ao must goe through a little Copps, for the speacol a Harquebuse shor, then shall you come into faire Lawne, where you shall find great store of Cattle, and a house or two that standeth your a Hill where you shall have alwayes good store of Castler meale, if you will have Rootes and

Plantone voon the Iland where you anchor there are good flore, but there is an Iland called the Long Iland, where you shall have of all these things in abundance. To know this Hand, tow with vour Boate to the lland of Eperya that lieth full South from your ship , and then you shall fee a long Hand hard by the firme Land, which is this whereof wee speake, and because you shall bee fure not to miffert, be attentiue. When you come neere the shore, beholding a Rocke that lieth a quarter of a mile from the shore, vpon which Rocke standeth a Crosse, this is the place where a Portugall called Manuel Antones dwelleth, but now there is no bodie, but a kinde of Canibals

40 that come and goe, therefore be fure alwaies in those parts to keepe good watch and be carefull; if you can speake their language you may have many things. From this Hand Southwards you shall see two small slands halfe a league from you, these Blands are called Amount of the lands. against them lieth a faire River, where you shall have alwaies great store of fish, and by the River, fide you shall see the Mandioca plainly, and many other Roots very good to refresh your companie. Southward from this place some two leagues you shall see a faire Bay called Paratery there dwelleth a kind of Cambals called Vannaffes, of them you may buy skins of divers wilde beafts, and tomerimes they have good ftore of Amber, which they call Pira ponia ergain.

Saint Sebaftian lieth some three leagues from Great Hand, It is a long and a faire Hand, you The Handofs. may anchor betweene it and the shore. After you have entred at the North point of this Iland, Schoftien. sc you shall see a great white Rocke, right ouer against this Rocke, you shall see a point of the firme Land runne into the Sea, and right before this point lie three Rockes, where commonly you shall tee Indians shooting fishes with their Bowes and Arrowes, if you goe with your Boate to that point, you shall see a great Bay called by the Indians lequerequere. There likewife standeth a great Towne of Cambali, such as those that dwell at Great Iland, halfea league from Saint Schaftians standeth a small Hand right into the Sea, called by the Indians Vraritan, and by the Portugals Alquatraffes, heere you shall finde great store of Seafoules and Seales, Alegators that live on the Land called by the Indians Fifewafon. Right ouer against the South point of the Iland of Saint Sebailian standeth a great white Rocke called by the Portugals Pas demilio, that is, the life of Ginnie Wheate; then shall you fee an Iland hard by the shoare called by the Indians Borsoneonga, that is, the Whales head, this Iland standeth in the mouth of Pertioqua, which is, the River that goeth to Saint Vincents, as you goe to this place after you have passed the lland, you that see North-east from you certaine houses where there dwell a kind of Canibals called Caijofes, there you may have good store of Cattle, Orenges, Lemmons, and many kinds of Rhots and Fruits.

tis of Saint

great profit to be made.

The descripti-

Right against this Towns of Cambals called Carthes, standeth the Towns of Saint Vincents called by the Indians Warapiumama; as you goe father up the River you shall fee a small Hand 2013 & Santes, Southward, where you shall fee a Sugar-mill of the Captaines of Santos called Ieronimo Leton. where our Gentlemen were flaine. Farther vp the River, you shall see a Castle stand at the foore of the Hill; then you come to the Towne of Santos, which flandeth hard by the water fide. Right behind the Towne of Same, flandeth a Hill wher Brafenbar had a house, from the top of this Hilldid John Davies make a Place of the Countrey. Now the Portugals have found Mynes of filuer in this place.

The descripti-

The third Partena is a good Harbour for thips, and here are great store of Camibals and Caribbe on of the third which very lately are inleagued with the Portugals, you may buy of them great flore of Pep- 10 per and Ginger, very rich Furres, and Cotton-wooll, and Waxe, this is the place that I came vnto after I had beene taken by the Tamojes within the Land. Here the Tamojes were taken by rangelica pato, and by the the Portugals, and I was given agains to be my Masters slave, when 10000. of the Tamojes were Indian Vingin. flaine, and 20000, of them parted among the Portugals for flaues. The mouth of the River of Plate is wide, and within it there are many Downes of fand . you must bee sure to keepe very neere the North shoare, till you shall see a high Mountavne white at the top; then must you faile Southward at least foure leagues, and shall you see another small Hill on the Northside, you must faile right with it; then shall you come into a faire Bav. where you must be sure to keepe still along the shoare, and after you have passed the Westerne point of this Bay, you shall have the River Marser; then you need not feare any shallower till you 26 come before the Towne of Bones Ares. There the River runneth full Southward, and along the River lide from Bonos Ayres is a small Village built by the Spaniards of Lime and stone that they brought from Brafil, for all the Countrey is fandie : the Indians doe make their houses all covered with earth. Here are great store of wilde Horses and Cattle, sheepe and Goats, but for filuer and gold, there is none but that which commeth from Cordina and Potafin. Here likewife the Indians have great store of Wheate, twentie leagues within Land lyeth a Province called Tocoman, now it is a Bilhopricke, this Countrey is the division of Brafit, and all the Provinces ot Nona Hilbania. Here the Indians have Wheate and Caffani, Apples, Peares, Nuts, and all other fruites of Spaine, likewise they have all the fruites of Brafil. But after you travell Southward of Note. Beafts of Brafil, this Countrey, you shall not find any thing that groweth in Brafil, nor any wild beafts, as Lee- 20 pards, or Capinaras, Invaferines, Cat of Mountaines, Aqueques, Waristas, Movoquies, Iobryas, Surveus, Idvarcas, Boyana, Boyleninga, Boybena. Brafill is full of all these wilde and dangerous beafts, and divers others; But the Provinces of Pers are cleere of them, except it bee fome Trauelly chance. From Tocomos to Saint Info is eightic leagues, and you shall trauell it as you doe Compalle on by Sea with a Compasse, for the Countrey is all fand, and as the wing bloweth, so shall you have the Mountaynes of fand, to day on one fide of you, to morrow on the other, in this passage you shall passe through many Rivers, which to your thinking are not about a soote deepe, but if you have not good guides and great experience, your waggons and hories will quickly be cast away in them, and at an instant be covered with quicke fand. After you have passed this Countrey, you shall come to Saint lago, then till you come to Potofin, you shall travell 40 shrough great Mountaines and Valleyes, and all the way as you goe, you shall have great Townes of Indians, who are all in peace with the Spannerds, you shall have five hundred of these Indians by the way as you travell readie with Nets to carrie you, tyed one a Cane from Towne to Towne, for a fifth-hooke or a few beads of glaffe, or any fuch trifle; and there is no travelling in the World fo case as this, for you may lye, or sit, and play on a Gitterme all the way if you will, for so the Spaniards doe; you shall passeby many Mynes of Gold and transque with the Indians for Gold, and divers kinds of precious Stones, but not in that plentie as you shall at Potalin, by real on that there the Mynes are open and wrought on, and those betweene Santiage and Potoffin are not. At Potoffin there is no want of any thing, although the Countrey of it felie bee very barren, but by reason of the great traffique that they have from Lyma, and all the Townes es of the South Sea; they have alwayes provision enough, for from those Townes, they bring Oyle and Wine in great larres of earth vpon great sheepe, which are called sheepe of fine quarters for their tailes have almost as much as a quarter. To tell the particulars of the Mynes, would beea new Storie, only this : they find the Oare like blacke Lead, then they grinde it in Ingines, then they wash it through fine Sieues in paued Cifternes that are made for the purpose; the Moores are all naked as long as they worke, because he shall not hide any precious stone. The Spaniards here are all very rich, and in truth as gallant fellowes as can be. The Francisco Friers carrie a great fway in this Countrey, by reason that they were the first that preached in this part of India.

CHAP. VIII.

Relations of Master THOMAS TVRNER who lived the best part of two yeares in Brasill, &c. which I received of him in conference touching his Tranels.

N Saint Michael one of the Acores, they ascend up in a forenoones journey unto Saint Michaels. a hill into a Chappell, wherein they need a fire in Summer for the cold : there being a little off three Springs, the one whereof caffeth vp waters in a continual boyling with a terrible noise, and of great heate, the second of heate intolera-ble, which in short time scaldeth any hung thing to death, the ground also hote to frand on : but the water calme. The third is warme, and a fit Bathe, In thefe Ilands in Caues bee found men buried before the Conquett, whole, &c. Brafitan Indians are Cambals, and not for revenge only, but for food also denoure mans flesh. The Portugals make not flues of them, nor can enjoyne them worke, by reason of a commission to the contrarie obtain lesuits Sauges ned by the lefuites: neither doe they winne of them ought but by faire meanes. They are most fried ds. excellent Archers, goe starke naked, the womens haire long and blacke, barsh as a Horse-taile. He Giante did fee up the River of Plate, one twelve foot high, and report was of higher in that Countries. Their Weapons are two mailie bowles at the two ends of a ftring cast, &c. He saw also men there with the hinder parts of their heads, not round but flat, (and a little before this Relation, about Anno 1610, he faid that at London he had feene carried to the Court a thigh bone of a man a yard Flat heads. and halfe in length.) Their beafts in Brafill are great Apes with beards and Mustachioes. Kine like vnto ours of both fexes, but liuing in the waters and reforting to land to feed. Hauing no Viders, nor horners long legs, harmeleffs, leffe fomewhat then ours, their flesh like beefe, but eaten in the name of fish. Strange Kine, Tieres like Grey-hounds spotted like Ounces exceeding swift, the force of whose pawat a blow killeth his prey. Their beaft by some called Hay, which yet he faith, eateth leaves of trees and not Aire only : the louely prettie Segonia. The Serpent Cobrus: whereof he faw one al noft See before in 20 as bigge as himselfe, twentie foot long, killed by their Indian boy, of colour like an Adder. Of Oniedo. as bigge as minutes, or an arrange service whom they report (and a Father gaue him inflance of the proofe) that watching his prey, that Strange Service whatfoeuer commeth by, it winder about and getteth the taile into the fundament drawing this num. the suts after it: and so preyeth on the same, denouring all, till that it be not able for subselle to ber may perflire, but rotteth as it lyeth, the fielh quite away, the head and bones remaining, in which haps feeme inthe life continuing recourreth at lait his former Hate. One was thus found in the rottennesse, credible and and being bound for proofe by the Portugals, with a withe tila Tree, at their returne was telethereport, fo found repaired. The beaft that baggeth vp her young ones, &c. (as in others Relations, heere which in fome therefore omitted.) one veere after

The Indian is a fish in the Sea, and a Foxe in the Woods, and without them a Christian is nei-fome great 40 ther for pleasure or profit fit for life or liuing.

Out of Angola is faid to be eyeerely shipped eight and twentie thousand I flues and there but the genewas a Rebellion of flaues against their Maiters, tenne thousand making a head and barraca- ral reportis of doing themselves, but by the Portugals and Indians chased, and one or two thousand reduced. divers thou-One thousand belonged to one man, who is said to have tenne thousand slaves, Eighteene sands shipped Ingenies, &c. his name is Iobn de Pais, exiled out of Portugall, and heere prospering to this the Potteral thence yearly a incredibilitie of wealth.

There are Apples called Ananas, pleasant in colour and exceedingly in taste, and holesome, gained the but eating Iron as Aqua fortis. Brafil is full of Mines, if the King would fuffer the digging them.

Negroes foolish and fpichefull wars vpon each others

CHAP. IX.

The taking of Saint Vincent and Puerto Bello, by Captaine VVIL-LIAM PARKER of Plimmouth, the fenenth of February 1601.

N the beginning of November 160t. I departed from Plymmouth with two ships, one Pionasse and two shallops in quarters toward the West Indies. My chiefe thip wheiein I went my felfe as Admirall was named the Prudence, of an hundred tuns, wherein I had an hundred and thirtie tall men, the second was the Pearle, a small ship of fixtie tonnes, wherein went as my Vice-admirall Master Robert Rawlin, accompanied with fixtie luftie fellowes, my Pinnaffe of twentie tuns was manned with eighteenemen. In this Confort were Maller Edward Giles , and Philip Ward

Gentlemen Captaines by Land, with Captaine Amone Fugars, Captaine Lorman, Captaine Andley, and divers other Gentlemen of much towardlinetle and valour as they made good proofe in the furceffe of this Voyage. In our patting by the Cape of Saint Vincent in Spaine, commonly called the South Cape, I was encountred with fuch a terrible Ternado or guit of winde that my Pinnaffes loft Pinnaffe with fifteene of our men, to our great griefe was vtterly cast away, wee being not able with the vetermoit of our endrauours to faue about three of the reft. From thence I shaped my course to the lles of Cape Verde, and immediately upon my arrivall there, I fet upon one of them Hes of Cape called Saint Vincent, with an hundred men, and tooke the Hand and the Towne thereof. which Tarle. was a prettie place, the spoile whereof I gaue to my Souldiers, which after they had pillaged it, The He and

Towne or S. jet the jame on Ere. Hence we haled ouer to the Coast of Tierra sirma, and arrived first at the lle of Margarita and Trimer & C.K. R. The Raschera

with discre

comming to the Rancheria or fishing of Pearles in the small Hand of Cubagua, we found the Go-1 CHOMINA. uernour of Cumana, there with a company of Souldiers : neuertheleffe we made bold to land, and in our landing we received a great fight wherein divers of our men on both fides were wounded; p. iconers (2) k mand ranfo- but in the end I tooke the place with divers of the floutest of our Enemies Prisoners, and thirteene Periaguaes and Canoes, which are Barkes and Boats of the Countrey : for ranfome of all which I received five hundred pounds in Pearle. This done I proceeded on my journey, byling directly for Cape dela Vela, and there meeting with a Portugal shippe of two hundred and hisie tuns laden with three hundred and feuentie Negros, brought from Congo or Angola, and going to Cantagena with little reliffance I rooke the fame. And fayling along with my prize Weft- 30 ward, not able to double the Iles, called Las Cabecas; I was driven farre downe to the Southward into the Gulfe of Acle, in Spanish called Enfenada de Acle, where we landed all our Portugals and Necres, kiering only the Captaine which afterward paid the fine hundred pounds for his owne and their rantomes. Within a while after we flood Westward with our shippes, and went into the Hes called the Cabecas, where I embarked an hundred and fiftie of my men in two small Pine They take fixe maffes and two fine shallops, and went for the Iles de Bastimentos, and landing there voon the faid or fram people Hands which are peopled and very fruitfull, I tooke fixe or feuen Negroes for guides, and to prefently with our Pinnaffes and Boates entred the mouthof the River of Porto bello, the feventh of

At our full entrance into the Hauen, which is about twelve fcore over, and very deepe at the 20 mouth and farte voward, we were halled by the flrong and stately Castle of Saint Philip, having houre afterwards with my two shallops which lav close by my Pinnasses, and some thirtie of my principall men, I went up the River having fomoof the fmaller Fort, called the Fort of Saint

Tago, which is directly ouer against the great Caffle of Saint Philip, symning still on the shoare, and crying out on me to flay; but neglecting their out-cryes, I landed at the first Towne called

Triana, where the alarme was prefently given : which nevertheleffe I fet on fire, and marched o-

Kings Treature-house, which is very faire and large, we found a squadron of souldiers (whereof

there are two hundred and fiftie alwayes belonging to the Towns and another company of the Inhabitants) with two braffe Pieces of field Ordnance well mounted on their carriages, which

At which alarme Captaine Antonie Fugars, and Captaine George Lawriman of Ratcliffe , came

we prefently poffeffed, and fiercely fet youn the Souldiers.

uera little Brooke into the great rich Towne of Porto bello ; and comming directly vp to the po

Bafi mentes, Februarie about two of the clocke after midnight, the Moone thining very brightly. R. of Parto

The great Cas thirtie fine great pieces of Brazen Ordnance and fittle Souldiers in the fame, to know whence 91. of S. Phi- we were: wee having aboord variuch as could focalte Spanish excellent well, answered that we Eye, with 25. were of Cartagena: then they commanded with another, which we did accordingly. About one braffe, and to.

Porte belle.

up with my two Pinnades with an hundred and twentie men to my refeue, which was very hardly laid voto. At this house at our first comming into the Towne, my Lieutenant Samuel Banet was flot on the fide of his head, and through his eare, and Captaine Giles comming to fecond him, was likewife that ouer the breft and through his arme. In this meane space Pedro Melender the Gouernour of the Towne, had gathered fixtie Souldiers together, and was comming to toward a certaine bridge to encounter me, I having not then aboue eight or nine men with mee to withfland them; but God did profper our proceedings mightily. For the first two shot that went from vs, that Melendes through his Target, and went through both his armes: and the other fnot hut the Corporall of the field. Whereupon they all retired to the house, which they made good untill it was almost day. Against whom I sent Captaine Ward with some Souldiers. who entred the house, killing divers of them, and wounded Melendes in eight places more:

Governour ta- end he tooke Melendes Prifoner, and became Mafter of the house. My felfe with others went to the Kings house, wherein were many of the Souldiers, who would not come to any composition, but stoutly defended the same against Captaine Gues and 60 our Lieutenant Samuel Barnet : who in the end flue divers of them and hurt many others, taking the Kings Scringso prifoner. This fight endured for the space of sourcer five houres. The fight being ended, and we being Matters of the Kings Treasure-house and all the Towne, and haming the Gouernour Melendes, and the Serimono with many others of the chiefelt my Prifoners, himfelfe being foot through both his thighes in entring, and some of his men hurt : but in the

except the Alcalde which fled out of the Towns with a chaine of Gold about his necke. Such Treasure as was found in the Kings house to the value of some nine or ten thousand Dackers. I referred to my felfe, which was nothing to that which wee did expect (that being the receite at one time of the yeere of all the Treasure that commeth from Pers and Chile, amounting at least to fine or fixe Millions of Duckets) and had I come but feuen dayes fooner. I had taken heere an hundred and twentie thousand Duckets which were newly laden in two Frigats for Cartagena. The rest of the spoile of the Towne, which came to no small value in Money, Plate, and Merchandize, I gaue wholy to my Souldiers : which being done, I dispoted my Corpses du quard in diners places, for keeping the Towne all that day : and at the end of the streete leading toward TO Panama on the South Sea, being full of all Artificers, we made a barricado where Captaine Giles flood with another Corps du guard being divers times affaulted by the enemy! whom ftill hee valiantly repulsed and put to the worse.

Pedro Melendes the chiefe Gouernour of the Towne being my Prisoner, in regard that he had Besse for it & valiantly carried himselfe in making resistance vatill he had tenne or cleuen wounds upon him, I liberall minds did not only at length difmiffe without any peny for his ransome, but also caused my Chirurgion of Captaine very carefully to dreffe and trimme his wounds : vfing him and his, farre otherwife, then Pedro Parter. Melendes his great Vncle vied lobn Ribault, Landoniere, and the French Nation in Florida, whom they most cruelly murdered and massacred as many as they could lay any hands you.

Thus being Mafter for one whole day of the stately and new builded Towne of Porto bello Porto bello de-20 which had two goodly Churches in it fully finished, and fixe or feuen faire threets, whereof two were full of all necessarie Artificers, and of Merchants, with three small Forts on the Townes Heat timesh fides, besides the great Fort of Saint Philip on the other, when I might have speedily have con-from ting furned it all with fire. I willingly abstained from the same : knowing that though I could have the T wine of done the King of Spaine exceeding great hurt, and have vindone a number of the Inhabitants, yet Perto bello on the good that I should have done my selfe, and mine thereby should have beene very small in fire, comparition of their damage. Only certaine out houses wherein their Negros dwelt , I caused to be burned to amaze and put them in feare: I also tooke two Prigats of theirs which roade far Two Frigats vp within the River, the one of them having in her three pieces of Ordnance, the which I like- taken and wife tooke and brought away from thence with mee, with the which Ordnance we beate your brought away, 20 the enemy marching voto vs from the Wester Fort.

The day being fpent, at the beginning of the night I embarked my men , enriched with the Their deparchiefe spoile of the Towne, and fet faile to depart with my owne two Pinnaffes and two shallops ture.

and the forefail two Spanife Frigats which I had wonne: but in going out I was shot in at the elbow, and out at the wrift with a Musket shot which came from the Wester shoare, whereof there were many shot ouer vs: besides eight and twentie great shot from the chiefe and Easter Fort, which did endanger vs often. But God fo wrought for vs, that we fafely got forth agains contrarie to all our enemies expectation, who made full account to finke vs in going forth. Being fafely come forth wee rode with our Pinnaffes, and shallops behind a small lland which lay betwixt vs and the Wester most Fort of Saint Iago, untill my Vice-admirall Captaine Rawlins 40 brought two ships thither, which rode somewhat to the Eastward of the Castile of Saint Phi- Sir Fr. Draged up, under the Rocke where Sir Francis Drake his Coffin was throwne over-boord, all the while burially that we were busied in gaining, sacking, and possessing the Towne. Our whole seet beeing affembled together in the place aforefaid , I fet the Kings Serimane , and the rest of my prisoners on fhore, suffering them to depart without paying any kind of ransome. And the next day being the ninth of February, I fet faile and stood off to Sea, leaving the goodly Hauen and beautiful Towne of Porto bello, which standeth in ten degrees of Northerly latitude : and directed my course backe againe toward Cartagena, and about twelue leagues to the Eastward thereof, I came into a good Bay called Sambo, where I watered and flaied some twelue or thirteene daies, and riding there tooke certaine Frigats which were bound for Cartage-

50 na. Whereupon the Gouernour Don Pedro de Coronna, armed out two Gallies and a Brigandine. Sambe. with some two or three Frigats, with a purpose to assault vs; but beeing better aduited they would neuer come neere vs. When he heard that I had taken Porto bello, one of the chiefest places of the West Indies, with so small forces, he pulled his beard, and sware that he would give his Mules la le of filuer, but to have a fight of mee and my companie. From this Bay of Sambs wee Virtus in hofe stood over for the Hand of Jamaica, and so doubled the Cape of Saint Antonio, beeing the most laudanda, Westerly part of Cuba, and disimboked through the Gulfe of Bahama, the last of March 1602and came with good weather to the Iles of the Acores, where victualling my Vice-admirall and two Pinnasses out of mine owne ship for two moneths, and leaving them at Sea to take some farther purchase, with mine owne ship I tooke my course for "limmouth, and arrived there in safetie 60 the fixt of May 1602.

CHAP.

Beinsra.

Aruba.

Brackes.

Cape S. And

Organes.

Cuba

Seven men

He five and twentieth day of May, weefet faile from the Loward, and the tenth day of June we fell with the Grand Canarie : the Towne standeth on the Northeast point of the Iland, and the Road is one league to the Northward of it. To That night we flood of South South-well. And the five and twentieth day of June we were in the latitude of twentie two degrees thirtie minutes.

The fixe and twentieth day of June wee came in companie of feuen faile of Punta delaraga. Hollanders, that were bound for the West Indies, to Punta delaraga to lode Salt, and the seven and twentieth day we loft fight of them. The second day of Julie we fell with Saint Pincent. When you came from Saint Vincent to the S. Vincents. Teftogos, you must make the way South-west by West, or else you shall not fetch it, for the Current lets North and by West from them. Being to leeward from Caracus, two leagues we flood ouer North North-weff, the wind being at East North-east, we fell twelve leagues to the Eastward of Bomara, being the twelfth of Talle. If you frand our from Bosnara to Opralao, minded to coe to the South ward of the Hand. you must stand South and by West, or else you cannot get about, because there is a Current that iers North-weit, and may fet you voon the Hand. The three and twentieth day of Julie wee anchored to the Westward of Qurasao, and there the Land lies North and South.

The nine and twentieth of Julie we landed upon Aruba, for to get fresh water, and there we had feuen men flaine by the Indians of the Hand : and we rid with our flip in flue fathomes water, halfe a mile from the shoare. One point of the Land bare North, the other South-rast and by South, and there is an high Hill in the mid-le of the Hand, and that bare Eaft and by South. Betwixt Coque and the Maine the courle is East and West.

The shoale of Puntall lieth two leagues off: the best of the Channell betwixt that Point, and Coase is in eight, nine and ten fathomes. From Braches to the Parretaes is fine leagues courfe West and by South.

From the Parretaes to Gape Caldera is twentie fine leagues course North-west and by West. Cape Caldera. and betwire the Parretaes and the Maine, you shall have foure, five, fix and seven fathoms water.

The Road of Morecapana lieth betwixt the Maine and Boracheo, within the Ilands. The eight day of August we set faile from Araba, and we stood over South for the Maine, the wind being at East and by South, wee fell with Mecola, being nine leagues from Aruba. Saint Ann is an high Hill voon the Maine neere voto Mecola.

The feuen and twentieth day of August we came to anchor at Portete, that is to the Eastward 40 of Cape La mela, foure leagues. The Cape bare Well a little to the Southwards, at the going to Portete. And on your Larboard fide going into Portete, there is a round Hill : being in the offing it sheweth verie blacke. The going into this Harbour is verie narrow, but within it is a verie broad Sound, and two thousand faile of thips may ride there in werie good ground, and you may ride from five fathomes to twentie, but wee ridde in three, a little within the point, on our Larboord fide going in.

The eighteenth of lanuary wee parted from our Man of Warre at Cape Saint Anthony, and fet faile for England, in a Prize, a thip of fome one hundred and fortie tunnes, laden with Campeche Wood and Hides, the Master of the Prize, was William Goobreath : and from Cape Saint Anthony we it ood off North-west and by North.

The nine and twentieth day at noone, we had fight of the Westermost Land of the Organes, being East South-east from vs, and then we stood North-east, and the twentieth day we were in latitude 23. degrees 15. minutes, the winde being at East North-east, we stood off North, and from the twentieth day to the one and twentieth day wee made our way West and by North, and this day we were in latitude 23, degrees 20, minutes, then we flood to the Entiward.

The two and twentieth day, we were North-weil and by North, from the Crowne in Cuba. fourteene leagues, then we flood to the North-ward; thefe fourteene leagues we surned up and downe with the winde Easterly. The three and twentieth day, wee were in la itude of 24. degrees no minutes, the wind being at East North-east, and we lay North with the stemme, and this night we came in twelve fathomes, being then in latitude of 24. degrees 25. minutes, the 60 winde being at East and by South we stood to the Southward. The fine and twent eth day, wee fell with Cober twelue leagues to the Eastward of the Hanana, and this day about foure of the clocke in the afternoone, we had the Pam of the Matangas South-east, and by South from vs fome fixe leagues, the winde being at East, and we stood North North-east three Watches, and brought the Pan upon the Matanzas South of vs : the winds being at East North-raft, we stood to the Northward, for io we made the thips way. The feuen and twentieth day at foure of the clocke in the afternoone, wee fell with the South-east part of the Martyrs: then wee stood off Martyrs. South-east and by South three watches with a low faile, and so cast about, and stood North-east and by North three watches, and then oblerued, and found the ship to bee in the latitude of 24. degrees and 55, minuts, being then South-west and by South of the Cape of Florida about three Cape of Florida leagues: the winde being at South-east and by East, we stood off South and by West three wat- da. ches, and then cast about, and stood North-east two watches, and then observed, and found the thip to be in 25, degrees 36, minutes being the nine and twentieth day of Ianuarie, 1502, and to then two watches North and by East, and foure North North-east; and the thirtieth day at moone wee had the Cape Cananaral West and by North from vs fixe and twentie leagues : by Supposition being now in latitude 28, degrees 14, minutes, the winde being at South, wee flood North-east and by East into the Sea. The eighteenth day of March at noone (being Thursday) weefell with Silley, and wee were South from it three leagues or ten miles , the Silley. winde being at West South, west, wee stood for the Lizzard, and the twentieth day of this moneth we came to winde being at anchor in Dartmonth , this was my first voyage which I have to the West Indies.

CHAP. II. Martyrs. Florida, Silley. Guianos Rivers and Ilands described. 1247

CHAP. XI.

The description of the He of Trinidad, the rich Countrie of Guiana, and the mightie River of Orenoco, written by FRANCIS SPARREY left there by Sir WALTER RALEIGH, 1595. and in the end taken by the Spaniards and fent prisoner into Spaine, and after long captivitie got into England by great (ute. 1 6 0 2.

The description of the He of Trinidad.

Orte la Spaniele lyeth North-east. The Spaniarde name themselues Conquerabians. Anaparima is the name of the River, which goeth to Corona the Spanish Towne. The North part is very mountainous. The Indians of Trinidad have foure names. 1. Those of Parice are called laiss. 2. Those of Punts, Carao Arugeas. 2. Those of Curiadan are called Saluages. 4. Those betweene Punta Carae, and Punta de la Galera, Nepoios. But those which are servants to the Spaniards, name them-felues Carinapagetes. The chiefest of the Indians, I meane the Kingsand Lords of the Handsin times pait, named themiclus Acaremana, but now Captaines,

The description of Guiana, and of the oreat River Orenoco.

Wiene beareth directly East from Pers, and lyeth almost under the Equinociall Line. The The River of Tentrance to the River Orenece through the River Capari at the mouth at a full Sea hath nine Capari foot water, and at the ebbe but fine foot, The water floweth but a small time, but increafeth much; and the ebbe goeth but flowly; for it continueth fixe houres. In the bottome of the Gulfe of Guanipa there is the River of Amana, which leadeth into Orenece alfo. In this The Gulfe of River , which wee named the River of the Red Croffe , wee tooke an old Timitinan for our Pilot Guenipa to Orenoco.

The River of Orenoco or Barequan hath nine mouthes, which lys on the North-fide of the Amana. mayne land : but I could heare but of feuen mouthes you the South-fide. So that betweene Ilands and broken Lands it hath some fixteene mouthes in all. The Hands are somewhat bigge, so as I can hardly ghesse how many leagues it is from the North-side to the South-side. At the entrance of this River are two great Lords Tinitimans, which hold warre one with the other con- Timitimans tinually : The one Nation are called the Tinitinans of Pallamos , and the other of Hororotomaca. He that entreth the River of Amana from Curispan, cannot possibly returne the same way hee came, by reason of the Easterly windes and the great Currents, but must of force goe in a River within the Land, which is called Macuro.

To goe from the He of Trinidad to the great River Orenoco the River of Amana beareth Macurial 60 South : But parting from that River by a branch which beareth to the West we entred Orenoce. Togatimate a Toparimaca is the chiefe Gouernour vider Topiawari, of the entrance of the Eastermost part of Amacan, the River Orenoco. The Towne of this Governour is called Armacan. Thele are friends to the carapana lyeth Carapanans, Tourimans, and all Nations, the Caribes excepted. Carapana byeth in the Province in the Proof Emeria : and the Eastermost part of Dorade is called Emeria.

nince of Exec A [4. 712

Cabej.

efferma Hand. Inun Iland. arrargetane. Furnisa River. Mercasito. Arromaia. Patanaima Ibook Owe a The Playnes n' Samte. Cumana. droam; Pand.

dialland. Maneribane. A omain. Th River Caroni. Cafs:pagotos. Mor. canilo. 4 4 ma Hand Pouremi. Great Fall. Ca invi. Store of gold among the E. parenians. Cafigago: 05. E .. r 0 05. Armea olos. Store of gold beyond the Mountaines of Curas. Store of gold. River Arui. Riuer Cafripe. River Atoica. River Carra. River Calmero. Amapaia. ri. Limo Paco. Catari, Voari, The Prouince

Bad water. Guicat GMX41. Pasemens The land of Amazones. The Iland A. River Vbra. Eregoodawe, Oromona. Tapiamary. Riuer Sabna.

of Amapaia.

Papemena a great River.

Athal, a moft fweet & plea-Cant Hand

Affapana is the first Hand in Orenoco: it is but small. The second Hand is called Iwana, There is another entrance into Orenoce, which I discovered not : but the Indian's name it Arrarograma Europa is a River which commeth into Orenece; but the head of it I know not. In the middeft of Orenose there is a pretie bigge Hand, which is somewhat mountainous; and the name of it is Ocamit Aland, Ocamita, One Putima commandeth under Topiamari, in the Confines of Morrequite, which lyeth in the Province of Arromaia. The Iland of Patapama is farre up within the River of Orenoco, and frandeth right against the high Mountaine, called Occope. Ouer this Mountaine lye the Playnes of Samia. Through these Playnes you may goe to Cumana, or to the Caracae: which are at least one hundred and twentie leagues iuft North. In these Playnes are four. Nations, which are held tor great men. The Samias, the Affamais, the Wateries, and the Arroras, 10 Thete Nations are fomething blacke.

On the left fide of this Ruer Orenoce are two small Hands, a small distance the one from the other. The one is called Arouni, the other Aio. In the morning before the Sunne bee high the winde is still Easterly in this place, Manoripano lyeth in the middle of Orenoco. Aromaio is the name of Morrequite. Orenece reacheth to the Mountaines of Wacarimoc , which is to the East in the Prounce of Emeria, or Carapana. The Vallies are called Amariocapana, and the people by that name alfo. Vpon this River Orenoco there is a pleasant River for many kindes of victuals, which is called Caroli, and the people Caffipagotos.

This Countrie of Morrequite lyeth in some five or fixe degrees to the North of the Equinoctiall Line. At the Point of the River Caroli is the small Hand called Catama. The 20 Inhabitants of this Iland Caiama are enemies to the Epuremi. Here is a very great fall of Land water. Canuri lyeth in the Province of Morrequito. The Governour is called

The Epuremians are richest in gold onely. These people called Epuremi have many enemies, but three especially which are very strong : which are their; the Cassing Eparagotos, and Arawagotos. Hee that will paffe the Mountaines of Curas shall finde itore of gold: which is faire to the Weff.

The River Armi runneth continually North, and so to the River Cassing, and from thence into Orenoco: neere vnto the River Arm are two Rivers , the one is called Atoica , the other Caera: and also one branch which is called Caera. To the Westward of Carais is a fourth Ri- 30 uer, which is called Cafnero: it falleth into Orenoco on the fide of Amania.

The first River that falleth into Orenoso from the North, is called Care. Beyond it on the fame fide is the River Lime : to the West of it is the River Pase : and beyond that are the Riuers Caturi, and Voari; and another called Capuri, which is dangerous to enter. To the Westward of Capars in the Proxince of Amapaia, is most vile, vnwholfome, and bad water The Rivers Ca- to drinke; it is of a bad tawnie colour; it hath killed many a man, both ladiens and others. They fay this water commeth from Anches.

On the North part of Pern is a way to enter into Orenoce, as I have heard by the Indians. The first place whereby they are to paste, is called Gnicar: the second Goanar; and so to the River of Papemena; which is the River that runneth toward the Iland of the Amazones. Neere 40 vnto the Iland of the Amazones is the famous Iland of Atbul.

The Ruer Ubra, bearing to the West of Carthagena, beareth to the Southward of the Iland of the Amazones. This River Vbra, if you fland to the South-well, leadeth to a part of Aromain), which is called Eregoodane. This Countrie of Eregoodane is very Mountainous, and nothing frontfull : it is inhabited by the Coman Ibes. They have Ginny wheat but no flore, and very little Cassaui : Venison, Hogs, and Conies they have in great abundance, The King or chiefe Governour of this Province or part of Aromayo, which is called Eregoodawe, is one which beareth great fway in those parts, whose name is Oromona. But all are chiefly commanded by Tapuamay King of Morrequito.

In mine undertaking the discouerie of the North part of Oreneco, I was aduertised by cer- 50 taine Indian Pilots, that I should finde a perfect and readie way to goe to Pers. In which my travell, I fell, by reason of a great storme, into a River, which is called by the Indians Salma. This River is not great; in three dayes I paffed through this River, and entred into the River of Papamena. This River of Papamena is more in my judgement then five or fixe Leagues

North North-west of this River is the Iland of the Amazones. But leaving that course, I came to the most sweete, pleafant, and temperate Iland which is called Athal. If I had had companie to my liking. I could have found in mine heart to have flayed there and frent my life. Athal is not rich in mettals ; but fome stones I found in the fresh-water Rivers : for there are great flore of fresh-water Rivers; and no want neither of Fish, Tortoyles (which the Indians 60 name Catfepames) Foules, nor other good things. It hath Wood great ftore, Fruites all the yeere in abundance, many good places to make a Towne if you will, Cotton, and Ballamum. Brafill, Lignum vitz, Cypreffes, and many other sweete trees. The earth of this Iland doth promise to the eye to be good, it is very sad, and much like to Oare, which I found in divers plaCHAP.II. Curaa and Camalaha commodities. Orenoco, Europa, Habito.

ces. I cannot report of the goodnesse of the stones, because my knowledge in them is nothing. Athal is not inhabited by any. The Iland is small, and for feare of the Caribes , there is no body.

I returned from this good Iland Athal toward the River of Orenoco, because I found my la- He returned hour was loft : For to finde the way to Peru that way was impossible. And to make my jour- from Aibal. nev the shorter. I returned by the River Papemena, but left the River of Salma cleane, and Papemena, came my directeft way to Orenoco: which mine Indian Pilots held to bee through the River of Lime : and fo I came into the River of Orenoco. Then I went from Orenoco, and held my course Lime. altowether Westerly : because I found the West most rich ; although it was most dangerous to Orenoce,

10 trauaile thither, I meane farre into the Countrie, by reason of the Epuremi, which live continually in armes, and hold warres against many Nations, but against three Nations especially. These are, as I wrote before, the Cassipagotos, the Eparigotos, and the Arawagotos, My defire was to goe to Curaa; and from Orenoce I first entred into the River of Cofnere, and fo cofnere River. coasted to Amapaia, where is the bad tawnie water, which before I mentioned : from thence Amapaia, I went to the River Page; and within fixe weekes after I departed out of the River of Orenoco Page River. I came to the rich Countrie of Curas.

The Countrie of Curaa is in the Province of Guiana, or Manoa, where are the mynes of tric of curaa white stone; in which mynes is much naturall and fine gold, which the Indians call Callierry. htt weekes tra-The gold in this place, I say in Manoa, or Guiana, runneth betweene the stones like veines; nece. 20 of which gold I had some ftore : but now the Spaniard is the better for it. In Caras is also gold Manas in small graines, which lye in the lands in the little Rivers or Brookes. I alwayes tooke those Gold in abun-in Imali graines, winten ye in the lands in the first state of the finest gold. In these Rivers where gold lyeth, are many Aliganos or Crocodiles. Gold in grains I heard by the Nation of the Timitinans, that a place called Tulabe, had many good things in it: found in Ribut I found it nothing fo. Some bad fresh-water pearles I found there : which were nothing ness. round, Orient, nor very great. I brought of them with me to the Spaniards; and they faid they Crocodiles in were no Pearles, but Topasses.

Camalaha is a place where they fell Women at certaine times, in the mannet of a Faire. And there you shall buy colours, such as the Saluages paint themselves with. In this Faire, go which is called Camalaha, which is to the South of Orenoco, I bought eight young Wo- Tulebe. 30 men, the eldelt whereof I thinke neuer law eighteene yeeres, for one red-hafted knife Badpearles. which in England cost mee one halfe-peny. I gaue these Women away to certaine Saluages Topastes. which were my friends, at the request of Wariane the Kings Daughter of Murrequite.

Ter or Turos is an Iland, which is to the South South-west of Orenoco. To which place I and yet no fair went, because they said there was neuer any that inhabited in this Bland, but that it was in woman, the manner of a bayting place for the Caribes, when they had stollen people, which they Eight women meant to eate. One Captaine Caramaton was my guide to this place : whither we went some for a halfe-pewhat ftrong, with intent, if wee could finde any Caribes on this Iland, to kill them; but Ter or Tave, wee found none. Many houses wee found there couered with straw, which wee set on fire, an Iland, And there I found close by the water fide, going about the Iland, which was but small, many 40 Stones of divers colours.

To the West of this River and Iland, which is called Tar or Taros, is a River, which is called Habue: There are about this River in most places eight, ten, seventeene, and thirtie Habue a River, fathomes water. This River of Habne commeth from the Sea. The entrance of this River at the mouth is barred; but at a full Sea you shall have fourteene and fifteene foot water; but in the Channell in which the Canoas enter, which is but narrow; there is more then fixe fathoms : but I doubt that ships cannot enter there. This River Habue is the best and furest har- Habue scarce bour that I could finde for our ships, and freest from the danger of the enemie; and is not full eight dayes eight dayes iourney from Orenece.

The River Europa lyeth to the East of Orenoco as you come from Trinidad : you may, as I Europa River, so certainly know, going fome twentie leagues in the River of great Amana, discouer the great and high Mountaine which is called Occopa: being there you shall plainly see the Playnes or Occopa Moun-Downes of Samia; through which Playnes you may fafely march ouer the Land within ten or taine. twelve leagues of Camana, or to the Caracas.

From Orenoce alfo it is very easie to goe to the Towne of Santo Domingo, which beareth Santo Domingo. North North-west directly: but you must passe of force the River Amapaia, leaving the Iland Amagaia River. called Amazones South and beare your course as neere as you can North-west, or North North - Amazones Iwest. By this course you shall passeand escape the force and danger of the Towne, and land some land. fixe dayes journey from Santo Domingo.

The River Winnershi is to the North of Orenece. To goe into this River, which is little worth, Winnershi River. 60 you may goe in the Land till you come to another small River, which is called Maccab: dire- Maccab River. Ching your course South, you shall within two dayes, if your Canoa bee good, enter the Ri- West, are Canabasea. uer of Wannuls. The Land taketh the name of the River. The Governours name is Worigar Wor - Guiand on rok Halaba. Carrabonca is in the firme Land of the great Hand, called Murrequito : it is the Maria, common trade to goe to the rich Guiana or Manoa.

Drano is a faire River, but it is dangerous to goe farre in it, by reason it lyeth due South-eastfrom Orenoco : and the Southermolt part of the Moores of Anebas is very low, so that the tanie waters iffue in great abundance into this River of Drano. The danger for entring this River is nothing, but the doubt is onely of the bad water, and most terrible dewes which fall from the Moores, which are vnhealthfull, and kill the Indians daily; for that continually when they tra-Vahealthiull uell they lie in the open aire. The Eastermost part of Dorado is called Emeria, There is a small River, which lyeth farre East in Emeria, and beareth North North-west. Through this River called Capurifol is a fure, a perfect, and most fafe way to goe to Pers : but the journey will aske eight or ten weekes to finish it. Through their Rivers of force wee must palle with Canoas or Ship-boats, or such like : 10 for there is alway very little water.

Capacifol River. The River of Capacifol lyeth in eight degrees and two terces to the North of the Equinochiall

Line. But the North starre keepeth his degree and altitude 11. degrees and two terces. In this River is full a fine small brise of winde, which lightly bloweth at West : but at noone you shall hardly finde any winde.

CHAP. XII.

Captaine CHARLES LEIGH bis voyage to Guiana and plantation there ..

He one and twentieth of March, 1604. Captaine Charles Leigh in the Oline Plant. a proper Barke of some fiftie Tunnes accompanied with fix and fortie men and boyes, departed from Walwich with intention to discouer and inhabit some part of the Countrie of Guiana, where he had beene in a tormer voyage, they flaved in the Downes vntill the eight and twentieth of the faid moneth, and paffine thence they touched in the Ile of Mogador on the coast of Barbarie in the moneth

the rebell Moores, which would have had money for our watering. Thence with prosperous 20 winde coasting the Iles of Cape Verde, we passed over to the West Indies, and vpon the tenth of May comming in change of water, which shewed thicke and white, by the next day we were in fresh water, and the next day following about fine in the morning wee faw two Ilands in the River of Ams. mouth of the River of Amazones, making account that we were fortie leagues up the River, and came to an anchor in three fathoms vnder them, which wee found low land coursed with high Trees. Then the Captaine with some eight of the best men of the ship went toward the shoare, and finding many Indians comming toward them they returned aboard, and found the ship almost aground, but founding the Bay brought their ship into the Channell which they found very narrow.

Within awhile after foure Indians in a small Canoa shewed themselves vnto vs, to whom we 40 fent our Boat with fome of our commodities, as Hatchets, Kniues, Glaffes, Beades, they had nothing but Maiz and small blue-headed Parrots, for which we gaue them some of our triffles. Not long after another Canoa comming out, our Boat clapt betweene them and the shoare to take fome of them, to learne the flate of the River by them, but they freed themselves all saue one youth, which was brought aboard, which next day after escaped leaping into the Sea twelue leagues as we judged from land. Thus we tooke our leave of the River of Amazones, and having vicertaine shoaldings all the way in our way, about ten a clocke in the night wee strooke upon a fand before we could let fall our anchor, where wee beat off a piece of our false keele, before wee could get off. Being gotten off, wee came to an anchor in foure fathom and a halfe water. and rode there vntill the next morning, where wee descryed the land fixe leagues from vs with eq the entrance of a River:

The Falls.

River Wishers. The two and twentieth of May, wee arrived in the River of Wishers, in the latitude of three degrees and a halfe to the North of the Line, where wee found the people readie to give ve the beil entertainment they could, bringing vs Hony, Pines, Plantons, Potatoes, Caffaui (whereof they make their bread and wine) Fish of many forts, Hennes, Conies, Hogs, and such like. This day he tooke an oath of all his people to be true to him as long as he abode in the Countrie. Then after divers conferences with the chiefe Indians, and namely with two of their Countrie, which had beene before in England, and could speake some English, he found them very willing to have him and his people abide in their Countrie : who pretending want of many necessaries, whereof indeed he stood in need, and especially of victuals, hee went up the River in his Boat with some 62 fourteene men to take perfect view of a fit place to inhabit in , and to found the depth of the River as they went. At his returne he caused his ship to be brought up hard unto the falls of the River: but after they had stayed there one day, finding fundrie inconveniences, they came backe againe to their first road; with a determination to plant and feate themselves your the first

Mount or high ground, at the entrance of the North fide of the River. But the Ingosand Saparos freing him and his company come downe the River againe, entreated him earnestly to flavamong them, offering him their owne dwelling Houses and Gardens alreadie planted to their hands, whereof he accepted: to wit, of two Houses and of as many Gardens as they thought convenient to ferue his turne, with condition that he should ayde and defend them spainst their enemies the Caribes and others. Hereupon they made a great Feast, deliring our Captaine to bee at it, and they demand of their generalitie of the flaving of our men in the Country or no. Whereunto they gaue their free confent, and defired him withall to fend into England, for men They defired to teach them to pray. This done, the next day he brought all his furniture on fhoare, and be-learne religion to stowed it in the aforesaid houses. And for the better assurance of the performance of the Salwages promife, he demanded pledges of them to be fent into England : whereunto they willingly condescended : which where in number fine, whereof two were of good account. Hee retayned thirtie five Englishmen and Boyes with him, fending the rest home in June, with the five Salmages which were plentifully furnished with their Country victuals, with Letters to the right Worshipfull Sir Olane Leigh his brother, of his successe and defire to supply his wants, which he most kindly twice supplied to his great charge, within shore time after. The Caribes in eight warlike Canowes came to jurprize them as farre as the Mount Comaribo: Caribes.

whereof the Indians being advertised by our fishers, defired Captaine Leigh to aide them; which he did with fome foure and twentie of his men in eight Canowes. But the battell being begun 20 after they had heard the found of our Trumpet and Musket, they fled to Sea-ward, our Canowes chafing them: but the enemy being iwifter elcaped with casting of one of their Canowes which are able to carry twentie men and victuals for ten dayes, which Canowe they brought home.

Within a fennight after our Captaines returne, hee made a Voyage in an Indian Canowe ha- A Canowe tauing Indians to rowe him, accompanied only with Thomas Richardon, his Refiner of Metals, and Renal John Burt his Chirurgion 90, miles by water up the River of Aracana, to a Nation Called the Manyaunas, where he traded for Tabacco and Cotton yarne, and Cotton-wooll. There he left his Chirurgian being ficke, and with his Refiner and three Indians (whereof one Willsam was his Interpretour) went vp to a Nation called Marraias the space of thirtie miles, where they paffed thorough a goodly Plaine foure milesbroad of much thonie ground, wherein they faw Deere-

20 At length meeting with the people, they were kindly entertayned and fed with fuch as they had; as dried Tygres flesh, dried Hogges flesh, and small fish. Then after some discourie, they enquired for Gold flewing a Ring. An old man fpake vnto him and pointed vp into the Countrey, and the Captaine asking the Interpreter what he faid, he told him that he faid there was no fuch that way. The Captaine perceiuing the falshood of his Interpretor would goe no further, and so returned home, where he found vs for the most part sicke, and the Indians not so kind vnto vs as they had promifed: which he much maruelled and grieued at.

Within three dayes after his returne, his shipwright Richard Haward died before hee could make an end of his shallop. And in September our Captains himselfe began to droope, partly of griefe to fee the weake efface of his people, and the ill performance of the Indians promifes: yet 40 neuerthelesse he ceased not to take order for the Indians bringing in of victuals and such Merchandize as could be gotten, as Waxe, fine white long Feathers, Flaxe, Tabacco, Parrots, Mon- The Commo keyes, greene and blacke, Cotton-yarne and Cotton-wooll, iweet Gummes, red Pepper, Vra- dities of the po, and Apriepo woods, Spleene stones, matiate stones, Roots and Berries, which we thought to Countrey, be medicinable, Anato a Betrie or God, fuch as the Indians paint themselves red withall mingled with Oyle, Vrapo which is the heavie wood whereof they make their Swords and Bowes, Apriego, a wood that the Frenchmen and Hollanders fetch away, a wood which they call Ayard. which they kill fift withall.

The fishers beate this wood with another piece of wood, till it shiner into flakes, which smelleth exceeding strong like Garlicke, wherewith in fundry places of the creekes going in accor-Strange

50 ding to the depth of the water, they beate it vp and down often in the Riner, which the fifth fifthing, are intoxicated, and fo diftempered with all, that they flore and tumble vpon the vpper part of the water, and then with Bats and Poles they knocke them on the heads. Their bread they make of Caffauia, a white Roble commonly a spanlong, and almost so thicke, which the women grate in an earthen panne against certaine grates of stone, and grate three or foure bufshels in a day : The inyce thereof they crush out most carefully beeing ranke poyson raw, in a hole of withe, which they hang vp vpon an hooke, and afterward with a weightie logge which they hang at the other end they iqueeze out the water into an earthen pan or piece of a Gourd, The inice and then leethe the same juice with their red Pepper whereby it becommeth holesome, and if they will haue it sweete, they will seethe it but ordinary, if they will haue it sowre, they will

60 feethe it extraordinarily, and wheit in manner of fawce, and when they be ficke they eat the fame and bread only. The women also make drinke of this Cassaus bread, which in their Language they call Arepapa, by baking of it blacke, dry, and thinne, then chewing it in their mouthes, they put it into earthen pots narrow in the bottome and broad aboue, contayning some a Firkin, iome a Kilderkin, fome a Barrell, fet in a fmall hole in the ground, with fire about them. LIIII 3

Reing well fod, they put it out into great larres of Earth with narrow neckes, and there it will wo ke a day and a night, and keepe it foure or fine dayes till it be ftale, and then gathering together an hundred and more, they give themselves to piping, dancing and drinking. They make drinke also of Callana vnchewed, which is small and ordinary in their houses. They vie also to make drinke of Potatos which they paire and sampe in a Morter being fod, then putting water to it, drinke it. Sickn:ffe.

Before and after the fickneffe of our Captaine, many of our men fell ficke, some of Agues, some of Fluxes, some of giddinesse in their heads, whereby they would often fall downe; which grew chiefly of the excellue heate of the Sunne in the day, and of the extreame dampe of the earth. which would so moviten our Hamackas, or Cotton beds, wherein wee lay a yard from the In ground, that we were faine to imitate the Indians in making fires on both fides vinder them. And for all that we could doe, some nine of our company were dead before our ships arrivall. Besides we were mightily vexed with a kinde of Worme, which at first was like to a Flea, and would Ni per little. creepe into the feet especially, and under the nayles, and would exceedingly torment vs. the Womes, great time it was in, and more in the pulling out with a Pinne or needle, if they were few. But one of our men having his feete over-growne with them, for want of hofe and shooes, was faine to fubmit himselfe to the Indians cure, who tying one of his legges first with his feete vpward.

Trecheric of

nowred hot melted Waxe which is blacke vpon it, and letting it lye vpon it till it was throughly cold, they forcibly pulled it off; and therewithall the Wormes came out flicking in the fame. feuen or eight hundred in number. This man was named John Nettleton a Dier of London, which 20 atterwar d was drowned. In themiddelt of all these extremities our Captaines Interpretor which hee had threatned for his falle demeanour in his Voyage to the Marraies before mentioned, gaue counfell to his Mafter named Anaccauri, an ancient Captaine among them, to make a motion among the Indians at their next meeting to fay, it is the best way for vs now to make an end of them while they are sicke either by starting or otherwise. For when the ship commeth, hee will kill vs for keeping him without victuals now. This motion being made at their meeting, which was in Carifana his house, and among his and Martins kinred, (which then remayned pledges for our mens fafetie in England) their wives hearing the Interpretors Master Anaccaurs broaching this matter ranne furiously whom him and tare his clothes such as hee wore from him, and mightily beate him, the 30 other of their kindred, keeping those Indians off from the women, which would have taken

Some of our owne men lying at the next house where this was done, inquired of an Indian which ewed this Anaccauria grudge, what the cause was of the said tumult : who imparted the whole truth vnto them. Our men comming fuddenly to the Captaine, acquainted him with the whole matter : who fuddenly bethought himselte and sent for all his men that were neere him; and for Eperiago and Pluainma an Indian that had beene in England: which were two of the chiefest, and caused him to fend for his trayterous Interpretor, which came bringing Hens. drinke and bread: Affoone as he came, shewing what hee had heard, requiring them to declare what wrong he had done them. Who answered, none. Then said he, this fellow, meaning the 40 Interpretor hath fought my life; and therewith commanded his men to bind him hand and foot, which done, he dismissed them, desiring them to returne the next morning. In the meane time he caused his Prisoner to fend for a Canowe to fetch three of his men. which were vp in the Riuer, who immediately did fo. Now having all his men together, hee caused them to have all their Furniture readie : appointing one William Blake to feethe fame diligently fulfilled . the watch carefully to be kept in the night, and two to ward at the doores all day with their Furniture, to take the Indians weapons out of their hands at their comming in at the doore.

This being ordayned, the Indians came the next day, to whome the Captaine faid. In regard that I have been elo carefull to punish the wrongs done ynto you, I would have you readie to renenge the wrongs done vnto mee, who feemed very vn willing to doe any farther luftice, effee- 50 ming his binding a sufficient punishment. At the which the Captaine beeing very much vexed. commanded the two foresaid Indian Captaines to depart, charging them to fend him in fish and other victuals for his company. In the meane time he and the chiefe of his men confulting what course to take with the Malefactor, they thought it best that hee should lye so bound untill the next day being the third of his bondage, and to fend for the chiefe of the Indians, and your confession of his fault, and craving pardon thereof, to be dismissed before them.

> Captaine Charles Leighs Letter to Sir Olane Leigh his Brother.

Oil louing Brother, I did write unto you from Muggador, where I gazed until the ninementh of Aprill, and on the fourteenth of May I had first fight of Guiana, in the mouth of the River A- mazones. The two and twentieth, I arrived (prayfed be God) in safetie in the River Caroleigh, heretofore called Wyapoco, and the same day, I tooke possession of the Country in sight of the Indianis. The Indians which doe inhabit this River are about one thousand five hundred men, women, and children and they are of three Nations, viz. Yaioas, Arwarkas, and Sapayoas, which beeing chased from other Rivers, by the Catibes have combined themselves together in this place for their better defence, and are now at deadly warres with the Caribes. After that I had stored my selfe with Bread and Roots sufficient untill the Earth with Gods promidence might yeeld me Supply, I did then fend for the chiefe Captaine of the Yavoas abourd, whom with gefts and good vsage, I easily entreated to stay abourd my this vintill such time as by his meanes I was provided with all kind of Plants, which their Gardens doe affoord , ret all this while he knew not my purpose. The day before I purposed to make my intent knowne, their came another chiefe Captaine of the Yayoas abourd to dine with me, who together with the former after Dinner defired to speake with me, whereupon I fent for an Indian who had beene in England, to bee Interpreter and tooke hem into my Cabbin. The two Captaines told a long Storie of the wrongs the Caribes had done them, how toey had driven them from their ancient dwellings in other Rivers, killed many of their friends, carried their women and children away Captines, and burt many of their men, and therencon they called one of their men to shew me how he was lately burt in three places with their Arrowes to conclude, they told me, how they purposed the next Moone to goe against the Caribes, with twentie Canoas. and carnestly entreated me if I stayed so long to goe with them to their Warres. Voon this good occasion.

CHAP.II.

I told them that I purposed to stay in the Country, seuen or eight moneths, to seeke out and make triall of Mynes. And in the meane time that I purposed to build Houses assource at the head of the River, and there to plant Gardens, that my men might have victuals of their owne labours, which done, I would build a shallop, and send twentie men in her with them to fight against the Caribes, withall this they semed wonderfull well content, and thereupon they promifed Indians to belpe mee to build and to plant, and the chiefe Captaine promised himselfe to goe up with me. The next day being the third of May, I see layle from the mouth of Caroleigh, and cast Anchor in a Bay under Mount Oliphe, where I purpoled to plant, and make my habitation : but my men discomforted with the sight of the Woode; which they were to fell, grew generally discontented, and omitted no practices to overthrow the Voyage, being suborned under hand, by my unfaithfull Sermant, the Master, his lewd conforts he brought with him, being the only publike maintayners of the mutenie. How I have beene troubled with him and his conforts, (who 20 intending footle and purchase in the West Indies) have from the beginning sought the overthrow of this Voyage, this Bearer can certifie you at large. And undoubtedly bee made full account with his beadfrong companions at such a time to have commanded the ship at his pleasure. To conclude, amongst o-ther their practices, they so consumed the victuals which so had been mayntained versitishe earth had geelded supply as that in fixe dayer, our Potatoes which should have lasted us two monethes, were wholly hent hereupon being farre diffant from the Indians, who inhabit at the month of the River, fortie pen derappor com just sujamo from a suscession of the commence of the commence ac them and their exemies they would be readie and willing to furnish os with victuals, upon any extremitie, to which condition they generally consented, that place being first motioned by some of them. The Stippe being resurned, they had then brought musimie to such a head, as that to my face, they stood in destance of the Voyage, and told me plainly they would not fray doe what I would or could, I orged them with their promie to plant on Mount Huntly, one of them who seemed wost forward of all men to yeeld to that motion: answered that he promised in policie, to draw me from Mount Oliphe. But in the end it plea-sed God, what by faire meanes and what by sonle, I brought them all to consent to stay one whole seere, thorow all extremities, if it were possible to make a full triall both of people and Country, and to plant upon Mount Huntley, according to their promife. This agreed upon, I went ashoare to the Indians, to provide victuals, and other necessaries for our Plantation , who being exceeding glad of my returne ; of-So fered me to choose the best of their houses and gardens, to dwell amongst them. For they were very unwilling that I should goe to any other place, to conclude, indiging their offers by many likelihoods, to be without deceit, I resolved to abide with them upon this condition : that they should send four eprincipallindians for England as pledges, for our Safetie with them whereunto they willingly condescended, and if I would, I might have twentie. For they make daily fuite to me to goe for England. Beeing in conference with an affembly of two or three hundred, purposely met to crave my abode amongst them, and demanding of them vowes and protestations, according to the custome of all people, for the more securitie of our peace and amity: their answere was that they knew not how to make vowes and protestations, and therefore generally they defined (fundry of their Captaines speaking it together, with a low and humble voice) that I would bring them men to teach them to pray. Which motion of theirs, proceeding from themselves and in that humble manner, strocke me I assure you into an admiration of ion, to thinke that it hath pleased Almightie God after so many dangers heretosore, and troubles in the Voyage, to preserve me to be a meanes to this simple hearted people of the knowledge of Christ. Vindoubtedly, it was the wonderfull worke of Gods Spirit in them, whereat all Christian hearts ought to relogice. And I am perswaded, the like instance hath never beene before by any people in the World : I befeech Almightie God to give a ble fed end to this hopefull beginning.

The foureteenth of June, concluding with the Indians upon fundry conditions, I purchased of them the same day for a few Hatchets, Houses and Gardens planted with Caffaua, and Potatoes sufficient for all my company ; the scituation of our Houses is in the pleasantest and most fruitfull place of all their baas my tempory.

Bit alions. And because it is a small Village of fix or senen bouses; and the first place of our seited aboade

I have named it Principium: the Hill on which it standeth being part of the Monutaine on the West. fide of the entrance of the River, I have named Mount Howard, to honour the remembrance of my Lord Admirall, of whom heretofore I have received many fanours : on the East side of the entrance of Caro Leighh, lieth the Riner Olivoleighe beretofore called Arrikowarye: and on the Welt fide of Mount Howard runneth the River lotrameleighe, by the Indians called Wanarie. The commodition ties which this Countrie doth yeelde, and through industrie will abound in, are thefe; Sugar Canes, Cot- 10 ten and fine Flaxe; also it would yeelde great store of long Pepper, if there might be vent for it in England: here is sundry forts of Gummes, of Woods, and of Dies, which I hope will proue good commodities of all which I have fent you samples by Master Huntlie, especially one fort of Gumme, which I am persuaded will prone very rich. Also I have sent unto you a peece of a Stone taken out of a Manuate or Sea Come. I am ginen to under frand that a little thereof beaten into powder, and drunke in Wine or Ale, will in few houres cure any man that is troubled with the Stone, they fay it dissolveth it instantly. I doubt not but to get a dosen of them before this time twelve moneths : my refiner bath made triall of sunarie Minerals, but cannot yet finde any Mettals. At my arrivall bere I found a Dutch Shippe, and Sithence here bath arrived another, they buye up all the Flaxe they can get, and pay so deere that I can get none; they have not gotten fo little I thinke as ten tunnes of Flaxe within thefe two moneths.

I doubt not but I shall be able to returne a Shippe laden with Flaxe and other commodities the next yeare; the Flaxe yeeldeth a wonderfull encrease, and will grow any where, but especially in low moonsh grounds: the Indians report that the Roote yieldeth increase energy moneth, and eneric yielde may be some four ounces, by this accompt an acre of ground planted with the service, and distant three soute a sunder. youl yeelde 17280.li, enerie yeare, which amounteth at fixe pence the pound to 422.li. I doubt this will not prome an swerable to sheir reports, but I verily beleene it will yeelde halfe the encrease they sheake of. the Dutch men baue reported that it is worth in Holland but fix pense the pound, but they confesse that Holland will vent 400 tunne thereof. Some of the Dutch men have reported that it is worth in Holland fixeteene pence the pound, which I rather believe, for my Weners tell me that they will warrant it to dreste exceeding well, and then it must needes be excellent fine grounds for any stuffe; for Cotten bere is 30 little, not worth the speaking of, yet the Countrie will yeelde abundance, and in sixe weekes the seede will pecied Cotten, and it beareth continually and pientifally. I pray you for fend me more Weaver, for I know not how to get any thing founne for them, for the women here are put to that extreame labour, that they baue no time to spinne, for they onely fetch water out wood to burne, and bring it bome upon their backet, they gather all their rootes and bring them out of their Gardens, they make all their Bread which is verie labour some, they dresse all the victuals, make all the drinke, attend upon the men while they are at meate, and besides, they dresse up their honses in their kinde, and nurses beir owne children: so as the ey are alwayes toiled with labour, and have little or no time to spinne. For Sugar Canesthe world doth not yeelde better foyle for their encrease, and whereas in Batharie it is fifteene or fixteene moneths before ther come to perfection, here they grow up in ten moneths. And in Bathatic they are planted onely in 40 two Vallies, where they are watered enery weeke, but here they grow upon the Mountaines, and neuer watered but with raine onely. A few yeares I doubt not will afford plentie of Sugars, if wee shall have meanes to make them. My loofe commodities, as Hatchets, Beades, Knines, Looking glaffes, &c. are almost all gone; a great part in buying of victuals, but the most part to stoppe the mouthes of my Mutinors and monstrous Sailours; to whom also I have promised two third parts of my Iron.

Now for the profecuting of this voyage, in such fort as that we be not presented brahe Spaniard nor any other Nation; I would entreate you with as much speede as possibly you can to send me a supply of one bundred men at least, to abide bere, all labouring men and Gardners, for such are the fittest here for a time, with a few Carpenters; and with them three or foure good peeces of Ordnance with shot and powder: also fiftie Caliners for the men that stay here: if you can send these men in two Shippes, I doubt not but to 50 lade one of them backe in three moneths after arrivall and the other which I wish may be the Olive plant. I would keepe here and fit her for a Frigot to keepe and command the River. I have written to my brother Iohn Leighe to deliver unto you such monies as he bath received of Gifford, who I hope hash ere this time paid his debts. I hope you shall get store of voluntarie men to ease the charge of the Voyage, and looke what you shall dishurfe in my behalfe for the accomplishment of the Voyage, I will, God willing, see you bonefly paid with advantage ; or elfe if it please you to put it in adven: ure, it shall be accomplished in any fort to your owne desire. As I doubt not of your lone and forwardnesse, especially in so good an action so also I make no question but this Countrie will in few years yeelde you sussection beyond your expectation. If my wife have not alreadie attained her fuite of the Kings Maieftie, I hope the will the fooner freede voon this newes, which if the doe, my defire is, that all shall be imployed upon these proceedings; and to that 60 effett I have written to ber. I have written a Letter to the Kings Maiestie; another to the Lords of the Counfell, and one to my Lord A imsrall.

The bearer hereof Capraine Hunthe is the worthieft young Gentleman that ever went to Sea, upon any cangerous enterprize, be was never definated, neither with extreame dangers at Sea, nor with all the Mu-tinies aboord, which had beene able to have discouraged an old experienced Souldier; besides, I found him tinies avoora, wone and full, and loyall friend, and therefore I pray accompt him for a right honest man. I have made him my Lieftenant generall of these Countries during life, and therefore I pray let him returne chiefe commander in the first supply. I would pray you also to procure to come with him some bonest and differente men whom I might relie upon as trustie friends, and use as companions both for adult and Gocietie, for Lam now very uncomfortably matched, having no worldly strength to trust upon but my selfe onely. I have fent unto you foure Indians, principall men in their Countrie, which were delinered unto me as pledges of our safeties here, and they are to returne again the first, but I thinke some of them will be more as pleages of our fafeties over annual work was left here by Captaine Lea, is dead, I pray you pro-willing to stay longer. The English man which was left here by Captaine Lea, is dead, I pray you pro-Captaine Lea. no cure Sir Walter Rawleighes Indian or my Lord Admirals, for I want an Interpreter exceedingly, bere is but one, and he understandeth but little to any purpose. I pray forget not to send Preachers, sober and differente men, and such as are well persuaded of the Church government in England, Co. From Principium, or Mount Howard this fecond of Inly 1604.

CHAP. XIII.

A true Relation of the traiterous massacre of the most part of threescore and seven English men, fet on land out of a Ship of Sir Oliph Leagh, bound for Guiana. in Santa Lucia an Iland of the West Indie, the three and twentieth of August, written by TOHN NICOL

Ir Oliph Leagh, a worshipfull Knight of Kenn, sending a supply of good numbers of men un a Snip called the Oliph blossome to his brother Master Charles Leigh. which was planted in the Ruser of Waspoge, within three degrees and an hale Northward of the Equinoctall line in the West Indies, which departed from Wolmich the foureteenth of Aprill 1604, vader the conduct of Captaine Cataline, and Capraine Nichelas Sainte lobn Albeing defirous to fee the world, con-

30 forted my felfe with that co apany. But by contrary windes and voknowne currents of the Sea, and the viskilfulnelle of our Matter Richard Chambers, wee were put to leeward of our port, without any hope of recouring the fame in any due time; And being not victualled, as it Saint Barbudoi. feemed for about fours or fine moneths, after confulsation had, we were faine to touch first at the Santa Lucia. Ifle of Barbudos, and then at Santa Luzia in the West Indies. Where fearing to perish at Sea for Garcin. Ni. hunger before we should be able being so many abourd to reach England; Captaine Nicolas Saint eb. Saint lon John, with the rest of the passengers, which purposed to have staied with Master Charles Staint Saint Leagh at Wiopogo in Guiana, resolved to stay and take their fortune in the aforesaid fruitfull men.

Thus fixtie feuen of vs ar our owne feeking were left on shore in the aforesaid Hand of Santa Luzis the three and twentieth of August 160s, with our Swords, Muskets, and Powder, and one Falcon, and one barill of Biscuit onely for all our food. The next day our Ship departed from vs with fome difcontentment, because we had feafed upon her Boate to ferue our turnes. After our Shippe was departed from vs, we lived very peaceably, daily trading with the Indians for victuals ; which were Caffaui, Potatos, Plantans, Pinas, Popayes, Pompions, Calabaffus, Tobacco. Pappies, Mammeyes, all very pleasant to eate. Also they brought vnto vs Hens and Guls. and fome Pelicanes, Woodcocks, and Snipes: we our selues did kill with our Peeces many of them likewife. And every night we fent out fixe vpon the fands to feeke for Tortoyfes, whereof we neuer miffed night without one or two, and many times three, which was the greatest suffe. Torteiles, 50 nance we found; for they are very large and great. I have often taken out of one of them to the number of feuen hundred egges. Also the Indians had great store of Roan linnen cloathes, Serges, and other Stuffes, and Spanish wollen cloath : and iarres of Oyle which they tooke and faued as Sea with their Periagnas. For three Spanish Shippes had beene there cast away a little before our arrivall, if we had had a Pinnesse there we could have laden her with many good commodities, which they had hid in their houses in the woods. All which we could have bought for Hatchets, Kniues, Beades, Thimbles, Fishhookes, and other such trifles.

Thus for the space of five or fixe weekes wee went not much abroad; till our Captaine seeing certaine foure square Plates, which the Indians ware on the imall of their armes, asked Browne, a Gold finer, his opinion, what he thought of them ! who told him, that three parts thereof was Shew of Cold. 60 Gold. And asking the Indians where they got them, they pointed vinto an high Mountaine on the North-welt part of the Hand. This caused Captaine Nicholas Saint lobu, and lobn Rogers, who was our interpreter for the Spanish tongue, with as many of our chiefe men as could well goe in the Boate vpon a Munday to goe thither, promiting his Brother Alexander Sainet John, Matter

Garret, and Mafter Teneb, whom he left to gouerne the restat home, to returne the next Saturday.

Indian treacheric.

The Indians for three dayes after did not come vnto vs with victuals, for they perceived when The Capraine the Boate went, and as we thinke, they were then at the flaughter of our men at the Monna tayne. Voon Thursday morning we killed two Tortoyles on the fands; where wee found a great company of the Indians gathered together, for what purpole we knew not : And left wee should suspect them of any bad intent towards vs, they willingly offered themselves to bring home our Tortovies, which they tooke into their Periaguas, and brought them to our

All that forenoone weekept good watch : for there were very many that came both by Sea and Land to the number of two or three hundred; and divers of them were very merrie with vs. drinking of Tabacco and Aquante, vntill ten of the clocke, and then they departed all faue one which was a Captaine of the He of Saint Vincent, called Augranuers, and an old man which was his Father: who promited vs, if wee would goe to their houses, that wee should have any thing that they had. For the day before I had beene at their houses with other two of my fellowes to have bought victuals: yet they would not part with any, no not for any commoditie that wee had and yet they had more flore of victuals then euer I faw them have before. But wee perceived afterwad, that it was prouided for them, that came to take their parts against vs. whom they kept fecret in the Woods. So we three ceturned, and trauelled farre into the lland. Estre gardens, and vaffed through fixe or feuen Gardens very full of Caffabe, Potatoes, and many other rootes and truits, and by the way faw many tall trees of fo huge bigneffe, that wee three could not at of hard wood, twice fathome one of them about; and they were fo hard, that wee could not cut them with our 20 Kniues, and the Barke of them was white like Ash. Then we returned to our Sconce againe.

der, Matter William Tench, my felfe, and divers others, to the number of eighteene, went with Augramers and his father, having neither Bowe nor Arrow, onely his father had a Brafill fword. They went thus meanly armed left wee should suspect them. Augramers also promised Master Hamaca beds. Alexander Saint lolm, that he should fee his wife, and we should have Hamaces, which are Indian beds of net-worke made of cotton yarne to lye in. So we trauelled along the Sands very fecurely, young Saint John going a little space before playing and jesting with the Indian Captain. till they came within fight of their houses, where in the woods they had placed an ambush of three hundred Caribes : when fuddenly Augramers tooke hold of his Rapier with the one hand 20 and of his Poniard with the other, and the old man his father with his Brafill fword ffrooke him downe to the ground. Then out of the woods came the Arrowes fo thicke about our eares, that weehad not the time to put our matches in our cocks. And many of our companie had their match to light, which gave a great encouragement vnto the enemie; infomuch that we discharged not fixe peeces against them which caused divers of our companie to file into the Sea vo to their necks, and fome along the lands as amuzed, feeing fuch a huge companie against fo small a number: vntill young Saint John reconering againe, encouraged vs to make a ftand at a point of Land which went corner wife into the Sea,

Vpon Thursday after dinner, Mafter Alexander Saint Johns , Mafter Francis Kettleby the el-

But all was in vaine : for before wee could make our peeces readie, there came another companie on the back of vs, and filled our bodies full with arrowes : and then wee betooke vs to our 40 iwords and fo runne through them : but fill they encreased out of the woods, shooting their arrowes in great abundance, not daring to come neere vs vntill they faw vs fall : and then with their great Brafill fwords they strooke out our mens braines. I my selfe being all this time running with young Saint lobe, and Mafter Kettleby, who behaued themselves most gallantly , haning at the least one hundred arrowes apiece before they fell, came at the last into the entrance of a narrow path, where fue of my fellowes were gotten before I came, and thinking to have paffed through, there was another ambush who killed them all. I onely with three arrowes in me, by running into the wood and fwimming ouer a ftanding Lake escaped home, giving them warning before they came to affault them : and vpon my comming they all came in fight vpon the Sands, whom we foone fent away by shooting off our great Peece, so they came not in three so

Voon Monday there came to the number of thirteene or fourteene hundreth both by Sea and Land, and there belet vs round, wee having nothing but our Chifts to defend vs from their arrowes : thus for the space of seuen or eight dayes we fought with them, and of nineteene men which were left of all our companie, twelue were fore wounded with their arrowes. And the first day at twelve a clocke they shot fire in their arrowes and burned our houses, thinking then to have entred in voon vs. but with our Falcon wee drove them backe with most horrible cryes. After that our houses were burned, and all our Chifts which before were our Fort, wee fortified our felues with the remnants of the stakes and thatch which we had faued from burning, setting them in the ground flopewife, couering it with fand and earth, which faued vs euer atter from

The next day after they all departed in their Periaguas. And the Lord feeing what need wee had of food, contrarie to our expectation, mooned the hearts of our very enemies to bring vs food. For when all the rest were out of fight, one returned very well prouided of victuall, and three or four comming out of their Piragua with asmuch as they were able to carry of Cassauri, Potatoes, and Plantans, cryed vnto vs to exchange with them, first holding vp their bowes and arrowes, and after laying them on the ground againe in figne of peace. Which wee perceiuing, fent out three likewise to bargaine without weapons, with Kniues and Beades, and other trifle; which traffick being done, they departed and we returned, giving praise to God, for this miraculous feeding of vs. For we had no meanes of our felues to get any food : for they had bereft vs of our Net, with which we had wont to catch as much fish of many forts as would juffice vs for a wholeday. Thus they continued daily for the space of seuen dayes; and then our victuals began to faile againe, which caused vs to hold out a slagge of truce : which they perceiping , came 10 in peaceable manner vnto vs.

Then one Francis Brace, which could speake French, made them understand that our defire was to give them all that we had, if they would let vs have a Piragua to carry vs away. Which one Captaine Antonie willingly confented vnto (contrarie to the will of his brother Augramers, Captaine of Saint Vincent) and the next day brought it, drawing it on thoare within the comnaffe of our Fort; for which we gaue them Hatchets, Kniues, and Beades, yntill they were contented : and to please them the more, we gaue them every one a Shouell or a Spade, where with they were fully contented, and so departed. Then with all speede we went all to worke, some vpon the Saile, which we made of very good Roan-cloth, and some to make the Mast; and euery one did labour all he could to be readie against night. For Captaine Antonio, which was Cap-20 taine of Santa Lucia, told vs, that his brother Augramert would come the next day from Saint

Vincent with twelue Periaguas all laden with arrowes; whose words we alwayes found true. Thus on a thursday, the fixe and twentieth of September, at one of the clocke after midnight, having among it vs all but one Barrico of fresh water to drinke, and one small Firkin of Rice, we embarked our felues being nineteene in the whole number; not one haning skill in the Mariners art, and without Carde or Compaffe to direct vs : wee fayled by the Sunne in the day-Blind hungrid time, and by the Starres in the night, going alwayes betwix: South-weft and by Weft. The vi-voyage, Etuals that wee had were not fufficient to lerue that companie for three dayes. For wee had not aboue twentie Biscuits, three Cassaui cakes, a dosen Plantans, and some thirtie Potatoes, and some foure or fine gallons of water, and a little barrell halfe full of Rice. And as it pleased the 20 Lord he had faued it vntill this our great necessitie, for the preservation of our lives : for all our other victuall was gone in two dayes, and our water in three dayes. And then Mafter Garres gaue to every two of vs a pottage dish of his Rice twice a day, which wee washed in salt water and so eate it raw. Thus we continued at Sea seeking for Land, for the space of tendayes, where wee endured one great tempest, although to our great perill, looking alwayes when weeshould Assorme be drenched. The raine which then fell, was voto vs in the middeft of our danger a great comfort : for we faued it with great toy, and dranke it, thanking God for that good refreshing ; who would rest them upon the side of our Boat, so that we tooke them and dryed them in the Sunne with a little gun-powder, and eate them. Our Boats brimme was fo neere the water, that eue-40 ry wave came over it, readie to linke vs, but that foure of vs continually did lade the water forth by courfes. Now, on the tenth day one Thomas Morgan dyed, not being able to live of that Thomas Hersmall allowance, and at noone we threw him ouer board. Within an houre after it pleased God gan dyeth. to glad vs (who were likewise readie to follow our fellow) with a joyfull sight of Land, vnto Land the neerest part whereof we made as fast as we could.

likewise did send the very Fowles of the aire to feed vs. For being wearie of their flight they

But the winde being calme we were benighted before we could come to it. And so wanting the light of the day, we were voon the shoare before wee were aware, and there split our Boat Boar folis to the middeft, and all our men were turned out faue my felfe, which held the helme, thinking the next wave would fet her off againe, not knowing her to be split. But the breach was so great that it turned me vnder, putting me in great danger to be grinded to pieces with her weight ly. ing voon me against the great Rocks; yet at the last wee all recourred our setues, some sitting

50 vpon the Rocks, others on the rootes of great Trees, thinking there to faue our felues vntill the morning. William Picks, and my felfe, went and haled the Boat on shoare, which was split to the very middeft, and to farre with our Swords we cut off, and put in an head in the middeft, and fastened it with our Daggers, Kniues, and Bodkins; stopping all the leakes with our shirts, and fent fine of our companie over to the mayne land; which were Miles Pet, William Picks; Francis Brace, William Kettleby, and William Butcher. They haled their Boat foure or five dayes along the shoare, crotting divers Rivers with their Boat , being sometimes pursued by Aligates or Crocodiles, and Sharkes.

God pittying their poore estate, guided them to a place, where they found a great carthen 60 larre full of wheat flower fet in a little Caue, which they boyled in the larre with fresh water, and fatisfied their hungrie appetites, with thanks vito God for the same. And within two dayes after they met with three Spaniards, with halfe a dofen Indians and Negroes, travelling Three Spanier from Caracas to Core, driving Hories and Mules laden with merchandile : who feeing their ards. weaknesse for want of victuals, valoded their Horses to feede on the grasse, while they retreshed

Miferable fa Vicot Tabacco

our hungrie men with plentie of their good cheere, and shewed themselves very courteous suffering them to ride, and went themselves on foot two or three dayes, till they came to a Towne of civil Indians, called Tocora, where they stayed to refresh them, for they were very weake. And there they let the Spaniards know in what miferable cafe they left vs in a defolate Hand : where we endured the greatest milerie, that ever men did with life. For wee continued fifteene dayes having no kinde of meat but Wilks, falt Water, and Tabacco; which did nothing at all nourish vs. yet neuerthelese it tooke away the defire of hunger, and saued vs from eating one another. In those fifteene dayes five of our companie pined to death, because they could not take Tabacco : John Parkins, Edward Greene, Thomas Stubbes, Andrew Swell, and an old man called John. By noting two or three of our men to die, we knew by those tokens when we drew neere 10 our death : which were thefe, first they would swell very bigge, and shortly afterfall to the very bones, and wanting strength to hold vp their heads, they would fall downe, and droope into their bosomes, and in twelve houres after yeeld up the Ghost,

At the fifteene dayes end, Francis Brace having more frength then the reft, guided the three Spaniards with fixe Indians to the Iland where we were, and they brought victuals with them :

which when we had eaten had almost killed vs, by reason of the weaknesse of our stomacks, being to farre from that we could not digett it, although we fed thereof very frangly. The next day they carried vs to the mayne land, where wee had horfes brought vs to carry vs ; and the Fine died in Food almost penurie. Tocors.

Co:0.

Good Flore

goods wee had they tooke all to the King of Spaines vie, and so conveyed vs to Toroya; where wee which were weake remayned fifteene dayes, and those which were frong went with the 20 three Spannards to Coro, which is some fiftie leagues from Tocoya: and at the fitteene dayes end. Kind Spiniards one of the Spaniards, whose name was Sennor Coralanal, came for vs with horses, who shewed himfelfe as carefull of vs. as if we had beene his owne Countrimen and friends and brought vs to Core to our fellowes: where we were brought before the Gouernour; and by a Flemming which could speake a little Engleh, which had beene a prisoner there sixteene yeeres, we were examined of the cause of our comming thither; who excused vs very well. For beeknew, that if we had confessed whether we were determined to goe, they would have either put vs to death, or condemned vs to the Gallies. But he told them, that we never purposed to come thither, but were by misfortune and tempeft of winde and weather driven on that Coaft, and told them of all the dangers which we had endured, which draue them into fuch great admiration, that fome faid, so verily wee were Denils and not Men : others, that we deferued to bee canonized, but that wee were Lutherans.

All the chiefe Sennors of the Towne beeing there, every man was defirous to take one of vs. After we were decided among them, they did not vie vs like priforers, but were as carefull of vs Somily gentle- as of their owne children, not fuffering vs to want any thing necessarie for the procuring of our healths. My lot fell out to bee entertained by one whose name was Semier Francisco Lonez ; and being extreamely ficke of a Calenture, or hot Feuer, one Captaine Perofo which had married his daughter having good skill in Philicke, came daily to my Chamber, and there let me bloud, dieted me, and purged me, giving his owne Wife in charge, not to let me want any thing that was there to be had. Thus by the will of God, and their tender care over vs, wee recovered our 40 healths and firengths againe; only two dyed there, which were Thomas Fletcher, and Fulke lones a shoomaker. In Coro eleven of vs remay ned alive (being all that were left of fixtie fenen, which Two more die. were put on thore in the Hand of Santa Lazas) for the space of five moneths, every day going to one another when wee pleased: and wee rid often into the Countrey, where the Indians tooke great delight in our company. For against our comming, they would prouide all kind of delicious fruits: which were in most abundance in that Countrey, and would kill Deere and wild Hoss for Commodities vs: and would bring vs Apes, Monkeyes, Parrots, and any thing that they thought wee

The Countrey about Core doth yeeld abundance of Sugar, Honey, Ginger, and Pitch. Alfo

they have very good Wheate growing there : but the bread is for the most pare made of Maiz, 50 whereof they have great plentie, for they reape it three times in one yeere. This Maiz they do mingle with the juyce of the Sugar-cane, which maketh an excellent kinde of bread, and it will keepe like Bisket. Also they make their drinke of this Maiz and of Potatoes; which is very

of the Coun- delighted in.

Drinke made

fweet and firong: for the Indians will be quickly drunke with it. While we were there, a Spamiard rode to a Farme of his in the Countrey with his brother, where he had many Indians dwelling to make Tabacco. One of his chiefe Indians, which vied to be familiar with him, tooke vp The treason of a new Hatchet, which his Master had brought him, asking him what it cost, and suddenly cloue his head therewith : which his brother perceiuing ranne for his Rapier : but the Indian women had ftolne it away before; and so they killed him also with their Bowes and Arrowes, and three or foure Negroes, which feemed to refift them, and thereupon flied to the Mountaines, gathering 6: a great company vinto him, promiting them, that if they would aide him against the Epaniaras in Core, he would give them the Spaniards wives and daughters in marriage. But before they put this conspieacie in practife, Captaine Perofo by a Policie tooke him feasting among his fellowe and women, and tooke thirtie with him, and brought them all to Coro; where they were to fulfer death with great torments, to terrifie the reft. And of some they cut off the thumber and cut the linewes of their two fore-fingers, whereby they wanted the benefit of hooting.

Our enterrainment there was fuch, that we could not defire to part from them to come into our owne Countrey without offending them. For a Frigat being readie at Coro to age for Coro thagena, foure of vs made intreatie for passage, which were Philip Glaftocke, Richart Garret. William Picks, and my felfe, (lalm Nicols) for all the reft were in the Countrey upon plature, forms in one place, and some in another. And when the ship was readie to depart, they perseated the Governour not to let vs goe. For they told him that there were many thips of Holland pon the Coaft : and that if we went all in the Frigate, we would betray it vito them , caufing he Fathers of their Churches to tell vs, That if we would flay, wee should be as themselves, art they would willingly befrow both their daughters and their goods vpon vs. Yet not withflanding all their allurements, our defire was for our owne Countrey; and fo three of vs procured menes for to goe, and William Picks was flayed, by meanes his Mafter told the Gouernour, that four were to many to venter in the Frigat, Thus we departed from Core about the twentieth of A prill, leaving all those with whom wee dwelt very fortowfull for our departure : who saue vs great flore of prouision for our Voyage. They were very lath to let vs go to Carthagena, for feare we should be put into the Gallies : And the Gouernour of Coro himselfe, wrote vnto the chiefe men of Caribacens in our commendation, as to Don Pedro de Barres, who was his Sonne in Law: but it tooke small effect. By the way wee touched at Santa Marra, and watered there.

20 Within three dayes after we arrived at Carthagena, we were committed to Pritonby the Teniente, for the Gouernour was dead not three dayes before we came in. Yet we brought our Letter from Core, from one Sennor Gafper Sanchio Contador, or in our behalfe to one Sennor Antonio Cambero, who prooued a speciall good friend vnto vs. For we had not been an houre in Prifon , but hee came to vs and comforted vs , and bade vs not to feare, for wee thould not want any thing. So he went to the Toniente, and proffered three of his Negroes to fet vs at libertie, and if we made an escape, he should have those Negroes for his owne vie. (The worst of those Negroes was worth three hundred Duckets.) But hee would not, neither would he allow vs any victuals. But this Cambero fent vs euery day at moone one very good meales meate. Also there were three Englishmen, who served as Mariners in one of the King of Spainer Gallions

30 which carrie his Trealure : which after that they were at Sea were by forcible tempest driven back againe to Carthagena, in a great danger to be funk: for she had twelve foot water in her. Some escaped to Hamana, and fine of the richett ships were funke on the shoulds betwixt Caribasena and Hanana. These three Englishmen did allow vs twelve pence a day so long as wee remay ned in Priton. Euery Saturday, the Temente with his Alcaldier doe fit in judgement within the Prifon where the Teniente commanded that we should be fent to the Gallies. Then one Alcaldie, who was alwayes found to bee a fauourer of Englishmen; whole name was Sennor Francisco Lopez de Moralis, called for our Examination : which when hee had perufed, hee told him, that hee could not with Iustice commit vs. Who answered againe, Then let them remayne in Prilon vntill the Gallions come from Spaine, for the treasure.

40 Within two moneths after a Deputie Gouernour was chosen : vnto whom we framed a Petition; which was deliuered by Ichn Frendgam; whose answere was to him, that if wee could procure any Spaniards to bayle vs for our forth comming, we frould be at libertie. Which Sennor Francisco Lopez and Antonie Cambero no fooner heard, but they entred into bond of a thousand Duckets for our forth comming, And at our delivery, the Teniente told vs, that although by or der of Law, they could justly have put vs to death; yet feeing God had fo miraculously faued vs. and that we had endured fo many miferies to faue our lines, and that we came to them for fuccour and reliefe, they were content to fet vs at libertie. So Francisco Lopez brought a discharge from the Gouernour to the Iaylour for our delivery out of Prison, and brought vs all three to his owne house: where was prouided for every one of vs a severall bed : For the Countrey is so hot. 50 that we cannot lie but one in a bed. Our entertainment was very great, and all our fertices in plate, with great varietie of meates, and of all the most delicious Indian fruits : and yet he thought we neuer fared well enough, without hee fent vs one extraordinary dish or other from his owne Table. Also many Gallauts reforted to his house to play at Cards, who would be every liberall vnto vs at their winning, and would give vs fixe or feuen pieces of Eight at a time.

There we continued vntill the Gallions were readie to goe for Spane with the treasure: then * The caufe hee procured vs passage enery one in a seneral ship. * And the day before wee embarked which why Francisco was about the first of August, there came two more of our company from Coro, which were Lopez did vis Miles Per, and Richard Ferne, who were both placed with Philip Glastocke, in the shippe called visioning Saint Basthelomen, Richard Garret went in the thip called La Madre de Dios, and my felfe in the Washecaufe Saint Cruz. Sawe were a moneth in fauling to Hause with results and norther moneth as Sir Fr. Drage 60 Sama Cruz. So we were a moneth in fayling to Hanana, where wee stayed another moneth to when he tooke trimme the ships. The Gouernour there was Don Pedro de Valder, Priloner in England 1588. Cartagena did So we lived all on shoare with eighteene pence a day for our diet, and about the end of Septem- saue all his sa-with another thip called the Saint Vincent for want of prouition of bread, ber departed, leauing that shippe, wherein Philip Glastocke, Miles Pet, and Richard Ferne were, there goods with another thin called the Sunt Vincent for want of provision of heard

We flot the channell of Florida, in eight dayes against the winde, and came along by the He of Bermuda, and were nine weekes in fayling betweene Hanana and the Coaft of Spaine. The tempesta and stomes which we had, were wonderfull great. Infomuch that all the fleete were differ fed, and got about two fhips did hold company together. Which put them in great feare left they (hould have met with the Hollanders; who might with three good ships have taken all their treame with small adoe for every little Carmell did put them in seare, thinking her to Voon He fecond day of Februarie 1686. Mafter Barwicke landed fafely, thanked bee God. at Downes i Kent, and gaue me money to bring me to London.

CHAP. XIIII.

The Relation of Master I o H M WILSON of Wanfeed in Effex. one of the last ten that returned into England from Wiapoco in Guiana 1606.

Apraine Charles Leigh and his Brother Sir Olane Leigh, did furnish to Sea the good thip called the Phenix with Commodities for the Countrey of Guiana; and ne. 20 ccflares for the Voyage, with fiftie perfons to inhabit Wiapoco, of fundry Trades who directing their course towards Wispees, on the Coast of Ginera, which is Spaniards call the River of Canoas, a critical on the twentieth of May following, where he found a thip of Amsterdam, trading with the Indians. They perfwaded

the Indians, that our Nation came to inhabit among them, only to oppreffe them as the Spaniards doe in other parts of the Indies, which the Indians themselves confessed vnto Captaine Leigh notwithstanding they offered our Nation no vakindaesse, but wied them in all the kind manner they could. For they prouided whatformer our Company wanted which they could get them. In fomuch the Gentleman was like to have done right wel, if it had not happened that his Company Caufes of their had not mutined, which did partly arife because of the climate, which is much hotter then ours. 30

And for that they were enprouided of victuals or other necessaries, therefore constrained to live in such manner as the Indians themselves doe; for that they did see at their landing only Mountaynes and Hils coursed with Woods. And for that the most part of them had beene housholders in England, not accustomed vnto such a strange Countrey or Nation; nor such a diet : for which causes they were so much discontented, that they cried to their Captaine, home, home, Thus the Captaine and his whole company was discontented, and also the Master of his ship called Martin Prinz , who shipped himselfe shortly after their arrivall into the Amsterdamer, which they found there, whereupon the Captaine placed his Mate Richard Port of Weymouth, to bee Master of the Phenix, furnishing him with such victuals as the Countrey affoorded, as Caffaui for their bread, and Potatoe Roots, with fish, water, and such prouision as they had of their owne aboord, 40 appointing Edward Hunty to be their Capaine, to goe for England, who departed from Propose about the first of luly 160, by whom Captaine Leiph advertised his Brother Sir Olane Leiph. After whole arrivald its 10 Olane Leiph, he with all freed from the first of luly 160, by who captaine Leiph advertised his Brother Sir Olane Leiph, he with all freed from first det has forested with 150 of the captain the part of the six of the fundry Trades, appointing the aforenamed Richard Pets to be Master, and Edward Huntly to bee Captaine, they departed from Woollage, one the towards Wiapoco, who arrived at their Port one the fifteenth of Ianuary following, who expected with the rest of their company aboord, to have found the Generall and his company on Land, to have beene in farre better case then they were, for that they found them for the most pare extreame lickes, and some of them dead: and presently after their arrivall three or foure men of them died, and the Generall him- 50 felfe was very weake and much changed, which partly proceeded by reason of their great want Captain Leighs of victuals, for that the Pidians could not at all times provide them that they wanted. And chiefly for that the company were perfwaded that the fhip would neuer have returned vnto them againe, which plainly appeared amongst them, for that at the arrivall of our ship, some of them which had not in three monethes time beene a stones cast from their houses, came abourd of vs. a mile and more from their houses in weake estate, which caused very much discontent among it our fresh water Souldiers aboord, and they were the more discontented, because they could not advertize them of any commodities the Country yeelded which would affoord them prefent benefit, infomuch that they wished themselves in England again. During which parley, our Generall fore the Generall fent one Sidney Harrington vinto Captaine Huntly, M. Tederington Preacher and

Phenix to Sea. with Commodities for the Countrey and other necessaries, with thirtie men of

Deicard

Mount Howard, came not abourd of vs, for that he was at his house called Mount Howard, a mile and more vp into the Land, which food on a hil very pleafantly fituated, but according to the Country manner, by reason that their enemies should not wel find their houles nor suddenly assault them, have there fore very rough passages vnto them, inuironed all with Mountaines, Woods, and Hils. Whereto the Mafter of the ship to land their company in Possession Bay, a place which the Indians gave vnto our Generall, and therefore by him fo named.

At whose landing according, vnto the Generall his Commission, they were all sworne vnto certaine Articles, as that they should acknowledge Captaine Charles Leigh to bee their chiefe Generall of Guiana, under King James our King of Great Britaine, and that they flould not be hurtfull vnto the faid Generall his proceedings, but to ayde and affift him to their vitermost powers. Which being effected, our Generall came vnto vs, and after kinde falutations, hauing taken order for our Lodgings, for that time hee departed from vs. The Indians in like manner after their Countrey fashons kindly entertained vs , and after further conterence had 10 with our Generall, hee related at large vnto vs what had happened vnto him and his company in their absence; that by reason of his company their discontent and sicknesse, they had not tranelled un into the mayne Land; and therfore of his owne knowledge hee could not certifie them of any other commoditie the Countrey did yeeld, then fuch as hee knew of before their departure, but the Indians had informed them , that there was up in the Mayne very rich com- Gold & filuer. modifies, as also Gold, and filter, and especially in the River of Caliane, where the Caribes in- R. Caliane, habit, who are enemies vinto our Indians of Wiapoco, and to called by them. Vpon which information our Generall thought it would have beene best to have peaceably traded with the Caribes: But our company milliked thereof, infomuch that the Generall altered his determination, and agreed to joyne with their friend Indians against the Caribes their enemies.

20 Whereof having advertized the chiefest of them, they most kindly embraced their offer prefently made eight of their Canoas in a readinesse, furnishing them with Bread and Drinke, and Victuals, which for the most part are Crabbes and Fish, with some hundred of themfelues all naked in their Canoas , whome our Generall accompanied with some eight and thirtie of our company, leaving the rest to keepe our Shippe and Houses, shipping the most part of them in a Pinnasse that was built by one named Keele whereof hee made of a Canoa, which prooued a very fitting Pinnaffe for those parts Expeditionaand Rivers. This Pinnaffe after our Generals death the Indians did breike a pieces because gainst the Cathey thought wee would have stolne away from them in her vnto the Spaniards. And the ribes, rest of our company were placed in their Canoas, all of vs furnished with our Caleeuers:

and fo wee departed on our Journey and Voyage on the fixe and twentieth of February, on which day at night wee came to a place which wee named Mount Huntly, where wee lod- Mount Huntle ged in the Woods that night, our Generall commanding vs to keepe a good watch: which wee need not to have done, for the Indians themselves were very watchfull, and wonderfull carefull of our Caleeuers, and for to keepe our Powder drie, after we had beene acquainted with them, and very diligent for to pleafe vs. The next day at night we came to a place called the Con, and there wee lodged, and the next Con.

day following we came into the River of Wia; and there we found two or three of the Caribes R. Wie. Canoas, but all their men were runne vp into the Woodes, and from thence our Generall went up farther into the River, where wee burned certains of their houses, not finding any 40 people in them. From whence our Generall purposed to have gone farther into the River of Caleane. But the Indians did advertize him, that there was an English ship there, whom the Generall knew to bee one lobnfon of Plimmonth , that had beene four fourteene dayes before at Wiapoco, and came thither in the way of Trade. But our Generall would not fiffer him fo to doe, for that he would not hinder himselfe and his company, which our Generall at that time called to minde, and therefore thought it not good to proceed in the River, because hee doubted that there would have rifen contention betwixt his company and John fons, and for that hee also misdoubted wee should have wanted Bread and Drinke if hee should have proceeded in his journey, and therefore returned to Wiapoco, where we arrived all, except one Canoa. About the fourteenth day of March.

Our Generall fent with foure of our Nation named Blake, Owen Goldwell, William Crandall. 50 and Henry Powell, with commodities up into the Countrey, fome thirtie leagues to a place called Urake to the Inhabitants there named Armakes, to trade with them. And after our journey by Prale. reason of such Raine and soule weather as wee had in the same, most of our company tell sicke. Armakes and for that they had no comfortable drinkes, nor any comforts that ficke persons doe want, dipers of them died of the Fluxe; which the Indians (as also the Difease called the Calenture) Mortalitie, know right well for to cure, yet concealed it from our Generall. But vnto vs after his death they did reneale, which ficknesse among st the company caused no small griefe vinto our Generall, and chiefly to fee such wants amongst them; wherefore hee resolved with himselfe to goe for England, which hee acquainted the company with, promiting them to returne as spee-

60 dily as hee could with provision. Presently after he had shipped his provision, and such Commodities as hee had gathered together in the Countrey, and was in a readinesse to depart for England, he sickned of the Fluxe, and The Captains died aboord his ship, and was by Captaine Huntly secretly buried on the Land, the twentieth sicknesse and of March, whose death was so secretiv kept by the Captaine, and the Master of the ship, that death.

Mmmmm 2

1262 Dutchmans kindnesse, The English aide Indians against Indians. L I B.V I.

most of the company knew not thereof. The reason was , because there was prouition too little for them which were shipped, and others of the company, if they had knowne thereof, would M. Tederington. have preffed to have come with them. Wherefore Captaine Huntly with Mafter Tederington our Preacher and others fet faile from Wispoco towards England, on the second of Aprill 1605, promiling a flip to returne vnto vs within feuen monechs, God not hindering their intents, which had happened, for Sir Oline Leigh to his great charge had prouided a great Fly-boat of the burthen of one hundred and seventy tunnes furnished for to have come for Wiapoco, as I have heard that the neuer came to Wiapoco, to that we had no comfort of her, being in number, left at Capthine Huntlies departure out of the Countrey thirtie fine persons, of whom one named Richard In Sacksie was by Captaine Legb in his life time, apppointed to bee chiefe amongit vs., who shipped himselfe into a ship of Middleborough, who came into the River about the first of May Kindneffe of a 1605, and fourteene more of our company with him, and more that Zelander would have carried it Sackise would have fuffered him, tuch was his kindnesse towards our Nation. Hee gave vnto vs luch wine and other comforts as he had, vnto our great reliefes. His comming vnto vs to Wiapoco, was to have fold vinto our Generall Negroes, whose kindnesse we did require in helping him to fuch commodities as wee had, and did get the Indians to provide Callaus and Guinea Wheate for bread, with Potato Roots for his Negroes to eat, who departed on the one and twentieth of May (after he had bin fome three weekes in the River of Wigpece) for Point de Ray, where he shipped of our company into his Countrimens ships, some in one ship and some into others for 20 Holland, of which thips we heard that iome of them were taken by the Spaniards, and they were

35 persons left since my being here in London, before Captaine Huntly his arrivall in England, but it pleased God

French thin.

call over-boord with the Hollanders.

Ten more de-

The fame day the Hollander departed, which was the one and twentieth of May, came vnto vs a French flup of Saint Mallors, who dealt very kindly with vs. wherefore weeded inffer him to trade with the Indians, who did remayne therefore two moneths, voto whom many france Indians did bring their commodities, and at his departure hee thipped ten of our men; hee tooke Powder, and other commodities of vs which we had, for their patinge into France leaving tenne of vs behind him, of which two died before the ship was out of ken of vs , Nicholas Wilkins and Andrew Vinderbill, But within some fourteene dayes after, two of those foure which our Generallhad fent to trade vnto Vrake, came vnto vs not expecting euer to haue feene them; the o- 30 ther two were drowned by the way. These two named Owen Goldwell , and William Candall. which came to vs. reported they had beene fome fortie miles vointo the Land . in a very plaine pleasant Countrey, and brought commodities hereafter written of.

out of the Countrey to them. Th. y plant Flaxe, &c.

About the middle of July, our number of ten were all in good health, spending our time in planting of Caron called Flaxe, whereof we planted about twentie English Acres of Land, and iome Tabacco, observing the manners and conditions of the people, the nature of the Land and what commodities it verldeth, and what commodities of ours are in most request with them. About the third of October . the Indians did request vs for to accompany them in their warres against the Caribes, whereunto wee willingly did agree. They prouided feuen Canoas furnishing them with men, and bread and drinke, and their victuals (for the most part Crabs, and fish of di- 40 uers forts, which they take every day fresh and fresh as they travell in the Rivers.) We went into the River of Calsane, which is some thirtie leagues from Waspece, where wee rowed up and downe, but we could not find any of the Caribes in the River, we per waded them to land which they did, and marched up fome two miles vnto the Carthes houses, as wee marched to their houfes, the Caribes came to the water fide where our Canoas did Iye, but finding my felte there with my Caliuer, they had no great defire to come very neere vnto vs; and so after wee had burned fome of their houses, and killed divers of them, our company returned to our Canoas, having lost one of the Indian Captaines named Macato, others of the Indians were shot with three or our company, whom they healed as they did themselves, with a leafe, very speedily. They are armed in their warres with naked skins, and their Artillery are Bowes and Arrowes, 50

Indian Armes, their Weapons woodden Swords and Bucklers. They choose their Captaines at their drunken Mad choice of Featts; he is placed in the middeft of the whole company, holding his hands on his head. After apatient Cape they have made an Oration vnto him to be valiant, and not to be treacherous vnto them, with at every stroke, and he never once mooueth thereat. By these meaner they try his patience and R. cilimelear. Courage. After we had shipped our felues into our Canous, weerowed up and downetheriner of Caliane, some eight or ten dayes, which wee noted for to be a very faire River and nauigable. It runneth divers waves from the mayne Land; and great ftore of fuch commodities hereafter fpecified, which the Countrey yeeldeth is to be hadiin the faid River. We returned voto our houses at Wiapoce, about the first of Nouember. In this Journey we were kindly vied of our conforts our Indians, and highly respected of them for our service which we did.

fuch like speeches; they whip him with a Whip which maketh the bloud spring out of his bodie

After a few dayes reit at Wiapoco, the Indians advertised vs of three Ships which were in the R. of Amazons, River of Amafons, and that one of them would come vato vs to the River of Wiapoco lome two moneths after, which proued to be true, but by what meanes they knew it I could not imagine,

CHAP.14. Wyapocos inhabitants, customes, commodities. Child-birth, Funerals. 1262

except it were by their divels meanes, which they call their Pejar, with whom the men have Pejar divining often conference, and it will answere them, but the women neuer that I could perceive ; when the men will conferre with their Pegar, they suffer not a childe to be in the house, and when any of them are ficke, they know by him whether they shall line or dye; if he faith they shall dye, they will give the ficke person no physicke; but if he say that he shall live, then they will give him any thing they have for his comfort. After our company was advertised of a Shippes comnim any thing they went with the Indians in their Canous, fome into the River of Wispeco, and River of Ard ming vinco vs, we work of Arosem, to make away such commodities as we had left which were not commany, referuing some of them to give to our Indians for our victuals, although their kindenesse 10 towards vs was fuch, that if we had not had any commodities, they would not have fuffered vs to have wanted. In which our journey we noted the River of Aracom to be a very pleafant Riuer, and yeeldeth fuch commodities as other Riuers doe; also the Riuer of Wiapoco is a very faire River, and nauigable, which entreth the maine more then fortie miles. And at the end thereof there is a very great fall of water which commeth ouer great hils and mountaines; fome of our Fall. company were on the tops of them, for some moneths in the yeare the Mountaines are drie. and we were informed that on the other fide of those great hils, there is a River which is inhabited with many Indians, and hath the like commodities that Wieger hath, and that there is Gold in that place, which the Indian; calleth Carocare but we never went to fee the fame River. by reason we had very small store of commodities.

20 At our returns to Wyapeco we gaue to the Indians for their paines, and prouiding of vs victuals in our journey an Axe, for which they would have travelled with vs two or three moneths time if occasion had required. And for an Axe they found vs victuals two moneths time at our houfes, as Bread, and Drinke, and Crabbes, and Fift, and all fuch kinde of fielh as they killed for themielues, for the same price : but if we defired any Hennes or Cockes of them, then we were to have given them some small trifles, as Beades ; so likewise if they brought vs in our travell to any of their friend Indians houses, we must doe the like as at our departure, to give them some trifles, as Kniues and Beades. So that we lived very good cheape.

There are of the Indians three forts which inhabit at Wyapoco with whom wee were, whole houses be scituated as neere the Rivers mouth as they well may be, they are named the Tayes, The Tayes, 30 the Armalkes, and the Suppayes. The Tayes are a people very proud, and vie much flouting and mocking of others, much given vinto danting, and are full of merriment, very ingenious, and ve- The Armsh ry kinde of nature. The Armackes are a people of better carriage, and did vie our company with better respect then the Tayer. These two kindes of Indians come out of the West, wherefore they doe know all those Coasts, and they hate the Spaniards as deadly as they doe the Caribes. Supported The Suppores are a people more craftie in their dealings, for they will not part with any thirte but will have commodities for commodities. They are not many of them, and wee could not Nakedneffe learne from whence they are come. The men and women goe all naked, without any couerture Men and woat all : they are very well himmed and proportioned of body. They never company together all men bow they the day time, but as the women doe bring them their victuals, they doe rate vivally every day : line, they have doores at each end of their houses, the men remaine at the one end of the house, & the women at the other. The women are very neate in making of their Bread, which they call Aripo, and their drinke Palibe: they make their Bread and Drinke of a roote which they call Callani. which maketh good Bread, and very fireng drink, very pleasant to drinke after one is vied to it.

Their houses are built after the manner of our barnes in England, but much longer, for we have Their houses. measured some of them which were one hundred and fiftie paces long, and some twenty races broad, one hundred persons keepe together in one of those houses; they are most artificially builded and thetched, fothat no raine commeth into them: although in Aprill, May, and June, and most of July very extreame raine doth fall there. Also they make Pots of earth, which shew Faire earther as if they were guilded, and some of them will hold thirtie or forcie gallons of liquor, they are Pots. 50 very faire to behold, and very sweete to keepe any thing in. They make Baskets of ditters forts Baskets most artificially, and their beds which they call Hamaker; they are some of them made of Cot-Hamaker. ten wooll, and some of barkes of trees, they vie to lye in them hanging. They have a great delight to paint themselues both men and women, and especially when they goe to any Peast.

The women against their day of travell in childe bearth, make for that time a roome spart in Childebirth the house, whereunto they goe all alone, and are deliuered without any helpe at all; and preferely after the childe is borne, the calleth for her husband, and delivereth him the childe, who pre-Tently washethit in a pot of water, and paintethit with fundry colours, which feemed very ftrange vnto me, that I did not heare the women, once fo much as to groane, or to make any 60 moane at all in all her time of her travelle if any one of them dieth they doe vie to make great moane for them some ten or twelue daies together after his death or longer, according as the par. Funerals. tie was beloved in his life time.

And touching such kinde of Beasts as are in the woods as well about Wispeco as ith other plas. Beasts of those ces of the Countrie. There are great store of Deere, Hares and Conies, Hogges and many Mon. parts, kies great and small, blacke and greene, which fores are called Marmofites, and great red ones as bigge as Baboones (those the Indians doe kill and eate) and there are Leopards, and Porcupines, and Lyons; for in one place we did see a Lyon which the Indians had killed; they brought all their boyes they had, and did lay them on the Lyons backe, and with a whip did give every of them three lastes, wherefore they did so we could not learne, but imagined it was because they should semember the place where the Lyon was killed: also there are great store of Otters, and a beait which is called an Aligator, he hath a cod that smelleth like the Muske cod.

Mmmmm 3

Fowles.

Of Foules, I have feene Cockes, Hennes, Duckes, and Geefe; Partridges, Wood-doues, Hernes shaws, Shouellers, and a foule of a crimion colour, called Pafferay Fiemingo, & great store of white foules, which the Indians call Waterouses, & great store of Parrate, and Parrakeits, which she there in sholes like Starlings here in England : allo there is a Parrat there as bigge as a great Hen, blew 10 and red, very beautifull to behold, and multitudes of foules of other forts, and Hawkes of divers forts in the woods and Rivers.

And of fifth there are great abundance of all forts both of fresh water fish, and Sea fish, and ing as before. Crabbes great store; and the Indian; take their fish with a kinde of wood which they beare against some stone or other tree, vntill one end thereof be all bruised, and putting that into the River, prefently the fishbecome drunke, and run themselves on the shoare, and swim aboue water.as our Haddockes doe in England.

Fruites.

There are store of good Rootes and Plants with Fruites, as the Pina and Plantine, Potatoes, Nappoyes, and a fruite called of the Indians Poppoyes, it is bigger then an Apple and very pleafant to eate, and fundry forts of Plums, and other forts of fruites whereof they make drinke very pleafant to be drunke.

Duing woods modities of

There are these commodities at Wingeco, and in other places of the Countrie where I have trauelled, Woods of blacke, red and yellow colours, Tobacco, Ginne pepper, Cotten wooll, Carow (of vs called Flaxe) Anoto, Berries which dye a very faire Scammell colour, Spienard, whereof a precious Oyle may be made, Gummes of divers forts, Bee-waxe, Feathers of the best forts, such as Ladies doe weare in their hats, and other Feathers abundance. There grow naturally in many places Sugar Canes, and great abundance of Caron of it felfe, called of vs Flaxe, and of the Spaniard Pero. Also they make Oyle which they paint themselves with of a kinde of Nut bigger then a Chestnut, whereof are great abundance growing; and the Manery stone is to be had ger then at hermun, whitever at give no other place of the lader that I have heard of. Thefe things 30 in the Aracres Countrie, and in no other place of the lader that I have heard of. Thefe things 30 I noted, but if fo we had expected certainely for to have had a Ship of our owne Nation to have come vnto vs, I my felre, and the rest of vs should hater beene encouraged to have observed more then I have done. Neither had we any figte of commodities to trade up in the Maine, as the two Hollanders hath which are there, and were left there at our comming from thence by John Sims, Master of a Ship called the Hope of Amsterdam, of the burthen of one hundred tuns Frauchted by the Merchants of Amfterdam, and by their Charter partie was bound to lye in the River of Wiapoco, and of Calane fix moneths time, which he did, for he lay with vs at Wyapoco from the twentieth of December vnto the twentieth of May following, trading with the Indians, and fought most after the Manite stone and Garon, which we call Flaxe. They furnished there two Factors very well with Commodities, which they left at 19) apoco. They dealt very kindely with 40 Their returne. vs.for he shipped all our whole company, which were nine of vs. Taking our leaves of the Indians (who were as vnwilling to part from our companies, as we were willing to goe into our owne Countrie, faying vnto vs, that if any of vs euer came to them againe to trade with them; No other Nation (hould trade there but we. And after they knew Sir WalterRow- of our departure; whilest we remained amongst them, they brought their children vnto vs for to name after our great mens names of England, which we did. They had often speech of Sir Walter Ramleigh, and one came farre out of the Maine from Orenagne to enquire of vs of him, faying he promifed to have returned to them before that time, After we had provided our necessaries, and fuch commodities as we had, and had given the Indians great charge of the Hollanders Factors, we shipped our selnes and departed from Wispecs on the last of May 1606. And from 50 thence we went into the River of Caliane, where our Master low Sime traded some thirtie dayes with the Caribes, and other of the Indians. This Sams was Masters mate of the Holland Shippe which Captaine Lee found in the River of Wapeco at his first arrivall there ralio he was Master of the Ship which the Indians advertised vs was in the River of Amazons, and according to their Fridabilio faying. God be thanked he came to vs to our Comforts.

Trinidada:

Fountains of

After his departure out of the River of Calians, he failed vnto Trinidads, where the Spaniards entertained him and his companie very kindely, for they gaue them Tobacco for all fuch commodities as they had, and fuffered them so lade Pitch which goeth out of the ground there, for that our Maffer durft not goe to Point de Ree to lade Sault there as he determined, because hee heard that the Spaniard did lye there with their men of warre, and had taken certaine Holland 60 Shippes, and had flung ouer boord all the men that were in them : our Master tooke his course from Trendade to Amsterdam, where he arrived on the of and were in number of vs eight belides my felfe, named Owen Ganlimell, Rebert Gardner, William Crandall, Robert Becke. Richard Pren, William Frier, Gilbert Browne, and Richard Bonoche. Since my being here I vnderCHAP. IS. Boate betraied by the Indians at Same Lucia. Rogues Bav.

stand that one of our company which we left at Vishinge, named William Crandall is gone in a Shippe of Holland for Wyspece, which voyage they would have hired my felte and others to have gone with them, by reason we have the Indians languages: such is the diligence of that Nation, with whom I with well for the great kindenesse they shewed my sale and others of our Nation.

CHAP. XV.

Part of a Treatife written by Master WILLIAM TVENER, Sonne to Doctor TVENER of London a Philitian, touching the former Voyage.

He foureteenth of August, about two in the afternoone, we had light of the Bar- The large bades, which bore of vs South South-west. The Land hath two points bearing journal of East and West one from another; and from the middle of it, it rifeth like Tene- their voiage to orfe, and is tenne leagues broad, and is barbarous was hout any inhabitants, having this place, is great flore of Hogges, Piggeons, and Parrats. We bore for the Westermost part for breuity o. great flore of Hogges, Piggeons, and Parrats. We note for the Westermort part mitted, as also of this Iland, and so wee-steered away West Worth-west, and North-west and their course

20 by West amongst for Saint Lucia. The fifteenth day, being thursday, we had fight of Saint Lucia, bearing West North-west of vs. This Hand of Saint Lucia is a very fertile He, bearing many forts of fruites, as Plantons, Potatoes, Pinos, * Guanos, Pompins, Casado, and many other truites. It hath also great store *The vertue of of Cotten wooll, and Tobacco, but their Tobacco is not very good. It hath also many wilde the Guenera Beafts in it, as Tygars, Guanes, Alagartos, and other Beafts, which time would not permit vs thing worthy to fee. It hath also great itors of Pigeons, Parrats, Pellicans, Caes, and Dogges. The people goe the noting, tor to fee. It hath allo greatitore of Pigeons, Parrats, remeans, care, and Pogges, and people goe their nature is, naked, having very long haire, and are very honest, kinde hearted people. In this Iland wee set their nature is, one examine our paffengers alhoare, and furnished them with all things necessary that our distressed Shippe one, a feet one could afford them. But they like treacherous idle disposed people, not regarding our kindeneste, a couring, and 30 not pittying our necessitie, betraied our Boate from vs one morning as wee went ashoare, my eatea greene felfe and three or foure other Gentlemen being in her; and then they detained three Saylers one, it will flay which were drawing in the Boate keeping them for their owne vie, and afterward fent vs a- Preference

boord in a Corne, which we were faine to buy of them for Kniues. The Mafter and the Captaine feeing this their treachesous dealing, and being out of all hope to get their Boate againe, about thursday in the evening, being the three and twentieth of August, gave them a Peece of Ordnance with intent to beate downe their houses. We had no fooner let flye at them, but prefently they thou at we againe, the bullet whereof came betweene our maine Mast and our Poope, but is hurt no body. So that night we waied, and went to a Baye some two leagues to leeward of this roade where we first ankored. In this Bay there are halfe a dofen of Indian houses very pleago fantly scituated upon the top of a hill, with a fresh water River at the foote of the same hill; and in this Baye we had very good trafficke of linner cleath, and many pleafant fruites, for our Hatchets and Knines. After we had roade here fome fixe houres, we might plainly differne our Boate underfaile, whereupon we presently fitted our small shot, hoping that their intent was to come abourd, and betray our Shippe, but they tacked in, and rowed along it the shoare, till they came to the very Bay where we roade, and there they flopped, and we were in good hope to recouer our Boate againe, but they tarried there trading for their commodities in the face of our Ordnance : whereupon we feeing their daring boldnesse to be so great that they prefue En que differ med to trafficke in our owne Boate before our noies, and to goe about as it were to flop vs from dia cites pertrafficke ; we let flye at them fixe peeces of Ordnance, and a vallie of small shot; but what harme dutit miseres.

we did amongst them, we know not, for they rowed away, and got out of fight of vs. We tear- Rosewis Bar. med the Baye where we put these men a shoare Rogues Baye, & the Cape we called Cape Knaue, Cape Kn and the River, River of Rafcols.

This very fame day being the foure and twentieth of August, we waied anchor, and steered zway South South-east, and South-east and by South amongst for Saint Vincents. And upon Saturday, the five and twentieth day, in the afternoone we arrived at the Ifand of Saint Vincents, where Saint Vincents we came within a Ships length very nigh the shoare, which put vs all in great feare, for if God had not feneve a gale from the shoare, we had runne a ground, and we had had all our throaces cut by the Indians of that Iland. So that night we tried it off at Sea with our fore-top-faile, and foresfaile, intending next day, being Sunday, to fland it in againe for the shoare (because we had 60 good hope of good trafficke there.) But the current had driven vs fo farre off at Sea by the next morning, and the winderblew to vehemently from the thouse, that we could by no meanes fetch the land; whereupon being foure leaves from the shoare of Saint Vincents, we steered away South South-west, and South-west and by South aftiongst for the Testigues. And the next morning being monday, we had light of the Granades, bearing of vs South east, but we could not fetch the Granades,

Current. Margarita. Telliges. The nine and twentieth being Wednesday morning, we had fight of fine small Rocks, which bore of vs West and by North some five leagues off : wee had also light of the lland of Blanco, whereby wee found that the Current had fet vs, and doth fet to the North-east, and therefore your best course to goe from the Granades to the Testiges, is to steere away South-west-

The first of September being Friday morning wee had fight of Margarita, and at night wee cast anchor at the Westermoit Point of this lland, cailed Point Macanao. The second day the next morning wee went ashoare with our Canoa, to see if wee could meete with any Spaniards, with whom wee might bargaine for fome Beeues. But wee could neither fee Spaniards. Becues, nor fresh-water, onely we found the dung of Becues. In this Iland of Margarita also there are great store of Pelicans. This morning wee weighed; and as soone as wee had 10 doubled the Point of Macanas, we had fight of the Rangeria, which is as it were a little towne. contayning in it some fortie or fiftie houses. Here wee did not land because wee saw no people, but stood it away South South-east and South and by East amongst for the Burdones. About mid-night wee came close aboard the sheare by an Hand, dalled Febrere, and then wee founded. and had ground at fortie fathome.

The third day being Monday morning, wee were becalmed, forme three leagues off from the mayne. About twelve at noone the same day, wee had light of Point de Ray. The winde and breefes blew fo firongly of the shoare, that we could not come to anchor that night to the Bardones. These Burdones are no Towne, nor hath any houses, but belongeth to the Towne of

The fourth day being Wednelday, at foure in the afternoone, wee came to an anchor at the Burdones ; fo that wee were three dayes in getting to the shoare, being in fight of it all the while. About twelue at mid-night the fame day, wee put out our layne-Net into the Sea for to catch some fish. And about foure in the morning wee found a great Sword-fish shue into the Net. which was fourteene foot long, and he had a fword fome three foot long. The fword is fourte and blunt at the end, having great prickles vpon each fide, of the bigneffe of a wikde Bores tuske. We fent our Canoa alhoare here, to parley with them bruing a flagge of truce. The Gouernour of Comment perceiving our Canoa comming afterne, fent a Molatato parley with our men, who faluted them very kindly, inquiring of vs, what newes in England, and whether the Conftable of Spaine were gone home into Spaine or no; we told him he was gone into Spaine, before 30 we fet out of England: we asked of him what newes in Comme of any English men, and when any had beene here; hee told them about a monath agoe, and that one of them had like to have been taken by a French Pirat, if a Figurating had not souke his part. This night there came foure Spaniards aboard our flaip from a Caspell which was as an anchor halfe a league from vs. These Spaniards burged with vs fome Tabacen, and told va, that Captaine Lee had a Towns built for himfelfe, and that the Pinnasse had beene here a moneth agoe.

The feuenth of September in the afternoone, there came the adule of Mafter Edwar to an anchor in the road where we rode, and then we welcommed them wish a shot, and they gave ve three for one : after these our falutations, the Captains of the dide; called Squire , came aboard vs, and told vs, that Sir Oliph Lee his Pinnaffe was come home, before they fet out of England, 40 and that Captaine Lee dyed in the Pinnelle comming into England others of his companie faid, that they heard he was betrayed, and killed in his Hames in Wissore. He also rold us, that he had left fome thirtie men behind him which were in great miferie and extremitie, both for lacke of health and scarcitie of viewels.

The nineteenth of September, Captaine Squire weighed, and left ve going for Comonagota. The Spaniards date not trucke with va for any thing, but when that they steale aboard in the night; for if that they should be efpyed they should be hanged: Cloth of Tissue and Gold, cloth of Siluer, Veluet, Sattins, Silkes, fine woollen cloth and linnen, as Cambrick, Lawne, Holland; new Trunkes, Piltols, Fowling peeces, and Muskets are very good commodities to truck with the Spaniards, and all other places in the Indies. I noted one thing amongst many things , con- to cerning the nature of that climate of Communa. It is monstrous has all the day long till it be noone, and then there blowes a coole breefe; and at noone you hall alwayes have thundering and lightning without any raine for the most part. The towne of Comore stands two miles from the Sea-lide, and cannot be seene by reason of the trees which concrete fight of it, but you may fee the Gouernours house, for it stands upon the top of a Hill, looking over the trees, which

Seven faile of The eight and twentieth of September being Saturday, wee efpyed feven faile of Florenings bound for Ponitra. The thirtieth day being Monday, we weighed for Laguera; and were fleered away North and North and by West for Ponitra from Camana; and about fixe of the clocke in the morning we arrived there fafely.

The fourteenth of October, Captaine Cation and two other Genelemen, went out of our thip vpon some discontentments, miliking of the Master of our ships viagotowards them, and had their passage in two Hollanders, that were riding at Ponitra. The five and twentieth, about eight a clocke at night wee weighed at Ponitra, having two Flemmift thips our conforts with vs. On the phirtieth we had fight of the Westermost end of Porto Rico, called Cape Roxo, and of a little Hand fome foure leagues off, called Echro. Here we ft. yed till Friday and Saturday, hoping for to have gotten the shoare for fresh water, and Oranges; but we had no winde at all to serue our turnes. About Saturday at noone, there came vnto vs a Flommib boat with a dozen men in it; these men told vs, that vpon Sunday the seuen and twentieth day of this moneth, there came niveteene faile of Spaniards, and that they had taken all the ships which we left behinde vs , in number ten, fauing two thips of Captaine Mogerownes, which fcaped by their fwift fayling, and that they themselves being ashoare with their Boat made an escape from Pontra, and so came to vs at Porto Rico, which is one hundred and threefcore leagues, where wee refreshed our felues 10 with fresh water and Oranges.

The ninth of November being Saturday, wee difembogued from Porto Rico. The two and twentieth of December we faw Flores, one of the Hands of the Afores.

CHAP. XVI.

A Relation of a voyage to Guiana performed by Robert HARCOVET of Stanton Harcourt in the Countie of Oxford Elquire. To Prince CHARLES.

N the yeere of our Lord 1608, and the 23. of March, when I had furnished my 23. March. felle with one (hip of fourtcore tunnes, and a Shallop of nine tunnes, called the Latthirtie tunnes, called the Patternet; and a Shallop of nine tunnes, called the Latthirtie tunnes, called the Latthirtie tunnes, called the Latthirties of the Company of the Latthirties of felfe with one thip of fourfcore tunnes, called the Rofe; a Pinnaffe of fixe and 1608. uing, I then imbarked my companie, as followeth.

In the Rofe, I was accompanied with Captaine Edward Fisher, Captaine Edward Harner, The Rofe. Mafter Edward Gifford, and my Cou'in Thomas Harcourt : and besides them, I had of Gentlemen and others one and thittie Land-men, two Indians, and three and twentie Mariners and Saylers. In the Patience, my brother Captaine Michael Harcourt, had with him of Gentlemen and o- The Patience, thers twentie Land-men, and eleven Mariners and Saylers. In the Lilly, Jafter Lilly the Ma- Th. Lilly. fter, had one Land-man, and two Saylers : to that my just number (too great for to few th ps of no greater burden) was in all fouricore and seuenteene, whereof threescore were Land-men. Be- Land-men ing thus imbarked, wee fet faile from the Rainge at Dartmouth the faid three and twentieth of They fet faile March; but the winde altering vpon a fudden, put vs backe againe that evening; and about the as. of two of the clocke the next morning (it comming better for vs) we weighed anchor, and put to March. Sez: the evening following we lost fight of the Lizzard, and fleered away for the Canaries.

The feuenth day of Aprill we fell with Alegranza and Lancerote, two flands of the Canaries : They arrive at we flood in with Alegranza and came to anchor on the South-well fide thereof: that evening Alegranza. 40 and the next day I landed my companie to exercise their limmes on shoare : in this Iland wee found no Inhabitants, nor fresh water, neither fruitfull Tree, Plant, Herbe, Graffe, nor any thing growing that was good, onely an abundance of vnwholfome Sea-fowle, which after one meale were vulauourie and distastefull, and a few wilde Capritos, or wilde Goats, which the craggy Rocks defended from our hands, and hungrie mouthes,

The eighth of Aprill we departed from Alegranza, and directed our course for Tenerife, ano- Tenerife ther of the Hands. The eleventh day I fent the Pinnaffe, and the Shallop to water at the Calmes, and there to attend my comming; but with my thip I held my course for Orotano, a Towns on the other fide of the Hand, in hope to get some wine amongst the Merchants there; but not being able (by reason of a contrarie winde) to double Punta de Nega, wee altered off course from 50 Wine to Water. And the twelfth day wee passed by Santa Cruz, and watered that evening at

This watering place is very convenient for all fuch as paffe by those Hands, and is thus to bee An executors found : there is a woodden Croffe neere vnto it, the high Pike of Tenerife beareth due North watering from it. There is also a ledge of Rocks to the Eastward of the landing place, which is a short place. Sandie Bay. When you are landed, you shall finde the place about fortie or fiftie wards from the Sea fide.

Then we flood on our course for the River of Wispoco in Guiana, having a prosperous winde, faire weather, and a smooth Sea. The ninth day of May, wee fell into the Current of the great The River of and famous River of Amazones, which putteth out into the Sea such a violent and mightie Fresh water 60 streame of fresh water, that being thirtie leagues from land, we drunke thereof, and found it as in the Sea 30, fresh and good as in a Spring or Poole.

This Ruer for the great and wonderfull breadth (con:ayning at the mouth neere fixtie land. leagues) is rightly termed by logephus Acoffa the Empresse and Queene of all Flouds, and by Hieron Grasse Hieronymus Grana Tarraconensis: it is faid to bee the greatest not onely of all India, but also of Tarraconensis.

wrack.

The Bay of Indian boats.

Wiateco.

the whole world; and for the greatnesse, is called of many the Sweet Sea. It rifeth and floweth from the Mountaines of Pers, and draweth out her streames in many windings and turnings vnder the Equinoctiall, for the space of one thousand and fine hundred leagues and more : although from her Fountaines and Springs vnto the S-a it is but fixe hundred. When we entred into the aforelaid Current, we founded, and had fortie foure fathome water, fandie founding. The tenth day the colour of the water changed, and became muddie, whitish, and thicke; then we founded againe at noone, and had thirtie fathome; and seuenteene at soure in the atternoone. The eleuenth day at eight of the clocke in the morning wee made land, the vitermost Point thereof bearing West from vs. and came to anchor in five fathom water.

At night the Patience putting in to neere the shoare, came to anchor in two fathome and a Ia halfe water voon the floud which fell from her voon the ebbe, and left her die voon the Oaze, and the next floud comming in , did to shake and beate her against the ground , that before shee could get off, her rudder was beaten away, and her ribs fo rent and crafed, that if Almightie God had not preserved her, shee had beene wrackt: but (God be thanked) with much adoe shee came off into deeper water, and mended her Rudder, as well as the time and place would afford means. Then we followed on our course, coasting along to the North North-west, the Landso trending, It is very shoule all along this Coast, the ground soft oaze, but no danger to be feared, keeping our thip in fine fathem water.

When we came to the latitude of two degrees and a halfe, wee anchored in a goodly Bay, by · Hands called Certaine Hands, called Carripapoory, I did at that time forbeare to make particular discouere of 20 this Coast, intending (if God spare me life) to make a perfect discouerie of the famous River of Amazones, and of her feuerall branches, and Countries bordering vpon it, and of all this tract of land from the Amazones, vnto the River of Wiapoco, which contayneth many goodly Prouinces, and Signiories, which are in this discourse, but briefly mentioned : For at this time I purposed onely to prosecute my first project, which hastened me vnto another place.

From hence I stood along the Coast, and the leventeenth of May, I came to anchor in the Bay of Wissoco : where the Indians came off vnto vs in two or three Cances, as well to learne of what Nation we were, as also to trade with vs; who understanding that we were English men boldly came aboard vs, one of them could speake our language well, and was knowne to some of my companie to be an Indian, that iometime had beene in England, and ferued Sir John Gilbert many 30 yeeres: they brought with them fuch dainties as their Countrie yeeldeth; as Hens, Fish, Pinas, Platanaes, Potatoes, bread of Caffaui, and fuch like cates, which were heartily welcome to my hungrie companie : In recompence whereof, I gaue them Kniues, Beades, lewes trumps, and fuch toves, which well contented them. But when I had awhile entertayned them, and made known vnto them the rerurne of the Indian, Martin, their Countriman, whom I brought with mee out of England, they feemed exceeding joyfull, supposing that he had beene dead, being about foure yeeres since he departed from them.

The Indian before mentioned to have ferued Sir Iohn Gilbert (whose name was Iohn) whilest he lived (for he is now dead, and dyed a Christian) was a great helpe vnto vs. because hee seake our language much better then either of those that I brought with mee, and was ever firme and 40 faithfull to vs, vntill his death. By him I vnderstood that their Towne was situate vpon the East file of the Hill in the mouth of Wiapoco, and was called Caripo: that the Indian, Martin, was Lord thereof, and that in his absence his brother was chiefe. Moreover, hee certified mee that the principall Indian of that River was called Carafana (who by good fortune) was then at A village cal. Caripo, and to having spent some time in other conference and friendly entertainment, they tooke their leave, and departed for that time. I fent one of my companie with them to give notice to Carafana, and the rest of the Indians of Caripo, that I had brought home their Country. man Martin, whom they all thought to bee dead, and another of their Nation also, who had kindred and friends amongst them; to defire him to come aboard my ship, and to bring with him the principall Indians of Caripo, that I might declare vnto them the caute of my comming into 50 their Countrie, and conferre with them of other matters intended for their good. The next day I came into the River of Wiapoco, and anchored over against the Sandy Bay.

The day following the Indians came aboard as I had defired, and brought vs good store of their Countrie prouition : Carafana, and one or two more of them were attyred in old clothes. which they had gotten of certaine English men, who (by the direction of Sir Walter Raleigh) had traded there the yeere before; the reit were all naked, both men and women; and this I ob-The chief men ferued amongst them, that although the better fort of men (especially the Tatos) doe couer their privities, by wearing over them a little peece of cotton cloth, pretily woven after their manner; yet did I neuer fee any of their women couered in any part, either aboue or beneath the waste, albeit they daily converted amongst vs, but were all (as the plaine proverb is) even starke 60 belly naked.

> At their comming aboard my flip, first Carafana as the principall amongst them, and after him the reft, faluted and welcommed vs after their rude manner, I vied them with all curtefie, and entercayned them as well as the straight roome would give me leave giving them good store of Aguanita, which they loue exceedingly: I prefented to their view their two Countrimen. Martin the Lord of their Towne, and Anthonie Canabre, who was a Christian, and had lived in England fourteene yeers, both which Lhad brought home wato them : when they beheld them. and after falutations, and some conference, knew to bee the same persons, whom they supposed and acter into and state of the period and the period and the state of the period and their owne mouthes) how well I had vied them, they feemed to be better pleafed with our comming : and when their rude falutations to their new-come Countrimen were ended . I tooke them apart, and thus declared the cause of my comming.

First . I brought to their remembrance the exploits performed by Sir Walter Raleigh in their Their confeto Countrie, in the reigne of our late Soueraigne Queene Elizabeth, when to free them from ferui- rence with the countrie, in the ranguished the Spaniards at Translade : burned their Towne, tooke their Indians. tude) he most worthily ranquined the Spaniara; at 1 random of the Indian Kings imprisoned, and Six W. Raleight bound by the necke with collers of Iron; and with great labour and perill discourted the River parts. See of Orenoque, and the Countries adiopning, as farre as the Prouince of Aromana, the Countrie of Hele 18.3. Topiamery, and the River of Caroli beyond it: And that their Countrillen called the Orenomenoni (who are the borderers of Oreneque) did then most willingly sibini: and render themselves The Orenequeunder the fubication of the late Queene; all which they well remembred, and faid, that Sir pairendred Walter Raleigh promised to have returned agains when them long fince.

Valer Ratego promited to nate returner against vivo ment ong mees.

Then I excused his not returning according to his promise, by reason of other imployments Elizabeth. 20 of great importance imposed woon him by the late Queene : the wing them moreour, that when he could not (for that cause) returns himselfe, hee tent Captaine Kejmis to visit them, and to Cap. Kejmis bring him true intelligence of their eftate (supposing that hee had left no Spaniards behinde him his voyage to at Trividade of power tomoleft them) to the end that reliefe and side might bee prepared for Guiana, them, according to their necessities, and oppression of their enemies. Then I told them of the death of the late Queene, whereby that bufineffe of theirs was againe hindered.

Moreover, I declared vinto them, that our gracious Soueraigne Lord King lames, who now rejeneth ouer vs (being the onely right and lawfull Heire, and Succeffor, to the Crowne and Dignitie of the Realme of England, after the death of the late Queene) was throughout the whole Land proclaymed King of England; and to comming to reigne oner vs, hath been ever

30 fince busied in ordering the State and affaires of the Kingdome, which being (by his great wifedome) feeled in tranquillitie and peace, like a good, gracious, and worthy King, doth now permit his Subjects to trauell abroad into forraine Countries, and Nations, to aide and affift all fuch as are vinuitly molested by their enemies. Whereupon, I and the rest of these worthy Gentlemen my affociates and friends, having intelligence by some that beene followers of Captaine Charles Lee (who was a man well knowne amongst them , and heretofore had taken Possession of possession of their Countrie to his Majesties vie, and was planted divers yeeres in Wiapoco, where the Countrie hee lyeth buried) of the great variance and discord depending betweene them the allied Nati- tiken at Wide ons, the Taiot, Armacon, Sappaios, and Paragentos; and their enemies the Charibes (all inhabi- 1000, by Capcons, the tame, Arrantem, organization of Amazones, and Deseguibe) have made a long and dangerous voy-Maichies vic. 40 age into those parts, to appeale their diffencions, and defend them against the Charibes, or other enemies that shall molest or oppresse them : and now being there arrived, doe intend to make fearch in those Countries for convenient places, where such of our Nation, as shall hereafter come to defend them, may be firly feated to dwell amongst them; that if any of those Nations shall attempt at any time to diffurbe the quiet living of their Neighbours, they may have flore of English friends at hand and amongst them, that will not spare their paines to appeale their difcords, nor their lines to defend them from harme.

When I had thus declared wnto them the cause of my comming, they made this answere : that with our comming they were well pleafed; but our number of men they thought too great . that they wanted meanes to prouide vs bread fufficient for them all , having but a small Towne. 50 few Gardens, and flender prouision for their owne companies, because fince Captaine Lee his death, and his mens departure from them, they never made provision for any strangers.

I replyed, that albeit their Towne was fmall, and their Gardens few (for the grounds wherein they plant their Caffaui, whereof they make their bread, they call their Gardens) yet their Countrie was full of Inhabitants, and had ftore of Gardens to supply our wants of bread , and was plentifully stored with other provisions sufficient for a greater number, which I defired might bee weekely brought vnto vs, as neede required, for that I meant not to take it without recompence, but would give them for it fuch commodities as should well please them, which they wanted : as Axes, Hatchets, Kniues, Beades, Looking-glaffes, Iewes trumps, and fuch like things wherein they most delight.

Then they defired to confult among it themselves, which I permitted, and expected their an- The tradium go fwere about two houres, which time they fpent in debating the matter after their manner, and to countell. drinking Aquanta, and in the end defired my presence, and made me this answere.

That they were contented and well pleased we should line among st them; that they would Their answers. furnish vs with houses to lodge in , and prouide all necessaries for vs in the best manner they

A meffencer fent to the Indiana

The Indians came aboa: d.

of the Taios couer their prinities. The women generally goe could. But whereas I faid our King would permit his people to line and abide among ft them, and defend them against their enemies: they answered, it was a thing they greatly defired, and had expected long, and now they made much doubt thereof, and faid they were but words, having *By Si: Walter heretofore beene * promifed the like, but nothing performed. To refolue that doubt, and make Rakith, and good my speeches, I told them what I had spoken should certainely be performed, and to that Captaine Lee. end I would leave my brother in their Country, and fome of my company with him, to dwell amonest them, vntill a greater supply might be sent from England for their better defence, Then they leemed to give credit to my words: And to after much talke, and many complements to please the naked people, I gaue to Cara Sana a Sword, and to the reft some other things, which pleased them well : and then after their manner taking their leaue, they departed. The next 10 day the Indian Martyn went ashoare, and seemed joy full that he had againe recoursed his owne

The Indian Martyn goeth ashoare.

The English

The gratefull

The day following I tooke land, with my companies in armes and colours displayed, and went vo vnto the Towne, where I found all the women and children standing at their doores to behold vs. The principall Indian came out vnto me, and inusted me into the Captaines house, which vntill the returne of Marys belonged vnto his brother, aschiefe Lord in as absence: went vp with them and was friendly feated with many kindes of their Countrie cates a when feated by the I had well eaten and refreshed my selfe, Martyn tooke me by the hand and faid, that he had not any thing wherewith to requite my kindenede towards him, in such manner as he desired : neiany thing wherevent to require my announce of the state o that fuch prouision as the Country yeeldeth, should be prouided for vs. His speech was approued by the reft of the Indians prefent, who tooke me by the hand one after another, and after their manner bad me welcome. I gaue them many thankes, and fomerewards for their kinde entergainment; and then disposed my company in convenient lodgings: but yet I kept a continuali guard, as in time of warre.

The English The firength of the place,

When I had thus fetled my company at this village, I went out to view the scienation of the The angely place, and the advantages for defence thereof. It is a great rockie Mountaine, not accessable by reason of fast woods, and steepe rockes, but onely in certaine places, which are narrow foote- 30 paths, very steepe and easie to be desended : whereby we were lodged as in a Fort, and most connemiently in respect the harbour was so neese, for our Ships did side at anchor vinderneath vs. ouer against the foote of the hill.

continual

Being thus arrived ypon the Coast, I found the time of the years so vnfeafonable for our purpole, that (by reason of continual) raines) we were constrained to lye still and doe nothing for the space of three weekes, or a moneth: in which idle time I conferred with the Indians, sometime with one, fometime with another; and by helpe of my Indian Anibony Canabre, and the Indian Iohn about mentioned (whom I vied for my interpreters) I gathered from them as well as I could, the State of their Countrie; the manner of their government and living; how they flood with their neighbours in tearmes of peace, and warre; and of what power and strength 40 they were, I inquired also of the seasons of the yeare in those parts : of their division, and account of times, and numbers; of the prouisions of their Countrie for victuals, and other necessaries; and made a diligent inquiry of all the commodities their Country yeeldeth, and what things were of most estimation amongst them : all which I have briefely declared vitto your Highnesse in this following discourse.

The bounds and limits of Guiasa.

His goodly Countrie, and spacious Empire, is on the North part bounded with the Sea, and the great River of Orenoque, wherein Sir Walter Releigh performed his worthy and memorable discouery on the East and South parts, with the famous River of Amazones: and on the West part with the Mountaines of Pers

Атгаросо а branch of Aderrovaes.

Maicary. Analy way

The westermost branch of the River of Amazones that fallerh into the Sea, is called Arrapoco: vpon which Riuer are feated many goodly Signiories well deferuing a particular diffcourty. which shall (by Gods permission) be performed hereafter. To the North of Arrapoco is the Riuer of Arraway, which is a goodly River, discovering a gallant Countrie. From Arraway vnto the River of Cassipurogh extendeth the Province of Arricary; containing the Signiories of Arrawary, Maicary, and Coolbebery; of which Analyury is principall, who by Nation is a Taio, and fled from the borders of Orenogue for feare of the Spaniards, to whom he is a mortall enemy. He hath feated himselfe in the Prouince of Arricary, and now dwelleth at Morong a in the Signiory of Maicars. To the North North-west of which, there falleth into the Sea a River called Congwini, whereupon the Signiory of Coolbebery bordereth; whereof an Indian named Laonard Raga- 61 po is Chiefe, under the subjection of Anaki-v-ry. This Indian is christened, and hath beene heretofore in England with Sir Walter Raleigh, to whom he beareth great affection: he can a little Learned Research vnderstand and speake our language, and loueth our Nation with all his heart. During my 2. boad at Wispeco, having intelligence of him, and of his Country, and that certaine stones were found therein, supposed to be Diamonds : I fent my Cozen, Captaine Fifter to discouer the same and fetch fome of those stones, to be resolved of the truth.

At his comming thither, Leonard entertained him with all kindenesse, not after the ordinary rude manner of the Indians, but in more civill fashion, and with much respect and love, he furnished him with guides to conduct him through the Country to the place where the Stones were mified him with guides to conduct min through the country of the place there is an high Mountaine appearing in fight, called Comptand on the top thereof (as the Indians report) a great A Mountaine appearing in fight, called Comptand on the top thereof (as the Indians report) a great A Mountaine Lake or Poole, full of excellent fish of divers kindes. The Countrey was as pleasant and decalled (most lightfull. as euer any man beheld ; but the Stones not Diamonds . yet they were Topales, which 10 being well cut, and fet in Gold by a cunning workman, doe make as faire a shew, and give as Toppes in Congood a luttre as any Diamond whatfoeuer: which yeelde good hopes of better to be found here- Bebers. after: For where the Topas is found on the Mountaines of Tenaferen, in the East Indies, the great test store of Diamonds are also found.

When my kiniman returned, Daptaine Leonard came with him to Wiapoco (being about an hundred miles from his owne Country) onely to visite me and my company; for the great loue he did beare to Sir Walter Raleigh, and our Nation. I much manuelled to fee him, for afferedly he is the braueit Indian of all those parts. After he had beene with me a day or two, he earneilly requeited me to lend some of my company into his Country, which he greatly commended for the wholesome ayre, and plenty of victuals, alleading that the place where then wee lived (by 20 his owne experience) was very vnhealthfull, that our men would there be fubiect to fickeneffe and die: and for an instance he named Captaine Lee, and his company, who formerly were planted there, and almost all dyed by sicknesse in the same place : But he assured me that his own Country Coolhebers was of a good ayre, pleasant, and healthfull; that there they might have roome sufficient to build English houses in (for those were the words hee vied) that thither they should be welcome and should want nothing. Much he perswaded to draw me to his desire, which by his importunity I granted, and accordingly performed it; finding his Country answe- The quality of rable to his report; being for the most part champian ground, naturally intermixt of plaine the Province fields, fruitefull meadowes, and goodly woods, in such admirable order, as if they had beene of confessory. planted artificially by handy labour. The fields appearing about the meadowes in pleafant and 30 delightfull manner, prefenting here and there vato the eye, from flately Mounts, most beautifull and linely prospects: the meadowes bordering on every side betweene the fields and woods, the woods growing in the lowest valleys betwirt the meadowes, and commonly are swatered with fweete and pleasant fresh ftreames running through them : which strange and rare mixture of

Mounts, Valleyes, Meadowes, Fields, and Woods, afford as excellent and healthfull habitations as can be wished or defired but is not greatly peopled. From the River of Casique och N. Westward to the River of Arracon, and vp further into the Land towards the West, and South-west, as farre as the River of Army (which falleth into Wiapoce about the overfalles) extend the Provinces of Arracory, and Morownia, which also to the Arracory and landward (by the relation of my Brother, Captaine Muchael Harcourt, and Captaine Harney, Mortownia, 40 who have travelled and discourred those parts) are pleasant and delightfull plaine Countries, like unto Cooftebery. The Arracory Countrie is well pleopled, and their chiefe Captaine is called Ipero. Betwixt the Wapocoories and Arracoories there is no hearty love and friendship, yet in outward hew they hold good quarter. In Morrownia, there is also flore of people, which are friendly Indians. In that Prouince there is a very high Hill called Callipany, fallioned like a Su-An exceeding gerloafe, or a Pyramie, which oueruieweth and discouereth all the Territories adiopning about high Hill calan hundred miles. Beyond the Country of Morrowni to the Southward bordering the River of Army, is the Pro-

uince of Norrak: the people thereof are Charibes, and enemies both to the Morrowinnes, the in- Norrak. habitants of Morrownia, and to the Wiapopoories; who are also under the subjection of Analy-ve-50 77, the principall and greatest Lord, or Cassique of all the Taios in those Proninces, bordering vp. date vor on the Sea betwixt the Amezones, South-eastward, and Deffequebe North-westward.

From the River of Amazones to the Bay of Wiapoco, there fall into the Sea thefe Rivers fol- Rivers falling lowing: Arrapoco (a branch of Amazones) Arrawary, Micary, Conawini, and Caffiparoph: In into the Sea. the Bay of Wispocco to the Eaft of the faid River, there falleth into the Sea the River of Arracon; betweene A. the Bay of Waspece to the East of the faid River, there raised into the Sea the River of Arracow; and into Arracow falleth the River of VVasts. To the North of VVaspece there is a small creeke movement of Wasts. called Wismany, which letteth into the Sea a dayes iourney Westward vp into the land; former take Wismany, which letteth into the Sea a dayes iourney Westward vp into the land; former take Wismany acreek. this creeke to be a River, but they doe erre in that opinion, it having neither Spring nor Fountame from whence it falleth, To the North and North-west of the said creeke, there is a ridge of high Mountaines running towards the River of Approvaca, the foile whereof is excellent and 60 fertile for Tobacco, and beareth the best of all those parts; so are the Sugar-canes there growing fertile for Tobacco, and bearern one perit of all times paris; in all the read of Land betwire the River the heft and faireft that are found you the Coaft and all the trade of Land betwire the River the heft and faireft that are found you the Coaft and all the trade of Land betwire the River The Province the net and ratter trac are journey possible country and an interest of property, containing the Signiories of Wispece, and Aparwaca, is accounted the Promince of Wispece, and Aparwaca, and Aparwa of VViapoco , and VVianary. Benea h the overfals in VViapoco (which are forty miles diffant from the Sea) there is much people, both of Taios, and Armaccas : of the Taios in this River Cara-Nanan

Erafana. A TENNERA f -funica. Rivers talling

fana is chiefe. Of the Armaceas, Arriquona is principall. In Wianary there are few Indians. and Cufureno is their chiefetaine. To the North- west of the Bay of Wiapoco, there fall into the Sea the River of Apurwaca. Cowo.

Wio, and Caiane. Aparwaca is a goodly River, and well inhabited: Como is voide of inhabitants: trathe North- Wio is a faire River and leadeth many dayes fourney into the high land, tand discovereth a fertile well of Wiggs, and hopefull Country. At Casane there is an excellent harbour for shipping of any burden, which heretofore by Captaine Lawrence Keymis was called Port Howard : On the Starbood fide. as you enter this harbour, there is an Hand of low land, called Muccumbre, feituate betwixt the River of Casane and Meccoria, containing in circuit about fixteene leaves. In this Iland there Muccumbro an are two hils, the one called Muccumbro, whereof the lland taketh the name; the other called Ia Cillicedemo: from these hils the greatest part of the Hand may be ouerniewed, which containeth many goodly Pastures and Meadowes intermixt with some Woods, and is full of Deere both red

On the Larboard fide, as you enter Caiane there is another Hand of high Land, called Mat. toory, in quantitie much like vnto the first : this liand for the commodious scituation, is of great eff at for the defence of the harbour, affording naturally two such notable convenient places for the planting of Ordnance for that purpose, as no industry of art could deuise better, or more augileable.

Arravica 7 chiefe Cape taine of the Catane. Foure or five men placed at

The Inhabitants of this Prouince of Caiane, are Charibes, their principall commander is called Arranicars, who dwelleth at Cillicedemo before mentioned; we have found him truthy and faithfull to our Nation but; to our friend Leonard ot Coffebery, he is a mortall enemy. At this mans house Heft foure or fue of my company, thereby to hold amity and friendship with the Charibes, to learne their language, and to keepe peace betweene them and the Taios, Armaceas. and other Narions their allies. To the South-westward of these Prouinces about mentioned towards the high land, there be many others which hereafter shall be more exactly described by a second These Provinces & Signiories to the landward are not plentifully inhabited, the greatest numbers of people are seated neare vnto the Riuers, & trauell from place to place in Canoes. There is no fetled government amongst them, onely they acknowledge a superiority, which they will obay as farre as they please. In every Promince or Signiory there is a chiefe Call que, or Cap- 30 taine, commanding all : So likewife in every Towne and Village, they commonly chaftife murder and adultery by death, which onely are the offences punished amongst them, and certaine . Adurery pungle persons are appointed by them to execute those punishments. The Indians take wives, ouer The indian by whom they are excreame realous, and expect great continencie in them; for if they take them nature leafous in adultery, they prefently caufe their braines to be beaten out. The better fort of persons haue every one of them two or three wives, or more, the rest but one ; accounting him that hath most wines, the greatest man. Their wines (especially the elder fort) are as servants vnto them, for they make their bread and drinke, dreffe their meate, ferue them at meales, and doe all the other bunneffe about the house.

The manner of their go. mernment. Murderand

hau mayay Diuerslanguacoaft.

ouer their

The Ledians

The Indians make wir for their women.

The Charibes Warte Veon Leon rd.

pons of the Leonard defiseth aide of the English.

These Provinces are peopled with divers Nations of severall languages, namely, Taios, Ar- 40 maccas, Sappasos, Paragotos, and Charibes. The Charibes are the ancient inhabitants, and the other Nations are such as haue beene chaied away from Trimidado, and the borders of Orenoane. And foralmuch as they have vnited themselves in those parts, the Charibes have held them in whon the Sea continuall warres, but the Taiss and the other Nations their Allyes, are growne fo ftrong, that they have confirmed the Charibes of the Sea-coast to contract a peace with them, yet beare no hearty loue the one Nation to the other: but with the Charibes inhabiting the in-land parts vpon the Mountaines, they have as yet no peace at all; for they doe often times come downe voon them in great numbers, spoile and burne their houses, kill their men, and carry away their women, which is the greatest cause of warre and hatred amongst them; whereof our men haue seene experience in Coofbebers, where happened an accident worth the observing, which I will here 50 declare vnto your Highnesse. The Indian Leonard Ragapo, before mentioned, is a Taio, who finding the Countrey of Coolbebery flenderly inhabited, hath ferzed vpon it for his owne Signiorie; and at his earnest request, I sent soure Gentlemen of my company to remaine there with him. The naturall inhabitants that dwell upon the uttermost bounds thereof, towards the South, and West, are Charibes, and enemies to him, and to his Nation : for while our men vnknowne to the Charibes) flaied at Coofhebery, they affembled themselves together to the number of two hundred or more, and came dome into his Signiorie, burned and fpoiled houses, roafted one woman, tooke many prisoners, and intended to affault him also: which to preuent he armed about fiftie of his Indians, with their vivall weapons; which are Bowes and Arrowes, long The viual wea- States that pened at the point, and with fire hardened: woodden Swords and Targets very artifi- 60 cially made of wood, and painted with Beaits, and Birds: He requested also our men to aide and affift him with their Muskets, which I commanded them to doe, vpon all fuch occasions offered: And so being all in readinesse, Leonard (as their captain) led them on to intercept his enemies; and as I have heard by Master Henry Baldmin (who then was prient, and (to observe the manner of their warres, gaue him leaue to command all) he brauely performed that exploit, in good order after their manner, and with great judgement and resolution. For in the Front, he first placed our foure Englishmen, by two in a ranke; next to them, two Indians armed with woodden Swords The manner and Targets; then two Archers; and after them two men with sharpned states, instead of of ordering Pikes; and in like manner ordered, and ranked all his Company. Being thus prepared, hee then mining marched against the Charibs, who (neere at hand) were comming in the same order towards the warres. him; but when they approached, and (vnexpected) perceived our English men amongst the Taios, they were much amazed, and made a fudden fland: which Leonard perceiving, guelfed rightly at the cause, and instantly did make good vie of that advantage. Hee commanded

10 his owne company to keepe their Station, himfelfe with a Sword in his hand (which I had given him) and a Target of his owne fashion, went boldly towards them to parley with fight of the their Captaines. And having called them out, hee reproved them for comming (as enemies) English into his Signiory, for burning and spoiling his houses, and his people: hee demanded satisfactionfor the hurt done, and restitution of the prisoners taken, and warned them forthwith to the che contains the contains th depart out of his Signiory, and deaft from warre: which if they refused to fulfill, he was there rives. ready with his friends the Englishmen to fight with them, and revenge his wrongs: and faid further, that if in the conflict any of the English men were flaine, or hurt; hee would then fetch all the reft from Wiapoco, and returne to burne their houses, and cut them all in peeces. Thus hee boldly spake, with such a courage, shewing also our men vinto them (who had their The charites

20 match in cocke ready to discharge) that hee strooke such a reare into them all, by reason of our agree to peace mens presence, that they presently agreed to peace, performed what conditions he required, for feare of the and then departed home with all their company. Here may your Highnesse note the factions among the Indian Nations : the discipline and order they hold in warre : the feare the Charibes conceived at the fight of our English men, and the policy of the Indian Leonard to take advantage by their feare, and make our men his Guard, and chiefe protection against them. These things in time will much auaile vs, being well observed, and rightly applied according to occation. But to our former discourse.

The power and strength of these Countries (being so thinly peopled) is not very great to withfrand the might of forraine enemies. The vivall weapons of the Indians, are before deferi-30 bed fauing that their Arrowes are oft times poisoned. But fince our trade and commerce with them, they have gotten a few good Swords, Miskets, Calivers, and some small quantity of fhot and powder; and have learned to handle their Peeces very orderly, and fome of them are good fhot.

The seasons of the yeare upon this coast, and in this climate are divers, for in the East parts of Guiana towards the Amazones, the dry weather, which we call their Summer beginneth in Au- The season of Guissa towards the Amatones, the my making, and we can take a compared to a mileson or guit, and the violent raines and tempelmous winds, which we count their winter, doe begin in the years and February Bar in the Weltern parts, towards Oresones, the dry featon beginneth in October, Guissa.

Let a my making the summer of the sea of the country of the sea of the and the raines and windes in Aprill. There is little difference of heate and cold in this diuerfity of seasons being so neere the Equinoctiall, where the day and night are alwayes equall: August.

40 for in those parts wee finde, that when the Sunne declineth further from them towards the The winter be-Tropicke of Capricorne, the ayre is then cleareft, and the feafon of the yeare most dry; as ginneth in Fein the Easterne parts of Guiana in August, September, October, Nouember and December: bruary. and when the Sunne returneth towards the Tropicke of Cancer, then doe the raines begin, mcrease, and decrease, from Frbruary to July: but sometimes they begin to fall, and the Rivers to rife, swell, and overflow sooner or later by a moneth; and the yeare is sometimes more or lesse windie and wet, according to the disposition of the beauens, and of the Planets: and as the Sun approacheth, or declineth little, or much, even so the earth wanteth or aboundeth with water

They have no division or account of times or numbers; they onely reckon by the Moones, as Their account they made no distinct of the Moones: or by dayes in like manner. Their numbers they reckon of times and thus, one, two, three, and so to ten: then they say ten and one, ten and two, ten and three, &c. And to numbers. thew their meaning more certainly, they will hold vp one, two, three, or more of their fingers, expressing the numbers, still making signes as they speake, the better to declare their meaning: when they will reckon twenty, they will hold downe both their hands to their feete, shewing all their fingers and toes, and as the number is greater, so will they double the figne. When they appoint or promise any thing to be done by a time limited, they will deliuer a little bundle of flicks equall to the number of dayes, or Moones, that they appoint, and will themselves keepe another bundle of the like number: and to observe their appointed time, they will every day, or Moone take away a flicke, and when they have taken away all, then they know that the time of 60 their appointment is come, and will accordingly performe their promife.

As touching Religion, they have none among it them, that I could perceive, more then a cer- Religion. taine observance of the Sunne and Moone, supposing them to be alive, but vsing no religious They vieno worship rowards them, not offer factifice to anything a volete them, and offer factifice to anything a volete them. worship towards them, nor offer sacrifice to any thing; vnlesse they vse a superstition in religious wortheir drinking feafts, by facrificing larres of drinke: for at the death of any of their Caffiques, thip to any Nanna 2

The manner

Captaines, or great friends whom they efteeme, they will make a folemne feast (their chiefest The manner prouision being of their best and strongest drinke, which they call Parranow) which featt shall or their arios deschot their finging, and drinking excessively; in which vice they exceede all other Nations whatsoeners accounting him that will be drunke first, the brauest fellow: during this folemnitie of their drinking, fome women being neerest of their kin vnto the party dead , doth stand by and cry extreamely : thus their manner is vntill their drinke be spent, and then the feast is ended. Whether they vie any superstition in this custome I know not time will reueale, and also reforme it. It Their Petaios is most certaine that their Pecaios (as they call them) Priests, or Southfayers, at some specially or Pricfts haue times haue conference with the Diuell (the common deceiver of mankinde) whom they call to with the divel. Wattipa, and are by him deluded; yet not withit anding their often conference with him, they Their opinion feare and hate him much, and fay that he is nought : and not without great reason, for hee will of the dead. oftentimes (to their great terror) beate them blacke and blew. They believe that the good fredians when they dye, goe vp, and will point towards the heavens, which they call Caupo : and that the bad Indians goe downe, pointing to the earth, which they call Soy. When any Caffigne, shey kill an In-Captaine, or chiefe man dieth among & them, if he have a slave or prisoner taken from their enemies, they will kill him; and if he have none such, then will they kill one of his other femants. that he may have one to attend him in the other world.

him in the other world. The quality of

At the death

dim to ferue

The qualitie of the Land in those Countries, isof divers kindes; by the Sea side the Land is low, where the heate would be most vehement, if it were not qualified and tempered by a 20 fresh Easterly winde or Brieze, most forcibly blowing in the heate of the day: in many places this low land is very vnheal-bfull, and little inhabited, by reason of the ouer-flowing of the waters : but for the most part it hath goodly nauigable Rivers, a fertile foyle, much people, and is a healthfull habitation. Vpon the Mountaines there is a high land, where the avre is colleft, in some places it is fruitfull, in others not : but generall is full of Minerals, and mines of mettals, and yeeldeth as many as any part either of the Eaft, or West Indies, both of the best, and of the batest whereof, we shall (by Gods permission) give good restimony, to the benefit of our Countrey, and honour of our Nation in time convenient : and in most places voon the Mountaines there is found and healthfull dwelling. There is also a middle fort of land, which is of a meane height, and is most temperate, healthfull, fertile, and most inhabited of all other: it aboundeth in Meadowes, Pastures, and pleasant streames of fresh water, in goodly woods, and most delightfull Plaines, for profit, pleasure, sport, and recreation : and also is not void of Minerals.

The roote of Caffaui miketh

The prouisions of this Countrey for victuals, are many : First, of the roote of a tree, called for victuals. Cassani, they make their Bread, in manner following; they grate the roote vpon a stone, and presse out the juice thereof, which being rawe is poylon, but boiled with Guinea Pepper, whereof they have abundance, it maketh an excellent and wholefome fawce, then they drie the grated roote, and bake it voon a stone, as we hake our Oaten cakes in England. This Bread is very excellent, much like, but farre better then our great Oaten cakes, a finger thicke, which are yied in the Moorelands, and the Peake in Stafford bire and Darbibire. There is a kinde of great Wheat, called Maix, of some it is called Guinea Wheat, which graine is a fingular prouision in those Countries, and yeeldeth admirable increase, even a thousand or fifteene hundred for one, and many times much more. It maketh excellent meals, or flower for Bread; and very good Malt for Beere or Ale, and ferueth well for fundry other necessary vies for the reliefe of man. Of the aforesaid Cassami bread, and this Wheate the Indians make drinke, which they call Passium : it will not keepe long, but must be spent within source or fine daves: they make another kinde of drinke of Cassani, called Parranon, very good and kindsofdrinke strong, much like vinto our best March beere in England, and that kinde of drinke will keepe ten An excellent dayes; many forts they have which I have tafted, some strong, some small, some thicke, some thin, drinke made but all good, being well made, as commonly they were among it the Taios, and Armaccas, which 50 are the clenliest people of all those Nations.

Maix or Guinea

of Caffani. Store of hony.

There is great store of hony in the Country, and although it be wilde being taken out of trees and buries in the earth) yet is it as good as any in the world; of which may be made an excellent drinke much vied in Wales, called Meath. The hony and the waxe, are also good commodities for merchandife.

The foyle ex-

There is no Vines in that Country, but the Soyle being rich and fertile, and the climate hot, if they were planted there, they would prosper exceedingly, and yeelde good Sackes, and Ganary wines, which in those parts we finde to be very wholesome.

Sundry kindes ot Beafts in Many other necessary prouisions sufficient for the sustenance of man, doe there abound in plenty: Namely, Deere of all forts, wilde Swine in great numbers, whereof there are two kindes, the 60 one small, by the Indians called Pockiero, which hath the namile in the backe; the other is called Paingo, and is as faire and large as any we have in England. There be store of Hares, and Conies. but of a kinde far differing from ours: There be Tigers, Leopards, Ounces, Armadils, Maipuries, uile in the back which are in tafte like Beefe, & wil take falt: Baremoes or Ant-Beares, which tafte like Mutton, & other small beaits of the same tafte, coloured, like a Fawne, Elkes, Monkies, and Marmosites of diners forts, both great and small : of these beasts there bee innumerable, and by experience we have found them all good meate. Many other kindes of beafts there are of fundry and ffrance shapes, which hereafter shall be figured in their true proportion according to the life with their names annexed.

Or Fowles there bee divers kindes; namely, Wild-ducks, Widgins, Teales, Wild-geefe, He- Great variety rons of divers colours, Cranes, Storkes, Pheafants, Patridges, Doues, Stock-doues, Black-birds, of Fowles, Curlewes, Godwits, Woodcokes, Snites, Parrots of fundry forts, many other kindes of great and imall Birds of rare colours; belides great rauenous Fowles; and Hawkes of every kinde.

Of fift the varietie is great, first of Sea fift, there is Sea-breame, Mullet, Soale, Scare, Thorne- Divers kinder backe, the Sword-fish, Sturgeon, Seale, a fish like vnto a Salmon, but as the Salmon is red, this is of fish, yellow; Shrimps, Lobsters, and Oysters, which hang vpon the branches of Trees : There is a rare fish called Cafforma, which hath in each eye two tights, and as it swimmeth it beareth the Oysters hing lower fights within the water, and the other about the ribs and back of this fifth refemble those voon trees, parts of a man, having the ribs round and the back flat, with a dent therein, as a man hath; it is A file having formewhat bigger then a Smelt, but farre exceeding it for daintie meate; and many other forts four eyes. there be most excellent. Ot fresh-water fish many kindes vaknowne in these parts, but all ex- and the ries, ceeding good and daintie: And I dare be bold to fay, that this Countrie may compare with any and backe like other of the world, for the great varietie of excellent fish both of the Sea, and fresh Waters. aman. 20 There is also a Sea-fish which vsually commeth into the fresh waters, especially in the winter and wet feafon, it is of great elteeme amongst vs, and we account it halfe fiesh, for the blond of it is warme; it commeth up into the shallow waters in the drowned lands, and feedeth upon graffe and weedes : the Indians name it Coismers, and the Spaniards, Manats, but wee call it the Sea-com; in taste it is like beefe, will take falt, and ferue to victual ships, as in our knowledge The Sea com hath beene proued by our Countrimen : Of this fish may bee made an excellent oile for many like beete, purpoles; the fat of it is good to frie either fish or flesh; the hide (as I have heard) will make good buffe : and being dried in the Sunne, and kept from wet, will ferue for Targets and Armour against the Indian arrowes : In the wet season the store of them are infinite ; some of these hides were heretofore brought into England, by Sir Walter Ramleigh.

The seuerall kindes of fruits are many, the Pina, Platana, Potato, Medler , Plums of diviers Sundrie kindes forts, the Nuts of strange kindes. The excellency of the Pina I cannot expresse, for I dare bold- of fruits. ly affirme that the world affoordeth not a more delicate fruit : In taile it is like Straw-berries, Pina. Claret-wine and Sugar. The Platana is also a very good fruit, and tasteth like an old Pippin. Platana The Potato is well knowne. The Medler exceedeth in greatnesse. The Plums I cannot com- Potato. mend, for to eate much of them doth cause fluxes, which in those Countries are dangerous. The Plummes! Nuts are good being moderately eaten.

Auing thus (most excellent Prince) declared the severall sorts of provisions for victuals and Nuts. necessarie foodes, it remay neth that I now make mention of the varietie of commodities, 40 found in the Countrie for the trade of merchandife, which in few yeeres, by our paines and induftrie, may be brought to perfection, and to fetled in those parts, that not onely the vindertakers may receive reward for their indeuours, but our Countrie also may grow rich, by trading for the fruits of our labours.

The first and principall commoditie of estimation, are the Sugar-canes, whereof in those parts The varieties there is great plentie; the foile is as fertill for them as in any other part of the world; They doe of commodithere grow to great bigneffe in a flort time; by orderly and fit planting of them, and by erecting ties.

Sugar Canes, convenient workes for the boyling and making of Sugars (which at the first will require some charge and expence) may be yearly returned great benefit and wealth; the long experience of the Porsugals and Spaniards, in Brafil, and the Iland of the Canaries; and of the Moores in Bar-

50 barie, may give ve certaine affurance, and full fatisfaction thereof. The Cotton wooll is a generall commoditie, beneficiall to our Merchants, and profitable to Cotton wooll, our Countrie, by making of Fustians, and serving for Bumbaste, and other vies : for making of Hamaceas, which are the Indian beds, most necessarie in those parts, and also of a fine cotton cloth for clothing of the people. There is a naturall Hempe or Flax of great vie, almost as fine Naturall hemp as filke as it may be vied; we have now found out the best vie of it; and for making of hnnen or flaxe. cloth it is most excellent.

There bee many rare and singular commodities for Dyers, of which sore there is a red berrie, Divers comcalled Annoto, which being rightly prepared by the Indians, dyeth a perfect and fire Orange. modifies for tawnie in filke ; it hath beene fold in Holland for twelve fhillings starling the pound, and is yet Dyers. 60 of a good price. There is another berrie that dyeth blue. There is also a gumme of a tree, whereof I have icene experience, that in cloth dyeth a fure and perfect yellow in graine. There bee A gum which leaues of certaine Trees, which being rightly prepared, doe die a deepe red. There is also a dyeth a yellon wood which dyeth a purple, and is of a good price; and another that dyeth yellow. There is in graine, yet another wood which dyeth a purple when the liquor is hot, and a crimfon when the liquor is cold. Many other notable things there are (no doubt) not yet knowne vnto vs. which by our diligent labour and observation in time will be discovered and found.

Nanan 3

C H A P. 16.

The fweet Gummes of mestimable value and strange operation in physicke and chirurgerie, are innumerable; there is yellow Amber, Gumma Lemnia, Colliman or Carriman, Barratta, and many more which I omit. The Collman hath beene proued by Mafter Walter Cary of Willham in Buckinghambire (a Gentleman of great judgement and practice in physicke) to be of speciall The vertues of regard for many purpoles : this gumme is black and brittle much like in flew to common pitch; Colliman or Care if you put a little of it you burning coales, it filleth all the roome with a most sweet and pleafant favour. He further reporteth of it, that certainly if you hold your head ouer the fume thereof three or foure times a day, it cureth the giddineffe of the head, and is also a most excellent 10 comfort and remedie tor a cold, moift, and rheumatike braine : it is also good against the resolution (or as the common fort call it) the dead palie, whereof the giddinesse of the head is often a meflenger, and the fore-teller of that most permicious griefe, It is also of great vie for the paine that many women haue in the lower part of their backs; which is very common to fuch as haue had chil 'ren : for remedie whereof, it is to be melted in a pewter vessell with a gentle fire, then with a knife it must be spread lightly vpon a piece of leather, and laid warme to the place grieped, vntill it come off of it felie. This plaister is also very good for aches, and doth greatly com-The Colliman fort and ftrengthen the finewes. Thus much hath Mafter Cary written and reported of it, and hath proved by his owne experience. This gumme is also approved to bee an excellent remedie helpeth the sowt.

Barratte a rare Ballamum.

Drugges and phyficke,

An app e which prono-drunke.

c% 55. £ 11.5 .tast.

Tobacco.

against the gowt; and of singular vertue in the cure of wounds. The Barata is a most soueraigne Balsamum farre excelling all others yet knowne : which by the lame Gentlemans experience is of admirable operation in the cure of greene wounds: and being burned upon coales, is of a fweet and odoriterous fauour.

There bee many other fweet gummes of great vie for perfumes; whereo, one doth make fweet Marge- a very rare perfume, much like vnto the ient of fweete Margerum, very pleafant and dele Hable.

For physick there be also many excellent Drugs; namely, Spiknard, Cassia Fistula, Sone; and the earth yeeldeth Bole-Armoniack, and Terra-Lemnia, all which are knowne vnto vs. There be other Drugs and Simples also of strange and rare vertue, in these parts voknowne : of which fort there is a little greene Apple, by the Indians called in their language, The flerping Apple; 20 which in operation is fo violent, that one little bit thereof doth cause a men to fleepe to death : keth fleepe to the leaft drop of the juyce of it, will purge in vehement and excessive manner, as dangerously was proved by my coulin Vnton Fifter, who first found it : for biting a little of it for a taste ; and finding it to burne his mouth infome extremitie, did fodainly fpit it out agains, but fome small quantitie of the juvce (against his will) went downe into his stomack, which for two or three dayes (pace did prouoke in him an extraordinarie fleepinefle, and purged him with fixtie feates. This Apple, for the purging vertue in fo small a quantitie, is like to bee of good price, and great estimation in the practice of physick; for the learned Physicians doe well know how to correct the fleeping qualitie thereof wherein the danger refteth. There is a berrie in those parts very ex-A berry curing cellent against the bloudie-fluxe, by the Indians it is called Kelletre. The juyce of the leafe called 40 V pper, cureth the wounds of the poyloned arrowes. The juyce of the leafe called lears, is good fluxe.

against the head-ache. Many other Drugs and Simples are there found of fingular properties. A leafe curing to both in physick and chirurgerie, which if they should bee seuerally described according to their the wounds of the second second in the second the poyfoned value and worthinesse, would containe a large Volume.

Moreover, the Tree wherewith they take their fish, is not a little to be esteemed, but chiefly A leafe cuting the great goodnesse of God therein is highly to bee prayfed and admired, who amongst so many admirable things by him created, and planted in those parts, hath vouchfased to bestow upon those barbarous people so great a benefit, and naturall helpe, for the present getting of their food and futtenance. These trees are commonly growing neere vnto the places of their habitation for their present vie : for when, at any time, they goe to fish, they take three or source little to flicks of this tree, and bruife them upon a stone, and then go into certain smal creeks by the Seashoare, which at a high water are viually full of very good fish of diners kindes . which come in with the tyde; and there they wade vp and downe the water, and betweene their hands rub those small brusted sticks therein, which are of such vertue, that they will cause she fish to turne up their bellies, and lye ftill aboue the water for a certaine time : In which space they presently take as many as they please, and lade them into their Canoes, and so with little labour returne home fufficiently prouded.

There is also a red speckled wood in that Countrie, called Pira timinere, which is worth thirtie orfortie pounds a Tun : It is excellent for Ioyners worke ; as chaires, fooles, bed-fteds, preffes, cupboords, and for wainfcot. There are divers kindes of stone of great vie, and good price, 60 as laiper, Porphyrie, and the Spleene-fione.

There is yet another profitable commoditie to be reaped in Guiana, and that is by Tabacco, which albeit some dillike, yet the general tie of men in this Kingdome doth with great affection entertaine it. It is not only in request in this our Countrey of England, but also in Ireland, the Neatherlands, in all the Eafterly Countreyes, and Germany; and most of all amongst the Turkes. and in Barbary, The price it holdeth is great, the benefit our Merchants gaine thereby is infinite. and the Kings rent for the cultome thereof is not a little. The Tabacco that was brought into this Kingdome in the yeare of our Lord 1610. was at the least worth 60. thousand pounds: And fince 60000, worth that time the flore that yeerely hath come in, was little leffe. It is planted, gathered, feafoned, of Tanacco in and made up fit for the Merchant in hor: time, and with easie labour. But when we first arri- a yeere. ned in those parts, wee altogether wanted the true skill and knowledge how to order it, which now of late we happily have learned of the Spaniards themselves, whereby I dare presume to fay, and hope to proue, within few moneths, (as others also of found judgement, and great exto perience doe hold opinion) that onely this commoditie Tabacco ; (fo much fought after and defired) will bring as great a benefite and profit to the vindertakers, as ever the Spaniards sained by the best and richest Siluer Myne in all their Indies, considering the charge of both.

The things which the Indians defire from vs by way of trade in exchange for the about named The comodicommodities, (whereby wee hold focietie and commerce with them) are Axes, Hatchets, Bill- tiesmoft effect hookes, Knines, all kinde of Edge-tooles, Nailes, great Fish-hookes, Harping-irons, Iewes does. Trumps. Looking-glasses, blue, and white Beads, Christali Beades, Hats, Pinnes, Needles, Salt. Shirts, Bands, linnen and woollen Clothes, Swords, Muskets, Caleeuers, Powder, and Shot: but of these last mentioned, we are very sparing, and part not with many, valeffe vpon great occasion, by way of gift to speciall persons.

20 When the raines ceased, which was in July, I beganne to travell abroad in fearch of those golden Mountaines, promised vnto vs before the beginning of our Voyage, (by one that undertooke Leaden minds, to guide vs to them) which filled my company to full of vaine expectation, and golden hopes, but golden that their infatiable and couetous mindes (being wholy fet thereon) could not bee fatisfied with Mynes. any thing but only Gold. Our guide that vainly made those great promises , beeing come vnto the wished place to make performance, was then posteffed with a shamelesse spirit of ignorance. for hee knew little, and could performe nothing. What other intelligences of Mynes alreadie found) I had from other men in England, and from the Malter of my thip, who had beene heretofore in those parts, I found them by experience falle, and nothing true concerning Mynes. that was in England reported voto me.

30 Our greedie defire of Gold being thus made frustrate, divers vnconstant persons of my vn- Diforders by ruly company began to murmure, to bee discontented, to kindle discords and diffentions, and to muriny. flirvo mutinie euen almost to the confusion and ruine of vs all: and were youn the point to sake off all obedience to their commanders; to abandon patience, peace, and vnitie, and wilfully to breake out into all mischiese and wretched disorder, onely because they were deceived of their golden hopes and expectations : but with good words, and comfortable perswafions . I pacified them for the time, and made them acquainted with my better hopes conceived of the commodities about mentioned. I perswaded them in generall from idlenesse, to travell abroad, to search and feeke out amongst the Indians, what other nouelties they could (though Gold were wan- Good to bee ting) whereby we might hereafter benefit our felues; and still I employed them fome one way, what to pre-40 and some another, to occupie their minds by doing something, the better to preuent differtion, uent the dead which commonly is bred of idleneffe, the flourlyfull Mother of all filthy vices.

As I daily converfed among ft the Indians, it chanced one day, that one of them prefented me with a halfe Moone of Metall, which held somewhat more then a third part Gold, the rest Copper : another also gaue me a little Image of the same Metall; and of another I bought a plate The bish of the same (which he called a spread Eagle) for an Axe. All which things they affored mee Country of were made in the high Countrey of Guiana, which they faid did abound with Images of Gold, Guiana abounby them called Carrecoory. Thefe things I shewed to my company to fettle their troubled minds, deth with imawhich gave much contentment to the greater part of them, and fatisfied vs all that there was ges of Gold. Gold in Guiana. Shortly after that my Indian Anthony Canabre, brought me a piece of a Rocke, The Rocks of 50 of white Sparre, whereof the high Countrey is full : And if the white Sparres of this kinde, the pureft which are the pureft white of all others, (for every fort of Myne hath a Sparre, and for the most white Sparre part white) be in a maine Rocke, they are certainly Mynes of Gold, or Silver, or of both I made are Mynes of triall of a piece of Sparre, which the same Indian discouered vinto mee, and I found that it held sold or filters both Gold, and Silver, which (although it was in small quantitie) gave me fatisf &tion that there be richer Mynes in the Countrey to be found ; but the best lie deeper in the earth, and wee had not time nor power to make learch for them.

I travelled up the River of Wispoco, to veiw the over-fals, but the waters being high and firong, I could not passe them. In August when they are sallen , with some labour they may bee passed. Manyouer-fala This River hath very many over-falls, lying one a good distance beyond another, even to the in Wapare.

60 head thereof. Aboue some of the first falls there dwelleth an Indian, called Comarian, who is an old man of a free disposition; by him I learned that a certaine distance about the first falls, the Riuer Army falleth into Wiapoco; moreouer that certaine dayes journey beyond him towards the high Land, upon the borders of Wiapoco, there is a Nation of Charibes having great eares of an extraordinarie bignesse, hard tobes beleeued, whom hee called Marashemaccas : amongst thele

prople

diam vie The proportie

People hauing people (as Comarian reporteth) there is an Idoll of stone, which they worship as their God; they great eares; haue placed it in a house made of purpose for the greater honour of it, which they keepe very great eares, have placed it in a house made of purpose for the greater honour of it, which they keepe very prihaps shele cleane and handsome. This Idoll is fashioned like a man sitting upon his heeles, holding open eares are made his knees, and refting his elbowes vpon them, holding vp his hands with the palmes forwards. targe by art, as discret East In- looking vpwards, and gaping with his mouth wide open. The meaning of this proportion hee could dot declare, although he hath beene many times amongst them, and hath often seene it. What other Nations were beyond these he did not know, having neuer travelled to farre. but he laith, they be Charibes, and also enemies vnto them. It feemeth there bee many Nations of thole great eared people : for in the River of Marrawini, I heard also the like, who dwell farre up towards the high Land, as hereafter you shall heare, and I suppose, by the trending of the Ri- ta uers of Wiapoco, and Marrawini, are all one people.

Vpon the fourteenth day of August I went vnto a Mountaine, called Gomeribo, beeing the vttermost point of Land to the North-ward in the Bay of Wiapoco; I found the soile of it most excellent for Tabacco, Maix, Cotton-trees, Annoto-trees, Vines, and for any other thing that should bee planted there. When I had taken good view of the place, and found it commodious for many purpoles; then in the presence of Captaine Fisher, divers Gentlemen, and others of my company, and of the Indians alio, I tooke possession of the Land, by Turfe and Twigge, in the behalfe of our Souereigne Lord King lames : I tooke the faid possession of a part, in name of the whole Continent of Guiana, lying betwirt the Rivers of Amazones, and Orenoque, not beeing actually possessed, and inhabited by any other Christian Prince or State; wherewith the Indians 20 feemed to be well content and pleafed.

In like manner my Brother Captaine Michael Harecours, and Captaine Harney, (whom I left as his affociate, and he efteemed as an inward friend) in a notable journey, which (to their great honour) they performed, to discouer the River of Arrawary, and the Countrey bordering vpon it, The like pof- (neere adjoyning to the River of Amazones) did take the like possession of the Land there to his

The dangers and great difficulties which they in that attempt incountred, were memorable, festion taken Maiefties vie. at Arrawar7.

Policilion taken for the

and fuch, as hardly any of our Nationin fuch small Canoes (being onely some-what longer, but not fo broad as our Thames Wherries, and flat-bottomed) euer ouercame the like. First the numher of their owne attendants besides themselues, was onely one man, and a Boy: Their troope 23 of Indians fixtie persons. Their journey by Sea vnto the River of Arrawary was neere one hundred leagues : wherein (by the way) they met with many dreadfull plunges, by reason of a high going Sea, which breaketh upon the flats and shoalds; especially, at the next great Cape to the North of Arraway, which, in refpect of the danger they paffed there, they named Point Perillow. Then their Difcouery vp the River, was fiftie leagues more : where they found a Nation of Indians, which never had feene white men, or Christians before, and could not be drawne to any familiar commerce, or conversation, no not so much as with our Indians, because they were strangers to them, and of another Nation. The Discouery of this River is of great importance, and speciall note, affoording an entrance more behouefull for the searching and Discouery of the Inland parts of Guiana, then any other River yet knowne vpon the Coast; for trending Westward 40 vp into the Land, it discouereth all the Countreyes and Nations to the Southward of Arrican, Coofbebery, Morrownia, and Norrack, which I have mentioned before.

eie in che Countrey.

Many weekes they spent in this Aduenture, still taking up their Lodgings in the Woods at night. Provision of meate they wanted not, for fish were euer plenty, and at hand : and the Woods yeelded either Deere, Tigres, or Fowle : their greatest want was of bread and drinke, which onely defect did hinder (at that time) the accomplishment of that Discouery. For when the Indians perceived their bread tobe neere spent, and their drinke to be corrupted, they could not be perswaded to proceed, having no meanes to supply their wants amongst the Arrawaries, the Indians of that River who would not freely trade with them upon this first acquaintance, but alwayes flood upon their guard, on the other fide of the River, where they inhabited : yet 50 defiring to obtaine fome of our English commodities, and make triall of our Indians friendship, affoorded some small Trade for their present reliefe during their abode in that River: So that of force they were constrained to breake off their Discouerie, and hasten homeward.

But here their dangers ended not, for as they returned, arriving at certaine Ilands called Carripoory, and passing betweene them and the mayne Land, much against the wils of all the Indians, who knowing the danger of the place, and more respecting their safetie, then their owne (being themselves all expert Swimmers) would have distanded them from that hazard: but they being ignorant of the perill, would needs passe on , and at the last met with such a Boore (35 the Seamen terme it) and violent encounter of two tydes comming in, which like two furious inraged Rammes, or Bulles rushed together, and oft retired backe, to returne againe, with greater vio-fo lence, vntill the one by force had ouer-borne the other: that if next under God) the diligent care and paines of the Indians had not preserved them, they had been there destroyed, and swallowed up by that mercilelle Boore or breach of waters; which (God be thanked) they escaped, and returned home in fafetie.

When I had (as before) taken possedion at Gomeribo, in presence of the faid parties, I deliue- Gomeribo delired the politifion of that Mountaine to my Indian Anthony Canabre, To have, hold, poffife, and ucced to an enjoy the same, to him, and to his Herres for euer, of our Souereigne Lord King lames, his Heites Indian as the and Successors, as his Subject; Teelding and paying yeerely the tenth part of all Tabacco, Cotton- Kings tenant. wooll, Annoto, and other commodities what loeuer, which should hereafter be either planted or growing within the faid Mountaine, if it were demanded. The Indian most gladly received the polletion upon these conditions, and for himselfe, and his postericie, did promise to bee true Subjects vitto the Kings Majestie: his Heires, and Successours: And to pay the duties imposed youn them; and to that bufinelle being finished, I returned agains to Wispeco.

Now (most worthy Prince) there came vnto my knowledge, an inconvenience happened by the carelette negligence of the Matter of my thip, who had the charge of prouiding and laying in The only the prouitions and victuals for the Voyage, which was the cause that I gained no present wost cause of losse by it, but left off all my Difcoueries in the first beginning. I had a purpole at that time to per- by the royage. forme a bulinesse, which might have proved profitable, and honourable vinto vs, if I had beene able to have stayed the time, but it was not my chance to bee so fortunate; for the Master, his Mates, and the Steward of my Ship, came vnto me, and told mee plainly, that if I made any longer abode in that Countrey, I would never in those ships returne into England : or if I did aduenture it, my felfe, and all my Company would starue at Sea for want of Beere . Syder, and Water, for all my Caske was spoyled, because it was not Iron-bound; the woodden hoopes flew 20 off, by reason of the heate of the Climate; and our Beere, and Syder, (whereof wee had good ftore) did leake about the ship, that we could hardly saue sufficient to releeue vs, if wee made a longer flay vpou the Coast; which was the Malters fault, having had a speciall charge to be care-full of that onely point. By this default, I was constrained to make a vertue of necessitie, and prepare my selfe for England, and leave my former purposes to be accomplished hereafter, which shall be done (God aiding me) in time convenient. Then disposing of my company, I appointed my Brother Captaine Michael Harecourt to Cap, Michael remayne in the Countrey, as chiefe Commander in my absence, and to continue the possession on Hauceurs leit the Kings behalfe; I gaue him directions to travell abroad, as (occasion ferued) to discouer the Commander Countrey, to spend sometime at Coofbebery, and sometime also in other places; but to make his of the compa-30 chiefest residence at Wiapoco, (the onely Rendeuouz for shippes that trade vpon that Coast) and there to plant good store of Maix, for our releife of bread and drinke, which is the chiefest thing to be respected in those parts; for other victuals wee need not take much care being alwayes eafily prouided. He performed his charge with great reputation, discouered many goodly Prouin- Possession ces, and spacious Countreyes; and worthily continued the possition full three yeares compleate. continued 3. Left with him for his affiltance, Captaine Harney, who hath nobly vowed his time and fortune yeeres. to be employed in the profecution of this honourable action. For his Lieutenant I appointed Twentiemen in the mouth of the River Course : which hath a narrow deepe entrance, and within affoordeth

Barre, the Channell is three, foure, fiue, and fixe fathome deepe. Fine leagues within the river and stayed at a Towne called Cormynay on the right hand, at the house of Minapa, the chiefe Charib of that Signiorie) to pounde two Canoes to profecute our journey for the Discouerie of 50 2 good Harbour, which may in time to come (for fome speciall purpose) be of great vie.

40 from Wiapoco, and the day following arrived at Caime.

Mafter Edward Gifford, a valiant and worthy Gentleman; and Heft also with him of Gentle- lett with Capmen and others, about twentie more, with all such necessaries as I could spare, and thought con- taine Harcoar; uenient for them : and so commending them to God, the eighteenth day of August I departed at Wiapeco.

At my comming to Caime my Pinnaffe received a leake, which would have proved dangerous, if we had beene farre at Sea; whereby enforced to attend the flopping thereof, and new trime The Pinnaffe ming of the Pinnaffe; and vnwilling to be idle in the meane space doing nothing. Heft my ships leake at Chiang there to repaire theire defects, and in my ship-boate departed thence, the twentie three of August: taking with me Captaine Fifter, who hath ever beene (since we first crept into the work.) my chiefe companion, both in Armes and travels; I tooke allo with mee his Brother Unton Fin fber, Maker Cradle the Mailers mate of my ship, and about fixe more. I followed the Coast to R. Macconid. the Westward steering during West, and passing by the Ruer of Meccooria, I lodged that night R. Courres.

The next day, and the night following I proceeded Westward with full faile, and passing the Rivers of Manmanury, Smammara, Oorassovini, Coonannonia, Vracco, and Amanna; I arrived the Rivers to the ewentie fine day at the Riner of Marrawin, which openeth a faire Riner, but is shoale woon the Barre, which lieth two or three leagues off at Sea , having but two fathome water : within the

we passed by certaine Hands called Curewapory, not inhabited, for at the rising of the waters they Hands called are alwayes ouer-flowne, of which fore the Rouer hath very many : we lodged that night a lit- Curempery.

tle beyond these first Ilands at a Village called Moyemon, on the left hand, the Captaine thereof is called Maperitate, of the Nation of the Paragotos, a man very louing and faithull to our Nation 60 on, whereof we have had good proofe. The next day wee proceeded up the River three leagues, on of their

People having people (as Comarian reporterh) there is an Idoll of flone, which they worthip as their God: they have placed it in a house made of purpose for the greater honour of it, which they keepe very great eares; have placed it in a house made of purpose for the greater honour of it, which they keepe very pulpass these cleane and handsome. This Idoll is fashioned like a man sitting vpon his heeles, holding open eares are made his knees, and refting his elbowes voon them, holding vp his hands with the palmes forwards, large by art, as locking vpwards, and gaping with his mouth wide open. The meaning of this proportion hee divers Eaft incould dot declare, although he hath beene many times amongst them, and hath often seene it. The proportie What other Nations were beyond these he did not know, having neuer travelled to farre. but he faith, they be Charibes, and also enemies vnto them. It seemeth there bee many Nations of thole great eared people : for in the River of Marrawini, I heard also the like , who dwell farre vp towards the high Land, as hereafter you shall heare, and I suppose, by the trending of the Riners of Wiapoco, and Marrawini, are all one people.

Vpon the fourteenth day of August I went vnto a Mountaine, called Gomeribo, beeing the vetermost point of Land to the North-ward in the Bay of Wiapoco; I found the foile of it most excellent for Tabacco, Maix, Cotton-trees, Annoto-trees, Vines, and for any other thing that should bee planted there. When I had taken good view of the place, and found it commodious for many purpoles; then in the presence of Captaine Fifter, divers Gentlemen, and others of my company, and of the Indians also, I tooke possession of the Land, by Turfe and Twigge, in the behalfe of our Souereigne Lord King lames : I tooke the faid postession of a part, in name of the whole Continent of Guiana, lying betwirt the Rivers of Amazones, and Orenoque, not beeing actually possessed, and inhabited by any other Christian Prince or State; wherewith the Indians 20 feemed to be well content and pleafed.

In like manner my Brother Captaine Michael Harecourt, and Captaine Harney, (whom I left as his affociate, and he effeemed as an inward friend) in a notable journey, which (to their great honour) they performed, to discouer the River of Arrawary, and the Countrey bordering upon it, The like pof- (neere adioyning to the River of Amazones) did take the like possession of the Land there to his

The dangers and great difficulties which they in that attempt incountred, were memorable,

festion taken Maiefties vie. as Arrawan.

ken for the

and fuch, as hardly any of our Nationin fuch small Canoes (being onely some-what longer, but not to broad as our Thomes Wherries, and flat-bottomed) ever overcame the like. First the numher of their owne attendants besides themselues, was onely one man, and a Boy: Their troope 20 of Indians fixtie persons. Their journey by Sea vnto the River of Arrawary was neere one hundred leagues; wherein (by the way) they met with many dreadfull plunges, by reafon of a high going Sea, which breaketh youn the flats and shoalds; especially, at the next great Cape to the North of Arraway, which, in respect of the danger they pasted there, they named Point Perillow. Then their Discouery up the River, was fiftie leagues more : where they found a Nation of Indians, which neuer had feene white men, or Christians before, and could not be drawne to any familiar commerce, or conversation, no not so much as with our Indians, because they were strangers to them, and of another Nation. The Discouery of this River is of great importance, and speciall note, affoording an entrance more behouefull for the searching and Discouery of the Inland parts of Guiana, then any other River yet knowne vpon the Coast; for trending Westward 40 up into the Land, it discouereth all the Countreyes and Nations to the Southward of Arricary, Coofbebery, Morrownia, and Norrack, which I have mentioned before.

Many weekes they spent in this Aduenture, still taking up their Lodgings in the Woods at night. Prouision of meate they wanted not, for fish were euer plenty, and at hand : and the Woods yeelded either Deere, Tigres, or Fowle: their greatest want was of bread and drinke, which onely defect did hinder (at that time) the accomplishment of that Discouery. For when the Indians perceived their bread tobe neere spent, and their drinke to be corrupted, they could not be perswaded to proceed, having no meanes to supply their wants amongst the Arrawaries, the Indians of that River who would not freely trade with them upon this first acquaintance, but alwayes flood vpon their guard, on the other fide of the River, where they inhabited : yet 50 defiring to obtaine some of our English commodities, and make trial of our Indians friendship, affoorded some small Trade for their present reliefe during their abode in that River : So that of force they were constrained to breake off their Discouerie, and hasten homeward.

But here their dangers ended not, for as they returned, arriving at certaine llands called Carripoory, and paffing betweene them and the mayne Land, much against the wils of all the Indians, who knowing the danger of the place, and more respecting their safetie, then their owne (being themselves all expert Swimmers) would have distinated them from that hazard: but they being ignorant of the perill, would needs paffe on , and at the last met with such a Boore (15 the Seamen terme it) and violent encounter of two tydes comming in, which like two furious inraged Rammes, or Bulles rushed together, and oft retired backe, to returne againe, with greater vio- fo lence, vntill the one by force had over-borne the other: that if next vnder God) the diligent care and paines of the Indians had not preserved them, they had been there destroyed, and swallowed vp by that mercilelle Boore or breach of waters; which (God be thanked) they escaped, and returned home in fafetie.

CH AP. 16, Indians at Gomeribo the King of Englands tenants.

When I had (as before) taken possedion at Gomeribo, in presence of the faid parties, I deliue-Gomeribo delired the policifion of that Mountaine to my Indian Anthony Canabre, To have, hold, possesse, and uccedes an enior the fame, to him, and to his Heires for euer, of our Souereigne Lord King lames, his Heires Indian as the and Successors, as his subject; Teelding and paying yeerely the tench part of all Tabacco, Cotton. Kings tenaph wooll. Annoto, and other commodities what joeuer, which should hereafter be either planted or growing within the faid Mountaine, if it were demanded, The Indian most gladly received the polletion voon these conditions, and for himselfe, and his posteritie, did promise to bee true Subjects vinto the Kings Maiestie: his Heires, and Successours: And to pay the duties imposed ypon them ; and to that bufineffe being finished, I returned agains to Wiapoco.

Now (most worthy Prince) there came vnto my knowledge, an inconvenience happened by the carelesse negligence of the Master of my ship, who had the charge of providing and laying in The only the prouitions and victuals for the Voyage, which was the cause that I gained no present profit cause of losse by it, but left off all my Discoueries in the first beginning. I had a purpose at that time to per- by the voyage. forme a bulinesse, which might have proved profitable, and honourable vinto vs, if I had beene able to have flaved the time, but it was not my chance to bee fo fortunate; for the Maffer, his Mates, and the Steward of my Ship, came vnto me, and told mee plainly, that if I made any longer abode in that Countrey, I would never in those ships returne into England : or if I did aduenture it, my felfe, and all my Company would starue at Sea for want of Beere , Syder, and

Water, for all my Caske was ipoyled, because it was not Iron-bound; the woodden hoones flew 20 off, by reason of the heate of the Climate; and our Beere, and Syder, (whereof wee had good ftore) did leake about the ship, that we could hardly saue sufficient to releeue vs , if wee made a longer flay voou the Coast; which was the Masters fault, having had a special charge to be carefull of that onely point. By this default, I was conftrained to make a vertue of necessitie, and prepare my felfe for England, and leave my former purpofes to be accomplished hereafter, which shall be done (God aiding me) in time convenient.

Then disposing of my company, I appointed my Brother Captaine Michael Harecourt to Cap, Michael remayne in the Countrey, as chiefe Commander in my absence, and to continue the possession on Haracure leit the Kings behalfe; I gaue him directions to travell abroad, as (occasion ferued) to discover the Commander Countrey, to spend sometime at Coolbebery, and sometime allo in other places; but to make his of the compaso chiefest residence at Wiapoco, (the onely Rendeuouz for shippes that trade vpon that Coait) and there to plant good store of Maix, for our releife of bread and drinke, which is the chiefest thing to be respected in those parts; for other victuals wee need not take much care being alwayes eafily prouided. He performed his charge with great reputation, discouered many goodly Prouin- Possession ces, and spacious Countreyes; and worthily continued the post fion full three yeeres compleate. continued 3. Left with him for his affiltance, Captaine Harney, who hath nobly vowed his time and fortune yeeres. to be employed in the profecution of this honourable action. For his Lieutenant I appointed Twentie men Mafter Edward Gifford, a valiant and wor by Gentleman; and Heft also with him of Gentle- lett with Capmen and others, about twentie more, with all such necessaries as I could spare, and thought conuenient for them : and fo commending them to God, the eighteenth day of August I departed at "iapecs. no from Wispoco, and the day following arrived at Caime.

At my comming to Caises my Pinnaffe received a leake, which would have proved dangerous, if we had beene farre at Sea; whereby enforced to attend the stopping thereof, and new trim- The Pinnosse ming of the Pinnaffe; and vinwilling to be idle in the meane space doing nothing, I left my ships leake at Chiage there to repaire theire defects, and in my thip-boate departed thence, the twentie three of Auguft : taking with me Captaine Fifber, who hath euer beene (fince we first creptinto the world) my chiefe companion, both in Armes and trauels; I tooke also with mee his Brother Unton Fifber, Mafter Cradle the Maiters mate of my ship, and about fixe more. I followed the Coast to R. Microbid. the Westward steering during West, and passing by the Ruer of Mescooria, I lodged that night R. Courres. in the mouth of the River Course : which hath a narrow deepe entrance, and within affoordeth 50 a good Harbour, which may in time to come (for some special purpose) be of great vie.

The next day, and the night following I proceeded Weltward with full faile, and paffing the Rivers of Manmanury, Smammara, Oorassowini, Coonannonia, Vracco, and Amanna; I arrived the Rivers to the twentie fine day at the Riner of Marrawen, which openeth a faire Riner, but is shoale vpon the Barre, which lieth two or three leagues off at Sea , having but two fathome water : within the Barre, the Channell is three, foure, fine, and fixe fathome deepe. Fine leagues within the river we passed by certaine Hands called Curewapory, not inhabited, for at the rising of the waters they Hands called are alwayes ouer-flowne, of which fore the Ruer hath very many : we lodged that night a lit- carement, tle beyond these first slands at a Village called Mojemon, on the left hand, the Captaine thereof is called Maperitates, of the Nation of the Paragotes, a man very louing and faithuil to our Nation 600n, whereof we have had good proofe. The next day wee proceeded up the River three leagues, and stayed at a Towne called Coenynay on the right hand, at the house of Minapa, the chiefe Charib of that Signiorie) to pourde two Canoes to profecute our journey for the Difcouerie of 1.day, 2. meeke.

Trees which had the fenfe of feeling: Thefe grow both in the

Vignit 2 Towncof 20. houses. left at Wiawia,

M. Filber tra. like Buffe.

The twentie eight day we went forward paffing many Villages any Townes, which I for-They proceed in discourty of beare to name, and having gone about twentie leagues from the Sea, wee found the River in a manner barred vp with Rockes, ouer which the water falleth with great violence, yet not with-The River full standing weadventured to proceed, and the further wee went, the more dangerous wee found the over fals, and more in number; but when wee had passed the first Mountaine, towards the high Countries of Guiana, called Sapparon, and discouered farre off before vs other high Moun-They went fixe taines called Matawere Monpanana, and had proceeded fixe dayes journey up the River (which daies journey was more then fortie leagues) we met with fuch shoale rockie streams, and great ouer-fals, that vp the River, there to our griefe our journey ended.

Being thus for that time debarred from our intended Difcourrie, we prepared our felues with to patience to returne towards our ships, and the third day of September we turned downe the Riuer. shooting the over-fals with more celeritie then when we came up, difpatching three dayes journey in one, and the fifth day returned fate to Mojemon; but before I departed thence, Captaine Fifter told me of certaine Plants which her had then found, much like vnto Rofe-trees. growing about halfe a yard in height, whereof (for the strangenesse of them) I cannot forbeare to adde a word or two.

These Plants or little trees had affuredly the sence of feeling, as plainly appeared by touching them : for if you did but touch a leafe of the tree with your finger, that leafe would prefently fhrinke, and close up it felfe, and hang downe as if it were dead; and if you did out off a leafe with a paire of Cizzers, then all the other leaves growing upon the fame tree would instantly 10 Fast indies & shrinke and close up themselves, and hang downe as if they were dead and withered, and within in Guinne. See halfe a quarter of an houre, would by degrees open themselues againe, and flourish as before; and 10. Gom, 10.1. dig. as often as you did either touch or cut off any of them, they would doe the like; which dideuidently they a reftriction of the Spirits, inuncibly arguing a Senfe. Howfoeuer this may feeme strange and incredible to your Highnesse, and to them that have not seene it, yet toralmuch as Scaliger Evercit. Scaliger, and Bartas make mention of the like, I dare be bold to affirme it vpon my credit, having feene and shewed it to fortie others : I gathered two of the Plants, and did fet them in pots in their owne earth, and carried them abourd my ship, where I kept them fairely growing almost a fortnight, untill they were destroyed by certaine Monkeyes that brake loofe, and pulled them in pieces : which might have beene prevented, but that I was conftrained to fet them in the o- 20 pen aire, the better to preferue them.

The feuenth day, I went to Wiania, a great Towne of Paragetos, and Taios, four leagues to the West of Marrawini, whereof Maperitaka aboue mentioned, and Arapawaka, are chiefe Captaines, At this Towne I left my Coulin Viton Fifter, and Humfrey (routon an Apothecary, M.V. nton Fifter to beare him company, and one feruant to attend him called Christopher Fifter, having first taken and two others order with Mapernaka for their diet, and other necessaries both for travell, and other wile: who euer fince (according to his promife) hath performed the part of an honest man, and faith-

I gaue directions to my Coulin Fifter to profecute the Discouerie of Marrawini, and the inland parts bordering voon it, when the time of the yeere, and the waters better ferued; and if it 40 were possible to goe vp into the high Countrey of Guiana, and to finde out the Citie of Manoa, mentioned by Sir Walter Raleigh in his Discouerie. He followed my directions to the vttermost of lus abilitie, being of a good wit, and very industrious, and enabled to vndergoe those imployments, by obtaining the love, and gaining the Languages of the people, without which helpes, there is little or no good to be done in those parts.

When the waters of Marrawini were rifen, and the River paffable, (much differing from the uelled cieuen Riuer of Wiapoco, which is not to be trauelled, but in the lowest waters.) Hee began his iourney tothe River of for the Discourrie thereof, in company of the Apothecarie, his servant Fifter, the Indian Mape-Morta,viz.100. ritake, and eighteene others, and proceeded eleuen dayes journey up the River, to a Towne of Charibes, called Tanpuramane, diffant from the Sea aboue an hundred leagues; but was foure The Province dayes journey fhort of Moreflego, which is also a Towne of Charibes, lituate upon the River fide of Marginegoro. in the Province of More/hegoro: the chiefe Captaine thereof is called Areminta: who is a proud rough skinnes and bold Indian, much feared of all those that dwell within his Territories, having a rough skin like vnto Buffe Leather, of which kind there be many in those parts; and I suppose proceedeth of some infirmitie of the bodie.

He understood by relation of the Indians of Taupuramune, and also of Areminta, that fix dayes iourney beyond Moresbego, there are divers mightie Nations of Indians, having holes through Divins mighty their Eares, Cheekes, Noftrils, and neather Lips, which were called Crameanna, Paumeeanna, Nations of In- Quikeanna, Peemattere, Aramceso, Acamreanno, Accoreo, Tareepeeanna, Corecorickado, Peeauncadissesting in the Coccasion, Informa, and Warensife: and were of thrength and stature farre exceeding other In- 69
Marraw in, towards the light, disses, having Bowes, and Arrowes foure times as bigge: what the Indians also report of the greatnesse of their eares, I forbeare to mention, vntill by experience wee shall discouer the truth thereof. Moreover, hee learned that there fall into Marrawini divers great Rivers, called

CHAP. 16 Danger of drowning, Punta de Galea, An excellent Bath at Meues. 1281

Arrenne, Topannamin, Errewin, Cowomma, Poorakette, Arroua, Arretemenne, Waonne, Anape, Rine: falling Againe, and Carapio: whereof forme he hath feene himfelfe, That it was twentie dayes journey, into Marran int from Tanpuramune, to the head of Marrawini, which is inhabited by Armaccai, Sappaios, Para- I wenue daies cotes, and some Taies: and that a dayes journey from thence to the Land-ward the Countrey is journey from phine, and Champian ground, with long graffe. Hee paffed in this iourney aboue eightie ouer. Tanjuran mee phine, and Champian ground, with long grane. Hee patted in this lourney about eight to the head of fals of water, and many of them very dangerous; of tome of them I had experience the yeere to the head of before. He proceeded no further at that preient, being unprouided for fo long a journey, support The Countries fing that it had beene neerer (then he found it) to the head of the River by a formights travell : above the and fo returned backe in fixe dayes space, intending better preparation for a second journey : but head of Mar, is 10 his purpole was preuented by an victimely death: for shortly after shee was drowned by mission. tune ; whereby we fee, that man determineth, but God difpofeth.

"He tenth day of September being Sunday, I left the maine of Guiana, and in my ship-boat Thetenth of THE tenth day of September being Sunday, I tere the mante of color or ride four e leagues from thore, September thood off into the Sea to feeke my thips, which were forced to ride four e leagues from thore, September though the thirty leit of a sea of the caff away by the thirty leit of a by reason of the shoales; but as we passed ouer them, we were in danger to bee cast away by the they let Guiabreach of a Sea, which verily had funke our Boat, if with great celeritie wee had not lightned they were in her, by he using ouer-boord many baskets of bread, of Cassan, Maix, Pinas, Platanas, Potatoes, and danger to be fuch like prouision, wherewith our Boat was loden; by which means it pleased God to deliuer vs cast away. from pretent deltraction, and to bring vs fafe vnto our fhips.

30 When I came aboord, we weighed anchor, and steered away from the Iland of Trinidado, and when the eighteenth day in the morning, we arrived at Punta de Galea, where wee found three They finde a English hips at anchor, which was no small comfort vnto vs, confidering our great defects and English thips at wanes. One of thele shippes was called the Diana, belonging to Master Lat a Dutch Merchant Punta de Galeadwelling in London. The other two, the Penelope, and the Indenour, belonging to Matter Hall, 2 Merchant also of London. We stayed at this place fixe daies to mend our bad Caske, and to take fresh water : during which time I was kindly intreated, and feasted by the Merchants, and had supply of all such things as I stood in neede of; which courtese I requited in the best manner I could for the prefent.

Vpon Sunday the twentie foure of September we weighed anchor, fo likewife did the Diana 30 (the other two shippes beeing gone two or three daies before vs,) but the winde shifting to the North-east, inforced vs backe againe almost to the same place from whence wee departed. The ewenrie fine we weighed againe, and plied along the shoare towards Cape Brea, about three leagues. This Cape is fo called of the Pitch which is there gotten in the earth, whereof there is Pitch gotten fuch abundance, that all places on this fide of the World may bee flored therewith. It is a most which melterly excellent Pitch for trimming of thippes that paffe into their Regions and hot Countries, for it now the the melteth not with the Sunne, as other Pitch doth,

The twentie fixe day we flood along againe, the winde being still contrarie and variable, intermixt with many calmes, and to continued vntill the fecond of October, when we arrived at They arrive at Port de Hispania. Within two daies after our arrivall there, Don Sanches de Mendosa, the Te- Port de Hissaria 40 miente for that yeere, with certaine other Spaniards came abourd vs : wee gave them the besten- Don Sanches de tertainment that our meanes, the time, and place would affoord, and had much friendly confe- Mendofa comrence together. They told me, that they lately had a conflict with the Charibes, wherein they their ship, had loft feuen or eight of their men, and had many others hurt and wounded, whereof fome came tomy Chirargion to have their wounds dreffed during our abode there. And they plainly The Signified: confessed that they are very much molested by the Chariber; and knew not how by any meanes much mole-

50 for the paffages, called Les forot beccas de Drago, and difembogued about eight of the clocke

We staied at Porte de Hispania untill the seventh day, in hope to get some good Tobacco amonght the Spaniards, who daily fed vs with delaies and faire words, but in truth they had none good at that present for vs, which we perceiving, departed thence vpon the seventh day, about They depart

one of the clocke in the morning, leaving the other thips to attend their trade, and flood away from Trinidade

the fame morning. Then wee steered away for an Iland called Menes, and leauing the Ilands of Granado, Saint Vincent, Guadalupa, and Monferate, in our starboard side, wee arrived They arrives there the twelfth day, where we flopped to take in ballaft, and more water, for our thips were ment

In this Iland there is an hot Bath, which as well for the reports that I have heard, as also for An excellent that I have seene and found by experience, I doe hold for one of the best and most source gne in hot Bath at that one of the same persons now, or lately dwelt at Woolwich neere the River of Thames, by 60 whom the truth may be knowne, if any man defire to bee further fatisfied therein. As for my owne experience, although it was not much, yet the effects that I found it worke both in my felfe, and others of my company in two daies space, doe cause mee to conceive the best of it. For An extr. sine at my comming thither, I was grieuously vexed with an extreame cough, which I much feared cough cured would turne me to great harme, but by bathing in the Bath, and drinking of the water, I was by the Bath.

the World. I have heard that divers of our Nation have there beene cured of the Leprofie, and Mress, 1282 Departure from Meues by Faval, Arrivall at Crook-hauen in Ireland. LIB. VI.

burned with Guppowder. and by the Bath cured in Swellings in the legges cue red in a day. They depart

Faral.

They are driuen bya ftorme into Ireland

The number of those that speedily cured ; and euer fince that time, I haue found the flate of my body (I giue God thanken for it) farre exceeding what it was before, in strength and health. Moreover, one of my compa-A mans hand ny, named John Huntbatch (feruant to my brother) as he was making a fire, burned his hand with Gunpowder, and was in doubt thereby to loofe the vie of one or two of his fingers, which were fhrunke vp with the fire, but he went prefently to the Bath, and washed and bathed his hand a good space therein, which soopled his fingers in such manner, that with great ease he could fliand firetch them out, and the fire was fo washed out of his hand that within the space of twenty foure hours, by twice or thrice washing and bathing it, the forenesse thereof was cured onely the eye-fore for the time remained. Furthermore, two or three other of my company having fwellings in then legs, were by the Bath cured in a day.

Hence we departed the fixteenth day of October, in the afternoone, and leaving the Ilands of Saint Christopher, Saint Martin, and Anguilla on the Starboord fide , we diffembogued through the broken Ilands on the North fide of Anguilla vpon S. Lukes day, where I thinke neuer Eng. Libraran diffembogued before vs: for we found all our Sea-charts falle concerning that place, those broken llands being placed therein, to the Southward of Anguilla, betweene it and Saint Martime, and we found them icituate to the Northward thereof.

On the eleuenth day of Nouember wee had fight of Fayal, one of the Ilands of the Terceras which we left on our starboord side, and sleeted away for England, the winde continuing faire untill the twenty foure day, But then it changed, first to the East by North, and then to the East South-east, and became so violent and furious, that for three dayes space we were not able 30 to beare our faile, but did drine before the winde at the least three leagues, a watch out of our courfe : and the first land we made was Cape Cleere, in the South-west part of Ireland, where against our wils we arrived at Crooke Hanen the twenty nine of November.

During the time of my Voyage, we loft but one Land-man, who died in Guiana; and one Sailer, and an Indian Boy, who died at Sea in our returne : and during the space of these three yeares last past fince the voyage, of all the men which I left in the Countrey, being in number about thirty, there died but fix, whereof one was drowned, another was an old man of threefcore years of age, and another tooke his death by his owne diforder; the rest died of sicknesse, as pleased God the giver of life : for fuch small lose, his holy name be blessed now and ever.

The names of the Riners falling into the Sea from Amazones, to Dessequebe, and of the severall Nations inhabiting those Rivers.

CHAP, 17. Fish good flesh, Marwin with the adiacent Regions and Inhabitants, 1282

Finery house hath Cocks, Hennes, and Chickens, as in England; and the variety of fish is wonderfull, without compare; but the chiefelt comfort of our Country-men is this, that the Beaft called Mappary and the fish called the Sea-Cow (being severally as bigge as a Heiser of two years A beaff and a old, and of which kinde there are very many) are in eating to like vnto our English Beefe, that fift like Beefe old, and to white the can diffinguish them, and may as well as Beefe be salted, and kept for our pro-tision. There is also a Beast in colour like a Fawne, but fuller of white spots, in stature somewhate Mutton. leffe then a small Sheepe, and in tafte like Mutton, but is rather better meate : the Baremo is also of the same tafte. I have the Copie of Master Harcourt his Patent, and he published also certaine Articles for the Aduenturers, &c. which for breuity are omitted.

CHAP. XVII.

A Relation of the habitations and other Observations of the River of Marwin, * and the adjorning Regions.

Townes in the River of Marwin.

" I found this fairely written amongst M. Hak. papers, hur know nor who was the Nprimis, Marracommin a little Village so called where the Armaccas dwell. whose chiefe Captaine is Coretan, and is at the foot of the River of Marwin in a creake on the left hand going vp the River. Secondly, Ruffia a little Village fo called where likewise Armaccas dwell being likewise at the foote of the River on the right hand going up the River. Thirdly, Moryemon, a large Towne where are some twentie houses all builded very lately, inhabited by Paramagotos and Taios, whole chiefe Captaine is Maperitacea (being the Captaine with whom the Generall left vs. and with whom we continue) being on the left hand of the River. Fourthly, Kiamarie, a Towne inhabited by Careebees, almost right against Moyremon, whose Chiefetaine is-30 Fiftly, Tonorima, a little Village aboue Kiewary inhabited by Careebees, being on the same fide of the River, who be governed by the Captaine of Quuenow, Sixtly, Quuenou, a Towne fome quarter of a mile distant from Tonorima, inhabited by Careebees, whose Chiefetaine is Vcapea, havinga lame hand. Seventhly, Aronaita, a Towne situate on the same side of the River (whose inhabitants be Careebees but a good prettie way beyond, whose Chiefetaine is Seepanes Eightly, Co. murraty, a Towne fituate beyond Aronatta, on the other fide of the River, whose Inhabitants be Careebees, and Chiefetaine is Parapane. Ninthly, Pasim, a Towne situate beyond Commeratie on the same fide of the River whose Inhabitants bee Careeb, and Chiefetaine is Tanatmeya. Tenthly, Paramaree, a Towne fituate beyond Pasim on the other side of the River, inhabited by paramunns, whose Inhabitants be Careebees. Twelfthly, a daies journey from thence is another Towne called Moreefbeego, whose Inhabitants be Careebees. About some twentie daies journey beyond Moreesbeego is a Towne called Aretonenne, whose Inhabitants bee Careebees having vebeyond Coursespeege is a Lowin Called Section, rie long earcs hanging to their shoulders, and they are reported to beea very gentle and louing long earcs, perhaps made uing people. Some twentie daies farther is the head of the River Marwin, where dwell Paraby art, with wagatos, Arwascas, and Suppay, and after a daies journey in the Land, they report the way to hanging be very faire, and Champian ground with long graffe.

Careabees, whose Chiefetaine is Iuara. There is beyond Paramaree a lone house, beeing situate Eleuenthly, about some eleuen daies journey beyond the lone house there is a towne called Tan-

40 some dayes journey from Paramaree on the same side of the River being inhabited by Careebees.

Townes from the foot of Marwin on the Northfide along the Sea.

First, Equimibone, a Towne inhabited by Armaccas and Paramagotos. Secondly, Carcoofcom rooro, inhabited by Armaccas, whose Chiefetaine is Woaccome. Thirdly, Ampea inhabited by Armaccas. Fourthly, about fix mile within Land is Careebee, inhabited by Armaccas, whose Chiefetaine is Aramea, Fifely, Wia Wiam, about two miles from the Sea, a Towne inhabited by Taios, Parrawagotos and Arwaecas, whose Chiefetaine is Araponaca. Sixtly, Soorry Soorry, fome two mile directly farther toward the Sea fide, inhabited by Parawagotos , whose Chiefetaine is Resurrima. Seventhly, Amiebas, a little distant from Soory Soory, inhabited by Paramagotos. Eightly, Viegnano, some fixe mile beyond Sorry Soory, inhabited by Taos and Parawage. 60 tos. Ninthly, Vrarinno adiovning to Vicenano, inhabited by Armaccas and Paramagotos. Tenthly, Surarer a daies iourney beyond Wia Wiam vp into the Land inhabited by Armaccas. Eleventhly, Simarra, some fixe miles diffant from Wia Wiam, inhabited by Arwaccas, Twelfthly, Capri, a Towne adiopning to Simarra, inhabited by Armaccas. Thirteenthly, Consocre, a Town adiovning to Caure, inhabited by Paramagotos, and Armaccas.

weights thereon as is yied in the Eaft IB- Waters ouer-

To most of these places there can be no passage but by Canoas in the Winter being marsh-medowy grounds, overflowne with swelling Tides. But in the Summer it is faire, and then they hide their Canoas in the Woods by the Sea-fide.

Greve Bare Darke and

As for the River of Marwin, there are no other Rivers which fall into it : but there be many llands, and fome very great. The passage to the head thereof from the men with long eares is very dangerous, by realon of the paffage through hollow and concaue Rockes, wherein harbour Bat-mife of an voreatonable bigneffe , which with their clawes and wings doe wound the Palfengers shrewdly; yea, and oftentimes depriue them of life. During which paffage (which is dangerous paf- fome quarter of a mile, and very darke; for the Rockes are close aboue, and in fashion like an Indian house) they are inforced to make great fires in their Canoas, and put over their heads some of their Crab-baskets ro defend them from the force of their clawes and wings, and fo they fafe-

Stones arank parent, Sec A. Kninet.

Stanistide

There is a Chareebee (with whom I am very well acquainted) whole name is Caronree) who affured me of certaine transparent itones, both of a greene and red colour, which hee described by a greene eare-ring which I shewed him, affirming they were somewhat bigger, and that they lay in a little gutter at the head of the River, which ran in a Valley betweene two Hills. I was further informed by a Taio, an ancient man (who came downe from the head of the Ri-uer Selmama in a little Canoa, with foure other, and a boy; three of which were Armaccas, and one Taio, who was borne in Orenoz, , and as I judge, about the age of fourescore yeeres , or little leffe) who reported to mee, that hee was one of them which with Morequite and Patimay, was an at the killing of nine Spaniards , and a Spanis Pedas ; and how Morequito was put to death. and a greatmany of his Indians hanged : himselfe was taken prisoner, and pinched with Pinters for his punishment, and his eares nailed to wood, which I coniecture was a Pillourie. Besides. they rubbed his body ouer with falt mixt with Vrine, after they had pinched him, and fetche bloud, and after tyed him up in chaines. The reason why they put him not to death . was because hee had beene a great Traueller and knew the Countries well, and so they kept him for

It so chanced, that the Spaniards, upon his informing them of the Cassipagotos Countrie, and how rich they were, and how he would be their guide, went with fome companie to conquer it: the Captaine of the Spaniards was called Alexander, as he faith. But the Caffipagotes knowing 20 his crueltie, thought it better to fight it out, then trult to his clemency, and so overthrew him and his companie, driving them to their Canoas, in which fight he escaped: But yet afterward it was his milhap to be againe in the hands of his adversarie by the meanes of Caripana King of Emeria, and put in chaines, and handled cruelly. His body was besmeared, as he said, with a vellow stone; for so he called it, which I take to be Brimstone, and so set on fire on his body, and at Gazinles on after that he was well, and his skinne smooth and faire, they anointed him with honie from top the South Sea to toe, and fo scattered dust upon him, in which which were millions of Pismires, tying him in chaines to a great tree, where Muskitos flockt about him like moates in the Sunne, and did pitiin iron chains fully fling him, then which death had beene better, as hee faid. Within fome small space hee with another Tajo, and three Armaccas were choien to goe a fishing some two dayes journey AD whipped till from the Towne. Likewise there went as overseers over them foure Spaniards, three of which. athis flesh was while they were a fishing went into the Wood a fowling, and the fourth which was left for the raw, and to to operfeer by chance fell allegge, which they efpying, agreed to release themselves and to slip from the shoare with their Canoa, and went vp Selinama seuen dayes iourney within land from the head thereof to a Towne of the Armaccas, called Corropon, where he now dwellerh, whose death by Mus name is Weepaskea; and the chiefe Armacca which came with him is called Edaddeama, and the Captaine of Cooroopen is called Naushickeban. This Taio told mee of a Mountaine at the head Goldenhopes, of Difficebee which is called Oraddoo, where is a great Rocke of white Spar, which hath streams of Gold in it about the breadth of a Goose-quill ; and this he affirmeth very earnestly. Also he speaketh of a Plaine which is some seuen or eight dayes journey from the Mountaine where is 50 great store of Gold in graines so big as the top of a mans finger, and after the flouds be fallen they findethem, which Plaine is called Mumpara.

Further, he spake of a Valley not farre distant from thence, which is called Wancoobanona. which hath the like : and he faid, they gather them the space of two moneths together; which two moneths are prefently after the great raines which wash away the sand and gravell from the graffe which groweth in turfets, and then they may perceive the Gold lie gluttering on the ground. And of these they are very charie. And the Captaines and Priests or Peeas; doe charge the Indians very strictly, yea with punishment of the whip, that they be secret, and not reueale it to the Spaniard. But it feemeth they are willing the English should have it, or else bee would neuer have related fo much of the state of his Countrie.

He spake very much of Sit Walter Raleigh: he likewise knew Francis Sparrow, and the boy 60 which Sir Walter left behind him at Topiamary his house. He further faid, that Topiamary wondred that he heard not from Sir Walter, according to his promife: and how Topicsary did verily thinke, that the Spaniard had met with him, and so had slaine him. Further, her faith how To-piawary is dead, and how one Repenogegraps succeeded in his roome. Likewise he sayth Carpa-na the King of Emeria, who was very subject to the Spaniard, and did once betray him to the Snaniard, 15 now dead : at which he feemed not a little to resoyce; and how one Dothronias 15 in his place, and is a good King , holding Armes against the Spaniar I with the Cassipagotos, and and groung him many ouerthrowes, to that now hee hath cleare left Diffikeebee and not a Spaniard there. He likewile faid, how Topiamary had drawne in the Indians of Warmacheri, Amariocupana, Aromana, Wickery, and all the people that belonged to Wanuritane, Captaine of Canuria, and Wacariopea Captaine of Sayma against Sir Walter Raleigh his comming to have warred assauft the Teanderpuremei: And as yet Wanuritone and Wacartopea doe expect his comming. against the temperature of the two Nations of Timitimas, called Ciamona and Warawitty, Timitimas home to the two Nations of Timitimas, called Ciamona and Warawitty, feson nees

He addeth further, now he which the transfer on the top of trees. And now he faith the Spatos, who are forced in the flouds to build their houles on the top of trees. And now he faith the Spatos, miard hath for the most part destroyed them, keeping divers of them to make and mend his Canoas. Further hee knew Toparimacca, and fayth hee is yet living, and Captaine of Aramaca a Napor, who likewife doth expect Sir Walter his comming, and had drawne a companie of Indians for the aide and affiftance of Sir Walter. Likewife, how Patimay is yet living, and how the Spaniards have layd great waite for him, but could never finger him to bee revenged for his pare of killing the nine Spaniards. Further he addeth, how the Spaniards were killed at a Mountaine called Riconers in Patimays Countrie, and how Patimay expected long for Sir Walter Raleigh. Likewise he saith, how the Epouremei haue now two very faire Townes, one called Aruburgua-20 ry, and the other Corburrimore: and faith, they are not good people, yet they dare not warre with them. He further affirmeth of the men whole shoulders are higher then their heads , which Men with he called Wyweppanamy, and offereth to goe with me thither if I come up in their high Countrie house reprinted the foreign can be and bend their forces against the Spaniard. He this heads. further spake of a white, cleare, high and huge Rocke vnder a Mountaines side, which is called Cryst il Rock, Mattuick, that on a Sun-shine day if a man looked on it, it would dazle his eyes exceedingly. Hee shewed mee before his departure from me,a piece of metall fashioned like an Eagle, and as I ghelle, it was about the weight of eight or nine ounces troy weight, it feemed to be Gold or at leastwise two parts Gold and one Copper, I offered him an Axe, which he refused; to which I Images of added foure Kniues, but could not get it of him : but I imagine the Dateb at Selinama have gold,

20 bought it of him, for their only comming was for Axes, as he faid, hearing that the Dutch were at Selinama. I demanded where hee had that Eagle, his answere was, hee had it of his Vncle. who dwelt among the Weear sapoyns in the Countrie called Sherumerrimary neare the Callinger. tos Countrie where is great ftore of these Images. Further he faid, that at the head of Selinama and Marwin there were great itore of the halve Moones, which hee called by the name of Vinnaton. He likewise spake of a very taire and large Citie in Guiana, which hee called Monooan, Manooan great which I take to be that which Sir Walter calleth Manon, which standeth by a falt Lake which Citie in Guid, he called Parroowan Parrocare Monoan, in the Province of Afaccona the chiefe Captaine or A- na. carimannora, as he called him, was called Pepodallapa. He further faid, that after that a man is vp at the head of the River and some ten dayes sourney within the Land, every childe can tell of , the riches of Monooan. Further he addeth, how that once in enery third yeere all the Cassianes or Lords and Captaines some seuen dayes journey from Manooan doe come to a great drinking, which continueth for the space of ten dayes together, in which time they goe sometimes a fishing, fowling, and hunting, their fishing is in the salt Lake, where is abundance of Canoas, and thole very great. They have many fith-pooles of standing water, wherein they have aboundance of Fish. They have store of wilde Porkes and Deere, and other beasts, which are very good meate. Their Houses be made with many lotts and partitions in them. but not boorded, but with Houses with barres of wood, onely the lower floore on the ground is spread with clay very smooth, and with losts, fires hardned, as they doe their pots, then presently they build their houles, as is before fooken of. Allo he affirmerh, that within the Citie at the entring in of their houses they hang Carocore on the posts which I take to be Images of gold.

> Directions to the Towne of Cooropan from Marrawin.

Rom the head of Marrawin to Ithuerwa, a Chareeb Towne: from thence to Caperocca, a Charceb Towne: from thence to a Mountaine called Pagen: from thence to Una, a Mountaine : from thence to Tonwalprenay, a Charech Towne : from thence to Tetattecomogneto, a Chareeb Towne: from thence to Tunftoorito, a Chareeb Towne: from thence to Soynoon, a Paramag Towne: from thence to Craoroorere, a Suppay Towne: from thence to Macatana a Sup-

60 pay Towne: from thence to Pipicorwarra, a Mountaine: from thence to Shadden, an Armacca Towne: from thence to Lonnoo, an Armacca Towne: from thence to Horurra a Mountaine: from thence to Habittebin, a Plaine: from thence to Warocca, an Armac. Towne: from thence to Hardos an Armacca; and from thence to Coorepon, where he dwelleth, which he faith is but ten dayes iourney from the head of Marrawin.

000002

Directions

Spanish denises of torrures. Six Fr Drakes found a Negro Senced to be Sunne, to be Six W.Ral.

Directions from the head of Selinama to Cooropan, which is bus seuen dayes iourney.

Rom the head of Selinama to Kiarno a Chreek Towne: from thence to Pommaro a Chareek
Towne: from thence to Scooadoddepon an Armae Towne: from thence to Sickene a Mountame : from thence to Shuhurway an Armac Towne : from thence to Hadarinner a Suppar Towne: from thence to Weeatoopona, Armac: from thence to Ruttrahar, Armac: from thence to Caboretitte, Armac : from thence to Hecanamerre, Suppay: from thence to Wabeckeyamay, Arwas: from thence to Hanamob, Armae: from thence to Mustuggabee, a Mountaine; and fo to 10 Corropon, which is but feuen dayes journey from the head of Selmama.

He like wife faith it is but a moneths journey by land, from the head of Marranin to the head of Diffikeebee, and from the head of Diffikeebee to the head of Oreneg, a moneths travell.

Rivers from Brabific to the Amazones.

	RIVERS.	NATIONS.	ľ	Ecaurwa.	Charceb.
	Brabise.	Charcebees.	1	Camrooroo.	€barecb.
	Winniepa.	Chareebes.		Muccurrie.	Chareeb.	20,
	Arew.	Napoys.		Kiam,	Charech.
	Mannapoo.	Napoys.		Wia.	Chareeb.
	Muccauren.	not inhabited.		Kowo.	not inhabited.
	Morecoofe.	Napoys.	j·	Apoorwasca.	Charceb.
	Arawon.	not inhabited.	:	Wannase.	Taios.	30
	Orenoso.	Taios Arwac.		Wiapoce.	Taios.
	Emataccoo.	Charcebes.		Aroccona.	Arcecola.
	Eparramoo.	Charcebes.		Casippooroo.	Arcecoole.
	Aratooree.	Charcebes.	li	Connawin,	Taio.
	Amockeores.	Chareeb.	i.	Miocaree.	Areccool.
	Parcema.	Chareeb.		Demeerare.	Arwac.
	Wine.	Chareeb.		Miconine.	Arwac.
	Moroka.	Taios	ĺ	Wapary.	ATWAG.
	Paurooma.	Armaccas.		Manhica.	Arwac.
	Wacapwhou,	Armaccas.		Keribiffe.	Arwac.
ranches of ijfleebee	Diffikeebee.	Arwac.		Corctine.	Charech, Arm	2
	Contowinne.	Chareeb.		Encecare.	Chareeb.
	Matooronee.	Charceb.		Coopanomi.	Chareeb.
	Marrawin.	Para. Ta. Cha.		Soorammo.	Chareeb.
		& Arwa.		Surennamo, alias,		40
	Amanna.	Charceb.	Branches of Selinama	Selinama.	Charech.
	Vraco.	Arwac.		(Camouree, alias,	Charceb.
	Coonannoma.	Armac.		7 Commawin.
	Oorafframni.	not inhabited.		Arowaree.
	Sinomarra.	Chareeb.		Arapoco.
	Mannomanury.	Chareeb.		Amazone.

Topaniminni, a Branch of Marmin, at the head thereof going toward Oronog., in which dwell a wilde People called Frokere, which are fwife in running. The Chareebees with long cares are called Norraco. Ekimicke, a kinde of worme, which poi-

And thus much of Guianian affaires. Some other Voyages thither have beene at large published by by Sir W. R. and Master Keymis, recorded by Master Hakl. A later also with great noise, preparation and expectation bath happened, written alreadie in bloud; therefore, and for the latenelle needlelle and unworthie, that I fay not too difmall and fatall for our Relations.

CHAP. 60

CHAP. XVIII.

A Description and Discouery of the River of Amazons, by WILLIAM DAVIES Barber Surgeon of London.

He River of the Amazons lieth in the highest part of the West Indies, beyond the Diffing from He River of the Amazon Beth in the ingret part of the vertical conditions the Diffusion from Equinocità Lince, of all with this River forter leagues from Land you find have 8. England $6.00.

6. & 7. Lathomes water, & you thal fee the Sea change to a ruddie colour, the wa-leagues ter find, by their eignes you may run boldly in your courie, and come. This is a rate of the condition of the condit make Discouerie of the Trees before the Land, by reason the Land is very low, and not higher in said Daules of one place then another three foote, being at a Spring tide almost all ouerflowne, God knowes his milerable how many hundred leagues. It flowes much water there with a verie forcible tide. In this Ri- captinine; ner I continued tenne weekes, feeing the fashion of the people and Countriethere: This Countrie is altogether full of Woods, with all forts of wilde Beatls : as Lions Beares , Woolies, Leonards. Baboones, strange Boores, Apes, Monkeies, Martins, Sanguines, Marmofets, with diners other ftrange beatts : also these Woods are full of Wild-fowle of all forts, and Parrats 30 more plentifull then Pidgeons in England, and as good meate, for I haue often eaten of them. Also this Countrey is very full of Rivers, having a King ouer everie River. In this place is continuall Tempetts, as Lightning, Thunder, and Raine, and so excreame, that it continues most commonly tixteene or eighteene houres in foure and twentie. There are many standing waters in this Countrie, which bee full of Aligators, Guianes, with many other feuerall water Serpents, and great store of fresh fish, of strange fashions. This Countrie is full of Muskitas, which is a small Flie, which much offends a Stranger comming newly into the Countrie, The manner, fashion, and nature of the people is this: They are altogether naked, both men and women , having not fo much as one threed about them to couer any part of their nakednesse. the man taketh a round Cane as bigge as a pennie Candle, and two inches in length, through 30 the which hee puls the fore-skinne of his yard, tying the skinne with a piece of the rinde of a Tree about the bignesse of a small pack-threed, then making of it fast about his middle, hee continueth thus till hee haue occasion to vie him: In each Eare hee weareth a Reede or Cane. which hee bores through it, about the bignesse of a Swannes Quill, and in length halfe an inch. and the like through the multi of the lower hype: alloat the bridge of the Note he hangs in a Reede a finall gl.fie Beade or Button, which hanging duckly store his Mouth, files too and tro fills abee jeakes, wherein hee takes great pride amy, pleafore. Her wares his Haire and troining some peaker, wherein the case great pines are pleasure free waters in failing long, being councid below a time neather part of his fart, and our blact, or rather as I indiged pluckt bald on the cowne like a? rie? But their wongerye no falkion at all to fee forth them relues, but flarke niked at they were borne, with his large of their fleads, all of their Breatls 49 hang verie low, by rettly they are neuer laced or bracked up: they dire vie to anoint their Bodies, both Men and Women, which a kind of reddle Earth, she cause the Mushitas, or Fites shall

These people are veriesing enious, craftic, and treatherous, verie light of foot, and good Their people are veriengenous, critice, and trea, herous, verte light of toot; and good Bowemen, whole like I have neuerteene, for their object ordinately kill their owner food, as Beaths, Fowle, and Fulh, the manner of their Bow and Arrowes is this. The Bow is about two yards in length, the Arrow Gung food: His Bow is made of Braill-wood verte curious, his thing of the rinde of a Tree, lying-locker of the Bow, without any henr, his Arrow made of Reede, and the head of it is a find home a Freede she had of it is a find home a Freede she had of it is a find home a Freede she had of it is a find home a Freede she had of it is a find home a Freede she had of it is a find home a Freede she had of it is a find home a Freede she had of it is a find home a Freede she had of it is a find home a Freede she had of it is a find home a Freede she had on the home a Freede she had only the followes him like a Bloud-hound till he

50 fall, oftentimes feconding his shoot: then for any Fowle be he neuer so little, he neuer misses him: as for the first, hee walkes by the water fide, and when hee hath spied a fish in the water, hee prefently ftrikes him with his Arrow, and fuddenly throwing downe his Bow . hee leaves into the water, fwimming to his Arrow which hee drawes aland with the fifth fastened to it, then having each kild his owne food, as well fiesh, and fowle, as fish, they meete together, to the number of fiftie or fixtie in a company, then make a fire after this fashion : They take two stockes of Wood, rubbing one hard against another, till such time as they bee fired, then making of a great fire, every man is his owne Cooke to broile that which he hath gotten, and thus they feed without Bread or Salt, or any kind of drinke but Water and Tobacco, neither doe they know what it meanes : In these Countries we could find neither Gold nor Silver Oare, but great store

60 of Hennes. For I have bought a couple for a lewes Harpe, when they would refuse tenne shillings in money. This Countrie is full of delicious fruite, as Pines, Plantines, Guaues, and Potato Rootes, of which Fruits and Roots I would have bought a mans burthen for a glaife Button or Bead. The manner of their Lodging is this : they have a kinde of Net made of the rinde of a Tree which they call Hamac, being three fathome in length, and two in breadth, and gathered at both ends at length, then fastning either end to a Tree, to the full length about a yard and halfe from the ground, when hee hath defire to fleepe, hee creepes vnto it. The King of eueria River is knowne by this manner. He weares voon his head a Crowne of Parrats feathers, of fea uerall colours, having either about his middle, or about his Necke, a Chaine of Lions teeth or clawes, or of fome other strange beaft, having a woodden Sword in his hand, and hereby is he knowne to be the King : Oftentimes one King warres against another in their Canowes, which are Boars cut out of a whole Tree, fometimes taking one another, the Conquerours eates the Captines. By this time ten weekes were spent, and being homewards bound, but not the same way that we came, for we failed viito the River before the winde, because it blowes there continually one way, which forces all shippes that come thither to returne by a contrarie way.

20

The end of the fixth Booke.

VOY-

VOYAGES TO AND ABOVT THE SOVTHERNE

AMERICA, WITH MANY MARINE

OBSERVATIONS AND DISCOVR-SES OF THOSE SEAS AND LANDS. BY ENGLISHMEN AND OTHERS.

THE SEAVENTH BOOKE.

D Eader, I here present thee the exactest Treatise of Brasil which I have seem written by any man, Reader, I here present thee the exactest treatise of health which i make seeme written of non-man, effectally in the Historic of the multiplied and distributed Nations and customers of men; as also in 16 index the the natural Historic of Bealts, Serponts, Femles, Fifter, Trees, Plants, with dances other remarkeable to of the local distributed from the continue to the natural Historic of Bealts, Serponts, Femles, Fifter, Trees, Plants, with dances where remarkeable to of the local distributed from the continuence of the c toe manaras tripers of the feetings. It was written (it feetings) by a Portugall Frier (or Iefute) which had listed receips and me rarities of those Regions. It was written in seminary of a total properties Booke was taken by one Fran - name which its other parts, from whom (much against the will side written Booke was taken by one Fran - name which is the written by the seminary of ces Cooke of Dartmouth in a Vojage out ward bound; for Braid, An. 1601, who fold the same to Ma - w Enfinement ces Cookeef Datemouth in a Copage on man necessary in the straighted ont of Portugall into English . Chief a bene-fler Hicket for twenty billings 3 by whose procurement is was translated ont of Portugall into English . Chief a benewhich translation I have compared with the written Originall, and in many places supplied defetts, to have been amended errours, illustrated with notes, and thus singled and parnished to the publike varse. Great loss Authorofetis Trestic conference of the works, and it not a little of his name.", which I should as unlargely bease in served the ne bad to Anthor of the works, and it were a united from name , which is great and admirable worker of the Creator are but the name to as worthy much become you use unaufries, by writer he great and assurance works; of the Urtain site but the same Induktivents; the which least new invested morning of his insightle power, and manifold wrifedome. Site of discussions were not not not in the contract of the protection of the Contract of better knowledge both of the civill-uncivill dealings of the Portugals with the Indians; and of the under personal descriptions of the contraction christian christianitie in their owne practise and connersion of the Indians, and that by lesnitical testi- fact-wastactos monie. I may well adde this lesuite to the English Voyages, as being an English prize and captine.

CHAP. T.

A Treatise of Brasil, written by a Portugall which bad long lined there.

ð. I.

Of the beginning and original of the Indians of Brasil, and of their Customes, Religions, and Ceremonies.

C H A P.I. S.I.

I seemeth that this people hath no knowledge of the beginning and creation of the world, but of the deluge it seemeth they This opinion haue some notice : but as they haue no writings nor characters of a Boud. fuch notice is obscure and confused; for they fay that the waters drowned all men , and that one onely escaped spon a language with a filter of his that was with childe, and that from thefet wo they have their beginning, and from thence began their multiplying and increase.

This people hath not any knowledge of their Creator, nor have or the of any thing of heaven, nor if there be any paine nor glory after Creator, and this life, therefore they have no oderation nor ceremonies, nor of the Soule, duine worthip, but they know that they have foules, and that they dye not; and they fay that Paradife, Dir

the foules are connerted into divels, and that after their death they goe to certaine fields where are many figge trees along by a faire River, and all together doe nothing but daunce. This is the cause why they are greatly afraid of the Diuell, whom they call Curupira, Taguain, Pigtangra, Mache chera. Anhanga: and their ferre of him is to great, that onely with the imagination of him they dye as many ti nesalready it hath happened: they worthip it not, nor any other creature, neither have they Idols of any fort, onely fome old men doe fay that in fome waies they have cer-Divelefeare, taine Posts where they offer him tome things, for the feare they have of them, and because they wou'd not die Sometimes the Diuels appeare vnto them, though very feldome, and among them

Caroibasing-

Thy vie forme witchcrafts, and there are some Witches, not because they believe in them, or 10 doe worthin them, but onely they give themselves to the Compar in their ticknesses, seeming to them that they receited their health, but not because they doe think they have any diginity, and they do it rather to receive health, then for any other respect. There arise sometimes among them fome Witches, whom they call Caraiba, and most commonly it is some Indian of a bad life; this doth some witchcrafts and strange things to nature, as to show that he raiseth some to life, that makes himfelte dead, and with thefe and other like things he carrieth all the Countrie after him. decenting and faying to them that they shall not cultimite, nor plant their Pulfe and their proujfion, neither digge nor labour, &c. for with his comming the time is come that the Mattockes themiclues shall digge of their owne accord, and the Beasts goe to the fields and bring the prowithon, and with thete fallhoods he leades them fo deluded and inchanted, that not looking to their lives, and to get their foode, they die for hunger, and their companies are diminished by livand little till the Caraiba remaineth alone, or is murthered by them.

name of God.

They have no proper name to expresse God, but they say the Tapan is the thunder and lightning and that this is he that gave them the Mattocks and the foode, and because they have no other name more naturall and proper, they call God Tapan. There are mariages among them, but there is a great doubt whether they be true, as well because they have many wives, as for the easie for laking them for what locuer quarrell, anger, or any other diffrace hapning among them; but either true or not, among them they were made in dowries to the fort. No yong mandid wie to marrie before he had taken an emenie, and he continued a the industries or to the fors, virgin till be took eard flow him, holding first his featts for the space of two or three yeares, the but they form woman in like fort did not marrie nor know man, till she had her tearmes, after the which they made her great teafts; at the time of the deliverie of the woman they made great drinkings. And the realt being ended, the marriage remained perfect giving a net cleane washt; and after they were laid, the father tooke a wedge of flone and did cut vpon a post or stake, then they fav hee did cut the tailes from the grandchildren, and therefore they were borne without them, and after they were married they began to drinke, for vnrill then their fathers did not fuffer them. teaching them that they should drinke heedefully, and should be considerate and wife in their speaking, that the wine might doe them no hurt, and that they should not speake bad things, and then with a vessell the old ancient men did give him the first wipe, and hold his head with their hands that he might not vomit, for if he doth vomit they hold to themselves that he would This people eateth at all times by night and by day, and euerie houre and moment, and when

Ofthe Ma.i-They give no in law.

Tailes.

Drinking*

Of the manner th.ir cating and drinking.

presently they eate all that they have, and decide among their friends, in fort that of one fish hat they have they divide it to all, and they hold for a great honour and gallantrie to be libe-Liberality, and rall, and thereby they get great fame and honour : and they hold for the greatest iniurie that they can doe them, to hold them for niggards, or call them for and when they have nothing niggardiie. to eate, they are very patient in hunger and thirft. They have no fielh or filh daies, they eate all manner of fielh, even of vicleane creatures, as Snakes, Toades, Rats, and fuch like wormes; they este also all manner of Fruites, saving somethat are poisonous. This sustenance is ordinarily of that which the Countrie yeeldeth without husbandrie, as wilde fowle, flesh and fruites. Their diet. but they have a certaine kinde of foode of a good fubstance, and healthfull, and many other pulfes, whereof hereafter shall mention be made. Ordinarily they drinke not while they cate, but after meate they drinke water or wine which they make of many kindes of fruites, and rootes, as hereafter shall be faid, of the which they drinke without measure or order, even sill they have any meate they keepe it no long time for they have no providence for the future, but

Drinking.

They have some particular daies wherein they make great feasts, and all ends in thrinking, and Feafle. they last two or three daies, in the which they eate not but onely drinke, and there be men that emptie a whole great veffell of wine. That thefe drinkings may be more festivall, some goe about finging from house to house, calling and inuiting all they finde for to drinke and be merne. 60 Thefedancings last with mulicke all the time of the drinking, in the which they sleepe not, but Daune:s passe it all in drinking, and when they are drunke they play many disorders, and they breake one anothers head, and take other mens wives, &c. They give no thankes before nor after meate Rudeneffe. to God, nor wash their hands before meate, and after meate they wipe them at their haire, on their body, or a poste. They have no towels nor tables, they eate fitting, or lying in their nets, or cowring on the ground : they eate their mease throwing it with their band into the mouth; and Lomit many other particularities that they have in their eating and drinking, because these are

All this people have for their beds certaine nets made of Cotten wooll, and they fleepe in Oithe mana

them hanging in the ayre. These they make some wrought, others of fundry colours and as they have in their remaine in the ayre, and have no other covering or cloathes alwaies in fummer and winter, they fleeping. have fire youler them; they rate not very early, and goe to bed by times, and in the mornings there is one chiefe man in their houses, " that lying in his net doth preach vito them for the " One House of pace of an houre, how they are to goe to labour as their forefathers did, and he appointed them contained the time, telling them what they are to doe; and after he is vp continueth his preaching, running many Fami-

through the Towne. They tooke this custome from a bird which is like a Hawke, which singeth in the morning, and they call it the King and Lord of the other Birds; and they fay that even as that Bird doth ling in the mornings to be heard of the reft, to the principall should make those preachings and speeches to be heard of theirs.

All of them goe naked as well men as women, and have no kinde of apparnll, and are nothing. Nakedneffe. afhined: rather it feem th that they are in the flate of innocencie touching this behalfe by the great honestic and modestic they loe keepe among themselves; and when any man speaketh Modeffy. with a woman, he turneth his backe to her. But to make themselves gallant they vie divers in- Painting. 20 yentions, painting their bodies with the juice of a certaine fruite wherewith they remaine black.

making in their bodies many white stroakes, after the fashion of round hose, and other kinde of Galantry garmines. They enplume themselues also, making Diadems and Bracelets, and other very fine indentions, they esteem every much all manner of fine Feathers: they let no haire grow in the parts of their body, but they pull them out, onely the head excepted, which they cut in many fashions, for some weare them long with a halfe Moone shauen before, and they lay they tooke Nearnesse. this ye from Saint Thomas, and it feemeth that they had fome notice of him, though confusedly: others make certaine kinde of crownes and circles that they feeme Friers: the women all doe weare long haire, and ordinarily blacke, and the haire of the one and of the other is fmooth;

when they are angrie they let their haire grow long; and the women when they mourne, doe Mourning, 20 cut their haire, and alto when their husbands goe a farre journey, in this they show their love and loyaltie to them : the vanitie they have in their poling is fo much, that by the head the Nations are knowne.

Now alreadie some doe weare apparell as well men as women, but they esteeme it so little Apparell. that they weare it rather for fathion then for honethes take, and because they are commanded to weare it; as it is well feene by fome, that fometimes come abroad with certaine garments no further then the nauell, without any other thing, and others onely with a cap on their heads. and leave the other garments at home : the women make great accompt of Laces and

These Indians doe vie certaine Cottages, or houses of timber, couered with Palmetree leaves, Of their Hou. 40 and are in length tome of two hundred and three hundred spans, and they have two or three doores, verie little and low. They shew their valour in seeking timber, and verie great posts, and of great continuance, and there be houses that have fiftie, fixtie or feuentie roomes of twentie or five and twentie quirters long, and as manie quarters long, and as many in breadth. In this house dwelleth one principall man or more, whom all the reft doe obey, and ordinarily they are kinft men. In every roome of these dwelleth a houshold with their children and family without any repartition betweene the one and the other, and to enter in one of these houses is to enter into a laberinth, for every roome hath his fire, and their nets hanging, and their tituffe, for that comming in, all that they have is in fight, and fome house hath two hundred persons and more The women when they are brought to bed (they are deliuered on the ground) doe not Childebrich take up the childe, but the Father taketh it up, or some other person whom they take for their 50 Goffip, and in friendship they are as the Goffips among the Christians. The Father doth cut the Nauell string with his teeth, or with two stones knocking the one with the other, and then they fet themfelues to fasting untill the Navell string falleth off, which is ordinarily to the eight day, and till it doth fall they leave not their faiting, when it falleth, if it beea man childe he maketh it a Bow with Arrowes, and tieth it at the end of the Net, and at the other end manie handfuls of hearbes which are the enemies which his sonne shall kill, and eate. These ceremonies being en led, they make drinkings where with they all are merrie. The women when they are delinered, doe prefently goe and wash themselves in the Rivers , and they give the childe sucke ordinarily a yeer and an hilfe, not giving it any other thing to eate. They love their children Love and el 60 extraordinarily, and beare them in certaine pieces of Nets which they call Tupina, and carrie canon or class them to their plowings and to all kind of labours on their backes, through cold and heate, and dren. they carrie them like the Gip ies stradling about their hips; they give them no manner of corre-Gion, that their children may not cris. They have manie Southfayings, for they put Cottonclothes; vpon their head, birds teathers, and flickes; they lay them one the palmes of their hands, and rocke them by them that they may grow. They effecte more to doe good to their children then to themselves, and now they effecte and love the Fathers verie much because they bring them up, they teach them to reade, write, and cipher, and finging, and to play on an Inftrument, a thing which they doe much esteeme.

Friers and Iefuirespaines with Indians

Of the cuftom they haue in harboring, or their guefts.

When any guest doth come to the house, the honour and entertainment they make him is to bewaile him; Now the guest being come into the house they fet him in the Net, & after he is set without fpeaking any word to him the wife and the daughters, and the other friends do fit them downe round about him with their haire loofe, touching with the hand the partie: they all beginne to weepe with a high voice and great abundance of teares, and there they tell in a verified profeall things that have happened fince they law one another to that houre, and manie other which they invent, and the troubles that the guest hath fuffered in his journie; and all things elie that may proubke pitie and teares. The guest all this time speaketh not one word, but after they have bewailed him a good while thy wipe the teares, and remaine fo quiet, fo modeft, fo pleafant and merne that it feemeth they never wept, and then they falute one another, and give their Ereins, or welcome, and they bring him meate, &c. And after these Ceremonies ended, the guest telleth wherefore he commeth. The men likewise bewaile one another, but it is in some weightie matters, as deaths, misfortunes in wars, &c. They hold it for a great courtefe to entertaine all men and to give them all things necessarie for their sustenance, and some gifts, as Bowes. Arrowes. Birds, Feathers, and other things according to their pouertie without any kind of reward.

Of the cuftom they have of drinking of Thele Gentiles doe accustome to drinke the smoake of Petigma, by another name the boly berbe, 20 this they drie and make of a Palme-tree leafe a Coffin like the joint of a Cane, and filled with this herbe, they fire it at the small end putting the biggest in their mouth, and so they sucke or drinke that smoake, and they hold it for a great daintie and fauour, and lying in their Nets they found part of the daies and of the nights: to some it doth much hurt, and maketh them dizzie and drunke, to othersic doth much good, and maketh them voide a great deale of fiegme at the mouth. The women also doe drinke it, but they are such as are old and sickly, for it is verie medicinable vnto them, especially for the cough, the head-ache, and the Dilease of the stomacke, and hence come a great manie of the Portugals to drinke it, and have taken it for a vice or for idlenesse, imitating the Indians to spend daies and nights about it.

Of the manments and husbandric,

This Nation hath no monie where with to fatisfie the feruices that are done to them, but they 20 live with bartering one thing for another, and principally in change of wine they doe all that they will, and so when they have any businesie, they make wines, and aduiting the Neighbours, and affembling all the Towne, they delire them to helpe them in their Husbandrie, which they doe with a good will; and labouring till tenne of the clocke they returne home againe to drinke their wines; and if that day their tillage be not ended, they make other wines, and fo goe another day till ten of the clocke to make an end of their butine fe. And in this fort doe the wife White men or Portugals vie, that know the vie and fashions of the Indians, and how much they do for wine; they make wines for them, and call them to their Husbandries, and to their Sugarcanes, and with this they pay them. They vie also ordinarily to change some things for white beades, which are made of Wilkes : and in change of some Notegaies they give even their wives; 40 and this is the ransome wherewith they vie ordinarily, that is, the White men, for to buy of them the flaues, as well men as women that they have for to eate.

Oftheir lewels Thefe Indiani vie ordinarily, chiefly in their Feasts, Collars which they make of Wilkes, and Brooches. Diademes of Feathers, and certaine Brooches, (that is, stones which they put in their lower lip) some greene, white, some blue, and verie fine, and are like Emeralds, or Christall, they are round, and some of them so long that they reach to their breaks, and it is ordinarily among the great and principall men, to have them of a span, or more in lenght. They vie alto white Bracelets of the same Wilkes, and they put in their eares certain white stones of a span long and more; and thefe and other like are the ornaments wherewith they adorne themselves in their Feasts, whether they be of flaughters of the enemies : or of wines; and these are the Riches that they so esteeme about all that they possesse.

Of the yfage and how they

Theie Indians doe vie to intreate their Wines well, they never strike them, neither quartell of their wines, with them, except in the time of their drinkings, for then ordinarily they revenge them is lies of them, giving for an excuse afterward, it was the wine they had drunke, and then they are friends as before, and the hatreds betweene them last not long. They goe alwaies together, and when they goe abroad, the woman commeth behind and the man before, that if any ambush bee laid, the wife may not fall into it, and may have time to flie while the Husband fighterh with his aduerfarie, &c. But at their returning home from their fields, or from any other place the wife commeth before, and the Husband behinde, that if any mischance shall happen, the wise may flie home, and the Husband fight with the enemies, or any other thing. But in a lafe Countrie and within the Townes the wife alwaies gooth before, and the Husband behind, for they are verie jealous, and will have alwaies their wife in fight.

Terioniie. Of their danses and their fongs.

Though they be melancholike they have their Games, especially the children verie divers and pleasant, in the which they counterfest manie kinds of Birds, and with so great feast and order as may be. And the children are joyfull and given to play, and they play with fuch quierneffe and friendilip, that among them is no bad name heard, or any fcurrilitie, or calling any nickname one to anothers Father or Mother; and feldome doe they difagree when they play nor diforder themselves for any thing, and verieseldome doe they strike or fight one with another. The Fathers doe teach them from their cradles to dance and fing, and their dancings are not fundrie changes, but a continual flamping with the feet flanding full, or going round about, or firring their bodte or their head, and they doe it all by fich compaffe, and pleafantnelle as can be firming their pour of the made after the fathion of those which the children vie in Inframente. Saaine with manie final stones within or certaine feeds whereof they make also verie good beads: 10 and fo they fing dancing altogether, for they doe not one thing without the other . in fuch compaffe and order that sometime an 100, men dancing and finging together in a row one behind the other doe end all at one stroke, as if they were altogether in one place. The singers as well men as women are much esteemed among them, in so much that if they take an enemie a good singer. and an Inuencer of Veries, they therefore spare his life, and doe not eate him nor his children. The women doe dance together with the men, and make many gambolls and geffures with their armes and bodies, especially when they dance stone. They keepe among themselves ces.

differencies of voices in their Confort : and ordinarily the women doe fing the Treble, Counter, and Tenours. They are verie wicked, especially in weeping for the dead, for when any one dieth, the Kin- Of their bu-20 dred doe cast themselves voon him in the Nee, and so suddenly that sometimes they chooke him rials, before he dieth, seeming to them he is dead. And those that cannot cast themselves with the Coarse in the Net doe cast themselves on the ground with such falls and knockes that it seemeth Lamentations a Miracle they doe not end their lines with the dead, and of these falls, and mournings they re- to be lamenmaine fo feeble that sometime they die. When they mourne they speak manie pittiful and dolo- ted. rous words, & if he die at evening all night long they weep with a high voice, that it is a wonder they are not wearie. For these mournings they cal the Neighbours, & kinsmen, and is he be one of the principall, all the Towne doth meete to mourne, and in this they have also their points of honour, and they curse with plagues those which weepe not, faying, that they shall not bee mourned for. After he is dead they wash him and paint him vene brauely, as they paint their e-30 nemies : and after this they couer him with Cotton Yarne that nothing is feene of him, and put a couering ouer his face, and fitting they put him in a great tinnage or veffell that they have vn-

der the Earth for that purpose, and doe couer it in such manner that no Earth may come to him. and the veffel they couer with earth, making him a house where euerie day they carrie him meat. For they fay that when he is wearie with dancing he commeth thether to eate, and fo they goe for a certaine time to be waile him enerie day all his Kindred, with him they burie all his Iewels or Brooches, that none may fee them and grieue thereat. But if the dead had any Peece, as a Sword, &c. that had beene giuen him , it returneth to him that gaueit, and hee taketh it againe whereforeur he findeth it; therefore they fay that when one dieth he lofeth all the right of that which was given him. After the Coarfe is buried, the Kinfmen are in continual weeping night 40 and day, the one beginning as the other endeth, they eate not but by night, they hang their Nets neere to the roofes, and the women after tweneie daies doe cut their haire, and this lamenting laffeth a whole Moone, the which being ended they make great Wines or Drinkings to put away their mourning. The men doe cut their haire, and the women doe paint themselves with blacke, and these Ceremonies and others being ended, they beginne to communicate the one with the other, aswell the men as the women. After their companions are dead, some never doe marrie againe nor enter into the Feaft of Wines, neither paint themselues with blacke; but is verie feldome among them, because they are much given to women, and cannot live with-

Before they had any knowledge of the Portugals they wied tooles and infirmments of stone, Of the Infirm 50 bone, wood, Canes, and teeth of Beafts, &c. and with the ethey hewed downe great Woods, vie. with wedges of stones, helping themselues with fire; and they digged also the ground with certaine sharpe stakes, and they made their Brooches, Beades of Wilkes, Bowes, and Arrowes, as well as now having Instruments of Iron, but they spent a long time in making of what source thing; wherefore they effeeme the Iron verie much, for the facilitie or eafe which they finde in making their things with it. And this is the reason wherefore they are glad of Commerce with the Portugals or white men.

The weapons of this people ordinarily are Bowes and Arrowes, and they boaft themselves of Of the weapons them, and they make them of verie good wood, and verie faire interlaid with Palme-tree of fun. Pentewea. drie colours, they die their strings greene, or red, and they make their Arrowes verie faite, see- vie.

60 king for them the fairest feathers they can find. They make these Arrowes of sundrie Canes, and fasten in their points the teeth of beasts, or certaine verse hard Rushes, or sharpe stickes with many finagges, and many times they empoison them with herbes. These Arrowes to ones fight feeme a thing of mockerie, but are verie cruell Weapons, and pierce quilted breaft-plates or cutates; and striking in a sticke they cleaue it afunder, and sometimes happen to goe through a man Cruel arrowes and flicke on the ground. They doe exercise themselves in these Weapons veric young, and are Cunning Ar- great Archers, and focertaine that no Bird can escape them be it never so little, or any vermine of the Woods; and there is no more but if they will shoot an Arrow through the zie of a bird on a man; or hit any other thing be it neuer fo fmall, they doe it with great facilitie and with their owne fafetie; and for this they are greatly feared. They are front also and fierce, and dreadfult to Their Arts.

They are as vermine of the Woods, for they goes hunting into the Countrie naked and bare. foot, without any feare. They have a maruellous fight, for at a league off they fee any thing, and Outch fighted, in the same manner they heare. They gueffe verie right ruling themselues by the Sunne, they so to all parts they lift, 200. or 300. leagues through thicke Woods, and mile not one iot; they tra- to uell much, and alwaies running a gallop, especially with some charges, no Horse is able to hold out with them. They are great hishers and swimmers, they feare no Sea nor waves, continues day and a night fwimming, and the fame they doe rowing, and fometimes without meate. They vie also for Weapons Swords of wood, and interlay the ends of them with Palme-tree of lime drie colours, and fet Plumes on them of divers colours, chiefly in their feafts and flaughters. And these Swords are verie cruell, for they make no wound, but bruise and breake a mans head with out having any remedie of cure.

Swords.

ð. II.

Of their manner of killing and eating of humane flesh : and of their creating Gentlemen.

Fall the honours and pleasures of this life, none is so great for this people as to kill and get a name on the heads of their Adverfaries , neither are there an mong them any Feasts, comparable to those which they make at the death of those which they kill with great Ceremonies , which they doe in this manner. Those which beeing taken in the Warre are appointed to die, came presently from thence with a token, which is a small coard about his necke; and if hee bee a man that may to runnne away, he hath one hand tied to his necke under his chinne. And before they come to the Townes that are by the way, they paint their eie-lids, eie-browes, and their beards, polling them after fashion, and enpluming them with Yellow feathers fo well placed that yee can fee no haire: which makes them to gallant as the Spaniards in their rich Apparell, and to they goe fliaring their victorie whereby focuer they paffe. When they come to their owne Countrie, the women came out to receive them, showting altogether and striking themselves on the mouth which is a common entertainment among them; without any other vexation or imprisonment. except that they weare about the necke a round collar like a coard of a good bigneffe, as hard as a sticke. In this collar they beginne to weaue a great manie fathomes of small coard as long asa womans haire, fastened aboue with a certaine knot, and loose underneath, and so it goeth from 40 eare to eare behind the backe, horrible to looke on. And if it be on the Frontier where hee may runne away, they put him in stead of shackels below the knees a string of threed twisted verie hard, which is too weake for any Knife; but that they have Keepers that goe not one moment from him, whether he goe about the houses, to the Woods, or by the Fields; for he hath libertie for all this, and commonly the keeper is one that is given him for wife, and also for to dreffe his Gentle cruell meate, with the which if his Mafters doe give him no meate as the custome is, he taketh a Bow and Arrowes and shootethat the first Henne he leeth, or at a Ducke be it whosesoeuer, and none doth contradict him, and fo he waxeth fat, neither breaking therefore his fleepe, his laughter, or his pleasure as the rest, and some are as contented though they are to ber eaten, that in no wife they will confent to be ranfomed for to ferue; for they fay that it is a wretched thing to die, and 50 lie stinking, and eaten with Wormes. These women are commonly faithfull in their charge, for they receive honour thereby, and therefore manie times they are young, and daughters of the chiefe, especially if their brothers are to be the slaiers. For those which have not this interest manie times, affect them in fuch manner, that not onely they give them leave to runne away, but they also doe goe with them , neither haue the women any other punishment if they bee taken againe, then a few strokes, and sometimes they are eaten of those same to whom they gave life. The time when he shall die being determined, the women beginne to make vessels, that is, Bowles, Trajes, and Pots for the Wines, fo great that euerie one will hold a pipe. This being readie, as well the principall as the rest doe send their Messengers to inuite others from fundrie places against such a Moone about tenne or twelue leagues compasse or more, for the which none 60 doth excuse himselfe. The guests doe come in Mogotes or troupes with their wives and children, and all of them doe enter the Towne with Dancers; and all the time the people are a gathering together, there is Wine for the guests, for without it all the other entertainments are nothing worth. The people being affembled, the Feafts beginne some daies before according to the number, and certaine ceremonies preceding, and enerie one lasteth aday. First, they have for this certaine coards of Cotton-wooll of a reasonable bignesse, not twisted but wouen of a vene faire worke, it is a thing among them of great efteeme, and none hath them but some principall men, and according to their finenesse and workmanship, and their taking pleasure, it is to be belegied that they are not made in a yeere Thele are alwaies verie fafely kept, and are carried to the place with great feift & great noise in certain traies where a Master of these things doth tie two knots within from that which one of the points do run in fuch maner that in the midft there remaineth a nooie. These knots are so fine that few are found that can make them, for some of them have ten casts about, five croiling over the other five, as if one should cross the fingers of the right hand over the left, & after they die them with thewater of a white clay like lime, &let them drie.

On the second day they bring a great number of burdens of wilde Canes or Reeds as long as Lances or more, and at night they let them on fire in a round heape, the points vpward leaning one to another, and so they make a great and faire high bone-fire, round about the which are men and women dancing with sheaves of arrowes at their backe, but they goe very swiftly; for hee that is to die, which feeth them better then hee is feene because of the fire , catcheth hold of all that he can, and catcheth them, and they beeing many hee miffeth few times. At the third daw they make a dance of men and women, all of them with pipes of Canes, and all of them at once doe Hampe on the ground, now with one foot then with the other, all together without missing a ftroke : and observing the same meature they play on their pipes , and there is no other singing

30 nor speaking; they being many and the Canes some bigger and some smaller, besides the resoun- Black Saints. ding in the Woods, they make a Hel-feeming harmonie, but they abide it as if it were the fweeteft Musicke in the World. And these are their feasts, betides others which they intermingle with many graces and foothfayings.

On the fourth day, they carrie the captived enemie as foone as the day breakes to wash him at a River and they while the time that when they doe returne it may be broad day light, comming is to the Towne, the Prisoner goeth presently with a watchfull eye, for hee knoweth not out of what house or doore a valiant man is to come out to him, that is to catch hold of him behind. For as all their happinesse doth confist in dying valiantly, and the ceremonie that followeth, is now the necreit vito death, as he which is to lay hold of him, doth flew his forces in ouer-comming and him him lelie alone without any other helpe, so he will shew courage and force in resisting him: First encourse and sometimes he doth it in such fort, that the first standing aside as wearied in wrestling, ano. text, ther succeedeth him which holds himselfe for a valianter man, the which sometimes remaine well bedufted, & more they would remaine if at this time the captine had not his cord or shakels. This wreftling being ended, he on foot blowing and puffing with rage and wearineffe, with the other that hold him faft, therecommeth forth a troope of Nymphes which doe bring a great new painted bowle, and in it the cords rolled vp, and very white, and this prefent being fet at The womens the feet of the captine, a cunning old woman in these matters, and Mistris of the troope begin- parts. neth to tune a Song, whom the other doe helpe, the Dittie is according to the ceremonie. And while they fing, the men take the cords and the nooze being put about his necke, they give it anan other knot neere to the other great ones, that it may not lofe againe; and having made of every end a coyle, they put them on the arme of the woman which alwaies goeth after him with this weight, and if the weight be great because the cords are great and long, they give her another to carrie one of the coyles, and if he before was terrible with the coller, he is more now with those two knots to bigge behind about his necke, and therefore one of the verfes of the Song faith, wee are those that make the necke of the bird to stretch, although after other ceremonies, they say to him in another foote, If thou hadit beene a Parrot annoying vs, then wouldest have fled.

At this time the veffels of wine are fet in a rowe, in the middeft of a great house, and the house (hauing no partitions though it bee of twentie or thirtie fathome in length) it is full of people; and when they begin to drinke it is a Labyrinth, or a Hell to fee and heare them. For those which dance and fing doe continue with great feruentnesse all the daies and nights that the wines doe Their fonge, so laft. For this being the proper feaft of the flaughters, in the drinking of the wines are many &c. particularities, which last long, and they make water at enery stop; and so they continue day and night; they fing, dance, drinke, and speake telling in whoopes through all the house of warres, and acts that they did; and as every one will be heard in his Historie, every one doth speake striping to bee lowdest, beside other noises, without any intermission, no not a quarter of an houre. That morning in which they begin to drinke, they paint the captine by a particular way that they have for that defigne, in this fort, his face being cleane, and all the feathers he hath brought vpon it the powder of certaine egge-shels of a certaine wild bird, and vpon this they paint him the Captine 60 with black very faire pictures, and all his bodie to the fole of his foote, and flicke him all with feathers which they have alreadie out for that purpose and died redde, and that maketh him to feeme halre as bigge againe, and touching his face it maketh it feeme as much greater, and the eies fo much the smaller, that he remaineth an horrible visige. And in the same manner that they haue painted his face, they adorn the Sword which is of wood, in manner of a Ferula or Palmer.

forth, they amoint him with the Milke of a certaine tree that cleaneth very faft, and they cafe Adoming of

The fatall

but that the head is not fo round, but almost three square, and the sides doe almost end in an edge. and the thaft of it which may bee of feuen or eight ipans is not altogether round. It hath at the head about foure fingers broad, and commeth ftill narrowing vinto the end where it hath certains pendants or little bels of divers coloured feathers, it is a gallant thing and of great effeeme among them, they call it Inga penambin, that is, eares of the Sword. The last day of the wines they make in the midlt of the place cabins of Palme-boughs, as many as they are that shall die, and in that they lodge, without entring any more, any house, and all the day and the night bee is well ferued with feafts more then with meate, for they gine him no other foode but a fruite that hath the fauour of Nuts, that the next day he may not have much bloud,

The fifth day in the morning at feuen of the clocke, little more or lefe his woman doth there 16 leave him, and goeth home very fad, and speaking for her farewell some pittifull wordes at the least fainedly. Then they take away his shackels, and passe the cords from his neck to the waste. and flanding at the doore of him that must kill him, the flaughterer commeth forth in a dance as white as a Doue painted with white earth, in a garment which they call a cloke of feathers tied about the breaft, voward like the wings of an Angell, to dancing he goeth round about the place, and commeth making very strange countenances with his eies and bodie, and with his hands he counterfeiteth the Kite that defireth fielh, and with this Deuillifhnelle hee commeth to the wretch, which stands with the coard stretched, on both sides having one that holdeth him; and the poore wretch if he find wherewith to throw at him, hee doth it with a good will, and many times they give him wherewith, for many valiant men doe come out to him, fo nimble in win- 30 ding their bodie that he cannot hit them. This being ended there commeth an honorable Judge, or ttickler of the new Knight that shall bee, and taking the Sword passeth it many times betweene his legges, putting it now on the one fide, now on the other, even in the fame manner that the Pipers dogs doe paffe betweene their legges, and after taking it by the midft with both hands he pointeth as with a thrust to the eies of the man which is to die; and this being done he turneth the head of it voward in the fame manner that he is to vie it, and putteth it in the hands Hallowing the of the flanghterer, as apt and fit already with those bleffings for to doe his office; they place themfelies somewhat to the left side, in such fort that he may hit him with the edge of his Sword in the nape of the necke, for he striketh at another place. And their brutishmesse is so much, that because they feare no other eails but that which is pre- to fent, they are as resolute as if it syere nothing, as well for to speake, as for to try their courage, for after they take their leave of life, faying, In a good bonre, let me die feeing many are dead, and that belides this his brethren and kinfmen remaine bere to reneuge them. And with this the one makes him readie to discharge, and the other to avoid his bodie, which is all the honour of his death. And they are so nimble in this that many times it is high daies before they are able to kill them, for when he fees the weapon in the aire, fometimes hee drawes his head afide, fometime heedeclines his bodie; and in this they are fo doughtie, that if those that hold the points of the coards doe gird him hard (as they doe when the flaughterer is flow or weake) hee puls fo hard that hee brings them to him, and makes them to flacken in defpight, having one eie on them another on the Sword, without any standing still; and as the killer may not deceive them with an offer and 40 not firike vnder paine of receining a fillip, they doe forelee their flroke in such fort that come it neuer fo low in a trife they stoope, and lie fo flat that it is a wonder to see; and no lesse is the taking of the Sword, holding the arme in fuch fort that doing him no hurt, they pul it downe jointly with themselves, and they put it under the arme pulling by the killer; wherein if they did not helpe the other would dispatch him; for they have in this action so many sooth-layings that for to kill a child of fine yeere old, they goe so prepared as for to kill some Giant. And with these helpes and incouragements fo many times hee firsketh till hee hitteth and that is enough, for al-foone as he is downe he giveth him to many blowes till he batters his head (though one man was feene that had it fo hard that they could never breake it, for as they goe bare-head, they have them fo hard that ours in comparison of theirs are like a Pompion, and when they will injurie 10 any White man, they call him foft-bead.) If this which they kill falleth on his backe, and not on his belly they hold it for an euill lucke and prognoftication that the killer shall die, and although he falleth vpon his belly, they have many ceremonies, which if they be not kept they hold that the killer cannot live, and many of them are to painfull that if any one did fuffer their troubles for Gods fake, they would be accounted meritorious, as hereafter shall be faid, The poore wretch beeing dead they carrie him to a bone-fire that they have readie for the fame, and bringing the bodie neere the fire rouching him with the hand, flay off a skinne tomewhat thicker then the rinde of an Onion, till he remaineth cleaner and whiter then a scalded Pig. Then it is delivered to the Butcher which maketh a hole beneath the stomacke according to their vse, whereby the children first do put in their hands, and 60 pull by the guts yntill the Butcher cutteth where bee lifteth, and that which remaineth in the hand of currie one is his part, and the rest is divided among the Commons except some principal pieces which for great honour are given to the guests that are the most principall, which they doe carrie well r. fled, to that it may not corrupt, and with them afterward in their countries they make new leafts and drinkings of wine.

The killer having ended his office, taking of the cloke of feather, and leaving the Sword hee Certmonies goeth home, where at the doore the same judge or flickler that was before with a shooting how of making a in his hand, that is, one of the points on the lower threshold, the other at the vpper, and pulling new Gentleby the ftring as though he would shoote, the killer passeth betweene him so cunningly that hee toucheth in nothing. Affoone as he is passed the other lofeth the firing making shew that it grieues him to have missed him whom he shot at, as though this hath vertue to make him swife afterward in the warre, and the enemies to miffe him. When he is within he beginnes to runne through all the houses, and the Sifters and Cousins in the same manner before him, saying my Brother is called N. repeating it through all the Townes, and if the Gentleman lath any 10 good thing he that goeth takes it from him till they leave him nothing. This being ended they cast on the ground certaine legges of a certaine Tree, called Pilan. Vpon the which hee stands all that day with so much tilence as if he had some astonishment in him, and carrying to present thicker the head of the dead, they pull out one of his eies, and with the strings and finewes of it they anoint his pulies, and cutting of his mouth whole, they put it on his armeas a Bracelet, and then he layeth him downe in his Net as a ficke man, and certainly hee is ficke for feare, that if he doe not accomplish the Rites perfectly, the foule of the dead will kill him.

Exploits of honour, Titles of Gentlemen, Pitiouaras

Within a few daies they give him the habit, not in the breaft of the Coat which he hath not, but on his owne skin race him all ouer the bodie with the tooth of a Cutta, that is like a Comes tooth, the which as well for their little skill, as because they have a hard skinne it seemes, that 20 they teare a piece of Parchment, and if he be valiant, they doe not race him with right firekes Markes and but a Croffe in fort that there remaine certaine very fine workes, and some doesny and groane habit of new with the paine. This being ended they have small Cole finely grownd, and the juice of Broamerape Gentrie, wherewith they rub the cuts ouertnwart, that the put him to great paine and iwelling, which is yet a greater torment, while his wounds doe close, which continue some daies, he lyeth still in his Net without speaking any word, not asking any thing, and that he may not break his illence. he hath neere him water, flowre, and acertaine fruit like Almonds which they call Amendants.

for he tafteth neither fish nor fiesh those daies.

CHAP.I. S.2.

After he is whole, many daies or moneths being passed, they make a great drinking of wines that hee may put off his mountning, and cut his haire which vntill then he did not, then hee an-30 oints himfelfe with blacke, and from thence forward hee remaines enabled to kill without any painfull ceremonie being done to him, and he also sheweth himselfe honoured and contented, and with a certaine disdaine, as one that hath honour alreadie, and gets it not a new. And so he doth no more but give the other a couple of blowes, although the head remaine whole, and he stirring he goeth home, and prefently they come and cut off his head. And the Mothers with their children about their necke, come to congratulate him, and hanfell him for the warre, ffaining his armes with that bloud. These bee the exploits, honours and vallour whence this pe. ple take their names, whereof they boast very much, and they remaine thence forward Abaetes, Murubixaba, Moçacara, which are the names and titles of Gentlemen. And thefe are the vohappie Titles of Feaths whereon these wretches doe ground their felicitie and glorie, before they have any know. Honour, 40 ledge of their Creator.

Q. III. Of the dinerfitie of Nations and a Inguages, and of the Soyle and Climate.

Mail this Province are many and fundrie Nations of divers Languages, but one is the See before in principall which comprehendeth some ten Nations of Indians. These line on the Sea in M. Edines. Coast, and in a great part of the Land, all of one Speech, though they differ in some words. This is that which the Portugals doe understand, it is easie, eloquent, pleasant, 50 and copious; the difficultie of it is in having many comparisons, but of the Portugals almost all those that came from the Kingdome; and are seated here, and doe communicate with the Indians do know it in a short time, and the children of the Portugals borne here doe speake it better then the Portugall, as well men as women, chiefly in the Captainship of Saint Vincent, and with these ten Nations of Indians have the Fathers communication, because they know their Language, and they more tame and well inclined. These were, and are the ancient friends of the Portugals, with whose helpe and armes they conquered this Countrie, fighting against their owne kindred, and waste neipe and armes they conquered in a country, nguing games from any that it feemed an diner other Nations very barbarous, and those of this generation were so many that it feemed an Portugal vie of duers other vations very carbotous, and those or this generation were or many they are almost impossible thing to extinguish them, but the Portugals have made such hatte that they are almost states. dead, and they vie such meanes that they disinhabit the Coast, and slie the Land inward, some 60 three hundred, some foure hundred.

The first of this Language are called Pisignaras Lords of Paraba, thirtie leagues from Per- Pitignaras. nambuce, and have the best Brasill woode, and are great friends to the Frenchmen, and did contract with them vitill now, marrying their Daughters with them, but now in the yeere 1584. Parapha was taken by lames Flares his Maietties Generall , driving out

154: ta 1 000ple catenous by the Portu-

Turinaba.

Cadete.

Turinaquin.

of the Armada fought not. Neere vnto these bued a great multitude of people which they call Viatan, of these there are are none alreadie, for they being friends with the Punguaras, and Kindred, the Portugals made them enemies among themselves, giving them to be eaten, that by this meanes they might warre against them and hold them for slaues; and finally, having a great dearth, the Portugals in flead of releguing them, tooke them Captines, and did fend thip-loades to bee fold in other places. There was toyined with this a Magician Portugall Priest, that with his deceits conneighed them 10 all to Pernambuco, and so ended this Nation. The Portugals remained without Neighbours to defend them from the Pitiguaras, which vitill now that they were ouercome, perfecuted the Portugals fetting on a fudden upon their Corne, Goods, and Sugar-mils, burning, and killing many of the Portugals, because they are verse warlike, but now by the goodnesse of God they are freed from this incumbrance.

the Frenchmen; and he left a Fortrelle with 100. Souldiers, befides the Portugals which also have their Captaine and Governour one Fructuofo Barbofa, that with the principal men of Per-nambuco carried an Armie by Land wherewith he overcame the enemies, for from the Sea thole

Others there be that they call Tupinaba, these inhabit from the River Royall till ye come neere the Illeos, these were also among themselves contrarie, those of the Bay with them of Camania. and Intrare. Along the River of Saint Francis dwelt another Nation called Casete; and amone these were also contrarieties with them of Pernambuce.

From Illers, or the little Hands, and Port Secure, voto the Holy Ghost inhabited another Nati- 20 on called Tupinaquin; these proceeded from those of Pernambuco, and scattered themselves in a Comprise of the Maine, multiplying exceedingly, but now they are but few. These were alwairs oreat enemies of the things of God, hardened in their errours, verie regenerall, and would revenge themselves as soone as they see their enemies, and louers of many women; of their alreadie are many Christians, and they are firme in the faith.

There is another Nation a kinne to thefe, which runneth off the Maine from Saint Vencent to Pernambuco, called Tupionae, there were without number, they doe diminif, for the Portugali doe goe to leeke them to ferue themselves with them, and those which escape doe see verie farre off that they may not be flaues: There is another Nation Neighbour to this called Apigapigtanga, and Muriapigeanga. There is also another Nation contrarie to the Tupinaquins which are called to Guaracayo, or Itati.

Timinina. Tananya. Artra: C.

Another Nation dwelleth in the Holy Ghost, called Timimmo, they were contrarie to the Tupinagnins, but they are now verie few. Another Nation which is called Tansaya inhabitors of the River of January, these the Portugals destroyed when they inhabited the River, and of them there be verie few, and some that are in the Maine are called Ararape, another Nation inhabiteth beyond Saint Vincent, about eightie leagues, enemies of the Tupinaquins of Saint Vincent, of these there are infinite multitudes, and doe runne along the Sea Coast and in the Maine, vnto the Paraguai which the Castilians doe inhabite, all these Nations abouesaid, though different, and many of them enemies one to another, they have the Language, and their conversion is in hand, and they have a great respect to the Fathers of the company of lefes, and in the Maine they figh 40 for them, and call them Abare, and Father, defiring they would come to their Countries and convert them; and fuch is their reputation that fome Portugals of badde consciences doe faine themfelues Fathers, apparelling themfelues in Gownes, shauing their crownes, and telling them fame Portugals they are Abares, and that they came to feeke them for the Churches of the Fathers which are theirs aswell as ours. Thus they seduce them, and assoone as they come to the Sea, they divide them among themselves, sell, and marke them, making first a great slaughter of them in the Countrie, robberies and affaults, taking away their Daughters and their Wines, &c. And if it were not for these and other like hinderances, all those of this Language had beene converted to our holy Faith.

There be other contrarie Nations enemies to these of divers Languages, which in a generall 50 name are called Tapuya, and they are contrarie also among themselves. In the Maine first neigh-Scuentie fix Nations of Tabouring to the Tupinaquins inhabit the Guamures, and they occupie tome eightie leagues of Coast and toward the Mayne all that they lift. They are Lords of the wild Woods, very great bodied. See of thefe Mafter Knivet and by the continuance and custome of going through the Woods, they have their skinnes very hard, and for this effect, they beate their children being young, with certaine Thiftles to accuwhich lived frome them to goe in the wilde Woods.

They have no Husbandrie, they live by rapine, and by the point of the Arrow; they eate the * Mandioca raw and it doth them no hurt, they runne verie swiftly, and to the White men they * A roote fo come not but on a sudden. They vie verie great Bowes; they carrie certaine stones made a purpose verie bigge that wheresoeuer they hit, they may presently breake the heads in pieces. And 60 when they come to fight, they hide themselves vnder shrubs, and from thence they play their part, & they are greatly feared, & there is no power in the world that is able to ouercome them. Cowards and They are great cowards in the fields and dare not come forth, neither paffe they any waters, vie any shipping, nor are given to fishing, all their living is from the woods. They are cruel as Lions, when they take any enemies they cut off his flesh with a Reed whereof they make their Arrowes, and flea them that they leave them no more but the bones and the guts; if they take any child & are followed, that they may not take it away aliue, they firike off his head against a post. They disbowell the women with child to eate their children roafted. These annoy the Port Secure verie much, the little Hands, and Camama, and these Countries goes to decay because of them: their speech cannot be vinderstood.

Befides these towards the Maine and the fields of Castinga, doe line many Nations of Tapa- Tucking and 748, which are called Tucanness, these line in the Maine of the great River, opposite to Port Secure, other Nations they have another Language. Others doe live in the Maine before yee come to Aquitigpe, and are many. so calle Nacy. Others which they call Oquigiainbs, others which are called Pabi; these weare course Cotton-clothes, wouen like a Net, with this they couer themselves as with a lacke, they have no fleeues, they have a different speech. In the Ariare others which also live in the field going toward Aquitique. Others which are called Larabio, it is a great people, of a different ipeech. Others which are called Mandein : also of another speech, others called Macutu, others Napara, these have husbandrie. Others called Cux are, these live in the middest of the field of the Maine, others which live in the same field, that are called Nubins, others doe live toward the Maine of the Bay which is called Guayana, they have a speech by themselves, other there about called Taicuin, these dwell in houses, they have another speech, others in thesame Countrie called Cariu, of a different tongue. These three Nations, and their Neighbours are friends 20 of the Portugals, others which they call Pigra, they dwell in houses, others which are called O. bacoattara, thefeliue in Ilands in the River of Saint Francis, they have Houses like vnto Caues Gaue-houses.

under the Earth. These when the enemies come against them flie to the water, and by diving escape; they continue long under water, they have great Arrowes like halfe Darts, without Bowes, and with them they fight; they are verie valuant, they eate humane flesh , they have a different tongue.

Others there are that live farre within the Maine are called Anhelim, they have another Lan-Anhebim, &c. guage; others that line in Houses called Aracnaiati, they have another Speech; others called Caimari, they live in Caues. Others called Guaianaguacu, they dwell in Caues and have another Speech; others farre within the Maine called Camneniara; these have paps that reach under their Great Paps. 30 wafte, and neere to their knees, and when they runne they binde them about their wafte: they are neuerthelesse great Warriours, eate mens fiesh, and haue another Speech : Others which they call lobiora Apuayara, Lords of Sharpe Stanes, for they fight with tofted slaves and sharpe, they are valiant, and eate humane fleih, they have another Speech. Others called Annachie, they dwell in Houses, they have another Speech, but they understand themselves with these abovesaid their Neighbours. Others they call Guaiacain, and Guaiatuu, these have another Speech and dwell in Houles. Others called Cumpehe, these cate no humane fiesh, when they kill the enemie, they Cumphe Sauscut off the head and carrie it for a shew, they have no Houses, and are like Gipsies, O. hers cale get not cambals led Guayo, dwell in Houses, they fight with venomed Arrowes, they eat humane flesh, they have another Speech. Others called Cica, haue the same Speech and customes of them abouefaid. O-40 thers called Pahain, eate humane flesh, and have another Speech. Others called Iaicnin, have the fame Speech that thefe aboue. Others called Tupijo, dwell in Houses , have Husbandrie, and another Speech, Others called Maracaguacu, are Neighbours to these aboue, and have the same Speech. Others called Iacuruin, vie Husbandrie, dwell in Houses, and haue another Speech. Others called Tapecniu, are Neighbours of these aboue, and have the same speech. Others called Anacuin, haue the same Speech and customes that those aboue, and all of them doe fight with venomed Arrowes. Others called Piracnin, have the same Speech that those above, and venomed Arrowes.

Others called Taraguaig, haue another Speech, they fight with venomed Arrowes. Others called Pahacuin, can ipeake the Language of them aboutlaid. Others called Tipi, are of the field, and fight with venomed Arrowes. Others called Guacaraiara, hatte another Speech, and 50 haue Husbandries, and dwell in Houses. Others Neighbours to these aboue called Camaragea. Others called Curupia, were enemies of the Tupmaquis. Others called Aquirino, haue another Speech. Others called Piraguaye Aquig, line vinder the Rockes, are enemies to these about. O. thers celled Pinacuin Others called Parapoto, these can speake the Speech of them of the Coast. Others called Caraemba, haue another Speech. Others called Caraems, haue another Speech. Others called Mainuma, these joine themselves with the Guaimures enemies to them of the Coaft, they understand themselues with the Guammes, but they have another Speech. Others called Aturari, enter also in communication with the Guaimures, others called Cuigtaio, doe also communicate and enter with the Guammures. Others called Cuigpe, their were the Inhabitors

60 of Port Secure. Others called Guigrainbe, are friends with them aboue. Others called Augara. ri, thefe dwell not farre from the Sea, betweene Port Secure, and the Holy Ghost. Others called Amixocori, are friends with the former. Others called Carasa, doe line in the Maine toward Saint Pincent, and went flying from the North thither, they have another Speech. Others called Apetupa, liue in the Maine toward Aquitipi. Others called Caraguatiyara, haue another with them.

Speech, Others called Aquiquira, these doe converte with the former. Another Nation liveth in the Maine, enemies to the Muriapigtanga, and of the Tarape, it is a Dwarfish people, low of bodie, but bigge legged and backed, the Portugals call their Pigness, and the Indians call them Tapigeniri, because they are little. Others called Quiricignig, these doe live in the Maine of the Bay, verie farre. Others called Guirig, theie are great Horiemen, and friends of the former-Others called Guerre, doe line in the Maine of Port Secure, verie farre off. Others called . E. naguing, these were Inhabitors of the Countries of the Tupmaguins, and because the Tupinaguins remained Lords of the Mountaines, they are called Tupinaquens, Guaitaca.

Beaft in bumane shape,

the Sca.

Others called Gnaitaca, doe live in the Sea Coast betweene the Holy Ghoft, and the River of Januarie, they live in the fields, and will not live in the Woods , they goe to eate to their Hul- 10 bandries, and come to the houles to bed, they have no other treatures. They live as the catrell that feedeth in the fields, and come not to the Houses but to sleepe, they are so swift in running that by footmanship they catch the game. Others called Ighigrannpan, are enemies to the Tuninaguns, they communicate with the Guaimures, when they fight with their enemies, they make great noiles friking with certaine flickes vpon others. Others called Quirigma, thele were I only of the Countries of the Bay, and therefore it is called the Bay Currenters. The Tupinghas did expell them out of their Countries, and remained Lords of them, and the Tapnyas went toward the South. Others called Maribuco, in habit in the Maine right against the great River. O. there called Catagna, doe live right against lequeriquare, betweene the Holy Ghoff and Port Seenre. Others called Tapuxerig, are enemies of the Tapuyas, and eate vp their Corne fields. O- 20 there that dwell about the Maine that goeth toward Saint Vincent, are called Amocaro, and were enemies of the Tupinaquins. Others called Nonea, have verie great faces. Others called Apur, dwell neere the field of the Maine, they are great fingers, and have another Speech. Others called Panaeurs, differing from the former. Others also differing called Bigrorgya, Others called Pirin, there are a great number of thefe.

All these seventie fixe Nations of Tapuras, which have the most of them a fundry Language. are a wilde lauage and vntamed people; they are all for the most part enemies of the people that dwell in the Sea Coast neighbouring to the Portugals onely a certaine kind of Tapuyas, that line in the River of Saint Francis, and others that dwell nearer are friends of the Portugals, and entertaine them verie well when they passe through their Countries, Of these many are Christians, 30 that were brought by the Fathers from the Maine, and learning the Speech of them of the Sea Coast which the Fathers can speake, they baptized them, and many of them doe line in the Townes of the Fathers married, and serue them for Interpreters, for the remedie of so great a number of people as is loft; and onely with these Taparas, may some fruit bee gotten, with the rest of the Tapayas no conversion can be wrought because of their mutabilitie, and the having manie and fundrie very hard Languages. Onely there remaineth one remedie, if the Lord God doe not discouer another, and it is; getting some of their children, and making them to learne the Speech of the rest, and seruing for Interpreters may some fruit be gotten, though with great dif-ficultie, for the Realons aboutfaid, and manie other.

The Climate of Brafill generally is temperate, of good, delicate, and healthfull aire, where 40

mue & Gount the men live lon even to 90.100. and more yeeres, and the Countrie is full of old men. Generaltric of Brafill, & ly it is neither cold nor hot, though from the River of lanuarse, vnto Saint Vincent, there be colds of fome nota- and heates, but not very great. The Heatens are very pure and cleere, especially by night; the bie inings found there, as Moone is very prejudiciall vnto health, and corrupteth the things very much. The mornings are well one the verie healthfull : it hath verie little twilights, as well in the morning as in the euenings, for as foone as it is day prefently the Sun rifeth, and as foone as it is fet, it is night, Their Winter beginneth in March, and endeth in August, the Summer beginneth in September, and endeth in Februarie, the nights and daies are all the yeere almost equall.

The Countrie is somewhat melancholicke, overflowne with many waters, as wel of maine Riuers, as from the Skie; in it is great flore of raine chiefly in Winter, it is ful of great Woods that are 50 greene all the yeere. It is a Hilly Countrie, especially toward the Sea Coast, and from Pernambuco vnto the Captaineship of the Holy Ghoft, is verie scarce of stone; but from thence to Saint Vincent are verie rough and high Mountaines, of great Quarries of Rockie stone, the food and waters are generally healthfuli, light, and of easie digestion. There are few Commodities for apparell, because the Countrie yeeldeth nothing but Cotton-wooll, and of the rest the Countries plentifull: especially of Cattell and Sugars.

d. IIII.

CHAP.I. S.A. Deere, Elkes, Boares, Asuti, Pacas, Ounces, Carioue. eg. ð. IIII.

Of the Beasts, Land-serpents, Fowles.

He Deere in the Brasilian tongue is called Cuaen: there are some very great, like faire Horfes, they are well headed, and fome have ten or twelve fnags; these are rare, and they are found in the River of Saint Francis, and in the Captainship of Saint Vincent. Their are called, Cuacuapara, they are effected of the Cargos, who of the shankes and to finowes make the points of their Arrowes, and certaine throwing Balls which they vie for to strike downe beasts and men. There bee other smaller, they have hornes also, but they are onely of one point : belides these there are three or foure kindes, some that feede onely in the Woods, others onely in the plaine fields in heards. They make great account of the skinnes. and of the flesh.

The Tapurete are the Elkes, of whose skinne the leather Targets are made, they are like Kine, much more like a Mule, the tayle is of a finger length, they have no hornes, they have a front of a quarter long, which he shrinketh vp and p steeth forth. They swimme and dive very much, but when they dide they take ground prefently under water, and going on it they come out in another place, there are great ftore of them in this Conntrie.

There are great flore of willie Boares, and it is the ordinary food of the Indians of this Coun- The wilde trie, they have the nauell on their backe, and out of it there cometh a fent like the fent of little Boare, 3. kinds and more. Foxes, and by that fent the Dogs doe hunt them, and they are eafily taken.

There are others called Tayacmirica, that is to say, a Boare that Inappeth or grindeth his teeth. these are bigger then the common, and more rare, and with their turnes they goare all the beasts they meete.

Others are talled Tayacupita, that is, a Boare that flandeth fill and tarieth; these doe affault the Dogs, and the men : and if they catch them they eate them ; they are are so fierce , that men are forced to take the trees to escape them, and some doe stay at the foot of the trees some dayes till the man doe come downe; and because they know this tricke of theirs, they goe prefently to the trees with their Bowes and Arrowes, and from thence they kill them. There bee also other kinde of Boares, all good meate.

The Acutis are like the Conies of Spaine, chiefely in their teeth : the colour is dunne, and Acuti, draweth toward yellow: they are domerticall creatures, so that they goe about the house, and goe out and come in againe to it, they take with their fore-feet all that they eate, and fo they carrie it to the mouth, and they eate very fast, and hide that which they leave against they be an hungred. Of these there are many kindes, and all are eaten,

The Pacas are like Pigs, there are great abundance of them; the fielh is pleasant, but it is Pacas heavie. They never bring forth but one at once. There bee others very white; these bee rare, they are found in the River of Saint Francis.

There are many Ounces, some blacke, some grey, some speckled, it a very cruell beast, and Incorrete, There are many Ounces, tome otacke, tome grey, tome spectrus, the array close total, and M. Roisette calls fierce, they affault men exceedinly, that even on the trees they cannot close them, especially M. Roisette calls if they be bigge. When they are flesht there is none that dare abide them, especially by night; them Tigres. they kill many beafts at once, they spoile a whole Hen-house, or a heard of Swine, and to open a man, or whatfoeuer beaft, it sufficeth to hit him with one of his clawes. But the Indians are fo Bold vain-glohardie, that some of them dare close with one of them, and holdeth it fast, and kills it in a field, rious Indians, as they doe their enemies, getting a name, and vfing all the ceremonics they doe to their enemies. They vie the heads for Trumpets, and the Portugall women vie the skinnes for Rugs or Couerlets, especially of the painted ones, and in the Captainship of Saint Vincent.

The Carigue are like the Foxes of Spaine, but they are smaller, as bigge as a Cat, they smell carigue. worfe then the Foxes of Spaine themselves, and they are grey as they. They have a bag from the go fore to the hinder feet, with fixe or feuen duys, and there they carrie their young ones hidden till they can get their owne food, and hath ordinarily fixe or feuen in a litter. This vermine defroyeth the Hens, for it goeth not by day but by night, and climes the trees and the houles, and no Bird or Hen can escape them.

The Tamandua is of notable admiration, it is of the bigneffe of a great Dog, more round then Ant Beare, or long, and the tayle is twice or thrice as long as the bodie, and fo full of haire, that from the Tamasdua, a heate, raine, cold and winde, hee harboureth himfelte all under it, that yee can fee nothing of frange-shaped him. The head is small, and hath a thinne snout, no greater mouth then an oyle Cruze, round beast. and not open, the tongue is of three quarters long, and with it he licketh up the Ants, whereof 60 he onely teeds ; hee is diligent in feeking of the Ant-heapes, and with the clawes hee breaketh them, and casting out his congue the Ants sticke on it, and so he drawes them in, having no more mouth then to hold his tongue full of them; it is of a great fierceneffe, and doth affault many people and beafts. Th O inces doe feare them, and the Dogs exceedingly, and whatfoener they catch, they teare with their clawes; they are not eaten, neither are they good for any thing but to deftroy the Ant-heapes, and they are so many that they will never bee deffroved altogether.

Tatu ot Arma-The Fadas are the Rhinoce-2015.

The Tate is of the bignefie of a Pigge, and of a whitish colour, it hath a very long front, and the body full of thing-like plates, wherewith he remayneth armed, and it hath certaine pieces hanging downe as the Badas haue. Thefe plates are fo hard, that no Arrow can pierce them, excopt it hits him in the flankes; they digge fo fast, that it hath chanced feuen and twentie men with Mattockes not to bee able to digge fo much as one of these with their snout. But if they cast water in their holes they are presently taken : it is a creature worth the seeing, and they call it an armed Horfe, the fielh is like Hennes fielh, or Pigge, very pleafant, of the skinne they make Purfes , and they are very faire, and lasting , they are made tame, and are bred in the house. Of to these there be many kindes, and there are great abundance of them.

Canduscu, ot Porcupine: diners kinds:

The Candnace is the Porcupine of Africa, and hath briffles white and blacke, fo great, that they are af a spanne and a halte, and more, and they cast them like as those of Africa. There be other of theie, called Candamiri, because they are imaller; and they have briftles as the other, There be other smaller, of the bignesse of a Cat, with yellow briftles and blacke at the points. All these brittles have this qualitie, that entring into the flesh, bee it never to little, of it selfe it pierceth through the fleth. And for this cause these briftles doe ferue the Indians for an infirmment to bore the eares, for putting neuer fo little in them in one night it pierceth them through. There be other smaller like Vrchins or Hedge-hogs, they have also brittles, but they cast them not, all these beasts are of a good flesh and taite.

Hirars or Ciuer Cats.

The Hirara is like the Ciuet Cat, though fome fay it is not; they are of many colours, viz. grev. blacke, and white, they eate nothing but hunnie, and in this they are to terrible, that bee the hole of the Bee-hine neuer fo little they make it fo bigge that they may goe in , and when they finde the Hunnie they neuer eate it, till they have called the rest of the young ones, and and then the old one going in, he doth nothing but bring out the Hunnie, and give it to the yong ones, a thing of great admiration, and an example of great charitie for men, and that this is fo the men of the Countrie doe affirme. The Aquiqui are very great Apes, as bigge as a good Dog, blacke, and very ougly, as well the male as the temale; they have a great beard onely in the lower chap: of thele come fometimes a male one to yellow that it draweth toward red, which they fay is their King. This hath a 30 white face, and the beard from eare to eare, as cut with the Sciffers, and it hath one thing much His Oration. to be noted, namely, that he goeth into a tree, and maketh fo great a noise that it is heard very farre off, in the which he continueth a great while without ceasing, and for this, this kind hath a particular inftrument; and the inftrument is a certaine hollow thing, as it were made of Parchment, very ftrong, and fo fmooth, that it ferueth to burnish withall, as big as a Duckes Egge, and beginneth from the beginning of the gullet, rill very neere the palate of the mouth between both the cheekes, and it is to light that affoone as it is tought it moueth as the key of a Virginals. And when this Ape is thus crying he fometh much, and one of the little ones that is to remaine in his place doth cleanfe many times the fome from his beard.

Aquiqui, Apes or Mankies. Ape-king.

His Page. Many kindes

There are others of many kindes, and in great abundance, they are blacke, grey, and yellow; 40 of Monkies. the Country-men fay that some of these, when they shoot at them with an Arrow, catch it in their hand, and turne againe, and throwe it at the man; and when they are nurt they feeke a certaine leafe and chaw it, and thrust it into the wound for to heale them, and because they are

Their Phylike, alwaies on the trees, and are very fwift, when the leape is great, and the little ones cannot paffe, one of them lieth acrosse like a bridge, and the rest passe ouer him, the tayle scrueth him for a hand; and if any be ftrucken, with his tayle he holdeth fast the bough whereon he is, and so die eth hanging, and falleth not. Monkic-ricks. They have many other qualities that are feene every day, as to take a flicke and beate fome body that doth them harme; another found a basket of Egges, hung it by the cord about his necke, and going to the top of an house, from thence made many mowes at his master that to went to feeke him, and breaking them, did eate them all before him, throwing the shells at Cuati.

The beaft (nati is grey, and like the Badgers of Portugal, it hath the fnout and clawes very long, it climeth the trees like the Monkie : no Snake, on Egge , no Bird doth escape it , nor any thing that it can get. They are made tame in the houses, but no man can abide them, for they denoure all ; they will play with little Cats, and whelpes, they are malicious, pleafant, and are apt for many things. There bee other two or three greater kindes, as great Dogges, and have tufhes like the wilds

Other kinds.

Boares of Portugall; these devoure beaits and men , and when they finde their prey, they compaffe it about, some in one place, some in another, till they denoure it. WildeCats. Of wilde Cats are many kindes, fome blacke, fome white, fome of a Safran colour, and are very faire for any furre. These Cats are very terrible, and swift; they live by prey and by birds, and they affault also the men; some of them are as big as Dogs, The lagoarnen are the Dogs of Brafill, they are of a grey colour mingled with white, very fwift, and when they yelpe they are like Dogs; they have the tayle very hairy, feed on fruits and vpon prey, and bite terribly.

The Tanati are like the Conies of Portugall, and here they doe barke like Dogs, especially by Tavati. night, and very often; the Indians hold this barking for an euill figne; they breed three or foure at once: they are very rare, for they have many advertaries, as birds of rapine, and other beafts

The laguacini are big as the Foxes of Portugall, and have the same colour of a Foxe, they feed laguacini. onely youn the Sea-crabs, and among the Sugar-canes, and deftroy many of them; they are very fleepie, for they kill them fleeping, they doe no hurt,

The Biarataca is of the bigneffe of a Cat, like a Ferret; it hath a white stroake and a grey Biarataca, alone the backe, like a croffe, very well made; it feeds upon birds and their egges, and upon other things, especially vpon Ambar, and loueth it so well, that all the night he goeth by the Seafide to feeke it, and where there is any, hee is the first. It is greatly feared, not because it hach any teeth, or any other defensive thing, but it hath a certaine ventofitie fo itrong, and so exill of Stinking beaft, fent, that it doth penetrate the wood, the stones, and all that it encountreth withall, and it is fach, that some Indians have died with the ftench. And the Dog that commeth peere it escapeth not: and this smell lasteth fifteene, twentie, or more dayes; and it is such, that if it lighreth neere some Towne, it is presently dis-inhabited. And that they may not bee perceived. they scrape a hole in the ground, and there within they voide that ventofitie, and court it with an earth; and when they are found, that they may not bee taken, their defense is to cast out

The Prignica (which they call) of Brafill, is worth the feeing; it is like a shag-haire Dog, or Prignica or Laa Land-spaniell, they are very ougly, and the face is like a womans cuill drest, his fore and hin-zinesse. der feet are long, hee hath great clawes and cruell, they goe with the breaft on the earth, and their young fast to their bellie. Though yee strike it never so fast, it goeth so leasurely, that it hath need of a long time to get up into a tree , and fo they are eatily taken; their food is certaine fig-tree leaues, and therefore they cannot bee brought to Portugall, for as foone as they Simple food. want them they die presently.

In these parts are a great multitude of Rats, and of them are some ten or twelve kindes, some Twelve kinds 20 blacke, others wellow, others dunne, all are eaten, and are very fauourie, especially some great of Rate ones that are like Conics, and fometimes they are fo many, that lighting upon a fowne field. they veterly destroy it.

Of Land-Snakes and Serpents;

"He Giboys is a Snake of the greatest that are in this Countrie, and there are some found of Of the Snakes twentie toot in length, they are very faire, but more wonderfull they are in swallowing a that are on the whole Deere; they have no poifon , neither are their teeth great according to the bodie. To land, and have take their prey whereon they feed, they wie this fleight. It layeth it felfe along by the high-Gibys. 40 wayes, and when the prey paffeth it leapeth vpon it, and windes it felfe in fuch order, and crusheth it so, that it breaketh all his bones, and afterward licketh it, and his licking hath fuch yertue, that it bruifeth or suppleth it all, and then it swallowes it vp whole,

There are others, talled Guiraupiaguara, that is, Eaters of birds Egges, it is very blacke, long, Eggenter. and hath a yellow breaft: they goe on the tops of trees as it were i wimming in the water, and no man can runne fo faft on the ground as they on the trees; thefe deftroy the birds, and their

There are others very bigge and long, called Caninana, they are all greene, and of a notable caninana. beautie. These also doe eate egges and birds, and kill little chickens.

There is another, called Boystapus, that is, a Snake that bath a long fnout, it is very slender, Long snow 50 and long, and feeds onely vpon Frogs. The Indians observe footh-saying with this, that when the woman hath no children, they take this Snake and strike her with it on the hips, and fay she shall presently have children.

There is another, called Gaistepia, they are found only in the Rarm, it is of a notable bigness, Gaittorie. he smelleth so much, like a Foxe, wheresoeuer he goeth, that there is none can abide it. There is another, called Boyuna, that is, a blacke Snake, it is very long and flender, it fmelleth Equina, alio very much like a Foxe. There is another, called Bom, because that when it goeth, it crieth bom, bom, it is also very great, and doth no hurt.

There is another, called Boisenpecanga, that is, a Snake that bath prickles in his backe, they are 60 very great, and groffe, the prickles are very venomous, and all men doe avoide and keepe themfelues from them.

lawaraca is a name that comprehendeth four kindes of very venomous Snakes. The first is Snakes that greatest, called lararacuen, that is, great lararaca, and they are of ten spannes long, they have have poston, great tufhes budden in the mouth along their gummes, and when they bite they itretch them largace.

Boycininga.

Ibiracua.

like a finger of the hand : they have their poifon in their gummes , their teeth crooked , and a itroake voon them whereby the poison runneth. Others fay, they have it within the tooth. which is hollow within, it hath fo vehement a poifon, that in foure and twentis houres, and leffe, it killeth a man: the poifon is very yellow, like Saffran water, they bring foorth mane young ones at once, one hath beene taken with thirteene in her bellie.

There are others, called lararcoaypitinga, that is, that bath the point of the tayle more white them grey: these are as venomous as Vipers of Spaine, and have the same colour and fashion.

There are others, called lararaepeba, most venomous; it hath a red chaine along the backe, and the breafts, and the rest of the bodie is all grev.

There are other smaller Iararacas, that the greatest is about halfe a yard long, they are of an earthie colour , they have certaine veines in their head like the Vipers , and they make fuch a noise as they doe. The Curnenen is a Snake very hideous and fearefull, and fome are of fifteene spannes lone: CHTHEUCH. when the Indians doe kill them they burie prefently the head, because it hath great store of poifon : for to catch the prey and the people, it lieth close to a tree, and when it feeth the prev. it cafts it felie voon it, and to killeth it.

The Boycininga is a Snake, called of the Bell, it is of a great poifon, but it maketh fuch a noife with a Bell it hath in his taile, that it catcheth very few; though it be fo fwift, that they call it, the flying Snake , his length is twelve or thirteene spannes long. There is another , called Bocining peba: this also hath a Bell, but smaller, it is blacke, and very venomous.

The poison of the Ibiracus Snake is so vehement, that if it biteth any person, presently it makes him to voide bloud through all the passages of his bodie, to wit, the eies, nostrils, mouth, eares, and all open places elfe of his bodie; it runneth a great while, and if he be not holpen, he empties his bloud and dieth.

The Snake Ibiboboca is very faire, it hath the head red, white and blacke, and so all the bodie Zbiboboca. is sported of these three colours; this is the most venomous of all, it goeth slowly, and frueth in Store and fore, the crannies of the earth, and by another name it is called, the Snake of the colours.

The great vehemencie that these venomous Snakes aboue faid haus, the great paines they caule, and the many persons that every day doe die of their stinging cannot be exprest : and they are so many in number, that not onely the fields and the woods , but even the houses are full of 20 them, and they are found in the beds, and within the bootes, when they put them on. The Brethren going to their rest doe finde them there wound about the benches feet, and if they be not holpen when they fling, cutting the wound, letting him bloud, drinking Vnicornes horne, or Carima, or the water of the Snakes-wood, or some other effectuall remedie, in source and twen-Carima, a drug tie houres and leffe he dieth, with great crying and paines, and they are so excessive, that when any person is bitten presently he demandeth consession, and maketh account to die, and so dif-poleth of his goods. There are other Snakes, chiefely these largraces, that have a great smell of Muske, and where-Musk-fnake. focuer they bee, they are descried by the good and fragrant smell they have.

There are many Scorpions, that every day are found in their beds, among the bookes, and a- 40 Scerpions. bout the chambers, ordinarily they kill not, but in foure and twentie houres they cause intole-

It seemeth that this climate doth flowe in poison, as well for the many Snakes there are, as for the multitude of Scorpions, Spiders, and other vncleane creatures, and the Lizards are so many that they couer the walls of the house, and the holes are full of them.

Of the Fowles that are in the Land, and are thereon sustained.

EVen as this climate doth flowe in poison, so it seemeth to create beautifulnesse in the birds, and as all the Countrie is full of Groues and Woods, so it is full of most beautifull birds of

The Parots in this Countrie are infinite, more then Dawes, or Starlings, or Thrushes, or Sparrowes of Spaine, and so they make a cackling as the birds about faid; they destroy them by thoufands, they flie in flockes alwaies, and they are formany, that there be llands where there is nothing but Parots; they are eaten, and are very good meate; they are ordinarily very faire, and of many and fundrie colours and kindes, and they almost all speake if they be taught.

Varietie of Pas The Arara Parots are those that by another name are called Macaos; it is a great bird, and are very rare, and by the sea-coast they are not found, it is a faire bird in colours; their breasts are red as scarlet; from the middle of the bodie to the taile some are yellow, others greene, others blue, and through all the bodie they have feattering, some greene, some yellow and blue feathers, and ordinarily every feather hath three or foure colours, and the taile is very long. Thefe 60 lay but two egges, they breed in the trunkes of trees, and in the rockes of itone. The Indians efteeme them very much, and of their feathers they make their fine things, and their hangings for their fwords, it is a very pleasant bird, they become very tame, and domesticall, and speake very well if they be taught.

The Anapara Parot is most faire; in it all colours are found with great perfection, to wit, red, greene, yellow, blacke, blue, grey, the colour of the Bulfach, and of all these colours it hath the bodie belpeckled and spotted. These also doe speake, and they have another advantage, that is, they breed in the house, and hatch their young ones, wherefore they are of great effective. The Araruma or Machao is very faire, it is all blacke, and this blacke sprinkled with greene, Ararum, which giveth it a great beautie, and when the Sunne shineth on him he is so shining that it is very pleasant to behold; it hath the feet yellow, and the beake and the eies red; they are of great esteeme for their beautie, for they are very rare, and breed not but very farre within the Land. and of their feathers the Indians make their Diademes and Pictures.

CHAP.I. S.4. Diners kinde. of Parots. Guaimimbique a rare bird

30 The Parots Ainrueure are most beautifull, they are all greene, they have a cap and a collar of Ainrueure. vellow, very faire, and ouer the beake a few feathers of a very cleare blue, which doe beautifie him very much, it hath pinions of the wings red, and the taile feathers red and yellow, for inkled with greene.

The Tame are a kinde of Parot very small, of the bignesse of a Sparrow, they are greene. This, fprinkled with other divers colours, they are much efteemed, as well for their beautie, as because they practile much, and well, and are very tame. They are so small, that they skip every where on a man, on his hands, his breast, his shoulders and his head; and with his bill hee will cleanse ones ceeth, and will take the meate out of the mouth of him that brings them up, and make many gambols; they are alwaies speaking or singing after their owne fashion.

20 The Parots Guirainba, or Tellem birde, neither speake nor play, but are fullen and fad ; they are Guirainbe, much efteemed, because they are brought from two hundred and three hundred leagues, and are not found but in great mens houses, and they hold them in such esteeme, that they give the ranforme and value of two persons for one of them, and they esteeme them as much as the lapanet doe the Treuets and the Pors, or any other great man efteemeth any thing of great price, as a Faulcon, Gerfaulcon, &c.

The Taps is of the bigneffe of a Pie-annet, the bodie of a fine blacke, and the taile of a very Taps. fine yellow, it hath three tufts on the head that are like little hornes, when hee raifeth them: the cies are blue, the neb very yellow. It is a very faire bird, and hatha very frong fmell when it is angrie. They are very carefull in feeking their food, there escapeth not a Spider, Beetle, or 30 Cricket, &c. they are very cleanly in a house, and goe about like Pie-annets, they leave nothing vnfought. It is dangerous holding them in the hand, for they runne presently to the eies, and Dangerous to

Of the finall birds called Guaiminobique, there are fundrie kindes, as Guaracie &, that is, Fruit The Guaininoof the Summe; by another name, Guaracia oba, that is, Concerng of the Summe; or Guaracia aba, bique: others that is . The haire of the Sunne; in the Antillas they call it the rifen or anaken bird, and they fay call it the Ide it fleepeth fixe moneths, and liueth other fixe moneths. It is the fineft bird that can bee imagi- minerat, ned; it hath a cap on his head, to which no proper colour can be given, for on what foeuer file vee looke on it, it she weth red, greene, blacke, and more colours, all very fine, and shining; and the breaft is fo faire, that on whatfoeuer fide yee take it, it shewth all the colours, especially a 40 yellow more finer then gold. The bodie is grey; it hath a very long bill, and the tongue twice the length of the bill; they are very I wift in flight, and in their flight they make a noise like the Bee, and they rather feeme Bees in their fwittneffe then birds , for they alwaies feed flying without fitting on a tree, euen as the Bees doe flie sucking the Hunnie from the flowers. They haue two beginnings of their generation, fome are hatched of egges like other birds, others of Generation, little bubbles, and it is a thing to bee noted, a little bubble to beginne to convert it selfe into this little bird, for at one instant it is a bubble and a bird, and so it conuerts it selfe into this most faire bird, a wonderfull thing, and vnknowne to the Philosophers, seeing one living creature Note for Philosophers without corruption is converted into another.

The bird Gurranbe eng eta is of the bigneffe of a Gold-finch; it hath the backe and wings Guranbe spa 50 blue, and the breaft and bellie of a most fine yellow. It hath a yellow Diademe on his head that eta. beautifies him very much. It is a very excellent bird for the Cage, it speaketh many waies refembling many birds, making many changes, and changing his speech a thousand waies. They continue long in their fong , and are of eleeme, and of theie for the Cage there bee many, and faire, and of divers and fundrie colours.

The Tangara is of the bigneffe of a Sparrow, all blacke, the head is of a verie fine Orange-Tangara tawnie, it ungeth not, but it hath a wonderfull thing, for it hath fits like the Falling sicknesse, and for this cause the Indians doe not eate them, for the auoiding of that disease, they have a kinde of very pleafant dancing, and it is, that one of them makes himselfe as dead, and the other compasse him about skipping with a long of a strange crying that is heard verie farre, and when they Dance,

60 end this feast, crying, and dancing, he that was as dead rileth, and maketh a great noise and crying, and then all goe away, and end their feath. They are fo earnest when they doe it, that although they be seene and shot at, they sie not away. Of these there bee many kindes, and all

The bird Quereins, is of the most esteemed of the Land, not for the fong, but for the beautie Quereins, Parots.

Tucana

Масисация,

CHAP.I. S.5.

of the feathers; they are a cleare azure in part, and a darke, all the breaft is most fine red. the wings almost blacke; they are to efteemed, that the Indians doe fleathem, and give two or three persons for the skinnes of them , and with the feathers they make their Pictures , Diademes.

The Tucana is of the bignesse of a Pie, it is all blacke except the breast, which is all yellow. with a round red circle; the bill is a large spanne long, verie great, yellow, and within is red. fo smooth and shining, that it seemeth to bee varnished; they are made tame, and breede in the houses, are good to eate, and the feathers are esteemed because they are faire.

The Guirapanea is white, and not being very big it crieth fo loude that it founds like a Bell.

Guirananta. and it is heard halfe a league, and their finging is like the ringing of Bells.

The Macucagna is greater then any Henne of Portugall, it resembleth the Feasant, and so the Portugals doe call it; it hath theee skinnes one over another, and much fleih, and, and verie fa-

norie, they lay twice a yeere, and at euerie time thirteene or fifteene egges, they goe alwaies on the ground, but when they fee any people they file to the trees, and at night when they goe to rouft as Hennes doe. When they fit on the trees, they put not their feet on the boughs, but the shankes of their legs, and most on the fore part. There bee mamy kindes of these, and they are

Among them there is one of the smallest, that hath many properties; when it sinceth it foresheweth raine, it crieth so loude, that it is incredible of so small a bird, and the reason is, because the gullet is veriegreat. It beginneth at the mouth and commeth out at the breast betweene the skinne and the flesh, and reacheth to the fundament, and returneth againe and entreth into the crop, and then it proceedeth as other birds, and doubleth like a Trumper with his turnings. They runne after any bodie pecking him and playing like a little whelpe, if they fet it voon Hennes egges, it fi teth ouer them, and bringeth vp the young chickens, and if it fee a Hen with chickens, it fo perfecutes her, till it takes them from her and broodes them, and brings them vp. The Hen Muts is very domesticall, it hath a combe like the Cockes, spotted with white and blacke, the egges are great and very white, like a Goofe egge, so hard that knocking the one with the other, they ring like Iron, and of them they make their Maraca, that is, their Bells : any In this Countrie there are many kindes of Partridges, which though they are not like in all 30 things to thole of Spaine, yet are they very like in colour, tafte, and in the aboundance.

Hard egges. Dogs poilon. Dog that eateth the bones of it dieth, and wnto men it doeth no hurt at all.

 V_{14}

Turtles innumerable.

In this Countrie are many kindes of Turtle-doues, Stares, and Black-birds, and Pigeons of many torts, and all these birds are like to them of Portugal; and the Pigeons and Turtle-doues are in fuch abundance, that in certaine fields farre within the Land they are fo many, that when they rife they hinder the light of the Sinne, and make a noise like a thunder; they lay so many egges, and fo white, that a very farre off yee may fee the fields white with egges, as if it were fnowe; and feruing the Indians for meate as they doe, they cannot be diminished; rather from thence at certaine times it feemeth they runne ouer all the parts of this Prouince. In this Countrie are many Offriches, called Andugeacu, but they keep only within the Land.

Offriches. Horne media

The Anima is a fowle of rapine, great, and crieth that it is heard halfe a league and more, it 40 is all blacke, hath faire eies, the beake bigger then a Cocks, vpon this beake it hath a little horne of a spanne in length, the men of the Countrie say that this Horne is very medicinable for those that are taken in their speech, as hath beene proued, hanging it about the necke of a girle that did not speake, which spake presently.

There be many other fowles of rapine, to wit, Eagles, Faulcons, Gof-hawkes, Merlines, and Tarfels, and many other, but they are all ordinarily to wilde, that they will flie at any thing, neither will they come to hand, or stoope to lure.

Of the Brasilian Trees for fruit, medicine, and other vies; and their Herbes of rare operations.

Many vies

flower groweth in the fings, which makes certaine points like fingers, and in the faid points there groweth a red flower of a good smell, and after it groweth a Chesnut, and from the Chesnut commeth an Apple as big as a great Apple, or a Pippin, it is a very faire fruit, and some are yellow, others red, and it is all juyce. They are good for hot weather, they coole verie much, and laying the myce vpon a white cloth it never goeth off till the cloth bee wome. 60 The Chefnut is as good or better then those of Portugal, they are eaten rosted, and raw laid in water as blanche Almonds, and of them they make Marchpanes, and sweet meates as of Almonds. The timber of this tree is little worth, enen for the fire, it yeeldeth of it selfe a certain gumme good to paint and write, and there is great store. With the barke they dye their yarne, Atinde He Trees Acam, are very great and faire, they cast the leafe at their times, and the

and the veffels that ferues them for Pots. This being stamped and boyled with some Copper. till the third part of the water be confumed, is a four raigne remedy for old fores, and they heale quickly. There bee so many of these trees as of Chesnute in Poringall, they growe about these Woods, and they gather many quarters of these Chesnuts, and the fruit in their season satisfie all men. Of theie Acaisa doe the Indians make Wine.

There is great abundance of the trees Mangaba, especially in the Bay, for in other places they Mangaba. are rare, in making they are like the barke of Anafega, and in the leafe with those of Frezo, they are very pleasant trees, and haue alwaies greene leaues. They yeeld fruit twice a yeere, the first in a knob, for then they doe not flower, but the very knob is the fruit; this season ended. 10 which lasteth two or three moneths, it giveth another bearing, first the flower, which is altogether like the lesamine, and of as good a smell, but more quicke; the fruit is as big as an Apricock. Or Musk role wellow and spotted with some spots of blacke; within it hath some kernels, but all is eaten, or fucked as the Seruices of Portugall. They are of a very good tafte, and healthfull, and so light that eate they never io many, it feemes they eate no fruit at all. They ripen not on the tree, bur fall to the ground, and from thence they gather them already ripe, or gathering them greene they lay them to ripen. The Indians make Wine of them. The tree and the fruit it felfe being greene, is full of white Milke, and cleaveth to the hands, and is bitter. The fruit Muruenge groweth on certaine trees, very high and like the wilde Peare-trees of Murueuce. Portugell. It hath a very long stalke, they are gathered greene, and are layd to ripen, and being 20 ripe they are very pleasant and of an easie digestion. When they are to gather them, they cut Illigathering downe the tree, because they are very high, and if this destruction were not, there would bee more abundance, but therefore they are rare, the trunke hath great abundance of white Milke.

and it congealeth, it may ferue for Sealing-waxe if they will vie it.

Of the Araca trees are great abundance, of many forts; the fruit is certaine small Peares. Araca yellow, red, or greene; they are pleafant, vnloathfome, toothfome, because they have little taile of fowre, they yeeld fruit almost all the yeere.

This Ombu is a great tree not very high, but well spread; the fruit is like white Plums, yel- Ombulow and round, and therefore the Portugals doe call it a Plum. It causeth the teeth to fall, and the Fruit eaufing Indians that doe eate it doe lote them. The rootes of this tree are eaten, and are very pleafant, and teeth to fall. 30 more toothsome then the Abalancia, for they are sweeter, and the sweetnesse thereof is like Sugar, they are cold and healthfull, and they are given to the ficke of a Feauer, and it ferneth for water to them that goe inward to the Land, for they have no other.

The lacapucaya is of the greatest and fairest of this Countrie; it beareth a fruit like a Pot, as lacapucaya, big as a great Bowle, as thicke as two fingers, with a couer vpon it, and within it is full of certaine Chefnuts like vnto the Myrabolanes; and it feemes they are the fame of India, when they are already in feafon, that couer doth open and the fruit falleth. If any doe eate much of it green, he casteth all the haire he hath on his body; rosted it is a good fruit. They wie the huskes for Haire-fal-fruit Cup, and they are lasting; the timber of this tree is very hard , it doth not rotte , they esteeme Grace it for the Axel-trees of the Sugar-mills.

Aration, is a tree of the bigneffe of an Orange tree and greater, the leafe is like a Citron tree or Aration, a Lymond tree, it is a faire and plafant tree, it beareth a fruit as bigge as Pine apples; and they have a good smell, and a reasonable taste, it is a fruit that loatheth not.

Of these Trees are many kindes, and one of them called Araticu panania. If they eate much of the fruit it proueth a cold poilion, and doth much hurt. Of the rootes of these trees they make booyes for the Nets, and they are so light as any Corkes.

There be two forts of Peques, one of them beares a fruit as big as a good Orange, and so they Peques. haue the rinde thicke like an Orange; within this rinde there is nothing but Hunnie fo cleare and sweet as any Sugar, in quantitie of an egge, and mingled with it, it hath the pippens or

The other Pequea is timber, of the heaviest of this Countrie, in Portugall it is called Setim, it hath very fine wanes, it lasterh long and doth not rotte.

On the tree labaticaba groweth a fruit of the bignetle of a Lymond of Sytill, the rinde and labaticaba tafte is like a fowrish Grape, from the roote of the tree through all the body vnto the vtmost bough or iprig, is a rare fruit, it is onely found within the Land in the Captainship of S. Vincent. The Indians doe make of this fruit a kinde of Wine, and they boyle it like the wine of Grapes.

In this Brafill are many Coco-nuts, excellent like those of India; these are ordinarily set, and Cocos. growe not in the Woods, but in Gardens, and in their Farmes. And there are more then twen- ao, kinds of tie kindes of Palme trees, and almost all doe beare fruit, but not so good as the Cocos: with some Palmes. of these Palme trees they couer their houses.

60 Belides these Fruit-trees there are many other that yeeld fundry fruits, whereof they make profit, and many Nations of the Indians sustaine themselves, together with the Hunnie, whereof there is great abundance, and with their hunting, for they have no other fuftenance.

In the maine of the Captainfhip of Saint Vincent vinto Paraguay, are many and great Woods The Pinetree. of Pine trees, euen like vnto them of Portugall, which beare Apples and kernels; the Apples are not lo long but rounder and greater, the kernels are greater and are not fo hot, but of a good temperature and wholfome. Cabueriba is very great and esteemed for the Balme that it hath; to get this Balme they prick the barke of the tree, and lay a little Corton wooll to the cuts, and from certaine to certaine dayes they goe to gather the Oyle that it hath diffilled. The Portugals call it Balme, because is is very l ke to the true Balme of the Vineyards of Engeds, it serveth for greene wounds, and taketh away all the featre : it fmelleth very well, and of it, and of the barke of the tree they make Beades, and other finelling things. The Woods where they growe doe finell well, and the heafts doe goe and rubbe on this tree, it formeth to bee to heale them of fome difeases. The Timber is of the best of this Countrie, because it is very strong and heavy, and some are of such to bigneffe, that of them they make the Beames, Axel-trees, and Skrues or Vices for their Sugar-Mills, thefe are very rare, and are found chiefly in the Captainfoir of the Holy Chof.

29999

Of the Trees that free tor medianes. Cabueriba. Por: Engaddi, for wounds.

Cuparba. For wounds.

Cupayba is a Fig-tree, commonly very high, straite and big, it hath much oile within; for to get it they cut the tree in the middeft, where it hath the vene, and thereit hath this oile in lo great abundance, that some of them doe yeeld a quarterne of oile and more, it is very cleare, of the colour of oile, it is much fet by for wounds, and taketh away all the skarre. It ferueth alfo for lights, and burne well, the beafts knowing the vertue thereof doe come and rubbe them. felues thereat. There are great flore, the wood is good for nothing, swhaha. For wounds,

The Ambayba Fig. trees are not very great, and are not found in the true Woods but in Conpices, where some fowing hath beene; the barke of this tree scraping it on the infide, and cru- 20 thing those scrapings in the wound, laying them on it, and binding it with the barke it selfe, healeth in a fhort time. There is great abundance of them, and are much efteemed for their great vertue, the leaves are rough, and ferue to imooth any wood, the timber ferueth for nothing.

Ambaretinea.

The Fig-tree which they call of Hell, Ambaigtings is found in Taperas: it yeelds a certaine Oyle that ferueth for lights, it hath great vertue, as Monardes writeth, and the leaves are much effected for them that doe vomit, and cannot retayne that which they eate, anointing the flomacke with the Oyle, it takethaway the Oppilations, and the Collicke. To get this Oyle, they lay it in the Sunne some dayes, and ftampe it, and seethe it, and presently that Oyle commeth on the top, which is gathered for the effect about-faid.

Iebacamuci. For the bloudy Fiuxa

Of the trees Ighacamuci there are many in Saint Vincent: they beare a certaine fruit as good 30 as Quinces, fa hioned like a Panne or a Por, they have within certaine small feeds, they are the onely remedie for the bloudy Fluxe. The Igeines yeeldeth the Matticke , smelleth very much for a good while: they notch the tree in some places, and in an instant it stilleth a white liquor that doth congeale; it serueth for Plaisters in cold diseases, and to perfume, it serueth also in stead of incense. There is another tree of this kinde , called Igrangewa, that is, Mafticke as bard as flone , and

Igeigea. Fo colddifcales.

Gunme A.

foit feemeth rather Gumme-anime then Masticke, and it is so hard and thining that it feemeth Glaffe; it ferueth to glafe the earthen veffell, and for this it is much efteemed among the India ans, and it ferueth also for cold difeafes. There is a River betweene Port Secure and the Illers, that commeth from more then three 49 hundred leagues within the Mayne, it bringeth great store of Rozen , which is the Gummeanime it felfe, which the Indians doe call Igraigeica, and the Portugals, White inconfe; it hath the same effects that the Incense.

Curunicaiba. For wounds. and for the Poxe. Catyoba.

Currepicaiba is like to the Peach-trees of Portugal in the leafe: the leaves doe diffill a kinde of I quor like the Fig-trees of Spaine, which is the onely remedie for wounds both greene and old, and for the Poxe, and it taketh away all the scarre from the wounds, if they pricke the barke of it, it yeeldeth great ftore of Bird-lime, wherewith they catch the small birds, There is great abundance of the trees Casroba, the leaves of these chewed and layd to the

For the Poxe. Pock-fore drye and heale it in fuch manner, that it neuer commeth againe, and it feemeth that the wood hath the same effect that the China wood, and that of the Antilles have for the same 50 difeafe. Of the flower they make a Conferue for those that are ficke of the Poxe. The wood Caarobmocorandiba is like that of China, it is taken in the same manner that the odib.:

For loofeneffe ther, and it healeth the loofeneffe, the Poxe, and other diseases of cold, it is grey, and bath the Carrobmocoranand the Poxe, pith very hard as the wood of China. Inhuvandiha For the fickneffe of the Liuer.

It is long fince laburandiba was found, and it is, as fome Indians doe fay, called of the Indians Betele. The Rivers and their borders are full of these trees, the leaves are the onely remedie for the ficknesses of the Liner, and many in this Brafill haue already beene cured of most grieuous For the Tooth diseases of the Liner, with the eating of them. There is another tree called also Betele, it is smaller and of a round leafe, the roots of it are an

ake. Coffia fiftule. Of the Oyles the Indian doe victo anoins them'elues excellent remedy for the tooth-ake, putting it in the hollow place of them, it biteth like Ginger. 62 They say also, that in this Brafill is the tree of the Caffia fiftala, it is vnknowne to the Indians. the Spaniards doe vie it, and fay it is as good as that of India.

The Anda trees are faire and great, and the wood ferueth for all things, of the fruit they make an Oyle, wherewith the Indians doe anoint themselves, and the women their haire; and it ferseth also for wounds, and drieth whem up presently, and they make many gallant things about the legs and body, painting themselues with this Oyle.

The Moxerequieba tree is found within the Maine, in the fields, it is small, beareth a fruit as Moxerequieba. big as an Otange, and within it hath certaine kernels, and of it altogether they make an Ovle to anoint themselves, the barke serueth to kill fish, and every beatt that drinketh the water where it is caft, dieth.

The Aintainburg is small, beareth a red fruit, and of it they make a red oile to anoint distributed themfelues.

The Alabatipita is fine or fixe spannes in length, the fruit is like Almonds and blacke, and so Mabutitita. to is the Oyle, which they efteeme very much, and anount themselves with it in their infirmities.

The lampaba tree is very faire, of a pleasant greene; every moneth it changeth the leafe, lampaba and is like a Wal-nut leafe; the trees are great, and the timber pleafant to worke; the fruit is like great Oranges, and in like Quinces, or ruflet Peares; the taffe is like Quinces: it is a good medicine for the Laske of all fores. Of this fruit is made a blacke Inke ; when it is made it is white, and anointing themselves therewith it stayneth not profently, but within a few houres the partie remayneth as blacke as any leat. It is attich effeemed of the Indians, with this they make on their bodies round Hofe and Doublets all cut, and they give certaine strokes in the face, eares.

note, chinne, armes, legs, and the lame doe the women, and they become very gallant. This is their appareil, as well on the weeke as on the Feath day, adding tome feathers to it, wherewith 30 thee adorne themselves, and other lewels made of bone : this colour lasteth on the body nine dayes still blacke, and after remayneth nothing; it maketh the skinne very hard, and to make the painting the fruit is to be gathered greene, for being ripe it will not doe it.

The tree lequitimenaçu beareth a fruit like the Spanift Strawberie, and within it hath a beane lequitimensus. as hard as a flicke, which is the feed; they are of the best Beades that can be, for they are very equall, and very blacke, and they have a gloffe like lear, the huske that covereth these Beades, is Beades and more bitter then Aloes, it ferreth for Sope, and it washeth better then the best Sope in Portugal. Sope. A certaine tree groweth in the fields and the Mayne of the Bay, in dry places where no wa- Of the tree

ter is, very great and broad; it hath certaine holes in the branches, as long as an arme, that are that hath wafull of water, that in Winter nor Summer neuer runnerh over, neither is it knowne whence tere so this water commeth, and drinke many or drinke few of it, it is alwaies at the fame flay, and fo it lerueth not onely for a Fountaine, but also for a great maine River : and it happeneth five hun- Note, Com-

dred persons to come to the foot of it, and there is harbour for them all , they drinke and wash pare this with all that they will, and they never want water; it is very favoury and cleare, and a great remedie those mentioned by A. Balk. for them that travell into the Mayne, when they can finde no other water. In this Countrie of Brafil are Groues, wherein are found trees of great bigneffe and length, Of the Trees whereof they make very great Canoas, of feuen or eight spanues broad in hollownesse, and of that serue for fiftie spannes and more in length, which beare a load like a great Barke, and doe carrie twentie timber. or thirtie Rowers of a fide; they make likewife great Beames for the Sugar-mills. There are many forts of wood incorruptible that putting it in the ground it never rotteth , and others let 40 in water are every day greener and stronger. There is a holy wood of certaine white wants.

whereof are made very faire Bed-steads and rich. The Brafill wood whereof the red lake is made, and other woods of divers colours, whereof divers Inkes of great effreme are made, and all turned and carued workes. There be finelling woods, as the lararanda, and other kindes of great price and esteeme, there are found white Sandalos or Dates, in great quantitie. The wood of Aquilla, and in great abundance, that ships are made of it. Cedars; wood of Augolin, and the Cedars and Nutmeg tree, though these woods are not so fine, and of so great smell as those of India, yet they Nutmegs. want but a little, and are of great price and esteeme.

Of the Herbes that reeld fruit, and are eaten.

50 THe ordinary food of this Country, that serueth for Bread, is called Mandioca, and they are Mandioca certaine rootes like Carrots, though they are greater and longer : thele shoot out certaine flemmes or branches, and growe to the height of fifteene spannes. Their branches are very tender, and have a white pith within, and at every franne it hath certaine joynts, and of this bigneffe they are broken and fet in the ground as much as is sufficient for to hold them yo and within fixe or nine moneths have so big rootes that they serve for food. This Mandioca contayneth many kindes in it felfe, and all are eaten, and they are preferred under the earth three, foure, or vnto eight yeeres, and needs no feafoning, for they doe no more but take them out and make fresh meate every day, and the longer they are under the earth the bigger they growe, and yeeld 60 the more.

It hath fome things worth the noting, that is, man except, all creatures defire to eate it raw, The inyce is and it fatteneth them, and nourisheth them exceedingly, but if when it is crushed, they doe posson, drinke that water alone by it telle, they have no more life then while it commeth to the ftomacke. Of these rootes crushed and grated they make a Meale that is eaten, it is also layd in steepe till it corrupt, and then cleanfed and crushed, they make also a Flowre, and certains Cakes like children very white and delicate. This roote after it is steeped in water, made in balls with the hands, they fet it you hurdles at the smoake, where it drieth in such manner that it is kept without corrupting, as long as they lift, and after fcraped and stamped in certaine great traves, and fifted, there remayneth a Flowre whiter then of Wheate, of the which being mingled in a certaine quantitie with the raw, they make a certaine Bifquet, which they call Of the warre, and it ferueth the Indians and the Portugals by Sea, and when they zoe to warre, as Bisket. Another Bisket bread is made of very water of the greene Mandioca, if they let it congeale, and dry it at the Sunne or at the fire; this is about all most white and for pleasing and delicate, that it is not made for every one. Of this Mandioca dryed at the smoake they 10 make many forts of broaths, which they call Mingaos, to healthfull and delicate that they give them to them that are ficke of a Feauer, in flead of Caudles and Restoratines, and of the fame they make Cakes. Simnels, Frutters, little Pyes, Cheef-cakes of Sugar, &c. And mingled with the flowre of Millet, or of Rice, they make leauened bread, that it feemeth of Whear. This fame Mandioca dryed at the smoake, is a great remedie against poison, chiefely of Snakes. Of this Mandacca there is one which they call Appins, which contayneth vinder it felfer many Other kindes. kindes. This killeth not raw, and boyled or roited is of a good tafte, and of it they make Flowre or Cakes . &c. The Indians makes Wines of it, and it is fo fresh and medicinable for the Liver, that to it is attributed not to have among them any difeafed of the Liver. A certains

29999 2

kinde of Tannas doe eate the poisonous Mandisca raw, and it doth them no hurt, because they 20 The boughs of this herbe or tree, is the feed it felfe, for the stalkes of it are planted, the leaves in time of need boyled doe ferue for food. The herbe Nana is very common, it is like the herbe Aloes, and and hath fuch leaves, but not fo thicke, and all round about full of very sharpe prickles; in the middest of this herbe groweth a fruit like a Pine-apple, all full of flowers of divers colours, and very faire, and at the foot grow foure or fine forigs, which are planted; the fruit is very smelling, pleasant and one of the best of the world, very full of inyce, and pleasant, it hath the taste of a Mellon, though better and more smelling, it is good for them that are troubled with the Stone, and it is very prejudiciall for Feauers. The Indians doe make Wine of this fruit, very strong, and of a good taste, the buske to wasteth much the Iron at the dressing of it, and the juyce taketh away the spottes from the clothes. There is fo great abundance of this fruit, that they fat their Hogs with it, and regard it not for the great abundance, they are also kept preserved, and raw they helpe the Sea-sicke at Sea, and with Wine in the morning they are medicinable.

Pacoba is the Fig-tree which they call Adams, it is neither tree nor herbe, for on the one fide it becommeth very bigge, and groweth to twenty quarters long, the stalke is very soft and full of pores; the leaves that it hath are most faire, and some a fathome long and more, all of them raced like the Veluet of Braganca, so smooth that they write on them, and so greene, coole, and fresh, that one sicke of a Feauer lying downe vpon them, the Feauer is mitigated with their cooleneile. They are very fresh for to dresse the houses, and the Churches. This herbe beareth in 40 every foote many impes, and every one of them beareth a cluster of a certaine fruit like Figs, which hath fometimes about two hundred, and when they are ripe, the foote is cut whereon the cluster hangeth, and the rest doe growe and so they goe multiplying ad infinitum, the fruit is laid to ripen, and becommeth very yellow, of a good tafte, and healthfull, especially for the ficke of a Feauer, and for him that spitteth bloud, and rosted they are very pleasant and healthfull. It is an ordinary fruit whereof the Gardens are full, and there is of them all the yeere.

Murucuja,

The herbes Murucuia are very faire, especially in their flowers: they runne vpon a wall, and up the trees like Iuie, the leaves beaten with a little Verdigreafe is an onely remedie for old vicers, and the Poxe, it beareth a round fruit like Oranges, other like Egges, some yellow, some blacke, and of other divers colours and kindes. Within they have a certaine substance of ker- 50 nels and inyce with a certaine filme that couereth them, and altogether is eaten, it is of a good taile, and it is somewhat tart, and it is a fruit of some account.

In this Country are many other kindes of fruits, as Deaw-berries, blacke and red. Potatoes, Brafilian plants, and other rootes which they call Mangara, another called Cara, that is like to Turneps, and the Rones of the earth. Of the Potatoes they make bread , and divers sweet meats , their Indians have many other Pulfes, vz. Beanes, more healthfull and better then those of Partne all, and in great abundance, many kindes of Pumpions, and some so big, that they vie them for veffels to carie water, and they hold two peckes or more, French Beanes of many kindes, they are toothsome, and like to them of Portugall, Millet of many forts, and of it they make Bread, Wine, and it is eaten tofted, and with it they fatten their Horfes, Swine, and Hennes, and there are cer- 60 taine Taiaobas, that are like Cabiges, and they cause to purge. And an herbe called Iambig, the onely remedie for them that are ficke of the Liuer, and the Stone, there are also many forts of Pepper, that give a good tafte in the eating.

leigence is the Mechagan of the Antilles, they are certaine rootes, long like Radice, but of a good bignesse, they serve for a purge, this roote is taken beaten in wine or water for the Ague: it is taken preserued in Sugar like Marmalate, it is boiled with a Henne, causeth great thirst bue A purge. is profitable and of great operation.

lepecaya, or Pigaya is profitable for the bloudie Fluxe ; the stalke is a quarter long, and the Fortheblondy roots of another, or more, it hath onely foure or fine leanes, it smelleth much wherefore it is, Fluxe, but the smell is strong and terrible, this roote beaten, and put in water all night at the deaw. and in the morning if this water with the fame roote beaten and ftrained be drunke, onely the water, it caufeth prefently to purge in such fort, that the laske ceafeth altogether It is but a little while fince the herbe Carapia was found, it is an only remedie for whatfoeuer A remedie for 10 poison, especially of Snakes, and so it is called the Snakes berbe, and it is as good a remedie as the Poyson. Unicorne and Bada, Bezar stone, or Coco of Maldina; nothing profiteth but the roote, which is flender, and in the middeft maketh a knot like a button, this beaten, and put in water and drunke. it killeth the poison of Snakes; It is also a great remedie for the wounds with the Arrowes that are poiloned, when any is hurt he remaineth feareleffe and fecure, drinking the water of this more, it is also a great remedie for the Feauer, continuing it and drinking of it tome mornings. this herbe fmelleth like the Fig-tree leaves of Spaine;

The herbe Tyrogui or Tarerogus is a principall remedie for the bloudie Fluxe, the roots are all Tyrogui or Tare The herbe 1 graque of 1 arraque is a principal tendent to the flowers are red, and draw some- resqui iagged, the branches very slender, the leaves are like Basill; the flowers are red, and draw some- For the bloudy what to a ruddle colour, and they growe in the very points. Of this there is great abundance, Fluxe, 20 when it is eathered it is vellow, and being dried it turneth white, it is taken in the fame manner that the former. The Indians perfume themselves with this herbe when they are ficke, that they may not die, and for a certaine licknesse that is common in the Countrie, and it is called the ficknesse of the worme *, it is a great remedie; it serueth to kill the worme in the Oxen and * Perhaps the Swine, and for Empostumes. This herbe is as withered all night, and as affeepe, and as foone as wome in the the Sunne rifeth, it openeth againe, and flutteth againe when it is fet.

The herbe Embegnacu ferueth much for the Fluxe of bloud, especially in women; the toots mentioned by The nerve Emergences trucked and the state of the state o Cordes are made, and Cables for thips, and they are long lasting, for in the water it wastetli For the Fines greene. This being taken, to wir, the barke of it, and perfuming the partie in the place of the of bload.

30 Fluxe, it ceafeth prefently.

Cas obetings is a small herbe, hath few leaves, which it putteth forth even from the ground, Cas obetings. white vinderneath, and greene aboue, beares a flower as big as a hafell Nut; the roots and the Forwounds, leages stamped are an excellent remedie for whatsoever wounds, they vie the leafe also vistamped, which being laid to the wound cleaueth fast, and healeth it.

Cobaura terueth for old fores that have already no other remedie, it is laid beaten and burne cobaura. in the wound, and eateth presently all the Canker, and bringeth a new skinne, it is also laid to. For woundse onely the leafe beaten to skinne the place.

The Holy berbe ferueth for divers difeases, as wounds, and coughs, the rheume, &c. and prin- The Holy berbe cipally it ferueth for the ficke of the head, the ftomacke, and for the shortnesse of breath, or the or Tobacco. 40 Chine-cough. In this Countrie they make certaine Coffines of Palme-tree leaves, and being full difeases. of this herbe dried and fetting it on fire at the one end, they put the other in the mouth and drinke the smoake, it is one of the delicates and dainties of this Countrie; and all the Countrymen, and even the Portugals are even loft for it, and it is their great vice, to bee all day and all night laid in their Nets, to drinke this smoake, and are drunke with it as if it were with wine.

Guaraquimiya is the Mirtle tree of Portugall, and besides other good properties that it hath, For the worms like the Broome-rape, the feed of it is the onely remedie for the Body-wormes, and ordinarily they that eate it doe voide them prefently.

Camaracasimbae is like to the Sylvas of Portugall, it is boyled in water, and the faid water is camaracasimbae the onely remedy for icabbes, the poxe, and new wounds, and when the wounds are cored with For icabs, and 50 the leaves of the Fig-tree spoken of in the title of the Trees, they wash it with the water of the Poxe. this herbe, whole flower is most faire, it feemeth a yellow and red Ielly-flower, and smelleth of Muske, and of these they make Pot-boughs and Nose-gayes for the Altars.

Aipo is the very Smaledge of Portugall, and hath the vertues, it is found onely about the Sea- Aipo, coast, especially in the River of lanuarse, and for this cause it is sharper, and not so sweet in the talte as that of Portugall, it may be because of the Seas.

There is great store of Meade-mallow in this Country, it hath the same effects, it hath cer- Meade-Mall taine flowers as big as a Tetter, of a very faire red, that they feeme Rofes of Portugall, Caragnata 15 a certaine kinde of thitle, they beare a certaine fruit of a finger long and yellow, Caragnata raw they make the lips to blifter, boiled or rofted they doe no harme, but any woman with child 60 that eaceth them doth prefently abort her childe ordinarily. There bee other Caragnatas, that It confether beare certaine leaves like Fl. gs very long, of two or three fathoms, and beare a certaine Harti- abort. chocke like the Nana, but they ta'te not well; thefe leaves laid in fteepe doe yeeld a very fine Flaxe, vnto the threed to lowe withall, and for fifting lines.

Timbo are certaine wonderfull herbes, that growe from the earth like a string vuto the high- Baite for fishes called.

40

est top of the Mulberie trees, where they are, and some growe close to the tree like Iuie: they are very strong, and serue for bindings, and some are as big as a mans leg, and winde them never fo hard they never breake, the barke of these is very fine poilon, and serveth for a baite to kill the fish, and it is to throng, that in the Rivers wherein it is east it leaveth not a fish alive as farre as it hath his vertue, and of these there be many sorts, and profitable as well for binders, as for

Other herbes there be also that serue for medicines, as are Sow-thistles, Purcelane, Beets, Endine. Anenca, Bafill , and of all there is great abundance , though these have not the perfection of those of Spaine; there want no wilde Mulberies white and blacke, like those of Porsugal, and great store of good Parsley, about the strands, whereof a good conferue is made; they 10 want no Pot-flowers.

Of smelling herbes in this Countrie there are many, Mintes, or wilde Sage, especially in Pia ratinga, they inell not fo well as those of Portugal, they have also cartaine French Mallowes. with certaine faire and pleasant flowers which ferue for Nosegaies. Many Lillies there are, not fo fine nor fo red as those of the Kingdome, and some white ones are also found.

Sleeping herb. There groweth here in the Spring, an herbe that fleepeth, and is like the Mares of Portneall. and as that doth wither and fleepe after Sun-fet, and when it rifeth it openeth againe, and fleweth her beautie; the smell is somewhat strange. There is also another tree that sleepeth in the fame manner, and beareth certaine fine flowers, but they have no great fmell.

Zrus vina : See The Quicke berbe is of a good height, and hath boughes, and certaine iagged leaves, of a plea- 28 M.Harcourt his fant greene, it is called Quicke berbe, becaule it is so quicke and sensible, that as soone as it is touched with the hand or with any other thing, presently it hangeth the head, and withereth as if they had done it great injurie, and within a little while it commeth to his perfection, and as many times it is touched it withereth, and commeth againe to himfelfe as before.

Many other herbes there be like Origanum, and many other fundrie flowers, but it feemeth that this Clymate, either for the many waters, or because of the Sunne, insuseth no smell in the herbes, rather it feemes to take it away. Of the Canes,

In this Countrie are many forts of Canes, and Tacmers it as big as a mans thigh; others which haue ioynts a fathome long, others whereof they make their Arrowes, and are esteemed, Others folong that they have three or foure Lances in length, thefe growe among the Woods, and as so there are many, so there are many and long beds of Canes of many leagues, and as they growe among the trees, they goe to feeke the Sunne, and therefore are fo long,

Of the Fishes that swimme in the salt water: also Shel-fishes, Trees and Fowles of the Sea : of Rivers and the Creatures which live therein; and the Beasts and Plants brought thisber out of Portugall.

He Oxe-fish in these parts is a Royall fish, esteemed about all other fishes, very healthfull in eating, and of a good tafte, either falted or fresh: And it rather feemeth Beefe then Fish, and some doubts there were, because it was eaten on fish dayes; the flesh is all grained like Beefe, and so it is cut in slices, and they dresse it at the smoake like Bacon, or hanged Beefe. In the tafte, if it be eaten or fodden with Cabidge, or other herbes, it tafteth like Beefe, and dreft in fowce it tafteth like Mutton; and rofted, both in smell, tafte, and fatnesse it is like Porke, and hath fat also.

The Fish in his making seemeth a land creature, and chiefly an Oxe, the head is altogether of 50 an Oxe. with skinne and haire, eares, eyes, cheekes and tongue; the eyes are exceeding small for the bodie it hath, he shutteth and openeth them when hee listeth, which other fishes doe not; ouer the ventsit hath two skinnes wherewith he closeth them, and by them he breatheth, and it cannot beelong vinder water without breathing, it hath no more nor other finnes but the taile; which is all round and close; the bodie is of a great bignesse, all full of yellow haires, it hath two armes of a cubice long, with two hands like round peeles, and on them he hath five fingers all close one to another, and every finger hath his nayle like a mans nayle. Under these armes the female have two paps, wherewith thee bringeth up her young; the beareth but one at once: the inward part and the inwards of this fifth are like an Oxes, with liner, and lights, &cc. In the head ouer the eyes meere the braines it hath two stones of a good bignesse, white and heavie, 62 they are of great efteeme, and are the onely remedie for the Sione : for beaten to powder and dranke in wine or water it caufeth to void the flone, as it happened that giving it to a person to drinke, kauing other many experiences, within one houre hee voided a stone as bigge as an Almond, and remained found, being before at the point of death. The bones of this fifth are all maffie and white like Iuwie. They make of it great store of * Butter, they take two leaues as from a * Or Greace hogge; and the most of the Butter it hath in the taile, which being of a yard or more in length, or Oile : fo ais ie melcethall into Butter, it liath a good taite, and for to dreffe or frie fish , and for light; It is ter. Maniega in verie good alle for Medicines, as the Hogges Greafe, it is white and fmelleth well, it hath no the Partugall imell of h h. Tois filh is taken with Harping-Irons; it is found in the falt Rivers, neere the fresh word. water : is fredeth on an herbe that groweth by the borders, and within the Rivers , and where this herby groweth, and neere the Springs of fresh water, whereof hee onely drinketh. They are verie great, fome weigh tenne, others fifteeene hundred, and fuch a fift hath beene taken, that an hundred men could not get it out of the water, but they broke it wo there where it

The fith Beympire is the storgeon of Peringall, and fo it is held and eftermed of heere as Beympire. a royall fift : it is very healthfull, fat, and of a good tafte, they bee infinite , and some of their rowes area foan in companie about; their fiftes are taken in the bread hea, with a hooke and line.

it is fix or feuen frances long; the bodie is round, blacke on the backe and the belly white. The Oxe-cie is like the Tannyes of Spaine, as well in higheste as in making inward as outward: The Oxe cie. it is verie fat, it hath sometime betweene leafe and leafe courses of tat as thicke as a Portugall I Telerithey are cut in backes and bellies like the Timmer, and of them is made great flore and d Or foure verie good . Butter, it bath leaves like a Hogge, is a fish efteemed and of a good taffe, it defer-finllings a ueth well the name of One filh, as well in his beautie, as his bigneffe, the cies are properly like e Or Greson an Oxe, and therefore it hath this name. The fish Camurani is also a royall fish, and esteemed in these pares, the graine of it all in flakes, Camurani, enterlarded with fat and greafe, and of a good tafte, it bath many bones through all the bodie, and is dang rous in eating, Is hath a finne on the backe, which is carries alwaies raifed vp wards. it is of two or three quarters long, the fifth is long of twelve and thirteene quarters in length and of a good bignesie, and two men naue much adoe to lift up one of them , they are taken with Harping Irons, there are many of them, and much ! Oile is made of them.

This wilde fish, which the indians call Pinaembu, (that is, a fift that fuereath, the reason is, be- The wild fish. caule wherefocuer it is, is heard by his fnorting) is of a good bigateffe, about eight or nine spanies, it is of a good tafte, and efteemed; it hath in the mouth two ftones as broad as a hand, exceeding to ftrange, with them they breake the Wilkes whereof they feed, the Indians citeeme the ftones and weare them about their neckes as a lewell.

There are many other fifthes of fundric kinds, that are not in Spaine, and commonly of a good tafte and healthfull. Of the fiftes of Portugall in these parts are also many, to wit, a fish called Tainbas, and a great multitude, and it hath beene tried that the Tamba beeing fresh, and laid so the flinging of a Snake isangeber Vnicorne. There want no Sea-breames, a filh called Chiebarros, it is like a Mackerill, Pargos, or great Sea-breames, Sarges, other Sea-breames, Garates, Darader) the Needle-fish, Cod-lishes, but these are rare, Palshards like them of Spaire, are found at formetimes in the River of lamustie, and the most parts of the South, Scates, and Rayes; their Rayes some haue in their mouth two bones, and breake with them the Wilkes.

All thele fishes are so healthfull that in these parts they are eaten after Milke, after flesh, and all a whole Lent without Oile or Vineger, and it causeth no scabs nor other diseases as in Europe, but rather it is given to the ficke, though they have a Feuer, or be very weake.

Because this Coast is full of many Bayes, Nookes, and Creekes, there came greet flore of The Whale. Whales to these Concares chiefly from May to September, when they spawne and bring up their young, and also because they come to the great store of fish that at this time there is in this Creekes. They are sometime so many that ye may see fortie or fiftie together, men doe lay that they doe caft the Amber that they find in the Sea, and whereof they also feed, and therefore is some of it found in this Coast; others doe say that the Sea it felfe doch cast it on the shoares with Ambergise, great tempelts, and commonly it is found after a great storme, and all the beasts doe eate of this 60 Amber, and great diligence is needfull after the tempests that they may not find it caten. It is very dangerous to faile in small Barkes along this Coast, for besides other dangers, the Whales onerwhelme many, if they heare any ringing, they are so sared as Horses when they heare the found of a Deumme, and are as fierce as Lions, many runne vpon the shoare, and great store of Ode is made of them. They have the head open, and there they breathe, and cast at once great ftore of water, and fcatter it fo in the Aire as if it were a great showre.

There is great flore of the Sword-fishes, they are great and fierce, for they have a snowt like The Sword fish a Sword, all full of teeth round about, verie sharpe, and as bigge as Dogges teeth or bigger; they are a mans hand or more, and the length is according to the greatnesse of the fish. Some of these snowes or Swords are of eight or ten spannes long; with these they make a cruell battell with 60 the Whales, for raifing it voward, and striking formany strokes on her, and totals that it is a Battle with wonderfull thing : the Sharkes refore to the bloud, and fucke it in fuch fort till the dieth, and fo Whaiesmany are found dead and cut in pieces. With this snowt also they eatch the fishes whereof they feed. The Indians vie thele ino wts when they are young for to beate their children, and to feare them when they are disobedient voto them.

Ιn

A Tortoile.

In this Coast are many Tortoises; there are many taken, whereof there are coffers, boxes for the hoalts, cups, &c. These Tortoises doe lay their egges in the fands, and they lay 200, or 200. egges at a time, they are as bigge as Hens egges, verie white and round as balles: they hide thefe egges in the fand, and when the young are hatcht, prefently they goe to the water, where they are nourshed, the egges also are eaten. They have this propertie, that though you boile or roaft them the white is ever foft, the inwards are like a Hogges; and they have vents where through they breathe. They have another particularitie, that when yee turne them on their belly, they turne prefently toward the Sea, neither can they line otherwife. Some of them are to bigge that of their shels they make whole Targets, and one was taken your this Coast so bigge, that twentie men could not lift, nor poife it from the ground.

Tuberens, or

Voon this Coast are many forts of Sharkes, and in it are found fixe or feven kinds of them : ie is a very fierce and cruell fifth, and kils many perions, especially those that swimme. The Riners are full of them; they are so cruell that it happened one to runne after an Indian that went in a Boate, and put him in such a straight, that the young man leaping ashoare, the Sharke leapt after him thinking to have caught him, and fell on drie land where they killed him. In the broad Sea where also are many, they kill them with Snares, and Harping Irons, and they are to eager. greedie, and love fleih, and they are fo denouring, that they find in their bellies, skinnes, preces of cloth, thirts and breeches that fall from the Sailers, they goe ordinarily accompanied with certaine verie faire fishes of divers colours called Pelgrames. They make great store of Oile of them. and the Indians vie the teeth in their Arrowes, because they are verie sharpe, cruell, and vene. mous, and verie feldome, or with great difficultie are they healed that are hurt with them, Pelgrimes.

The flying fish. The flying fishes are ordinarily of a spanne long or little more, it hash the eies veriefaire, of a certaine verie gallant picture, that beautifies it much, and doe feeme precious ftones, the head is alto very faire, it hath wings like Reere-mice, but of a filter hue; they are much perfecured of the other files , and for to escape they flie in flockes, like Stares, or Sparrowes, but they flie not verie high, they are also good to eat, and when they flie they glad the Sailers, and many times they fall in the thip, and come in at the Cabbin windowes.

Botos and Toninas, are two kinds of Porpoifes. Of these fishes there are great abundance, as Soles and Salmonets. A little red fift very daintie in Spaine. Of the vene-mous fiftes.

Toad fiith

deadly.

They find also in this Coast Salmonets, but they are rare, and not so esteemed, nor of so good 20 a tafte as those of Europe. The Soles of these parts are verse rare, they have this propertie, that when they are to be boiled or fried they beate them, and the more throakes they give them, the stiffer they are, and the better to eate, and if they beate them not , they are loft and no-

As in this Countrie of Brafillare many Snakes, and venemous Wormes, whereof wee will speake hereafter, there are likewise many fishes verie venemous,

The Toad fish, in their Language, Amayaca, is a small fish, a spanne long, painted, it hath faire eies, taking it out of the water it (norteth verie much, and cutteth the hookes, and out of the water it (welleth much, all the poiton lies in the skinne, and flaving they eate it : but eating it with the skinne it killeth. It chanced a young man to eate one with the skinne, who died 14 almost suddenly; the Father faid, I will eate the fish that killed my Sonne, and eating of it died also presently, it is a great poison for Rats, for those that eare of it doe die presently.

There is another kind of Toad fish of the lame fashion that the other, but it hath many cruell prickles, as a Hedge-hogger it fnorteth, and swelleth out of the water; the skinne also killeth, especially the prickles, because they are verie venemous, fleating it, it is eaten, and it is good for the bloudie Fluxe. There is another Toad fifth, called in their tongue, Itanga, it is three square, and the bodie such, that all of it is like a Dagger; it is faire, it hath the eies bluish, it is eaten fleade; the poi fon confifteth in the skinne, livers, guts, and bones, whatfoever creature doth eate it, dieth.

Puraque, or Torpedo, See

Purague is like the Scate, it hath such vertue that if any touch it, he remaineth shaking as one 50 that bath the Palife, and touching it with a flicke, or other thing it benummeth prefently him that toucheth it, and while he holdeth the flicke ouer him, the arme that holdeth the flicke is benummed, and afleepe; it is taken with flue-nets, and with casting Nets it maketh all the bodie tremble, and benummes it with the paine, but beeing dead it is eaten, and it hath no poilon.

Caramera

The Caramuru are like the Sea Snakes of Portugall, of ten or fifteene spans long, very fat, and roafted taile like Pigge; their have firange teeth, and many men are may med by their bytings, and the hand or foot where they were bitten, doe rot away. It hath ouer all the bodie many prickels. The Countrimen fay that they engender with the Snakes; for they finde them many times knie with them, and many in the fands tarrying for the Sea Snakes.

Amoreaty is like the Toad fifth, it is full of prickels, and thruits himlelfe under the fand along the shoore, and prickes the foot or hand underneath that toucheth it, and it hath no other remedie but only by fire.

Amaga curub is round and of the bignefic of the & Bugalles of Spaine, and are very venemous, it hath the bodie full of Wartes, and therefore it is called Carab, that is to fay, a Wart in their Language.

Irreparatinga, is a Snake that liveth in the Sea; her manner of living is to lie very fill, and whatforuer high thing that toucheth is; remaineth fo falt flicking to it that in no wife it can firre, and to he feedeen and fustaines himfelfe. Sometimes it commeth out of the Sea, and becommeth very fmall, and as foone as it is toucht it flicketh faft , and if they goe with the other hand to lofe themfelues, they remaine also fast by it, and then it becommeth as bigge as a great Cable, and to carrieth the perion to the Sea, and eateth it, and because it cleaveth to fast, it is called Terepomone, that is to fay, a thing that cleaneth fast.

CHAPA. S.6. Mermen, Cutiles, Crabs of fundry kinds, Oysters.

Finally, there are many kinds of very venomous files in the Sea, that have fo vehiment a notion, that ordinatily none escapeth that eateth or toucheth them.

politon, sace on the Sea, are called in their language Tpapiapra; the men of the country are foafraid of them, that many of the Sea, are called in their language Tpapiapra; the men of the country are foafraid of them, that many of them die only with the thought of them, & none that feeth them Monfitts of fcapeth. Some that died already, being domanded the onife faid, that they had feene this Monfter, the Sea, they properly are like men, of a good flature, but their eies are very hollow. The Female are like women they have long have, and are beautiful; these Monsters are found in the bars of the fresh Riversin lagourpe, feuen or eight leagues from the Bay have many bin found, & in the veere 82. an Indian going to fish, was chased by one, and fleeing in a Canoa told it to his Mafter. The Mafter for to animate the Indian, would needs go fee the Monfter, & being careleffe with one hand out of the Canoa, it catche hold of him, and carried him away, and hee was never feene againe, and in the same weere died an Indian of Francische Lorengo Cuerro. In Pore Secure are some seene, which 30 have killed fome Indians alreadie, the manner of their killing is to embrace themselves with the person so strongly, kishing, and grasping is hard to it selfe that they crush it in pieces remaining whole, and when they perceive it dead, they give fome fighings in flew of forrow, and letting them goe they runne away, and if they carrie any they eate onely the eies, the nofe, the points of the fingers and toes, and prinie members, and fo ordinarily they are found on the fands with thefe things miffing.

The Seas of these parts are very plentiful of Cunles, this kind of fish hath a hood glwaies full Of the Shelof very blacke Inke : this is their defence from the greater fishes, for when they come to catch them they cast that Inke before their eies, and the water becommeth very blacke, and then hee goes his waies. They take them with flooting at them, but they baite them first, they are also 30 taken with lights by night. For to exte them they beate them, and the more, the forter they are, and of better tafte.

Apula is a shel-fish like the joint of a Cane : it is rare, it is eaten, and drinking it fasting in Apula. Powder, a fouereigne remedie for the Mile or Spleene.

In these parts are infinite of the Sea-formes, and are great, as broad as a hat; they have many Sea-formes, foulds wherewith they catch the fifth, and resemble the Barberie Purses, they are not eaten; if they fting any one, they cause great paines, and cause to weepe, and so faid an Indian that was flung with one of them, that he had received many wounds with Arrowes, but never wept till then; they are neuer feene but in neape tides (or flow waters, therefore the Portugals call them Agnas mortas, or Dead waters.)

The Vca is a kind of Crab found in the mire, and they are infinite, and the foode of all this Sea Crabs. Countrie, chiefly for the flaues of Guinea, and the Indians of the Countrie, they have a good Ve. tafte, vpon them is good drinking cold water. They have a particularitie to bee noted, that when they cast their shell they goe into their holes, and there they are two or three moneths, and casting the shell, mouthes and feet, they come so out, and they grow againe as before.

Guainumn is a kind of Crabs fo great, that a mans legge will goe into their mouth. They Guainumn, are good to eate; when it doth thunder they come out of their holes, and make fo great a noile the one with the other, that men haue gone out with their weapons, thinking they had beene enemies : if they doe eate a certaine herbe, who some reateth them then dieth, these are of the Land, but keepe in holes neere the Sea fide.

The Aratu Crabs keepe in the trunkes of the trees, that grow in the Oowes of the Sea, when Aratu. thay find a Cockle that gapeth, they feeke presently some little stone, and very cunningly put it into the Cockle; the Cockle shutteth presently, and not beeing able because of the little stone it hath within, they with their mouthes doe take out the fish and eate it.

There are ten or twelue kinds of Crabs in this Countrie, and as I haue faid, they are so many in Ten or twelue number, and so healthfull, that all are eaten, especially of the Indians, &cc.

The Oysters are many, and some are very great, and the meate is as broad as the palme of the Oysters. hand; in thele are some Pearles found very rich, in other smaller arealso very fine Pearles found. The Indians in old time came to the Sea for Oysters, and got so many that they made great Hils of the shels, and carried the fishes they carried away for to cate all the yeere; vpon these Hilsby the continuance of time grew great Groues of Trees and very thicke and high, and the Portugals discouered some, and euery day goe discouering others anew, and of these shels they make lime; Note for lime. and of one only heape was part of the Colledge of the Bay made, the Palaces of the Gouernour, and many other buildings, and yet it is not ended, the lime is very white, good forto garnish and Mufeles.

There want no Muicles in this Countriesthey ferue the Indians and the Portugals for Spoones and Knines, they have a taire filter colour g in them is found fome feed Pearle; there is a small kind of them, whereon the Sea-guls doe feed, and because they cannot breake them, they have fuch a naturall inftinct that taking them up into the Aire, they let them fall fo many times till they breake it, and then they eate them.

Pereminkles.

The Pereminkles are very tattefull, and good in this Countrie, and fome feed Pearle is found in them, and fo of the Pereminkles, and of the Muscles there is great store, of many and fundrie kinds.

The greatest Wilker which are called Gnatapiggoogn, that is, a great Wilke, are much effected of the Indians, for of them they make their Trum pets, Furnitures, Beades, Brooches, Earerines, and Gloues for the children, and they are of fuch effectme among them, that for one they will give any one person that they have captine; and the Partugals gave in olde time a Crowne for one : they are as white as luone, and many of them are of two quarters broad, and one in length.

The Pirasmaig are also eaten, and of the shelles they make their Beades : and for fo many fathome they give a perion. Or these the Sea casteth up sometimes great heapes, a wonderfull thing. Of Wilker and Skallops there is great quantitie in this Countrie, very faire, and to bece-Reemed, of fundrie kinds.

They find great flore of white-stone Corrall under water, it groweth like small Trees all in leaues, and Canes as the red Corrall of India; and if this also were to, there would be great riches in this Countrie, for the great abundance there is of it, it is very white, it is gotten with difficultie, they make lime of it also.

Prowner.

There are great multitudes of Praunes, because this Coast is almost all enuironed with shelves, and Rockes; there are also many Sea-ruffes, and other Montiers found in the Concauties of the Rockes, great Crameffes or Crabbes like those of Europe, it seemes there bee none in

Of the Trees that 2: ow in falt-water. Mangues.

The Mangue Trees are like the Swallowes, or Willowes of Europe, there is so great quantitie of them in the armes or creeks that the Sea maketh within the Land, that many leagues of the Land 20 is of these Trees, that are watered with the tides. We trauelled I say leagues, and whole daies in the Rivers where these Trees are, and they are alwaies greene, faire and pleasant, and of many kinds. The wood is good to burne, and for to build houses, it is very heatie and hard as Iron; of the barke they make Inke, and it ferueth to tanne Leather, and they are of many kindes. Acertaine kind of them doe call certaine twigs from the top of their length some times as long as a Launce, till they come to the water, and then they cast many branches and rootes, and these branches remaine fast in the earth, and while they are greene these twigs are tender, and because they are hollow within, they make good Flutes of them. In these Creekes are a certaine kinde of Gnats called Marequis, as small as Hennes Lice, they bite in such fort, that they leave such a Wheale, finart and itching that a man cannot helpe himfelfe, for even through the clothes they an pricke, and it is a good penance, and mortification to fuffer them on a Morning, or an Evening; there is no other remedie to defend themselues from them, but to anoint themselues with dirt, or to make a great fire and fmoke.

Gnats.

In these Creekes are many Crabs, Oysters, and Water Rats, and there is one kind of these Rats, a monftrous thing, for all the day they fleepe, and wake all night.

In these Creekes the Parrets breeds, which are to many in number, and make such a noise, that it feemeth the noise of Sparrowes, or Dawes.

On the Sands they finde great store of Parsley, as good and better, then that of Portugal whereof also they make Confernes.

Birds that doe feed, and are found in the falt water.

Guiratineas

He Bird Guiratinga is white, of the bigneffe of the Cranes of Portugal; they are extreame white, and have verie long feete, the bill verie cruell and sharpe, and veriefaire, of a verie fine yellow, the legges are also verie long, betweene Red and Yellow. On the neckeit hath the finest Plume Feathers that can bee found, and they are like the Estridges Feathers

Note,

Carpera by another name Forked-tayles, are many; they are called Forked-tayles . because their taile is divided in the middle; the Indians make great account of the Feathers for the feathering of their Arrowes, and fay that they lait long, at iometimes they are verie fat, the fat is good for 60 the loofenesse. These Birds doe vie to bring newes a land of the ships, and they are so certains in this that very feldome they faile, for when they are feene, ordinarily within twentie or thirtie daies the thips doccome. GANCA

CHAP.I.S.6. Birds and fresh water Rivers. Cucurijuba a wondersul Snake. 1217

Guaca is properly the Sea-men of Portugal, their ordinarie food are Gothles, and because they Guaca. are hard, and they cannot breake them, they take them in their bill, and lecting them fall many times they breake them and eate them; of these Sea-monnes there are an infinite number of kinds. that the Trees and the firands are full of them.

Guirateonteon is called in Portugall Sould-pane, it is called Guirateonteon, that is, a Birdsbat bath Guitateonteon deadly accidents, and that dieth and liveth againe, as though it had the Falling ficknelle, and there fits are fo great that many times the Indians doe find them along the strands, and take them in their hands, and thinking they are dead doe fling them away, and they affoone as they fall doe rife and flie away, they are white and faire, and there are other kinds of thefe that have the fame

The Calcannar are as bigge as Turtle-doues, or Pigeons; the men of the Countrie fay, that they Calcanar, or lay their Egges in the Sea, and there they hatch, and breed their young t they flie not , but with Sea-flamper. their wings and feet they swimme very swiftly, they forethew great calmes and showers , and in calme weather they are so many along the shippes that the Marinets cannot tell what to doe. they are even the very ipite it felfe, and melancholy.

ey are even the very apiecis serie, and distance only.

The Appear are as bigge as a Pye-amuer, more white then red, they have a faire colour of white the appearance of the series of t besported with red, the bill is long and like a Spoone. For re catch the fish, it hath this sight; it firiketh with the foor in the water, and firetelling out his neck, tartieth for the fifth and carcheth it, and therefore the Indians fay it hath humane knowledge,

The Commons is small and gray, it hath faire eies with a verie faire red circle, it hath a firange commons note, for he that heareth it thinketh it is of a verie great bird, it beeing verie fmall; for it fingeth with the mouth, and jointly behind it maketh a noile fo founding, loud and ftrong, though not finelling verie well, that it is a wonder, it maketh this fweet Mulicke two houres before day. and at Euening till the Euening twilight be done, and ordinarily when it fingerth, foresheweth

The Guara is as bigge as a Pye-annet, it hath a long bill with a crooked point, and his feet of a Guara. quarter or span long, when it is hatched, it is blacke, and after becommeth gray, when it alreadie doth flie, it becommeth whiter then any Doue, afterward it turneth to a bright red, yetat length it becommeth redder then Scarlet it selfe, in this colour he continue th till his death, they 30 are many in quantitie, but they have no other kind. They breed well in Houses, their food is fish, flesh, and other things; their food must be alwaies in water, the Indians esteeme greatly the Feathers of these, and of them they make their Diademes, Fringes wherewith they couer the Swords they kill withall, and they make Bracelets to weare on their armes, and faften them to their haire like Rose buds, and these are their lewels, and Chaines of Gold wherewish they adorne themselues in their Feasts, and they so much esteeme, yea, they beeing so much given to eat humane fiesh, they give many times the enemies they have for to cat in change for their Feathers. These birds goe in flights, and if the Sunne doth shine on them vpon the Sands, or in the Aire, it is a faire thing to behold. Many other birds there are that do feed on the Sed, as Hearnshewer, Cormorants, and a certaine kinde of Eagles (which are our Asperalles) which would bee AO tedious to recite.

edious to recite.

The maine Rivers wherewith this Province is watered are innumerable, and some verie great. Of the fresh The maine guerrs wherewith this grounders water and Fountaines, whereof the Of the fresh and haue verie faire barres, not wanting in the Rusers, Brookes and Fountaines, whereof the Church and the Churc Countrie is verie plentifull, and the waters ordinarily are verie faire, cleere and healthfull, and things that in plentifull of infinite fishes of fundrie kinds, of the which fome are of an exteeding greatness, and them are. of great value, and verie healthfull, and are given voto the ficke for Medicines. These fishes doe the Indians catch with Nets, but ordinarily with Hooke and Line. Among these there is a royall fish of a good taste and sauour, that is verie like the Sturgeon of Spaine, this is called lan, they are of fourteene and fifteene quarters long, and fometimes bigger, and verie fat, and they make Butter (or Greafe) of them. And at sometimes the fish is so much, they fat their Hogges with it, 10 In the small Creekes are manie Shrimper, and some of a quarter and more in length, and of a verie

Fresh water Snakes (and Creatures of the water.)

He Snake Cucuryaha is the greatest, or of the greatest that are in Brasil, notable as well for greatneffe as beautic, some are taken of flue and twentie or thirtietoote long, and a yard in great Snake compafe. It hath a Chaine along the backe, of notable Pictures and veriefaire, that beginneth many wayer at the head and endeth in the Taile; it hath Teeth like a Dogge, and laying hold on a man, Cow, wonderfull. Stagge, or Hogge, winding it with certaine turnes of her Taile, it swalloweth the faid thing 60 whole. And atter the hath it to in her belly, the lets her felferor, and the Rauens and Crowes do eate her all, so that there remaineth nothing but the bones, and afterward it breedeth new flesh againe, and reneweth as before it was. The reason whereof is (say the men of the Countrie) because while it putrifieth it hath the head in the mire, and having life in the noddle they linea-gaine; and because this is known alreadie, when they finde them putrified, they seeke out the head and kill it. The manner of their feeding is to waite for their prey, either beafts or people laidealong by the waies, and when it paffeth, it winds it felfe about it, and killeth and eateth it. After they are full they sleepe in such lort, that sometimes they cut two or three pieces of their Taile, they not waking, as hath happened that after they had cut two pieces of the Taile of one of these, the next day they found her dead with two wild Bores in her belly ; and it was about twelve yards and an halfe long.

Manima.

The Snake Manima keepeth alwaies in the water, it is yet greater then the other abouefaids it is much painted ; and from his Pictures did the Gentlies of Brafil take the painting of themfelues. That Indian holds himfelfe for bleffed, that it doth flew it felfe vnto, faying, they shall line long, feeing the Marima did flew it felfe voto him.

Many other kinds of Snakes there be in the Rivers of fresh water, which I leave for breuitie fake, and because there is nothing in particular that can be faid of them.

lacere(or Gro-

The lacare Lizards are of a notable greatnesse, and some are as bigge as Dogges, their snows is like a Dogge, and to have they their Teeth verie long, they have over all the bodie certaine plates like an armed Horse, and when they arme themselves, there is no Arrow can pierce them. they are painted of divers colours, they doe no hurt to the people, but rather they take them eafile with Snares, some haue beene taken of fifteene quarters (or spans) long, and the Indians esteeme them much, and hold them for estate as the Rimbabas, that is, Dogges, or any other thing of eflate. They keepe in the water, and on the land, they lay Egges as bigge as Geefe, and so hard that firiking one against another, they tingle like Iron. Where these doe haunt they are pre- 20

fently perceived, by the great cries they give; the flesh of these smelleth very much, especially his Cods of Muske, and they are of esteeme, their dung hath some vertue, especially it is good for The laguarnen is a beaft greater then any Oxe, it hath Teeth of a great quarter long, they keepe in and out of the water, and doe kill men; they are rare; fome of them are found in the laguerucu. A great Dogge. This feemeth fome kind of the Hippopeta-Atacare. Iaguapozeba.

River of Saint Francis, and in Paraguacu. The Assespe are Woolues smaller, but much more hurtfull, for they come out of the water to watch for men , and being verie swift they kill some persons and eate them.

The lagrapopeba are the true Atters of Portugall. There is another small beaft of the bigit is called Zariguemein, thele haue rich Skinnes for Furres; and of thele 30 water beafts, there are many other kinds; some doe no hurt, others are verie fierce.

Bacapina.

The Baepapina are a certaine kind of Mermen as bigge as children, for they differ nothing from them, of these there are many and doe no harme.

There be many of the water Hogges Capigoara, and are of the bignesse of land-hogges, but Water-hogge, they differ in fashions; in the roofe of the mouth it hath a very great stone that doth serue him for great Teeth. This the Indians hold for a lewell for their children, fonnes and daughters. It hath no taile, they continue long under water, but they lodge on the Land, and in it they bring up their young; their foode is graffe, and fruites that they find along the Rivers.

In the fresh Rivers of waters are many kinde of Igta Scallops, great and small. Some are so bigge as good Siues, and ferue to fift their meale with them; other are smaller, and serue for 40

Spoones, all of them are long, and of a filuer colour, in them are fome Pearles. In the Rivers are found many of the Cagados, (a Sea bird so called) and they are so many in number, that the Tapayas doe feed fat in a certaine time of the yeere with the Egges, and doe feeke for them as for some other daintie food.

Guararich. Men dye with

There want no Frogges in the Rivers, Fountaines, Puddles, and Lakes, and they are of many kinds especially these Guararici. The feare that the Indians have thereof is a wonderfull thing, that of the onely hearing it they die, and tell them neuer fo much they have no other remedie, but let themselves die, io great is the imagination and apprehension that they take of the hearing it fing, and whatfoeuer Indian that heareth it dieth, for they fay it doth caft from it felfea brightnesse like a lightning.

All these maine Rivers have so great and so thicke Woods on the one side and the other, that they faile many leagues by them and fee no ground, on either fide, in them are many things to be told, which I omit for breuities fake.

Of the Beasts, Trees and Herbes, that came from Portugall, and doe grow and breed in Brasill.

This Brafill is alreadie another Portugall, and not speaking of China, which is much more temperate and healthfull, without great heates or colds, where the men doe line long, with few sickneiles, as the Collicke, of the Luer, the Head, the Breast, Scabe, nor any other Diseases of Portugall. Neither speaking of the Sea, which hath great flore of fish, and wholsome, nor of the things of the Land, which God hath given to this Nation, nor of many other commodities which the men haue to passe their lines withall; though the commoditie of houses is not great, for the most of them are of mud walls, and thatched, though now they beginne to make buildings of lime and flone, and tile, neither are the commodities for apparell many, because the Countrie yeeldeth no other cloth but Cotton-wooll. In this place the people are in great need. especially from the River of Januarie, vnto Saint Umcent, for want of ships to bring Merchandize and Clothes, but in the most Captaineships they are provided of all kinds of clothings and Silkes, and the men see well apparelled, and weare many Silkes and Veluets. But it is alreadie Portugall as I faid for the many Commodities that from thence doe come vnto it.

In this Province is a good breed of the Horfes, and there be alreadie great abundance of them Horfes, and very good lennets of a great price, that are worth 200, and 200. Duckets and more, and there is alreadie running at the Geefe, at the Ring, at Canes, and other Sports and Skirmifhes. and from hence they beginne to prouide Angola of Horles whereof they frand in great want.

Though this Countrie hath weake pastures, and in Port Secure is an Herbe that killeth the Kine, beaits if they doe eate it, notwithstanding there is a great number of them alreadie, and all Brafill is full of great Heards, and some have soo, some a 1000, heads, especially in the fields of Piratininga, because it hath good pastures, and are like to them of Portugal, and it is a pleasant thing to fee the young breed that is there.

The Swine doe like very well heere, and they beginne to have great multitudes, and heere it Swines is the best flesh of all, yea, better then Hennes flesh, and it is given to the ficke, and hath a very

Vnto the River of Innuarie are many sheepe found alreadie, and Weathers, and they fatten so Sheepe much that they burit with fatnesse : it is not here so good flesh as in Portugall.

The Goates are yet but few, but yet they like well in this Countrie, and doe multiply verie Goates, much, and in a short time there will be a great mulcitude.

The Hennes are infinite, and greater then in the Realme of Portugall, and because the Coun- Hennes trie is temperate they breed well, and the Indians doe esteeme them, and breed them within the Maine, three hundred and foure hundred leagues, the fielh here is not fo good as in the

The Hennes of Pern, like well in this Countrie, and there is great abundance of them, and Turkies; there is no Banquet where they are not a dish.

The Geefe doe like well in this Countrie, and are in great abundance, there is also here and. Geefe and ther kind of the Countrie it felfe, and are farre greater and fairer.

The Dogges haue multiplied much in this Countrie, and are of many kindes; they are effee- Dogges, med heere ai well of the Portugals which brought them, as of the Indians that efteeme them aboue all the things they have : because they helpe them in their hunting, and are domesticall creatures, and so the women doe carrie them on their backe from one place to another, and nourish them as Children, and give them sucke at the breast.

Trees with prickles, as Orenges, Pomecitrons, Limons * of both kinds, of fundrie forts do Trees; grow well in this Countrie, which almost all the yeere have fruit , and there are so great Oren- "For one kind ges and Pomecitron Groues, that even among the Woods they grow, and the abundance is fo are called Li-40 great of those things that they are not fet by. They have a great enemie, the Ants, notwith- the Female, standing there is great abundance, without euer being watered, and as there wanteth no Sugar, they make infinite Conferues, to wit, of Citrons, Limons, the flowres, &c.

The Fig-trees grow verie well heere, and there bee many kindes, as long Figges, blacke Fig-trees. Figges, Figge-Dates, and many other kinds, to the River of Ianuarie, that are hotter ground, they yeeld two crops in the yeere.

In the River of lanuarie and Saint Vincent, in the fields of Piratinings, doe grow many Quinces, Quinces, and yeeld foure crops a yeere, one after another, and there are men that with verie few Quince Trees doe gather, ten, and twelve thousand Quinces, and here they make great store of Marmelets and verie shortly will those of the Iland of Madera be spared.

There are many force of Grapes, as Feriads, Bones, Baftard, Greene, and Gallizian Grapes, and Vines, 50 many other. To the River of Landarie they have all the yeere Grapes, if they will have them, for if they cut them euerie moneth, they beare euerie moneth Grapes successively. In the River of Ianuarie especially in Piratinings, are Vineyards, and are so loaden that they bow to the ground, they yeeld but one crop. They beginne alreadie to make Wine, though with trouble to preferue it, for in wood the Worme doth prefently eatethorow, and earthen veffels they have none, but seeke remedies of their owne, and doe continue it, and in a short space they will

In the River of I annarie and Piratminga, are many Roses; one, Damaske Roses, whereof they Roses, diftill great store of Role-water, and Conterue of Roles for to purge, and not to purge, for of 60 the other they have not, they feethe the Damaske Roles in water, and straining them they make Conserue of Roses very good wherewith they doe not purge.

Muske Melons want not in many Captaine ships, and are good and fine, many Gourds where. Plants and of they make Conferues, many Beets whereof they make it alfo, Cabbages, Cowcumbers, Herbes Raddishes, Turnops, Mustard, Mintes, Coriander, Dill, Fennell, Peake, Leekes, Onions.

ha e. k Na e that bufh.ls.

the Alque que

Garlicke, Borrage, and other Pulles which were brought from Portugall, and grow well in this

Wheater

In the River of Ianuarie, and fields of Piratininga, groweth Wheate, they vie it not because they have no Horfe-mils, nor Water-mils, and they have also great trouble in the gathering of i That is foure it, for because of the many waters, and ranknesse of the ground it commeth altogether, and it bu hel, and an multiplieth to much, that one Corne beareth fixtie and eightic Eares, and some beeing ripe, others grow anew, and it multiplieth almost in infinium. Of lesse then a I quarter of Barley that a man fowed, in the field of Piratininga, hee gathered fixtie and odde & Alqueires, and if the Asperdue contineth 18, men would give themselves to this commoditie, the Country would be verie rich and plentifull.

There are many forts of Bafill, and Gilliflowres Yellow, and Red, and doe grow well in Pi. 10

Smelling ratininga, and other finelling herbes, as the 1 Onion fefe, ore, he bes. About all this, Brafil hath one commoditie for men to live, that in it doe live diforderly, that 1 An herbe fo there are but iew Lice or Fleas, but among the Indians, and Guinne Moores there are some Lices cilled. but there want no Hornets, Dorres, Waspes, Flies, and Gnats of so many kinds, and so crowle Vermine and venemous, that flinging any person, the place swelleth for three or foure dayes, especials Infecta. ly in the fresh men, which have their bloud fresh and tender, with the good Bread, Wine and

CHAP. II.

Articles touching the dutie of the Kings Maiestie our Lord, and to the common good of all the estate of Brafill. Written (as is thought) by the Anthour of the former Treatile.

delicate fare of Portugall.

T greatly behooveth for the universall good, and prefernation of the efface of Brain fill, that the King our Lord doe take all the Captaineships for his, satisfying the Lordfhips. For as the Tenths are all his Maiefties, and the Lordfhips have no more then the tenth, which is verie little, at the least in the Captaineships of the Holy Ghost, Saint Vincent, Port Secure, and the Ilets, the faid Captaine- 10 thips are neuer prouded, neither have Powder, Bullet, or Caleeuer, &c. for to defend themselves from the enemies, and whatsoever French or English shippe that goeth thither. doth put them in such danger, that either they must give them entrance, and traffick with them. or leave them the Towne and goe to the Woods, as now it was feene in the Captaineships of the Holy Ghoff, and Saint Vincent, and being the Kings they be otherwise promided, making Fortref-les in the barres for their defence, at the least in those of the Holy Ghoff, and the River of January, as it was done in that of Saint Vincent, in the which thips may come in at any houre, and in this manner will have a delight to dwell, and labour in them the which now doe live in trouble and complaints, feeing themfelues fo disfauoured, and in any danger of warre they rather thinke how to flee away, and escape with their Wines and Children, then how to defend the Countrey, whose fatetie, prefernation, and augmenting importeth so much, as is notorious to the good of all Peru.

The fecond Article.

Weakneffe of the Portugals

whence.

in Erafill how

It idemeth necessarie that in Brafill there be a Court Royall, where many causes may be determined, as there is in Peru, New Spaine, and in all his Maiefties Proninces. The first reason that for this is offered, is, that the people whereof at the first this Countrey was inhabited, commonly were banished for facts committed in Portagall. And as at the beginning there was no Iustice Royall in it, at the least in the Captainelhips, and Lands of the Lords, as all of them were, but onely Captaines and Judges, placed by the Lords of them, there was little regard of Iuftice, as well in them which ruled, the which had authoritie for to kill, hang, &cc. and as they had no Science, nor peraduenture Conscience, ruled rather by humane respects, 10 Brafill peopled friendthips, hatreds, and proper gaines, then by direct reason, as in the subjects, the which as there was no Iultice but of Goffips, (as the speech is) did hue at large as they lifted, having no bodie to contradict them, and though the Kings afterward did take & referue the Justice to themfelues fending Governours, and generall Judges, and though there come many men of more qualitie to continue the inhabiting of the Countrey, notwithstanding a great part of that first libertie and licence remained fill, with the which many euils were and are committed without punilhment. For many of them have alreadie so much power with their riches(gained God knoweth how) that I know not whether those that now doe rule dare meddle with them , bee it that they feare their power and might, or because fere ownes diligunt munera: and the Iustices that went, and will not be interessed but beare the Rod vpright, let them prepare themselves to suf- 60

fer troubles in this Countrey. The second reason is, that many Sutes may here be determined definitively, in the which are delayings of many yeeres, without any obtayning of luftice by Appeales and Grienances to Portugal. Now if the Gouernour (as many times it hapneth) will put himselfe in the office of the generall Judge, and with his power binds his hands, all goes topfieturule, without any civill peace in the Country, but rather a continual confusion, and perturbation, and the matter commeth to this point, that the Gouernour apprehendeth the Iuige himfelse (as alreadie it hath happed) and fendeth him to Portugall, and in the meane while the Inflice of the Countres remayneth in the hands of him that cannot administer it, and in stead of reason entreth affection. or passion, and then nothing is done but what the Gouernor lifteth. The same behoueth, and peraduenture more, to that which appertaineth to his Majesties goods, wherein are difficult matters. and have need of a man of knowledge and conscience, for to decide them.

The third reason is, that there may learned men of conscience bee there for to determine the 10 Justice of warre, for want of that have many been made in Brafil, against all Justice, which was a great cause of the destruction of the men of the Countrie, and so all the Coast is almost whabired. And although the Kings past commended this greatly, and commanded that no warre should be held lawfull, but that which should be made by order of the Gouernour generall, hee taking first counsell with the Bishop, and Fathers of the company, and experienced persons of the Country, and of good confeiences, and the Iustice of the warre being determined by them. notwithstanding many times it is not done with such examination as the cause requireth; and Iesuites comfo either the Fathers of the company are not called thereunto, or if they be called, it is for a com- plaint for not plement of Justice : and they have more regard to the hope of the profit that is offered them, of being called getting of flaues in the faid warre, then vnto the luftice of it, and to the common good, and to counfels of 20 danger they put themselues in, for sometimes they fare cuill in the broyle, with the death of warre. many Christians, both Poringals and Indians. With these warres especially all the Coast of Pernambuco, which beginneth from the River of Saint Francis thitherward, which are fiftie leagues, and the greatest part of the Maine is disinhabited, having before a most copious number of Indians ; and fo now that Captaineship wanteth Indian friends, to helpe them to defend, and it is, euery day wasted, staine, and exten of the Indians Pitiguares of Paraiba, which before were their friends, whom they did also great injustice to.

The third Article is about the Kings Customers Accounts, &c.

His Majestie hath a great obligation to the Indians of Brasil, to aide them with all corporal! The fourth and feirituall remedie. For almost all those of this Coast are almost consumed with sicknesses. Arricle. 30 warres and tyrannies of the Portugals, and those which escaped, went into the Maine to their Wastofthe Inkindred, and neither haue these their lives there. For when the ransomes of slaves did end, which dians by Portuwere held for lawfull, they intented Armies for to goe to the Maine to bring them to the Sea Seifor to ferue them felues of them perpetually.

These companies are made in this manner, three or foure or more persons doe joyne, and euerie one of them doe put in fo much stocke, and aske license of the Governour to goe into the Maine to bring free Indians, the Gouernour grants it, with his order, to wit, that they bring them without any force or deceit, but with their owne good will, declaring to them, that they come to ferue the Portugals, and to helpe them in their labours. Sugar-mills and other workes. Hauing this License, the Venturers doe loyne people to fend into the Maine, to wit, Interpre-40 ters, and other persons, that sometime came to fiftie or fixtie with their pieces and other weapons, and with many Indian Archers both free and bond, that doth carrie their burdens of the ransome and the victuals, and with helpe if by deceit they cannot bring the people they goe to feeke, they may bring it by force.

With this License in this manner they depart, and neuer keepe the order set downe; as it is Portugals willy manifest and all doe openly confesse without contradiction, for presently when they are depar-wronging the ted they fay, that if that should be declared vnto them there, that certaine it is, that no Indian Nations. will come, and therefore they must vie deceits and force for they have no other meanes to mouse them from their Countries, and with this purpose they goe, without any regard of the order, nejther of them that goe to the Maine, nor of the Inflices when they come from thence, and fo they

So vie these Licentes, without any examining of them. Now when they come to the Townes of the Indians, that are within the Maine, 100, and 200, leagues, they beginne presently their deceits, faying that they come for them by commandement of the Gouernour, that they may come to enjoy the good things of the Sea, and that they shall bee together in their Villages by themfelues, and at their will (without making any manner of repartition) and that from thence they shall helpe the Portugals in their warres, and other things. Other whiles they tell them that the Gouernour, and the Fathers of the company doe fend for them for to bee in the Churches of their kinsmen, which doe learne the things of God, naming some ancient principal Indians, whom they much esteeme, and hold as Fathers, and that they wil be with them, and for this there hath beene some of these Interpreters, that ordained among themselves one, whom they fained to be a 60 Pather of the company, with a shauen crowne, and a long habit to deceive them more easily.

When these deceits, & other such do not prevaile, they vie violence, labouring to kil fome, that doe hinder this comming, for the which it hath hapned to put poison in the veffels of their wine, with many other inventions, wher with they feare them. As once, that comming alreadie by the way, because one of the principali Indians did shew to come with an euill will, and did impart is faith, and obedience of the King our Lord.

Rrrrr 3

with the reft, it is faid that they tooke for a remedie two or three to remaine behind with him alone, and being affeepe they choaked him with a Towell, and gaue out, that hee died ind. denly, because he would not come. Other whiles they kill some of other Nations, that are hy the way, all to the end, that those which they bring doe not goe backe, and in this manner they bring such a number of them, without provision of necessarie food, that by the way with hunger and euill vsage, a great part of them doe die, and those that doe come are in such a case, and so Whe now are weake, that it is needfull before they come into the houses, the Fathers of the company to one the Conibalt > about the Woodes christening the children at their Mothers breafts that they may not die vn. bantized, and others they find halfe dead, and full of flies, that the Mothers haue left, as not able to bring them.

Vnchriftian wickedneile.

Being come to the Sea those that scape alive, having promised them that they will put them in Townes, at their owne will, presently the venturers doe divide them among themselves, and many times they separate fathers from children, wives from husbands, brethren from brethren. &c. and enery one carrieth his part to their places, some one hundred, another two hundred, another thirtie, &c. euery one according to the stocke he putteth in. Besides this, they give their share to the men that went to bring them (for this is the money they pay them withall) to one foure, to another ten &c. and as many of these have no lands for to maintaine them, they sell them prefently to others, and so they have marked and fold a great number to these and other Captaineships, and as the poore men doe see themselves deceived, and toiled with over-much Labour, with pure griefe they die, and fomerunne away and goe even to their enemies, willing an rather to be eaten of them, then to abide such vsageamong the Portugals, and in this sort of 20. or 40000. foules, that have beene brought, I know not whether 3000, bee alive, and with this a great part of the Maine is destroyed. For the same licences doe the Captaines give in their Captaineships, and the same is vied. These vexations and tyrannies, are the cause that the Indians lose the patience, which alwaits

they have had exceeding, and doe kill some Portugals. Now in the Maine of the Bay the Tapayse a people which alwayes had great friendship with the Portugals, and gave them passage through their Countries, and aide to bring the Indians above said, did rise with the deceits and lies of certaine Portugals, that went thither with title of bringing Saltpeeter, and killed some eighteene or twentie of them. Some of the Maine of the Captainelhip of the Holy Ghoft, did kill 30 certaine Indians that certaine Messives did carrie with them, going thither to play their accu-flomed prankes, for within their owne houses they would have killed them, and the Mungrels escaped by flight, and with this that people is alreadie an enemie of the Portugals. The Maine of the River of lanuarie with fuch other lyes did revolt, being before our great friends, and killed some Portugals, having a little before a Father of the company gone thither at the request of the Inhabitors of the Citie, and had beene fixe moneths with them, confirming them in the friendship of the Portugals, and preaching the faith vnto them and brought from divers and remote places some 600. soules which now are Christians baptized almost all in their Towne with a Church made within the River of I anuarse, which are great helpe for the defence of that Citie, and they helpe euery one to doe their worke : and many other remayning moued for to follow 40 their Kinsmen, with this revolting all ceasied, and so there as also in other places, the gates ynto Conversion are altogether shut vp.

To the Maine of the Bay, twice the Fathers of the company have gone at their owne cost, (with helpe of the Indians christened, which doe teach,) to bring some people for to furnish the Churches , which beginnes to diminish , and to preach the Law of God yn-to them. And there they found of this Soule-leffe people , that were in the Townes of the Indians, as in their owne houses, and the Fathers bringing some number of Indians, which came from verie farre to become Christians. These Portugals laboured by all meanes possible to diffwade them. Sometimes preaching to the Indians, that the Fathers brought them deceived, ny Wittes, and whip their children, &c. the which is an vie and custome among these pratiers for to discredit the Fathers. Not being able to prevaile by this meanes, they tooke another way and did contract with some other Indians, of the principallest of those that remained there, that they should fell them those which the Fathers carried, giving them great ransomes for them, and with this they pretended to take them away perforce, before their eies, fo that it was needfull the Fathers to bid the Indians to defend themselves, and with this remedie they left them. O-

there came to the high-waies and did steale them that the Fathers brought, as one Messizo which tooke some twentie and odde, and transported them by another way, taking wife and children, brethren, and all the Family from a principall Indian, and left him alone because he was and that heere they would take away their Customes, as the drinking of their Wines, their ma- 50

Conucrling.

Reuerfing.

Diuerling.

Inucring.

Adverting.

Auerling.

fore hurt in one foot, and was not able to goe. With these iarrings of these men of this trade, the Indians know not whom to trust, nor whom to beleeve, and by the fame that they heare already of the viage that is done here to theirs, that come to the Sea. For this cause a great principall Indian of the Mountaine of Rari, that is from hence about two hundred leagues, where now is the greatest force of people, that escaped from the tyrannies, fent hither a Sonne of his to fee how it went, and being true that which the Fathers had faid, that he should make herre some prouision for food sowing some grounds, and to returne thither with some Father for him and for all his Family; for to come and receive the law of God. The Sonne came, and finding the truth, and feeing the viage that is done to theirs in the Sugar-workes, and other labours of the Portugals, he prefently husbanded fome grounds in one of the Townes of the Christians, that are in protection, and doctrine of the Fathers, with a determination to goe and bring his Father as he commanded him. Many other of this Fort did leave Petuertings their Fathers, being mooued in that Mountaine, but with feare of thefe affaults aboutfaid they dare not come. Likewise they have here no grounds fitting for their maintenance, for it is all oc-To cupied by the Portugals. Besides this the Nation of the Tapayas, which have divers Languages. doe not agree well in the Sea Coast, for ordinarily they live here of the Mountaine, and in their owne Countrey they might have the Euangelicall Law preached vnto them.

All the abouefaid well confidered, it feemed necessary that his Maiestie should forbid these adnenturings, fending a commandement, that none might goe thither without express warrant of his Maieftie, under great penalties, the which with effect might be executed, and that neither the Gouernours might give any licence for them, feeing how they which carrie the faid Licenses never kept, nor will keep the order given them, as aforefaid. For all men know and fav. that if it be kept, neuer will any Indian come from the Maine, as vntill now none came but decrined, and this being to publicke, and daily, and not the fault of one or two particular men. but a common vie of all the Countrey, that it paffeth before the eies of the Justices neuer vntill this houre did the Governours forbid them, rather past by it not punishing any of them that so brought them, norredreffing the poore Indians. These adventurings taken away, the Fathers would adventure themselves to goe among them, to preach the faith of Iclus Christ, and make a Christianitie, and in time, Partugals or Spaniards, might goe thither, but fuch as were men of a good conscience with order from his Majestie, that might inhabit, and helpe in the conversion. and in this manner, by the grace of God all that people would bee subject to the voke of the

The Indians that are brought from the Maine, and are in the power of the Poringals, and all The fift Asiathat are by the Coast of Brafill, as welfree as flaues, have no kind of doctrine by obligation, that is de-30 impoled vpon them; for neither Bilhops, nor Curates have any care of it, bearing themselves vpon the Fathers of the company, and in thirty foure yeeres fince that the company was fent to thefe parts by the King Don lobn the third, no Curate in all Brafill did ever fay Maffe in reforce of the Indians, or flaues borne in the Countrey; only they baptize the children with their offerings, and those that are already growne they need no more preparation, then to bring them to be baptized. without giuing them any other knowledge of the faith, & fo it hapneth by their ignorance, that not only they receive not the grace of Baptisme, but also sometimes not the character. It is pittle Subversing. to fee the little regard that is had in this, being the principall dutie of the King our Lord.

The Fathers of the company fince they entred in to Brafil, tooke this matter effectually, and in all places where they have houses, there is alwaies a particular Masse said for the slaves all 40 Sundayes and Feaftdayes, catechiling them every day, and sometime Morning and Evening: They labour to learne the Countrey Language, and instruct them in the marters of faith, and law of God, they baptize, marrie, and doe shrieue, and administer other Sacraments vinweariedly. But because they cannot accomplish all, and many doe perish in want for the Curates take no care of them as if they were not their sheepe) it is necessary that his Majestie doe prouide in this some more effectuall remedies.

The first remedie offered was, that his Majestie should command to make a Catechisme in that Catechisme in Brasilian Language, which is vniuersall from the River Marangon, vnto the River of Plate, and the Brasilian should be imprinted at his Majesties cost, and to enjoyne every Curate to have it, and to teach by Tongue, it. For though the most of them have not the language, they may not with standing learne to read 50 it very well, and to teach by the Booke, as at the beginning, and even now some Fathers of the company doe, that the Indians hearing him reade will vaderstand, &c.

It is very necessary that his Majestie doe command to examine the Justice that these Portugals The fixt Are haue to serue themselues of these tree Indians they bring from the Maine in the manner about ucle, faid, for although they hold them with a title of free, they have no libertie but in name, for in truth they are more then Captines, according to the viage they have. For first, as touching the Slavericof the foules, they care not for their doctrine , nor that they bee baptized , married, or line, like Indians. Christians, they have no other respect but of their service, as of any other brute beait, and so lec them live in adulterie, without hearing Maffe, or fhrieuing, and many die without Baptisme. As touching their bodies, their labours are immoderate and perpetuall by night and by day, con-60 trarie to the nature of the Indians, which are suffained with very little labour in their Countries.

If they fall ficke they have then leffe care of them then of their flaves, for of these because they coft them their money, they have more regard, as the Mafters themselves doe confesse. Those that have them in their power, are served of them, as of slaves, all their lives, not letting them goe to another Mafter or place, though it be to the Churches of their kinimen, that are

Rrrrr 2

Christians, where they may be better instructed in matters of the faith, and of their faluationand if they doe goe to at y place, though it be to the faid Churches, they labour by themselues. and by the Justices, to bring them againe, as indeede they doe bring, and put them in Irons, as though they were flaues. Whence arifeth a great feandail to the Indians Christian, their kinfmen, some of the which, as yet are tender Plants in the faith, for sake the Churches and flee with their familie about the woods, grieued with the injuries that are done to theirs, of pecially in matter of libertie, which they fo much esteeme, and for feare they will doe the like with them. and so wandering are lost and neuer seene againe; and truth it is, that if it were not for the continuall care and vigilancie that the Fathers of the companie have over them, and the love the Indians doe beare them, because they are their masters; and seeing that for their defence they are 19 hated of the Portugals, and murmured ar, they had not continued, no not these three small towns of Christians of the Baye, wherein may be about 2500, foules, which onely escaped of eleuen Courches, that there were, wherein were gathered more then 40000, nor other Townes likewife of Christians, that are about the Captaine shippes. Neither had Gouernors nor Captaines fufficed for to have fuffained them(as the experience hath showen) for they would not have suffered such vexation, though they had died for it, as others didalready at the beginning, running away and dying, wherewith the coast was difinhabited.

Wicked man-Acaling.

Not onely doe the Portugals ferue themselves of the free Indians above said, which they bring from the maine; but they fell them also to others, and they say with title of free, but the price is such, that a lawfoll slave is fold no deerer, and so the goods, that without them was worth. I 20 put the cafe 2000. Duckets, with them they give it for 4000 and thefe that doe buy it doe take already maitership of them, as of slaves, that cost them their money, and so from hand to hand their captiultie increaseth, and though they say that they are served of them, as of hired men, the pay for their feruice is nothing; for it they give a cotten garment to one or two of the principallest of them, which they weare in their feruice, they doe not neither is it possible to give it to 100. or 200, that they keepe, as they them! lues confesse; with the like viages many of the fard Indians either cate earth till they kill themselves, or let themselves de verie casily with meere griefe and fadnesse. And because jointly with this the punishments they give them are like the flaues, and thefe buyings and fillings are not vsed particularly betweene one or two is my name blas hermed a persons secretly, but it is an vie and custome in all the Countrie, without any institute looking in- 30 to it. Finally, they are not onely ferued of them all their life, but they give them alfo in mariages to Sonnes and Daughters as a dowrie; and at their deaths they remaine in their wils with the name of free, but bound to ferue their children perpetually, whom they leave them vinto as bareditario iure, and to the heires goe to law about them, and have judgements, as if they were lawfull flaues.

As touching the inflice that is vied with the Indians, the King our Lord is to understand that although his Maiestreas all the Kings his predecessors doe recommend alwaies this matter of the

is my name mongft the

Through you

The feruenth

Indians to the Gouernours about all as their principall duetie, with very effectuall words, notwithitanding the inflice that untill now hath beene in Erafil toward them was none or verie little, as it is plainely feene by the affaults, robberies, captiuities, and other vexations that al- 40 The mercies of waies were done to them, and even now are done. Against the Indians was alwaies a rigorous instice, they have already beene hanged, hewen in peeces, quartered, their hands cut, nipped with hot pincers, and fet in the mouth of peeces, and fhot away the Indians for killing or helping to kill fome Portugall (which peraduenture had well deferued it at their hands) but having perions, not a few in Brafil, as alwaies there were, and yet there are, notoriously infamous for robbing, stealing, branding felling, and killing many Indians, neuer vntill this time was there any show of punishment, and it is to be feared, seeing it wanteth on earth, that it will come from heaven on all the inhabitants of Brafil.

The eight Article is touching the Indians exceeding services without reward.

The ninch Article is to preuent their totall destruction, which cannot but follow the practife so of Portugals in making flaues of them by fowing quarrels, and interesting themselues on one side. by burning &c.

The tenth Ar-

All the coalt of Brasil doth want and is destitute of Priests that may be Curates for the soules. for in the Bay, except three or foure that doe ferue in the high Church, and one that ferueth for Curate in one Parish, that did learne in the colledge of the Companie: there are no Priests that know how to doe their office, and their customes and lives are much blemished, for many of them came suspended from Portugall for grieuous crimes, and also for incorrigible; and here as they want Priests they are presently enabled and made cures of soules, and although in the three Colledges of the companie that are in this Countrie, Sc. in the Bay, Pernambuco, and the River of Januarie. are ordinarie lectures of matters of confcience, there is no Priest that will heare it, and as they are most ignorant, they doubt nothing, and so they absolue and dispence more then Popes with great loffe of the foules; and fuch there was, that dispensed with a parishioner of his to communicate after he had drunk, whereby may be coniectured what the rest will doe. And with this they doe other follies, and misbehautors in the celebrating of the maffe before the people, that they feeme altogether fooles. And their life is pittifull, for finally their care is to fill themthey recent around meate, and drinke; and to follow the lufts of the flesh, with a great scandall of the fecular.

Those are very rare, and may bee told with the finger through all the coast, which doe line & life worthie the Priettly function, and those which the Bishop banish from hence for their faults or suspensions to the River of lanuarie, presently they are there received by the Ruler, as now he did particularly to one that being a Friar come from Portural expelled from the Order for incorrigible, and afterward heewas enabled here by the Bishop, hee was put in the visitation, because he was not shriven in three yeeres, celebrating almost every day, and this being another to time condemned by the Biftop in his Court, and brought to the estate that he came in from Portweell, expelled his Order, and banished from his Bishopricke, and his life infamous and leandas lous to all the Secular, the Ruler enabled him prefently in the River of Tamarie, (not without great feandall of the good) not onely for fellow-helper of the Curate of that Citie but also for a Preacher. And the Prelatestay they doe all this because they have no other, whom to give the Parishes vnto, which are many.

CHAP. III.

Extracts out of the Historie of IOHN LERIVS* a Frenchman, who lived in Brafill with Monf. VILLAGAGNON. Ann. 1 557. and 58.

Of the Beafts, and other living creatures, and Plants, of Brafill.

Efore I proceed any further, presently in the beginning of this Chapter; I thought fed. The Story is long, which good briefly to admonth the Reader, that no living creatures of the kinde of hadby mee toure-footed beafts are found in all the Brafilian world, altogether like vnto wholly transours in shape: and that the Tonompinambaulty vie not, but very seldome, to lated, but flore bring them up tame at home. But, that I may generally deferibe the wilde hath bred a beatts, which the Barbarians call Soo, I determined to beginne with them which most of it. I are applied to the vieof man. It feemeth, that that is to bee fet in the first place; which also is howevered most common: they call Tapirousson, of a reddish, and long shaggie haire, greatly resembling a as also all The-Kow in bignesse and shape : yet, seeing it wanteth hornes, and hath a shorter necke, with longer wets Voyage Kow in bignefic and thape: yet, seeing it wantern norms, and main a more bearing the write thinker, and 40 and hanging eares, and more withered and flender legs, with an whole hoofe, very like write the thinker, and that of Stading and hanging extes, and more within a and a man may rightly fay, it participateth the nature of the Kow, and Affe. Not in those parts, withstanding it different very much from either, both because it hath a very short taile (here thou; a allange, the Reader is by the way to be admonished, that very many heasts are Bied in America, which lished and reas have no taile at all) and hath much sharper teeth : nor may any danger bee therefore procured die for the vnto men by this beaft, feeing it vieth to repose fafety rather in flight, then in ftrength. The Prefie. who men by this bean, as also many others, shooting them through with Arrowes, or vie to Beatharians kill them, as also many others, shooting them through with Arrowes, or vie to Beatharians bred catch them in an hollow trench, or with other manner of Traps and Gins ingeniously and cunin America ale

But that wilde beaft is greatly efteemed by the Barbarians, by reason of the skinne, which as like vote curs, 50 foone as they have taken away, cutting the backe of the hide in a round circle, they drie it in the The wild bear Sunne, and falhion it like vnto a Target of the bigneffe of the bottome of an indifferent veffell, where the therefore. wherewith they repell the Arrowes, of the enemies, received in the warres. And the skinne bleshaKow, dried in the Sunne becommeth fo hard, that I eafily believe that it cannot bee pierced through and an Affe with the stroke of any weapon, although it bee cast with great violence. I carefully defired to Most American bring two such Targets into France, but the famine so oppressed vs returning, that all the prouifion of victuall being spent, not excepting Monkeyes and Parots, and other liuing creatures Targets of the or the same kinde, which we brought with vs out of that Countrie, those two Targets, being hide of the laid voon the coales, were also eaten to expell hunger; vnto the which the rest of the skinnes wilde beaft that were in the ship (as I shall declare in their proper place) were added. Moreouer, the flesh of the Tapirousson, commeth almost neere vinto the taste of Beefe : this mine. the Barbarians broyle after their manner, and in their Country language call it, Boucanare. But The taffe of because I have now vied that word, and that hereafter it shall bee often repeated, left the the flost the Reader should any longer remaine doubtfull , occasion being offered, I will declare what this Tapmouff u.

flants went a Vil. his request to M. Calun, to Brafill, he there forti ying and pretending E. u ngelicall reformati :n from which he with falt, as the manner is here, they vie the onely remedie of broyling, for the preferring of of preferring them. Therefore, although they had taken thirty wilde beaits in one day, (fuch as we will demeats among feribe in this Chapter, they would lay them all cut in pieces, vpon thole Grates, as foone as it to might be done, left they should be tainted and corrupted; and there, being often turned, they are sometimes broyled and scorched aboue soure and twenty houres together, vntill the inlide of the flesh be as well rosted as the outside, and by this meanes they are all preserved from corruption. Nor is there any other manner of dreffing or preferuing fish, which when they have got-Meale of fishes ten, they dry them in great plenty, to make Meale, especially, those which in their Country language they call Praparati, which are the very true and natural Mullets, of the which I shall hereafter speake in another place. And these Grates among the Barbarians are rightly to bee accounted the Shambles, and Store-house: and therefore you shall scarce come to their Villages. but you may fee them laden with the flesh of wilde beachs, and fishes: and it visually happeneth Mans flesh laid also very often , as wee shall hereafter speake, if you come vnto the Barbarians , that you shall 20 you Bouces. behold these Grates filled with mans flesh, which, I thinke, they bring as spoyles taken from the conquered enemies, to be flame, and eaten.

The Americans fastning foure woodden forks in the ground, of the thicknesse of an arme, three

But, that I may profecute the intended description of wilde beasts, the second degree of bienelle feemeth to be given vnto a certaine kinde of Deere, which they name Seonalou, but herein they d ffer from ours, both that they are much lower, and haue leffer hornes, and also in kin to beere, this, that they have a long shagged haire, as our Country Goates. But the American Boare, which they call Taisson, is very like in shape vnto those which are bred with vs, in bulke of bodv. cares, head, and teet, very hurtfull alfo, through his long and sharpe teeth: yet seeing hee is more leane and flender, and terribly gnasheth and grindeth his teeth together, hee is notorious Swine with an allo through that deformitie. He hath an hole in the backe, by nature, as the Sea-fwine haue in Swine, with an hole in their the head, whereby he draweth in breath, and letteth it out. These three are their greatest beasts.

backe:

There is also among the Americans, a certaine red wilde beaft, which they name Agenti, of the height of a weaned Pig of thirty dayes old, with a clouen foot, a very short tayle, and with the note and eares almost of an Hare, most delightfull to the taste. There are also others of two Tapita, a kinde or three kindes, which they call Tapita, not much valike our Hares, but somewhar of a rede of Hare.

They catch great Rats also in the Woods, of the bignesse and haire of Squirrels, which come Reddish Mife. neere vnto the delicate taite of Conies. Pag, or Pague, (for after what manner they pronounce it, you can scarce, or not at all ynder-Pag, a beatt marked with fland) is a wilde beaft of the indifferent height of an Hound, with a deformed head, the flesh 400 comming neere vnto the tafte of Veale, with a very faire skinne, diftinguished with white, rusfer, and blacke spots, so that it would be of great price with vs, if they were to be gotten.

Pag, a beaft

Sarigo, a ftin. There is another alfo found, which they call Sarigo, which the Barbarians cate not, by reason of the noy some stinke thereof : but flaying some of them, and taking away the fat of the kidneves, whence that stinke proceeded, wee eate them without loathing : for, they are both tender, and also excellent flesh.

Tates, armed

There is also that which they call Taton: this is not very well able to runne, yet (as Hedgewith scales. hogs with vs) creeping through the bryars and bushes, shee is armed with very hard scales 160 that shee cannot be pierced with a sword, if also you wrap the skinne together being taken off (wherewith the Barbarians make very many Chifts, which they call Caramenos) you would lay they were warlike Gauntlets. It is of a white flesh, and of an excellent talte. Moreouer, vnto these beasts, which are most common with the Americans, Crocodiles, called

Moreouer, who there exists within a more continue, the deep reaction which is a more continue, the continue, the continue within a more continue dren play with them without any danger. Those Crocodiles which I happened to see, had a very wide mouth, long legs, with a tayle neither round nor sharpe, but very small atthe end: and whether, as some haue written, they moue the vpper chap, I freely confesse, that I have not Towns, Lizards observed. Moreover, the Americans take Lizards, they call them Towns, not greene, but ruffet, and of a spotted skinne, like our Countrie small Lizards. And although they bee source or five foote long, and proportionable in bignesse, and therefore of a terrible forme, yet notwithstanding like Frogs, they abide in the Rivers, and Marishes, hurtfull vnto none. Furthermore, the skinne being plucked off, if they be bowelled, and fodden, they are very delicate meate, fo that I Lizards in A- haue not taited any thing more fweet in America. For, they are of as white a fielh as Capons are merica, edible. with vs. delicate, tender and fweet, that nothing excelleth them : yet in the beginning I abCHAP.3. S. I. Serpents eaten. The Lizard prodigious but barmlesse. Ian-ouarc. 1327

horred the taffe thereof, but afterward when I had taffed them better, as touching meates, the Lizards were chiefly commended of mee.

near the Townspinambankin have also very great Toads, which they eate being rosted, without Toadeseaten. bowelling. But feeing both Physicians teach, and it is also commonly knownt, and apparent, in daties. that the fielh, and corrupt bloud, and whatfoeuer eliebelongeth to the Toade, is deadly, any one, that the nem, and the content of the temperature, although I hold my peace, may eafily contecture, that by reafon of the temperature of that attnough thought to the caule, whereof I am ignorant, it happeneth, that Toades, there, are not venomous, and dangerous at all, as they are with vs.

They cate Serpents also, of the bigneffe of a mans arme, fine foote long almost. Moreover, The American They care Serpents and, of the Barbarians (as I mentioned concerning Crocodiles) brought home ry great Set-I naue outernes, that me party-coloured, with blacke and red, and caft them downe among pents. a certaine and children, fo fecure, that they handled them with their hands. These monfrom Land Eeles, they cut into pieces, and dreffe : but they are vnfauoury, and of ve-

Divers kindes of Serpents also are bred with them, and specially in the Rivers, where they appeare greene like pot-herbes; long and slender, whose flinging is very hurtfull. There are alto Lizards in the Woods (belides those which we mentioned before) very dangerous, as it shall manifeftly appeare by the difcourse which I will here set downe. When therefore I sometimes The Authors trauelled to fee the Countrie, with two Frenchmen in my companie, and that, as the manner report of a 20 was, wee had not the Barbarians to guide vs in the way, and therefore wandred in the Woods, pro-isjous was, wee man me to a deepe Valley, hearing the noise of a certaine beast comming towards vs. supposing it to bee some timerous and harmelesse wilde beast, notwithstanding, proceeding on our intended Journey, wee were secure and quiet in minde: but presently, thirtie paces distant our intended souther; sight hand, wee faw a Lizard on an hill; bigger than the body of a man, amoit from vs, on the light thee, being spread all ouer with white and rough scales like Oviterfiells, holding up one of his fore-feet, with his head aloft; and thining eyes shegan to behold vs. wherefore being aftonished (for none of vs ; as it then fell out ; carried a Hand-gunne , but had Wheretore being aminimies, too holds and Arrowes, which weepons food not greatly hurt that Montley armed with tuch hard fealer: Neuertheffic, fraving lefts if wee shifted for our that Montler armed with tuch hard scaler: 30 felues by flight, being swifter then wee, he would dispatch vaaltogether) when the one feare-

fully beheld the other, we stood still in the fame place. But after that prodigious and fearefull Lizard had beheld vs a quarter of an houre, with an open mouth, and because it was exceeding Lizard nad central va a quarter day, almost at noone) feeching a deepe groane, that weemight not weather (101 to the went vito the top of a Mountaine, with fo great noise of the erashing and breaking of twigs and boughs, as a Deere running through a Wood, would scarce haue made. Wee therefore, who then were much affrighted, not being very carefull to purfue him, gaue thankes vnto God who had deliuered vs, and proceeded againe on our intended Journey. And embracing their opinion who affirme, that the Lizard is delighted with the fight of 2 man, it feemed to me, that the beholding of vs pleased that Monster as much as we were togenen-

40 ted through his presence. There is also a wilde beast bred with them, that higher your themrey. which they call law-onare. This beaft bath legs almost as long as an hunting Dog, and mattheth Inches which they can tarnear. In both matter, a through the man they can be made the made they can be made they can be made they can be made they ca greatly feare that wilde heaft. For feeing shee is accustomed to the prey, as also, the Lion, if men. thee catch any of them, the teareth him in pieces, and denometh him. But as they are derirous of revenge, and fuffer not any of those things vareuenged which are troublesome voto them: of revenge, and interest of they make for that cause, or with any other kinde of Traps or Gins, they put her to a lingring death, shooting her through with many Arrowes. that thee might the longer languish: and that it may the better appeare, how early that wilde beaft dealeth with the Barbarians, when sometimes fine or fixe Frenchmen of the companie pas-50 fed by this way, the Americans adusted vs, to beware of the Ian-onare, because that very selfesame weeke, thee had cruelly denoured three men in a certaine Village of theirs. I thought good to adde to this Edition , that the Americans , before the Voyage of Villagagno had neuer feene Dogs: and therefore, whien they beheld a Dog of the kinde of Hounds. Dogs firft feen which with certaine whelpes we brought thither, and that he fauned on vs , they were aftoni- by the amerifhed, and fled away from him, because (as I mentioned before) hee came nerre vnto the shape of 62ms. the lan-onare. For that cause also, Gomard in his General Indian Historie, cettifieth, chas in the Canas. vecte 1509. when Christopherus Columbus first arrived at the Hand Beringua, called also by the name of Saint John, the Indians of this Countrie, who made warre with the Spannards, greatly 60 feared a red Dog, and that he flood them in as good flead almost as two Harquebusters: because he did not onely fiercely affaile the Barbarians, but alto differning his companions from the Enemies, although being prouoked, he was not offensue vinto them, but also taking notice of the Caribas (the worst, and most detestable nation of all those Countries) pursued them, fleeing into the middeft of the Armie of the Enemies, and being to much promoked stooke no reft, vatill he had torne the Enemie in pieces on whom he leized: fighting to fortunately for the Spaniards that being accompanied with him, they fought fo cheerfully against the Indians, as if they had had three horsemen in their companie. Yet this Dog, while hee swam after I know not what Cariba, being thot with a poisoned Arrow died, and made his Master very forrowfull, and the Indians toyfull and glad. So, Vallouas also, the most valuant Captaine of the Spaniards, when he fift discouered the South Sea, letting flip the Dogs which hee had, against the Indians, who withflood him, from entring on the Land, the Barbarians were ftricken with fo great a feare. that they were compelled to prouide for themselves by flight : and the Dogs of Vallouss, preuailed as much as the best Souldiers of them all. Moreouer, many Monkeyes are found on the Monkeys. Brasilian coast, little and blacke, which they call Cay, which I cease to describe, because they are very well knowne vnto vs. I will onely declare this one thing, that feeing they continually line in the tops of trees, bearing fruits in cods like vnto our Beanes, wherewith they are nourished. and meete together there in companies, especially when the smoaking showres fall, it is a pleafant thing to heare them crying, and making a noise. But feeing at one birth they onely bring forth one young one, the Monkey, as soone as he commeth into the world is indued with that naturall industrie, that he firmely hangeth about the necke of the Syre, or the Damme : therefore if Hunters come fuddenly voon them, the Syre or Dammes leaping through the boughs, he also taketh his flight together with them. For which cause, the Barbarians cannot easily catch Monkeyes of any age whatfoeuer : yet they cast them downe from trees wounded with Ar-

The industrie of the Monkeyes in delinering their young from danger. The mancer of taking Monkeyes.

Sazouin a beautifull little beaft.

ten compelled through paine, to kill them with strokes. There is also another kinde of Monkey among the Americans, which they call Sagonin, of the bigneffe of a Squirrell, and of a red haire; but as touching the shape, in the shout, breast. necke, and almost all the other parts, being very like vnto a Lion, and also hardie, it giveth place in beautie to none of the little beafts, which furely I faw there. And if it were as easily brought ouer the Sea as the reft, it would be of farre greater price and estimation. But seeing it is of so weake a little bodie, that it cannot indure the working of the ship; for it is of that haughtinesse of spirit, that if it be offended neuer so little, it would die through discontentment : yet some 20 are here to be found. But , that I may freely confesse the matter as it is , although I have beene curious, I was not fo diligent in obferring all the liging creatures of America, as I defired, nevertheleffe, that I may once make an end, I will yet describe two kindes, which are monifrous in fhape, as those that art most, rowes, and afterward having healed them, and made them tame a little while at home, they ex- an change and barter them for Merchandifes. But at the first , they are so fierce, that they wound the fingers of them that handle them , with their teeth, fo that being bitten , they are very of-

Hay, a deformed beaft.

The one which the Barbarians call Hay, is of the bigneffe of a Dog, with an hanging bellie. like a farrowing Sow with pigge, of an afh-colour haire very much washed, with a very long tayle, hairy feet after the manner of a Beare, and long clawes: but as, while it lineth in the Woods, it is very fierce; yet being taken, it is very easily tamed. But the naked Tonompinama bankty doe not willingly play with him, because he bath both long, and also sharpe clawes. They fay, it liueth onely on aire.

Coaty, with a monftrons great fagut.

The other, whereof I am also to speake, called by the Barbarians, Coaty, is of the height of an Hare, with short and spotted haire, little and sharpe cares, both of a little head, and also with an eminent from the eyes, more then a footelong, round like a walking-flaffe, juddenly decreasing at the end, so that it is altogether of an equall thicknesse, with so narrow a mouth, that it can scarce receive the little finger. None may be found more monstrous: afterward, when this wilde beait is taken, gathering her foure feet together, thee bendeth her felfe to the one fide or the other, or falleth flat downe : nor can thee euer bee raifed, nor compelled to eate , vnleffe Ants be given her, on which shee also feedeth in the Woods.

Chapette. Oura, birds.

Arginan-ropia,

This Chapter also, wherein I will intreate of Birds, I thought good to beginne with those which are fit for the maintainance of mans life, and by a generall name, are called Oura, by the 50 Tonoupinambaulta: they have great plentie of those Hennes, vnto the which wee gave the name Arginan-outfou, from India, and they call them Arginan-outfou: from that time also fince the Portugals lived a-Indian Hennes, mong the Barbarians, our Countrymen vied to nourish Hennes, called by them, Arginan-miri. Arginau miri, And although (as I have elfe-where mentioned) they efterme the white ones very much, that plucking off the feathers, and dying them red, they might clothe and decke themselves; yet for the most part they abstain from both kinds, as touching the eating of them. Moreover, seeing they perswade themselves, that the Egs, which they call Arginau-ropia, are, as it were, poison, they were not only aftonished, if we supped Egs before them, but also reprouing vs, added moreouer, that it was not cobe fulfered; for, while we prevented the hatching of chickens, we eate an Henne in an egge. Therefore, they are almost as carefull of their Hennes, as of the Birds, which hue in the Woods, they fuffer them to lay wherefoeuer they are disposed. But the Hens in like manner, bring home their chickens out of the briars and bushes, so that the Americane women may be without trouble.

Together with the Hennes, the Barbarians also nourish Indian Duckes at home, they call

CHAP.2. S.I. Brafilian Birds delicate for food, for feathers. Prating Parrat. 1220 them Opec. But because the Tonompinambaulty are so superfittious, that they thinke, if they Poec Indian them Oper. Due occarrie, they should get the same flownesse; so that if the Enemies should Duckes. affaile them, they could not seeke their safetie by flight : no man may easily perswade them to taite the least morfell of them, and for that cause they abstaine from all those creatures which goe flowly, and also from fishes, as Raies or Thornebacke, and others which cannot swimme which live in the woods, they take them as great as Capons, Income a kinde and chose of three forts, which the Barbarians call lacoutin, lacoupen, and lacou-onaffin. They of Pheaiant. haue all blacke and ash-colour Feathers, and come neere vnto the Pheasants in taite, and I may truely affirme, that no fweeter or more delicate meate can euer be eaten, then those 10 Iacous are. Besides, there are two kindes of most exquisite and choice Birds, which are named Monton, Monton a rare of the bignesse of Peacocks, with the same Feathers which the former had, and they are very tel-

Macacona, and Taambon-onaffon, are two kindes of Partridges, of the bigneffe of our Country A kinde of Geele, not much valike the talte of Mutton. These three following have one and the same talte great Paralmost, Inambour-miri of the height of Partridges: Pegaffon Stockedoues, and Paicaca the Tur- tridges.

But that I may briefly finish the discourse of Birds, which are found in great plentie, both in the Wools, Rivers, and also in the shoares, I will come vnto those which are not so fit for foode. an Among the reil, there are two kindes of the same bignesse, which come neere to the greatnesse of a Rauen or Crow : which as the rest of the American Birds, have crooked bils and talons. as alio Parrats, in which number they might be reckoned. As touching the Feathers, as it is eafily in ged, I fearce thought that Birds of fuch excellent beautie were to be found in the whole world. in the beholding where fabundant matter offereth it felfe, not as prophase men, to commend nature, but the creator : and that it may manifeltly appeare, the first which the Barbarians call A. Mat, a Bird ture, but the creator: and that it may maintain appear to the traine and wings, of a foote and a halfe long, partly purple like vnFesthers, to red, and partly of a blew colour, greatly thining, to the which also, the other parts of the body are correspondent. When this Bird moueth in the Sunne, where she very much abideth. no man can euer be farisfied with her fight.

The other called Canide, with the inferiour Feathers, and those that are round about the necke thining of the colour of gold, and those that couer the backe, wings, and traine of an excellent with blew teablew colour, feeing they feeme to be under-laid with embrodered gold, and ouer-laid with a thers. Veluet Mantle aboue it caufeth great admiration to the beholders.

But although thefe Birds be not domesticall, yet they oftner build their nests in the tops of the trees which are in the middle of the Villages, then in the woods, whereby it commeth to Feathers, of palle, that the Barb trians plucke their Feathers three or foure times in the yeare, of the which the which, palle, that the Barbersans plucke their Feathers three of court times in the years, or the which eaps, garments Feathers they make Cappes, Garments, and Bracelets, decke the handles of their clubbes, and &care made. adorne their bodies. I brought many such Feathers with me into France.

Three or foure forts of Parrats are taken there : the greatest and fairest whereof the Barbari- Acquirement exert 40 ans call Atomrous. These have the head intermingled with red, yellow, and violet colours, the andvery faire ends of the wines fearlet or crimfon, the taile, which is very long, yellow, and the rest of the Parrais, body greene; very few fuch are brought vnto vs.

A Woman in a certaine Village, some foure miles distant from our Hand, had brought vo one of this kinde, which as if the had beene indued with reason, conceiued those things which she was commanded. As often as we went that way, we prefently heard the Militelle of that Bird fay, will you give me a Combe, or a Looking-glaffe, and I will prefently command my Par- A wonderfull rat to ling and daunce before you . If happily we granted her requelt, the Parrat prefently hea- ftorie of a Page ring certaine words of her Mittreffe, did not onely dance on the pearch where she fat, but also practed, and whiftled; and laftly, the wonderfully counterfeited the Barbarians going to the wars. To be short, if her Mistresse thought good to bid her sing, the sung, if to daunce, the danced: contrarily, if not rewarding her, with a little sharper speech she had commanded her their Auge, that is be ful, then the prefently held her peace, nor could we make her with any words to move either her tongue, or feete neuer so little: wherefore I leaue it to the Readers to be considered whether if the Romans had had fuch a Parrat they would not highly have efteemed her, who, as Libro. 1894 at Plusy recordeth, sometimes solemnized the death of a Crow with innumerable rites of funeral, by which, at the place of Common Pleas, they were every morning by name faluted, and punished him with death, who killed the tame. The Barbarian woman called this Parrat Cherimbane, that is to fay, her best beloued. And furely the was so deere voto her, that demanding at what price we might buy her, the answered in scoffing manner Mocaouas ou, that is to say, a great braffe 60 piece, and therefore we could not wrett her from her at any price. I found that they made their

Netts in the holes of hollow Trees, Among the rest of the American Birds, the first place shall be given to a certaine Bird named Toucan, a Bird Toucan, whereof we made mention of before. It is of the bignesse of a Pigeon, of a blacke colour of a Pigeon, like a Crow, except the breft, which is of a yellow colour, compaffed from the lower part with

Panta Rind

with a red

ler colour.

breaft.

a ring of red feathers, which being taken away, the Barbarians vie it for ornament of the cheeks and other parts of the body. And it is highly effeemed with them, because they vie it when they intend to daunce. From thence it hath taken the name Toucan-tabourace that is, a Feather to daunce with. Yet not with standing, they have such store of them, that they refuse not to change them for our Merchandizes. The bill of this Bird exceedeth the rest of the body in length. from bill of a where with a Cranes beake is not to be compared, and therefore it is to be accompted the most monthrous bill of the whole world.

There is another of the bigneffe and colour of a Black-bird, except the breft, which is as red as Oxe bloud; this, the Barbarsans take away after the same manner that they did the former. and call the Bird Panou. There is also another of the bignesse of an Owzell, with all the Feathers of a scarlet colour, this they call Quampian.

But one very little Bird is not to be omitted, of no lefte admiration then smalnesse, which the Bird or a fcar-Barbarians call Conambuch, with white and thining Feathers : it exceedeth not a drone Bee, or Beetle in bignesse, yet maketh wonderfull melodie in singing. Sitting vpon that great Milium which the Barbarians call Anati, or other high plants, she fingeth so loud, that valesse she be feene you would icarfe beleeue that fo loud, and (weete melodie could proceede from that fmall body. She is not inferior to our Nightingale.

The variety of

But because I cannot particularly describe all the American Birds, which differ not a little from ours, not onely in kinde, but also in variety of colour, as rose colour, red, violet, white, also colour, purple, &c. I will at length describe one, which the Barbarians so observe and esteeme, that they will not onely not hurt her, but fuffer them not to escape vnreuenged who doe her any wrong. She is of the bignesse of a Pigeon, and ashcolour, the Townpinambaulti, heare her more often in the night then in the day, with a mournefull voyce, and believe that she is sen from their friends and kindred, vnto them, and also declareth good lucke, and especially, that she incourageth and admonisheth them to behaue themselves valiantly in the warres against their enemies. Besides, they verily thinke that if they rightly observe these divinations, it shall come to passe, that they should vanquish their Enemies, even in this life, and after death, their soules should five beyond the Mountaines, to their ancestors, perpetually to daunce there,

I chanced once to lodge in a Village, named Vpee by the French men, there, in the night I heard those Birds, not finging, but making a lamentable noise. I saw the Barbarians most attentine, and being ignorant of the whole matter, reproued their folly. But, when I finited a little you The dotage of a French man standing by me, a certaine old man seuerely enough restrained me with these The dotage of words: bold your peace, least you hinder vs, who attentially barken to the happy tidings of our auncethe Barbarians who objectue flours. For, as often as wee beare thefe Birds, so often also are we obserted, and our strongth receithe finging of a meth increase.

Yra, Hony.

The Americane Bees differing from ours, are like vnto the leffer blacke flyes wherewith we American Bees. are troubled in the time of Summer, and make their hony combes in the hole of a rotten tree. The Barbarians are skilfull to gather hony and waxe. Being gathered, intermingled, they call it Tra-jetic, for Tra fignifieth hony, and Tetic waxe. The hony being seuered, they eate it after 40 our manner, but keepe the waxe which relembleth the blacknesse of Pitch made into lumps of the bignesse of a mans arme. Yet, not that they make Torches or Candles therewith, for, there is no other vse of a Candle with them, then of a certaine wood which sendeth forth a most cleere and bright flame. But they chiefly vie that Wax to stop those huge canes, wherein they put their Feathers, least they should be eaten, and gnawed with the Butter-flyes, which also we will describe in this place.

Arauers, But-

They are called Arauers by the Barbarians, of the bigneffe of Grashoppers, they also come in great multitudes to the fire as Creekets doe, and if they finde anie thing they eate it, but especiallie they fo gnaw leather doublets and shooes, that they whollie consume the superficies and ypper graine thereof. But, if we negligently fet vp Hennes, or other meates of that kinde, in the morning the bare bones were found without flesh.

The Barbarians being stung with Scorpions applie bruised Scorpions to the wound, if they can get them. Moreouer, as we have eliewhere laid, that they are most desirous of reuenge, nay, I might almost say, that they are made against all hurtfull things, so that if vnawares they flum-The Barberins ble at a stone, they bite them after the manner of mad Dogges, and diligently seeke out all liuing creatures hurtfull vnto them, and vetterly roote them out as much as they can,

The Countrie of America hath alfoland Crabbes, the Townpinambaulty call them Ouffa; they 20e in multitudes like Locusts, vnto the Sea shoare, and fennie places, and if any one goe thither he may fee them flying hither and thither: they conuey themselves into the bodies and rootes of trees, out of the which they cannot fafely be drawne, for they pinch the fingers and hands of 62 such as takethem, with their clawes. They are farre leaner then the Sea Crabs, but because they fmell of the Juniper rootes, they are nothing pleafing to the tafte.

His discourse of America fishes I bane omitted, except this which you shall now beare. I will not omit a storie which I heard reported by a Barbarian. When, faith he, on a certaine day, I was carried in a Boate with certaine others, in a verie calme Sea, a certaine huge fish tooke hold with the hand on the brim of the Boate, and in my judgement, it would either have ouer turned it. or enten vp into it. I feeing that, cut off the hand with a fickle which I had in a readinesse, so concerning a shat it fell into the Boate, and it had fine fingers verie like vnto ours; besides, for paine which fish with hands that fift telt, putting the head aboue water, which was like vnto the head of a man, it fqueaked and countea little, and made a certaine noife.

First, because the Brasil tree is the most famous of all that soile (from whence also that Countrie hath taken the name) especially for the colour which our Dyers make therewith, I will defcribe it in this place. This Tree therefore is called by the Barbarians, Arabontan, and equalleth Of thetrees, to our Oake in height and plentie of Boughes. Some of these are found, the thicknesse whereof bearbs, roots, containeth full as much as three men can fathome.

After what manner that Timber vieth to be brought into the Shippes, I thought good in this which grow is place to describe. But first you are to understand, that except the Merchants were holpen by the American the Inhabitants, they could scarce lade a Ship with that Timber within a yeare, both for the Soyle, the Innabitance, and therefore the difficultie in cutting, and also chiefely, because that Countrie wan rebeston, the

Brasil tree, and tech all labouring Beafts, and therefore it is to be carried upon the shoulders of men. The Barbarians being hired for Garments, Shirts, Cappes, Kniues, and other Merchandizes, doe not onely thereof. cut.cleaue, and make round that Timber, but alfolaying it vpon their bare shoulders, carrie it into the Shippes, and sometime in most cumbersome places, lying three or foure miles distant 30 from the wood to the shoare. But I expressely say, that the Barbarians, since the French men and wanteth all Partugals came vnto them, cut their Brail trees, for before that time (28 farre as I vnderftood beafts of burfrom the elder fort) they had no other way of felling them, faue that they ouerthrew them by den. putting fire vnto them. Moreouer, because I know some thinke that the timber which is brought The Barbarians water vs. hath the thicknesse of the trees, I purposely added, that the Barbarians made it round, that they might the more easily carrie the fame. Furthermore, it hath bin observed by me, for so long time as I lived in America, and vied a The ancient cleare fire through the benefit of this wood, that this kinde of wood was nothing moift, which manner of felvitally happeneth to most of the other kindes of wood: nay, that it was dry as it were by namong the Bemong the Beture, and beeing kindled, yeeldeth very little smoake. One of our men defired to wash our besient. 30 fhirts, and vnawares, put the after of the Brafil wood into the lye, whereby they were fo furely The Brafil died with a red colour, that although they were washed, they neuer changed the same, and be- wood, almost ing fo died with that colour, we were to put them on.

50 or his next kindred.

Because out Tomonpinambantty doe not meanely wonder, when they see French men. and other strangers comming farre off from remote Countries, take so much paines to carrie backe their dye fines of a Shippes laden with their Arabouran, that is to fay the Brafil or red wood : Therefore a certaine red colour. elderly man of the Barbarians, sometimes questioned me in this manner, concerning that matter: What meanethit, that you Mair and Peros (that is French men and Portugals) come fo farre to fetch Wood? dotb your Countrie yeelde you no wood for the fire? Then taid I, it yeeldeth fuell furely, and that raine Barberiin great plentie, but not of that kinde of trees, (such as yours are; especially Brafil, which our men carrie an with the 40 from bence, not to burne, as you suppose, but for to dye. Here he presently excepting; But bane you, Author, faid he, neede of so great plentic of that wood? Yea surely, said I, for seeing even one Merchant with vis possible to more Scarlet Clousber, more Kniver and Sisser, and more Looking-glasses (alledging knowne and familiar examples unto him) then all these which were ever brought hither unto you: he onely will bur all the Brasil, to the end that many Shipper might returne laden from hence. Ab (faith the Barbarian) you sellme strange and wonderfull things. Then presently remembring what he had heard, he proceeded to demand further questions of me. But, faith he, that great rich man, of whom you make report, doth be not die? He dieth, faid I, as also other men doe. There, then (as these Barbarians loue to comment, and doe not abfurdly finish their intended speech without interruption even unto the end) he began to demand of me : Who therefore, (aith he, is here of those goods which this man leaneth when be dieth ? His children, faid I, if he bane any : if he bane none, bis brethren, fifters,

When I had faid this, furely (faith that my discrecte old fellow) hereby I easily perceine, that you Mair (that is French men) are notable fooles. For, what neede you fo greatly to tire and turmoile your selues in failing over the Sea, in passing whereof (as being here arrived you report to vs) you suflaine so many miseries? Is st, for south, that you might get riches for your children, or lining kinsfolke? sentence deli. Is not the Earth, which bath nowished vs. sufficient also to maintaine them? we surely have both shil- ueted by aberdren, and also kinsfolke, and them, as you fee, we love dearely; but feeing we confidently bope, that it shall barian. come to paffe, that after our death, the same Earth which nourified vs, shall also reliene and cherish them, therein we repose our selme; and rest content.

60 But that I may present the description of the American Trees, foure or fine kindes of Palme trees are found there : among which, that is accounted most common, which they call Geran, Foure or fire and another also named Tri: notwithstanding, as I saw none of their fruites, so, as I thinke, I kindes of the eate none. Tri bringeth forth a round fruite like Damsens in the shape of a large cluster of so SIIII

ance refere bling the fhape of a man Chap.13.

and moff exand corre is in-great

A tendrell of yong branch in the op of the Palmes to be eaten.

great weight, that it may hardly be lifted up with one hand, but the kernell onely is of the gnesse of a Cherrie, and may be eaten. Belides, in the top of these Palmes, there is a certaine white yong tendrell or branch, which we cut off, to eate the fame : Philippus who was troubled with the hamron es, affirmed, that it was a remedy for that difeale, the warrantable truth where of I leave to the Philitians.

There is also another tree, called by the Barbarians Airi, which although it be very like the Agri, athorny Palme in leaves, with the stocke armed on every side with thornes and pricks, resembling the points of needles. The Fruite is of an indifferent bigneffe, in the middeft whereof there is a kernell of the whitenesse of Snow, which yet is not to be eaten; and this I suppose to be a kinde of Ebeny: for befides that it is of a blacke colour, and of such hardnesse, that the Barbarians partly wie it for the making of their clubs and arrowes (which I will more at large describe when I shall treate of their wars) it is also smoothed, and made very bright, and lastly, is so heavie, that being cast into the water, it presently finketh to the bottome.

most stinking

They have divers coloured woods, and divers of differing fcent; one fmelling like a rofe; another called Aon ai, of the most stinking smell of Garlicke, which no man is able to indure, while it is hewed or burnt : it hath leaves not much valike the leaves of our Apple trees : but the fruite thereof (which commeth neere in shape to the rough shell of a Chesout) and especially the kernell, is fo venemous, that to him that eateth it, it relembleth the effect of the most firong and deadle poison. Norwithstanding our Barbarians highly esteeme that fruite, because they make their Rattles of it. Here alto it is to be confidered, that Brafilia (as we shall hereafter speake) bea-Very many 4- ring excellent apples of very many kindes, aboundeth allo with trees, which furely yeelde vemerican trees ry goodly fruites, yet vnprofitable to be eaten. E pecially on the shoare there are many imall shrubbes, the apples whereof being very like vnto our Country Medlers, are dangerously eaten. Therefore, when the Barbarians fee the French men, and other ftrangers comming to gather those apples, often vsing the word Tpochi, in their Country language, they admonish them to abstaine from them.

beare poilonous fluits,

The tree called by the Barbarians Chorne, is of an indifferent height, with leaves of the shape The tree cher- and greenenesse of a Bay leafe, with Apples of the bignesse of a children head, comming neere vnto the shape of the Estridges egges, which surely are no meate. Or these the Tourspinambaulin, by reason of the hardnesse of the shell, piersing some of them through whole, in leng th and breauth barians make wherewith they make their Maraca or Rattles; they also nollow and divide them into halves. for cups and other imall veffels.

Sabaucase is also numbred among the Brasilian trees, having an apple bigger then both a mans filts and imitating the forme of a cup : in the bottome whereof certaine small kernels are found, their Ma aca. Sahaurajawhole fruite is properly vied for hike vnto Almonds, and almost they resemble the very taste of Almonds, the making of Moreover there is a tree in these Countries of the highest formation of the making of

Moreover, there is a tree in those Countries, of the height of our Service tree, whose apple the Barbarians name Acaiou, of the bignesse and shape of an Hens egge, which when it is ripe, incli-This is a kinde ning to the colour of Gold, like vnto a Quince, is not onely profitably eaten, but also yeeldeth of Ceco. to be caten. tender fhrub.

Pace, a long

Majou, a fruite formewhat a tart juice, not unpleasing to the taile, which most comfortably cooleth those that are inflamed with heate. Paco-aire, is a shrub, of ten or twelue foote high, with a stocke. sometimes of the thicknesse of a mans thigh, which not with standing is so tender, that it may be cut downe at one stroake with a Sword : the Barbarians call the apple Paco, of the length of a mans hand, not vulike a Cucumber in shape, and of the same colour also, when it commeth to ripenesse. But these apples grow, for the most part, twentie or fine and twenty thicke together, on enery bough, which the Americans gathering, carry them into their cottages, of fo great a waight as they are able to beare with one hand. And as touching the goodnesse of this apple, when it is ripe, the knop being plucked of after the manner of a tresh gathered Figge, it feemeth clottie and full of clu-Paco, a Figge fters: whereby it commeth to paffe, that to them that eate it, it refembleth the Figge, whereupon, we called it a Figge: but in tafte it excelleth the most delicate Massiltensian Figges; and 50 therefore not vnworthily it may be reckoned among the best fruites of all that coall. The forme The leaves of of the leaves of Paca-aire, is not volike the leaves of water-Sorrell, but they are of so great a big-Pace-aire, are nefle, that commonly the length is extended to fix feete, and the breadth about two: whereby bignesse. The it commeth to passe, that I cannot be perswaded by any meanes to believe that in Europe, Asia, Author faith it and Africa, there are leaves of fo great length and breadth. For, although I neard a certaine Apois like the Musa the cary affirming, that he had seene a lease of Petasitis of the breadth of an Elle and a quarter, Perafirstance that is (for this Plant is round) whose circumference contained in compasse three Elles tound leate. and three quarters: yet this largenesse came nothing neere to the greatnesse of our Paco-aire. It is true furely that the thickneffe of those leaves answere not the length, nay, they are very slender, vet daily lifted up, to that the middle ribbe onely beareth the violence of the most vehe- 62 ment winde, wherewith that Country is very often troubled; but the relt is fo lagged and cut a funder, that to him that beholdeth them a farre off, thele thrubs are supposed to be decked with E.t. 1 gesteathers.

CHAP. 2. S.2. Brafilian Cotton-trees. The American irreconcitiable wars.

As touching the Bombain Cotton furubs, which grow up to arrandifferent heighth, they are found in great number, in Brafill: they yeeld flowres, like the little yellow hels or buddes of Cucumbers but when the Apple is formed, it commeth not only verie neer vato the Mait of Beech. but also being ripe, divideth it felfe into foure parts, which yeeld Bombain Cotton in flockes of the bignesse of a ball, which the Barbarians call Amoni-ion. In the midst of those stockes cerraine blacke graines are found, close joined and verie much pressed rogether, after the forme of a Cotton. mans Kienie, the greatneffe of which compacture exceedeth not a Beine. Moreover, the Barbarian women are not vnskilfull in gathering and spinning that Bombasis Cotton , for of it they make their beds.

Reeds often grow in the Woods, of the bigneffe of a mans legge : but as I'lid before of Pacisaire, they are io tender, that while they are yet flanding, any one of them may bee cut downer with one ftreake of a Sword, yet being drie, they are of such hardneffe that when they are cleft, Reeds, where and fashioned after the manner of the Surgeons Lances, the Barbarians to head their Arrowes with the Barba therewith, that they ouerthrow wilde beafts flat to the ground at one shoot.

Masticke also groweth in this our America among the briers and bulkes, which together, almost, with infinite other odoriferous herbes and flowres, perfameth the earth with a most sweet and pleafant fcent. The Trees are never spoiled of their leaves, being not troubled at all with the cold, they flourish all the whole Yeare, as the Woods vie to doe with vs in the moneth

The plant which bringeth forth the fruit Ananas, is like in forme vnto the Flowre-deluce, rica. with crooked bending leaves, divided round about, comming neere vnto Alee, of the same forme with the greater Thirtle, but the Apple which is of the bignesse of an indifferent Melon, and of leanes thereof. the thape of a Pine Apple, bending to no part, groweth after the manner of our Artichoke.

Thole Anana when they are come to full ripeneffe, are of a golden colour imitating blue, and Anana the verldeth the fmell of the fruit of the Idean Bramble, so that by the smell they were easily found most excellent of vs, wandring in the Woods and other places where they grow: they are of fo fweet and plea- fruit of all dfant a tafte, that none of our preserved fruits excell them. Therefore I thinke it to bee the best fruit of all America. I sometimes wrung one of them, out of the which I drew a Cruze of fuice, which vnto me, seemed nothing inferiour vnto the Wine which they call Malmesey, Laffly, as I have faid, that among the Americans, no foure-footed beafts, birds, fiftes, nor any living creatures, in all things refemble ours of Europe: fo I now affirme, as much as I could finde cent three) by experience wandring through the Woods and Fields, that there are no Trees, or Herbes, and differ from laftly no fruits, which are not valike to ours, except these three Plants, Purssane, Basil Royall, and ours Fearne, which grow in certaine places.

The Bombafiri

riant head

fhing in Ame-The Plant A.

All the trees of America (ex-

ð. I I.

Of the Warre, Battailes, Fortitude, and Weapons of the Barbarians: and of their Religion.

Lthough our Tononpinambaulty Tonpinenquin make immortall warre against divers bordering Nations, after the manner of all the reft of the Barbarians. Notwithstanding, chap. 14. they contend not by warre to inlarge their bounds (for they possesse more Lands then For what can't they need) or thinke of the getting of Riches, by the spoiles, ransomes, and armes of the Americans the conquered. For as they all confesse, they are prouoked through no other affection then that they might most senerely avenge the death of their Parents and Friends long since taken, and denoured by the enemie. Moreover, when war is first proclaimed betweene certaine of thele 50 people, all of them agreeing in this, that the enemie vnto whom injurie is done, will perpetually thinke on the revenging of the same, and therefore that it is to be attributed to cowardite, if being brought into their power, they fuffer him to escape vnpunished : their enmities are fo inue- The Babeien terate, and of such continuance, that they can never be reconciled each to other. But the manner whereby our Tonoupmambaulty affemble, being readie to goe to the warres, their enemies, is this, as much as I could observe. Although they have no Kings or Princes among them, but are almost equall in dignitie, yet this is given them by nature (which allo was most exactly in former times observed by the Lacedemonians) that they admire and reverence the elder fort whom Senatus. they call Peorera Picheb, for their experience of things: therefore in everie Village no contempti- The Americans ble service and obedience is performed vinto them. These occasions being offered, either walking yeeld obedi-

60 or fitting in their Cotton hanging beds, exhort the rest with these, or the like words. What (lay they speaking by turne, without interruption of speech) were our Ancestors who The Oration not only fought against so many enemies, but also vanquished, sue and denoured them, an Exame of the elder ple unto us, that wee should perpetually lye lurking heere at home? Shall wee suffer our Mation, Americans, cannot be re-

CHAP. 3. S. 2. Toupinenquins Armies by Sea and Land France fights, felines without Tribunes, and Quarter-maiters, fo thatat the found of the Trumpet they verie foeedily affemble in battell array. But chese are fome, who with hornes, which they call Inabia, of the length of an elle and an halfe, and of the thicknesse of our Country Speare, of the bredth of an hand at the lower without conan name, and the a Trumpet, saile the Souldiers, both going out of their Countrie, and when the tulen. end like a range of the line also carrie Whitties made of the bone; of their enemies, daine and limbia, buge Campe removed.

Campe removed in former time, wherewith they continually pine by the way, that they might fittee Whitlies of vo the mindes of their companions, and increase their defire to kill the enemies in like manner. mens bones But if, which often happeneth, they please to undertake a Voyage, against the Enemie, by to Boat, they passe along the fluores, and commit not themselves votor be maine Sea. They order themselves in their Boats, which they call Teat, energy one whereof conflitted of the barke of Test, a Boat of one tree, taken off, and appointed to this vie; yet are they of fuch largeruffe, that every one of them may receive fiftie mes. Standing therefore after their manney, they drive the Boat forward with an Oare, plaine on both fides, which they hold in the middle, Moreover, these Boats feing they are plaine, are rossed with very little trouble; yet is there no vie of them, in the maine Sea, or it a tempest arife. But, our Barbariant, gaing a warfare, in a great calme, you may fee a Fleet confitting of fexcie fuch Boats. And thele paffe the Seas with lo fwift a motion, that they are pretently gone out of tigits. So, these are the Armies of the Toppinenquin, both by Sea, and Land. Being furnished after this manner, they fometimes goe fittie miles into the Enemies borders. And first they vie this stratagem. All the most valiant, leave the rest with the women and car- The first stratagem. risees, one or two dayes fourney behind them: they approach with great filence, and poffeffe gem of the the Woods, lying in waite to entrappe the Enemie, for whom they fo diligently watch, that oftentimes they lie hid there, for foure and twentie hourgs. And if they fet vpon the Enemie vnawares, as many men, women and children as they meete with, are not onely brought away. but also flaine by the Enemies returning into their Countrey, and put vpon Boucan in pieces. and at length denoured. And they furprize them to much the more eafily, because the Villages (for they have no Cities) are not compated with walls, and the Cottages (which yet are fourtfcore or an hundred paces long) haue no Doores, but in their flead, they fet the boughs of 20 Palmes, or the stalke of the herbe Panda at their Gates. Yet they have now learned to fortifie and intrench certaine Villages round about, which border vpon the Enemies, with postes of Palmes, of fixe foot long, belides they strengthen the entrances with woodden stakes tharpe at the end : if therefore the Enemies will affaile those Villages by night, which is common with

But, if they delire to fight in open warre, bringing forth their forces on both fides, it is fearce credible, how cruelland horrible the battell is: whereof my felre was a beholder, and therefore can justly make report thereof. I, with another Frenchman, somewhat more curiously, to an our great danger, determined to accompanie our Barbarians going to the warres : for if we had beene taken, or hurt by the Margaiates, wee had certainely beene demoured. These being foure thousand men in number, fought with the Enemie neere vnto the shoare, with such fierceneffe. that they would have overcome even the most furious and outragious.

the name of their wounded feete, who are prefently softed and eaten by the Inhabitants.

The Tonoupinambaniti, as foone as they faw the Enemie, brake out into fo great and loude howling and exclamation, as they who here hunt Wolues, make no out-ones comparable with The howling those: for the clamour to pierced the aire, that thunder then could scarse have beene heard, and exclama-But, comming neerer, they doubled their cries, and blew their Hornes, and laftly, winfilled with tion of the But comming neerer, they doubled their cries, and blew their Hornes, and laftly, winfilled with Buthericas their Pipes, the one threatned the other, and in a brauery shewed the bones of their dead Enemies: and also the teeth, whereof some wore them hanging about their neckes, strung vpon a the bestell threed about two elles long: and laftly, they terrified the beholders with their geffure. But, The fit wing 50 when they came to joyne battell, matters fell out farre worfe : for, a multitude of Arrowes was of the bones shot on both sides, like swarming Flyes in number. Such as were wounded, who were not sew. floutly plucked the Arrowes out of their bodies, which they bit like madde Dogs, and yet abstayned not therefore from the battell. For this Nation is so fierce and cruell, that io long as they The Barbarians have any little strength, they fight continually, and never betake themselves to flight : we withdrawing our felues a little from the conflict, were contented with that spectacle. In the meane space, I protest, who have divers times here seene mightie Armies both of horse and foot ordered in battell array, that I was never fo much delighted in feeing the Legions or footmen in their glittering Armour, as in beholding these Touonpinambaulty, while they were fighting. For be-60 fides that they were pleafantly feene whiftling, leaping, and very speedily and nimbly gathering themselves round in a ring : a very thicke cloude of Arrowes was moreover added; the fea- The bodies & there whereof being rote-colour, blue, red, greene, and of other fuch like colours, gaue a radiane the Barbarism Infire in the Sunne; their garments also, Caps, Bracelets, and other ornaments of feathers, decked with which made a wonderfull glittering showe in the eyes of the beholders.

The Barbarians

them, then, the Inhabitants of the Village iffue faftly forth vipon them; whereby it commeth to paffe, that whether they fight, or thee, they never escape, but fome are overthrowne through which in former times was so great a terrour to all the rest, that they could not in any fort indure their fight, to be fo much reproached to eur great diffrace, that our enemies should affaile us by Warre enemin our owne boules? Shall we through our comardize cause, that the Margaites, and Peros ergains (that is , thefe wicked Nations) affault us first? Then that Orator clapping his thoulders and buttocks with his hands, addeth thele words with exclamation : Erima, Erima, Tonompinambanks, Co. nomion : fon Tan, Tan, &c. that is to lay, My Countrimen, and most valiant young men, wee are not fo to doe : but rather let vs prepare vs for the fight, and bequeathe our felues to death and flaughter, or avenge our people.

With these Orations therefore of the ellers, which sometimes are prolonged for fix hourses the hearers who most attentively hearken, so that they forget not so much as one syllable, being 10 increased both in strength and courage, Ipraking each to other in everie Village, affemble as speedily as they may at the prefixed place in great multitules. But before wee bring our Tonompinambankin to the Battaile, were are to declare with what Weapons they are

Tacare a kinde

And first furely, they have Tacapes, that is, Clubs, or Swords made some of redde, and some of blacke wood : they are commonly of the length of fine or fixe feete, round at the ends, or of an ouall shape, of the breadth of a foote, and of the thicknesse of a Thumbe in the middeft, but the edges are verie finely sharpened, for they are made of verie heavie wood. fuch as Boxe is, and are little inferiour to the edge of a verie sharpe Axe: so that I casily beleeve, that one Tononpinambanlian armed with fuch a Clubbe, and inraged with 20 furie. would beeable to put two of our Countrie Fencers to much trouble, and drive them to their fbifts. Orabat. 2 Bow. Moreover, they have Bowes, which they call Orapats, made of the fame kinde of wood to wit, redde and blacke; and they exceed ours fo much in length and thickneffe, that none of our men is able either to bend or vinbend them : infomuch as they are of necessitie to vie all their thrength for the bending of the Bowes of Children of tenne yeeres old. They vie the The herbe To- herbe called Tocon, for ftrings, which although it bee verie flender, yet is it of fo great a cau, fruing in Arength, that it may indure the force of an Horfe. Their Arrowes are of the length of an fleed of Bow Eil, made with three joynts; the middle part confliting of a Cane or Reede, and the other two fittings.

The length of of blacke wood: and those pieces are so aprly bound together with certaine banks of Trees, to their Arrows. that they could not bee more firmely glued. They apply two little feathers visto them, of the length of a foote, which they binde together with a Cotton Thread, because Glue is not in vie with them : they aptly iowne very tharpe bones to the ends, tometimes a piece of a drie Reed, of the length of a mans hand out fmooth after the manner of a Surgeons Launce; and fomt mesthe verie end of the taile of the fish Raye, which as I have elsewhere faid, is verie venemous. But. fince the Frenchmen and the Portugals came into those Countreyes, the Barbarians, after their manner have accustomed to threngthen their Arrowes with Iron heads, or at the least, with verie sharpe Nailes.

We have alreadie spoken what their dexteritie is, in handling their Clubs: but as touching the Bowes, I hope that all they who have feene the Barbarians, will confirme that with their 40 naked armes, they shoot so speedily, and so certainly, that (bee it spoken by the Englishmens leave, who are yet accounted the most skilfull Archers) putting their Arrowes in the hand wherewith they hold their Bow, twelue may fooner bee fhot by them, then fixe by the moft skil:ull Targets of

The American

Lattly, they have Targets of the Hide of Tapirouffon, which I mentioned before, broad, plaine, and round, like to the bottome of a Germane D umme, with these they couer not themselves in fight, after the manner that our Souldiers vie, but fighting, receive the Arrowes of the Enemi: s with them. So these are all the Weapons of the Americans: for they couer not their bodies with other Armour : but contrarily (excepting their Caps of Feathers, Bracelets, and other fhort attire, wherewith as aforefaid, they decke their bodie, if they work but a en fhirt, being about to goe vnto the battaile, they would prefently put it off, fearing least they might be intangled and incumbred there with.

Iron Swords.

If they received Iron Swordes from vs, as I gave one to a certaine Monfacat of mine, they prefently cast away the sheathes: they did the like also receiving Knives, delighting in the brightnesse of them, and thought them more serviceable for the cutting of the boughes of Trees, then for fight.

Eight or tenne thousand people being gathered together after the manner which hath beene spoken, with no small number of women, not to fight, but to carrie their bagge and baggage, and prouision of victuall, allembling vnto the Campe, they of the elder fort, who have The elder Bor. flaine and denoured the greatest number of enemiess, have the chiefe command and conducting 62 berians, Cap- of the forces : who being their Leaders, they prepare themselues for the journie. And although they goe without order, yet when they march trooping, the most valiant men keeping the Front of the Armie, it is a wonder how well all that whole multitude conney them-

This battell being ended in the space of three houres, and many slaine and wounded on both fides, our Tonoupmambaulty carried away the victorie, and brought about thirtie captines more or leffe, both men and women, to their people. And wee, who performed no other feruice, but encouraged the Barbarians with our drawne fwords, and small thot, sometimes discharging them, as we beheld them fighting (in that it was most acceptable voto them if strangers went with them to the warres) procured fo great an opinion of vs, that from that time the elder fort embraced vs with a fpeciall good-will and loue.

The captines are bound.

The Captines therefore being placed in the middeft of the Armie, and fome of the stronger bound with ropes, we went with the Bay of Ganabara, from which we were diffant about foure and twenty miles. A few dayes after, certaine Barbarians, who had captines with them, came voto our Caftle, whom by Interpreters, we intreated that they would fell certaine flaues to Vil. lagagno. So, a great part of the captines was delinered from the lawes of the Barbarians: ver hardly, and against the will of the Barbarians; which not long after was plainly declared vnto mee. I bought a certaine woman with her little childe fearce two yeeres old, the price wascertaine merchandise, the value whereof amounted to three French pounds. But hee that fold them, complained thus vnto mee: What will be hereafter I know not, but fince Parcolas (for To they named Villagagno) arrived here, wee have fcarce eaten the halte part of our captives, I greatly defired to keepe that little childe vnto my felfe, but Usliagague, reftoring my merchan-difes, challenged both the mother and the fonne. I sometimes faid, vnto the mother, that when I passed over Sea, I would transport the little childe hither. But shee (the desire of taking reuenge is to inherent in the mindes of that Nation) answered that shee had rather that he should be denoured by the Tononpinambanki, then to be carried into fo remote Countries : for fhee ho-Author: De-cause we have ped, that growing older, he might by some meanes escape, and convey himselfe vnto his Counglutted you al. trymen, and reuenge the death of his kindred.

Their feafting with mans here emitted. thous b fully ready, &c.

Chap. 16. Of their Reli-Cicero 1. de Le-The Tougusinambaultÿ ate ignorant of the true God, and acknowledge no falfe gods, nor the barians thinke of the Scrip-

Bill and won-P(41.29.

A Lthough that faying of Cicero, be held for a most certaine Axiome by the common account of all men, that there is no Nation fo fanage, nor fo fierce, that doth not know that they are to bane a God, alshongh they be ignorant what manner of God they ought to have : yet, how this may appeare to be true in our Tonouginambanltis, I doe not fufficiently knowe. For, they are ignorant of the true God, and neither acknowledge nor worship any falle Gods, either celestiall or ter- 20 restriall: and therefore have no publike place where they may affemble for the cause of Religion. They are ignorant also of the creation of the World distinguish not dayes by names. nor preferre one before another: they observe not weekes, moneths and yeeres, but measure times by the Moones. They are not onely altogether ignorant of Scripture, whether it be facred or profane, but also veterly without Characters, wherewith they might bee able to write the creation of the meaning of the minde. When I first came into those Countries, I writ certaine words and fentences, to acquaint my felte with their Speech, and read them prefently before them. They thinking it to be a juggling tricke, fpake one to another in thele words: Is it not a wonder, that this man, who yesterday, knew not so much as one word of our Language, (by the meanes and helpe of this Paper which teacheth him to ipeake our words) should now so skilfully pronounce 40 them, that they may be understood of vs ?

As often as we talked with them, and happened to make mention of God, we faid, that we beleeved in one God, Creator of Heaven and Earth, who as he hath made the World, and what-The Barbariam focuer things are therein, fo he gouerneth all things at his pleasure. When they heard this, loobearing of the king one vpon another, and breaking out into this word Teb, which is a familiar token of adtrue God, con- miration with them, they flood full, fixed, and aftonished : Moreouer, because, as wee shall fpeake in his proper place, they are vehemently terrified with the noise of Thunder (which they call Toupan) if bearing with their rudenesse, wee tooke occasion thereby to instruct them, and faid, that that was the God whereof we spake vnto them, who that he might declare his power, shooke Heauen and Earth after that manner : they answered, that that God by whom they were 50 fo terrified, was a naughty one. I doe not beleeve that there is any Nation in the whole World. which may be more eftranged from all Religion. Yet, that I may also declare how little apparance of light I perceived, among those thicke mysts of darknesse wherewith they are blinded: Laffirme, that they doe not onely beleeue the immortalitie of the foules : but are also certainly perswaded, that after death their soules who have embraced vertue (but they define vertue after their manner, to wit, to auenge them of their Enemies, and to eate very many) flying beyond the highest Mountaines, are gathered to the soules of their Fathers and Grand-fathers, and there, in most pleasant Gardens, leade a toyfull life in perpetuall delights, and dansing: (this is that long peregrination of Socrates, and the Poets Elysian fields) but contrarily the foules of the fearefull cowards, who lued ingloriously, without any care of defending their Countrie, are 60 violently carried away by Aygnan (for so they call the Deuill) and line in perpetuall torment

These most miserable Barbarians are wofully even in this life tormented by the Deuill (whom by another name they call Kangerre) : For, I have sometimes seene them, even while they were talking with vs, immediatly crying out like frantike men, Hei, bei, helpe vs, for Agenan beatalking with vs, immediativ crying out the training method of them fometimes in the flape Again an evill teth vs. Nay, they affirmed, that the wicked spirit was seene of them sometimes in the spirit vexels of a cruell Beaft, sometimes of a Bird, and sometimes also in some monstrous forme. And the Sauages, or a cruen searly wondred that wee were not vexed by the Deuill: therefore, wee telling them that we were delinered from those torments by that God, whereof wee often make who them, who was tatre aboue Aygnas, and hindered him from procuring vs any trouble. It vnto them, who was talt danger enforcing them, they promifed to belieue in God, but being de- Mafter Kniuee linered, they were vinmindfull of the promile. But, that it may enidently appeare, that the tor- which lined ments wherwith they are vexed, are no pastimes, I my selfe haue somtimes seen them so stricken lang with the ments where they are vectors as a second ment were that the strength of the ment and quaking feare, remembring that milerie, that tweating through anguish, told mentage and clapping their thighes with their hands, they complained vnto vs with these words. Man he knewone Atonraffap , Acequeicy Aignan Atompane : that is , My foole, my companion , I feare the Deuill of their Ca. about all other euils. But contratiwife, if any of vs spake vnto him in these words, Naseque - raibes or Distier Agenan, I feare not the Deuill: then, bewailing their condition, they faid; Ah, how happie ners converte ier Agenam, I feare not the Dentil! then, bewalting their condition, they and it in the horse with this Spie were we, if thereby we might be fecured from him: whereupon we answered, that theretore with in cormenthey were to beleeue in him who is mightier then Azenan. But although, as hath beene faid, in ting one of his the prefent danger they promifed that they would doe it; yet they prefently returned to their fellowes; and owne disposition of nature.

CHAP.3.S.2. Americans the Deuils captines, their Priests, affemblies, &c.

Therefore, although our Americans confesse not God with the mouth, seeing among them- he is dealt Therefore, although our 22 merican confidence of with the mount, seeing among their with them, that they are continued that there is some distinct power; therby I gather, that they shall neither they would all he excusable nor justly take occasion to pretend Ignorance. But belides those things which have goe to the beene spoken by mee concerning the immortalitie of the Soule, which they believe sof the white men. &c. Thunder, whereof they are horribly affraid; and Deuils, by whom they are tormented: (which whereupon three things are first of all to be noted) I will moreouer adde a fourth principall matter. That the man recothey have Prophets or certaine Priefts among them, which they call Caraibes, who going from many other Village to Village, periwade those miterable men, that they (because they have familiaritie had died. And with Spirits) give not onely fortitude and courage to whom foeuer they please, whereby they this shewes might ouercome their enemies in warre, but also that through their helpe, all fruits, and those that which might ouercome their enterior in wants but and the American folle produceth, Moreouer, (as farre as the voluentalist 20 I underflood by the Neuftrian Interpreters, who had lived many yeeres in those Countries) the tie of religion, Tououningsubaultians have this custome, that every third or fourth yeere they affemble together, how or use At which affemblie, as shall immediatly be declared, I was present vnawares : concerning which these wantso-I am to report that which followeth. I, with a certaine Frenchman named lacobus Ruffus, and lemne formes also a certaine Neuftrian Interpreter, travelling farre from home, turned in to a certaine Village of it. Deos feits also a certaine Village of it. Deos feits to lodge; the next day after, wee prepared our felues early in the morning for our lourney, at which will not which time we faw the Borderers come flocking thither from all places. So, the Inhabitants of Deum veteri that Village loyned themselves with them that came, and presently wee saw sixe hundred ga- tanquam carenthered together in a cerraine voide plat of ground. We demand the cause of that meeting, and tem, timebunt faw that multitude divided into three parts. All the men went into a certaine Cottage, the vi hosen Varia, 40 women into another, and the children also went into the third. I, who had feene certaine Ca-much liker the raibes intermingled with the men, suspecting that some vnaccustomed and strange thing should Denill which be done by them, earneftly entreated my companions, that they would fraud itill there with worthips:.or me to observe the whole matter : which I obtavned of them. The Carabes, before they depar- God yet beleeted from the women and children, with great care forbid the women to goe out of their Cot-bleth, lam. a. tages, but diligently to attend to the finging, and also charged we to keepe our selues close in Caraibes false that Cottage where the women were: Being earnestly busied about our break-fast, and igno- Prophets. gant of those things which they purposed to doe, we heard a certaine lowe and soft muttering Arclation of noise breaking out of the house into the which the men had seuered themselves (for that Cottage a great solement) was almost thirtie paces distant from ours) the women which were about two hundred in number, standing, and giving care, gather themselves as it were on an heape. But the men lifting vp their voices by little and little, to that their distinct words were heard of vsexhorting, and likewife repeating this Interiection, we heard the women presently, with a trembling voice singing the same Interiection againe, be, be, be, &c. And they litted up their voices with fo great vehemency of minde, and that for 60 the space of one whole quarter of an houre, that they drew vs who were the beholders into admiration. And furely, they did not onely horribly howle, but also leaped forth with great vio. The howling, lence, and shaked their paps, and formed at the mouth, nay some of them (not valike vnto those that are troubled with the Falling-licknesse) fell downe dead. So that I thinke , that the Deuill Amoit as woentred into their bodies, and they fuddenly became possessed with the Deugli. Moreover, having men, plainly perceived those things which Bod new writeth, in the Booke which he called Demone. mansa, concerning the extatie of Witches, which hee affirmeth to bee common to all Witches. who have made an expresse covenant with the Devill, and who are often violently carried away in foirit, the bodie remayning voide of all fenfe, although also they are fometimes carried away both in bodie and minde. Adde (faith he) that they never meete together in any place, but they danie, among which, as farre as he could gather by the confession of certaine Witches, they all crie cut together. Har, bar, (which very well agreeth with He, be, of our Americans) the Dewill crieth, Danse buber, danse bither : and others answere , Sabbath , Sabbath , that is, A festivall day, or day of rest; lifting vp their hands, and the crops of herbes or trees which they have in Deut.12.6.7.

Lib.3.cap.3.

Lib.2.650.3. 0 110.3.640.1.

The Americane women a e led with the fame ipirit, where. tric Watches

Loncefaw Treinian dance, with fuch exit the Deuill

the American Gottages.

round circle.

The Caraines confectating Maraca,

Pelum by the thought to diffing fent, &cc. I thinke it the

their hands, that they may shew a most assured token of ioy, and signific that they serve the De- 10 with all their heart : and fo, that they imitate the adoration due vnto God. For, in the Law of God, it was preicribed to the Ifraelites, that they should lift up their hands voto the Lord, and shew themselves cheerefull before him. These things, I say, being certainly knowne, I gather, that Satan is Lord of them both : and that they are led by the same spirit, so that the diffance of places hindereth not, but that the Father of lyes may worke here and there you them who through the just judgement of God are delivered vinto him. Likewise, when I heard with our count the children crying altogether (although I had now line, halfe a yeere with the Barbarrans, and was almost acquainted with their manners) yet, not to diffemble, I was then somewhat afraid. especially, seeing I knew not what should be the end of that matter. At length those cries were I once faw Tomocome a Vir- ended, the men being for ewhat filent, the children and women also altogether holding their 20 peace, prefently the men began to fing to fweetly, and with fogreat harmonie, that I was wonderfully defirous to fee them. But when I would have gone out of the Cottage, I was both kept ta icall viages backe by the women, and also admonthed by the Interpreter, that he (who had already lived lehehaniour, as uen yeeres among the Barbarians) durit neuer come to those solemne meetings; and lastly, that if I went vnto them I should not doe wifely. Whereby he caused me to stay a while, for feare of danger; yet, because hee alledged no probable reason thereof, the women and Interpreter fomewhat relifting, I went forth: relying upon the friendship of certaine ancient men, Inhabitants of that Village. Going therefore vnto that place where I heard that Musicall harmonie, I made an hole through the roofe of the Cottage , that I might the better perceive what was done within. For, they are somewhat long, and round, after the manner of our Countrie garden 30 Arbours, and couered with graffe from the top to the bottome. Then, making a figne with my finger. I called my companions, and at length wee entred into that Cottage. As foone as wee faw that the Barbarians were not moued through our prefence (which thing the Interpreter fulnected, would have been done) and that they kept their order very well, and proceeded with their Veries : we went apart into a certaine corner, and beheld them without feare. Thefe are The gesture of their gestures in dansing. They were ordered in a round circle, standing close each to other; yet to, they tooke not one another by the hand stooping, with their bodie somwhat bending downward, shaking onely one of their legs, to wit, the right, with their right hand laid voon their buttockes, and the left hanging downe, and after this fashion they both dansed and sung. All that whole multitude made three fuch round Circles, in the middle whereof were three or foure 40 Caraibes, attired with Caps, Garments, and Bracelets of feathers. Each of them in either hand

Moreouer, those Caraibes dansing, sometimes, went forward, and sometimes backward, and did not continually fland ftill in the lame place, as the reft. Further, I observed that with a very long Cane, wherein they put the herbe Patum * fet on fire, they often turned themfelues hither and thither, and blew out the fume of that herbe vpon them that flood round about them, with these words : Receive the spirit of fortitude, whereby you may all ouercome your enemies. bicco because And this was often done by these Caraibes. The celebrating of these Rites and Ceremonies was 10 it hath a please prolonged for the space of two houres: those men continually dansing and finging. And their tunable finging was fo fweet, that to the vnskilfull it is fearce credible, how excellently well that harmonic agreed, especially, seeing the Barbarians are veterly ignorant of the Art of Mufike. And furely, although in the beginning I was ftricken with a certain feare, as I lately mentioblowing voon ned, yet contrarily I was then fo much ouer-loyed, that I was not only rauthed out or my felic: the Barbarians, but also now, as often as I remember the tunable agreement of many voices, both my minde rejoyceth, also mine eares feeme continually to ring therewith : but especially the burden of the fong yeelded a pleafing found vnto the eares, which at the end of enery Verie, they jung after carried Maraca, that is, that rattle of a fruit exceeding the bignesse of an Estridges egge, whereof we have made mention before, for that vie, as they faid, that the Spirit might speake out of them : and that they might rightly confectate them, they continually shooke them.

Being

CHAP.2. S.2. The Barbarians Songs, feafting, groffe Superstition.

Being about to make an end of that tunable finging, flaking the ground with the right foote more venemently then before, they all spit alio, and all with one voice, and that hoarie, sing this Song often repeated.

Then because I did not yet plainly understand their Language and conceived not many things to which had beene poken by them, I intreated the Interpreter that hee would declare them vinto me. He figmfieth, that their men, first lamented their dead Ancestors, who were most valiant. but in the end were hereby comforted, in that they hoped that after death they should at length go vnto them beyond the Mountaines, and dance with them, and celebrate merrie meetings: and that afterward they most grieuously threatned the One ones, (which are a people not farre remonted from them, with whom they have perpetuall enmitte, whom also they could never opercome) and forecold, that it should shortly come to passe, that they should be taken and denoured, as the Caraibes luckely gheffed. Moreouer, I know not what they intermingled with their Sone; concerning a floud, that the waters in times past to overflowed, that they covered the whole earth; and that through that inundation all men perished except only their Ancestors. The confus of 20 who climbed up into exceeding high Trees. Which last thing commeth very neere vnto the fa- opinion of the cred Historie, and I neuer once heard it from them before.

The same day they were simptuously received by the Barbarians, for they liberally entertained the floud. both with most exquisi e meates, and plentifu'l drinke Canoin. I also with my companions, who were present at those Feasts of Bacchin vnexpected, were most honourably entertained by Feast followour Monflacat, that is the Mafters of the houle, who give food to their guefts. But beside those ing. things which have bin spoken by me, those dates being past (wherein these solemne meetings are celebrated every third or fourth yeere among the Tonoupinambankin) fometimes also before they came thither, those Caraibes goe about from Village to Village, and command three or foure of those Rattles which they call Maraca, to bee decked with the best feathers in every Family : The decking 30 which being fo decked, they flicke the longer part of the flaffe, wherewith they are thrust of Maraca. through in the ground, and then command meate and drinke to be fet before them. Whereby it commeth to paile, that those miserable people, through the perswasion of those Impostors, beleeue that those hollow fruits decked after that manner deuoure the meats. Wherefore energy ouer, they serue those Maracas being to stucke in the ground, for fifteene whole cases together Perfittion. with very great diligence. Lattly, those miserable people after that to great bewitching of those Maraca, (which they continually carrie in their hands) conceive an opinion, attributing holineffe vnto them, that while they are thaken by them, a certaine Spirit speaketh with them from the middelt thereof. And they were to be witched with those delutions, that if we travelling that A most 40 way, feeing fome more delicate meates, which they had fet before their Maraca, tooke them to eate (which we oftentimes did) the Barbarians supposing that some great misfortune would thereby happen vnto vs, were offended. Moreouer, if taking occasion thereby to discouer their errours, we fignified that they were deceived by the Carabes, not only because they taught them that Maraca did eate and dfinke, but especially in this, that they most falsly vaunted that through their meanes, the fruits, and great Roots which they eate, increased and grew; which only was to be attributed vnto God, from whom wee were to believe that wee had received the fame : thefe things, I lay, were of fo great moment with them, as if any here should speake against the Pope, or at Paris, denie that the Image of Genouef would procure raine. For which gainst the rope, or a range that was did no lefte hate vs, then immerimes the falle Prophets of Baal recule those Importors the Caraibes did no lefte hate vs, then immerimes the falle Prophets of Baal reculs to 50 did Elia detecting their delutions. And therefore they fhunned our fight. But although our Touonpinambauliy, as hath beene declared by mee in the beginning of this Truth pursely

Chapter, neither honour their Carabes, nor Maraca, with any external rite, no not with knee- falshood to ling vnto them, nor worthip any thing created, much leffe adore it, or call vpon it for helpe, I flight, will adde an example of those Relikes of Religion which I observed among them. When by chance I was sometimes with other Frenchmen in a certaine Towne (which they call Ocarentim) and that we supped abroad in the open Aire, the Barbarians Inhabitants of that Village flocking together to fee vs, not to feast with vs (for this is their vivall custome, that they never fit together at meate, with those whom they reuerence most) the elder men especially with many to- How the onkens of friendship stood ound about vs as our guard or attendants : and holding in their hands cient Barbarje

60 the bone of the beake of a certaine fish, of three or foure foot long, in the forme of a Sawe, they are entertaine droue away the children from vs , with thefe words : Get you hence Knaues : for you are vn- the Frenchmen. worthy to come voto thelemen. So they beheld vs attenticely, and holding their peace, not speaking the least word the meane while : votill the Banket being ended, a certaine elderly man observing vs to beginne meate with Prayers, and also to end Supper with Prayer, comming vn-

concerning

Monffacar carefully fetteth before them, not only meale with fielh and fish ; but also Caonin, More. A grosse Sue the true God vnto the Bar-to vs. spoke thus. What meaneth this custom, which you now yied, when taking of your caps, you all kept filence, faue one, that spokes to whom appertained that speech which he made? to any of you that are prefent, or to some that are absent? There fitly taking that occasion offered, that I The oceasion might speake vnto them concerning the true worship of God, seeing besides the largentsle of the of declaring village, & the great refort of people (table perceived the Barbaria's more attentive then they were wont) I intreated our Interpreter that he would declare my speech vinto them in their Language, that they might conceine the fame. Then beginning with the question of the old man, I answered that our Prayers were directed vnto God : and that although he could not fee him, he had not only plainly heard vs, but also did apparantly know what soeuer we had hid in our hearts. From thence comming to the Creation of the World, I first of all laboured to teach them, that among 10 the creatures God made man the most noble and excellent, that hee should so much the more endenour to extoll the glorie of his Creator, And that we furely in that we worshipped him, were deliuered by his hand from infinite dangers of a very long Nanigation, in fo vaft a Sea, and depending voon his helpe, were freed from all feare of Aignan , both in this life and in the life to come. Wherefore, if they would reject the delutions of their Caraibes, and that barbarous cuftome of denouring mans fielh, they should vindoubtedly obtaine the same gifts of God, which they faw we had. Moreover, we added many things concerning the corruption and fall of Man-The Barbarien kind, that we might prepare their minds vnto Chrift , applying Reasons and Examples to their capacitie, as much as might be. Now when they had harkened vnto vs about the space of two hours with great attention and admiration : one of them reuerent for his authoritie and yeeres, 20 discoursed after this manner: Surely, you have bere told us wonderfull and excellent things; and such A relation of a as we have never heard before, and certainly your freech hath brought into my memorie, what wee have Barbaran most often heard our Grandfathers report: To wit, that even from ancient time, and so many Moonet linee. as we cannot now remember, acertaine Mair (that is a Frenchman, or firanger of any other Nation) came into these Countries, attired after your manner, and basing a beard. And that bee, to the and bee might draw them to the obedience of your God, made such a speech unto them, as you delinered unto us and derision, to the neighbouring Nations. Heere wee tellified with great vehemencie and earnest speech, that it was so farte off, that they ought to be mooued with the scoffes of the borderers, that contrarily, if they seriously worshipped that Creator both of Heauenand Earth, they should carrie away the victorie from all those, who for that cause, should willingly be troublesome vnto them. Lastly, the Lord game that efficacie to our words, that not only many Barbarians afterwards promifed to frame their lines according to that Law which they had learned of vs., and that they would never eate the flesh of their slaine enemies any more; but also according to this conference, kneeling on the The Barksviens ground, gaue thankes with vs, vnto God. That Prayer which was made vnto God, by one of 40 promife to em- our men, with a loude voice, in the middeft of their affembly, was prefently expounded vnto brace the wor- them by our Interpreter: and so they brought vs to sleepe in those hanging beds of Bombasin thip of God, & Cotton. But fleepe had not yet taken vs, when, behold, wee heare thefe Barbarians finging and are present at crying out together, that they were to take vengeance on their Enemies, and that more should this day. But, as it was reported unto us by tradition from our Fathers, they will not give credit to his words. Therefore, presently another succeeded, who gave them a Sword, in token of a curse. Hereupon, followed warres amongst vs, and from that time, wee bane not ceaffed to exercife crueltie one towards acontinuall vie, if we hould now suddenly leave our ancient custome, wee should become a laughing stocke, nother, through mutuall flaughters. But now, after we have accustomed our felues to these outrages by 30

be eaten then before. Behold the inconstancie of this miserable people, and the lamentable example of humane nature. Yet furely, I perswade my selfe, if Villagagno had never revolted from the true Religion, and that wee had stayed longer in those Countries, it would have happened, that at length, some should have beene wonne vnto Christ. Another time I being with three Sauges, and finging the ros. Plalme, at the request of one of them I declared the fense and antiquitie thereof, so many thouland Moones. Whereat he cried 50 their owners. Teb, how happie are you Mair, who know so many secrets, which are hid from vs poore misenorance and rable men. Afterward, one of them to gratifie mee, presented mee with a certaine little beaft, which he carried, called Agonis, speaking vnto mee in these words. Heere, take you this . because you have sung sweetly. I have willingly added this digression, to the intent I might declare that the Barbarous Americans, although outragious against their enemies, are not verso rude that they cannot discerne those things which they heare, with judgement. Nav. I dare affirme, that they are more apt in framing speeches, then our Countrie Peasants are, and very many of them alfo, who effeeme highly of themselves.

ò. III.

of their Marriages, Education of Children, Politic, Hosbitalitie, Difeases, Physicians, Funerals and La-

N Marriages, these degrees of Consanguinitie only, are observed mone of them taketh his Mother, Sister, or Doughter to water no regard is had of the refer to the second of the refer to the refer to the second of the refer to the second of the refer to the second of the refer to t his Mother, Sifter, or Daughter to wife: no regard is had of the reft: the Vncle mar-of Confanthe American Dialogue, no man may marrie the Daughter or Silter of his Atomrafrieth the Neece, and so consequently. Neuertheleffe, as shall bee hereatter spoken in guingtie. Tap. And he is called Atouraffap, whose familiaritie with any one is so great, that both their goods are common. There is no place for Rites or Ceremonies. Hee who defireth a Widdow, or

Virgin, being certainly periwaded of the good will of her whom hee loueth, goeth to her Parents, or if the have none, to her next Kindred, and asketh them whether they will marrie their Daughter vnto him? If they confent, he prefently bringeth her home, without giving her any affurance of Dowrie and fo keepeth her for his lawfull Wife. And if he fuffer the repulie, he giueth ouer his Sute without any perturbation of mind. But it is to bee noted, that Polygamy is Polygamic, vitall with them, and therefore it is lawfull for a man to marrie as many Wiues, as he shall think 20 good. Nay, the more Wives that any one bath the more valiant and generous hee is effeemed.

Among the rest I saw one, who had eight at home, and hee often spoke very much of them in commendation of himfelfe. But this is chiefly to be wondred at, that in fo great a multitude of Wines although one be beloued of the Husband aboue the rest, the other meaner take it gricuously, or become jealous, or openly murmur. Therefore they live most quietly and with great agreement, weating their Cotton beds, looking to the affaires of the house, making Gardens and

They to hate adulterous women, that it lyeth in the Husban's power either to kill the adul- men. treffe, or at the least, to put her away with great ignominie and reproach. This forely is true, The Sauger that they are not very carefull of preferring the chaffitie of vnmarried women : nay, they eafily terre. 20 prostitute them to any man. So that (as I haue alreadie said) I haue seene very many in diuers Single women

Villages deflowred by the Neuftrian Interpreters, who yet were not reprochfully diffgraced for loofe,

I have observed that the younger fort both men and women are not very much given to lust: How the Ameand I would our Countrey people could moderate themfelnes afwell in this behalfe. But that I rican women. may attribute no more vnto them then is meete, I remember, that often in their brawling they great with vied to object this reproach Tjune, that is, Buzgerers, one vnto another, whereby we may conjetthem (cluss Aure, that that hainous and abhominable wickedneffe raigneth among them. The women great Child-birth. with childe, abstaine only from the greater burthens, and performe the other accustomed duties. And furely the women much exceed the men in labour, for the men (laue that fometimes in the 40 Morning, neuer at noone, they place certaine Trees to make Gardens) ipend the time in war- The American fare, hunting, fishing, making of woodden Clubs , Bowes, Arrowes, and other things of that men perkinde. As touching the trauell of women; I and another Frenchman lodging in a certaine Vil- formethe of lage, about midnight heard a great out-cry of a woman, and supposing the had been surprized by fice of Midthe cruell beaft Ian-onare, we arole, and ran vnto her, and found the woman in trauell, to whom wines. the Husband performed the office of a Midwife: he receiving the Infant in his armes, cut the nauell ftring afunder with his teeth, but pressed downethe N Je (for they esteeme the beautie of children to conlift in the flatneffe of the Nofe) the new borne Infant is prefently walhed , and painted by the Father with colours blacke and red : then, not being wrapped in fwadling-clours atall, it is put into a Cotton hanging bedde. But if it bee a Male childe, the Fa her will give The little In-50 him a little woodden Sword, a small Bow and little Arrowes, prefently after his birth, fants Gugawes and lay them in the bedde with the coilde, and killing the little Babe will speake vnto What the mahim in these words. My Sonne, when thru art come to mans eff ste, be valuant, to take remenge of thme ner is of giving enemies. As touching the giuing of names, I remember that hee of who a I now spoke, was American named by the Father Orangeen, which word fignifieth a Bow and Bow firings: for the word is names. compounded of Orapat, which is a Bow, and Con which tignifieth a ffringe. The fame manner alfo is observed in others.

Their nourishment, beside the Mothers Milke, is chewed Meale, and every most tender kinde. The food of of meate. The woman lately deducted lieth downe two daies only, or three daies at the most. In ants. Afterward putting the little childe in a Cotton Scarffe, fiee either goeth to the Garden, orto 60 difpatch her other bufin ffc.

This opinion hath preuailed with vs, that little children would have crooked legges, valeffe they were carefully wrapped and bound in swadling clouts : But , I. firme, that the Barbarians nothing regard thefe things (who put the new borne Infancs naked, and variwadled in their Cottonbeds) whose children notwich tanding, goe most straight and veright of all the men in the full agreement American won the height of their flature, they worke after their manner, and also beginne their weauing from the hottome. They make certaine of those beds in the forme of Nets, and others thicker, like the

The American Infants are ve-

the Barbarians

bufie theme

Marriages.

can women.

The punish-

Chues.

World. The Mothers who both want linnen, and also vie not the helpe of leaves for these serusces (whereof not withfranding they have great plentie) to diligently wipe the hinder parts of ry clean with the Infants with small chips of wood, that they are continually free from all filth. The elder fore out the vie of also observe the same manner, whom also (digreffing a little into this filthy matter) I thought good linnen elothes to mention, that they vie to make water in their houses, and yet no euill nor flinking favour arifeth from thence; although they thine bright almost continually with often fires, and are strewed with fand : but as often as they doe their easement, they vie to goe apart farre from the Houses.

Moreover, proceeding to speake of the Marriage of the Tononpinambaultians, as far as shame In what things and modestie will permit, I affirme (contrarie to that which some have forged) that the men obferuing naturall shamefastnesse, doe no where openly company with their Wives.

This is especially worth the noting, that for the space of an whole yeere, while we lived in those Countries, we neuer saw any woman having the flowres. I thinke that they diver that themesathesse Fluxe by some meanes voknowne to vs. For I saw Maidens of twelve yeeres olde, whose is observed in fides were cut by their Mothers, from the arme-hole downe to the knee, with a very harpe the American tuske of a certaine beaft. And the young Girles gnashing with their Teeth through extre-The surgation mitie of paine, bleed very much : I conjecture that they preuented their monthly Fluxe be this remedie. of the Ameri-

The Barbarians line peaceably

As touching the Policie of the Barbarians, it is scarce credible how well they agree among themselves, being guided only by the light of Nature. Nor may this be spoken, but to their great fhame who are instructed in divine and humane Lawes, which yet is to bee vinderstood of them 20 who are of the same kindred, or of the Confederates : for how they behave themselves towards their enemies, it hath beene alreadie by vs declared. Yet if any contention arise betweenecertaine perions among them (which very feldome happeneth, for in the whole space of a veere, while I lued among them, it was my chance twice only to fee them brawling) the beholders care not to pacifie the ftrite : but fuffer them to doe their pleasure, although they bee readie to put out one anothers eies. But if the one wound the other, and that hee can bee taken, heeis ment of murtherers among wounded in the same part of the bodie by the Kinsmen of him that is wounded. Nay, if perthe Barbarians, aduenture death follow the wound, the Murtherer is flaine by the Kinsmen of the dead. Lastly, Leuit,34-19-20 they recompence eie for eie, tooth for tooth, and life for life. But these things as I faid, very feldome happen among them. The things of the ground, with them are Cottages, and fields farre larger then might be required for maintenance of the Inhabitants. As touching the Cottages, you are first to understand.

that enery Village containeth fixe hundred men : wherefore very many are of necessitie to dwell in one and the same Cottage. Notwithstanding everie Family possessing their place without any those houses lie open, which for the most part are extended fixtie paces in length) everie Master of a Family hath his wife and children placed apart. Moreouer, you are to observe (which surely is to be wondred at) that the Americans inhabit not one place aboue fine or fixe moneths. But carrying away the matter and herbe Pindo, whereof their houses consist, they often transport mooued a mile from the accustomed place. No man buildeth a Cottage, which he is not compelled to finish, nay, to build and plucke downe, about twentie times before his death, if hee have attained to the full age of a man. Now if it be demanded of them, why they change their habitation to often. The answere is easily made. That the changing of the Aire is verie profitable for the health; besides, that if they should alter the custome of their ancestors, they should prefently perish. As touching the fields, euerie Moussacar hath certains particular plats of ground, which he chooseth at his pleasure wheresoener he thinketh good for the making of Gardens. But that excedine care of duriding the grounds, fetting limits, and bounding the fields, they leave to Concerning their houshold stuffe, I have often spoken in the former Chapters. Yet that wee so our Countrie couetous persons, and to the Lawyers.

their Villages, which yet alwaies reteine the fame names. Wee our selves faw some Villages re- 40

After what monner the willages and American femi- distance betweene (for there is nothing that may hinder, but that from one end vnto the other

The transpormerican Villa-

peculiarly pof-

How the Ant-

may not omit any of those things which appertaine to the houshold government of the Barbarians, I will heere recite the cunning of the American women in spinning of Cotton, whereof there is manifold vie, as well for Ropes, as for the weating of their hanging beds. Being drawne out of the flockes, in stead of all picking and carding, they plucke it out somerican women what in length with the fingers, and then lay it vpon the ground in a heape (for they know not spin the cotten how to vie Distaffes) in stead of a Spindle they take a little wand of the thicknesse of a singer, and a foot in length, which they thruit through a little wooden round ball, and faften the Bombain Cotton to the top of the small wand, then turning that Instrument about upon their thigh (as our Countriewomen doe their Spindles) they let it flip out of their hands. That little round ball is turned about, through the houses and streets, like a Wherue. And after that manner they 60 spinne Threed, not only course and great for the weating of their Cotton Beds, but also that which is most fine. Of this fort I brought some into France , wherewith I caused a faire stomacher to be made of the white Web, which was of io fine and small a Threed, that some tooke it for the best and choicest Silke.

added, vnto the which they faften cords: and hang them vp in their houses vpon beames, made of the Berkerich fit for this vie. But, living in the Campe, or in the woods for hunting, or on the shoares for fishing, as are prepared they hang them youn trees. These beds (that wee omit nothing) when they have gathered filth ted and fored 30 either through humane (weat, or by the imcake, by reason of the continual) fire, are washed cleaner after this manner. The women gather a certaine fruit in the woods, not much volike in thene wnto a plaine Gourd, but farre larger, so that every Apple may scarce bee borne with one hand : thefe fruits they cut into small pieces, and having cast them into some very great earthen vessell. they mousten them with water. Then, they vehemently stirre them about with a sticke, and Fome, which caule a fome to arise from them, through the helpe whereof (in fead of Sope) they make their among the de Beds fo cleane, that in whitenesse they may be comparable with the Snowe, or Fullers Clothes. merican ful The vie of tuch Beds is farre more commodious in watches, then that the Souldiers, after the ac of Soosa of Soosa of Soosa customed manner, should tumble in Beds of graffe : for they both foule their garments, and get

20 with the Armes, which Souldiers continually weare: which in the fiege of the Citie Sancerra. we proued in good earnest: For the Enemie law a whole weere at our Porrs.

That we may gather the rest of the Americane houshold-stuffe into a short fumme, the women (who have the charge of domeflicall matters) prepare huge Cannes, and make very great Earthen veffels, wherein to put their Can-min. They also make Pots of duers fashions, little and The American indifferent Basons, Platters, and other things of that fort, vessels which on the outside furely, are nothing fmooth, but are so polished within, and beautified with I know not what kinde of meane, and tincture, which prefently waxeth hard, so that those women may easily match the industrie of little earther all our Countrie people. Besides, I know not what kinde of ash-colour painting they steepe in vessels, water, and afterwards make divers formes of things in their veffels, within, and specially in 20 thoie wherein they lay up their Meale, and other kindes of meates , to bee preserved. The vie

Lice, and that which is more, if they be to arise voto the fight, the bodie is brusted in some fort therefore of them is most acceptable, nay those vessels farre excell them of wood, which very many vie here with vs. Yet thefe Women-painters have this fault, that when they have pourtrayed with the Pencill whitfoener they pleafe, if they be intreated to paint the fame againe, they are not possibly able to doe it : because they have no example proposed, beside the industrie of their owne fantalie. Hence it commeth to paffe, that two of thefe kinde of pictures may fcarce be found alike. Moreouer, (as I have elsewhere faid) the Barbarians have Gourds, and other kindes of fruits.

which they divide, and make hollow, and they vie them in flead of Cups, (which they call Co- Post and other wi) and other veffels of divers vies. They have also Panniers, large and meane, and likewife veffels, of 40 Baskets, very finely made of bul-rushes, or yellowish graffe, not much differing from Wheaten fruits, panifest ifraw. Their they call Panacon, and in them they put Meale and other things which they andbakers,

Although the Tououpmambaultianis receive firangers very curteoufly, yet the Frenchmen, and The Barbarient other Strangers, who are ignorant of their Language, were not a little aftonished in the begin cutteenly en-ning, by reason of their viaccustomed behaulour. When I first conversed among them (which tertain guests, happened about twenty dayes after our arrivall at the Caftle of Colligne) a certaine Interpreter brought me to certaine Villages, in the Continent : that which I firit faw, in their native Language is called Therraci, but in French, Pepin, by the name of a certaine Pilot, who fometime laded a ship at that place ; foure miles only distant from our Castle. In the very entrance the Bar. A pleasant difbarians came thicke about me, and fpake vntome in these words, Marape derere, Marape dererel things which that is, By what name are you called? Which words, furely, to mee were very barbarous, but one befellihe Aus of them taking off my Hat, put it vpon his head; another girdeth my Girdle and Sword vnto thous when he of them taking on my riat, put is you in succession and they dull me with their cries, and being closhis naked fide: another putteth on my Coat: and they dull me with their cries, and being closhis naked fide: another putteth on my Coat: thed with my spoiles, runne hither and thither. I then thought that I had loft all, and did not well knowe how fafe I might be among them. But, as I found by experience, that feare arole from my ignorance of their customes, for they vie to doe the like to all strangers, especially vnto them whom they never faw before. Now, when for their recreation, they had walked about a little while in that habite, they precifely reftore enery thing againe. Then I was advertised by the Interpreter, that they greatly defired to vinderstand my name : but in declaring that, !

60 was to forbeare vivall names with vs, which the Barbarians could neither pronounce (for in flead of folion, they faid Niss) nor yet well remember: but was to propound somewhat which The Authors might be knowne vnto them. The matter succeeded so happily, that, as the Interpreter fignis name in the fied vnto mee, who was very skilfull in the Brafilian Language, my name Lerina fignified an American Language Oyster : I therefore answered, that I was called Lorig-onflow. They liked it very well, and of. guage.

They call their Cotton beds Ini. The women, to whom this workmanship appertaineth have their work-houses for their Loomes somewhat valike to those of our Countrie: for they are Int., Cotton neither made flat and plaine, nor confift of fo many fubrile inventions; but being framed to the bottome. I may be the fine or fixe foot long, and an ellebroad : vnto either end Cotton loopes are How the Beda

The American

wayle the

comming of Gueffs.

mong the A.

ten ving Teb, their Interiection of admiration, they ipake thus vnto me. An excellent name furely, nor have we ever fe und any Mair, who had tuch a name. They have so good and fure a memorie, that if they have once heard any mans name, they never forget it.

The same day, accompanied with the Interpreter, I went further, and turned into the Village Enramiri, lo called in their native Language, but in French, Gofer, after the name of a certaine Interpreter, who dwelt there some little while: wee came thither about Sunne set, and found them danling, and drinking their Cao-sun, by realon of a Captine, whom they had flaine that day. I perceived the pieces of his field laid vpon Boncan. I thinke, you need not enquire with how great and horrible feare I was then thricken ; yet that was but a small matter, if it be compared with the feare wherewith I was afterward aftonished. Wee entred into a Cottage, and 10 fare woon the hanging beds, after the accustomed fashion: the women lament after that manner which we will declare, and the Master of the Familie entertaineth vs with friendly words. The Interpreter who was acquainted with these matters, and who was very much delighted with their drinkings, leaveth me vnialuted, and ignorant of all things, and went away to them that were danfing, and drinking. But being wearie, after I had refreshed my selfe with Meale, and certaine other meates that were let before vs, I lay downe in the bed. Notwithstanding through the notic of their danfing, drinking, and devouring of the Captine, I was prefently awaked, and (which was the chiefelt matter) by one comming vnto mee, who carried the rofted foot of the Capting in his hand, and demanding of mee, as I afterwards understood, for then, I conceived not his words) whether I would eate thereof; I was fo aftonished through feare , that I was al. 30 together freed from drowfineffe and fleepe. And I verily beleeued, by that gefture, which I sooke in the worst part, that the Barbarian had showed me, that my fish should shortly after be denoured after the lame manner. Moreover, as feare begetteth ful picion, it came prefently into my minde, that the Interpreter had betrayed , and delivered mee into the Barbarians hands. Wherefore, if I had had any way open to flee, I had quickly taken my flight. But they flood round about mee, whole minde I did not fufficiently knowe, for they attempted no cuill against mee. Now being confirmed in feare, I valuckily gheffed, that I should presently have been flaine, wherefore I paffed the whole night in powring forth prayers voto God. At the first dawning of the day, the Interpreter (who had passed all the night in pleasure with the Barke eiens) returned voto mee, and law mee pale, and taken with a Feuer, whereupon he demanded to whether I were ill at cafe, & whether I had not quietly rested. Then I began sharply to reprove him, who had left me alone among thole Barbarians, whose speach I vaderstood not at all. Her openeth the whole matter to them who flood by me all the night, to congratulate my comming: they fignifie, that they perceived the matter in some fort, and yet were forrie, that I had naffed that night in fo great feare of them. And at length they breake out into diffolute laughter, which was the folace and comfort of that my feare. From thence I and that Interpreter, went vato certaine other Villages.

There are the Rites which the Barbarians observe in entertayning Guests. First of all, as some as the Gueft entreth into the house of that Mouffacat, which hee hath chofen to bee his Holl, (which is to be done in every Village, nor are you to turne into another, valetle you will incurre 40 his difpleafure) he must presently fit downe upon a Cotton hanging Bed, and remaine quietly there a while without speaking any word. By and by, the women come vnto him compatte the Bed about, and fitting on the ground, put their hands on their eyes, and bewayling the happie comming of the Gueft after this manner, they rehearle innumerable things in his commendation. As for example: Hane you taken fo much paines to come unto us : you are good, you are valiant. But if the Gueft be a Frenchman, they adde, you have brought very many excellent merchandifes unto us, which we want here. To conclude, those women, as hath beene faid, entertaine Guells wee-Thegefure of ping, with such like flattering speeches. But the Guest who sitteth on a Cotton bed, if he defire to procure fauour with his Holt, fettling his countenance, valeffe hee meane to weepe in good earnest (as I saw some of our men of so weake a courage, that teares were forced from them, 10 through the howling lamentation of these women) he must of necessitie counterfeit weeping. How Monfacet answering somewhat at the least, and fetching deepe sighes. This most pleasant salutation being ended by the women, Monfacat, that is, the Mafter of the Familie, being builly employed in making of an Arrow, casts not so much as his eyes for a certaine time voon the Guest, as if he marked nothing. At length comming vnto the Gueft, hee speaketh vnto him in thele words: Ere loube? that is, Are you come? then, bow doe you? what feeke you? &c. After , hee demandeth, whether you be bungrie? if you grant that you are, prefently he commandeth meates of diuers kindes to be tet before you in earthen veffels, to wit, Meale, which with them supplieth the place of bread, Venilos, Fowle, Fifh, and other things of that kinde: but because there is no vie with them, for Tables, and Benches, all those things are set on the ground. As touching 60 Drink, if you defire Cae-nin, & that it be in the house, it shall prefently be given you. Lattly, after the women have floutly folemnized the comming of the Guetts with weeping, they come vato them bringing Fruits, and other trifling Prefents, and to, fecretly, demand Combes, Lookingglasses, and little Brades of glasse, which they winde about their armes.

Moreover, if you will lodge all night in that Village, the Mouffacat commandeth a very neat and cleane bed to be hanged vp for you, round about which he will cause smal fires to be kindled. and often quickned in the night with Bellows, which they call Tatapecona, not much valike the little round Fannes, wherewith the nicer and more delicate fort of women with vs. defend the fcorching of fire from their faces. Not because that Countrie is subject vnto cold, but by reason of the moisture of the night, and especially, because it is their vivall manner. Now teeing we have chanced to mention Fire, which they call Tata, and Smoake Tatatin. I thinke it needfull that I declare the excellent manner of kindling the fame. They have two kindes of wood. whereof the one is very foft, but the other very hard, which they yfe after this manner, to kindle fire. They tharpen a twig of a foot long of that hard wood at the one end like a Spindle. and sticke the point thereof in any piece of that foft wood, then laying it on the ground, or vp. on a stocke, they turne that twig swiftly about with the palmes of their hands, as if they would pierce an hole through the piece of wood which lieth vader. Through that to fwift and violent motion, smoake is not onely raised, but also fire; putting Corton vnto it, or certaine drie made triall. After that the Guests have refreshed themselues with meate, and lodged after the manner Howstraneers which we have declared, if they be liberall, they vie to give vinto the men Kniues, Scizzers, and require their Pinters fit for the plucking out of the haires of their beards : to the women, Combes, and Loo- Hoft. an king-glasses; and to the children, Fish-hookes. But, if the Guest want victuals, when he bath agreed of the price, he may carrie them away. Moreover, because they want all kinde of beaffe of burden, they are all of necessitie to travell on foot. If Strangers bee wearie, and give a Knife to any of the Barbarians, he prefently offereth his helpe to carrie him that is wearie. I my felfe The Barbarians when I lived in those Countries, was divers times carried by those Porters, and that furely two carrie Stranmiles iourney together. And if wee admonifhed them to reft a little, they laughed at vs with gers vpor these word; What? Thinke you that wee are so effeminate, or of so weake a courage, that wee should faint, and tie downe under our burden? I would rather carrie you all the day without any intermission. But we breaking out into laughter, wondered at those two legged Hackneyes, and encouraging Two legged leaues (in flead of our Countrie tinder) fire is very aptly ingendred : whereof I my felfe haue them, faid : let vs therefore proceed on the way. They exercise naturall charitie abundantly among themselves, for they daily give one vnto The Berberiens another, both Fish, Meale, and Fruits, and also other things: nay, they would be very forrie, if practif charithey faw their neighbours want those things which they have. They also vie the like liberalitie the even by the towards Strangers : whereof, it shall be sufficient, to bring one example. In the tenth Chapter direction of of this Booke, I made mention of a certaine danger, which my felfe, and two other Frenchimen escaped, to wit, that we were in great perill of death, by reason of an huge Lizard which met vs in the way: at that time, wee wandred two dayes through the middle of the Woods out of the way, and indured no meane hunger, and at length came vnto a certaine Village called Pane. where wee had lodged before. There wee were most liberally entertained by the Barbarians, For, having heard the troubles which wee had fuffered, and specially the great danger wherein 40 we were, that we were likely to have beene denoured by wilde beafts, but chiefly, that wee were in danger to bee flaine by the Margaintes, our common enemies , neere vnto whole borders wee approached vnawares: and, feeing also the hurts and feratches of thornes, wherewith our skin was miferably rent, they tooke our harmes fo grieuously, that I may here truly affirme, that the faigned flatteries wherewith our Countrie people vie to comfort the diffressed, are fare from the fincere humanitie of that Nation, which we call Barbarous. For, they washed our feet with Anotable excleare water (which put me in minde of the ancient cultome) every one of vs fitting apart wpon ample of the an hanging Bed. Then the Mafters of the Families, who had alreadie prouided meates to curtefie of the be prepared for vs, and caufed new Meale to be ground, which (as I elfewhere faid) is nothing Barbariant. inferiour vnto the crumme of white bread, in goodnesse, presently, after wee had beene a little refreshed, commanded all the best meates, to wit, Venison, Fowle, Pila, and the most exquisite and choicest Fruits, where with they continually abound, to bee fee before vs. Moreour, the night approching, the Monfacat our Hoft, remoueth all the children from vs, that wee might the more quietly rest. The next day after, early in the morning, he commeth vnto vs. and demandeth, goe to Atourassap, (that is, dearly beloued Confederates) bane you quietly rested thus night? wee answered, very quietly. Then faith he ; my fonnes, reff your felues yet a while, for, yea flerday, I perceived that you were very mearie. To be briefe, I am not able to expresse with words, how friendly, and curteoully wee were entertained. But wee neuer trauelled farre from home without a Sachell full of Merchandises, which might serue vs in stead of money among those Barbarians. Departing therefore thence, we gate our Hofts, what wee thought good: to wit, 60 Kniues Sizzers, Pinfers, to the men: Combes, Looking-glaffes, Bracelets, and glaffen Beades, to the women : and Fish-hookes to the children,

CHAP. 2. S. 2. Entertainment, charitie and courte fie of the Barbarians.

I one day turned out of the way to lodge in a certaine Village, and was requested by my Barbarians c-Monfaces, to thew him what I had in my Sachell, who commanded a great earthen veff. It to them kniues, and other bee brought, wherein to put my merchandises: I tooke them all out, and set them in order: Ttttt 2 whereat he greatly wondring, calleth the reft of the Barbarians unto him, and faith. See I Dray you, my good friends, what manner of man I have entertained with me : doth it not manifelt. ly appeare that he is very rich, feeing he carrieth fo great wealth about him? yet those would scarce have beene fold at Paris, for two filter Cardicues. Then, because (as we have said) they loue liberall men, that I might procure authoritie and fauour among them, I gaue my Monffacat the best of my Knipes before them all, which he esteemed no lesse, then any one with vs would regard a golden chaine, of very great price, bestowed vpon him.

CHAP.A.C.I. Hulderickes passages from Antwerpe to the River of Plate.

If peraduenture it happen, that any of them fall licke, when the inward and familiar friend

Pages, the Barr for the ficke perion hatch declared the grieuzed part, one fuckerth it with his mouth, fometimes albarriags The Barr for that fermice is performed by certaine impoltors, which they call Fager, that is, Phylicians, or a barriags Thylic.

But they are a knowled People differing from the Carabits, whereof thau epoken before.) And they also say, that they draw out the paine, and prolong the life. They are sometimes ficke of Feuers, and other common difeafes: but, not fo often, as wee vie to bee. Moreouer, they are troubled with a certaine incurable difease, which they call Pians. This, for the most part proceedeth of luft; yet, I have seene the little children infected therewith not vnlike the manner of our Countrie Meafels. This contagion breaketh out into puffler, broader then a thumbe, which overforead the whole bodie, and also the face it felfe. They never give meate to the ficke, vnleffe he defire it, although he be readie to perifh through hunger. Moreouer, ale though it be the most grieuous dilease, they that are healthie, neuer cease dansing, singing, and drinking after the accustomed manner, to dull and wearie the miserable sicke person with the noise: nor doth he complaine, because he knoweth, that he shall not preuaile at all. But, if hee die, that finging (especially if he be a Master of any familie) is suddenly turned into teares, and so great lamentation is made, that if by chance we turned into a certaine Village, at the time of that mourning, we were of necessitie to goe to some other place, or passe the night without fleepe. First of all, not without admiration, the women are heard, which so crie out and exclaime, that you would fay they were the howling of Wolues or Dogs, and no humane voices. But they powre forth thele complaints with a trembling voice. That most valiant man is dead, who sometimes gave us so many Captines to be denoured. Then the rest say, O notable Hunter, O most excellent Fifter, O valiant Killer of the Portugals, and Margaiates. To be briefe, those women prouoking one another to mourning, and embracing armes together, delift not from thefe to lamentations, and praifes, before the dead bodie be brought forth. Lastly, these Barbarian women imitate the Bearneansian custome in bewayling their dead men, whom, as I have heard, they follow with these complaints. La mi amon, La mi amon, La mi rident, wil desplendon, cama lenge, bet dansadon: La me balen, lo m'esburbat: mati depes: fort tard coneat. that is. My friend, my triend, with a merrie countenance, thining eyes, swift legs, notable danfer, firong and valuant, thou diddeft arite early, and goe late to bed. The Valcone women alfo, who adde thefe things to the former, Tere, vere, o le bet renegadou, o le bet jougadou qu'bere: that is, Alas, alas, how front and deepe a Swearer was hee, how notable a Gamester? Moreover, to those complaints whereof we spoke, the Barbarian women often adde this burden of the Song, He is dead, be is dead, whom we now lament. Then the men answere: Alas, be so is dead, and wee hall see him no more, until wee danse with him behind the Mountaines, as our Cagaibes teach. Those howling lamentations are prolonged for fixe hours; for they vie not to Reepe their Dead any longer unburied. Then digging a Trench, not long as we vie, but circular, like a great Drie-far, they burie the dead bodie bolt vpright. The dead Masters of Families, they burie in the middeft of their houses, wrapped in their Cotton bed, with feathers, and other things, wherein they delighted in their life time, laide in the Graue, Since their commerce with the French they have forborne to put precious things in the Grayes: but they retained a Grange and very deuillish Superstition. The first night after the Funerall, the Barbarians, who are thus perswaded, that Aygnan, volesse he found other meates prepared, would digge up the dead bodie, and deuoure it, fet no small fore of vessels, with Meale, Fish, Flesh, and other meats 50 carefully prepared, and also great pots full of their drinke Casaus, about the Graue. Which Sacrifice they performe fo long , vntill they thinke that the dead bodie bee wholly confumed. From the which errour they were the more hardly removed, because certaine Newstrian Interpreters, by example of the Sacrifices of Bell, divers times before our comming, privily fiole a-

Americans. A very deuil-

The Graues.

and rices of

buriall of the

Det.14.

though we shewed them, that those meates fet downe in the evening, remained in the morning, yet with great labour and difficultie we diffwaded very few from that errour. As often as the Barbarians transport their Villages vato another place, after the manner which wee have declared, they put certaine coverings of the herbe Pindo voon the Graves of the Dead. Whereby it commeth to palle, that Trauellers may take notice of a certaine forme of a place of buriall. At which places, if at any time wandring in the Woods, they remember way those meates. Through which fact they so confirmed the Barbarrans in errour, that al-

the dead men, they make so great lamentation, that they may be heard farre off. Worse then their howlings here, worse then their former man-eatings, is the tragical famine which attended Lerius and his fellowes in their returne, besides dangers of shoppracke, resolution of some to bill their fellowes for food; Thother by Sea in 500. fathome depth feeming like a Marift, the borbes relian topic mith Berries lake these of lawsper, the leases like Rue, with threads like ground lines floring on the Sea, but not safely bandled; in some places redde filth like concombes summing, the touching of see des, one of the hand preferring to speel) as also bie Braitifan Distromarie, Ge, for breussie I hane donie-buch consisted the hand preferring to speel) as also bie Braitifan Distromarie, Ge, for breussie I hane donie-ted Villagagnons Apostasie from the Religion was the cause of their departure; whose malice pursued them homewards to pronounce them to bee burned for Herefie upon his accufation at home : as they were faine to line from him in Bratill. Wee well leane this Religions Frenchman . and acausing som with a Germane.

CHAP. IIII.

The tranels of HVLDERIER SCHNIRDEL in twentie newes space from 1524. to 1554. abbreniated.

His Voyage up the River of Plate, foundation of Townes, their expedition up the River of Parana and Parabol : the people of thefe parts.

Nas 1534. I went from Antwerps to Cadiz, and there found fourteene thins furnithed for the River of Plate. There were 2500. Spaniards , 150. high and low Dutch, vnto which I joyned my felfe. They fet forth in September the fame veere. and (having had some trouble at Palma, one of the Canaries, about stealing of a Citizens Daughter by George Mendeza,a Kinfman of the Commander Den Pedro de Mondoza arrived at the river lonero. They call these Indians, Tompin Here we abode Towns fourteene daies, and Petro Mendozaour Generall then gave commandement to lobn Oforius his fworne Brother, to take charge of vs in his steed, because hee being weake, and consumed in his members, was much troubled almost with continuall ficknesse and diseases. But when a little after the gouernment received, lohn Oforum had beene faltly accused, and by forgerie, to Mendoza his (worne brother, as though he had gone about reditionly to ftirre the company against him. the faid Mendoza commanded other foure Captaines (to wit) lebu Eyoldas, John Saleifen, George Luchfam, and Lazarus Saluafeho, that having stabbed him with a Dagger, they should expose Menderal him as a Traitor in the middle of the Plaine, to the view of all beholders. And straightly com-cruckies manded it publikely to be given in charge, that no man vpon paine of death disquiet or trouble 40 himfelfe in the behalfe of Oferius, for if he did, he should be no more respected, who sever, or of what condition socuer he were. But hee was altogether injuried. For hee was an honest man, and a flout and couragious Warriour, and courteous, liberall, and verie beneficiall to his fellow

Souldiere. 6. Departing hence with our ships and going to the River of Plate, we came into a pleasant R. Parone F. River, which they call Parana Vraffa. It is farre from the mouth of the River where the Sea raffa, leaues it, and is fortie two leagues broad. And from the River lange to this River are two huns dred and fifteene leagues. Heere wee came to a Hauen called Saint Gabriel, and all our fourteene thins anchored in the River Parana. But because we were to abide in the greater shippes on the water, a Musket shot from the Land, our Generall Petro Mendoza gaue commandement to set 50 the people and Souldiers aland in the leffer Skiffesor Boats, which they call Potten, then prepare red for that purpose. So by the grace and bleffing of God, in the yeere of Christ 1535, wee happily arrived at the River of Plate, and there we found a row of houses, or an Indian Village, R. of Plate, wherein there were about 2000 men, whom they call Zecharnas, who eate no other thing, faue Lecharus, fish and fiesh. And goe all naked, but that the women couer their secrets, with a thinne piece of Cotton-cloth, which reacheth from the Nauell to the knees, They therefore at our comming, leauing the Towne, fled away with their wives and children. Then our General! Mendoza commanded the people to be shipped againe, and conseied over to the other fide of the River Parama, where the bredth of the River extendeth it felfe no more then eight leagues.

7. In this place wee built a Citie, which for the wholfomeneffe of the Aire wee called Bonos Buenos Ages 60 Ares. We brought with vs: lio out of Spaine feuentie two Horfes and Mares, in our fourteene build thips, We found also another Village in this Countrie, which the Indians inhabit, whom they call Carendes, of whom there were about 3000, men, together with their wives and children. These also as the Zechnruss are covered from the Nauell only vnto the knees, who brought exercise. ws fish and fiesh to eate. These Carendies have no Proper and settled dwellings, but wander in the Gountrie hither and thither, almost as our Cingari, " and Zigenners, When they take their journey in the Summer, they oftentimes travell thirtie leagues and more by Land, and finde not a drop of water to drinke. If they light vpon a Stagge or other wildebeaft, when they have killed it, they drinke the bloud thereof : fometimes they find a Roote . which they call Cardes, and chewing that, they quench thirft. But that they drinke bloud, this pinly is the cause a for that they want other drinke, and peraduenture without this, they (hould die for thirlt, Thele Cornsies for tourteene daies imparted liberally of their pouertie, and daily brought fifth and fielh water our Campe, one day only excepted, wherein they came not to vs at all. Therefore our Generall Don Petro Mendoza fent our Corrigidor lan, Baban and two Souldiers vnto them (for thefe Carendies abode foure le-gues diftant from our Campe) but they fointreated them when they came to voto them, that they ient them home all three foundly cut and mangled with ftripes. But when our Generall Petro Mendoza vndestood these things by report of the ludge : who for this cause raised a tumule in our Campe, he sent his owne naturall Brother Don Diego Mendazaa-gainst them with three hundred Souldiers, and thirtie readie light Horsemen, amone the which I also was one, straightly charging him to kill, and take all the faid Indian Carendies, and possesse their Towne. But when we came vnto them, there were now fome 4000, men gathered together; for they had fent for all their familiars, and friends to helpe them.

Ttttt 2

· Giolies.

The fight or skirmith with the Indian Carendus.

for they flue our Captaine Don Diego Mendoza, and fixe Gentlemen with him, and of the horse and foote about some twentie. But on their part there fell about 1000, men. Therefore they fought couragiously and floutly against vs, which wee felt by experience. The weapons 20 of these Carendies are Bowes, and a kinde of Dart like the staffe of a Speare of a middle length, whose point the yarme with a flint called a Marchafate, with an edge in forme of the three edged T underbolt. They have also bowles of stone hanging at a long coard, formewhat like our plummets of Lead, There bowles they so cast about the feet of Horses, or Stages, that they are constrained to fall. After this manner they flue our Captaine, and the Gentlemen with these bowles, which I my felfe beheld, but they flue the Footmen with their Darts : yet by the grace of God (to whom be praise) we ouercam: them in battaile, and possessed their Towne. But we could take none of their Indians; their wives and children also, before we assaid them by warre had fied into another Village. We found nothing in this Towne of theirs, but Otter skins, plen- 30 tie of flesh and flowre, and the trane of fish. Abiding therefore three daies we remained in that place, and after returned to our Campe, leaving 100, men there, who in the meane time should fish with the Indians Nets, to maintaine our Souldiers more plentifully : for the waters there are maruellous full of fish : for three ounces only of flowre made of fine Wheate were distributed to euerie one for one daies victuall, and euerie three daies one fish. This fishing lasted two moneths. and if any would eate fish otherwise, he must seeke them on foot foure leagues off. 9. When we returned to our Campe, they that were fit for labour among the people, were

Of the buildings of the Circof Bones A researd of the tamine which they indured there.

Miserable fa-

How forme faior the Runer of 8. When we fer voon them, they fo retifted vs, that they put vs to trouble enough that day:

separated from them that were fit for warre, that enery one might be put to service agreeable vnto him. The Citie therefore began to be built there, and a wall of earth to be raifed about it. to to the heigth of a Speare or lauelin, and in the Citie a firme and strong house for our Generall. 40 The wall of the Citie was three foot broad. But that which was built to day the next day fell downe againe. For the people wanting food, lived in great scarcitie, so that many died of famine, nor could the Horses latissie them. There was not plentie enough of Dormice, or other-Mice, or Serpents, or other wild beafts, to affwage this lamentable famine and vnfpcakable pouertie. Not to much as shooes and other Leather could avoid this rage of devouring. It fell out also at that time, that three Spaniards having ftolne a Horse, did privily eate him. Which as foone as it was discourred, they were grieuously tormented, and questioned touching the fact, and when they confessed it, they were condemned to the Gallowes. When they were hanged, three other Spaniards conforted themselves together, who the same night going to the Gallowes. cut off the legges of them that were hanged, and cut out pieces of flesh from their bodies, that 10 in their Cottages they might affwage vntollerable hunger by eating thereof. A certaine Spaniard (through exceeding hunger) eate his owne brother, who died in the Citie of Buenas Acres.

10. When therefore our Generall Don Petro Mendoza faw, that the people could no longer be fulfained and preserved in this place, he presently commandeth foure small Barkes which they call Brigantines, or small men of warre, and are carried with Oares to bee made readie, whereof energe one will hold fortie men; there were also three other leffe called Potten. Thefe feuen little Veffels therefore being made readie and dispatched, our Generall commanded the company to be mustered, and George Luchfam with 350 readie and able men, to faile up the River, and feek out the Indians, that we might get provision of victuals and food. But the Indians understanding before of our presence, burnt their prouision of victuall, and what societ was good to eat, together 60 with their Villages, and runne away. But wee in the meane feafon got no food, and for eueric daies allowance vnto euerie man, one ounce and an halfe of bread was distributed, whereby it came to passe, that in this journie the halfe part of our Souldiers perished through famine. Wee therefore of necessitie returned to the said Towne where our Generall was, who greatly wondred, that fo fmall a number of people should returne, seeing we were no more then fine mone; his ahfent and he demanded of our Capraine George Lachfam to declare vinto him what hee had done in this journie, who lignified, that they who were wanting, died of famine, because the Indians had confumed all the food with fire, and after run away themselves.

11. All thefe things falling out thus as I have faid, yet we continued together in the Towne How the town 11' All their things falling out interest want, expecting while the furnitute of our flippes et saves dett of Buena Arets, a whole moneth in great want, expecting while the furnitute of our flippes was befreed should be finished. In the meane while, in the yeere 1535, the Indiani fliuxde vs and our Citie of a finished and Buenas Aeres, with the ffrength of twentie three thoutand men, and in their Armie there were burnt. foure distinct Nations (to wit) Cariendes, Bartennis, Lecharade, and Tiembas. The purpose and Foure Nations to principall intention of all thefe was, to kill vs all. But praife and glorie hee to God . who faued of todient. the greatest part of vs fafe from deltruction. For together with the Captaines, and Ancients, and other Souldiers, there were not about thirtie men of ours flaine.

When therefore they first came to our Citie of Bienas Meres, some of them ranne furiously to affault it: others cast fierie Dares voon our houses, all which (except our Generals house which only was concred with Tile) were only that ched ; and by that meanes all our Citie, together with Their fights & all the houses was confirmed with the flames, even from the foundation. The Weapons or Darts weapons, of these Indians are made of Reed, which when they are cast or shot out, take fire in the point. They have a kind of wood also whereof they make their Darts, which if they bee fired before they be cast, are not quenched, but (et houses (couered with Thatch) on fire, and so those that 20 touch or joyne together burne together.

In this fight thefe Indians burnt vs also foure great shippes, which were halfe a league distant Foure thins from vs on the water. But the Souldiers who were in thele thips , when they faw that mightie burned, tumult of the Indians, betooke themselves to flight from these foure shippes, into three others, which rode not farre from thefe, and were furnished with Ordnance. They therefore when they faw the foure thips burne, began to defend themfelues, and eagerly to affault the Indians and ther flee the bullets which caused them to leave the assault and depart, giving rest vnto the Christians. All this was done on the Feast of Saint lobn the Europe list. In the yeare 1937.

1 2. All thefe things being past and done, all the people went into the thips, and our Generall They muster Don Petro Mendoza made loin Eyollui his Deputie, creating him Lieutenant Generall, deliue- their Son Don Petro Mendor a made loom Eyottus his Deputie, creating nim Lieuvenant General, genue-ting ouer vnto him the whole government of all as also of the people. He taking a view of the thips to goe company, of two thousand fine hundred men, which came from Spaine together in thips, hee further. found only fine hundred and fixtic aline : all the rest were dead, whom for the most part the in- The most of tollerable famine had confumed.

After this, our Lieutenant loba Eyollus, commandeth eight little Barkes, which they call famine, Bregantines and Post, speedily to be built. And of fine hundred and fixtie which remained aline. hee tooke vnto him foure hundred men : leaving the other one hundred and fixtie to take charge of the foure great thips; ouer whom hee fet Iohn Romero the chiefe commander, leaving provision for a whole yeere, fo that foure ounces of bread were diffributed to every man for his daily al-

40 13. After this our Lieutenant lobn Eyoffus with his foure hundred Souldiers, which hee had with him, among whom also Petro Mendoza our Generall was, faileth vp the River of Parana, in the Brigantines and Posts, furnished for this purpose, vntill wee came vnto the Indians, which They goeyp was pe formed in the space of two moneths, from our comming forth of the Citie of Balenas A- the River, erer, to that wee were now eightie foure leagues distant from our faid burnt Citie; When therefore we were not about foure leagues from these people (which they call Tiembus, but wee Tiembus, called them Bona speransa) and they understood of our comming before, about four hundred men of them came peaceably vnto vs in their Boats, which they call Canoas, in every one of the which Canoas fixteene person sate. When therefore we met together in the River, our Generall gaue the Captaine of these Indians of Tiembus, (whom they call Zchara Wassu) a shirt, a red Cap, a Hatchet, and certaine other things. Which prefents beeing received, the laid Zchars 50 Waffa brought vs into their Towne, fetting before vs fish and flesh plentifully, and sufficient food, so that we were exceeding well contented. For if this Voyage of ours had continued yet hundred men, who came together in the ships, fiftie were dead. These people of Tiembus, weare on either nostrill a blue starre artificially made of a white and blue stone; they are large men, and of a tall stature, but the women as well young as old, are very deformed with torne faces, and alwaies bloudie : from the Nauell to the knees they are courred with Cotton-cloth, the rest is naked. This people hath no other meare saue fish and fiesh, nor euer lived with any other thing. The strength of this Nation is thought to be fif eene thousand 60 men or more. The Skiffes or Boates which they wie are made of a Tree eightie foote long, and Desi Pens Men three broad, which (as the Fishermens Boats of Germanie) are rowed with Oares, faue that their deca being a-Oares are not bound with Iron.

but ten daies longer, we should all have died with famine, as even now in this Voyage of source

14. We abode foure whole yeeres in the forefaid Village or Towne, but our Generall or Ad- into Spaine mirall Petro Mendoza, by reason of his extreame and continuall sicknesse, in that hee was able dieth in the neither to ftirre hand nor foote, and had fpent in this journey of his owne about fortie thousand Ducates of ready money, would no longer flay with vs in this Towne, but returneth in two Brigantines to Buenes Acres, to the foure greater Shippes, and there taking two of them, and fiftie Souldiers, he intended to returne into Spaine, but scarce halfe the journey performed, the hand of almightie God fo smote him, that he miterably died. But before his departure he cere tainly promited vs, that he would doe his best, as soone as he, or the Ships returned into Spaine, that two other Shippes should be fent backe to the River of Place (which by his will be had to ordained, and was faithfully also performed) furnished with Souldiers, provision of victuals. Herchandife, and other things necessary for fuch a voyage.

14. The name of the Commander of these two Shippes was Alfonso Gabrero, who also brought 10 with him two hundred Spaniards, and prouision for two yeares. He arrived at the Towne of Buen from Spameto. was Acres, in the years 1 539, where we left the other two Shippes (when wee departed) togewards the runt ther with one hundred and fixtie men. They prefently fent away a Shippe into Spaine, prouded for this purpose (for so the Counsell of the Emperours Maiestie commanded) and delivered orderly and at large to the faid Counfell the state and condition of these Countries, and people, and other circumstances. After this, our Generall John Eyollas confulting with Alfonso Gabrero. Martino Don Eyollas, and the reft of the Captaines, undgeth it to be most convenient to muster the Souldiers; which being done, together with ours, and those who came first from Spaine, fine hundred and fiftie men were found of thefe; they choose vnto them foure hundred men, leaung one hundred and fiftie in Tumbus. 16. By this order of the Captains, we faile up the river Par and, with thefe foure hundred men.

R. Parabel.

They faile turthey faile turthey perfect in eight Brigantines, leeking another Ruser, whereof we were told, called Parabol. at uer of Parane the which the Carier dwell, for thefe were reported to abound with Turkylo graine, and roots. count count of the which they make wine, and also fish, and flesh, and Sheepe as bigge as Mules, and Harts, Hogges, Eitridges, Hennes, and Geele. Departing therefore from the Hauen of Bona Speranta. with our eight Brigantines, failing foure leagues the first day, we came to a Nation called Curende which live with fielh and fish. This Iland is 12000. Strong of men fit for warre, and hath great flore of Canoes. This Nation is like the former Tumbus, with little flones hanging dangling in their notes. The men also are of a tall stature, but the women, as well your as old, detorthese Sausges, med, with rugged and bloudy faces: And are no otherwise apparelled then they of Tumbus, to 30 wit, couered with a Cotten cloath from the navell to the knees, as is before faid. These Indian haue great plenty of other skinnes. There men did liberally communicate vinto vs of their pouerty, or of that little they had, Fish, Flesh, Skinnes, to whom contrariwise wee gaue Glasses, Beales, Looking-glaffes, Combes, Kniues, and Fish-hookes, and abode with them two dayes. They gave vs also two men of Carsos, who were their captines, to be our Guides and Interpreters. 17. Sailing further hence, we came to another Nation called Gulgaifi, which is able to bring 40000 men for warre, into the field. This Nation also hath two flones at their nose; it was thirty leagues distant from the Island Corenda, and they and the inhabitants of Tiembus have the fame language. They dwell upon a Lake fixe leagues long, and foure broat fituate on the left 🙍 fide of the River Parana. We stated here foure dajes, and these men imparted to vs of their pourtie, and we did the like to them : proceeding further thence, for the whole space of eighteens daies we light on no men, but afterward we came to a River, flowing into the Countrie it felfe. In that Country we found a great number of men come together, which they call Macuerendan These have nothing to eate, saue fish, and a little flesh, and are 18000 strong of warlike men, and have a great number of Boates. These men after their manner intertained vs courteously enough: they dwell on the other fide of the River Parana, rowards the right hand, have a differing tongue from the former, and are tall men, and of a good proportion, but their women also are very deformed. They are distant from those whom they call Gulgais fixtie foure leagues. While we re-Huge Serpent, mained idell among these people foure daies, we found an huge monitrous Serpent fine and twen- 10 ty foote long, lying on the land not farre from the shoare, which was as bigge as a man of a blacke colour, spotted with a deepe yellow. This Serpent we killed with a Gunne, which when the /ndiens faw, they wondered thereat with great aftonishment, for they themselves had never seene any fo great before.

We came to Gultaili & Ma-

This Serpent, as the Indians themselves said, had done much hurt voto them; for when they washed themselves in the water, the Serpents finding men there, wound their tailes about them, and having drawne them under water, devoured them, fo that the Indians knew not oftentimes what became of many of them. I diligently measured the length and thicknesse of this Serpent, which the Indians cutting in preces, every one carried part home vinto their houses, and being fod and roafted did after eate thereof.

co,and Nepe-

18. From hence failing further vp the River of Parana, in foure daies journey we came to Nation, called Zemais Saluasfee. The men of this Countrie are of a fhort stature, and of a gross body. They live with nothing else saue fish, flesh, and hony. Both men and women goe naked,25 they came into the world when they were first borne, so that they couer not their body so much as with a thred, no not their prinie parts. They make warre with the Macuerendan; the fleth they eate is the flesh of Stagges, Boares, Estridges, Conies, which excepting the taile, are not much volike a Dor-mouse or Rere-mouse. They are sixteene leagues diffant from the Macheren. das, which distance we failed in foure daies, and abode one onely day with them.

Departing hence, we came vnto another Nation called Mepenes, who are 10000. ftrong. Mese-These people dwell scattered here and there, every where in that Countrie, extending it selte fortie leagues in length and breadth, yet within two daies both by water and land they may all come together. The multitude of the Boates they have exceedeth the number of themselves as we faw when we were with them : and in such a Boate or Canoa about twentie persons 10 are carried. This people received vs in hostite and warlike manner with fine handred Canoas vpon the River, but with little profit for themselves, for we flew many of them with our fliot, for they had never before feene either Gunnes or Christians. But comming to their houses, wee could prevaile nothing against them, seeing they were a whole league distant from the River of Parana, where our Ships lay. The waters also about their Towne were very deepe; which ran out of a Lake, so that we could performe nothing against them, that was of any worth, fane that we burned and deftroyed two hundred and fiftie Canoas which we had taken. Neither did we thinke it good alfo for vs, to depart fo farre from our Shippes. feeing it was to be feared leaft they would affaile vs from the other fide : We returned cherefore to our Shippes. This people of Mepenes fight onely upon the water, and is diffant from the former Countrie of 20 Zemais Salnaifco, from whence we departed ninetie fiue leagues.

10. Sailing up higher from thence, and in eight daies space arriving at a certaineRiver, we light Orthe River on a Nation that was very populous, called Cueremaghas, which also liveth onely with fifth and Parabeland the fielh. They have Cherrie trees, of the which they make wine. This people bestowed their best people, wereaffections youn vs, and curreoully imparted those things vnto vs whereof we stood in neede. maghas, and dy-The people are of a huge and tall stature, both men and women. The men haue a little hole in the smeethat their noise, into the which, for ornament, they put a Parrats feather. The women paint their Men or tall faces with long blew streakes, which all the time of their life are never put out. They couer stature. their privities with Cotten cloath, from the nau-Il to the knees: from the forefaid people of Their gallintry Mepenes, to these Cheremaghas are fortie leagues: so we staied in this place three daies.

Departing thence, we came to another Nation, called Aygaic, which also liveth with fish Aygais, and fielh. The men and women are of a tall flature : the women like the former paint their faces, and couer their prinities after the fame manner. When therefore we arrived on their coaft. taking armes, in hostile manner they relisted vs, and would have stopped our passage. We order red our batta le both by land and water, and fighting with them flew many of them fifteene alfo of our men were flaine. These Aygain are thout warriers on the water, but not so by land, Being ready to fight against vs. they had conveighed away their wives and children to another place before, and had hidden, whatfocuer promion of meate or other like things they had, fo that we could get nothing from them. Their Village is scituate neere the Riner called lepidus, having the River called Parabellon the other fide, descending from the Montainous Countries 49 of Pern, neere the Citic Fuech Kamin. Thele Aygans are diltant from the forefaid Cueremachas thirtie fine leagues.

20. Departing from these people, we came to a Nation called Carios, fiftie leagues distant Of the people from the Agais, with whom (by Gods grace) we found (as was told vs) plentie of Mais, Potatoes Carins. and Mandischpobier, having the tafte of a Chestnut, of which they make wine. They have also fish, flesh, wilde Bore, Estridges, Indian Sheepe, as big as our Mules, also Conies, Hens, Goates, and fuch like : fufficient plency of Honie, whereof, by boiling it, they make a kinde of Coine. This Country also aboundeth with Cotten.

Thele people of Carios inhabit a large Countrie, extending it felfe three hundred leagues in Carios cultomes length, and breadth: they are men of a flort flature, and thicke, and more able to indure worke and labour then the reft. The men have a little hole in their lippes, and yellow Christall 50 therein (which in their language they call Parabel) of two spannes long, and of the thicknesse of a quill or reede. The men and women both in this Countrie, goe all naked, as they were created of God. Among it their Indians the Father fels the Daughter, the Husband the wife, Sometimes also the Brother doth either sell or change the Sister. They value a Woman at a Shirt, a Knife, a Hatchet, or some other thing of this kinde. These Carios also eate mans flesh, if they can get it. For when they take any in the warres, whether they be men or women , yong or old, they fatten them, no otherwise then wee doe Hogges. But they keepe a woman some yeeres, if the be yong, and of a commendable beautie, but if in the meane time, the apply not her felfe to all their defires, they kill, and eate her, making a folemne banquet, as marriages are wont 60 to be celebrated with vs. But they keepe an old woman, till the dye of her owne accord. Thefe Caries undertake longer iournies then any of these Nations upon the River of Place. They are couragious and fierce in battaile, and their Villages and Townes are fituate vpon the River Parama, on an high and mounting land.

21. The Citie of thele people (which the Inhabitants call Lampere) was compaffed with a double bulwarke cunningly made of timber, as with a hedge or inclosure, every trench being of the bredth and thicknesse of a man, and one bulwarke or trench was twelue paces distant from the other. The trenches being digged a fathome deepe into the earth, were so high aboue the ground, as a man might reach with the length of a Sword. They had also Pits and Caues fife teene paces diffant from the wallscaft vp the height of three men, in the middeft whereof pikes were stucke, yet not appearing aboue ground, as sharpe pointed as a Pinne. They made these Pits so couered with straw, putting twigs and branches therein, with a little earth strowed betweene, that we Christians pursuing them, or being readie to assault their Towne, might fall into them. But they cast these pits for themselves, and at length they sell into them : for when our Generall lohn Eyolkas, gathering all his Souldiers together, who were not about three hundred (for they left fixtie to guard the Brigantines) ordering and ranging the companies, went against their Citie Lampere, they vndertlanding before of our comming, making a stand a Musket that of with their armie of foure thousand men, furnished with Bowe and Arrows after their manner, commanded that we should be told, that they would prouide vs victuall, and other necessaries, desiring vs to goe backe and returne vnto our Ships, that so departing as sooneas we could, we might peaceably returne to our companions. But it was neither good for our Generall, nor our felues, that we should consent to their request : for this Nation and Countrie, by reason of the plenty of victuall, was also most fit, and commodious for ve, especially when in The Spaniards foure whole yeares past, we had not leene a morfell of bread, living onely with fish and flesh, and in foure yeeres oftentimes also in great penurie.

a morfell of

Theie Caries therefore taking their Bowe and Arrowes, entertained and faluted vs therewith. But as yet, wee had no minde to hurt them, but commanded to fignific vnto them, that they should be quiet, and we would become their friends. But they would not be so contented, for they had not yet tried our Gunnes and Swords. When therefore we came fomewhat neerer unto them, wee discharged our brasse Peeces against them. Which when they heard, and faw that so many men sell downe dead, and when neither Bullets, nor Arrowes appeared, but holes onely were seene in their bodies, they wondred with astonishment, and horribly terrified, tooke their flight in troopes; ouerthrowing one another like Dogs: and while with great celeritie they haften to shelter themselues in their Towne, more then three hundred men, in that amased feare, fell into the forefaid pits, which themselves had digged,

Afterward comming to their Citie, we assaulted it, they couragiously defending themselves. till the third day. But when they could detend themselves no longer, and were much afraid or their wives and children, which they had with them in the Towne, they earnefly entreated our fauour and mercie, promiting, that they would doe any thing for vs, and for our fakes, at our pleasure, fo that wee would spare their liues. In this stirre inxteene of our men were slaine. They brought alfo to our Generall Eyelas, fixe women, among which the el.left was but eighteene yeeres old, they prefented alto fixe Stags, and another wilde beaft, entreating vs to flay with them. They gave two women to the Souldiers, to ferue them for Laundreffes and other feruices. They also prouided vs victuals, and other necessaries for foode. And to peace was concluded betweene them and vs.

A Caffle is

22. These things being so done, the Corios were compelled to build vs a great House. of stone, timber, and earth, that the Christians might have a place of refuge, if hereafter they mo-Frequents cal-bed the affiamp insurie. Wee tooke this Village or Citie of thems by affault the yeere of Christ 1329 in the feast of the Assumption and gaue it that name. And here wee abode two moneths. These Carios are fitte leagues distant from the Argais, and from the Hand of Bona fer anza, which the Tiembus inhabite about three hundred thirdie and foure leagues.

Making therefore a league with these Carios, they promised, that they would aide vs, when we went to the warres, and if we were to undertake any ieruice against the Ayeas, they would fend eighteene thouland men with vs. When our Generall had thus determined, taking three 50 hundred Spaniards, with these Caries, going downe the River of Parabel, with the streame, wee marched thirtie leagues by land, till we came to the place, where the faid Areas dwelt twe flue them both old and young, in the old place where wee left them, vnawares in their houses, while tfley yet flept, early in the morning betweene three and foure of the clocke (for the Carior had diligently fearched out all) oppreffing them even to the death; for the Caries have this cuitome that being conquerers in warre, they kill all without any commiferation or pitie.

Argais des

After this, taking away fine hundred Canoas or Boats, we burnt all the Villages to the which we came, doing much hurt besides. After one moneth past, some of the people of Ayeais came who vs, who being abient farre from home, were not prefent at this fight, and crauing pardon, yeelded them telues into our hands.

23. Continuing therefore in this Citie of the Assumption of Marie fixe moneths, we quietly refreshed our selues. In the meane space our Generall Don Eyollas enquired amongst these Carios, of the Nation called Piembos, from whom hee received answere, that it was almost an hundred leagues diftant from the Citie of Affumption, and that they dwelt up the Ruer Parabol. Being further demanded, whether they had plentie of food, and how and with what they lived, where their behaulour and conditions were? They and were againe, that these Palembos have no other meate and prouision, but Flesh , and Fish , and also Ceratia, which they call Algorobo , whereof shey make Meale, which they eate with their Filh. Moteouer also they make Wine thereof. which may be compared to our fweet Wine, for the pleasant neffe thereof.

CHAPIA S.I. Caracorilan Commodities I. Evoltar of the Souldiers flane beered. 1258

The Generall musters the Souldiers, and out of fourt thindred men , chooseth three hundred. whom he faw better furnished with Armes and other things then the rest, leaving the other hunwhom he aw occur unammed the description. We therefore layle up the River, and al-wates in first leagues diffance we arrived at lome Village floutet upon the River of Parabot, whose parabot well to Inhabitants came to meete vs withall necessarie prouition.

24 Departing thence wee came to a Mountaine called Fernande, like vnto that which they call Bogenberg. There we light on the faid Paiembos, twelve leagues diftant from Weibingo. There peoble Entertallied vi friendly and peaceable, but with a treacherous and deceitfull minde, as you Weibing. that understand hereaftet. They therefore brought vs into their houses, and gaue vs Fish, Flesh, Painnes treand Coratte, or bread to eate, and so we abode nine whole dails with them. In the meane time chery. our Generall commanded to enquire of them, whether the Nation called Carcarilo were known vnto them? They answered him, that coincerning them, they knew nothing, but what they Carrifo. had heard by report, to wit, that they dwell farre hence, in a Countrie abounding with Gold and Silver, but that they had never feene any of them. They added also moreover, that thefe Ca-20 recenfer were wife men as we Christians are, and that they abound with Victuals, to wit, Maiz, Mandereb, Mandaus, Potales, Mandereb Nach te tu, Mandereb Purpy, Mandereb Ade, Mande called Sherpe parea, and other rootes; and with flesh allo of Indian Sheepe, called Amte, which are a kinde of of Pensandir. beaft like Affes, having feete like Kine, of a thicke and groffe skinne; and that they had plentie fremeth bizalio of Conies, Harts, Geefe, and Hens : but that none of the Faiembor had ever feene them, as ger and ftronshey remember, but that they had it onely by report of others; but we found afterwards affile ger in thefe redly how all things went. Hauing learned this, our Generall required to have some of the Pagembes to goe with vs into the Author shat Countrie, whereupon they readily offered themselves, and their chiefe Commander pre- rode on one, Sently appointed three hundred Paiember to goe with vs, to carry our victuals, and other neces. which in Peru to faries for vs. The Generall commanded to prepare, and of five Shippes he caused three to be de-burthen, stroyed. To the other two he appointed fittle men of vs Christians, whom he commanded that in his ablence they should stay there foure moneths, expecting his returne, and that if within the time appointed he returned not voto vs, they should goe backe with these two Boates to the Citie of the Affinmption. But it fo fell out, that we flaied whole fixe moneths with thefe Paientbor, and neuer heard any thing in the meane while of our Generall Islan Eyellas; and prouifion of victuall failed vs. and therefore of necessitie, with Dominiche Eyellas, who in the meane time was left to command vs, we were to returne with our Shippes to the forefaid Citie of the Af-

25. The Generall departing from the faid Paiembes, he came to a Nation called Maperus, joy- Naperus, 40 ned in league and friendship with the Paiembes, who had nothing but fiesh and fish. And it is a populous Nation of these Naperus; our Generall tooke certaine vnto him, to shew him the way, for they were to goe through divers Countries with great labour and in great penurie of all things; for they had tried the violence of many who refifted them in hoftile manner, the halfe part of the Christians almost being dead; being brought therefore to a certaine Nation called Peilennos; he could goe no further, but was compelled to goe backe againe with all his peo- Peilennos, ple, except three Spaniards, which by reason of their weake effect of body, he left with the

Our Generall therefore lohn Eyollas being in reasonable good health himselfe, went backe againe with all his people and Souldiers, and quietly refreshed himselfe with all his fellowes for to three daies with these Naparus, for the people were faint, being over tired with the journey : and munition and weapons failed vs, which the Naperus and Patentos vinderstanding, configure among themselves, to kill the Generall John Eyollas, with all his followers, which also they performed: for when our Generall marched with his Christians from Naperns, toward the Paiember, and had almost now gone halfe the way, these two faid Nations, set woon them vnawares in a thicket or Forrest (which they chole for their ambush) through which the Chrifians were togoe. There the Generall, together with his ficke and faint Souldiers, was flaughtered by them, as of fo many mad Dogges, fo that not one escaped.

ð. II.

MARTIN EYOLLAS made Generall. GABRER OS comming: SCHERYES Voyage. NVNNER his infolance. Diners people and accidents described.

M the meane space, while wee fiftie men returning to the Assumption, expect our Generall, we understand what happened, by report of a certaine Indian flaue of loke Eyeller who was now dead, given him of the Perfenner, who being skilfull in the Language escaped the hands of the enemies, he declared all the whole matter. This was further confirmed by two of the Paiembes taken Prifoner, and it feemed good to vs Christians, that we should create Marine Eyellas often named to vs., our chiefe Commander and Generall.

watill we received other commandement from the Emperours Majeffie. Our Generall therefore gaue commandement, that foure Brigantimes should be prepared, and taking I co. men of the company, leaning the rest in the City of the Assemption of Mary, hee made thew that he would gather together the 150, men left with the Tembus (as wee faid before) and also these too. Spaniards who abode with the ships in the Citie of Buena Meres, into the said City of the Assumption. With these foure Brigantines therefore hee went downe the Rivers of Paraball, and Parana with the streame, and came to Tiembus (which first place we called Bona foranza, but the Caltle wherein our Garrifon Souldiers were, wee named Corpas

But before we came from the Assembles to Tiembus, a certaine man of the Christians, to wit, Captaine France Ruis, a Priest called John Bahan, and a certaine Secretarie John Ermodus, as it wer- fubordinate Gouernours of the Christians, tooke treacherous and wicked counfell together. to kill the Captaine of the Indians of Tiombre, and certaine other Indians with him : which wice

ked attempt they performed also in deed, so that, not without great impietie before our Generall Marin Don Eyellas his comming, and ours, they had flaine those Indians, from whom a long time they had received no small benefits. Our Generall therefore commanded Anthonio Mendoza (whom he left as Commander in the Castle of Corpus Christi, with a Garrison of 120, of 20 our men, giving him also provision of victuall) if his life and fafetie were deere vnto him, that in any case he should beware of the Indians, and should diligently keep watch and ward, by day and night. And if the Indians making frew of friendship should come vnto them, that they should deale courteoully with them, performing all friendly offices vnto them, yet in the meane time they should carefully look vnto themselves, & be very warie in all things, left any damage should be done to themselues, or other Christians. These things being thus or dered and dispoled , hee prepareth himselfe to continue his intended journey, taking with him shofe three persons, who were Authors of the murder. When they were now about to take their purney, one of the Nobles of Tiembus Zuche Lyems by name, although he were a great friend of the Christians, yet by reason of his wife and children, and other Kintmen of his, and familiars, compelled to content 44 to their counsels and practifes the admonished our General Evollar, to cause all the Christians to be conveyed downe the River with him, for now all the Countrey had made readie all their forces, that either they might wholly cut them all off, or drive them all out of the Countrey. To whom our Generall Martin Don Eyollas answered, that hee would shortly returne : and that his people had firength enough to fustaine the affault or force of the Indians, and added moreover, that hee detired, that Zuche Lyemi with his Wife and children, and all his familiar friends, and all his people would come ouer to the Christians, and toyne himselfe with them, which also he promited,

28. Eight daies after or thereabouts, the aforesaid Indian Zuche Lyenne, fundeth one of his brethren Suelapa by name, bat deceitfully and treacheoully, and requefted our Captaine Men- 50 doza to grant him fixe Christians furnished with thot and other weapons, for he would bring our all his substance, with his whole Family vnto vs, and from henceforth dwell amongst vs. Our Captaine being perswaded by these promises, gives him not fixe but fiftie Spaniards, exceeding well provided and furnished with armour and shot, the Tiembus came vnto them, and intertained them with Indas kiffe, bringing fiesh and fish, that they might eate: now when the Christians began to fall to their meate, their friends and conforts, and other Tiembus gathered together amongft them, with those also who hide themselves, in the field and houses, fall voon these hite flaine by Tiem men, and so consecate the Banquet with them, that no man escaped aliue, except one Boy only Butreacherie, called Calders, who got out of their hands. Afterwards they fet vpon vs with 10000, firong and befreged the Village (which we held) continually for fourteenedajes, jatending who lly this 60 that being brought under, they might utterly defired vs. but God in mercie defeated their pur-

After this, our Generall is carried downe the River, and leaveth vs at Corpus Christia

pofes, and overthrew their enterprizes.

They had made themselves long Speates or Jauelings, of the Swords which they had gotten from the flaine Christians, wherewith they fought against well with the edge and point, dant-ting our Village day and night. Our Captaine Anthony Mendoza armed with a two hand Sword, ting our vising very and the state of the Port, neere which some Indianalay in ambush, so that they could not be seene. deve slaine, Being gone therefore out of the Port, the Indian; thrust him through with their lauelings, to that hee prefently fell downe dead upon the ground. But because the Indians wanted victuals. they could fuffaine themselues no longer heere, but were compelled to leave the siege and bee gone.

After this two Brigantines laden with prouision of victuall and other necessaries arrived at our Port, which our Generall tent vnto vs from the Towne of Buenas Acres, to maintaine our felues therewith till his comming. As therefore wee were cheered at the comming of them, fo they 20 who arrived with the Brigantines, incredibly forrowed and lamented for the flaughter of the Christians. Wee therefore determined by a common Councell (which thing also feemed to bee beit for vs) to flay no longer in this Village of Corpus Chrifts, abiding with thefe Trembus, but. that being carried downe the River, gathering all our forces together, we returne to Bnena Acres, to our Generall Marsin Dominicke Eyous. Who beeing frighted at our comming, was vehemently grieued (for the flaughter of the people, doubtfull how to confult what he should first doe, feeing also victuall and other necessarie things failed vs.

29. While therefore we continued fine dayes at Buenae Acres, a Carauell came to vs out of Spains, and brought vs newes, that a ship was arrived at Saint Katharme, whose Captaine Allun-20 Gabrero, brought with him 200. Souldiers out of Spaine, which when our Captaine certainly 20 knew, he commanded one of the leffer ships, which they call a Galley, to bee made readie, that Galtern comhe might fend her as foone as possibly he could to Saint Kaibarines into Brasil, which was 200, ming out of leagues diltant from Buenas Acres: making Gonzallo Mendoza Captaine thereof to governe the Spaine with finp: giuing him charge also, that if arriving at Saint Katharines, he found the ship there, they aco. Souldiers should lade one of the ships with Rice, Mandeoch, and other victuals, as seemed good vinto him. Gonzallus Mendoza therefore receiuing this commandement, requested the Generall Mertin D. Eyollas to give him seven of the Souldiers whom hee might trust, for this Voyage which hee promifed. Hee therefore chose mee, and fixe Spaniards to himselfe, with twentie other

Setting faile from Bnenas Acres, in the space of a moneth we arrived at Saint Katharines, and 30 finding the flip there; which came out of Spaine, together with Captaine Allunzo Gabrere, and all the Souldiers, wee greatly rejoyced. Abiding with them two moneths, wee laded our thip with Rice, Mandeoch, and Turkelb Corne, as full as it could hold, fo that no more could bee put in both the ships to carrie with vs. And the day before All Samts; were arrived at the River Parana, twentie leagues yet diffant from Buenas Aeres. Both the ships met together that night, whose Pilots asked one another, whether wee were now in the River of Parana: when our Pilot affirmed we were, the other faid the contrarie, that we were yet almost twentie leagues of, For when twentie or more ships saile together, in the Evening at the going downe of the Sunne they meete together, and one of the Mafters asketh the other, what way he had made that day, and with what wind hee would faile by night, left they should bee divided one from the others.

and with what wind nee would rake by might, better, which breadth of The River of Parana Visiffs, at the Bay or mouth thereof is thirtie leagues broad, which breadth of The River of Parana Visiffs, at the Bay or mouth thereof is thirtie leagues broad, which breadth of Createffeed The River of Fartage suggest, at the bey of mounts the Port of Saint Gabriel, where the River Parts, Parana is eighteene leagues broad. After this our Pilot asketh the Mafter of the other fhip, whother hee would laile after, to him the other made answere, that night was now at hand, and therefore he would continue still at Sea, till the rising of the Sunne, and that he would not make to the Land in the vnseasonable night. And this Pilot in guiding his ship was more circumspect then ours was, as the euent afterward declared. Therefore our Mafter held on his intended

30. Sayling by night, a mighty storme troubled the Sea, so that about twelve or one of the 30. Sayining of migray anguly control of the Sea, we deferred Land, and our clocke before Sunne rifing, before we had caft our Anchors in the Sea, we deferred Land, and our 50 thip was much bruifed when wee were yet a league or more from the Land. Wee could finde no other remedie for this mischiefe, then making our Prayers vnto God, to intreate him to be merother emeute to this internet, that making the was broken in more then a chouland pieces, and fitteeneof our men, and fixe of the Indian; perilhed being drowned in the waters. Some taking hold of great pieces of Timber (warmer out. I with fue of my companions escaped by the helpe of a Mait. But of fitteene perions, we found not fo much as one carkaffe. Afterward we were to trauell fittle leagues on foot, when we had loft all our clothes, with all the victuals in the thip, so that we were constrained to sustaine our selves, only with Rootes and other Fruites, which we could find here and there in the fields, while wee came to the Port of Same Gabriel, where we found the foreraid ship with her Captaine, who arrived there thirtie dayes before vs. But our Generall Martin D. Exollar had heard before by intelligence, of this our milhap, and thinking that we were all dead, commanded fone Maffes to be read for our fooles health. When They are we were brought to Buenas Aeres, our Generall commandeth the Captaine of our thip, and the wracked. Matter thereof to be cited, an itinal to their triall, who without doubt had hanged the Pilot, if Indiscent the hanter thereor to be cited, and a man to then trian, who we have condemned for four yeers to lot, for great and earneit intreases had not been yied, yet hee was condemned for four yeers to lot, Gathering together all our companies to Buena Aeres, our Generall commandeth the Brieantines to be made ready, and all the Souldiers to bee thipped therein, and commandeth the reit of the shippes to be burned, yet preserving the Iron Vessels and Instruments. Wee therefore once more faile vo the River of Parana againe, and arriving at our forelaid Citie of the Allumption of Marie, itaying there two yeeres, we expected further commandement from the Emperours Majesty.

Alustes Nun-

46. norfes to the River of

Plate. And he was 8. whole moneths in this Voyage.

first in the

yeere 1542.

hee arrived at

21. In the meane time while these things are thus done, a certaine Captaine Alustrez Nunnez. Cabeca de Vacha commeth out of Spaine, whom Cafars Majestie had created Generall. and with toure hundred men, and thirtie Hories divided into foure thips, of the which two were greater, and the other two Carauels.

The foure ships arrived in Brasill at the Hauen of Wiesaiy, or Saint Katharine, to seeke provi-Note. Franciffion of victuall. And when the Captaine had fent the two Carauels eight leagues from the Hacus Lopez chap. pen to feeke victuals, fo great a fforme tooke them, that they perified, being broken all to piethis Alumer, ces in the Sea, the men not withflanding which were in them being faued. When Aluarez the So writeth of A sunequation to the Commander knew this for a certainty, hee durift not put to Sea any more in the greater the years 1541. greater ships; he therefore commanded vtterly to destroy them, and travelling by land towards he was fent the River of Plate, at length came vnto vs, to the Assumption of foure hundred men bringing from Colars three hundred with him, the rest dying either of famine, or of cruell diseases. Micitie, with 400. men, and

From hence the Captaine was eight whole moneths in his journey, and from the Citie of the Assumption, to S. Katherines are reckoned three hundred leagues. This is to be understood of the 20 next and most direct way, for from the Affamption, downe the River to the Sez, there are three hundred thirtie foure leagues, and to Saint Katharine three hundred. Aluarez Nunnez alfo brought the title of his gouernment out of Spane, granted vnto him from Cafars Maiestie, and therefore required, that our Generall Martin Don Eyollas, should yeeld up the whole government vnto him, which thing alto Don Eyollas, and all the company with all their heart were readie to performe, yet vpon this condition, that hee should make good proofe also, that this power and authoritie was granted vnto him from the Emperours Maieftie. But the whole afthe Allumpion.
Shipwracke & fembly could not wrest this from him, only the Priests, & one or two of the Captains affirmed it.

23. The faid Aluarez Numez therefore taking a view of the Souldiers, found the number of 100, menlost the whole Army to be eight thouland men. Making friendship allowith Martin Don Eyellas, 30 each iware to other brotherly fidelity and friendship, to that Eyollas should have no lesse power to command the people, then he had before. The Gouernour commandeth nine Brigantines to be made ready that he might faile up the River as farre as it was possible. But before the ships were made readie, he sendeth three Brigantines with one hundred and fifteene Souldiers before commanding, that they should go as far as they could, and seeke out the Indians that had Maiz.

Sauage nation of Suruculis.

Hee joyned also two Captaines vnto them, Antonio Gaberro, and Diego Tabellonus. These therefore in the beginning come to a Nation, called Surrucusis, having Maiz, Mandeoch, and other Roots of that kind, and Mandnes also (which are like our Filbirds) and fish and flesh. The men carrie in their lips a blue stone like the bone of a Die,

Village of

With this Nation we left our ships, and with them certaine of our companions, to whom we 40 committed the custodie thereof: but having gone foure dayes journey into the Countrey, wee came to a Village pertayning to the Carios, being three hundred strong, inquiring therefore diligently there, of the state of that Countrey, wee received honest and peaceable answeres from them. Returning thence vnto our thips, and going downe the River of Parabol, we came to the Nation Achkeres. There we found Letters lent from Aluaro the Gouernour, whereby hee commanded to hang up the chiefe Captaine of these Indians, Achkeres by name. Which commandement our Captaine obeyed without delay, and we returned home.

Achkeres hanged.

33. The whole Countrey of Dabero and Carios, were vp in Armes, loyning their forces together to inuade the Christians. For the King of Dabero was the brother of that Achteres, whom the Christians hanged, whose death hee would most seuerely auenge vpon the Christians. Our 50 Governour armeth himselfe in the meane time against his Enemies, to vindertake some serviceagainst them. He therefore determined with the consent of his sworne brother Marin Dos Eyollas, that this Eyollas should goe against the faid Dabero, and Carios with foure hundred Chri-Gians and two thousand Indians, and either drive them out of the whole Country, or etterly roote them out. The faid Eyollas faithfully executing this commandement, leadeth his Armie out of the City of the Affamption, and meeting with the enemy, by the commandement of Cafars Maiestie first perswadeth Dabero to peace and quietnesse, but he little regarding this, would admit no treatie of peace, for he had gathered a mightie Army, fenced his Villages with Bulwarks or Rampires of wood fastened in the ground, and had compassed them about with a triple fence of takes or piles, having also call rp deepe and mightie pits, whereof we spoke before in the 21. 60 Chapter, all which wee found out before by diligent fearch. Wee flood still quietly without Armeetill the fourth day , before wee proclaimed war against them , but the fourth day in There t kin. the morning, three hou es before the riling of the Sunne, making an affault, wee violently rushed and the City and whomfoeuer we found there, we flue, yet taking many women, and preferring them from flaughter, which afterward turned to our great benefit. In this affault twenty fixe of the Christians were flaine, many of the people being wounded and hutt. And many also of the indians on our part perished but of the Caniballs 3000. slaine, Not long after Dabero, came vinto vs Dalets comiwith his people, and craued fauour and pardon. In the next Expedition Dabero fent to Numez metains 2000. Indians to aide vs. From the Carior allo he commandeth nine Brigantines to bee furnished. all which being done, 800. Christians he taketh 900. leaving 300. at the Affampion, over whom he made lobn Satenfler Captaine. With this Army of 500. Christians, and 2000. Indians, we faile vo the River of Parabel: 2.1d the Carios had with them 83. boats, wee Christians had mine Brigantines, in every one of the which there were two horses. But the horses were conveyed over 10 Land 100, leagues, and we were tarried upon the River unto the Mountaine of Saint Ferdinand. At that place taking our horses againe into the ships, from thence afterward we were carried torward, vntill we came to our Enemies the Paiember, but they not looking for our comming, con- Paiember. neved away themselves by flight with their wives and children , having first fee their houses on fire. After this we trauelled 100. leagues together, and light not on any people, at length wee came to a Nation, whose people are called Balchareper, who have by fish and fieth. It is a populous Balchareper Nation, and they inhabit a large Countrey of 100, leagues broad. They have fo great a number of boats, that it is incredible to be written. Their women couer their Secrets. These people refuling to talke with vs. fled from vs. Departing from them, wee came to another Nation called Surneusis, 90. leagues diftant from the Bascherepes, the people out of this Countrey louingly Surneusis, 20 and friendly entertained vs. Euery Housholder of these Surmensis dwelleth in a peculiar and proper house of his owne with his wife and children. The men haue a round piece of wood hanging at their eares like a Calecus Die. The women have Christall of a Skie colour, of a finger thicke hanging at their lips, they are wel-fauoured to behold, and goe altogether naked. Their people abound with Turkilb Corne, Mandacch, Mandais, Padadet, fifth and fleth. And it is a vely populous Countrey.

Our Captains commanded to inquire of them concerning a Nation called Carchacaris, and alfo of the Carior. They could tell vs nothing of the Carchacaris; but concerning the Carios carcharait. they faid, that they were with them at their houses. But it was not true, having learned this, our Generall commanded to prepare our felues for the journey, for hee determined to goe

30 further into the Country. He appointed an hundred and fiftie Souldiers to flay with the (hips, to whom he gaue proution of victuall for two yeeres. Taking the other three hundred and fiftie together with the eighteene horses, and twenty thousand Indians or Carios, who came from the Affumption with vs, he went further into the Countrey, but with little benefit to vs. For our Generall was not a man fit for fo great anattempt; befides all the Captaines and Souldiers hated Generall no: him, for his preverse and rigorous carriage towards the Souldiers. Having travelled therefore eight belowed. teene dayes journey they neuer fet eye neither woon the Carios, her any other people, and food alto failed them, to that our Generall was of necessicie to returne againe vnto the shippes. But yet Her seturneth. our Generall chargeth a certaine Spaniard Franciscus Rieffere, with tenne other Spaniards to goe forward, commanding them that if after ten dayes journey they found no people, they should 40 recurne vnto the thips, where they would ftay for them. It happened therefore that they light

vpon a populous Nation, which had plentie of Turkilb Corne, Mandesch, and other Roots. But the Spaniards durft not come in their fight, and returning to vs, fignified this vnto our Generall, who was very defirous to have gone into this Countrey againe, but he was hindered by the waters, that he could not proceed.

He therefore commandeth a thip to be furnished againe, wherein he put eighty Souldiers, and Ernendus Rick making Ernandsu Rieffiere, Captaine injoyneth him to goe vp the River of Parabel, to discover fiere sayleth vo the Nation called Scherner, and therein two dayes journey, and no more to enter into the heart the River to of the Countrey, and after that to make report vnto him of the Countrey, and the Inhabitants the Guebucus thereof. Departing by thin from our Congrell, the first day was a constant. It figured debits thereof. Departing by thip from our Generall, the first day we came to a certaine Nation called Guebuecusis, on the other lide of the Countrey, whose people inhabit a certaine Iland, contay. Guebuecusis, ning thirty leagues in length, which the River Parabol compaffeth. They feed upon Mandeoch, Il no in the Maiz, Manduis, Padades, Mandepore, Porpe Bachkeku, and other Roots, and allo voon flesh and Rivers file. The men and women are like the former Suruenfis in Phisnomy and fauour. Wee stated this day with them, When we were to depart the next day, they accompanied vs with ten Canoas or Boats : twice in the day time they filhed, and caught Venison, which they gaue vs. Boats : twice in the day time they filhed, and caught Vention, which they gaue vs.

Spending nine dayes in this icurney wee arrived after at the Nation called Abbiers, where a Menotall Menotall Menotall great multitude of people were guthered together. The men and women, are of a great and tall flature.

stature, the like whereof I faw not in all the Countrey of the River of Place, and these Achte- They are calres are thirty leagues distant from the forefaid Surmonfisthey live by no other thing fave fish and 1 d debenes, zes are thirty leagues diffant from the foreland Surucufus, they hue by no other thing sauc mis and 60 fields the women court their fecters. We flated one day with their Abbkeres, and from hence the fand Surucufus returned with their ten Boats or Canoas to their Village. Afterward our Captaine disso the Ernandus Rieffere, requested the Achkeres, to shew him what way they might goe to the Scher- flore (1 'ecmes, whereto they were very readie, and fent eight Canoas or Boats from their Village with vs, meth (of thes? and twice every day they caught fish and fiesh, that so we might have sufficient plenty of food, creatings in

Vuuuu 2

The those parte

Indian fortifi-

26. The sinth day after our departure from them, we came to the Schernes, vnto whom from the said Achkeres, are thirtie fixe leagues. This Nation is very populous, yet they are not true and naturall, among whom the King himfelfe hath an house. But these Schernes maintaines Priest export in the Mysteries of Religion, and have a ring of wood hanging at their eares. These men also weare a blue Christall in their lips, of the shape and bignesse of Dice, they are painted with a blue colour from the paps to the prinities, with that excellency that I thinke a Painter is not to be found in all Germany which could performe the like fo finely and artificially. They goe Conning pain naked, and are beautifull after their manner.

Pri. Rs and woo.den Earings.

We stayed therefore one day with these Schernes, and after going fourteene leagues forward in three dayes journey, at length wee came to the place where their King dwelleth, from the rewhich the Inhabitants are called Sebermes. His Country containeth only four leagues in length. Yet hath he a Village fituate vpon the River of Parabol. Therefore leaving our fhips heere, we committed the custodie thereof to twelue Spaniards, that returning wee might vie them for our defence. Wee also intreated the Sebernes dwelling there, that in the meane space they would friendly connerse with the Christians, and intreate them courteously, which also they did. with necessaries for our journey, passing ouer the River Parobol, wee arrived at that place, where the feate and house of the King was. Who, when we were almost yet a league from him. commeth forth to meete vs guarded with more then 12000. men in a Champion plaine, yet friendly and peaceably. The path wherein they marched, was eight paces broad, ffrewed with flowers and grafte on every fide, and made fo cleane, that not fo much as any little flone, flick, 20 or firaw appeared. The King had also with him his Muticians, whose Instruments were like our crooked Trumpets, which wee call Schalmes. Hee gave commandement alfo, that they should hunt Stags and other wilde beaft on both tides of the way which hee went, fo that they tooke about thirtie Sags and twentie Eftridges or I and w, which spectacle was very pleasant to behold. When we were entred into the Villige, he alwaies appointed one looging for two Chriflians. But our Captaine together with his Seruants or followers was brought into the Kines

He is wont to have Musicke at the Table, and at his meate, when soener he pleaseth. For then women, which dances and skippings seemed so strange vnto vs , that looking vpon them , wee 30

they play upon the Flutes or Pipes, men leading the dances and skipping with most beautifull had almost forgot our selves. In the reft the Schermes are like those people of whom wee spoke before. The women make them gownes or upper garments of thinne Cotton , almost like our clothes which are some part filke, which we call Arras or Burfebet. They weave in their divers shapes of Stags, Ettridges and Indian theepe, according as every of them is more skilfull in the

When we had stayed there foure dayes, this pettie King demanded of our Captaine what our and Siluer. Therefore he gaue him a Crowne of Siluer weighing a pound and an halfe. He gaue him also a plate of Gold of a spanne and an halfe long, and halfe a spanbroad, and certaine other

Gold : And that these things wherewithhe presented him, were the spoiles which in time past

That he made mention of the Amerones and of their riches, was very pleafing to vs to heare. Our Captaine therefore presently demandeth of the King, whether we might come to them by things made cunningly wrought of Silver, and told our Captaine that he had no more Silver nor

he had gotten in war against the Amazons.

pu pose was, and whether we would goe! to whom he made this answere, that he fought Gold 40 ot the King.

Wild pompe

Stags and Mulicke.

Weamers.

In these garments they sleepe, if the Aire happen to be somewhat cold, or putting them under them they fit upon them, or vie them at their pleasure for other services. These women are very

Gold and Sil-

Sea, or by the River, and how much further we had to goe, when wee were to take our journey towards them; whereunto he answered, that we could not goe to them by water but by land, and that in two whole moneths journey. 37. These women the Amazenes, have only one of their pappes, their Husbands come vnto them three or foure times in the yeere. And if the woman beeing with child by her Husband. bring forth a Male child, the fendeth him home again to his Father, but if it be a Female, the keepeth it with her : and feareth the right pap of it, that it may grow no more, which she dorh for this purpole, that they may be more fit to handle their Weapons and Bowes. For they are warlike women, making continuall war with their Enemies. Their women inhabit an Hand that is very large, on every fide compaffed with water, to whom there is no acceffe but by Caneas of Boats. The Amazones have neither Gold not Silver in this Hand, but they are reported to have great Treasures in the firme land, which the men inhabit. It is a very populous Nation, and is faid to haue a King called legues, and the King of Scherues told vs the name of the place. There- 60 fore the Captaine Ernandus Ruffiere defired the King of Schernes, to joyne certaine of his men with vs, to carry our bagge and baggage for vs, and then we would enter the heart of the Country to feeke those Amazones. He willingly affenteth thereunto, yet in the meane time admonaking vs, that the whole Countrie was now overflowed with waters, and therefore we should hane a very difficult and vneally Iourney vnto them, and that wer could not early at this time come vato them. But we would not give credite to his words, but were instant to have the Indians joyned with vs. He therefore gaue twentie men to our Captaine, for his owne person, to carrie his provision and necessaries : and to every one of vs, he gave five Indians to ferue vs. and carriethat little which we had. For wee were to goe eight dayes Journey, wherein wee thould

But afterward we came to a certaine Nation called Siberis; who in their language and other Siberis. things were like the Schernes. Wee were to goesfor thele eight whole dayes, day and night in the water vp to the knees, and fometimes reaching as high as the waite : nor could we by any Wading Jourto meanes get out of them. And if we would make fire, we were of necessitie to put it woon a pile neg. orflacke made of great blockes or pieces of wood; and it fell out often, that when wee were Bellie-thifes, about to boile our meate, both the pot and the firefell into the water, to that after that wee were faine to be without our meate. And Gnats also troubled and vexed vs day and night, to Gnats, that we could not doe our necessarie worke or bufinesse.

Wee therefore demanded of those Siberis, whether wee should yet have any more waters? who answered, that wee were yet foure dayes to walke in the waters; and atterward were to travell five dayes by Land, and at length wee should come to a Nation called Orethislen. They fignified also vinto vs. that wee were too few in number, and therefore that wee should returne. Butthe Schernes would not doe this; for wee thought rather to fend them backe vinto their 20 Towne, who had hitherto accompanied vs, but they reliated to doe it, faying, they were enjoyned by their King not to leave vs , but should continue with vs, virtil wee came out of the Countrie againe, These Siberis loyned ten men with vs , who together with the Scherwes (hould show vs the way to the fore-faid Orethwise. Wee were yet seven dayes more to Travels in hos tranell in the waters which were so hot, as if they had beene heat upon the fire, which was waters. ter also , having no other , wee were compelled to drinke . But some might peraduenture thinke, that it was River water, but at that time, showres of raine were so common and yfuall, that they filled the whole Countrie with water, which is altogether very plaine and even.

The ninth day we came vnto a certaine Village of the Nation Orethunfen, betweene ten and Orethunfen. en eleven of the clocke. And at twelve of the clocke, being come into the middelt of the Towne. we came vnto the Princes house. At that time a cruell and mightie Plague was very her, whereof Famine was the cause: for, two yeeres together, the Graf-hoppers had to eaten and Locusts. corrupted all manner of Corne, and the fruits of trees, that almost nothing was left them, which they might eate.

But our Captaine asked the Petie-King of this Nation, how many dayes Journey we get had to the Amazones? from whence he receiveth ani were ; That wee must yet trauch one whole The Amazons moneth, besides that all the Countrie was full of water.

The King of these Orethwisen, gaue our Captaine soure Plates of gold, and soure filter Rings, bryond the rewhich they put about their armes : but the Indians weare the Plates of gold on their forcheads gion of Trush; go for ornament, as our Nobles doe their Chaines, or Collars of Eiles hanged about their neckes, it the title be For thele things our Captaine gaue the King of the Indians an Hatchet , Kniues , and Beades, or Properly Pater-nofters, Barbers Scizzars, and fuch l.ke. Wee would willingly have craued more of them, same here debut wee durft not attempt it, because wee were but few in number, to that wee were forced to firibed. For stand in feare of them. For the multitude of these Indians was very great, and the Towne huge, warlike wines in fo much as I have not feene any greater or more populous throughout all India. For the Towne hung in tociewas very long, and broad.

28 Going backe therefore, we returned to the foresaid Siberis, and we Christians were ill fur-Gold and filnished with prouition of victuall, and other things, nor had we any meate, but the fruits of trees, uer, which they call Patmides, and Cardes, and other wilde roots growing under ground. And when we should returne vnto the Schernes, the halfe part of our people was deadly sicke, and that by reason of the water, through which wee were to wade for thirtie dayes together, so that wee Thirtied ext. could neuer turne afide, or get out of the same; and also by reason of the great scarlitie and ta- wading. mine, which we must indure in this Journey ; which calamitie was not a little encreased, in that we were compelled to drinke that althie and impure water. Abiding therefore foure dayes with Profitable these Schernes, with whom the King himselfe dwelleth, we were very louingly and bountifully tricke, entertained, and provided for. For the King gave commandement to his Subjects, to give visall things necessarie. Every man also had gotten for himselfe almost two hundred Du. acs onely by Cotton Gowns, and Silver, which we had gotten of them by fecret exchange of Kniues, Beades, Scizzers, and Glaffes.

60 After all this, being carried downe the River, wee returned to our Generall. But when wee came to the ships, the Generall commanded upon paine of death, that no man should goe out of the ship, and he also in proper perion comming to our Captaine, laying held of him, commanded him to be cast in Prison, and by violence tooke away from vs Souldiers, whatsoever we had gathered in this Iourney. And not contented with this, would have hanged our Captaine voon

a tree. When we abiding yet in the Brigandines understood this, taking countell with certaine of our friends, which were alhoare, we raifed a tumult and a fedition against our faid Generall. and in his prefence face to face we faid vinto him, that forthwith he should fet Captaine Ernen. dus Rieffere free before vs, and reftore all vnto vs, which he had violently taken from vs, otherwife we would prouide according to the flate and the time.

When Alumm 12 w this our tumult and indignation, with a willing minde, he prefently freed the Captaine from captinitie, and reftored also vinto vs what socier he had taken from vs, andeauouring with faire speaches, that we might be pacified.

Vohealthfull

39. In this Countrie Surucufis I found no Indian, who had attained to fortie or fiftie yeeres. and in all the time of my life I neuer found a Countrie leffe healthfull. It is fituate under the Tropike of Capricarne.

Wicked pre-

Our Generall talling ficke in this his ficknesse commanded an hundred and fiftie Christiene to arme themselves, and taking two thouland Caries with them, to make foure Brigandines alto readic. These he enjoyned, to goe about some foure leagues to the Hand of Surmonfis by ship. and after kill and take all this people, and should principally destroy those persons, who were fortie or fiftie yeeres old. But how the faid Surneufis entertained vs before, is alreadie declared. But what reward we gaue them againe, and how welcome we were voto them, you shall shortly vinderstand. And God knoweth we did them great injurie. When therefore wee arrived at their Towns ynawares, they came out of their houses with their Armes , Bowes and Arrowes. yet peaceably to meet vs, but forthwith a tumult arising betweene the Carios and the Surncusti, 20 we Christians discharged our brasse Peeces against them, killing very many : and having taken also two thousand of their men, women, boyes and girles, wee tooke away all their housholdstuffe, and whatsoener might bee taken from them, as in such violent affaults is viually done. Then we returned to our G. nerall, who was well pleafed with that we had done. But because our So. Idiers were for the most part feeble and ficke, and most of them also were ill affected to our Generall, and hated him, we could doe no more with them, but being altogether conveyed downe the River Parabel, we returned to our Citie the Affumption; where wee left the reft of the Christians. There our Generall fell sicke agains of a Feauer, and kept within doores fourteene whole dayes together, more of wicked diffimulation and pride, then hindered by reafou of licknesse.

40. All the companie hereupon, as well Noble as Ignoble, determined and decreed with one confent and purpose, that they would fend this their Commander prisoner vnto Cafars Maiestie. the Treaturer or Judge, the Clarke, or Mafter of the Toll or Custome, and the Secretarie, ordained by Cafars Maieltie (whole names were Almanzus Gabrerus, Francus Mendeza, and Grains Haming 10) to king to them two hundred Souldiers, tooke our Generall, who feared nothing leffe then this, and this was done upon Saint Marker Day, in the moneth of Aprill. And they kept him prisoner an whole yeere, till they might fend him with two other Officers into Spaine in & Carauell, Martin Don Eyollas was choten Generall, who alto gouerned this Countrie before, especially seeing the Souldiers also loved him : which election the better part allowed. At this The Authours time, I lay griewoully ficke of the Dropfie, which difeafe I had gotten in our Journey to the Ore- 40 thrifen, when we waded to long in the waters, and befides fuffered want, and almost intolerable hunger: By occasion of that Iourney, eightie of our men beganne to bee ficke, whereof onely thirtie recouered health. 41. Aluarus Nunnez therefore being fent away into Spaine, the Christians began to disagree among themselves in holtile manner. These fightings and contentions continued with vsa whole yeere almost, the sending away of Aluarus giving occasion to this mitchiefe. When the Caries and Argais, (who hitherto were our friends) perceived this, to wit, that we Christians, bare fuch treacherous hearts one to another, and vied and exercised such fighting and skirmishing amongst our selves, it fell out very acceptably to them all, and by taking Armes against vs, forced vs to peace among ft our felues.

42. Departing from the Assumption, together with our Generall, and three hundred and fiftie Christians, to whom one thousand Indians joyned themselves, which our Generall jo divided. that three Indians alwaies should ferue under one Christian; we went so farre forward, that we were onely three leagues distant from that place where our Enemies the Carios encamped, who being fifteene thousand men strong, had now ranged their battell. But although we were now but halfe a league from them, yet we would not fet vpon them that day, because we were wearie by reason of the Journey, and many and great showres of raine troubled vs : therefore wee hid our felues in a Wood, where we lay close the night before.

Going forth the next morning at fixe of the clocke, and comming into their fight about leuen, we joyned battell, prolonging the fight till ten of the clocke. But at length they being put 60 to flight, made hafte to a certaine Towne called Framidiere, foure leagues distant, which they had fortified with strong Bulwarkes. The Chiefe Commander of the Carios was called Machkarias, and in this conflict, there fell two thouland men of the Enemies, whose heads the lessrm tooke with them. Of ours, befides those that were wounded and hurt, whom we fent backe to the Assumption, ten Christians were flaine. But wee pursued the Enemie with all our Armie. euen to their Towne Framidere, whether the Commander of the Carios conveyed himlelie by Framidiere. flight. They have compaffed this Towne with a triple rowe of Trenches, as with a wall. The Trenches were as thicke as a man in the middle, which being digged a mans depth into the ground, rofe three tathom high about ground. They had also cast up pits, or deepe holes, whereof also we have poken before, in every one whereof they had pitched fine or fixe stakes, sharpe pointed like Pinnes or Needles. This Towne therefore by fortification, and Garrisons of valuage and couragious men, was exceedingly well fenced, to that three dayes we befreged them in vain, vet at length, by Gods helpe, we conquered it. Wee made also great and round Targets of In-10 dian Sneepes skinnes, which they call Amaten, or Amidas. This beaft is of a reasonable bignesse.

like an ordinarie Mule, of a grey colour, with clouen feete like a Kow, in the reft like an Affe, yeelding plealant meate. There is great ftore of thele beafts in this Countrie, they have a skin balfe a finger thicke, Wee therefore gaue these round Targets to the Indians Isperss, gining fome of them also an Hatchet : and betweene two Indians we placed an Harquebuile shot. Defroving their triple inclosure, we entred the Towne of Framidiers; we neither spared men nor women, boyes nor girles. But the greatest part of them having escaped by flight, betooke them felues to a certaine other Towne of theirs called Carieba, twentie leagues diffant from Franidi - Carieba ere, which Towns also they fortified as strongly as they could. The Caries also in great numbers came together againe, incamping themselves neere an huge Wood, that if peraduenture this 20 Towne alto should be wonne by the Christians, they might vie the helpe of the Wood for their

Wee came to the faid Towne, and pitching our Tents, befreged it round in three places. We had also hill tome of our men in a Wood, to keepe diligent watch there. Supplies also of two hundred Christians, and five hundred of the lepersus, and the Bathies came to aide vs, from the City of Assumption. For many of our men, both Christians, and Indians, were much wounded. So that we were of necessitie compelled to fend for a fresh supplie of Soul liers for our aide. Now therefore all our forces were foure hundred and fiftie Christians, and the leperus and the Bathacis were thirteene hundred in number.

But our Enemies the Carieba, had much more strongly fortified this Towne with Trenches. 22 and Motes, then ever they had done any before. They had also made and framed certaine Engines, and instruments like Traps, wherewith Mise are taken, which if according to their and English purpole and meaning, they had fallen, every one of them at one fall had flaine twentie or thirtie men. They had disposed many of these Engines hereand there about this Towne.

Wee abode therefore neere this Towne foure whole dayes, and could effect nothing of any worth , vntill Treason (which getteth the masterie enery where throughout the world) came betweene them and home. For a certaine Indian of the Caries our Enemies, who was their Captaine, to whom this towne properly belonged, came by night vnto our Generall, earneftly increacing, that we would not waite and destroy this his Towne by fire, which if wee would promife him, he would inynemen with vs; and would shew vs the way and meanes how to 40 take it. Which when our Generall had promised, adding also this caution, that he should receiue no hurt nor damage, he shewed vs in the Wood two wayes to come to the Towne, and said, that he would raife a flaming fire therein, during which we should violently breake into it,

When these things proceeded just according to the purpose and agreement made betweene vs. by this meanes entring we got the Towne, and great flaughter of the people was made by vs Christians: And they that thought they had escaped by fleeing, fell into the hands of the Ieperso, by whom the greatest part of them were slaine. But they had not their wines, and children then with them, but had hid them in a great Wood four leagues distant from thence. The den then with them, but had the training a great viscolitation of the Petie-King of the Indians, called Dabero: and the Village which entertained them, was called Labert Sabeit, and was fortie to leagues diffant from Carieba. But wee could not pursue them thicker, for this reason, because what way soener they passed, they had wasted all farre and neere, with fire, and spoyling, and had taken away all the store of provision and victuall. Abiding source dayes in the Towne Carieba, we cured the wounded, and also refreshed our selues.

43. After this we returne to our Citie, the Assumption, that after we might sayle up the Riuer, and seeke out the Towne of Inberie Sabaie, where the King Dabero had an house, with nine Brigandines, and two hundred Canoas or Boats , wherein fifteene hundred Indians of Isperiss were carried, we went up the River Parabol, to feeke our Enemies luberic Sabaie. In this Voyage also that captaine of the Carios, who betrayed the Towne Carieba to vs, ioy- 46. leagur ned himfelie with vs, bringing with him one thouland Carios, to aide vs against Dabero. We goe forward therefore with all our forces gathered together on the Land and River, and come fo neere vnto our Enemies Inberie Sabaie, that we are but two leagues diftant from them. When we had arrived there, our Generall Eyollas, fent two Indians of the Carios to the Enemie into their Towne, who should perswade them in the Christians behalfe, that returning into their Countrie, with their wines and children, and all their houshold-stuffe, they should ferue the Christians with due subjection, as they did before, which if they refused to doe, they would drive them all out of the Countrie. To this Dabero the King of the Cartor, for answer, commandech to tell our Generall, That he neither acknowledged him, nor the Christians, but if they came. they would kill them by casting bones at them. They also fend away the two Indian mellengers well bombafted with cudgels, with this straight charge, that they should speedily withdraw themselves from the Campe, other wife it should come to passe, that they should be slaine.

R.Stue a.

We came to a Riuer, called Sinefia in the Indian language, almost as broad as Danubuis, halfe the height of a man deepe in some places also deeper. This River doth sometimes to increase by inundation, that it doth much hurt to the Countrie, and by reason of such inundation or ouerflowing, they cannot trauaile by land. We were to passe ouer this River, and because the ener In mie had pitched their tents on the other fide of the River, they did vs much hurt in the paffing ouer. When they faw that we had now paffed ouer the River, speedily taking their flight, conuaied themselves into their towne, halfe a league distant from the River; we so purfued them. that we came to their towns of Inberic Sabaie, at the verie fame moment that they themselves entred, which also prefently we so besieged round, that none of them might either goe out or in: We allo forthwith armed our felues with targets made of the skinnes of the Amydau, as aforefaid. We wan their towne.

Our Generall commanded, before we should inuade them by force of armes, that we should neither kill the women, nor their children, but onely leade them away captines; whose comman lement also we obayed, but all the men that we could light upon, must dye, yet many ef- 20 caping by flight, preferred themselves, and our confederates the leperus got one thousand of the enemies heads. All their things thus performed, thoir Carios, who escaped by flight, came, together with their King, and crauing parlon of our Generall, intreated that their wines and children might be reftored voto them, and then they would performe all obedience of fubication vnto vs. as before, and ferue vs faithfully. Our Generall therefore received them to favour. who afterward also continued constantly in our friendship and amitie, so long furely as I abode in those Countries. And this warre continued a yeare and an halfe, and fell out in the veare 1546.

ð. III:

A long and troublesome March from Assumption into Peru. The Authors resurne.

Eturning therefore with our Shippes to our Citie the Affumption, wee staied there two whole yeares. But when in the meane time, neither the Ships came out or Spaine, nor any thing was fignified by mellengers, our Generall going torth with three hunored and fittle Spaniards, and two thousand Carios, in the years 1548. Salleth up the River Parabol, with As feuen Brigantines, and two hundred Canoas, or Boates. But those of the people, whom the Shippes could not hold, trauaile by land with one hundred and thirty hories. Hee made Don. Franck Mendoza Captaine; giving also provision for two yeares. These things therefore being thus setled. The Generall having sent backe fiftie to Assumption on with three hundred Christian Souldiers, one hundred and thirty Hories, and two thousand Carios, having gone forward eight dayes sourney found no Nation; but the ninth day wee light young Nation called Naperus, the people thereof live onely by fifth and flesh. They are of a tirong and tall stature. Their women, which are not beautifull, couer their secrets. This Country is fixe and thirtie leagues diffant from the Mountaine Saint Ferdinand: here we lay all night. The day following, continuing on our journey, we came the fourth day after, to another Nationcal- 10 led Mapais, which is very populous; the Subjects are compelled to ferue their Noblemen, with fishing, and labours, and other worke, no otherwise then our Boores with vs, doe their Nobles. But this Nation aboundeth with Mais, Mandeoch, Ade, Mande pore, Mandeoch portie, Padades. Mandues, Bachkeku, and other rootes, and things to eate. It hath also Stagges, Indian Sheeps, Estridges Ducks, Geese, and many other kindes of Foule. Their Woods abound in great plentie with Hony, of the which also they make Wine, and put it to other necessary vies.

Naperus.

Manais:

Two kindes of The Sheepe (which they call Amidas) are of two kindes, some of them domesticall and some Amidas, one a wilde, which they vie for carriages, and to ride vpon, and for other feruices, almost as we doe out bie to beare men, Acoffa Horfes, as I alforid, being carried on fuch a Sheepe in this very journey, more then fortyleagues, menions those When my legge was lame. They vie the same Beasts also in Peru for carriage of Merchandite, 25 60 of Peru to bear our people doe packe Horfes. Thefe Mapair are men of a tall stature, and warlike, converting all their labour and study to or little more. warlike affaires. Their women are faire, and couer their fecrets. They doe no worke and labour in the fields, but the whole care of maintaining the Family, lyeth upon the man; neither doe they any thing elfe at home, faue fpinne, and weave Cotten, or dreffe meate for their husbands.

We were not about halfe a league from this Nation when they comming forth of the towner they met vs neere a certaine little Village, where they perswaded vs quietly to refresh our selues that night, for they would give vs whatfoever we had neede of, but this they did deceitfully and treacheroully : that also we might be more secure, they gave our Generall fo re filter Crownes, fuch as are vivally worne upon the head, and foure Plates of filuer, whereof every one of them was a france and an halfe long, and halfe a france broad, Thefe Plates they binde to their foreheads for ornament, as we have faid before. They prefented our Captaine also with three your

When we had turned into this Village, supper being caded, and the watch set, that the people might be fafe from the treacherie of the enemie, wee gaue our felues to reft. About midnight our Generall had loft his your wenches.

45. After this, two thousand of the forefaid Mapais came vnto vs. that ouercharging vs vnawares they might veterly ouerthrow and kill vs, but they got no great matter at our hands. and in this conflict and bickering more then one thousand men were flaine. They becake themfelues to flight, whom we purfued with great hafte, even to their Towne, but found no man there, no not to much as their wives and children: our Generall therefore diffratching one hundred and fiftie harquebuffe fhor, and two thousand fine hundred Indian Carios, pursueth thele an Mapaie three dayes, and two nights with great speeds, so that we did but dine, and rested by night retrefling our felues foure or five houres with fleepe.

The third day we fuddenly came upon them gathered together in a certaine wood with their wines and children, but they were not those we fought, but were their friends; who were nothing afraid of vs, nor did they suppose that we would ever have come vnto them. Notwithflanding the anocene were forced to pay for the fault of the guilty; for when we light woon then, we flew many of them, and tooke of the men, women, and children, about three thoufand persons, and if it had bin day, as it was night, none of them had scaped our hands; for an huge number of this people had gathered themselves together in a certaine Mountaine inclosed round with woods. I had gotten for my part of the spoile about nineteene men and workin, not very old, together with certaine other things,

These things performed, returning to our Campe, we quietly reposed our selues for eight daies ; for we found there, sufficient plenty of victuall, and other necessary things; from this Nation Mapais, vnto Saint Fordinandes Mount, where our Shippes rode, were fiftie leagues, and from the Nation Naperm thirtie fix.

Marching on againe from thence, we came to a Nation called Zemie, fubiect to the forefild Zemie Mapair. They live almost as the Boores doe with vs, vader the power of their Lords. In this iourney we light upon fields tilled, and let with Mais, and other rootes, and chele fruites and Fieldsof Mais. meates, are all the years long found in the fields; for before one reape and gather the one into &c. the barne, another is ready for the haruest. And this also being reaped and gathered, it is time 40 to fowe another. Turning afide thence, we came into another Towne, whose inhabitants when they faw vs at hand, fled all away. This towne is four leagues diffant from the forefaid Mapair. Departing hence, and travailing fix leagues in two dayes journey, we light on another Nation called Tobanna, but we found no men here, but great plenty of foode. The men of this Coun- Tabanna trie also are subject to the Mapair. Going from hence we met with no Nation in our journey in foure dayes space. But the for uenth day we came to a Nation called Poisses, foureteene leagues diffant from the former To. Pristant banna. In this Countrie a great number of people came together; and their Captaine came forth to meete vs, guarded with a great multitude of men, yet peaceably, and earneftly belought our Generall not to enter into their Towne, but that we should stay without, in the place where he came to meete ve; and our Generall would not confent, but directly marched forward, will so he, nill he, entred into the Towne.

We staied with these Peieras three dayes, and our Generall demanded many things of them concerning the nature and condition of this Countrey. When we were to depart, these Peionas gaue vs an Interpreter and a guide, that we might finde water to drinke, for there is great fearcity of water in this Country, having travailed foure leagues, we came to a Nation called Maye- Mangary: gory, and staying one onely day there, taking an Interpreter againe, and a guide, we marched forward. And these people were gentle and curteous.

Departing also from these people, when we had marched eight leagues, we came to a Nation, whole people, which were many in number, were called Marronos. They also gently and cur- Marronos. 60 teoully entertained vs : we abode here two dayes, and receiving a relation of the nature, and condition of the place, taking also a guide with vs, we went further forward. Departing toure leagues from thele, we came to another Nation, yet not so populous, called Paronios. This Coun- Paronies. trie aboundeth not with victuall and foode, yet notwithstanding it is 3000. ilrong of men able for warre. In this Countrie we rested one day onely.

led Symamos, where a great multitude of men came together. Their towne is fituate youn an trmevar. Wall of bushes high hill and compassed round about with Bryar bushes, as with a wall, day ones.

46. We traugiled fixteens leagues further in foure daies journey, and at length were brought vnto a certaine Nation, called Barconos: the men thereof, feeing, our comming chanced to them beyond their expectation and opinion, prefently betooke themselves to flight, as soone as were came neere their towne; yet they could not escape out of our power. But when we onely craued foode of them, being very ready, they willingly gaue vs Hens, Geele, Sheepe, Eftridges, Stags and other foode abundance. Departing thence, the third day after we came to a Nation, whose people were called Ly-

Lephannes. Grafhoppers, Carcheonos.

Suberia.

thu A

They dye of

bames. They dwell twelve leagues removed from the former. These people had but little fooie. for the Grafhoppers had corrupted almost all their fruites. Therefore resting one onely night with them, after having travailed fixteene leagues in foure dayes journey, we came to another Nation called Carebeoner. The Grashoppers also had done them great displeature, but had not to much hurt them as they had done the former; abiding with them one day, we viderifood the of the condition and quality of the Countrie, that we should gode no water in four and twenty or thirty leagues space: we approached to these Suberis in fix dayes space: But many of our mendied or thirth, although with these Carebeones we had furn shed our telues with indifferent flore of water for this journey. But in this journey we found a roote about ground, having great Roote holding and broad leaves wherein water remaineth as it were in some vessels, nor is it powred out thence, 20 nor allo to early confumed, and one of these rootes containeth about halfe a measure of water.

Thele Suboris had great fearcitie of water alfo, neither had they any other thing befides to drink,

No rine in a, and it had not now rained for three whole moneths; yet of the roote called Mandepere, they monerhe Drinke of a make drinke arter this manner. They gather together the faid roote into a Morter, and out of them being flamped they wring forth a mice like milke: if water may be had, wine also may be made of these rootes. In this Village there was one Well onely, which was to be kept by a watchman. So that we were not much troubled with the defire either of Silver or Grid, but the common complaint of all men, would be for want of water. In this Countrie farre and wide also nortiuer waters are to be found beside these, but they vie onely that water which they gather in the criternes. There Suboris make warre with the bordering Indians, onely for water. The to Suboris, who should have showed vs the way, by night primity stole away. We were therefore now to feeke out the way our felues, and at kingth we light upon those people called Persenner. they refusing our friendship withstood vs by armes, but got little at our hands. We tooke some of these Perfennes, who told ve that there had bin three Spaniards in their towne, whereof one called /kieronimus was a trumpeter, whom John Evollas (who was fent by Don Petro Mendoza, to discouer thele Countries) left ficke there, as we have at large before rehearsed. They said therefore that the Perfeunos had flaine these three Spaniards, foure dates before our comming thither, being advertised thereof by the Suboris: but they should deerely pay for this fact of theirs. Abiding foureteene daies in their towne, we fought them round about vs euerie where, till at lait ta-

Maigenes.

47. Taking our journey, at length we came to the Margenes, but the people thereof relifting vs with firong hand, would not entertaine vs as friends. Their Towne being fituate vpon an hill, was compassed round on enerie fide with a thicke and broad quickfet hedge, as high as a man might reach with his Sword. Wee Christians therefore with our Carios, began to affault this Towns in two divers places. But in this affault twelve Christians, together with some few of the Carios were flame, and they put ye to a great deale of trouble, before we could take and win

king them vnawares in a wood, but not al, we partly flew them, & partly led them away captiues. 40

Carios and Mai-

Eight daies after the Towne taken five hundred of our Caries, taking their Bowes and Arrowes, departing fecretly and without our prinitie, about two or three leagues from our Campe, feeke out the Margenos, who were fled. On whom when they lighted, thefe two Nations 50 fought with fo great and conftant resolution, that more then three hundred men of the Carios, but of the enemies, almost innumerable, were flaine; for there was so great a multitude of them, that they foread almost a whole league in length. But the Carios fending a messenger to the towne where we were, earneftly entreated our Generall, that they would come with iome supply of Souldiers to helpe them; for the Margenes had to belet them round in a wood, that they could neither goe forward nor returne backe againe.

Which when our Generall understood, he presently commandeth the Horses to be made ready, and to fend away and dif patch one hundred and fittle (hristians, but of the Carios affembled a thousand men, leaving the rest of the Souldiers in the tents to guard them, that wee being abfent, the Maigener our enemies might inuade them. We went for h therefore with this force (10 60 wit) the faid norfe, one hundred and fiftie Christians, and one thousand Carios, to helpe the Carior our friends. But fo foone as the Maigenos perceiued our comming, remouing their tents, they committed themselves to flight, and albeit we pursued them with as much speede as wee could, yet could we never oue rake them.

Retur-

CHAP.4.5.3. Passages through the Carcokies, Machasies unto Peru.

Returning therefore to our tents, we abode there three daies; for we had found in this town e of the Maigenos, great plentie of foode, and other things. Having travailed a continuall journey of thirteene daies, that is to fay(in out judgement and theirs who are skilfull in the celeftiall motions) two and fittie leagues, we came to a Nation, whose people are called Carcokies: and Carokies. hauing travailed further the space of nine dies, we came into a'certaine little Countrie, sixe leagues long and broad, which was all fo thicke ouerfpread with excellent Salt, as if it had fowed Salt Country, Salt in great abundance, and this Salt is not corrupted winter nor fummer.

We rested two daies in this Salt Countrie, going forward, at length, after soure daies iourney, we came to the foresaid Nation Carcokies: But when we were yet foure leagues from their to towne, our Generall fent fiftie Christians, fiftie Carios to prouide vs lodgings. Hauing entred the towne, we found such an innumerable multitude of men gathered together, as in all this journey we had not feene the like; wherefore being very penfine and carefull about meafure, fending a mellenger presently backe vnto our Generall ; who taking his journey the very same euening, came vnto vs betweene three and foure of the clocke in the morning. But the Carcokies fuppofing there had bin no more men there then we, whom they had seene before, had now promiled themselues the victorie. But when they understood that our Generall followed vs with a greater force, they were very fad and forrowfull, and performed all friendly offices and kindeneffe vnto vs; for they could doe none other, feeing they were afraid of their wines, children, and their towne. They brought vs therefore fielh of Deere, Geefe, Hens, Sheepe, Eftridges, 20 Conies, and what focuer elfe of this kinde of Venifori, and also of Birds, they had also Turkish Samdelic Come, Wheate, Rife, and certaine Rootes, of all which things there was great plentie in this

The men of this Countrie weare a blew stone in their lippes, as broad as a Dye. Their weapons are Darts, the staues of Speates, and round Targets made of the skins of the Indian Sheepe called Amida. Their women haue a little hole in their lips, in the which they put Christall either of a greene or blew colour : they have garments of Cotten, like to a shirt, but without fleeues : they are beautifull enough : they doe nothing elfe but spinne, and order things appertaining to the houshold; for tillage of the ground, and other things necessarie for the maintenance

48. When we had gone three daies journey from this towne, we came to a certaine River cale led Mackager, league and a halfe broad: and when we faw not how we might passe fately one uer without danger, at length we found out this meanes, that for enery two persons wee should make a Boate of twigs and timber, whereon being carried downe the River, they might come to the other fide of the banke; but in this passage foure of our men were drowned. This Riuer hath most fauourie Fish, Many Tygars also are found about these places, and this River is but foure leagues onely diffant from the towne Macheafies.

The Inhabitant's comming forth to meete vs, entertained vs curteoully, speaking to vs in the Spanish tongue, whereat being astonished and foreafraid at the first, wee demanded of them to They arise in what Lord they were subject, and who was their supreame Gouernour! They therefore an- the Kingdome of wered vs, and our Captaine, that they were subject to a certaine Noble man in Spaine, whose of Pau.

name was Petro Ausuctes.

Entring into this Towne, we found certaine men and women, and little Infants also swarming with very little vermin, like our fleas. These little vermin, if they lay hold of the toes of the feete, or any other part of the body, they gnaw and enter alwaies more and more deepely Strang worms? in, and at length become wormes, such as are found in our filberds; yet if it be done in time, this mischiefe may be preuented, that it shall not hurt, but if deferring the cure it be neglected, at length by eating and gnawing, it confumeth and corrupteth whole toes.

From the often named Citie of the Assumption of Mary, to this Towne, are numbered (according to the account of the Altronomers) three hundred seventie two leagues. And when we had flaied there about twentie daies, a Letter was brought vs from a Citie of the Kingdome of Peru, A Letter on 50 called Lama, where the Viceroy or Lieutenant of Cafars Maiestie, who at that time was Liecu- of Pou. tiatus Lagafen, had an houfe. The Letter contained, that our Generall Martin Don Fiottas should goe no turther forward, vpon paine of death, but abiding in the Towne Macheafies, should expect his further commandement. But after this our Generall fent away foure persons to the Gonernor to Pers. Thele foure perfons journying fixe weekes in Perm.came first to that Nation called Potafi, next to another called Rueskem. The third Nation to which they came, was called Plata, and the fourth, which was the Metropolis or the chiefe Citie, was called Lima.

49. This also is worthie of observation. That the Countrie of Macheafies is so fruitfull, 60 that we neither found, not faw any like it in fruitfulnelle, in all this our lourney. For if an Indian Hony in trees, going forth into the Wood, make an hole or a cleft in the first tree that commeth to hand, fimi- flings. ting an Hatchet into it, fine or like measures of so pure Honie flowe out, as if it were sweete Wine, or Muskadell. The Bres that make this Honie are without flings, and are very fmall. This Honie being eaten with Bread, or mingled with other food, yeeldeth pleafant meate. They make also Drinke thereof, or Wine, of the same taste that Muskadell hath, but sweeter. Our Generall Eyellas fo wrought with the people, that wee could flay no longer here, by reason of the want of prousion. For we had scarce victuall for one moneth.

Pedro Anfuetes.

In performing this Journey we spent a yeere and an halfe, doing nothing else, but making continuall warre. And in this Journey we had brought into our fub ection about twelue thou fand men, women, and children, who were compelled to ferue vs as bond-flaues: as I for mine owne perion did possesse about fiftie men, women, and children.

Barny.

Barede.

Gingie.

co. Wee, with our Genetall Martin Don Eyollas, came vnto the Citie Assumption, but Abriego a Captaine which had rebelled against Captaine Mendoxa, and slaine him would neither open the Citie to our Generall, nor yeeld it vp vnto him, nor acknowledge him for Generall, and

But the faid Diego Abriego, being forced to forfake the Citie with fiftie Christians, who iow. ned them telues with him, fled thirtie leagues from vs, fo that we could atchieue nothing against him. This warrecontinued two whole yeeres space betweenevs, the two Captaines so oppofing themselves one against the other, that neither was safe from danger of other,

51. In the meane feafon, while thefe things were thus done, I received Letters out of Spanne, and thewed to Martin Don Eyollas, I prefently defired a friendly and curteous difmission from him. I tooke my Journey in the name of God, vpon Saint Stephens Day, which was the fixe and twentieth of December, in the yeere 1552, and departing from the Assumption of Marie, care ried woon the River of Plate, with my twentie Indians in two Canvas or Boats, when wee had to now gone fixe and forcie leagues, we first arrived at a certaine Towne called Inberie Sabase. In that Towne four others alio, together with two Portugals ioyned themselves with vs, having gone fifteene leagues, we came to a Towne called Gaberethe. After this having gone fixteene leagues further in foure dayes, we came to a certaine Village called Barotis. Whence departing againe, having gone foure and fiftie leagues in nine dayes, wee came to a Towne called Barede, where staying two dayes, we sought prouision and Boats to carrievs, for wee were to goe one hundred leagues vp the River Parana by Boat, At length being brought to a certaine Towne called Gingie, wee abode there foure dayes. And thus farre the Countrie and Empire of Celar Maiestie extendeth it selie, all which places in former time were subject to the People Cariet.

ca. After this therefore, all the Nation Toupin, beginneth the Countrie and Jurisdiction of to the Portugal, and we were compelled, leaving Parana, and our Boats, to travell by land vnto thefe Tours, which continued fixe whole moneths; in which Journey we were to goe over Defarts, Mountaines and Valleyes, and for the feare waxed of wildeand rauening beafts, we durft not fafely take our fleepe, &c.

Wee wandred eight whole dayes through Woods and Thickets, so that although having trauelled farre and wide, yet in all my life time I had neuer gone fo rough, troublefome, and tedious a way : nor had we any thing which we might eate, fo that wee were compelled to furfaine our selues with Honie, and Roots, wheresoeuer we could get them: and for the danger also, to wit, that we feared left our enemies would pursue vs, we had not so much time as to take any venison. After this wee came to a Nation called Biefaie, where staying foure dayes, wee prouided our in Biefaie. River Vrauam.

Telues againe of victuall, but durst not come neere their Towne, because we were so few. In this Countrie there is a River called Vrquam, wherein we faw Water-Inakes, and Serpents called Tuesca, in the Spanish Tongue Schene Ejba, which were fixteene paces long, and foure tathome thicke. These Serpents doe much hurt: for if a man wash himselfe in that River, or any beaft fwim ouer, forthwith fuch a Serpent fwimming to them, windeth his tayle about the man, or beaft, and drawing them under water, denoureth them.

Proceeding further hence we trauelled about one hundred leagues, in a continued Journey of a Schenetueba. whole moneths space, and at length came into a large Towne called Schenerveba, and rested there three dayes.

Going againe further, we came into a certaine Towne of Christians, whose Captaine was John to

53. Moreouer, proceeding further thence, we came to the Towne of Saint Vincent. From the Citie of the Affirmation of Marie, to the Towne of Saint Vincent in Brafil, are reckoned three hundred and feuentie leagues.

Setting sayle from the Towne of Saint Vincent, on Saint Iohn Baptifts Dav, which was the Heatrieed at four and twentieth of Line, in the yeere of our Lord 1553. wee arrived at Lifeon, the third of Answers, September, in the yeere 1553, and white weether whence he had died, which I brought with me out of those Countries. September, in the yeere 1553, and while wee abode fourteene dayes there, two of my Indians

I had thought here to have added the Voyages of Ichannes Stadius, (another German, which ferned the Portugals in Bratill about Schmidels later time) published in Theodore de Bry : and had the 62 Same by me translated. But containing little light for the Countrie, and People; and relating in manner onely bis owne Tragedies, in his taking by the Sauages, and often perils of being eaten by them, is some of his friends were before his face, with other like Sausge arguments wherewith wee have glusted you alreadse: I being alreadse too volummous, base omitted the same, and hasten to other Relations.

CHAP. V.

The Observations of Sir RICHARD HAWKINS, Knight, in his Voyage into the South Sea. An. Dom. 1593. once before published, now reviewed and corrected by a written Copie. illustrated with notes, and in diners places abbremated.

What happened in this Voyage before they came neere the Aquinottial Lines with diners accidentall Discourses vsefull for

Eith the Counsels consent; and helpe of my Father, Sir John Hawkins, Knight, I resolued a Voyage to be made for the Slands of Japan, of the Philippinas , and Moluccas, the Kingdome of China, and East Indies, by the way of the Straites of Magelan, and the South Sea,

For this purpose in the end of the yeere 1588, returning from the Journey an amedite Regainst the Spanifo Armado, I caused a Ship to bee builded in the River of Thames, betwiet three pentance ; and and four hundred tunnes, which was finished in that perfection as could be required. For she ominous n me was pleafing to the eye, profitable for flowage, good of fayle, and well conditioned. On the pare, as you all day of her lanching, thre was named, The Repentance,

The Repentance being put in perfection, and riding at Derford, the Queenes Maiestie passing characterissore by her, to her Palace of Greenwich, commanded her Barge-men to rowe round about her, and not to terreviewing her from Post to Stemme, disliked nothing but her Name, and said, that shee would instanced in Christen her a new, and that thenceforth shee should bee called the Daintie; which name shee the Reague, brooked as well for her proportion and grace, as for the many happie Voyages shee made in her Thunderb it. Maiesties services: Haung taken (for her Maiestie) a great Bytten, of fine hundred tunnes 10- and this Referen den with Iron, and other Commodities, under the conduct of Sir Martin Furbufher; A Carack tance, with the bound for the East Indes, under my Fathers charge, and the principal cause of taking the great Happy. Carack, brought to Dartmonth by Sir lobn Bonrow, and the Earle of Camberlands thips, Anno 1592. with others of moment in her other Voyages. To vs, thee neuer brought but coff, trouble, and care.

Hauing made an estimate of the charge of Victuals, Munition, Imprests, Sea-store; and ne- ons for preceffaries for the faid ship; consorting another of an hundred tunnes, which I waited for daily tended Voye-40 from the Straites of Giberalter, with a Pinnace of fixtie tunnes, all mine owne: And for a competent number of men for them; as also of all sorts of merchandiles for trade and trafficke in all places where we should come; I began to wage men, to buy all manner of victuals & promitions, and to lade her with them, and with all forts of commodities (which I could call to minde) fitting; and dispatched order to my servant in Plimonth, to put in a readinesse my Pinnace; as allo to take up certaine prouisions, which are better cheape in these parts then in London, as terpromided Beefe, Porke, Bisket, and Sider. The eight of Aprill, 1593. I caused the Pilot to set sayle from at Pimonto. Black-wall, and to vaile downeto Gramef-end, whither that night I purposed to come. And for then at Lendor that shee was very deepe loden, and her Ports open, the water beganne to enter in at them; Note. which no bodie having regard vnto, thinking themselves, safe in the River, it augmented in such Danger of nanner, as the weight of the water began to prefle downe the fide, more then the winde : At length when it was feene and the sheete showne, she could hardly be brought vpright. But God was pleafed, that with the diligence and trauell of the Companie, shee was freed of that danger: which may be a gentle warning to all fuch as take charge of shipping, euen before they fet fayle, either in Ruer or Harbour, or other pare, to have an eye to their Ports, and to fee those thut and calket, which may cause danger; for auoiding the many mishaps, which daily chance for the neglect thereof, and have beene most lamentable spectacles and examples vito vs : Experiments in the Great Harrie, Admirall of England, which was over-fet and funke at Portfmouth with her Captaine, Carem, and the most part of his companie drowned in a goodly Summers day, with a little flaw of winde; for that her Ports were all open, and making a small 60 hele, by them entred their defruction; where if they had beene shut, no winde could have hurt her, especially in that place. In the River of Thames, Master Thomas Candolb had a small thup over-fet through the fame negligence. And one of the Fleet of Sir Francis Drake, in Santo Domingo Harbour, turned her keele vpward likewife, vpon the same occasion; with many others. which we never have knowledge of.

Prouisionship

in lanuarie

Comming neere the South fore-land, the winde began to vere to the South-east and by South fo as we could not double the point of the Land, and being close aboord the shoare, and putting our thip to flay, what with the chapping Sea, and what with the Tide vpon the Bowe, the mill flaving, and put vs in some danger, before we could flat about; therefore for doubling the Point of any Land better iseuer a fhort boord, then to put all in perill.

Being cleere of the race of Poreland, the winde began to fuffle with fogge and milling raine and forced vs to a fhort fayle, which continued with vs three dayes; the winde neuer vering one point, nor the foggetuffering vs to fee the Coaft. The third day in the fogge, we met with a Barke of Dartmouth, which came from Rochell, and demanding of them, if they had made any land, answered, that they had onely seene the Edie flone that morning, which lieth thwart of In the Sound of Plimonth, and that Dartmonth (as they thought) bare off vs North North-eaftwhich fremed frange vnto vs; for we made account that wee were thwart of Exmouth; with in two houres after, the weather beganne to cleere vp, and wee found our felues thwart of the Berry, and might fee the small Barque bearing into Torbay, having over-shot her Port; which errour often happeneth to those that make the land in foggie weather, and vie not good diligence by found, by lying off the land, and other circumstances, to learch the truth; and is cause of the loffe of many a fhip, and the fweete lives of multitudes of men. That evening, wee anchored in the range of Darsmouth, till the floud was fpent; and the ebbe come, wee fet favle againe. And the next morning early, being the fixe and twentieth of Aprill, we harboured our felues in Plimonth.

Parts requifite in a good

1268

And in this occasion, I found by experience, that one of the principall parts required in a Mariner , that frequenteth our coaftes of England , is to cast his Tides , and to knowe how they jet from point to point, with the difference of those in the Channell from those of

Abules of fome Sea-faring men-

After the hurts by a cruell forme (in which the Pinnace was funke, and the Dainties Mafe cut over-hoord) repaired. I beganne to gather my companie aboord, which occupied my good friends, and the luftices of the Towne two dayes, and forced vs to fearch all lodgings. Tauems and Ale-houses. (For some would ever bee taking their leave and never depart :) some drinkt themselves so drunke, that except they were carried aboord, they of themselves were not able to goe one fleppe : others knowing the necessicie of the time, faigned themselves ficke ; others to bee indebted to their Holts, and forced mee to ransome them; one his Cheft; another, his Sword : another, his Shirts ; another, his Carde and Inftroments for Sea : And others, to benefit themselves of the Imprett given them, absorbed themselves; making a lewd living in deceiving all , whole money they could lay hold of : which is a frandall too rife among tour Sea-men; by it they committing three great offences. First, Robberie of the goods of another person : Secondly, Breach of their tasth and promite: Thirdly, Hinderance (with leffe of time) vnto the Voyage; all being a common injurie to the owners, victuallers, and companie; which many times bath beene an vtter overthrow, and vindoing to all in generall. An abuse in our Commonwealth necessarily to be reformed.

Mafter Thomas

Mafter George

Note.

He addes another remedie in taking away impr fts. The confequence of In.

Mafter Thomas Cardish in his last Voyage, in the Sound of Plimonth, being readie to set # fayle, complained vinto mee, that perfors which had abiented themselves in Imprests, had coft him about a thousand and five hundred pounds: These Varlets within a few dayes after his departure, I faw walking the streetes of Plimouth, whom the Iustice had before fought for with great diligence, and without punishment. And therefore it is no wonder that others presume to doe the like, Impunitas peccandi illecebra. The like complaint made Master George Remond: and in what fort they dealt with mee, is notorious, and wasfuch, that if I had not beent provident, to have had a third part more of men, then I had need of, I had beene forced to got to the Sea vomanned; or to give over my Voyage. And many of my companie, at Sea vaunted how they had confened the Earle of Cumberland, Master Candish, Master Reymond, and others, tome of fine poundes, some of tenne, some of more, and some of lesse. And truely, I thinke, to my Voyage prospered the worse, for theirs and other lew I persons companie, which were in my ship: which, I thinke, might be redressed by some extraordinarie, seuere, and present luflice to bee executed on the offenders by the Iustice in that place, where they should bee found

The greater part of my companie gathered aboord, I fet fayle the twelfth of Iune, 1993. I cannot but aduite all fuch, as shall have charge committed vnto them, ever before they depart out of the Port, to give vnto their whole Fleet not directions for civill government, but also where, when, and how to meete, if they should chance to lose companie, and the signes how to knowe one another afarre off, with other points and circumstances, as the occasions shall minister matter different, at the different of the wife Commander, by publication of that which is good and necessarie for the guide of his Fleet and people; but all secret instructions, to give them sealed, 6) and not to be opened, but comming to a place appointed.

Lanching out into the channell, the winde being at East and by South, and east South-east, which blowing hard, and a floud in hand, caused a chapping Sea, and my Vice-admirall bearing a good fayle made fome water, and shooting off a Peece of Ordnance, I edged towards her, to knowe the cause; who answered me, that they had sprung a great leake, and that of force they must returne into the Sound, which seeing to be necessarie, I cast about, where anchoring and going aboord, prefently found, that betwixt winds and water, the Calkers had left a feame vn. Falle calking. calked, which being filled up with Pitch onely, the Sea labouring that out, had beene fufficient to haue finke her in short space, if it had not beene discouered in time.

And for more securitie, I hold it for a good custome vied in some parts, in making an end of For preuents calking and pitching the ship, the next tide to fill her with water, which will vindoubtedly dif- on thereof. couer the defect, for no pitcht place without calking, can fuffer the force and peaze of the water. In neglect whereof, I have feene great damage and danger to enfue. The Arke Royall of his Example. See 10 Majelties, may ferue for an example: which put all in danger at her first going to the Sea , by a Caparrings haft

Maieftes, may terue for an example: which put at in danger at her integoring to the sea, by a Voyag: a nerivuell, hole left open in the poft, and couered onely with Pitch. In this point no man can be which the too circums pect, for it is the securitie of ship, men, and goods.

This being remedied, I fet fayle in the morning, and ranne South-west, till wee were cleare of was of endan-Vilbent; and then South South-west, till wee were some hundred leagues off, where wee met gered thereby, with a great Hulke, of some fine or fixe hundred tunnes, well appointed, the which my companie, (as is natural to all Mariners) prefently would make a prize, and loden with Spaniards goods, Aduice for and without speaking to her, wished that the Gunner might shoot at her, to cause her to amain, shooting at Which is a bad custome received and vied of many ignorant persons, presently to gunne at all Sea, whatforeer they discouer, before they speake with them; being contrarie to all discipline, and 30 many times is the caule of diffention betwint friends, and the breach of Amitie betwint Princes; Two English the death of many, and fometimes losse of ships and all, making many obstinate, if not desperate. In the beautiful the death of many, and fometimes losse of ships and all, making many obstinate, if not desperate. Comming within the hayling of the Hulke, we demanded whence the was? whither the was wronged tach bound? and what her loding ? Shee answered, that she was of Demmarke comming from Spame, either by misloden with Salt: we willed her to thinke her Top-fayles, which fhee did, and shewed vs her Chare taking. ter-parties, and Bils of loding, and then faluted vs, as is the manner of the Sea, and fo departed.

Wee directed our course to the Maderas. The Madera Ilands are two: the great, callen La The Madera Madera, and the other Porto Santo; of great fertilitie, and rich in Sugar, Conferues, Wine, and Hands. fweet Wood, whereof they take their name. Other commodities they yeeld, but thefe are the principall. The chiefe Towne and Port is on the Souther fide of the Madera, well fortified : they are subject to the Kingdome of Portugal; the Inhabitants and Garrison all Portugals.

The third of Julie, wee past along the llands of Canaria, which have the name of a King- Canarie Hands. dome, and containe thefe feuen Hands, Grand Canaria, Tenerifa, Palma, Gomera, Lancerota Fortementura, and Fierro, Thefe Hands have abundance of Wine, Sugar, Conferues, Orcall Pitch. Iron, and other commodities, and store of Cattell and Corne, but that a certaine Worme. called Gorgofbo, breedeth in it, which eateth out the fubitance, leaving the huske in manner whole. Goreefbo. The head Hand, where the Inflice, which they call Andiencia, is relident : and whither all finits have their appellation, and finall fentence, is the Grand Canaria, although the Tenerifa is held for the better and richer Hand, and to have the best Sugar : and the Wine of the Palma is reputed for the best. The Pitch of these Hands melteth not with the Sinne, and therefore is proper 40 for the higher workes of shipping. Betwix: Fortenentura and Laneerota is a goodly Sound, fit for a meeting place for any Fleet. Where is good anchoring, and abundance of many forts of Fish. There is water to be had in most of these Ilands, but with great vigilance. For the naturals of them are venturous and hardie, and many times clime vp and downe the steepe Rockes and broken Hills, which feeme impossible, which I would hardly have beleeved, had I not feene it. and that with the greatest arte and agilitie that may bee: Their Armes for the most part, are Lances of nine or ten foot, with a head of a foot and halfe long, like vnto Boare-speares, faue The defector that the head is somewhat more broad.

Two things are famous in these Blands, the Pike of Tenerifa, which is the highest Land in my and the Pike, indgement that I have feene, and men of credite have told they have feene it more them fortie Of a Tree in leagues off. It is like vnto a Sugar loafe, and continually coursed with Snowe, and placed in the Fierro. One 50 middest of a goodly Valley, most fertile, and temperate round about it. Out of which, going for, now dwelvp the pike, the cold is fo great, that it is vnfufferable, and going downe to the Townes or the ling in Hol-Iland, the heat feemeth most extreme, till they approch neere the coast. The other is a tree in the borde, told me

Iland Fierro, which some write & affirme, with the dropping of his leaves, to give water for the that A. 1618. in this lland, and seene this Tree, which he thus described; It is as big as an Oake of middle size, the barke white like Ha dbeame; fixe or feuen yards high, with ragged boughs; the leafe like that of the Bay, white on the bottome, and greene on the other fide. It beareth neither fruit nor flower. It is festuate in the decliuitie of a Hill; in the day it is withered, dropping in the night (a cloude hanging thereon) yeelding water sufficient for the whole Iland; which containeth 8000, soules, and above 100000, beafts, Camels, Mules, Goats, &c. It falls into a Pond made of bricke, floored with flones very thight, by pipes of Lea 1 conneighed from the Tree to it, and thence divided into fenerall Ponds through all the Hand. They which dwell up-hill fetch it 60 in barrels. They water therewith also their Corne-grounds. The Pond holds 20000, tuns, and is filled in a night. He added a report (perhaps deutled to keepe off buffe fingers, or with buffe tongues to militake wonders) that the Maores having them that Hand from the Chriftians, went to fell that Tree, but each blowe recoyled on the firiker. Hee affirmed also that hee had beene up the Pike of Teneriff, two miles. He faith the South fide is healthfull, the North very Aguith, and fubicet to Calentures; and the fullenance of the whole Iland, which I have not feene, although I have beene on fhoare on the Iland: but those which have feene it, have recounted this mysterie differently to that which is written, in this manner : That this Tree is placed in the bottome of a Valley ever flourishing with broad leases, and that round about it are a multitude of goodly high Pines, which ouerstop it, and as it feemeth, were planted by the Diuine prouidence, to preferue it from Sunne and winde. Out of this Valley ordinarily rife every day, great vapours and exhalations, which by reafon that the Sanne is hindered to worke his operation, with the height of the Mountaine towards the South-east, convert themselves into moisture, and so bedew all the trees of the Valley, and from those which ouer-top this Tree, drops downe the dew vpon his leaves, and to from his leaves into a round Well of stone, which the Naturals of the Land have made to receive the Io water; of which the people and cattell haue great reliefe : but fometimes it raineth and then the Inhabitants doe referue water for many dayes to come in their Ciffernes and Tynaxes, which is that they drinke of, and wherewith they principally sustaine themselves.

Inhabitants on one fide looke luftie, on the other withered.

The Citie of the Grand Canaria, and chiefe Port is on the West side of the Iland; the head Towns and Port of Tenerifa, is towards the South part, and the Port and Towns of the Palma and Gomera, on the East fide. In Gomera, some three leagues Southward from the Towne, is a great River of water, but all these Ilands are perilous to land in, for the siege caused by the Occan Sea, which alwaies is forcible, and requireth great circum pection; who foeuer hath not vegent cause, is either to goe to the Eastwards, or to the Westwards of all these Ilana's, as well to avoide the calmes, which hinder sometimes eight or ten dayes fayling, as the contagion which 26 their diffemperature is wont to cause, and with it to breede Calenturas, which wee call burning The first disco- Feners. Their Ilands are faid to be first discouered by a Frenchman, called John de Betancourt, about uerers of these the veere 1405. They are now a Kingdome subject to Spaine.

Tlan.is Exercises vp-

1368

Being cleare of the llands, and feeing my felfe path hope of returning backe, without fome enthe Sou.h. extraordinarie accident, I began to fet order in my Companie and victuals. And for that, to the wards of the Southwards of the Canaries, is for the most part an idle Natigation, I denited to keepe my people occupied, as well to continue them in health (for that too much eafe in hot Countries is neither profitable nor healthful) as also to divert them from remembrance of their home; & from play, which breedeth many inconveniences, and other bad thoughts and workes which idlenesse is cause of; and so shifting my companie, as the custome is, into Starboord and Larboord men, the 20 halte to watch and worke whileft the others flept, and take reft : I limited the three dayes of the weeke, which appertained to each, to be employed in this manner : the one for the vie and cleanling of their Armes, the other for roomaging, making of Sayles, Nettings, Decking, and detenfes of our Ships; and the third, for cleanling their bodies, mending and making their apparell, and necessaries, which though it came to be practifed but once infeuen dayes, for that the Sabboth is euer to be referred for God alone, with the ordinarie obligation which each person had befides, was many times of force to be omitted; and thus wee directed our course betwixt the Hands of Cape de Verde and the Maine. These Hands are held to bee seitnate in one of the most vahealthiest Climates of the world, and therefore it is wisedome to shunne the fight of oane de Verde.

The vowholfomnaffe thereof.

The heare. of Fouers is the dowes ry night: 10 that the execeding moiflure and vn-

them, how much more to make abode in them? In two times that I have beene in them, either cost vs the one halfe of our people, with Fe-. uers and Fluxes of fundrie kindes; fome shaking, some burning, some partaking of both; some peffelt with frensie, others with flouth, and in one of them it cost mee fixe moneths ticknesse, with no small hazard of life: which I attribute to the distemperature of the aire, for being within fourteene degrees of the Equinoctrall Line, the Sunne hath great force all the yeere, and the more for that often they passe, two, three, and foure yeeres without raine; and many times the earth burneth in that manner as a man well shod, cannot indure to goe where the Sunne shi-Ano ber cause neth. With which extreme heate the bodie fatigated, greedily desireth refreshing, and longeth for the comming of the Breze, which is the North-east winde, that seldome fayleth in the afternoone at foure of the clocke, or fooner: which comming cold and fresh, and finding the pores 50 which fall cue- of the bodie open, and (for the most part) naked, penetrateth the very bones, and so causeth fudden diftemperature, and fundrie manners of ficknesse, as the Subjects are divers, whereupon they worke. Departing out of the Calmes of the Ilands, and comming into the fresh Breze, it cauleth the like, and I have seene within two dayes, after that wee have partaked of the fresh aire, of two thousand men aboue an hundred and fiftie haue beene crazed in their health. The Inhabitants of these Ilands vie a remedie for this, which at my first being amongit them, feemed vito mee ridiculous, but fince, time and experience hath taught to bee grounded vpon reason. And is, that vpon their heads they weare a Night-cap, vpon it a Moutero, and a Hat ouer that, and on their bodies a fute of thicke Cloth, and youn it a Gowne, furr'd or lined with Cotton, or Bayes, to defend them from the heate in that manner, as the In-60 habitants of cold Countries, to guard themselves from the extremitie of the cold. Which doubtleffe, is the best diligence that any man can vie, and whosoener proueth it, shall finde himselfe leffe annoyed with the heate, then if he were thinly cloatned, for that where the coldaire commeth, it pierceth not fo fubtilly.

The Moone also in this climate, as in the coast of Gnynne, and in all hoe Countries, hath forci-The influence ble operation in the body of man; and therefore, as the Plannet, most prejudiciall to his health, is of the Moore to be hunned; as also not to sleepe in the open Ayre, or with any Scuttle or Window open, in hot Counwhereby the one or the other may enter to burt. For a person of credit told me, that one night tries. in a River of Gaynne, leaving his window open in the fide of his Cabin, the Moone thining woon his shoulder, left him with such an extraordinary paine, and furious burning in it, as in about twenty houres, he was like to run mad; but in fine, with force of Medicines and cures, after long corment he was exted.

CHAP.S. S. I. Saint lago described with the Fraites, and Trees thereof.

Of these Ilands are two pyles: the one of them lyeth out of the way of Trade, more Wester-10 ly, and fo little frequented : the other lyeth fome fourescore leagues from the Maine, and containeth fixe in number, to wit, Saint lago, Fuego, Mayo, Bonavifto, Sal, and Brano. They are belonging to the Kingdome of Portugall, and inhabited by people of that Nation, and are of great trade, by reason of the neighbourhood they have with Gayane and Bynne: but the principall is, the buying and felling of Negros. They have store of Sugar, Sale, Rice, Cotten-wooll, and Cottoncloth, Ambergreece, Cyuit, Olyphants teeth, Brimstone, Pummy Rone, Spunge, and some Gold. but little, and that from the mavne.

Saint lago is the head lland, and hath one Citie and two townes, with their Ports. The Citie Saint lago called Saint Iago, whereof the Iland hath his name, hath a Garrison and two Forts, stituated in the bottome of a pleafant Valley, with a running streame of water passing through the middest 20 of it, whether the reft of the Ilands come for Luftice, being the feate of the Audiencia, with his Bishop. The other Townes are Plays, some three leagues to the Eastwards of Saine I aco. placed on high, with a goodly Bay, whereof it hath his name : and Saint Deminge, a small Towne within the Land. They are on the Souther part of the Hand, and have beene facked fundry times in Anno 1 (82, by Manuel Serades, a Portugall, with a Fleete of French-men: in Anno 1 189, they Sackedby Me. were both burnt to the ground by the English, Sir Francis Drake being Generall: and in Anno nuel Serates Sir 1 196. Saint lage was taken, and lacked by the English, Six Anthony Sherley being Generall. The Francis Dra fecond Hand is Fuego, fo called, for that day and night there burneth in it a Unican, whole flames and Sir daibe. in the night are seene twentie leagues off in the Sea. It is by nature fortified in that fort, as but my sberley. by one way is any accesse or entrance into it, and there cannot goe vp aboue two men a brett. Fleet hill.

The Bread which they spend in these slands, is brought from Portugal and Spaine, saving that which they make of Rice or of Mayes, which we call Gypune wheate. The best watering is in the lie of Brass, on the welt part of the Hand, where is a great River, but fouls Anchoring, as is Brass, good in all these Hands, for the most part. The fruits are few, burshoftantiall, as Palmitos, Plantanos, watering. Potatos, and Coco Nuts.

The Palmito is like to the Date tree, and as I thinke a kinde of it, but wilde. In all parts of The Palmino Afrique and America they are found, and in some parts of Europe, and in divers parts different, In Afrique, and in the West Indies they are small, that a man may cut them with a knife, and the leffer the better. But in Brafil they are fo great, that with difficulty a man can fell them with an Axe, and the greater the better sone foote within the top is profitable, the reft is of no value. 40 and that which is to be eaten is the pith, which in some is better, in some worse,

The Plantane is a tree found in most pares of Afrique and America, of which two leaves are The Plantan fufficient to couera man from top to toe: It beareth fruite but once, and then drieth away, and great leanes, out of his root sprouteth vp others new. In the top of the tree is his fruit, which groweth in a great bunch, in the forme and falling of puddings, in fome more, in fome leffe. I have feene in one bunch aboue foure hundred Plantans, which have weighed aboue fourescore pound waight. They are of divers proportions, some great, some leffer, some round, some square, some triangle, most ordinarily of a span long, with a thicke skinne that peeleth eatily from the meate; which is either white or yellow, and very tender like Butter; but no conferue is better, nor of a more pleasing taste. For I never have seene any man, to whom they have bred mishike or done hure with 50 eating much of them, as of other fruites. The best are those which ripen naturally on the tree. but in most parts they cut them off in branches, and hang them vp in their houses, and eate them as they ripe. For the Birds and Vermine presently in rapping on the tree, are feeding on them, The best that I have seene are in Brafit, in an Iland called Placensia, which are small and round, Flacensia and greene when they are ripe : whereas the others in ripening become yellow. Those of the West Indies and Guymneare great, and one of them sufficient to satisfie a man : the onely fattle they have is, that they are windie. In some places they eate them instead of bread, as in Passa. ma, and other parts of Tierra firme. They grow and prosper best when their rootes are ener conered with water; they are excellent in Conferue, and good fodden in different manners, and dried on the tree not inferior to Suckets. The Coco nut is a fruit of the fashion of a Hafell-nut, but that it is as bigge : san ordinary The Cocos, & Bowle, and some are greater. It hath two shels, the vetermost framed (as it were) of a multis their kindels, tude of threds, one laid upon another, with a greene skin ouer-lapping them, which is foft and thicke : the innermoft is like to the shell of a Hafell-nut in all porportion, fauing that it is greater and thicker, and fome more blacker. In the top of it is the forme of a Munkies face, with two eyes, his note and a mouth. It containeth in it both meate and drinke, the meate white as milke, and like to that of the kernell of a Nut, and as good as Almonds blancht, and of great quantity: The water is cleare, as of the Fountaine, and pleafing in taite, and somewhat answereththat of the water diffilled of Milke. Some fay it hath a fingular property in nature, for conferuing the fmoothnesse of the skin; and therefore in Spaine and Portugall, the curious Dames doe ordinarily wall their faces and necks with it. If the holes of the shell be kept close, they keene foure or fix moneths good and more; but if it be opened, and the water kept in the shell in few dates it turneth to Vinegar. They grow upon high Trees, which have no boughes, onely in the top they have a great cap of leaves, and under them groweth the fruite upon certaine twigges: and some affirme that they beare not fruite before they be aboue forcy yeares old. They are in all 10 things like to the Palme trees, and grow in many parts of Afia, Afrique and America. The fiels of thele nuts are much efteemed for drinking cups, and much cost and labour is bestowed vpon them in caruing, grauing and garnishing them, with Siluer, Gold, and precious stones.

In the Kingdome of Chile and in Brafil, is another kinde of thefe, which they call Coquillos. as we may interpret (little Cocos) and are as bigge as Wal-nuts, but round and smooth, and grow in great clusters : the trees in forme are all one, and the meate m the nut better, but they have Another kinde of great Cocos groweth in the Ander of Para, which have not the delicate meate nor drinke, which the others have, but within are full of Almonds, which are placed as the graines in the Pomegranner, being three times bigger then those of Europe, and are much like 20 them in tafte.

Munkeyes.

In these llands are Cyuet-Cats, which are also found in parts of Asa, and Afrique; esteemed for the Civet they yeelde, and carry about them in a cod in their hinder parts, which is taken from them by force. In them also are flore of Monkies, and the best proportioned that I have feene and Parrots, but of colour different to those of the West Indies; for they are of a rulet or gray colour and great speakers,

ð. I I.

Considerations of Currents: the Scorbute: fire in Ships; Fishes which attend them: Sea-hawking and hunting : their comming to Brafil and observations thereof.

Change of

a faire and large winde we continued our course, till we came within fine degrees of the Equinoctial line, where the winde tooke vs contrary by the South-weit, about the twentieth of July, but a faire gale of winde and a smooth Sea, so that wee might beare all a * tawt : and to advantage our felues what we might, we stood to rangue, a sea-terme, fig.ftiffe the Eastwards, being able to lye South east and by South. The next day about nine of the clock, 40 my company being gathered together to ferue God, which we accustomed to doe every morning and evening, it feemed voto me that the colour of the Sea was different to that of the daies past. evening praier and which is ordinarily where is deepe water; and so called the Captaine and Master of my Ship, I told them that to my feeming the water was become very whitish, and that it made shew of Sholde water. Whereunto they made answere, that all the lines in our Ships could not fetch grand : for we could not be leffe then threefcore and ten leagues off the Coast, which all that kept reckoning in the Ship agreed vpon, and my felfe was of the fame opinion. And fo we applied our felues to ferue God, but all the time that the feruice endured, my heart could not be at reft, and still me thought the water began to waxe whiter and whiter. Our prayers ended, I commanded aleade and a line to be brought, and having the lead in foureteene fathoms wee had 50 ground, which put vs all into a maze, and fending men into the top, prefently discourred the land of Gapna, tome five leagues from vs, very low Land, I commanded a Pecce to be shot, and Etrorin reck. lay by the lee, till my other Ships came vp. Which hailing vs, we demanded of them how farre shey found themselves off the land; who answered, some threescore and ten, or fourescore leagues : when we told them we had founded, and found but fourereene fathorns, and that we were in fight of Land, they began to wonder; But having confulted what was best to be done, I caufed my Shallop to be manned, which I towed at the Scene of my Shippe continually, and fent her and my Pinnace a head to found, and followed them with an easie fayle, till we came in seuen and fix fathome water, and some two leagues from the shore anchored, in hope by the Sea, or by the Land to finde some refreshing. The Sea wee found to be barren of fish , and my Boates 63 could not discover any landing place, though a whole day they had rowed along it the coast, with great defire to fet foote on shore, for that the sedge was exceeding great and dangerous. Which experienced, we fet faile, notwithstanding the contrariety of the winde, sometimes standing to the West-wards, sometimes to the East-wards, according to the shifting of the winde.

Here is to be noted, that the errour which we fell into in our accompts, was fuch as all men fall into Note. where are currents that fet East or West, and are not known for that there is no certain rule yet practifed for small of the longunde, as there is of the latitude, though some cursons and experimented of our Nation. with whom I have had conference about this point, have showed me two or three manner of wage; how to bnowit. This, some yeares before was the loffe of the Edward Cotton, bound for the coast of Brail, The left of which taken with the winde contrarie neere the line, flanding to the East-wards, and making accompt to Edward outen, be liftie or fixtic leagues off the coaft, with all her failes standing, came suddenly a ground upon the sholes of Madrebomba; and To was caft away.

CHAP. S. S. 2. Senerall currents considered. The cause, fignes, & effects of the Scuruey, 1272

This currant from the line Equinottial, to twentie degrees Northerly, bath great force, and fetteth 10 next of any thing East, directly upon the shore, which we found by this meanes: Standing to the Westwards the winde Southerly, when we lay with our Ships head Weft and by South, we gained in our height more then if we had made our way good West South-west, for that the currant tooke us under the bow : but lying well or West & by North, we loft more in twelne houres then the other way we could get in foure and twentie. By which plainty we fam, that the current did fet East next of any thing. Whether this currant runneth over one way, or doth alter, and how, we could by no meanes understand, but trail of time and observation will discouer this, as it bath done of many others in fundry Seas.

The current that setteth betwirt New-sound-land and Spaine, runneth also East and West, and New found land long time deceined many, and made some to count the way longer and others shorter according as the pas-sage was speedie or slow, not knowing that the surther ance or bunderance of the currant was cause of the 20 feeding or flowing of the way. And in Sea Cards I have seene difference of above thirtie leagues between the Iland Tercera and the Maine. And others have recounted unto me that comming from the Invies. and looking out for the Hands of Azores, they have had fight of Spaine. And Jome have looked out for Spaine, and have disconcred the I lands. The selfe same currant is in the Levant Sea, but runneth trade Levent Sea. betwixt the Maines, and changeable sometimes to the Eastwards, sometimes to the West-wards. In Bra- Brail and fil and the South Sea, the currant likewife is changeable, but it runneth ener along it the Coaff, accom. South Sea, panying the winde : and it is an infallible rule, that twelve or twentie four boures (before the winde alters) The currant begins to change.

In the West Indies onely the current runneth continually one way, and setteth along it the coast from the Equinoct sall line towards the North. No man bath yet found that thefe currants keepe any certaine Currents of time or ranne formany dayes or moneths, one way as another, as doth the courfe of abbing and flowing, well imiller force busine in all Seat : onely neere the shoare they bane small force; partly, because of the resum which the coast causeth, and partly for the obbing and flowing, which more or leffe is generall in most Seas.

When the currant runneth North or South, it is easily discourted by augmenting or diminishing the beight, but how to know the setting of the current from East to West in the maine Seas, is difficult, and as yet I have not knowne any man, or read any Author, that bath prescribed any certaine meane or way to discours it. But experience teacheth, that in the maine Sen, for the most part it is variable; and therefore best and fafest rule to prenent the danger (which the uncertaintie and ighterance hereof may cause) is emefull and continuall watch by day and night, and upon the East and West course ener to be before the Ship and to use the meanes possible to know the errour, by the rules which new Authors may teach: AO beating off and on, sometimes to the Westwards, sometimes to the Eastwards, with a fairegale of winde.

Being betwixt three and foure degrees of the Equinoctial line, my Company within a few daies began to fall ficke, of a difeafe which Sea-men are wont to call the Scurule : and feemeth to Adicourfe of be a kinde of dropsie, and raigneth most in this climate of any that I have heard or read of in the securety, or secondary world; though in all Seas it is wont to helpe and increase the milerie of man; it possesses all those of which it taketh hold, with a loathforme floathfulneffe, that even to cate they would be content to change with fleepe and roft, which is the most pernicious enemie in this ficknesse that is knowne. It bringeth with it a great defire to drinke, and canfeth a generall swelling of all parts of the body, especially of the legges and gummes, and many times the teeth fall out of the lawes without paine. The fignes to know this difease in the beginning are divers, by the The fignes fo fwelling of the gummes, by denting of the fielh of the legges with a mans finger, the pit remaining without filling vp in a good (pace ; others show it with their latineste, others complaine of the cricke of the backe, &c. all which, are for the most part, certaine tokens of infection. The cause is thought to be the floracks feeblenesse, by change of aire in vntemperate climates, of diet in falt meates, boiled also in Salt water and corrupted fometimes; the want of exercise also either in persons or elements, as in calmes. And were it not for the mounting of the Sea by the force of windes, tydes, and corrents, it would corresp all the world. The experience I faw in Anne 1590. lying mita a Florte of ber Maissier Ships about the Ilands of the Azores almost six moneths, the greatest part Strange est. of the time we were becalmed: with which all the Sea became soreplenshed with search sorting est. of calmes. and former of Serpents, Adders, and Snakes, as feemed wonderfull: forme greene, some blacke, some yel-

6) low, some white, some of diners colours and many of them had tife, and some there were a yard and haife, and two yards long; which had I not scene, I could hardly have believed. And bereof are witnesses all the Companies of the Shippes which were then present; so that hardly a man could draw a Bucket of water cleere of some corruption. In which V ryage, towards the end thereof many of enery Ship (fauing of the Nonperell, which was under my charge, and had onely one man fishe in all the Voyage) fell ficke of this difease, and began to die apace, but that the speedie passage into our Countrie was remody to the crazed, and a prefernative for those that were not touched.

By Dick

The best preuention for this descale (in my indgement) is to keepe sleane the Shippe, to besprinkle ber ordinarily with Vinegar, or to burne Tarre, and fome fweet favours, to feede upon as few fall Meatin the bot Country as may be, and effecially to frum all kindes of falt Fift, and to referue them for the sold Climates, and not to dreffe any meate with falt water, nor to suffer the companie to mash their Shirts nor Cleat bes in it, nor to fleepe in their Cleathes when they are wet. For this canfe it is necessarily required.

By thift.

that promision be made of apparell for the Company, that they may have wherewith to shift themselves. Being a common calamitie among ft the ordinary fort of Mariners, to found their thrift on the bore and to bring to Sea no more Cloathes then they have backes; for the body of man is not refreshed with any 10 thing more, then with hifting cleane Cleathes : a great prefermatine of health in hos Countries. The fecond Antidote is, to keepe the company occupied in some bodily exercise of worke, of agilitie, of paf-times, of dancing, of vie of Armes; thefe below much to bamift this infirmitie. Thirdly, In the mer-By early eating ming at difcharge of the watch, to give enery man a bit of bread, and a draught of drinke, either Berre, or Wine mingled with water (at the least, the one balfe) or a quantitie mingled with Beere , that the poores of the bodie may be full, when the vapours of the Sea ascendup. The morning draught should bee ener of the best, and choisest of that in the ship, Pure wine I hold to be more hurtfull, then the other is profitable. In this, others will be of a contrary opinion, but I thinke partiall. If not, then leave I the remedies thereof to those Phisicions and Surgeons who have experience. And I wish that some learned man would write of it, for it is the plague of the Sea, and the spoyle of Mariners; doubilesse, it would bet 20 a Worke worthy of a worthy man, and most beneficiall for our Countrie, for in twentie yeares (fince ! have vfed the Sea) I dare take upon me, to give account of ten thousand men consumed with this disease.

By labour.

Ten thouland English dead of the Scuruic in 10, yeeres, By fowre O. ranges and Lemmons. By Doctor Stenens Water. By Oyle of the Land.

That which I have seene most fruitfull for this sicknesse, is sourc Oranges and Lemmons, and a water which amongst others (for my particular provision) I carried to the Sea, called Dollor Stevens water. of which, for that his vertue was not then well knowne vuto me, I carried but little, and it took end quick. ly, but caue bealth to those that wied it. The Oyle of Vitry is beneficiall for this disease; taking two drops of it, and mingled in a draught of water, with a little Sugar. It taketh away the thirst, and beloth to clenfe and comfort the stomacke: But the principall of all is the Ayre of the Land, for the Sea is mass-rall for Fishes, and the Land for men. And the oftner a man can have his people to Land, (not hinds: ring bis Voyage) the better it is, and the profitablest course that be can take to refresh them. Hauing stood to the Westwards some hundred leagues and more, the winde continuing with vs contrary, and the fickneffe to feruent, that every day there died more or leffe; my company in generall began to be difmayed, and to defire to returne homewards, which I hindered by good reasons and perswasions: As, that to the West Indies, we had not about eight hundred seasues. to the Ilands of Azeres little leffe, and before wee come to the Ilands of Cape de Verde, that wee should meete with the Breze; for every night we might see the reach goe contrary to the winde which we sayled by; verifying the old Prouerbe among it Mariners; That hee hath need of a long Mast, that will fayle by the Reach; and that the necreft Land and speediest refreshing wee could looke for, was the Coast of Brasill cre.

The company ficke and difmayed. Prouerbe.

As wee approached neerer and neerer the Coast of Brafill , the winde beganne to vers to to the Eastwardes, and about the middle of October, to bee large and good for vs; and about the eighteenth of October, wee were thwart of Cape Saint Angultine, which lieth in fixe degrees to the Southwards of the Line : and the one and twentieth in the height of Farnambuca, but some fourescore leagues from the Coast, the twentie foure, in the height of Bana de Todes Santos, neere the end of October, betwixt feuenteene and eighteene degrees, wee were in fixteene fathomes, founding of the great Scoles, which lye along ft the Coatt, betwire the Bay of Todos Santos, and the Port of Santos alias nueftra fenora de Vitoria; which are very perillous, Tedos Santos. De Vitoria.

But the dinine Providence hath ordained great flockes of small Birds (like Snites) to live your the Rockes, and broken lands of these Sholes, which are met with ordinarily twentie leagues before a man come in danger of them.

Dangers of fire. . By hearing of

It shall not be amisse here to recount the Accidents which befell vs during this contrary wind, and the curiofities to be observed in all this time. Day and night we had continually a faire gale of wind, and a fmooth Sea, without any alteration; one day the Carpenters having Calked the Decke of our ship, which the Sunne with his extreame heate had opened, craued license to heate a little Pitch in the Cooke roome : which I would not confent vnto by any meanes; for that my Cooke roomes were under the Decke, knowing the danger; untill the Master undertooke, that no danger should come thereof, But hee recommended the charge to snother, who had a better name, then experience. He suffered the Pitch to rile, and to runne into the fire, which cauted fo furious a flame as amazed him, and forced all to flee his heate; one of my company, with a double paire of Gloues tooke off the Pitch-pot, but the fire forced him to let flip his hold-fast, before 60 he could fet it on the Hearth, and so ouerturned it, and as the Pitch began to runne, so the fire to enlarge it felfe, that in a moment a great part of the ship was on a light fire. I being in my Cabbin, prefently imagined what the matter was, and for all the hafte I could make, before I came, the fire was about the Decke : for remedie whereof, I commanded all my company to cast their Russe Gownes into the Sea, with Ropes fastened vnto them. Thefe I had provided for my peo. ple to watchin, for in many hot Countreyes the nights are fresh and cold; and deuided one Vicofingge Gowne to two men, a Starboord and a Larboord man; fo that hee which watched had euer the Gowne : for they which watched not, were either in their Cabbins, or under the Decke, and fo needed them not. The Gowner being well foaked, enery man that could took one, and affaulted the fire; and although lome were findged, others scalded, and many burned, God was pleased that the fire was quenched, which I thought impossible; and doubtlesse, I never faw my telse in greater penil in all the dayes of my life. Let all men take example by vs, not to fuffer (in any case) Pitch to be heate in the flup, except it be with a flot heate in the fire, which cannot breed danger and 10 to permit fire to be kindled, but vpon meere necessitie; for the inconvenience thereof (is for the Presention. moft part) remedileffe.

CHAP. S. S. 2. Directions for the anoyding of the danger of fire in ships.

Great care is to be had also in cleaning of Wood, in Hooping or Scutling of Cashe; and in any busis - lesis of Lubech. nelle where violence is to be vied with Instruments of Iron, Steele, or Stone; and offecially in ocening of Robick, Blacke Ponder, thefe are not to be vfed, but Mallets of Wood; for many unfebances bappen beyond all expect a. Lim, or. have Powar, rough we been credibly enformed by doners per four, that comming out of the In lies, with Sculing a been burned, time, I have been credibly enformed by doners per four, that comming out of the In lies, with Sculing a been burned. But of water, the water hath taken fire, and flamed up, and put all in hazard! And a Serman of mine facilities of Thomas Creat told me, that in the hip wherein he came out of the Indies, Anno 1600, there happened Caske. the like; and that if with Maniles they had not smoothered the fire, they had beene all burned with a Noic. Pipe of Water, which in Scatting tooke fire. Matter John Hazielocke reported, that in the Arlenall of 20 Venice happened the like, he being present. For mine owns part, I am of opinion, that some waters have By natures of this propertie, and especially such as have their passage by Mines of Brimstone, or other Minerals which waters. (as all men know) gine extraord nary properties unto the waters which runne by them : Or it may be that the water being in Wine Caske, and kept close, may retaine an extraordinary propertie of the Wine, Yea. I have drunk e Fountaine and River waters many times, which have had a favour as that of Brunstone. Three learnes from Bayon in France, I have prooned of a Fountaine that bath this fanour, and is madicinable for many Difeafes. In the South Sea, in a River fome fine leagues from Cape Some Francisco. in one decree and an balfe to the Northwards of the Line, in the Bay of Atacames, is a River of fresh water, which hath the like famour.

We had no small cause to give God thankes, and tooke an occasion hereby, to banish sweating By sweating 30 out of our flips, which among it the common fort of Mariners and Sea-faring men, is too ordinarily abused. So with a generall confent of all our company, it was ordained that in every shippe there should be a Palmer or Ferula, which should be in the keeping of him, who was taken with An excellent an Oath, and that hee who had the Palmer should give to every other that hee tooke swearing order for this in the Palme of the hand a Palmada with it, and the Fernia. And whofeener at the time of Euc- Iwearing, ning or Morning Prayer, was found to have the Palmer, flieuld have three-blower siven him by the Captaine, or Matter, and that he should be still bound to free himselfe by taking another, or Custome feeds elfe to runne in danger of continuing the penaltie; which executed; few dayes reformed the vice which fe-Vice; fo that in three dayes together, was not one Oath heard to be fworne. This brought both were that in three dayes together, was not one Oath heard to be fworne. This brought both were that in three dayes together, was not one Oath heard to be fworne. Ferulaes and Iwearing out of vie.

Ordinarily such this as Nauigate between the Tropickes, are accompanied with three forts pringitionis of fish The Dolphin, which the Spaniards call Dozado: the Bonito, or Spanish Makerill: and the ofduers file: Sharke, alias Tiberune. The Dolphin I hold to be one of the fwifteft fishes in the Sea : He is like and their devato a Breame, but that he is longer and thinner, and his scales very small. Hee is of the colour scription, of the Rain-bow , and his head different to other fifnes; for, from his mouth halfe a loan it gotth The Delphia ftraite vpright, as the head of a Wherry, or the Cut-water of a fhip. He is very good meate if he be in feation, but the best part of him, is his head , which is great. They are some begger, some leffer; the greatest that I have seene, might be some foure foot long. I hold it not without some ground, that the ancient Philotophers write, that they bee enamoured of a man ; for it meeting with thipping, they accompany them till they approach to cold Climates; this I have noted di-SC ners times. For difembarking out of the West Indies, Anno 1583, within three or foredaws afrer, we met a Scole of them, which left vs not till wee came to the Hands of Arores, beese a thousand leagues. At other times I haue noted the like. But fome may fay, that in the Sea are many Scoles of this kind of fish, and how can a man know if they were the same ? Who may be thus facisfied, that every day in the morning, which is the time that they approach neerest the ship, we should see foure, fine, and more, which had (as it were) our eare-mark. one hurt voon the backe; another neere the taile; another about the finnes, which is fufficient proof that they were the same. For if those which had received so bad entertainmene of vs would not forfake vs , much leffe those which wee had not hure; yet that which makes them most in loue with flups and men, are the fcraps and refreshing they gather from them.

The Bonno, or Spanish Macketell, is altogether like vnto a Macketell, but that it is somewhat The Bonno. more growne ; he is reasonable food, but drier then a Mackerell. Of them there are two forts; the one is this which I have described; the other so great, as hardly one man can life him; At such times as we have taken of thefe, one fufficed for a meale for all my company. Thefe from the finne of the taile forwards have voon the chyne feuen imall yellow-hillockes , choic one to another. The Dolphins and Bonitos are taken with certaine Instruments of Iron, which we call Vac. gen, in forme of an Eele-speare, but that the blades are round, and the points like vnto the head of a broad Arrow; thefe are faitned to long itaues of ten or twelve foote long, with Lines tied vnro them, and so shot to the fish, from the Brake-head, the Poope, or other parts of the ship. as occasion is ministred. They are also caught with Hookes and Lines, the Hooke beeing bayted with a red Cloth or with a white Cloth, made into the forme of a fifth, and fowed your The Sharke or Tiberane, is a fish like vnto to those which wee call Dog-fishes, but that hee is far greater. I have feene of them eight or nine foot long; his head is flat and broad, and his mouth in the middle viderneath, as that of the Scate; and he cannot bite of the bare before him, but by to making a halte turne; and then he helpeth himfelfe with his taile, which ferueth him in flead of a Rudder. His skinne is rough (like to the fifth which we call a rough Hound) and Ruffer, with reduith foots, faving that under the belly hee is all white : hee is much hated or Sea-faring men.

The Sharke.

who have a certaine foolish Superfittion with them, and tay that the ship hath seldome good succeffer that is much accompanied with them. It is the most rauenous fish knowne in the Sea : for Albedenouring, he swalloweth all that hee findeth. In the Puch of them hath beene found Hats, Caps, Shooes, Shirts, legges and armes of men, ends of R pes, and many other things; whatfoeuer is hanged by the shipstide he sheereth it, as though it were with a Razor; for he hath three rowes of terth on either fide, as sharpe a, nailes; some say, they are good for Pick-tooths. They spawne not, as the greatest part of fishes doe, but Whelpe, as the Dogge or Wolfe; and for many

Three rowes Whelping.

daves after that she hath whelped every night, and towardes any storme, or any danger which may threaten them burt, the Damme receiveth her Whelpes in her mouth, and preferueth them, till they be able to thift for themfelues. I have feene them go in and out, being more then a foot and haite long; and after taking the Dam, we have found her young ones in her belly. My company tooke many. At the taile of one, they tied a great logge of wood, at another, an emptie Batizia well stopped; one they voked like a Hope; from another, they placked our his eyes, and fo threw them into the Sea. In catching two together, they bound them taile to taile, and so fet them a swimming, another, with his belly flie, and his bowels hanging our which his fellowes would have every one a fnatch at; with other infinite Inventions to entertaine the time, and to avenge themfelves; for that they deprived them of fwimming, and fed on their fielh at being dead : they are taking with Harping Irons, and with great hookes made of purpote, with Swyuels and Chaine safor no Line nor imall Rope can hold them, which they share not assuder.

There doth accompany this fifth, diners little fifthes, which are called Pilats fifthes, and are ever woon his finnes. his head, or his backe and feede of the forage and fuperfluities of his preyes. They are informe of a Trowte, and itreaked like a Mackerell, but that the itreakes are white and blacke, and the blacke greater then the white.

Sea hawking

The manner of Hunting and Hawking representesh that which we reasonable creatures vie, fauing onely in the disposing of the same. For by our industry and abilitie the Hound and Hawke is brought to that obedience, that whatfoeuer they fe ze, is for their Mafter, but here it is otherwife. For the game is for him that feizeth it, The Dolphins and I mitoes are the Hounds, and the 40 Alcatraces the Hawkes, and the flying fithes the game: whole wonderfull making magnifieth the Creator, who for their fafetie, and helpe, hath given them extraordinary manner of finnes, which ferue inflead of wings, like those of the Bat or Rere-mouse; of such a delicate skinne, interlaced with bones fo curioufly, as may well cause admiration in the beholders. They are like vnto Pilchards in colour, and making; fauing that they are somewhat rounder, and (for the most part) bigger. They flee best with a side winde, but longer then their wings bee weate, they cannot suffaine the weight of their bodies; and so the greatest flight that I have feene them make, hath not beene about a quarter of a mile. They commonly goe in Scoles, and ferue for food for the greater fithes, or for the Foules. The Dolphins and Bonises doe continually hunt after them, and the Alcatraces lie foaring in the Aire, to fee when they fpring, or take their 53 flight; and ordinarily, hee that escapeth the mouth of the Dolphin, or Boxito, helping himselte by his wings, falleth pritoner into the hands of the Alcatrace, and helpeth to fill his gorge.

Alcatrace.

The Alcatrace is a Sea-fowle, diff sent to all that I have feene, either on the Land, or in the Sea. His head like vnto the head of a Gull, but his bill like vnto a Snites bill, fomewhat shorter, and in all places alike. He is almost like to a Heronsbam, his legs a good ipanne long, his wings very long, and therpe towards the points, with a long taile like to a Pheafant, but with three of foure feathers onely, and these narrower. He is all blacke, of the colour of a Crow, and of little fleth: for hee is almost all skinne and bones. Hee soareth the highest of any Fowle that I have feene, and I have not heard of any, that have feene them reft in the Sea.

The fight of

Now of the fight betwixt the Whale and his contraries; which are the Sword-fifth and the 60 Thresher, The Sword-fish is not great, but strongly made, and in the top of his chine (as a man may fay) betwire the necke and thoulders, he hath a manner of Sword in fubiliance, like vato 2 bone of foure or five inches broad, and above three foote long, full of prickles of either fide, it is and Thresher. but thinne, for the greatest that I have teene, bath not beene about a ringer thicke. The Thresher is a greater fith, whose taile is very broad and thicke, and very weighty. They fight in this manner: the Sword-fish placeth himselfe under the belly of the Whale, and the Thresher upon the Ryme of the water, and with his tayle thresheth vpon the head of the Whale, till he force him to give way, which the Sword-fish perceiving, receiveth him vpon his fword, and wounding him in the belly forceth him to mount vp againe: (besides that, he cannot abide long wader water, The strokes but must of force rife up to breath) and when in such manner they torment him, that the fight is heard two fometimes heard about three leagues diffance, and I dare affirme, that I have heard the blowes of leagues. the Thresher two leagues off, as the report of a peece of Ordnance, the Whales roaring being heard much farther. It also happeneth fundry times, that a great part of the water of the Sea to round about them, with the bloud of the Whale changeth his colour. The best remedy the 62.0 C. Whale hath in this extremitie to helpe himfelfe, is to get him to land, which hee procureth as foone as he discovereth his adversaries, and getting the shore, there can fight but one with him and for either of them hand to hand he is too good.

Amber-greece is thought by some to breede in the Whales belly by eating of a certaine hearb, Amber-greece but that which carrieth likliest probabilities, that it is a liquor which affueth out of certaine Fountaines, in lundry Seas, and being of a light and thicke fubitance, participating of the Ayre, fuddenly becommeth hard, as the yellow Amber, of which they make Brades, which is also liquor of a Fountaine in the Germaine Sea : in the bottomeit is fost and white, and parraking of the Avre becommeth hard and itonie : Allo the Corrall in the Sea is foft, but commeth into the 20 Ayre, becommeth a flone. Those who are of this former opinion, thinke the reason (why the Corall-Amber-greece is sometimes found in the Whale) to be for that hee swalloweth it . as other things, which he findeth fwimming upon the water, and not able to digeft it, it remaineth with

From the Tropicke of Cancer to three or foure degrees of the Equinoctiall, the breze which is the North-east winde, doth raigne in our Ocean Sea the most part of the yeere, except it be Best times to neere the shore, and then the winde is variable. In three or foure degrees of either fide the line, paffe the line the winde hangeth Southerly, in the moneths of July, August, September, and October; all the first the Northreft of the years from the Cape bona efferance to the llands of Azores, the breze raignest contiqually : and fome yeares in the other moneths also or calmes, but he that purposeth to croffe the 30 line from the Northwards to the Southwards, the best and furest passage is, in the moneths of Iamuary, February, and March. In the moneths of September, October and November is also good passige, but not so sure as in the former.

Betwixt nineteene and twenty degrees to the Southwards of the line, the winde tooke ve contrary, which together with the ficknesse of my people made me to seeke the shore and about the end of October, we had fight of the land, which prefently by our height and the making of it, discouered it life to be the Port of Santor, alian noffra Senera de Victoria, and is casie to be knowne, for it hath a great high hill ouer the Port, which (howlocuer a man commeth with the land) rifeth like a bell, and comming neere the shore prefently is discoursed a white Tower or Fort, which standeth vpon the top of a hill over the Harbour, and vpon the Sea-most-land; It is 40 the first land a man mutt compasse before he enter into the Port ; comming within two leagues of the shore we anchored, and the Captaines and Masters of my other Ships, being come aboord, Ships twenty foure men found) and the winde vncertaine when it might change, wee thought with policie to procure that which we could not by force, and to to offer traffique to the people of the shore.

Enering the Port, within a quarter of a mile is a small Village, and three leagues higher vp. is the chiefe towne: where they have two Forts, one on either fide of the Harbour, and within them ride the Ships whih come thicher to discharge or loade. In the small Village is ever a Garrifon of a hundreth Souldiers, whereof part affilt there continually, and in the white Tower you 50 on the top of the hill, which commandeth it.

it was thought conuentent (the weakenesse of our men considered, for wee had not in our three

Here my Captaine, whom I fent with a Letter, had good entertainment, and those of the shore received his meffage and Letter, difpatching it presently to the Governor, who was some three leagues off in another place; at least, they heare vs so in hand. In the time that they expected the Post,my Captaine with one other entertained himselfe with the Souldiers ashore, who after the common cuitome of their profession (except when they be beforior) fought to please him, and finding that he craued but Oranges, Lemmons, and matters of imall moment for refreshing for his Generall, they suffered the women and children to bring him what he would, which he gratified with double Pistolets, that I had given him for that purpose. Sogot he vs two or three hundreth Oranges and Lemmons, and fome rew Hens.

The answere of the Gouernor was, that he was forry that he could not accomplish our defire, being fo reasonable & good: for that in consideration of the war betweene Spaine and England, he had expresse order from his King, not to suffer any English to trade within his jurisdiction, no nor to land, or to take any refreshing upon the shore. And therefore craued pardon, and that we should take this for a resolute answere : And further, required vs to depart the Port within three daies.

which he said he gaue vs, for our courteous manner of proceeding: If any of my people from that ti ne forwards, should approach to the shore, that hee would doe his best to hinder and annow them. With this and were we refolued to depart; and before it came, with the first faire windel we determined to be packing : but the winde fuffered vs not all that night, nor the next day. In which time I lund in a great perplexitie, for that I knew our owne weakeneffe, and what they might doe voto vs, if that they had knowne to much. For any man that putteth himfelfe into the ene nies Port, had neede of Argus eyes, and the winde in a bagge, especially, where the enemy is throng, and the tydes of any force. For, with either cobe or flood, those who are on the thore, may thrull upon him inventions of fire, and with fwimming or other deufes may cut his thore, may trade upon min measurements. The like may be effected with Reffes, Canoas, Boates or Pinnaces, to annoy and affault-him and if this had beene practifed against vs. or taken effect, our Ships must of force have yeelded themselves; for they had no other people in them but fick ment nany times opinion & feare preserveth the Ships, and not the people in them Wherefore For preventi. it is the pire of a promident Governor to confider well the dangers that may befull him, before be put himfelf into fuch places: fo ball he ener be promided for prenention. In Saint John de Vluz, in the New-Spain. when the Spaniards dishonoured their Nation with that foule all of periory, and breach of faith, pinen to my Faiber, Sir John Hawkins (notorious to the whole world) the Sp niards fired two great Ships, with intention to burne my Fathers Admirall, which be prevented by towing them with his Boates and ther war. The great Ar nado of Spaine, fent to conquer England, Anne 1588, was with that felfelane industry ouerthrowne: for the fatting on fire fix or famen Ships (whereof two were name) and letting 20 them drive much the floud, forced them to cut their Cables, and to put to Scano feeke a new way to Spain, In which the greatest part of their best Ships and men were lost and perished. The next night, the winde comming off the shore, we fet faile, and with our Boates and

Their punish-

Note for that

Barkes founded as we went. It flowed vpon the Barre not about four foote water, and once in foure and twenty houres (as in some parts of the Welt Indees) at full Sea there is not woon the barre about feventeene or eighteene foote water. The harbour runneth to the South-weitwards. he that will come into it, is to open the harbours mouth a good quarter of a league before he heare with it, and be bolder of the Wester-side, for of the Easterland lyeth a great ledge of Rockes, for the most part vnder water, which sometimes breake not, but with small shipping, a man may goe betwixt them and the point.

The vertue of Oranzes.

Comming abourd of our Ships, there was great toy amongst my company, and many with the fight of the Olanges and Lemmons feemed to recour heart: This is a wonderfull fecret of the power and wifedome of God, that hath hidden to great and vinknowne vertue in this fruit, to be a certaine remedy for this infirmity; I prefently caused them all to be reparted among it our ficke men, which were so many, that there came not about three or foure to a share; but God was pleafed to fend vs a profperous winde the next day, to much to our comfort, that not any one died before we came to the Ilands, where we pretended to refresh our selves : And although our fresh water had failed vs many dayes (before we law the shore) by reason of our long Nauigarion, wit out touching any land, and the excessive drinking of the sicke and diseased (which could not be excused) yet with an invention I bad in my Ship, I easily drew out of the water of the 40 Sea fufficient quantitie of fresh water to lustaine my people, with little expence of fewell, for with foure billets I itilled a hoghead of water, and therewith dreffed the meate for the ficke and whole. The water so distilled, we found to be wholesome and nourishing.

The coast from Santos to Cape Frio lyeth West and by South Southerly. So wee directed our course West South-west. The night comming on, and directions given to our other Ships, wee fee the water, having a faire fresh gale of winde and large. My felle, with the Master of our Sip, having watched the night paft, thought now to give nature that which the had beene de-Vaskilfulneffe prived of and fo commended the care of Steeridge to one of his Mates; who with the like travell on the Mafters part being drowne, or with the confidence which he had of him at the Helme, had not that watchfull care which was required; he at the Helme steered West and West by South, & brought 50 vs in a little time close vpon the shore : doubtleffe he had cast vs all a way, had not God extraordinarily delivered vs : for the Mafter being in his dead fleepe, was fuddenly awaked, and with fuch a fright, that he could not be in quiet : whereupon, waking his youth, which ordinarily Providence of Il or in his Cabin by him, asked him how the watch went on; who answered that it could not God, and the be an hopice tince he laid himfelfe to reft. He replyed, that his heart was fo vinquiet, that he could not by any meanes fleepe, and to taking his Gowne, came forth upon the Decke, and prefently discovered the land hard by vs. And for that it was fandle and low, those who had their eyes continually fixed on it, were dazeled with the reflection of the Statres, being a faire night, and fo was hindered from the true difcouery thereof. But he comming out of the drake, had his fight more forcible, to difference the difference of the Sea, and the shoare, So that forthwith hee come 6. manded him at the Helme, to put it close a flarbourd, and taking our Ship, we edged off; and founding, found feane three fathome water, whereby we faw euidentiy, the miraculous mercy of God, that if hee watched our vs, as he doth continually our his, doubtleffe wee had perished without remedie : to whom be ail glory and praise everlatting world without end.

Diffilling of

In this point of Steeridge, the Spaniards & Portugals doe exceede all that I have feene. I meane for theircare, which is chiefest in Naugation. And I wish in this , and in all their workes of Care of Stee-Discipline and reformation, we should follow their examples, as also those of any other Nation. ridge, In every Shippe of moment, vpon the halfe decke, or quarter decke, they have a chaire or feate : Exquisit in the out of which whilst they Nauigate, the Pilot, or his Adjutants (which are the same officers Spaniards and which in our Ships wee terme, the Mafter and his Mates) never depart, day nor night, from the Portugals. tiobe of the Compale, and have another before them, whereby they fee what they doe; and are ever witnesses of the good or bad Steeridge of all men that take the Helme.

The next day about ren of the clocke, we were thwart of Cape Blanco, which is low fandie Cape Blanco. 10 land and perilous, for foure leagues into the Sea (thwart it) lye bankes of fand, which have little water on them; on a fudden we found our felues among ft them, in leffe then three fathome water, but with our Boate and Shallop we went founding, and fo got cleare of them. The next day following, we discourred the Hands, where we purpoted to refresh our selves : they are two, and Saint lalmer Ifome call them Saine lames his Hands, and others, Saine Anner! They lye in two and twentie de. lands , alian grees and a halfe to the Southwards of the line; and towards the energing flering the fift of No. Saint Annes. uember) we anchored betwixt them and the maine, in fix fathome water, where we found our other Ships.

All which being well Moored, we prefently began to fet up Fents & Booths for our fick men. to carry them alhore, and to vie our beit diligence to cure them. For which intent our three Surve-20 ans, with their feruants, and adherents, had two Boates to waite continually upon them, to fetch whatfeener was needefull from the Ships, to procure refreshing, and to Fish either with Nets or Hooks, and Lines. Of these implements we had in abundance, and it yeelded vi some refreshing. For the first dajes the most of those which had health, occupied themselves in romeging our Ship. in bringing afhore of emptie Caske, in filling of them, and in felling and cutting of wood: which being many workes; and few hands; went flowly forwards.

Neere thefe Hands are two great Rocks or small Hands adjoyning. In them wee found great Ganners. ftore of yong Gannets in their nefts, which we referred for the fick, and being bayled with pickled Porke well watered, and mingled with Ozemeale, made regionable Portage, & was good refreshing and sustenance for them. This provision failed vs not, till our departure from them. Vpon-to Sallets, with oyle and vineger, refreshed the ficke stomackes, and gaue appetite. With the ayre of the shore, and good therishing, many recoursed speechly : forme died away quickly, and others continued at a frand. We found here forme flore of Fruits ; a kinde of Cherry, Cherries that groweth vpon a tree likea Plum-tree, red of colour, with a ftone in it, but different in making to ours, for it is not altogether sound, and dented about : they have a pleasing tafte. In one of the llands we found Palmito trees, great and high, and in the top a certaine fruite like Cocos, but Palmitos. no bigger then a Wal-nut. We found also a fruit growing vpon trees in cods, like Beanes, both in the cod and the fruite. Some of my Company proued of them, and they caused vomite and purg- Purgatiues. ing. One other fruit we found, very pleafant in tafte, in fashion of an Artechoque, but lesseon the 49 outside of colour red; within white; and compassed about with prickles: our people called them of Prick-pears.

30 one of these Rocks also, we found great flore of the hearbe Phellane, which boyled and made in- Purslane.

Prick-peares : no Conserue is better. They grow vpon the leaves of a certaine roote, that is like vnto that which we call femper vina; and many are wont to hang them up in their houses : but their leaves are longer and narrower, and full of prickes on either fide. The Fruite groweth vpon the fide of the leafe, and is one of the best fruites that I have eaten in the Indies. In ripening, prefently the Birds or Vermine are feeding on them; a generall rule to know what fruite to take or feis wholesome and good in the Indies, and other parts. Finding them to be eaten of the Beatls or fuse volumes; Fowles, a man may boldly eate of them.

The water of these llands is not good; the one for being a flanding water, and full of venemous wormes and Serpents, which is neere a Butt-shot from the Sea-shore, where wee found a 50 great Tree fallen, and in the roote of it the names of fundry Portugals, French-men, and others, and among ft them Abraham Cockes, with the time of their being in this Island. The other, though a running water, yet passing by the rootes of certaine trees, which have a smell as that of Garlique, Contagions taketh a certaine contagious fent of them. Here two of our men died with swelling of their bel- water. lies : the accident we could not attribute to any other cause, then to this suspicious water. It is little, and falleth into the fand, and toketh through it into the Sea; and therefore we made a well of a Pipe, and placed it under the rocke from which it falleth, and out of it filled our Caske: but we could not fill aboue two tuns in a night and a day.

After our people began to gather their ftrength, we manned our Boates, and went ouer to the Maine, where presently we found a great River of iresh and sweete water, and a mightie Marish 60 Country, which in the winter feemeth to be continually ouer-flowne with this River, and others, which fall from the mountainous Country adjacent. We rowed some leagues up the River, and found that the further vp we went, the deeper was the River, but no fruit, more then the fweate of our bodies for the labour of our hands. At our returne we loaded our Boate with water, and afterwards from hence we made our Store.

The ficknesse having wasted more then the one halfe of my people, we determined to take one the victuals of the Hanke, and to burne her; which we put in execution. And being occupied in otm n.
Hissorke, we faw a Ship turning to windwards, to fuccour her felfe of the Hands; but having deferred vs.put off to Sea-wards. Two daies after, the winde changing, we faw her againe runnine alone if the coaft, and the Daintie not being in case to goe after her, for many reasons, wee manned the Fances, and tent her after her; who about letting of the Sunne fetched her vp. and foake with her; when finding her to be a great Fly-boate, of (at least) three or foure hundreth tuns, with eighteene Peeces of Artillery, would have returned, but the winde freshing in, put her to Leewards; and standing in to succour her felfe of the land, had fight of another small Bark which after a fhore chase she tooke, but had nothing of moment in her, for that she had bin you to the great Sholes of Abrevies in 18 degrees, and there throwne all they had by the board, to face then lives. This and the other chase were the cause that the Farer could not beate it yo in many dayes; but before wee had put all in a readinesse, the winde changing, shee came vnto vs. and made Relation of that which had past; and how they had given the small Barketo the Portugals, and brought with them onely her Pilot, and a Merchant called Pedro de efcalante of Potofi.

Industry of the They furprife

In this Coast the Portneals, by industry of the Indians, have wrought many feates, At Cape Frie they tooke a great French Shippe in the night, the most of her company being on the shore with Canoas, which they have in this Coast so great, that they carrie scuentie and eightie men, in one of them. And in Isla Grand, I saw one that was about threescore footelong, of one tree as an 5 at Canon, are all I have teene in Brafit, with provisions in them for twenty or thirty daies. At the Iland of San-febastian, neere Saint Vincent, the Indians killed about eightie of Mafter Candib his men, and tooke his Boate, which was the overthrow of his Voyage,

There commeth not any Ship vpon this Coast, whereof these Canoas give not notice presently to enery place. And we were certified in Ifin Grand, that they had fent an Indian from the Riner of Jewers, through all the Mountaines & Marishes to take a view of vs. and accordingly made a Relation of our Ships, Boates, and the number of men, which were might haue. But to preuent the like danger that might come your vs being careleffe and negligent. I determined one night, Wie ftratagem in the darkeft and quietest of it, to ice what watch our Company kept on the shore; manned our Light-horfman, and Boat armed them with Bowes and Targets, and got affore fome good di- 30 france from the places wherewere our Boothes, and fought to come vpon them vndifcouered : we yied all our best endeuours to take them at vnawares, yet comming within fortie paces we were discoursed; the whole and the sigke came forth to oppose themselves against vs. Which we feeing, gaue them the Hubbub, after the manner of the Indians, and affaulted them, and they vs; but being a close darke night, they could not differne vs presently vpon the Hubbub. From our Ship the Gunner shot a peece of Ordnance over our heads, according to the order given him, and thereof we tooke occasion to retire vnto our Boates, and within a little space came to the Boothes and landing places, as though we came from our Ships to aide them. They began to recount vnto vs , how that at the Wester point of the Hand , out of certaine Canoas , had lan-

uents of a care ded a multitude of Indians, which with a great out-cry came vpon them, & affaulted them fierce- 40 ly, but finding better refiftance then they looked for, and feeing themselves discovered by the Ships, tooke them felues to their heeles, and returned to their Canoas, in which they imbarked themselues, and departed. One affirmed, he saw the Canoas; another, their long haire; a third, their Bowes; a fourth, that it could not be, but that some of them had their paiments: And it was worth the fight, to behold those which had not moved out of their beds in many moneths (vnleffe by the helpe of others) had gotten, some a bow-shot off into the woods, others into the tops of trees, and those which had any flrength, joyned together to fight for their lines. In fine, the Booths and Tents were left desolate.

To colour our businesse the better, after we had spent some houre in seeking out, and loyning the Company together, in comforting, and commending them; I left them-an extraordina-52 ry Guard for that night, and so departed to our Shippes, with such an opinion of the affault, given by the Indians, that many fo pollefled (through all the Voyage) would not be perfwaded to the contrary. Which impression wrought such effect in most of my Company, that in all places where the Indians might annoy vs, they were after most carefull and vigilant, as was

" resin the

In these Hands it heigheth and falleth some five or fixe foote water, and but once in two and twentie houres; as in all this Coast, and in many parts of the West Indies; as also in the coast of Peru and Chely (fauing where are great Bayes or indraughts) and there the tydes keep their ordimary course of twice in foure and twenty houres. In the leller of these liands, is a Coue for a small Ship to ride in, Land-lockt, and the may moore her felfe to the trees of either fide : this we called 60

Palmite Hand. Palmite Hand, for the abundance it hath of the greater fort of Palmite trees, the other hath none at all. A man may goe betwixt the Ilands with his Ship, but the better course is out at one end. In The creatures, thefe Ilands are many Scorpions, Snakes, and Adders, with other venemous Vermine. They have Parots, and a certaine kinde of fowle like vnto Phelants, fomewhat bigger, and feeme to be of their nature. Here we ipent aboue a moneth in curing of our ficke men, supplying our wants of awood and water, and in other necessary workes. And the tenth of December (all things put in order) we fet faile for Cape Frio, having onely fixe men ficke, with purpose there to set alhore our cate Frio. two Prisoners before named : and anchoring under the Cape, we set our Boate a hoare, but they could not finde any convenient place to land them in, and fo returned: the winde being Southerly. and not good to goe on our voyage, we fuccoured our felues within Ifia Grand, which lyech fome dozen or foureteene leagues from the Cape, betwixt the West, and by South and West Southweit : the rather to fet our Prifoners on fhore.

CHAP. S. S. 2. Isla Grand described Negros good merchandize at the R. of Plate. 1281

In the mid way becwint the Cape and this Hand, lyeth the River lenero, a very good Har- Ienero. to bour, fortified with a Garrison, and a place well peopled. The Isla Grand is some eight or tenne leagues long, and caufeth a goodly harbour for thipping: it is full of great fandie Bayes, and in the most of them is flore of good water: within this Iland are many other smaller llands, which cause divers founds and creekes; and amongst these little Hands, one, for the pleasant scituation Little Hand. and fertilitie thereof, called Placentia. This is peopled, all the rest defert : on this Iland our Prifoners defired to be put ashore, and promited to fend vs some refreshing, Whereto wee condescended and fent them ashore with two Boates well manned and armed, who found few Inhabitants in the Hand; for our prople faw not aboue foure or fine houses, not withflanding our Boates returned loaden with Plantines, Pinias, Potatoes, Sugar-canes, and I ome Hens. Amongst which they brought a kinde of little Plantine, greene, and round, which were the best of any that I have 20 feene. With our people came a Portugall, who faid, that the Iland was his; hee feemed to be a Misteche (who are those that are of a Spanish and an Indian brood) poorely apparelled and mile-

rable; we featted him, and gaue him fome trifles, and hee according to his abilitie answered our courtefie with fuch as he had. The winde continuing contrary, we emptied all the water we could come by, which we had filled in Saint lames his Hand, and filled our Caske with the water of this Illa Grand, It is a wil- Ifla Grand, dernesse coursed with Trees and Shrubs so thicke, as it hath no passage through, except a man make it by force. And it was strange to heare the howling and cries of wilde Bealts in their Wools day and night, which we could not come at to fee by any meanes; fome like Lyons, others like Beares, others like Hogs, and of fuch an 1 fo many diverfities as was admirable. Here our Nets Shels of most 20 profited vs much, for in the fandy Bayes they tooke vs ftore of fish. V pon the fhore at full Sez. theroi Pearles marke, we found in many places certain fiels, like those of mother of Pearles, which are brought out of the East Indies, to make standing cups, called Caraceles; of fo great curiofitie as might moue all the beholders to magnifie the maker of them : and were it not for the brittleneffe of them, by reason of their exceeding thinnesse, doub; lesse they were to be esteemed farre about the others, for more excellent workmanship I have not feene in shels,

The eighteenth of December we fet faile, the winde at North-east, and directed our course for the Straits of Magalianes. The twenty two of this moneth, at the going too of the Sun, we defcried a Portugall (hip, and gaue her chase, and comming within harling of her, she rendred her selfe without any resistance, she was of an hundred tuns bound for Angola to load Negroes, to be carried 40 and fold in the River of Plate : It is a trade of great profit, and much vied, for that the Negroes are carried from the head of the River of Plate, to Porofi, to labour in the Mines. It is a bad Negro, who is not worth there five or fix hundreth peeces, every peece of ten Ryals, which they receive Price of No. in Ryals of Plate, for there it no other Merchandize in those parts. The loading of this Ship was greet. meale of Caffani, which the Portugals call Farina de Paw, made of a certaine roote which the In- cafani meale dians call Tuca, much like vnto Potatoes. Of it are two kindes, the one sweete and good to be eaten (either rolled or fodden) as Potatoes; and the other of which they make their bread, called Caffani, deadly poison, if the liquor or juyce be not throughly pressed out. This Farina, in making Pancakes, and frying them with butter or oyle, and sometimes with Manteca de Puerco: when strewing a little Sugar vpon them, it was meate that our company defired aboue any that 50 was in the Ship.

The Indians also accustome to make their drinke of this meale, and in three seuerall manners. And for Br-First, is chewing it in their mouthes, and after mingling it with water, after a loathsome man-uerage. ner, yet the commonnest drinke that they have; and that held best which is chewed by an old woman. The second manner of their drinke, is baking it till it be halfe burned, then they beate it into Powder; and when they will drinke, they mingle a small quantity of it with water, which giueth a reasonable good taste. The third, and best, is baking it (as aforesaid) and when it is beaten into Powder, to feeth it in water; after that it is well boyled, they let it fland some three or foure daies, and then drinke it. So it is much like the Ale which is yied in England, and of that

60 The Indians are very curious in planting and manuring of this Tucas It is a little shrub, & carri- The mante eth branches like hazell wands; being grown as big as a mans finger, they breake them off in the of planing middeft, and fo pricke them into the ground; it needeth no other art or husbandry, for out of each Laca. branch grow two, three or foure roots, fome bigger, fome leffer: but first they burne and manure the ground, the which labour, and whatfoeuer elfe is requilite, the men doe not fo much as helpe with a finger, but all lyeth vpon their poore women, who are worfe then flaues; for they labour the ground, they plant, they digge and delue, they bake, they brew, and drelle their meate, fetch their water, and doe all drudgene what focuer; yea, though they nurie a childe, they are not exempted from any labour : their childe they carrie in a Wallet about their necke, ordinarrly under one arme, because it may fucke when it will,

Хуууу з

With the labour of the women.

The men have care for nothing but for their Canoas, to paffe from place to place, and of their Bowes and Arrowes to hunt, and their Armes for the warre, which is a fword of heapie blacke wood, some foure fingers broad, an inch thicke, and an Elle long, somewhat broader towards the top then at the handle. They call it Macana, and it is carried and wrought with inlaid works very curioully, but his edges are blunt. If any kill any game in hunting he bringeth it not with him, but from the next tree to the game, hee bringeth a bough (for the trees in the Indies have leaves for the most part all the yeare) and all the way as he goeth streweth little peeces of it here and there, and comming home giveth a peece to his woman, and fo fends her for it. If they goe to the Warre, or in any journey, where it is necessary to carry promision or Merchandize, the women ferue too carrie all, and the men neuer fuccour nor cafe them, wherein they flew greater Barbarisme then in any thing (in my opinion) that I have noted among it them, except in eating one another.

We tooke out of this Prize, for our provision some good quantitie of this meale, and the Spear the had, being not about three or foure Chefts; after three dayes we gave the Ship to the Perine gals, and to them libertie. In her was a Portugal Knight, which went for Gouernour of Angela, 20 of the habit of Christ, with fiftie Souldiers, and Armes for a hundreth and fiftie, with his wife and daughter. He was old, and complained, that after many yeeres feruice for his King, with fundry milhaps, he was brought to that poore estate, as for the reliefe of his wife, his daughter and himsel'e, he had no other substance, but that he had in his Ship. It moved compassion, so as nothing of his was diminished, which though to vs was of no great moment, in Angola it was worth good Crownes. Onely we difarmed them all, and let them depart, faying, that they would resurne to Saint Vincents. We continued our course for the Straits, my people much animated with this volookt for refreshing, and prasted God for his bountse, providence, and grace extended towards vs. Here it will not be out of the way to speake a word of the particularities

The description on of Brafil.

Brafil is accounted to be that part of America, which lyeth towards our North Sea, betwixt the River of the Amazons, neere the line to the Northwards, untill a man come to the River of Place in 26. degrees to the Southwards of the line. This coast generally lyeth next of any thing South and by Weft, It is a temperate Countrie, though in some ports it exceedeth in heate; it is full of good fuccours for shipping, and plentifull for Rivers and fresh waters. The principall has bitations, are Fernambuca, the Bay De todos los Santos, Nostra Senera de victoria, alias Santos, the River Jenero, Saint Vincents, and Placentia: every of them provided of a good Port. The winder are variable, but for the most part trade alongst the Coast.

Its Hauens.

A worme there is in this Countrie, which killed many of the first Inhabitants, before God Strangworme. was pleased to discouer a remedie for it, vinto a religious person. It is like a Magot, but more sin- 40 Variation of der and longer, and of a greene colour, with a red head. This worme creepeth in at the hinder the Compasse. parts, where is the enacuation of our superfluities, and there (as it were) gleweth himselfe to the gut, there feedeth of the bloud and humors, and becommeth to great, that flooping the naturall passage, he forceth the principall wheele of the clocke of our body to stand still, and with it the accompt of the houre of life to take end, with most cruell torment and paine, which is such, that he who bath beene throughly punished with the Collique can quickly decipher or demonstrate. The Antidote for this pernicious worme is Garlique: and this was discourred by a Phistian to a Religious perlon.

d. III.

THARLTONS treacherie: Discouerie of Land wnknowne : Entrance of the Straits, accidents therein, and description thereof : diners occasionall discourses for the furtherance of Marine and Naturall knowledge.

N our Naugation towards the Straits, by our obfernation we found, that our Compafe varied a point and better to the Eaftwards.

In the height of the River of Plate, we being some fiftie leagues off the coast, a storme tooke vs Southerly, which endured fortie eight houres : In the first day about the going downe of the Sunne, Robert Tharlton, Matter of the Fancie, bare up before the winde, without giving vs any token or figue, that the was in diffreste, We seeing her to continue her course, bare we after her, and the night comming on, we carried our light, but the neuer answered vs. for they kept their course directly for England, which was the Overthrow of the Voyage, as well for shat we had no Pinnace to goe before vs , to discouer any danger, to feeke out roades and and chorme, to helpe our watering and refreshing; as also for the victuals, necessaries, and men which The ouers they carried away with them : which though they were not many, yet with their helpe in our throw of the fight, we had taken the Vice-admirall, the first time shee bourded with vs, as shall be hereafter Voyage by a manifested. For once we cleered her Decke, and had wee brene able to have spared but a dozen perfidious man men, doubtlette, we had done with her what we would, for the had no crote fights. Moreouer. if the had beene with me, I had not beene discoursed upon the coast of Pirew. But I was wor-10 thy to be deceived, that trufted my Ship in the hands of on hypocrite, and a man which had left his Generall before in the like occation, and in the felfe same place : for being with Maifer Thomat Candilo, Matter of a small Shippe in the Voyage wherein hee died, this Captaine being aboord the Admirall, in the night time for tooke his Fleete, his Generall and Captaine, and returned home. Pitie it is that such perfidious perfons are not more feuerely punished.

CHAP. S. 2. Fishing with Hooke and Line for Fowles. Vaknowne Land.

Thefe ablentings and chapes are made most times sandy to piffer and steale, as well by taking The cuming of tome prize when they are alone, and without command, robinder or order their bad proces- of Runnadings, as to appropriate that which is in their intrusted shipper casting the fault, if they bee wayes, called to account , vpon some poore and voknowne Mariners , whom they suffer with a little pillage, to abient themielues, the cunninglier to colour their greatest diforders, and 20 Robberies.

The Horme ceasing, and being out of all hope, wee fet faile and went on our course. During Birds like this ftorme, certaine great Fowles as bigge as Swannes, foured about vs, and the winde calming, the Hellstaderi tetled themselves in the Sea, and fed vpon the sweepings of our ship; which I perceiting, and de-tound in the fireds to lee of them, because they feemed farte greater then in truth they were; I caused a Hook Strains which and Line to be brought me; and with a piece of a Pilehard I batted the Hooke, and a foot from they called it, tied a piece of Corke, that it might not finke deepe, and threw it into the Sa, which, our Mores. fun driving with the Sea in a little time was a good space from vs, and one of the Fowles beeing Line & Hookes hungry, prefendly feized upon it, and the Hobke in his upper beake. It is like to a Faulcons bill but that the point is moore crooked, in that manner, as by no meanes free could cleere himfelfe, 30 except that the Line brake, or the Hooke righted : Plucking him towards the thip, with the wauing of his wings he eated the weight of his body and being brought to the sterne of our ship, two of our company went downe by the ladder of the Poope, and feized on his neck and wings: but fuch were the blowes he gaue them with his Pinnions, as both left their hand fast, beeing beaten blacke and blue; we cait a finare about his necke, and fo triced him into the ship. By the fame manner of filhing, we caught fo many of them, as refreshed and recreated all my people for r. ir. famens. that day. Their bodies were great, but of little flesh and tender, in taste answerable to the food whereon they feed. They were of two colours, some white, some grey; they had three joynts in each wing; and from the point of one wing to the point of the other, both firetched out, was aboue two fathomes.

40 The wind continued good with vs, till we came to 49. degrees and 30. minutes where it took vs Weiterly, being (as we made our account) fome firty leagues from the shoare. Betwix- 49. and 48, degrees is Port Saint lalian, a good Harbour, and in which a man may graue his shippe, though the draw fifteene or fixteene foot water : But care is to bee had of the people called Pata- Care of the gones. They are treacherous, and of great stature, most give them the name of Grants.

The fecond of February, about nine of the clocke in the morning, wee deferred land, which bare South-west of vs, which we looked not for so timely; and comming neerer and neerer vnto it, by the lying, wee could not coniecture what Land ir finuld be, for wee were next of any thing in 48. degrees, and no Plat, nor Sea-card which we had, made mention of any Land, which Land vnlay in that manner, neere about that height; In fine, wee brought our Lar-boord tacke aboord, knowing, 50 and flood to the North-east-wards all that day and night, and the winde continuing Westerly and a faire gale, we continued our course alongst the Coast the day and night following, in which time we made account we discouered well neere threescore leagues off the Coail. It is bold, and made [mall shew of dangers. The land is a goodly Champion Countrey, and peopled; wee faw many fires, but could not come to speake with the people; for the time of the yeare was farre spent to shoote the Straits, and the want of our Pinnasse disabled vs for finding a Port or Road; A caucarfor not being discretion with a ship of charge, and in an vinknowine Coast, to come neere the shoare comming sudbefore it was founded; which were causes, together with the change of the winde (good for vs dealy to ne re to paffe the Strait) that hindered the further Difcourry of this Land, with its fecrets : This I anyoknowne hand forcowed for many times fince for that it had likelihood to bee an excellent Countrey. It Land.

60 hath great Rivers of fresh waters for the out-shoot of them colours the Sea in many places, as we ranne alongit it. It is not Mountaynous, but much of the disposition of England, and as temperate. The things we noted principally on the Coaft, are thefe following: the Weltermoft point of the Land, with which wee first tell, is the end of the Land to the Westwards, as wee found afterwards. If a man bring this point South-west is rifeth in three Mounts or round Hillockes:

Ууууу 3

Faire Iland.

bringing it more Westerly, they shoot themselves all into one; and bringing it Easterly, it riseth Point Tremoun- in two Hillockes. This we called Point Tremountaine. Some twelve or fourteene leagues from this point to the Eastwards, faire by the shoare, lyeth a low flat Iland of some two leagues long, we named it Faire lland; for it was all ouer as greene and smooth, as any Meddow in the Spine or an arme of the Sea, with a goodly low Countrey adjacent. And eight or tenne leagues from this opening, some three leagues from the shoare, lyeth a bigge Rocke, which at the first we had thought to be a ship under all her sayles; but after, as we came neere, at discovered it selfe to bee Emduit-bead, a Rocke, which we called Condust-bead; for that how focuer a man commeth with it, it is like to to the Conduit-heads about the Citie of London. All this Coast so farre as we discourred, lyeth next of any thing East and by North, and West and by South. The Land, for that it was discouered in the Reigne of Queene Elizabeth, my Souereigne Lady and Miftris, and a Mayden Queene, and at my cost and adventure, in a perpetual memory of her chastitle, and remembrance of my endequours, I gave it the name of Hawkins Maiden land, Before a man fall with this Land fome twen: y or thirty leagues, he shall meet with beds of Oreweed, driging to and fro in the Sea, with white flowres growing vpon them, and fometimes farther off; which is a good flow white flowres, and figne the Land is neere, whereof the Westermost part lyeth some three score leagues from the neerest Land of America.

Some three or four leagues Easterly from this Iland, is a goodly opening, as of a great River.

With our faire and large wind, wee shaped our course for the Straits, and the tenth of Februto the Straits. ary wee had fight of Land, and it was the head-land of the Straits to the Northwards, which agreed with our height, wherein wee found our felues to bee, which was in 52. degrees and 40. minutes. Within a few houres we had the mouth of the Straits open, which lieth in 52. degrees and go, minutes. It rifeth like the North foreland in Kent, and is much like the Land of Margates. It is not good to borrow neere the shoare, but to give it a faire birth; within a few houres we entred the mouth of the Straits, which is some fixe leagues broad, and lieth in 52. degrees, and co. minutes; doubling the Point on the flarbood, which is also flat of a good birth, we opened a faire Bay, in which we might descry the Hull of a ship beaten upon the Beach. It was of the Spanish Fleet, that went to inhabit there, in Anne 1 ,82, vnder the charge of Pedro Sarmiento, who at his returne was taken Prisoner, and brought into England. In this Bay the Spaniard 30 Pedro Sarmien- made their principall habitation, and called it the Citie of Saint Philip, and left it peopled; But the cold barrennelle of the Countrey, and the malice of the Indians, with whom they badly agreed, made speedy end of them, as also of those, whom they left in the middle of the Straits, three leagues from Cape Froward to the Eastwards, in another habitation.

San Philip.

We continued our course along ft this Reach (for all the Straits is as a River altering his course. fometimes vpon one point, fometimes vpon another) which is some eight leagues long, and lieth West North-west. From this we entred into a goodly Bay, which runneth yp into the Land Northerly many leagues; and at firstentrance, a man may fee no other thing, but as it were, a maine Sez. From the end of this first Reach, you muit direct your course West South-west, and tome fourteene or fifteene leagues lyeth one of the narrowell places of all the Straits; This lea- 40 deth vnto another Reach, that lyeth West and by North some tix leagues. Here in the middle of the Reach, the wind tooke vs by the North-west, and so we were forced to anchor some two or three dayes. In which time we went ashoare with our Boats, and found neere the middle of this Reach, on the starboard side, a reasonable good place to ground and trimme a small ship; whereit higherh some nine or ten foot water. Here we saw certaine Hogs, but they were so tarre from vs, that we could not differ ne whether they were of those of the Country, or brought by the Spaniards; these were all the beasts which we saw in all the time we were in the Straits.

Note.

Since it hath bin plainly

In two tides we turned through this reach, and so recovered the llands of Pengwins; they lye from this reach four leagues South-west and by West. Till you come to this place, care is to be taken of not comming too neere to any point of the land; for being (for the most part) fandy, they 50 have sholding off them, and are somewhat dangerous. These llands have beene set forth by some to be three, we could diffeour but two; And they are no more except that part of the Mayne, which lyeth ouer against them, be an Hand; which carrieth little likelihood, and I cannot determine it. A man may faile betwixt the two Ilands, or betwixt them and the Land on the Larboard file: from which Land to the bigger Hand is as it were a bridge or ledge, on which is the South part foure or five fathorn water; and to him that commeth neere it, not knowing thereof, may juffly caule feare : for it she weth to be shold water with his ripling, like vnto a Race. Betwize the former Reach, and these Ilands, runneth vp a goodly Bay into the Countrey to the North-wards. It caufeth a great Indraught, and aboue thefe Ilands runneth a great tide from the mouth of the Straits to these Hands, the Land on the Larboard-fide is low Land and fandy (for the most part, 60 and without doubt, Hands) for it hath many openings into the Sea, and forcible Indraughts by them, and that on the Starboord fide, is all high Mountaynous Land, from end to end; but no wood on either fide. Before we paffed these Ilands, under the Lee of the bigger Iland we anchored, the winde beeing at North-east, with intent to refresh our felues with the Fowles of their Hands they are of divers forts, and in great plentie, as Pengwins, wild Ducks, Guls and Gannets: of the principall we purposed to make provision, and those were the Pengwins. The Pengwin is in all proportion like a Goose, and hath no teathers, but a certaine downe vpon Straits. all parts of his bodie; and therefore canot flee, but analeth himfelfe in all occasions with his The description feet, running as fast as most men. He liueth in the Sea, and on the Land feedeth on fish in the on of the Sea, and as a Goofe on the shore vpon grasse. They harbour themselves vnder the ground in Bur. Pengma. rowes, as the Conies; and in them hatch their young. All parts of the Iland where they haunted were undermined, faue onely one Valley which)it feemeth) they referued for their food; for it was as greene as any Medow in the moneth of Aprill, with a most fine short graffe. The slesh of to these Penswins is much of the sauour of a certaine Fowle taken in the Ilands of Lander and Siller; which we call Puffins, by the tafte it is eafily difcerned that they feed on fish. They are very fat, and in dreffing must be flead as the Byter; they are reasonable meate rosted, baked, or sodden: but best rosted. We salted some doozen or sixteene Hogsheads, which served vs (whilest they lafted) in fteed of powdred Beefe. The hunting of them (as wee may well terme it) was a great Hunting the recreation to my company and worth the fight, for in determining to catch them, necessarily was Penguin. required good flore of people, every one with a cudgell in his hand, to compaffe them round about, to bring them, as it were, into a Ring; if they chanced to breake out, then was the fport; for the ground beeing undermined, at unawares it failed, and as they ranne after them, one fell here, another there, another offering to ftrike at one, lifting vp his hand, funke vp to the arme-20 pits in the earth, another leaping to avoid one hole, fell into another. And after the first flaughter, in feeing vs on the shoare, they shunned vs, and procured to recouer the Sea : yea many times feeing them felues perfecuted they would tumble downe from fuch high Rocks and Mountaines. as it feemed impossible to escape with life. Yet as soone as they came to the Beach, presently we should see them runne into the Sea, as though they had no hurt. Where one goeth, the other followeth, like there after the Bel-weather but in getting them once within the Ring close together, few efcaped, faue fuch as by chance hid themselves in the borrowes, and ordinarily there was no Droue which yeelded vs not a thouland, and more : the manner of killing them which the Hunters vied, beeing in a cluster together, was with their cudgels to knocke them on the head, for though a man gaue them many blowes on the body they dyed not: Befides the flesh 30 bruized is not good to keepe. The maffacre ended, presently they cut of their heads. that they might bleed well : fuch as we determined to keepe for store, we faued in this manner. First, wee The keeping folit them, and then walhed them well in Sea-water, then talted them, having laine fome fixe for store, houres in Salt, we put them in preffe eight houres, and the bloud being foaked out, wer falted them againe in our other caske, as is the cultome to falt Beefe, after this manner they continued good fome two moneths, and ferued vs in steed of Beefe. The Guls and Gamets, were not in fo great quantitie, yet we wanted not young Guls to eate The Guls. all the time of our stay about these Ilands. It was one of the delicatest foods, that I have eaten in all my life.

The Duckes are different to ours, and nothing so good meate; yet they may ferue for necessis Ducks, 40 tie: They were many, and had a part of the Iland to themselves severall, which was the highest Hill and more then a Musket (hot ouer. In all the dayes of my life, I have not feene greater arte and curiofitie in creatures voide of reason, then in the placing and making of their Nests; all the Hill being fo full of them, that the greatest Mathematician of the World, could not demie how Cunning Arto place one more then there was voon the Hill, leaving onely one path-way for a Fowle to paffe chitectures betwixt. The Hill was all leuell, as if it had beene smoothed by arte; the Nests made onely of earth, and feeming to be of the felfe-fame mould; for the Nests and the foile is all one, which, with water that they bring in their Beakes, they make into Clay, or a certaine dawbe and after fathion them round, as with a compasse. In the bottome they contains the measure of a foots in the height about eight inches; and in the top, the same quantitie ouer; there they are hollowed in, formwhat deep, wherein they lay their Egges, without other preuention. And I am of opinion. 50 that the Sun helpeth them to hatch their young: their Nefts are for many yeares, and of one proportion, not one exceeding another in bignesse, in height, nor circumference; and in proporrionable diffance one from another. In all this Hill, not in any of their Nefts, was to be found a blade of graffe, a ftraw, a fticke, a feather, a moat, no, nor the filing of any Fowle, but all the Nefts Their nearnes, and passages betwire them, were so smooth and cleane, as if they had bin newly swept & washed. One day having ended our hunting of Pengwins, one of our Mariners walking about the lland, Of Seales, or discourred a great company of Seales, or Sea-wolves (to called for that they are in the Sea, as the Wolues on the Land) adulting vs, that he left them (leeping, with their beilies toasting against the Sunne : we prouided our felues with thaues and other weapons; and fought to fleale vpon 60 them at vnawares, to surprize some of them, and comming downe the side of a Hill, we were not difcouered, till wee were close voon them, notwithstanding, their Sentinell (before wee could approach) with a great howle waked them : we got betwirt the Sea and some of them, but they hunned vs not; for they came directly vpon vs; and though we dealt heere and there a blow , yet not a man that withflood them , cleaped the ouerthrow. They reckon not of a Misket flot, a fword pierceth not their skinne, and to give a blowe with a staffe, is asto fmite voon a flone : only in giving the blowe voon his inout, prefently he falleth downe dead. After they had recovered the water, they did as it were, forme vs, defie vs , and daunced before vs, vntill we had shot some Musket shot through them, and so they appeared no more.

Good prouifie

This fifth is like voto a Calfe, with four legs, but not about a spanne long : his skinne is hairy likea Calle : but thefe were different to all that euer I have feene, yet I have feene of them in many parts; for these were greater, and in their former parts like vnto Lions, with shagee Their Sentinel, harre, and moltaches. They live in the Sea, and come to fleepe on the Land, and they ever have one that watcheth, who adulfeth them of any accident. They are beneficiall to man in their skinnes for many purposes : In their mostaches for Pick-tooths, and in their fatte to

Wee embarqued our felues, and fet favle with the winde at North-west, which could serve vs but to an end of that reach, tome dozen leagues long, and fome three or foure leagues broad, It lieth next of any thing, till you come to Cape Agreda, South-west; from this Cape to Cape From and, the coast lieth Well South-west. Some foure leagues between them, was the second peopling of the Spaniards: and this Cape lieth in 55. degrees and better. Thwart Cape Froward, the winde larged with vs, and we continued our course towards the Iland of Elizabeth's which lieth from Cape Freward tome foureteene leagues West and by South. This reach is foure or free leagues broad, and in it are many channels or openings into the Sea : for all the land on the Souther part of the Straites are Ilands and broken land; and from the beginning of this 20 reach to the end of the Straits, high mountainous Land on both fides, in most parts covered with Snowe all the veere long. Betwixt the Hand Elizabeth, and the Maine, is the narrowell passage of all the States: it may be some two Musket shor from side to side. From this Strate to Eli-Elizabeth: Bay. zabeth Bay, is tome foure leagues, and the courie lieth North-west and by Weil. This Bay is all tandie, and cleane ground on the Eatterne part; but before you come at it, there lieth a point of the shoare a good birth off, which is dangerous. And in this reach, as in many parts of the Straites, runneth a quicke and forcible tide. In the Bay it higheth eight or nine foot water. The Northerne part of the Bay hath foule ground, and Rockes under water : and therefore it is not whollome borrowing of the Maine, One of Matter Thomas Candifo his Pinalies (as I have been enformed) came aground upon one of them, and he was in lazard to have left her there.

The fecond propling of the Spania ds.

The River of Ieronimo, -

From Elizabeth Bay to the River of Ieronima, is forne fine leagues. The course lieth West and by North, and West. Here the winde scanted, and forced vs to tecke a place to anchor in. Our Boats going alongst the shoare, found a reasonable Harbour, which is right against that which Another chan- they call, River lerenime: but it is another channell, by which a man may diffembeque the Straite, as by the other which is accustomed ; for with a storme, which tooke vs one night, suddenly were were forced into that opening vnwittingly; but in the morning, feeing our errour, and the winde larging, with two of three boords we turned into the old channell, not daring for Blanches Day. want of our Pinaffe to attempt any new Discouerie. This Harbour wee called Blanches Bay; for that it was found by William Blanch, one of our Matters Mates. Here having moored our thip, we beganne to make our prouttion of wood and water, whereof was plentie in this Bay, 40 and in all other places from Pengwin Ilands, till within a dozen leagues of the mouth of the

Now finding our Deckes open, with the long lying under the Line, and on the coast of Brefill, the Sunne having beene in our Zenith many times, we calked our flup, within boo d and without, about the Deckes. And fuch was the diligence wee wied, that at foure dayes end, wee had about threefcote Pipes of water, and twentte Boars of wood flowed in our thip: no man was idle, nor otherwife bufied but in necessarie workes; fome in felling and cleaning of wood; fome in carrying of water; fome in romaging; fome in washing, others in baking; one in heating of Pitch, another in gathering of Mulich: no man was exempted, but knew at euening, whereunto he was to betake himfelte the morning following.

Objection of wafte. Aniwere.

- - 1657

Some man might aske mee, how were came to have to many emptie Caske in leffe then two moneths; for it feemeth much, that fo few men in such short time, and in fo long a Voyage should waite so much? Whereto I answere, that it came not of excessive expense : for in health we never exceeded our ordinarie; but of a milchance which befell vs vnknowne in the Hand of Saint lames, or Saint Anne, in the coaft of Brafill ; where wee refreshed our felicis, and according to the sustome, laid our Caske ashoares to trimme it, and after to fill it, the place being commodious for us. But with the water a certaine worme, called Broma by the Spannard and by ws Arters, enemed also, which cate it to tuli of tioles , that all the water foaked out, and made much of our Casks of fmell vic. This we remedied the cell wee could, and discoursed it lone before we came to this place.

Hereof let others take warning, in no place to have Cashe on the Shoare, where it may be another gainst wormen for it is one of the pronifions which are with greatest care to be preferred in long Voyages, and baraef which etc . so be supplied. The fo Arreis, or B oma, in all hot Countries enter into the plantes of flips, and effect. throughthirs. all wherevere Reners of fresh winer, (the common opinion is, that they are bred in fresh water, and will the current of the Rivers are brought into the Sea) but experience teacheth, that they breede in the great Seas, wall bot chimates, especially neere the Equino Stall Line: for lying fo long under, and neere the Line, and towing a Shalop at our sterne, comming to cleanse ber in Brafill, wee found ber all under water courred with these Wormer, as bigge as the stile singer of a man, on the outside of the planke, not fully concred, but halfe the thicknesse of their bodie, like to a gellic wrought into the planke as with a Gowdoe. In little time, if the flip be not sheathed, they put all in bazard; for they enter in no bigger then a small Spanish Needle, and by little and little their boles become ordinarily greater then a mans finger. The thicker the planke is, the greater he groweth; yea, I have seem many ships so eaten, that the most of their plankes under water have beene like Home-combes, and especially those between twinde 10 and water. If they had not beene beathed, it had beene impossible that they could have swomme. The entring of them is hardly to be discerned, the most of them being small as the head of a Pinne, Which. all fuch as purpose long Voyages, are to prenent by sheathing their ships.

And for that I have feene diners manners of freathing, for the ignorant I will fet them downe which Of theathing by experience I have found best. In Spaine, and Portugall, some theath their ships with Lead; which, In Spaine and besides the cost and weight, although they wie the thunnest sheet-lead that I have seene in any place, yet Pottwall. it is nothing durable, but subject to many casualties. Another manner is used with double plankes, as with double thicke without as within, after the manner of furring; which is little better then that with Lead: for Plankes, belides his weight, it dureth little, because the Worme in (mall time passesh through the one and the o.

ther. A third manner of sheathing had beene vsed amongit some with fine Cannas; which is of small With Canuss. 20 continuance, and so not to be regarded. The fourib presention, which now is most accounted of is to Withhurse burne the upper planke till it come to be in enery place like a Cole, and after to pitch it : this is not bad. In China, (as I have beene enformed) they wife a certaine Betane or Varnish, in manner of an In china with artificiall Puch , wherewith they trimme the outfide of their ships. It is faid to bee durable, and of Varnith. that vertue, as neither worme, nor water pierceth it; neither hath the Sunne power against it. Some baue denised a certaine Pitch, mingled with Glaffe, and other ingredients, beaten into powder, with which if the ship be pitched, it is said, the worme that toucheth it, dieth : but I have not heard that it hath beene viefull. But the most approved of all is the manner of sheathing vied now adapts in Eng. In England, land with thinne boords, halfe inch thicke, the thinner the better, and Elme better then Oake; for it rineth not, it indureth better under water, and yeeldeth better to the thins fide

The innention of the materials incorporated between the planke and the sheathing, is that indeed which anayleth; for without it many plantes were not sufficient to hinder the entrance of this worms : this manner is thus : Before the Speathing board is mayled on, upon the inner side of it, they smere it over Best manner with Tarre, halfe a finger thicke, and vpon the Tarre, another halfe thicke of baire, such as the White- of Meathing lymers vie, and so nay le it on, the wayles not above a spanne distance one from another: the thicker they are driven, the better. Some hold opinion, that the Tarre killeth the worms; others, that the worms paffing the sheathing, and seeking a way through, the have and the Tarre so innolue, that bee is cheaked therewith; which mee thinkes is most probable: this manner of sheathing was innented by my Father; and experience hath taught it to be the best, and of least cost.

Such was the diligence we vied for our dispatch to shoot the Straits, that at foure dayes end, we had our water and wood flowed in our thip, all our Copper-worke finished, and our ship calked from Post to Stemme: the first day in the morning (the winde being faire) we brought our felues into the channell, and fayled towards the mouth of the Straites, praising God : and beginning our course with little winde, wee descried a fire voon the shoare, made by the Indiant The Naturalis for a figue to call vs; which feene, I caused a Boat to bee man'd, and wee rowed ashoare, to see what their meaning was, and approaching neere the shoare, we saw a Canoa made fast under a Rocke with a Wyth, most artificially made with the rindes of trees, and sewed together with the finnes of Whales; at both ends sharpe and turning vp, with a greene bough in either end, and ribbes for ftrengthening it. After a little while we might discerne on the fall of the Mountaine (which was full of trees and shrubs) two or three Indians naked, which came out of cer-

50 taine Caues or Cotes. They spake vnto vs, and made divers signes; now pointing to the Harbour, out of which we were come; and then to the mouth of the Straites : but we vnder flood nothing of their meaning. Yet left they vs with many imaginations, suspecting it might bee to adulfe vs of our Pinnace, or fome other thing of moment : but for that they were vnder couert, and might worke vs some treacherie (for all the people of the Straits, and the Land neere them, vse all the villanie they can towards white people, taking them for Spaniards, in revenge of the deceit that Nation hath vied towards them vpon fundry occasions:) as also for that by our stay wee could reape nothing but hinderance of our Nauigation, wee hafted to our ship, and sayled on our courfe.

From Blanches Bay to long Reach, which is some source leagues, the course lieth West South Long Reach. 60 west entring into the long Reach, which is the last of the Strates, and longest. For it is some thirtie two leagues, and the course lieth next of any thing North-west. Before the setting of Mouth of the the Sunne, wee had the mouth of the Straites open, and were in great hope the next day to be Straits. in the South Sea: bat about feuen of the clocke that night, we faw a great cloude arife out of the North-east, which began to cast forth great flashes of lightnings, and suddenly sayling with a fresh gale of winge at North-east, another more forcible tooke vs assayes, which put vs in danger: for, all our fayles being a taut, it had like to have overfee our fhip, before we could take in our favles. And therefore in all fuch femblances it is great wifedome to carrie a fhort fayle, or to take in all tayles. Here we found what the Indians fore-warned vs of : for they have great intight in the change of weather, and befides have fecret dealing with the Prince of Darkneffe. who many times declareth vnto them things to come : By this meanes and other witch-crafts. which he teacheth them, he possesseth them, and causeth them to doe what pleaseth him, Within halfe an houre it began to thunder and raine, with so much winde as wee were forced to lie a hull, and so darke, that we saw nothing, but when the lightning came. This being one of the narrowest Reaches of all the Straites, we were forced, every glasse, to open a little of our force fayle, to cast about our ships head ; any man may conceive if the night feemed long vnto vs. what defire we had to fee the day. In fine, Phabus with his beautifull face lightned our Hemiinhere, and reloyced our hearts (having driven aboue twentie foure leagues in twelve houres lying a hull : whereby is to be imagined the force of the winde and current.) Wee fet our fore tayle, and returned to our former Harbour : from whence , within three or foure dayes, we fet fayle againe with a faire winde, which continued with vs till we came with. in a league of the mouth of the Strait , here the winde tooke vs againe contrarie, and forced vs to return agains to our former Port : where being ready to anchor, the winds scanted with vs in such manner, as we were forced to make aboord. In which time, the winde and tide put vs fo farre to lee-wards, that we could by no meanes feize it : So wee determined to goe to Eliza- 20 beth Bay, but before we came at it, the night ouertooke vs: and this Reach being dangerous and narrow, we durit neither hull, nor trie, or turne to and againe with a fhort tayle, and therefore bare along it in the middelt of the channell, till we were come into the broad Reach, then lava

Note:

Tempeft.

When we fet tayle and ran alongst the coast, seeking with our Boate some place to anchor in;

fome four leagues to the Westwards of Cape Froward, we found a goodly Bay; which we named English Bay: where anchored, wee presently went ashoare, and found a goodly River of hull till the morning.

The nariues houses,

fresh water, and an old Canoa broken to pieces, and some two or three of the houses of the Indiant, with pieces of Seale stinking ripe. These houses are made in fashion of an Ouen seuen or eight foot broad, with boughs of trees, and couered with other boughes, as our Summer houses; 30 and doubtleffe doe ferue them but for the Summer time, when they come to fish, and profite themselues of the Sea. For they retire themselues in the Winter into the Countrie, where it is more temperate, and yeeldeth better instenance : for on the Mayne of the Straites, we neither faw beaft nor fowle . Sea-fowle excepted, and a kinde of Black-bird, and two Hogs towards the beginning of the Straits. Here our thip being well moored, we began to supplie our wood and water, that we had spent. Which being a dayes worke, and the winde during many dayes contrary, I endeauored to keep my people occupied, to divert them from the imagination which Sloth cause of fome had conceived; that it behoued we should returne to Brafill, and winter there, and so shoot the Straits in the Spring of the yeere. One day wee rowed up the River, with our Boate and Light-horfeman, to discouer it, and the Inland : where having spent a good part of the day, 49 and finding should water, and many Trees fallen thwart it, and little fruit of our labour, nor any thing worth the noting, wee returned. Another day, wee trained our people ashoare, being a goodly fandy Bay: another, wee had a hurling of Batchelors against married men; this day we were builed in wreftling, the other in shooting; so we were neuer idle, neither thought we the time long.

we were driven fo farre to lee-wards, that wee could not recover into the Bay; and night comming on, with a short sayle, we beate off and on till the morning. At the breake of the day conferring with the Captaine and Mafter of my flip, what was best to bee done, wee resolued to 50 feeke out Tobias Cone, which lieth over against Cape Fryo, on the Southerne part of the Straits. because in all the Reaches of the Straits (for the most part) the winde bloweth trade, and thereforelittle profit to be made by turning to winde-wards. And from the Ilands of the Penguini to the end of the Straites towards the South-fea, there is no anchoring in the channell; and if we should be put to lee-wards of this Come, we had no succour till we came to the llands of Pongwins; and fome of our companie which had been with M. Th. Candifb in the Voyage in which he died, and in the fame Come many weekes, vndertooke to be our Pilots thither. Whereupon wee bare vp, being fome two leagues thither, having fo much winde as we could fearce lie by it with our course and bonnet of each; but bearing up before the winde, we put out our Topsayles and Setting of the Spritfayle, and within a little while the winde began to fayle vs, and immediatly our flip gaue 60 a mightie blowe upon a Rocke, and flucke fast upon it. And had wee had but the fourth part of the winde, which we had in all the night past, but a moment before wee strucke the Rocke, cur tions God pro- ship, doubtlesse, with the blowe had broken her selse all to pieces.

After wee had past here some seuen or eight dayes, one evening with a flaw from the shoare, our ship droue off into the channell, and before wee could get vp our Anchor, and fet our Sayles,

All our labour was fruitlesse till God was pleased that the floud came, and then wee had been off with great iny and comfort, when finding the current fauourable with vs, wee flood over to Enally Bay, and fetching it, we anchored there, having beene fome three hours vpon the Rock, and with the blowe, as after we faw, when our ship was brought a ground in Perico (which is the Port of Panama) a great part of her sheathing was beaten off on both fides of her Bulses. and fome foure foot long , and a foot square of her falle stemme, joyning to the Keele , wrested scroffe, like vato a Hogs yorke, which hindered her fayling very much.

CHAP.5. $ 3. Crabby Coue. Sir Richard Hawkins bolde undertakings.

They founded a Cour fome fixteene leagues from the mouth of the Straite, which after wee Crabby Cone. raffed Crabby Cone. It brooked his name well for two causes; the one, for that all the water was fill of a small kinde of red Crabbes; the other, for the crabbed Mountaines which ouerstopped To it: a third wee might adde, for the crabbed entertainment it gaue vs. In this Coue wee anchored, but the windefreshing in, and three or foure Hills ouer-topping (like Sugar-loaues) aftered and thraight ned the patiage of the wind in such manner, as forced it downe with such violence in flawer and furious bluftrings, at was like to onerfet our thip at Anchor, and caused her to drive, and ws to weigh; but before we could weigh it, the was to neere the Rocks and the puffes and enths of wind fo fodden and vecertain, fomtimes feant, fomtimes large, that it forced vs to cut our Eable. and vet dangerousif our fhip did not east the right way. Here necessitie, not being subsect to any law, forced vs to put our felues into the hands of him that was able to delinet vs. Wee cut our Cable and Savle all in one infrant : And God to flew his power and gracious bouncie cowards ws, was pleafed that our thip cail the contrarie way towards the thoare, feeming that hee with 30 his owne hand did wend her about : for in leffe then her length, the flatted, and in all the Voyage but at that instant, shee flatted with difficultie, for that shee was long; the worst propertie shee had. On either fide we might fee the Rockes under vs, and were not halfe a ships length from the shoare, and if shee had once touched, it had beene impossible to have escaped. From hence wee returned to Blanches Bay, and there anchored, expecting Gods good will and pleature. Here beganne the bicternesse of the time to encrease with blustering and sharpe windes, accompanied with raine and fleeting flowe, and my people to bee difmaved againe, in manifesting a delire to returne to Brafill, which I would never content vnto , no , not fo much as

And all men are to take care, that they goe not one fince backs, more then is of meere force: for I Voyage ouer30 baies not seen, that any who have yetched thereunts, but presents they have returned homes. As in the throwne by giVoyage of Masser Edward Fencton; is that whole the Earls of Cumberland set for the to be great unsward. charge ; as alfo in that of Mafter Thomas Candilh, in which be died. All which pretended to shoots Edward Fenies the Straites of Magelan, and by persuasing of some ignorant persons, being in good possibilitie, were and Master brought to consent to returne to Brakill, to winter, and after in the Spring to attempt the passing of the Thimmacandish. Stratte againe. None of them minde any abode in Brafill : for prefently as foone as they looked fromewerd, one, with a tittle lieffering winde taketh occasion to lese companie; another complaineth, that be manueth victuals; another, that his ship is leake; another, that his mastes, sayles, cordidge sayleth him. So the willing never want probable reasons to further their pretences. As I saw once (being but young, and more bold then experimented) in the yeare 1,82. in a Voyage, under the clarge of my Uncle

40 William Hawkins of Plimourts, Efquire, in the Indies, at the Wester end of the Iland of San Ivan Master William de Portorico; One of the Ships (called the Barke bonner) being somewhat leake, the Captaine com- Hamins. playned that free was not able to endure to England : whereupon a Counfell was called, and bis reasons beard, and allowed. So it was concluded, that the Victuall, Munition, and what was serunceable, stould be taken out of her, and ber men divided amongst our other ships; the Hull remayning to be sinke, or burned. To which I never if ake word still I fam it resolved, being my part rather to learne; then to ad-mse. But seeing the satall sentence given, and suspecting that the Captaine made it worse then it was, rather upon policie to come into another ship, which was better of sayle, then for any danger they wright rumeinto: with as much reason as my capacitic could reach unto, I diswaded my Uncle privately; And orged, that feeing wee had profited the Adventurer, nothing, we should endeauour to preserve our principall, especially, busing men and victuals. But seeing I prenasted not, I went further, and offered

50 to finde out in the fame fine, and others, fo many men, as with me would be content to carrie ber home. guing us the trianger of the value of the lips, as free should be valued at, at her returne, by fine in-different person; and to sease the Vice-admirad, which I had under my charge, and to make ber Vice-different person; and to sease the Vice-admirad, which I had under my charge, and to make ber Viceadmirall. Whereupon it was condescended, that wee should all goe abourd the ship, and that there is should be determined. The Captaine thought himselfe somewhat touched in Reputation, and so would not that further triall should be made of the matter, saying, that if another man was able to carrie the Ship into England, he would in no case leave ber, neither would be for sake her till shee sunke under him. The Generall commended him for his resolution, and shanked me for my offer tending to the generall good; my intention being to force those who for gaine could undertake to carrie her home, should also doe it gra-60 tis, according to their Obligation. Thus, this leake-ship went well into England; where, after she made many a good Voyage in nine yeeres.

As the weather gaue leaue, wee entertained our felues the first dayes in necessirie affaites and workes, and after in making of Coale, with intent (the winde continuing long very contrarie) to fee if wee could remedie any of our broken Anchours; a Forge I had in my thip, and of fine Anchors which we brought out of England, there remained but one three was ferniceable.

In the Ilands of Penewins we loft one, in Crabbia Come another as third, vpon another occasion we broke an arme, and the fourth, on the Rocke had the eye of his Ring broken. This (one day deniting with my felfe) I made to ferue, without working him a new. Which when I tooke first in hand, all men thought it ridiculous : but in fine, we made it in that manner fo feruiceable ... as till our thin came to Callen, which is the Port of Lyma, thee fcarce vied any other Anchor, and when I came from Lyma to Panama, which was three yeeres after, I faw it ferue the Admirall in which I came (a ship of aboue 500, tuns) without other arte or addition, then what my ownein. uention contriued.

The mending of an unferniceable An-

And for that in the like necessitie, or occasion, others may profit themselves of the industrie. I will recount the manner of the forging our eye without fire, or Iron. It was in this fort. From the eve of the shanke, about the head of the crosse, we gaust wo tunnes with a new strong Hale fer, bet wixt three and foure inches, giving a reasonable allowance for that, which should be the eve, and ferued in fread of the Ring, then we fallned the two ends of the Haller, fo as in that part it was as ftrong as in any other, and with our Capften ftretched the two bightes, that every pare might beare proportionably, then armed we all the Halfer round about with fixe yarne Synnets, and likewise the shanke of the Anchor, and the head with a smooth Mat made of the fame Synnet : this done, with an inch Rope, we woolled the two bightes to the fhanke, from the croffe to the eve, and that also which was to sepre for the Ring, and fitted the stocke acces. M dingly. This done, those who before derided the invention, were of opinion, that it would ferre for need onely they put one difficultie, that with the fall or pitch of the Anchor in hard ground. with his waight he would cut the Halfer in funder on the head; for preuention whereof, we placed a panch (as the Mariners terme it) ypon the head of the Anchor, with whose softmess this danger was preuented, and the Ancher past for serviceable. Some of our idle time we spent in gathering the barke and fruit of a certaine Tree, which we them contayning within foure or fine granes, twice as bigge as a Mufferd-feed, which broken,

Tree, hath the fauour of all kinds of Spices together, most comfortable to the stomack, and held to bee better then any Spice whatfoer. And for that a learned Countriman of ours Doctor Twoner, hath written of it, by the name of Winters Barke, what I have faid may furfice. The leafe of Otherwhiles we entertained our felues in gathering of Pearles ont of Muscles, whereof there are abundance in all places, from Cape Fromard, to the end of the Straits. The Pearles are but of a bad colour, and small, but it may be that in the great Muscles in deeper water, the Pearles are bigger, and of greater value, of the small feed Pearle, there was great quantitie, and the Muscles were a great refreshing vnto vs : for they were exceeding good , and in great plentie. And opinion touching the breeding of these Pearles, which I thinke to be of a farre different nature and qualitie to those found in the East and West Indies, which are found in Oysters, growing in the shell, under the ruffe of the Oyster, some fay of the dew, which I hold to be some old Philosophers conceit, for that it cannot be made probable how the dew should come into the Oyster:

and if this were true, then, questionlesse, we should have them in our Oysters, as in those of the East and West Indies : but those Oysters were by the Creator, made to bring forth this rate fruit, all their shels being (to looke to) Pearle it selfe. And the other Pearles found in our Oyflers and Muscles, in divers parts are ingendred out of the fatnesse of the file, in the very lib-stance of the fish, so that in some Muscles have bin found twentie and thirtie, in severall parts of which are ever perfect in colour and cleerneffe, like the Sunne in his rifing, and therefore called

Orientall, and not (as is supposed) because out of the East, for they are as well found in the West, and no way inferiour to those of the East Indies. Other fish, besides Suales and Crabbes, the filh, and these not perfect in colour, nor cleernesse, as those found in the Pearle-ovilers, 50

here let mee craue pardon if I erre, feeing I disclaime from beeing a Naturalist, by deliuering my #

this Tree is of a whitih greene, and is not valike to the Afpen leafe.

Entertainment found in all places of the Straits, where we found Trees. This Tree carrieth his fruit in clufters like noid idlenesse. a Hawthorne, but that it is greene, each berry of the bignesse of a Pepper-corne, and enery of Akind of hor Spice in the are white within, as the good Pepper, and bite much like it, but hotter. The barke of this & Straits.

In gathering of Waters Barke.

O: Pearles in the Straits.

they breed.

like Shrimpes, and one Whale with two or three Porpules, we faw not in all the Seraits. Heere wee made also a furuay of our victuals, and opening certaine Barrels of Qatten meale, wee found a great part of some of them, as also of our Pipes and Fats of bread, eaten and confumed by the Rats; doubtleffe , a fift part my company did not eate fo much , as these denoured, as we found daily in comming to spend any of our provisions. When I came to the Sta, it was not suspected, that I had a Rat in my thip; but with the bread in Caske, which wee trans ported out of the Hawke, and the going to and againe of our Boats vnto our prize. (though wee 62 had divers Cats and yied other preventions) in a small time they multiplyed in such a manner, is incredible: It is one of the generall calamities of all long Voyages, and would be carefully preuented, as much as may be. For befides that which they confume of the best victuals, they eate the fayles; and neither packe, nor cheft, is free from their furprizes. I have knowne them to make a hole in a Pipe of water, and feying the Pumpe, have put all in feare, doubting left fome The calamine leak had bin fortung vpon the ship. Moreouer, I have heard credible persons report, that ships have they bring to a heene put in danger by them to be funke, by a hole made in the bulge. All which is eafily remedied at the first, but if once they be somewhat increased, with difficultie they are to be defiroied. And although I propounded a reward for every Rat which was taken, and fought meanes by poifon, and other inventions to confume them, yet their increase being so ordinary and many; wee were not able to cleare our felues from them.

At the end of fourteene dayes, one evening being calme, and a goodly cleare in the Eafter- Backwardness boord. I willed our Anchor to be weved, and determined to goe into the Channell, being gotten in the compato into the Channell, within an houre, the wind came good, and we failed merrily on our Voyage; ny. and by the breake of the day, we had the mouth of the Straits open and about foure of the clock in the afternoone, we were thwart of Cape Defire; which is the Westermost part of the Land Cape Defire.

e. IIII.

Entrance into the South Sea ; discovery of the South parts of the Straits to bee but Hands by Six FRANCI'S DRAKE (which the Hollanders afcribe to MAIRE and SCHOVTEN.) Of the Iland Mocha, and the parts adiovnino.

Rom Cape Defire, Some foure leagues, Northwest, lie foure Hands, which are very from Lap. 2-1917. South Part of Experience of Cape Define, and his fathion of a Sugar-loafe. We were no South part of fooner cleere of Cape Define, and his ledge of Rockes (which lie a great way off in. the Suries fooner cleere of Cape Define, and his ledge of Rockes (which lie a great way off in. the Suries footer of the West of the West of the Suries into the Sea two dayes and two nights to the Westwards. In all the Straits is abbeth and flow childlenge the eth more or leffe, and in many places it hieth very little water, but in some Bayes, where are discourry of on the Souther fide of the Straits.

30 great Indraughts, it higheth eight or ten foot, and doubtleffe, further in, more.

If a man be furnished with wood and water, and the winde good, hee may keepe the Mayne Mayre and Sea, and goe round about the Strairs to the Southwards, and it is the shorter way; for besides the fore twice fair experience which we made, that all the South part of the Seraits is bue Hands, many times ha- led about by uing the Sea open, I remember, that Sir Francis Drate told mee, that having fhot the Straits, a Sir F. Drate, ftorme tooke him first at North-west, and after vered about to the South-west, which continued See fap. the forme tooke him nirt at North-weit, and which him many dayes, with the extremitie, that he could not open any fayle, and that at the Preface to the with him many dayes, with the extremitie, that he could not open any fayle, and that of the Freede to the feed of the could not be the feed of the end of the storme, he found himselfe in fiftie degrees, which was sufficient testimony and proofe, terost ib a. that he was beaten round about the Straits, for the least height of the Straits is in fiftie two de- Sir F. Drefe grees and fifeie minutes; in which fland the two entrances or mouthes. And moreover, hee faid, imbraceth the 40 that flanding about, when the winde changed, hee was not well able to double the Southermost Southermost Iland, and so anchored under the lee of it; and going ashoare, carried a Compasse with him, and world, Since feeking out the Southermost part of the Hand, cast himselfedowne vpon the vttermost point this, in that groueling, and so reached out his bodie ouer it. Presently he imbarked, and then recounted vnto Voiage wherehis people, that he had beene vpon the Southermost knowne Land in the World, and more fur- in W. Adams ther to the Southwards upon it, then any of them, yea, or any man as yet knowne. These testi- was Pilot monies may fusfice for this truth vnto all, but fuch as are incredulous, and will beleeue nothing and sek. Wests but what they fee; for my part, I am of opinion, that the Straite is nauigable all the yeere long, ye have in the although the best time bee in November, December, and I anuary, and then the windes more fa- former Tome) uourable, which other times are variable, as in all narrow Seas.

Being some fiftie leagues a Sca-boord the Straits, the winde vering to the West-wards, wee rand one of stabout to the Northwards and lying the Confidence of the state of the 50 caft about to the Northwards; and lying the Coast along, shaped our course for the Iland Mocha. caried by tem-About the fifteenth of Aprill, we were thwart of Baldinia, which was then in the hands of the peff(as bey Spaniards, but fince the Indians, in Anno 1 1999. dilpolleffed them of it, and the Conception; which write to 64 de-Spaniards, but fince the Indians, in Anno 1999, disposited them of it, and the Loneyson with green South in are two of the most principal places they had in that Kingdome, and both Ports. Baldinia had which beight which beight its name of a Spanis Captaine fo called, whom afterwards the Indians tooke Priloner, and it is the country faid, they required of him the reason why hee came to molest them, and to take their Countrey was mountain from them, having no title nor right thereunto; he answered, to get Gold; which the barbarous nous & coueunderstanding, caused Gold to bee molten, and powred downe his throate, saying, Gold was thy red with snow, thy defire, glast these with it. It standeth in forty degrees, hath a pleasant Riuer and Nauigable; Nowes, I fee.

60 for a Ship of good burthen may goe as high wp as the Citie, and is a goodly Wood Countrey, med to extend Heere our Beefe began to take end, and was then as good, as the day wee departed from Eng. towards the Iland; it was preserved in Pickell , which, though it bee more chargeable, yet the profit payeth lands of Salo-Corder another of that fleet after professous fuseeffigin (bill, was taken by the Portugal at the Malucem, and carried to deale capit

foner, Mocha, Baldinia and Conception wonne from the Spaniards by the Indians, Beete kept moft fafely in Pickell.

the charge, in that it is made durable contrary to the opinion of many, which hold it impossible that Beete should be kept good passing the Equinocaiall Line. And of our Porke I cate in the house of Don Beltran de Castro in Lyma, neere foure yeeres olde, very good, preserued after the fame manner, notwithstanding, it had lost his Pickle long before.

Some degrees before a man come to Baldinia to the Southwards, as Spaniards have told mee. lyeth the lland Chule, not easily to be discerned from the Mayne; for he that passeth by it, cannot but thinke it to bee the Mayne. It is faid to bee inhabited by the Spaniards, but badly, yet rich of Gold.

Tland Mochs.

The nineteenth of Aprill, being Eafter-euen, we anchored under the lland Moche. It lyeth in thirty nine degrees, it may bee some foure leagues ouer, and is a high mountaynous Hill, but in round about the foot thereof, some halfe league from the Sea-shore, it is Champaine ground, wel inhabited and manured. From the Scraits to this Hand, we found, that either the Coast is fee out more Wester w then it is, or that we had a great current, which put vs to the Westwards; for wee had not fight of Land in three dayes after our reckoning was to fee it; but for that wee coafted not the Land, I cannot determine, whether it was caused by the current, or lying of the Land. But Spaniards which have Lyled along ft it, have told me, that it is a bold and fafe Coaft.

Note.

and reafonable founding of it. In this lland of Moche we had communication and contractation with the Inhabitants . hue with great vigilancie and care; for they and all the people of (bily, are mortall enemies to the Spaniards, and held vs to bee of them; and fo effeemed Sit Francis Drake, when hee was in this I- 20 land, which was the first Land also that hee touched on this Coast, They vied him with so fine a treachery, that they possessed themselves of all the Oares in his Boat, saving two, and in striving to get them also, they flue, and hurt all his men; himselfe who had fewest wounds, had three, and two of them in the head. Two of his company which lived long after, had, the one feventeene; his name was lohn Bruer, who afterward was Pilot with Mafter Candift; and the other Treacherie of aboue twentie, a Negro Seruant to Sir Francie Drake. And with me they vied a policie, which among fi barbarous people was not to be imagined, although I wrought fure ; for I fuffered pone to treate with me, nor with my people with Armes, Wee were armed, and met voon a Rocke compassed with water, whether they came to parley and negotiate. Beeing in communication with the Caliques, and others, many of the Indians came to the heads of our Boates, and some went into them. Certaine of my people standing to defend the Boats with their Oares, for that there went a bad fege, were forced to lay downe their Muskets, which the Indiana perceiuing, endeauoured to fill the barrels with water, taking it out of the Sea in the hollow of their hands By chance casting mine eye aside, I discoursed their slynesse, and with a Truncheon, which I had in mine hand, gaue the Indians three or four good Lambeskinnes. The sheepe of this Iland are great, good, and fat; I have not tasted better Mutton any where,

They were as ours, and doubtleffe of the breed of those, which the Spaniards brought into the Countrey. Of the sheepe of the Countrey, wee could by no meanes procure any one, although we faw of them, and vied meanes to have had of them. This Hand is fittuite in the Province of Aranes, and is held to bee peopled with the mon va- & liant Nation in all Chily, though generally the Inhabitants of that Kingdome are very cours-Their apparel, gious. They are clothed after the manner of antiquitie, all of woollen; their Castockes made like a Sacke, square, with two holes for the two armes, and one for the head; all open below, without lining or other art : but of them, some are most curiously wouen, and in colours, and on both fides alike. Their houses are made round, in fashion like voto our Pidgeon houses, with a loner in the top, to enacuate the smoake when they make fire. They brought vs a strange kinde of Tobacco, made into little cakes, like Pitch, of a bad fmell, with holes through the middle, and Strange Tofo laced many upon a string. The people of this lland, as of all Chily, are of good stature, and well People of chily made, and of better countenance then thole Indians which I have feene in many parts. They are Their weapons of good understanding, and agilitie, and of great strength; Their weapons are Bowes, and Ar- 19 rowes and Macanas, their Bowes short and strong, and their Arrowes of a small Reed, or Cane, three quarters of a yard long, with two Feathers, and headed with a flint-flone, which is loofs, and hurting, the head remaineth in the wound, some are headed with bone, and some with hard wood . halfe burnt in the fire. We came betwixt the Iland and the Mayne: On the South-west part of the Hand lieth a great ledge of Rockes, which are dangerous; and it is good to be carefull how to come too neere the Hand on all parts.

Their hate to

Immediatly when they discourred vs, both upon the Hand and the Mayne, wee might see them make fundry great fires, which were to give aduice to the rest of the people to bee in a readinesse: for they have continuall and mortall warre with the Spaniards, and the shippes they sec, they believe to be their Enemies. The Citie Imperial lyeth over against this Iland, but eight or 60 ten leagues into the Countrey : for all the Sea-coaft from Baldinia, till thirtie fixe Degrees, the Indians have now (in a manner) in their hands free from any Spaniards.

Having refreshed our selves well in this Iland, for that little time we staved, which was some three dayes we fet fayle with great by, and with a faire winde fayled along it the Coast, and fome eight leagues to the North-wards, wee anchored agains in a goodly Bay, and fent our Roars ashoare, with delire to speake with some of the Indians of Aranea, and to see if they would be content to entertaine amitie, or to chop and change with vs. But all that night and the next morning appeared not one person, and so we set faile againe; and towards the Evening the wind began to change, and to blow contrary, and that so much, and the Sea to rise so fuddenly, that wee could not take in our Boats, without spoyling of them. This storme A cruelforese continued with vs tenne dayes beyond expectation, for that wee thought our felues out of the in the Sea of Climate of fowle weather, but truely it was one of the sharpest stormes that ever I felt to en- Ladies. In it

The storme tooke end, and we shaped our course for the Iland of Saint Maries, which lyeth in Saint Maries thirtie feuen degrees and fortie minutes, and before you come vnto the lland fome two leagues. in the Trade way lieth a Rocke, which afarre off, feemeth to be a thip under fayle. This Hand is little and low, but fertill and well peopled with Indians and fome few Spaniards in it. Some ten leagues to the Northwards of this Iland, lieth the Citie Conception, with a good Port; from City of Conthis wee coasted alongst till wee came in thirtie three degrees and forty minutes. In which ception, height lay the Hands of Inan Fernandes, betwire threefcore and fourefcore leagues from the inan Fernandes, shoare, plentifull of fish, and good for refreshing. I purposed for many reasons not to discover my felfe vpon this Coaft, till we were patt Lyma, (otherwise called Cinidad de los Reres, for that Good to another it was entred by the Spaniard the day of the three Kings;) but my company viged me to farre, that discourre.

20 except I should seeme in all things to over-beare them, in not condiscending to that which in the opinion of all (but my felfe) feemed profitable and best . I could not but yeeld vnto, though it carried a false colour, as the end prooued, for it was our perdition. This all my company knoweth to be true, whereof tome are yet living, and can give testimonie. But the Mariner is ordinarily so carried away with the defire of Pillage, as sometimes for Wilfulnesses the greedinesse of spoile, onely hoped for in ships of Trade, which goe too and fro in this Coaft. blinded them from forecasting the perill, whereinto wee exposed our Voyage, in discouering our felues before we past the Coast of Callas, which is the Port of Lyma; To bee short, wee haled the Coast abourd, and that Euening wee discourred the Port of Valperize, 30 which ferueth the Citie of Saint lego, flanding some twentie legues into the Countrey; when presently wee descried source shippes at an Anchor: whereopon wee manned, and armed our Boate, which rowed towards the shippes: they seeing vs turning in , and sea. They seize very appearances of small moment, he looseth his Voyage, and many times himselfe. And so Mariners, ring that which was, ranne ashoare with that little they could faue; and left vs the rest: vpon some whereof, wee were Masters in a moment, and had the rifling of all the Store-houses on This night, I fet a good guard in all the shippes, longing to see the light of the next morning, to put all things in order; which appearing, I beganne to furuay them, and found nothing of moment, faue fine hundred Botozios of Wine, two or three thousand of Hennes, and some refreshing of Bread, Bacon, dryed Beefe, Waxe, Candles, and other necessaries. 40 The rest of their lading was plankes, Sparres, and Timber, for Lyma, and the Valleyes, which is a rich Trade; for it hath no Timber, but that which is brought to it from other places. They had also many packs of Indian Mantles (but of no value vnto vs) with much Tallow, and Manteca de Puerce, and abundance of great new Chefts, in which we had thought to bee fome great masse of wealth, but opening them, found nothing but Apples therein; all which was good Merchandize in Lyma, but to vs of smal account. The Merchandize on shore, in their store-boules And the Wares was the like, and therefore in the fame predicament. The Owners of the ships gauevs to yn- houses. derstand, that at a reasonable price they would redeeme their ships and loading, which I harkened vnto; and fo admitted certaine persons which might treate of the matter, and concluded with them for a small price, rather then to burne them, souring for the greatest, which I carried with me, more to give latisfaction to my people, then for any other respect; because they would 50 not be perswaded, but that there was much Gold hidden in her; otherwise she would have yeelded vs more then the other three. Being in this Treaty, one morning, at the breake of day, came another ship towring into the harbor, and standing into the shoare, but was becalmed. Against her we manned a couple of Boats, and tooke her before many houres. In this ship we had some good quantitie of Gold, which shee had gathered in Baldsnia, and the Conception, from whence shee came. Of this ship was Pilot, and part owner, Alonso Perezbuene, whom we kept for our Pilot on this Coast; till moved with compation (for that he was a man charged with wife and children) we fet him alhoare betwixt They feize Sama and Truxillo. Out of this ship we had also store of good Bacon, and some prouision of Bread, upon another 60 Hens, and other victuall. We gaue them the ship, and the greatest part of her loading freely. this, and other victual. We gate them the hip, and the greater part of her adding receiv.

Sold.

Here wee (spipled our want of Anchors, though not according to that which was requirte, gold.

Here wee (spipled our want of Anchors, though not according to that which was the spipled our want of Anchors to the spipled our want of Anchors to the spipled our want of Anchors to the spipled our want of the spipled ou in regard of the burden of our ship; for in the South Sea, the greatest Anchor for a ship of sixe brought from or eight hundred tunnes, is not a thousand waight; partly, because it is little subject to the North Sea. formes, and partly, because those they had till our comming, were all brought out of the North

And the first Artillerie.

1394

Sea by Land; for they make no Anchors in these Countreyes. And the first Artillerie they had, was alio brought ouer Land; which was fmall, the carriage and passage from Nombre de Dies, or Porte Bello to Pasawa, being most difficult and steepe, vp hill and downe hill, they are all carried your Negroes backes. But some yeeres before my imprisonment, they fell to making of Artillery and tince they torge Anchors alto. We furnished our ship also with a shift of failes of Cotroncloth, which are farre better in that Sea, then any of our double fayles, for that in all the Nanigation of that Sea, they have little raine and few ftormes, but where raine and ftormes are ordinary, they are not good; for with the wet they grow fo fliffe, that they cannot be handled.

In treating of the rantomes, and transporting and lading the prouisions were made choice of wee ipent lome fixe or eight dayes, at the end whereof, with reputation amongst our enemies, la and a good portion towards our charges and our thip as well stored and victualled, as the day we departed from England, we fet favle.

They depart from Lyna.

Sato.

Wine.

The enemy

lefted ince-

The time we werein this Port, I took small rest, and so did the Master of our ship, Hugh Cor. nifh, a most carefull orderly, and sufficient man, because wee knew our owne weaknesse; sor entrine into the Harbour, wee had but feuentie fine men and boyes, fine thips to guard, and energy and conceale one moored by himielte, which (no doubt) if our enemies had knowne, they would have wrought some stratagem vpon vs; for the Gouernour of Chily was there on shoare in view of vs. an ancient Flanders Souldier, and of experience, wildome, and valour, called Don Alonfo de Sota The noblen s Mayor, of the nable of Saint lage, who was after Captaine Generall in Terra firme, and wrought all the inventions vpon the River of Chagree, and on the shoare, when Sir Francis Drake purpo. in fed to goe to Panama, in the Voyage wherein he died. As allo at my comming into Spaine, bee was Prefident in Panama, and there, and in Lyma, vied mee with great courtefie, like a Noble Souldier, and liberall Gentleman; hee confessed to mee after, that hee lay in ambush, with three hundred horie and foot, to fee if at any time we had landed, or neglected our watch, with Balfat, rous then the which is a certaine Rate made of Maits or Trees fastened together, to have attempted something against vs. Bu the enemy I seared not so much as the Wine; which, notwithstanding all the diligence and preuencion I could vie day and night, ouerthrew many of my people, A foule fault, because too common among it Sea-men, and deserueth some rigorous pumshment with seueritie

ne Bay.

small Hand, neere the shoare, under which, for a need, a man may rice with his ship. It is a good marke, and fure figne of the Port, and discovering the Bay a man must give a good birth to the Note of tides. Harbour; for it hath perillous Rockes lying a good distance off. It neither ebbeth nor floweth in this Port, nor from this, till a man come to Guayaquil, which is three degrees from the Equino. chall Line to the Sou h-wards; let this be confidered. It is a good Harbour for all winds, that partake not of the North; for it runneth vp South and by West, and South South-west, but it hath much foule ground. In one of these ships we found a new deutee for the stopping of a sudden leake in a ship under for fipping a water, without board, when a man cannot come to it within boord; which was, taking around leake without wi ker Basket, and to fill it with pieces of a lunke or Rope chopped very small, and of an inch 40 long, and after tozed all as Oacombe; then the Basket is to bee conered with a Net, the Melhes of it being at the least two inches square, and after to be tied to a long Pike or Pole, which is to goe a crosse the Baskets mouth, and putting it vider water, care is to be had to keepe the Baskets mouth towards the ships side : if the leake bee any thing great, the Oacombe may bee somewhat longer, and it carrieth likelihood to doe good, and feemeth to bee better then the stitching of a Spar: Rudders Bonnet; or any other diligence, which as yet I have feene. Another thing I noted of these ships, which would be also vied by vs; that every ship carrieth with her a spare Rudder, and they have them to hang and vnhang with great facilitie : and besides, in some part of the ship, they have t' e ength, breadth, and proportion of the Rudder marked out, for any mischance that may befall them; which is a very good preuention.

A lague or better before a man discouer this Bay to the South-wards, lieth a great Rocke, or B

Ten leagues to the Northwards of this Harbour, is the Bay of Quintera, where is good ancho ring, but an open Bay; where Mafter Thomas Candilo (for the good hee had done to a Spaniard' in bringing him out of the Straits of Magellan, where, otherwife, hee had perifhed with his company) was by him betrayed, and a doozen of his men taken and flaine: But the judgement of Ingratitude God left not his ingratiude enpunished; for, in the fight with vs, in the Vice-admirall, he was punified. wounded and may med in that manner, as three yeeres after, I faw him begge with crutches, and in that miserable estate, as he had beene better dead, then aliue.

Coquinbo.

thwart the place, we were becalmed, and had light of a ship : but for that she was farre off, and night at hand, the got from vs, and we having winde entred the Port, thinking to have had tome 60 shipping in it; but we lost our labour : and for that the Towne was halfe a league vo in the Countrey, and we not manned for any matter of attempt, worthy profecution, we made no abode on Excellent har- the shoare; but presently set sayle for the Pern. This is the best Harbour that I have feene in the South Sea, it is land-locked for all winds, and capeable of many shippes; but the ordinary place where the ships lade, and valade, and accommodate themselves, is betwint a Rocke and the Mayne on the Wester side, some halfe a league vp within the entrance of the Port, which lieth South, and South and by East, and North and by West. In the in-countrie, directly over the Port, is a round piked hill, like a Sugar loate, and before the entrance on the Southerne point of the Port comming in, out of the Sea, is a great Rocke, a good birth from the shoare ; and these are the markes of the Port, as I remember.

From Balparizo, wee fayled directly to Coquinbo, which is in thirtie degrees, and comming

Being cleave of this Port, we shaped, our cause for Arice, and left the Kingdomes of Chile, dies in chip. one of the best Countries that the Sun shineth on: for it is of a temperate climate, and abounding mended, in all things necessarie for the use of man, with infinite rich Mynes of Gold, Copper, and fundry to other metrals. The poorest houses in it, by report of their Inhabitants, have of their owne flore. Bread, Wine, Fleir, and Frust; which is fo plentifull, that of their superfluitie they supplie other parts: fundrie kindes of cattell; as Hosfes, Goates, and Oxen brought thither by the Spa- For all forts of miards, are found in heards of thousands, wilde, and without owner; beliefes those of the Counfruits. trie, which are common to most parts of America: in some of which are found the Bezar Stones, and those very good and great. ... Amongst others they have little beasts, like voto a Squirrell, but that hee is grey, his akinne Chinchilla a is the most delicate fort, and curious Furre that I have leepe of much estimation, (as is reafon) rate beast. in the Pern ; few of them come into Spaine, because difficult to be come by, for that the Princes and Nobles lay waite for them, they call this beaft Chinchills, and of them they have great a-20 bundance. All fruits of Spaine, they have in great plentie, faving flore fruit, and Almonds : for in no part of the Indies, have I knowne, that Plummes, Cherries, or Almonds have borne fruit : but they have certaine little round Cocos, as those of Brafil, of the bigneffe of a Wall-nut, which is as good as an Almond & buildes, it hath most of the fruits naturall to America. The Gold they gather, is in two manners; the one is washing the earth in great Trayes of wood in And plente of many waters; as the earth wasteth away, the Gold in the bottome remaineth. The other is. by force of Art. to draw it out of the Mynes, in which they finde it. In most parts of the Gountrie, the earth is mingled with Gold; for the Barrain (in which the Winewas) which wee found in Balpharizo, had many fourkes of Gold thining in them. Of it the Gold-fruths I carried with me (for like purpofes) made experience.

When Baldinia and Aranca were peaceable, they yeelded greatest plentie, and the best: but now, their greatest Mynes are in Coquinbo; as also the Mynes of Copper, which they carrie to the Peru, and sell it better cheape, then it is ordinarily told in Spanne. Inc Industry Browsing the end of the Spanner's modeltation, to be principally that defire of their riches, have enabled the end of the Spanner's modeltation, to be principally that defire of their riches, have enabled the end of the Spanner's modeltation and the spanner's continuous services are the spanner's continuous services and the spanner's continuous services are the spanner's continuous services and the spanner's continuous services are the spanner's continuous services rie to the Peru, and fell it better cheape, then it is ordinarily fold in Spaine. The Indians know. The Indians but every howre of raine, is a howre of Gold when them ; forwith the violence of the water a flowre of falling from the Mountaines, it bringeth from them the Gold : and besides, gives them water to gold, wash it out, as also for their ingenious to worke; so that ordinarily every weeke they have Processions for raine. Designation of the second

In this Kingdome they make much lianen and woollen Cloth, and great flore of Indian Man. Linnen and 40 tles, with which they furnish other parts, but all in coarse stuffe It hath no Silke , nor Iron , ex- woollen cloth cept in Mynes, and those as yet not discouered. Lewrer is well esteemed, and so are fine linnen, quinto. woollen cloth, Haberdashers wares, edge-tooles, and Armes, or Munition. It hath his Gouernour, and Audiencia, with two Bishops: the one of Saint lage, the other of the Imperial; all under the Vice-toy, Audiencia, and Primate of Lyma. Saint Lago is the Metropolitan and Head of the Kingdome, and the feate of Iustice, which hath his appellation of Lymas

The people are industrious and ingenious, of great strength, and inmincible courage; as in the The valour of warres, which they have fulfained about fortie yeeres continually against the Spaniards, hath the araweans, beene experienced. For confirmation whereof, I will alledge onely two proofes of many : the one was of an Indian Captaine, taken prifoner by the Spannerds; and for that, hee was of name

30 and knowne to have done his denoire against them, they cut off, his hands, thereby intending to difenable him to fight any more against them : bur he returning home, delirous to revenge this injurie, to maintain his liberty, with the reputation of his nation, and to helpe to banish the Span. with his tongue intreated & incited them to perfeuere in their accustomed rator and reputation abasing the enemie, and advancing his Nation; condemning their contraries cowardlinesse, and confirming it by the cruelty vied with him, and others his companions in their milhaper thewing them his armes without hands, & naming his brethren, whole halfe feet they hadeut off, because they might be vnable to fit on horfebacke with force, arguing, that if they feared them not, they would not have vied to great inhumanitie; for feare produceth crueltie, the companion of towardife. Thus encouraged he them to fight for their lines, limbes, and libertie, choosing rather so 60 die an honourable death fighting , then to live in feruitude, as fruitleffe, members in their Common-wealth. Thus, ving the office of a Sergeant Major , and having loden his two stumpes with bundles of Arrowes, succoured those, who in the acceeding battell had their store walled, and changing himselfe from place to place, animated and encouraged his Countri-men, with such comfortable perswalions, as it is reported, and credibly beleeused, that hee did much more good with his words, and prefence, without striking a stroke, then a great part of the Armie did with fishting to the vemoft.

The other proofe is, that fuch of them as fight on horsebacke, are but sightly armed, for that their Armour is a Beatts hide, ficced to their body, greene, and after worne till it be drie and hard He that is heft armed, hath him double : yet any one of them with their Armes, and with his Launce, will fight hand to hand with any Spaniard armed from head to foot. And it is credible reported, that an Indian being wounded through the bodie by a Spaniardi Launce, with his own hands hath crept on vpon the Launce, and come to grapple with his Aduerfarie, and both fallen to the ground together. By which is feene their refolution and unuincible courage, and the defire they have to maintayne their reputation and libertie.

The mischiefe

This let me manifest, that there have beene and are certaine perfons, who before they goe to Sea, sither robbe part of the promisions, or in the buying, make penurious, unwholfome, and amaritions penus worths ; and the last I hold to be the least; for they robbe onely the Villnallers and owners, but the an thers fleate from owners, villuallers, and companie, and are many times the enely emersbrowers of the Vorace . for the companie thinking themselves to be stored with foure or fixe moneths Victuals , voin furmay, they finde their Bread, Beefe or Drinke hore; yea, perhaps all, and fo are forced to feeke home in time of best bopes and employment. Thu unfabiefe is most ordinarie in great altions. Lastly, fome are fo cunning, that they not onely make their Voyage by robbing before they goe to Sea, but of that allo which commeth bome. Such Gameflers, a weferman of our Nation refembled to the Mill on the River of Thames, for grinding both with floud and obbe: So, these at their going out, and comming bone, to will be fore to robbe all others of their shares.

Of d-tayning dingo: wages,

But the greatest and most principall robberic of all, in my opinion, is the defrauding or the detarning of the Companies thirds or wages, accur fed by the inft God, who forbiddesh the hore of the labourer to fleep with vs. To fuch I fleake, at enther abuse themselves in detayning at ; or elfe to such at force the poore man to fell it at vile and lowe prices: And lastly, to such as upon famed causts and suits, doe deterre the simple and ignorant fort from their due profecutions: which being too much in vie amonost vs. hatb bred in those that follow the Sea a sealousie in all employments, and many times can (eth mutinies and infinise inconneniences. To prenent this, a Chift with three lockes was appointed: I kept one, the Mafter another, the third one chosen by the Companie.

Of Mariners by challenge of Pillage.

No life worthie reformation are the generall abuses of Mariners and Souldiers, who robbe all they is can, under the colour of Pillage; and after make Ordnance, Cables, Sayles, Auchors, and all about Deckes to belong unto them of right; whether they goe by thirds or wages: this proceedeth from those pilfering warres, wherein enery Gallan that can arme out a Ship, taketh upon him the name and office of a Captaine , not knowing what to command, or what to execute. Such Commanders for the most part confort and some unto themselves desorderly persons, Pirates, and Ruffians, under the title of men of valour and experience: they meeting with any Prize, make all upon the Deckes theirs of dutie, Oc.

In the time of warre in our Countrie, as also in others, by the lawes of Oleron (which to our anci-Ourse, concet- ent Seamen were fundamentall) nothing is allowed for Pillage but Apparell, Armes, Instruments, and other necessaries belonging to the per fons, in that firp which is taken : and these to, when the ship is gained by dint of fword; with a promise, that if any particular Pillage, exceed the value of fixe crowner, it may be redeemed for that value, by the generall flocke, and fold for the common benefit. If the prize render it felfe without forcible entrie, all in generall ought to be preferred and fold in mafe, and fo equally dinided; yea, though the fine be wonne by force and entrie, yet what former belongeth to her of takling, Sayles, or Ordnance, is to be preserved for the generalitie: faying a Poece of Artillerrie for the Captaine ; another for the Gunner, and a Cable and Ancher for the Mafter, which are the rights due unto them; and these to be delinered, when the shop is in safety, and in harbour, either unloden or sold: which Law or Custome well considered, will rife to be more beneficial for the Owners, Victuallers, and Companie, then the diforders newly crest in and before remembred. For the Sayles , Cables , Anchors, and Hull, being fold (enery one share) yeeld not the one halfe which they would doe if they were fold as ? together, besides the excusing of charges, and rebberies in the unlading and parting.

In the warres of France, in the time of Queene Marie, and in other warres (at I baue heard of many ancient Captames) the Companichad but the fourth part, and enery man bound to bring with him the Armes, with which be would fight e which in our time, I have knowne also wied in France : and if the Companie vill waled them selves, they had then the one halfe, and the Owners the other halfe for the ship. powder, Shot, and munision. If any Prinewere taken, it was fold by the tunne, Soip and goods, so as the loading permitted it; that the Merchant basing beught the goods, bee might prefeutly transport them whicher foener he would: By this manner of proceeding, all rested contented, all being truly payd; for this was just dealing, if any deferned reward, he was recompensed out of the generall stocke. If any one had filebed or folne, or commutted offence, be bad likewife bis defert : and who once was knowne to be a difordered per fon, or a thiefe, no man would receive him into his /hip : whereas now a dayes many vaunt thomfelues of their thefts and diforders ; yea, I have feene the common fort of Mariners, under the name of pillage, maintaine and instific their robbertes most institutely before the Queens Maiesties Commissioners, with arrogant and unfermly termes. Opinion hash held fuch for tall fallowes, when in truth, they news prove the best men in deficult occasions. For their mendes are all fet on spoyle, and can be well contented to suffer their affociates to beare the brunt, whilest they are prolling after pillage, the better to gaine and Note or brand to suffer their affectates to vente to trans, would be so need to places. For the orderly and quiet men, a tather to talk maintaine to a go. Localions to be of best use, most valuant, and of greatest sufficiency. Tet I condemne gred sellowes, wante but those who will be reputed valuant, and are not, examine the accusation. All what somer is Whit ought nave found upon the Decke, going for Merchandife, is exempted out of the censure of pillage; Silkes, Linnen, to be reputed Junu Up. Collen cloth in whole pieces, Apparell, that goeth to be fold, or other goods what foener (though they be pillage. intermants) manifolily knowne to bee carried for that end; or being comprehended in the Register, or Bills of lading, are not to be contained under the name of Pillage.

10 But as I have faid of the confort, so can I not but complaine of many Captainet and Gonernours, who But at 1 bane just of incomport, pie an "no one component of more parameter an observant, more against the outcome with the greedy defire of game, considered to the functioning and happressing of the ancient attorphises of displaying of the ancient attorphises of displaying of the control production of displaying of the control production of displaying of the production of displaying of the production of displaying the production of displaying of the d absent themselues, till the beate be past, and partition made. Some of these canse the Bills of lading to be cast into the Sea, or so to be bidden, that they never appeare. Others send away their prisoners, who De cast into the den, or jou our counter, alors, very never appears. Over seen a more tours projected, who seem times are more worth then the sips and the clading, decarfe they should not discourt their seers slotue tressare: for many times, that which is less out of the Register or Bills of lading (with purpose to de-tressare: for many times, that which is less out of the Register or Bills of lading (with purpose to defrand the Prince of his Customes (in their conceits, beld to be excessive) is of much more value, then Concealmentthat which the ling and lading is worth. Tes, I have knowne flips worth two hundred thou and pounds, of much more that which the hip and lading is worth. Ies, i name knowne into two owners a two man permit, value, then the and better, cleane swept of their principal riches, nothing but the bare bulke being left unsached. The Trading.

20 like may be forken of that which the diforderly Marmer, and the Souldier termeth Pillage. My Father, Sir John Hawkins, in bis infructions, in actions under his charge, had this particular The orenen-

Associe: That who seemer rendred, or tooke any shop, should be bound to exhibite the Bill; of lading; to tion of vadue keepe the Captaine, Master, Merchants, and persons of account, and to bring them to him to be examined, pillagings. or into England : If they should bee by any accident separated from him, what socuer was found wanting or into Engrand : as well was to be made good by the Captaine and Companie, which tooke the Ship, and this upon great punishments.

Running along it the coast, till wee came within few leagues of Arica, nothing happened vnto vs of extraordinarie noueltie or moment, for wee had the Breze fauourable, which feldome happeneth in this climate, finding our felues in 19. degrees, wee haled the shoare close aboord.

30 purpoling to see, if there were any shippi g in the Road of Arica. It flandeth in a great large Bay, with in 18. degrees : and before you come to it, a league to the Southwards of the Road and Towne, is a great round Hill, higher then the reft of the land of the Bay, neere about the Towne: which we having discouered, had light presently of a small Barque, close aboord the shoare becalmed; manning our Boat, wee tooke her, being loden with fish from Moormerene; which is a goodly Moormerene head-land, very high, and lieth betwixt 24. and 25. degrees, and whether ordinarily some Ba ques vie to goe a fifhing euery yeere.

In her was a Spaniard and fixe Indians; The Spaniard, for that he was neere the shoare, Swam voto the Rockes, and though we offered to returne him his barke, and fish (as was our meaning) yet he refuled to accept it, and made vs answere, that he durft not, for feare lest the lustice should 40 punish him. In to great subjection are the poore vinto those who have the administration of Theseneride Inflice in those parts, and in most parts of the Kingdomes and Countries Subject to Spaine. Info. of Spaine. much, that to heare the Iuftice to enter in at their deores, is to them defiredtion and defolation : for this cause wee carried her alongst with vs. In this meane while, wee had sighe of another tall ship, comming out of the Sea, which wee gaue chase vnto, but could not fetch vp, being too good of fayle for vs. Our small Prize and Boate standing off vnto vs , descried another (hippe, which they chaired and tooke also, loden with fish, comming from the Ilands of

After we opened the Bay and Port of Arica, but feeing it cleane without thipping, wee haled the coast along ft, and going aboord to visite the bigger Prize, my Companie faluted mee with 50 a vollie of (mall fhot. Amongst them one Musket brake, and earried away she hand of him that shorie, through his owne default, which for that I have seene to happen many times, I thinke it necessary to note in this place, that others may take warning by his harme. The cause of the Muskets breaking, was the charging with two bullets, the powder being ordayned to carrie but the weight of one, and the Musket not to fuffer two charges, of powder or shot. By this overfight, the fire is restrained with the ouerplus of the weight of shot, and not being able to torce both of them out, breaketh all to pieces, fo to finde a way to its owne Centre.

And I am of opinion, that it is a great errour, to proue great Ordnance, or small shot, with double charges of powder, or flot; my reason is, for that ordinarily the mettall is proportioned to the waight of the fhot, which the Peece is to beare, and the powder correspondent to the 60 waight of the bullet : and this being granted, I fee no reason why any man should require to proue his peece with more, then is belonging to it of right: for I have feene many goodly peeces broken with fach trials, being cleane without hony combes, cracke, flawe, or other perceauable blemish, which no doubt, with their ordinary allowance would have served many yeares. If I should make choice for my felfe, I would not willingly, that any peece should come into Fore, or ship (vnder my charge) which had borne at any time more then his ordinary allowance, mife doubting, leaft through the violence of the double charge, the Peece may be crafed within, or fo forced, as at another occasion, with his ordinary allowance he might breake in peeces : how man ny men fo many mindes : for to others, this may feeme harfh, for that the contrary cuftome harh fo long time beene received, and therefore I submit to better experience, and contradict not but that in a demy culturing, a man may put two Saker or Minion shots, or many of smaller waight: and fo in a Musket, two Calieuer shot, or many smaller, so they exceede not the ordinary waight. prescribed by proportion, art, and experience. Haurng visited our prizes, and finding in them nothing but fish, we tooke a small portion for expert (wim-

Their m.!?

ming.

our victualling, and gave the bigger Ship to the Spaniards againe, and the leffer wee kept with purpose to make her our Pinnace. The Indians (which we tooke in her) would by no meanes depart from vs, but defired to goe with vs for England, laying that the Indian and English were brothers; and in all places where wee came, they shewed them selves much affectionated vators. Thefe were Natiues of Moremorene, and the most brutish of all that ever I had feene ; and except it were in forme of men and speech, they seemed altogether voide of that which appertuined to reasonable men. They were expert swimmers, but after the manner of Spaniels, they diue, and abide vinder water a long time, and fwallow the water of the Sea, as if it were of a fresh River, except a man fee them, he would hardly believe how they continue in the Sea, as if they were Mermaides, and the water their naturall Element. Their Countrie is most barren, and poore of foode fif they take a fish aline out of the Sea, or meete with a peece of salted fish, they will de- an uppre it without any dreffing, as favourly as if it had beene most curiously fodden or dreffed, all which makes me believe, that they fuffaine themselves of that which they catch in the Sea. The Spaniar ds profit themselves of their labour and travell, and recompence them badly, they are in worfe condition then their flaues, for to those they give fustenance, house-roome, and clothing, and teach them the knowledge of God; but the other they vie as beafts, to doe their labour without wages, or care of their bodies or foules.

The Viceror fends an Armado against the English; which viewesh them and resur. neth : is againe fet forth : their fight; the English reelde voon composition : Diners martial discourses.

Bay of Pifce. CapeSangalean Chilca. Aduise ginen by Sea and

Y generall accord we ested our felues of a leake prife, and continued our course alongst the coast, till we came thwart of the Bay of Price, withich yeth within 15 degrees and 15 minutes. Presently after we was a large of the Bay of Price, within 15 degrees and 15: minutes. Presently after we were cleare of Cape Sangalean, and his llands, we ranged this Bay with our Boate and Pinnace. It hath two small Ilands in it, but without fruite, and being becalmed, we anchored two dayes thwart of Chilea.

By Sea and by Land, those of [1919 had given advise to Don Garsia Hiertado de Mendoca, Marquis of Canete, Vice-roy of Pern, refident in Lima, of our being on the Coast. He prefently with all possible diligence, put out fix Ships in watlike order, with well neere two thousand men, and dispatched them to feeke vs, and tought with vs, vider the conduct of Don Behrian de Castro Tdelatuca, his wives brother; who departing out of the Port of Callao, turned to wind-ward, in fight ouer the shore, from whence they had daily intelligence, where wee had beene discouered, And the next day after our departure out of Chilea, about the middle of May, at breake of day, we had light each of other, thwart of Camete, we being to wind-wards of the Spanish Armado. some two leagues, and all with little or no winde. Our Pinnace or prize being furnished with Oafes came vitto vs, out of which we thought to haue taken our men, and fo to leave her; but to being able to come victo vs at all times, it was held for better, to keepe her till necessitie forced vs to leave her ; and fort was determined, that if we came to likelificod of boording, the flouid lay our Boate aboord, and enter all her men, and from thence to enter our Ship, and io to forfake her : Arthough by the scient in that occasion, this proved good, not withflanding I hold it to be reproued, where the enemy is farre laperiour in multitude and force, and able to come and boord, if hellit : and that the fureit course, is to fortifie the principall, and the best that may be, and to cut off all impediments, where a man is forced to defence; for that no man is affired to have time answerable to his purpose and will, and voon doubt whether the others in hope to faue themfelues, will not leave him in greateff extremitie.

We presently but our felues in the best order we could, to fight, and to defend our selues : our 62 prayers we made vnto the Lord God of battels, for his helpe and our deliuerance, putting our Telues wholly into his hands. About nine of the clocke, the Brefe began to blow, and wee to stand off into the Sea, the Spanuards cheeke by iole with vs, euer getting to the wind-wards vp on vs; for that the shipping of the South Sea, is ever moulded sharpe vider water, and long;

CHAP.S.S.S. Difgrace of Spaniards. Port of Santa, Hands of Salomon.

all their voyages depending upon turning to wind wards, and the Brefe blowing ever Sou-

As the Sunne began to mount aloft, the winde began to fresh : which together with the rowling Sea, that ever beateth vpon this coast, comming out of the westerne-bourd, caused a chapping Sea, wherewith the Admirall of the Spaniards frapt his maine Mast afunder, and fo began to lagge a sterne, and with him, other two Ships. The Vice-admiral fplit her mainefaile, being come within flot of vs vpon our broad fide, but to lee-wards: the Reartiadmirall cracked her maine-yard afunder in the middeft, being a head of vs; one of the Armado, which had gotten voon the broad fide of vs, to wind-wards, durit not affault vs.

With these differees upon them, and the hand of God helping and delittering vs. night comming, we began to confut what course was best to be taken, to free our selues; wherein were diuers opinions : tome faid it was best to stand off to the Sea close by, all the night : others to lye ita hull ; others to cast about to the shoare-wards two glasses, and after all the night to stand off to Sea close by. The Admirall of the Spaniards with the other two were a sterne of vs. some foure leagues : the Vice-admirall a mile right to lee-wards of vs: the Reare-admirall in a manner right a head, fome culturing that; and one upon our loofe, within that also, the Moone was to rite within two houres. After much debating, it was concluded, that we should beare vip before the winds, and seeke to escape betwixt the Admirall and the Vice-admirall, which we put in execution, not knowing of any other difgrace befallen them, but that of the Reare-admirall : an till after our furrender, when they recounted vinto vsall that had past. In the morning at breake or day, we were cleare of all our Enemies, and so shaped our course alongst the Coast, for the Bay of Atacames, where we purposed to trim our Pinnace, and to renew our wood and water, and fo to depart upon our Voyage with all possible speede. The Spanish Armado, returned presently to Callas, which is the Port of Lyma, or of the Citie Returns of the of the Kings. It was first named Lyms, and retaineth also that name of the River, which passets Seasibly made by the Citie called Lyma, the Spanish Armado being entred the Port, the people began to got athore, where they were so mocked and scorned by the women, as scarce any one by day would scotted at thew his face, they reuiled them with the name of cowards and golnias, and craued licence of the Vice-roy to be admitted into their roomes, and to vindertake the furrendry of the English

20 Shippe. I have beene certified for truth, that fome of them affronted their Souldiers with Daggers and Piltols by their fides. This wrought fuch effects in the hearts of the difgraced, as they vowed either to recour their reputation loft, or to follow vs into England, and fo with expedition, the Vice-roy commanded two Shippes and a Pignace to be put in order, and in them placed the chiefe Souldiers and Marriners of the rest, and furnished them with victuals and

The forefaid Generall is once againe dispatched to seeke vs; who ranged the Coasts and Theyset forth Ports, enforming himselfe what he could: Some fiftie leagues to the North wards of Lyma, in the second fight of Mongon, we tooke a Ship halfe loaden with Wheate, Sugar, Miell de Canas, and Cordo-time. uanskins: which for that the was leake and failed badly, and tackled in fuch manner (as the Mar-

40 riners would not willingly put themselves into her) we tooke what was necessary for our prouision, and fired her. Thwart of Traxillo, wee set the company of her ashoare, with the Pilot which we had taken in Balparizo, referring the Pilot of the burnt Shippe, and a Greeke, who chose rather to continue with vs, then to hazard their lives in going ashore; for that they had departed out of the Port of Santa (which is in eight degrees) being required by the Iuftice not to weigh anchor before the Coaft was knowne to be cleare.

It is a thing worthy to be noted, and almost incredible, with how few men they vie to faile Few men min a Shippe in the South Sea, for in this prife, which was aboue an hundred tunnes, were but eight a Ship in the persons : and in a Ship of three hundreth tuns, they wie not to put aboue foureteene or fifteene South Sea. persons : yea I have beene credibly enformed, that with foureteene persons, a Ship of five hun-go dred tuns hath beene carried from Guayaquil to Lyma, deepe loaden: which is aboue two hundred leagues. They are forced ever to gaine their Voyage by turning to wind-wards, which is the greatest toyle and labour that the Marriners haue; and slow sometimes in this Voyage source or fine moneths, which is generall in all the Nanigations of this coast; but the security from flormes, and certainty of the Brefe (with the defire to make their gaine the greater) is the cause that every man forceth himselfe to the vetermost, to doe the labour of two men.

In the height of the Port of Santa, some seuen hundred and fiftie leagues to the West-wards, Port of Sante. lye the Ilanus of Salomon, of late yeares discouered. At my being in Lyma, a Fleete of foure faile Plantation of wasfent from thence to people them; which through the emulation and difford that arofe a the llands of mongst them, being landed and settled in the Countrey, was veterly overthrowne, onely one Salomon. 60 Shippe, with tome few of the people, after much mifery, got to the Philippines. This I came to the knowledge of, by a large relation written from a person of credit, and tent from the Philippines to Panama : I law it at my being there, in my voyage towards Spaine. Hauing edged necre the coast, to put the Spaniards on shore, a thicke fogge tooke vs, so that we could not see the land; but recouring our Pinnace and Boate, we failed on our course, till wee came thwart of the Port salled Malabrigo, It lieth in feuen degrees,

In all this Coast the currant runneth with great force, but neuer keepeth any certaine course. fauing that it runneth along it the coast, sometimes to the South-wards, sometimes to the Northwards, which now runneth to the North-wards, forced vs fo farre into the Bay (which a point of the land caufeth, that they call Punta de Augusta) as thinking to cleare our felues by roung North-west, we could not double this point, making our way North North-west. Therefore speciall care is ever to be had of the current and doubtlesse, if the providence of Almighty God had not freede vs, we had runne athore vpon the Land, without feeing or fuspecting any fuch danger: his name be euer exalted and magnified, for deliuering vs from the vnknowned anger, by calming the winde all night: the Suns riting manifelted vnto vs our errour and perill, by difcauering vnto vs the land within two leagues right a head. The current had carried vs without any le winde, at the leaft foure leagues : which feene, and the winde beginning to blow, we brought our tackes aboord, and in thort time cleared our felues.

Thwart of this point of Augusta, lye two defert Hands ; they call them Illas de Lobet, for the multitude of Seales, which accustome to haunt the shore. In the bigger is very good harbour, and secure : they lye in six degrees and thirty minutes. The next day after we lost sight of those Ilands, being thwart of Parta, which lyeth in five degrees, and having manned our Pinnace and Boate to fearch the Port, we had fight of a tall Ship, which having knowledge of our being on the couft, and thinking her felfe to be more lafe at Sea, then in the harbour, put her felfe then voder faile : to her we gave chase all that night, and the next day; but in fine, being better of faile then we, the freed her telfe. Thus being to lee-ward of the Harbour, and discouered, we continued our course alongst the shore. That evening, wee were thwart of the River of Gmanagnil, which hath in the mouth of it two Hands : the Souther-most and biggest, called Puma, in three degrees; and the other to the North-wards, Santa clara,

Puma is inhabited, and is the place where they build their principall shipping: from this Riuer, Lima and all the valleyes are furnished with Timber, for they have none but that which is brought from hence, or from the Kingdome of Chile. By this River passeth the principall trade of the Kingdome of Quito; it is Nauigable some leagues into the Land, and hath great abundance Those of the Peru, vie to ground and trim their Shippes in Puma, or in Panama, and in all c-ther parts they are forced to carene their Shippes. In Punant higheth and falleth, fifteene or fix-30 teene foote water, and from this Iland, till a man come to Panama, in all the coast it ebbeth and floweth more or leffe; keeping the ordinary course, which the Tides doe in all Seas. The water of this River, by experience, is medicinable, for all aches of the bones, for the stone and strangurie: the reason which is given, is, because all the bankes and low land adjoyning to this Ruer, are replenished with Salfaperslia: which lying for the most part foaking in the water, it participateth of this vertue, and giveth it this force. In this River, and all the Rivers of this coast, are great abundance of Alagartees; and it is faid that this exceedeth the reft, for persons of credit haue certified me, that as small fishes in other Rivers abound in scoales, so the Alagartoes in this; they doe much hurt to the Indians and Spaniards, and are dreadfull to all whom they catch within their clutches.

Medicinable

Scoales of

Some fine or fix leagues to the North-wards of Puma, is la Punta de Santa Elena; vnder which is good anchoring, cleane ground, and reasonable succour. Being thwart of this point, weehad fight of a Shippe, which wee chafed, but being of better faile then wee, and the night comming on, we lost fight of her; and so anchored vnder the Isla de Plata; to recouer our Pinnace and Boate, which had gone about the other point of the Iland, which lyeth in two degrees, and fortie minutes. The next day we palt in fight of Puerto Vicjo, in two degrees ten minutes; which lying without shipping, we directed our course for Cape Passas. It lyeth directly under the Equinoctiall line; tome fourescore leagues to the West-wards of this Cape, lyeth a heape of llands, the Spaniards call Illas de los Galapagos; they are defert and beare no truite: from Cape Passas, we directed our course to Cape Saint Francisco, which lyeth in one degree to the North-wards 10 of the line : and being thwart of it, we descried a small Shippe, which we chased all that day and night, and the next morning our Pinnace came to bourd her; but being a Ship of adulte, and full of passengers, and our Ship not able to fetch her vp, they entreated our people badly, and freed themselues, though the feare they conceived, caused them to cast all the dispatches of the King, as also of particulars into the Sea, with a great part of their loading, to be lighter and better of faile, for the Ships of the South Sea loade themselves like lighters or fand barges, presuming vpon the fecuritie from fformes.

Being out of hope to fetch vp this Shippe, we flood in with the Cape, where the Land beginneth to trend about to the East-wards. The Cape is high land, and all couesed ouer with trees, and so is the land ouer the Cape, and all the coast (from this Cape to Panama) is full of wood, 60 from the Straits of Mazelan, to this Cape of San Francisco. In all the coast from head-land to head-land, the couries lye betwitt the North and North and by Weil, and sometimes more Westerly, and that but seldome: It is a bold coast, and subject to little soule weather, or alteration of windes, for the Brefe, which is the Southerly winde, bloweth continually from Balparizo to

CHAP.S.S., Indians dismissed. Spaniards distresse. Indians chase Spaniards. IAOI

Cape San Francisco, except it be a great chance. Trending about the Cape, wee haled in East North-east, to ferch the Bay of Atacamer, which lyeth some seven leagues from the Cape. In Bay of Ataca the mid way (fome three leagues from the shore) lyeth a banke of fand, whereof a man must have me. a care ; for in some parts of it there is but lettle water.

The tenth of Iune we came to an anchor in the Bay of Atacames, which on the Wester part hath a round hammock. It feemeth an Hand, & in high Springs, I judge, that the Sea goeth round shout it. To the Eastwards it hatha high fandie Cliffe, and in the middest of the Bay, a faire birth, from the shoare lieth a bigge blacke Rocke aboue water: from this Rocke to the fandy Cliffe, is a drowned Marth ground, caused by his lownesse; And a great River, which is broad but of 10 no deoth.

Manning our Boate, and running to the shoere, wee found presently in the Westerne bight of the Bay, a deepe River, whose Indraught was so great, that we could not benefit our felues of it, being brackish, except at a low water; which hindred our dispatch, yet in fine dayes, wee filled all our emptie Caske, supplied our want of wood, and grounded and put in order our Pinnaffe. Here, for that out Indians ferued vs to no other vie, but to confume our victuals, we exied They diffinife our felues of them; gave them Hookes and Lines which they craned, and some bread for a few their Indiante dayes, and replanted them in a farre better Countrey, then their owne, which fell out luckily for the Spaniards of the Shippe which wee chafed thwart of Cape San Francisco; for victuals growing thort with her, having many mouthes, thee was forced to put afhoare fifty of her pal-

20 fengers, neere the Cape; whereof more then the one halve died with famine, and continuall wading through Rivers and waters : the rest(by chance) meeting with the Indians, which we had put afhore, with their fifting, guide, and industry were refreshed, sustained, and brought to habi-

to feetiale, but the four-teenth in the cusning, we had light of a Shippe, fome three leagues to defining Sea-wards; and through the importunitie of my Captaine and Companie, I condificended that our Pinnace should give her chase, which I should not have done, for it was our destruction : I gaue them precise order, that if they stood not in againe at night, they should seeke me at Care San Francisco, for the next morning I purposed to let Layle without delay, and so feeing that our 30 Pinnace flowed her comming, at nine of the clocke in the morning, we waied our Anchors, and flood for the Cape; where we beate off and on two dayes : and our Pinnace not appearing, wee flood againeinto the Bay, where we descried hes, turning in wishout a maine Maft, which flanding off to the Sea, cloid by, with much winde and a chapting Geapbearing a caut-fayle, where a A taut faile is little was too much (being to small purpose) so dainely they bare it by the bound; and standing that which in with the shore, the winde, or rather God blinding them for our punishment, they knew not proprie mather land; and making themselues to be to wind-wards of the Bay, bare up and were put into the the land; and making themselves to the war and hatha great fresh River, which highest fifteene for the vestel.

Bay of San Mathew: It is a goodly harbour, and hatha great fresh River, which highest fifteene By of S.Maor fixteene foote water, and is a good Countrey, and well peopled with Indians; they have flore them. of Gold and Emeralds. Here the Spaniards from Guay aquid made an habitation, whilit I was pri-40 foner in Lyma, by the Indian confent, but after not able to futfer the infolencies of their guelts,

Our necessary businesse being ended, we purposed the sifteenth day of May, in the morning, Occasion of and being a people of stomacke and prefumption, they suffered themselves to bee perswaded and led by a Molato. This leader many yeares before had fled vnto them from the The Indian Spaniards, him they had long time held in reputation of their Captaine Generall, and was led by a desire admitted also vnto a chiefe Office by the Spanwards, to gaine him vnto them. But now the Chale the span Indians voiting themselves together, presuming that by the helpe of this Molato they should force minds. the Spaniards out of the Countrey ; put their resolution in execution, droue their enemies into the woods, and flew as many as they could lay hands on tew eleaped with life; and those who had that good hap fuffered extreame milery before they came to Quite; the place of meerett habitation of Spanierds.

To this Bay, as foone as our people in the Pinnace faw their errour, they brought their rackes aboord, and turned and tyded it vp, as they could. Affoone as we came to Anchor, I procured to remedy that was amife; in two dayes we dispatched all we had to doe, and the next morning we resolved to set sayle and to leave the coast of Permand Queto. The day appearing, we began to weigh our Anchors, and being a Pike ready to cut fayle, one out of the top descried the apamifb Armado, comming about the Cape: which by the courte it kept, pretently gaue vs to vn- Spanife Armado derstand, who they were : though my company (as is the custome of Sea men) made them to be do. the Fleete bound for Panama, loaden with treasure, and importuned that in all haste wee should cut fayle and stand with them, which I contradicted, for that I was affired that no Shipping would stirre vpon the coast, till they had securitie of our departure (except some Armado that might be fent to feeke vs) and that it was not the time of the yeare to carry the treasure to Pamama. And besides, in riding still at an Anchor, they ever came neerer wato vs, for they stood directly with vs, and we kept the weather gage; where if wee had put our felues vnder fayle (the ebbe in hand) we should have given them the advantage, which we had in our power, by refon of the point of the Bay. And being the Armado(as it was) we gained time to fit our felues,

Pride and vnrunners of the better to fight. And truly (as before, to a stiffe-necked Horse) io now againe, I cannot but refemble the condition of the Mariner to any thing better, then to the current of a furious River repressed by force or Arte, which neverthelesse ceasieth not to seeke a way to ouerthrowe both fence and banke : Euen fo the common fort of Sea-men, apprehending a conceit in their imagic nations, neither experiment, knowledge, examples, reasons nor authoritie, can alter or remove them from their conceited opinions. In this extremitie, with reason I laboured to contince them, and to contradict their pretences: but they altogether without reason, or against reason. breake out, some into vannting and bragging, some into reproaches of want of courage, others in. to withings , that they had neuer come out of their Countrie, if wee should refuse to fight with The valuation two ships what soener. And to mend the matter, the Gunner (for his part) assured me that with he the first tire of shot, he would lay the one of them in the fods : And our Pinnace, that the would take the other to taske. One promised, that he would cut downe the Maine-yard, another that hee would take their Flagge; and all in generall shewed a great defire to come to triall with the Enem .. To some I turned the deafe eare, with others I dissembled, and armed my felfe with patience (having no other defence nor remedie for that occasion) foothing and animating them to the execution of what they promifed, and perfwaded them to haue a little fufferance, feeing they gained time and advantage by it. And to give them better fatisfaction I condifcended that our Captaine with a competent number of men, should with our Pinnace goe to discouer them: with order, that they should not engage themselves in that manner, as they might not bee able to come vnto vs, or we to fuccour them. In all thefe divisions and opinions, our Master, Hust Dermile (who was a most sufficient man for government and valour, and well faw the errours of the multitude) vied his office, as became him; and so did all those of best understanding.

In short space, our Pinnace discouered what they were, and casting about to returne vnto vi, the Vice-admirall (being next her) began with her chafe to falute her with three or foure Peeces of Artilerie, and to continued chafing her, and gunning at her. My Companie feeing this, now began to change humour: And I then, to encourage and perswade them to performe the excution of their promises and vaunts of valour, which they had but even now protested, and given affurance of, by their profers and forwardnesse,. And that we might have Sea-roome to fight. we presently weighed Anchor, and stood off to Sea with all our sayles, in hope to get the weather gage of our contraries. But the winde feanting with vs, and larging with them, we were 30 forced to lee-ward. And the Admirall weathering vs, came roome vpon vs ; which being with in Musket thot, wee hailed first with our noise of Trumpets, then with our Waytes, and after with our Artilerie: which they answered with Artilerie, two for one, For they had double the Ordnance we had, and almost see mentor one. Immediatly they came shoaring abourd of vs. Speniards, and of the English vpon our les quarter contrarie to our expectation, and the custome of men of Warre, And doubtleffe. had our Gunner beene the man hee was reputed to be, and as the world fold him to me, thee had received great hurt by that manner of boording : But contrarie to all expectation, our stearne Peeces were vaprimed, and so were all those, which we had to lee-ward (faue halte one in the quarter) which discharged wrought that effect in our contraries as that they had five or fixe foot water in hold, before they ful pected it.

How farre a Commander is to truft his officers,

The inexperi-

And careles.

neffe of the

Hereby all men are to take warning by me, not to trust any man in such extremities, when he himselfe may fee it done : and comming to fight, let the Chieftaine himselfe bee fure to have all his Artilerie in a readinesse, vpon all occasions. This was my ouersight, this my ouerthrow. For I, and all my Companie, had that fatisfaction of the fufficiency and care of our Gunner, as not any one of vs euer imagined there would be any defect found in him. For my part, I with the reft of our Officers, occupied our felues in clearing our Deckes, lacing our Nettings, making of Bulwarkes, arming our Toppes, fitting our Wast-clothes, tallowing our Pikes, slinging our Yards, doubling our Sheetes and Tackes, placing and ordering our People, and procuring that they should be well fitted and prouided of all things; leaving the Artilerie, and other Instruments of fire, to the Gunners dispose and order, with the rest of his Mares and Adherents; which so (as I faid) was pare of our perdition. For bearing me euer in hand, that he had fine hundred Cartredges in a readinesse, within one houres fight, wee were forced to occupie three persons, onely in making and filling Cartredges, and of five hundred elles of Canuas and other Cloth given him for that purpose, at fundry times, not one yard was to be found. For this we have no excuse, and therefore could not avoide the danger, to charge and discharge with the Ladle, especially in io hot a fighe. And comming now to put in execution the finking of the thip, as he promifed, hee feemed a man without life or foule. So the Admirall comming close vnto vs, I my felfe, and the Master of our ship, were forced to play the Gunners.

Deceit of the Gunner, and his extreme careleineile, and fuipicious

Those Instruments of fire, wherein he made me to spend excessively (before our going to Sea) now appeared not; Neither the braffe Bals of Artificiall fire to be fhot with Shurbowes (where 60 of I had fixe Bowes, and two hundreth Bals, which are of great account and lequice, either by Sea or Land) he had flowed them in fuch manner (though in double Barrels) as the falt water had spoyled them all; so that comming to vie them, not one was teruiceable. Some of our Companie had him in fuspicion, to be more friend to the Spaniards, then to vs; for that hee had ferned fome yeares in the Tercea, as Gunner, and that he did all this of purpole. Few of our Peeces were clere, when we came to vie them, and fome had the fhot first put in, and after the powder. Belides, after our furrendry ; it was laid to his charge, that he should say; he had a Brother that ferued the King in Pers, and that he thought he was in the Armado; and how he would not for all the world, he should be flaine, Whether this were true or no, I know not, but I am fure all in generall gaue him an ill report, and that hee, in whose hands the chiefe execution of the whole fight confilted, executed nothing as was promited and expected.

It is requifice that all Captaines and Commanders were fuch, and fo experimented in all offices, that Who to 2:they must be able as well to controule as to examine all manner of errors in officers. For the Government count a true 10 at Seahardly suffereth a head without exquisite experience. The deficiencie whereof hath occasioned Marriner. Come ancient Sea-men to Straighten the attribute of Marrinerin fuch fort, as that it ought not to be oinen but to the man who is able to build his Ship, to fit and provide her of all things necessarie, and after to but to the max who is able to omit one coup, which the total max who is able to the world: residue, to be but saylers. Hereby giving us to understand, that bee should his knowledge bnow the parts and peeces of the Ship, the value of the timber, planke and I reneworke, fo to be able afwell to build in proportion, as to procure all meterials at a suft price. And againe, to know bow'to cut his Carles, what length is competent to every Roupe, and to be of sufficiencie to reprehend and reforme those paper, what tength is competen to every ways much and the state of face it must be erre, and doe amisse. In promiding his Ship for victuals, munition and necessaries, of face it must be providence. be expected that he be able to make his estimate, and (that once provided and perfected) in scason, and with expedition to fee it loden and stowed commediously, with care and proportion. After that, Hee is to 20 order the Spending thereof, that in nothing be be defrauded at home, and at Sea, euer to know how much is spent, and what remaineth to be spent. In the Art of Naugation, be is bound also to know, so much, Fot Naugatio at to be able to dive directions to the Pilot of Maiter, and confequently to all the reft of inferior officers.

In matter of guids and diffifing of the Saylers, with the tackling of the Ship, and the workes which be . Office of the long thereunto, within bourd and without, all is to be committed to the Mafters charge. The Pilot is to Mafter. looke carefully to the Sterridge of the Ship, to be watchfull in taking the heights of Sunne and Starre; Office of the to note the way of his Ship, with the augmenting and leffening of the winds, Oc. The Boatefwaine is to Pilot. Ge his Ship kept cleave ; his Makes, yards and tacklings well coated, matted and armed; his shrouds The Boateand states well set; his failes repaired, and sufficiently prevented with martnets, blayles, and castess; his swaine. boate fissed with Sayle Oares, thoughts, tholes danyd, windles and rother : His Anchors well boyed fufe-30 In flooped and fecured, with the rest to him appertaming. The Steward is to fee the prefernation of Va. The Steward. Etnals and necessaries, committed unto his charge, and by measure and meight to deliver the portions an-pointed, and with discretion and good tearmes, to give favesfaction to all. The Carpenter is to view the TheCarpenter mailta and yards, the fides of the Shep, her deckes and columns; her pumpes and boate; and moreonier to occupie himselfe in the most forcible workes, except he broncher wife communicated. The Gunner is to care The Gunner. for the britching and tackling of his Artillery; the fitting of his floor, Tamptins, cornes, crones and lina stocker, & c. To be proudent in working bie fire worker, in making and filling his Cartreger; in accommo-dating bis ladles, sponger and other necessaries; in sisting and drying his powder; in bleansing the armes, munition, and such like workes, intrusted unto him.

In this manner every officer in his office, ought to be an absolute Commander, yet ready in obedience 40 and love, to facrifice his will to his saperiors command: This cannot but cause vnitie; and vnitic cannot but purchase a happie issue to dutifull travels. Lastin, except it be invergent and precise cases, the Head Directions in Should never direct his command to any, but the officers, and thefe fecretly, except the occasion require fecret. publication; or that it touch all in generall. Such orders would be (for the most part) in writing, that all might know what in generall is commanded and required.

The reason why the Admirall came to seewards (as after I vinderstood) was for that her Artislery being very long, and the winde fresh, bearing a taut fayle, to fetch vs vp, and to keepe vs Wby the Spscompany, they could not vie their Ordnance to the weather of vs , but lay shaking in the nife Admirall winds: And doubtleffe it is molt proper for thippes to have thort Ordnance, except in the came to leefterne or chase. The reasons are many: viz. easier charging, ease of the Shippes side, better tra- wards. 50 nersing and mounting, yea, greater securitie of the Artillery, and consequently of the Shippe. For Rule for Order the longer the Peece is, the creater is the retention of the fire, and so the torment and danger of the nance. Peece the greater. But here will be contradiction by many, that date ancueb that longer Peeces are to be preferred; for that they burne their powder better, and carry the shot surther, and so necessarily of better execution : whereas the flort Artillers many times founds much of their powder without burning, and workes thereby the Stenderer effect. To which I answere that for Land service, Forts, or Castles, the long Pecces are to be preferred; but for hipping, the shorter ate much more sermiceable. And the powder in them, being such as it ought, will be all fired long before the shot come forth; and to reach farre in fights at Sea, is to little effelt: For be that purpofeth to annoy his Enemie, mult not shoote at randon, wer at point blanke, if he purpose to accomplish with his denotre, neither must be frend his shot mor powder, 60 on where a pet sun may reach his contrary; bow much the neerer, so much the better: and this duely executed, the hort Artillery will worke his effect, as well as the long; otherwife, neither short nor long are of nime himportance : but here, way meaning is not, to approve the overfloort Pecces, denifed by forme per-Sans, which at enery shot they make daunce out of their cariages, but those of indifferent length, and which keeps the meane, betwirt scauen and eight foote.

1300.

The Spanish

Here it shall not be ont of the way, to discourse a little of the Spanish Discipline, and manner of their government in generall; which is inmany things different to ours. In this expedition came two Generals the one Don Beltran de Caitro, who had the absolute authoritie and command: The other Michael Angell Pilipon, a man well in yeares, and came to this preferment by his long and painefull fernice, who though be had the title of Generall by Sea, I thinke it was rather of courtefie then by Pattent; and for the he had beene many yeares Generall of the South Seas, for the carriage and swaftage of the Silner from Lyma to Panama; Hee feemed to be an affistant, to supply that with his counsell, adnice, and experience, whereof Don Beltran bad never made triall (for be commanded not absolutely, but with the confirmation of Don Beltran) for the Spaniards never give absolute authoritie to more then one. A custome a that hath beene, and is approved in all Empires, Kingdomes, Common-wealths, and Armies, rightly difficiplined: the mix ture bath beene feldome feene to profper, as will manifestly appeare, if we consider the silve of all actions and iourneys committed to the government of two or more generally.

The Spaniards in their Armadoes by Sea, imitate the discipline, order and officers, which are in an Army by Land, and divide themselves into three bodies, to wit, Souldiers, Marriners and Gunners. Then Souldiers ward and watch, and their officers in enery Ship round, as if they were on the shoare : this is the onely taske they undergoe, except cleaning their Armes, wherein they are not oner curious. The Gunners are exempted from all labour and care, except about the Artillerie. And these are either Almaynes, Flemmines, or frangers; for the Spaniards are but indifferently practifed in this Art. The Marriners are but as flames to the reft, to morle and to tayle day and night, and those but few and bad, and not suffered to fleepe or harbour themselmes under the deckes. For in faire or foule weather, in stormes, summe or raine, they must paffe voide of court or succour. There is ordinarely in enery Ship of to arre a Captaine, whose charge is, as that of our Masters with boyes, little more or leffe, and those of the choise of Pers.

Officers in a Ship of War. Capraine of the Ship. Captaine of the Soldiers. M.Del Campo.

Vs. and alle a Captaine of the Souldiers, who commandeth the Captaine of the Ship the Souldiers, Gunners, and Marriners in her: wea, though there be diners Captaines, with their companies in one Shippa (which is whall among it them) yet one hath the supreame authoritie, and the residue are at his ordering and defoling. They base their Mastros de Campo, Sergeant, Master, Generall (or Captaine) of the Artillery with their Alfere Major, and all other officers, as in a Campe. If they come to fight with another Armado they order themselves as in a battell by land: In a Vanguard, rereward, maine battell, and wings, &c. In enery particular Ship the Souldiers are let all upon the deckess their forecastle they account a sheir head Front or Vangard of their company; that abast the Mast the rereward; and the waste, the maine battell; wherein they place their principall force, and on which they principally relye, which they call their placa de armas or place of Armes; which taken, their hope is lost. The Gunners sight not, but with their oreat Artillerie: the Marriners attend onely on the tackling of the Ship and handling of the failet, and are unarmed, and subject to all misfortunes; not permitted to shelter themselves, but to be still alost, whether it be necessary or needelesse. So ordinarily, those which first faste are the Marriners and Sailers, of which they have greatest needs. They vie few close fights or fireworks & all this proceedeth (as I indee) of errour in placing land Captaines for Gonernors and Commanders by Sea, where they feldome underfand what is to be done or commanded. Some that have beene our prisoners, have perfited themselves of that they have seene among st us : and 19

Ili order.

Prying of the outDiscipline. baffages, haue noted our forme of hipping, our manner of defences and discipline : Sithence which estill in

Their imitati- at Sea: which doubtleffe is the best, and most proper that is at this day knowne, or prattifed in the whole on of our Dif- world if the execution be answerable to that which is known and received for true and good amone it vs. cipline.

In the Captaine (for fo the Spaniards call their Admirall) was an English Gunner, who to gains Engliftman loft grace with those wider whom he served, preferring himselfe, and offered to linke our Ship with the English and the first shot he made; who, by the Spaniards relation, being traversing a peece in the bowe, to make his shot, had his head carried away with the first or second shot, made out of our Ship. It flew also two or three of those which stood next him, A good warning for those which fight a- 60 gainst their Countrie.

others disquised, under colour of treaties, for ransoming of prisoners, for bringing of presents of other Im-

such actions as they have beene imployed in they seeke to instate our government, and reformed discipline

The fight continued to hot on both fides, that the Artillery and Muskets never ceased playing. Our contraries, towards the euening, determined the third time to lay vs abourd, with refolution to take vs, or to hazard all. The order they fet downe for the execution CHAP. S. S. Spanish Vice-admirall indangered. Directions for Sea-fishts.

hereof, was, that the Captaine (or Admirall) should bring himselfe vpon our weather bow, and fo fall aboord of vs, vpon our broad fide: And that the Vice-admirall, should lay his Admirall aboord vpon his weather quarter, and fo enter his men into her; that from her, they might enzer vs. or doe as occation thould miniter.

The Captaine of the Vice-admirall, being more hardie then confiderate, and prefuming with his ship and company to get the prize, and chiefe honour; waited not the time to put in execution the direction given, but preferrly came abourd to wind-wards upon our broad fide. Which The Spanished doubtleffe was the great and especials Providence of Almightie God, for the discouraging of our e- pay deerly (at nemies, and animating of vs. For although the was as long, or rather longer then our flip, being their rafinefic, to rately built, and veterly without fights or defence; what with our Muskers, and what with our fire-works we clered her decks in a moment; fo that scarce any person appeared. And doubt leffe if we had entred but a doozen men, we might have enforced them to have rendred vnto vs. or taken her, but our company being tew, and the principall of them staine, or hurt, wee durit not, neither was it wisdome, to aduenture the separation of those which remayned : and so held that for the belt and foundest resolution, to keepe our forces together in defence of our owne. The Vice-admirall feeing himselfe in great distresse, called to his Admiralt for succour : who presently laid him aboord, and entred a hundred of his men, and so cleered themselves of vs. In this boording the Vice-admirall had at the least thirtie and fix men burt, and flaine; and among ft them his Pilot shot through the bodie, so as he died presently. And the Admirall also received

20 some lose; which wrought in them a new resolution; only with their Artillery to batter vs; And take a and fo with time to force vs to farrender, or to fink vs, which they put in execution; and placing new refolution themselves within a Musket shot of our weather quarter, and sometimes on our broad side . lay continually beating upon vs without intermiffion, which was doubtleffe the best and secureft determination they could take, for they being rare ships, and without any manner of close fights. in boording with vs, their men were all open vnto vs, and we vnder couert and fhelter. For on all pares our fhip was Musketfree, and the great Artillery of force must cease on either side (the thips being once grapled together) except we refolued to facrifice our felues together in fire. For it is impossible, if the great Ordnance play (the ships being boorded) but that they must fet fire Great Ordon the ship they shoot at; and then no suretie can bee had to free himselfe, as experience daily nancable a 30 confirmeth. A Peece is as a Thunder-clap. As was feene in the Spanife Admiral after my imprifonment, crofting from Panama to Cape San Francisco, a Rayao, (for for the Spaniards call a Thunderclap) brake ouer our flup, killed one in the fore-top, aftonished either two or three in the shroudes, and split the Matt in strange manner; where it entred, it could hardly be discerned, but where it came forth, it draue out a great splinter before it; and the man slaine, was cleane in a of Thuncas manner without figne or token of hurt, although all his bones turned to powder, and those who lived and recovered, had all their bodies blacke, as burnt with fire. In like manner the Peece of Ordnance hurteth not those which stand aside, nor those which stand aslope from his mouth but those alone which stand directly against the true point of his levell : though sometimes the wind of the fhot ouerthroweth one, and the splinters (beeing accidents) mayne and hurt others. But

40 principally where the Peece doth refemble the Thunderclap, as when the ships are boorded. For then, although the Artillerie be discharged without shot the fury of the fire, and his piercing nature is such, as it entreth by the seames, and all parts of the ships sides, and meeting with so fit matter as Pitch, Tarre, Oaombe, and fometimes with powder, presently convertetli all inco flames. For anoyding whereof, as also the danger and damage which may come by Pikes and other inventions of fire, and if any thip be oppressed with many ships at once, and subject by them to be boorded; I hold it a good course to firike his fire and mayne yards close to his decke, and to fight with sprit-laile, and my son, and top-failes loose : so shall hee bee able to hinder them from oppressing him. Some haue thought it a good policie to launce out some ends of masts or yards by Policies to se the Ports or other parts : but this is to be vied in the greater ships, for in the leffer, though they unide boor-

50 be neuer fo ftrong, the waight of the bigger will beate out the opposite fides, and doe hurt, and dings. make great spoile in the lesser. And in boording, ordinarily the lesser ship hath al the harme, which the one flup can doe voto the other.

Here is offered to speake of a point much canuassed amongst Carpenters, and Sea Captaines, diversity maintained, but yet undetermined : that is , whether the race or loftie built (hip, be best for the Merchant, and those which imploy themselves in trading: I am of opinion, that the race ship is most convenient; yet so, Dispute conat bat every perfect frip ought to have two decks, for the better frengthening of bersiche better succouring of trade of her people; the better preserning of her Merchandeze and victuall, and for her greater safette from Sea and stormes. But for the Princes ships, and such as are imployed continually in the Warres, to bee Concerning built loftie I bold very necessarie for many Reasons. First, for Maiestie and terrour of the Enemie; the Prince his

60 Secondly, for harbouring of many men: Thirdly, for accomodating more men to fight: Fourthly, flips. for placing and ving more Artillerie; Fiftly, for better frengthning and securing of the ship; Sixt-5, for over topping and subsecting the Enomie; Seventhly, for greater sufficient and despecte of the super and company. For it is plaine, that the super much three decker, or with two and an halfe, shewes more pompethen another of her burthen with a decke and halfe, or two deckes, and breedeth great terror to the enemy, discourring her selfe to be a more powerful ship as she is , then the other which being indeed after of force , seemeth to be but a Barke, and with ber low building hideth ber burthen. And who doubteth that a decke and a halfe cannot barbonr that proportion of men, that two deckes. and two deckes and a halfe can accommodate to fight, nor carrie the Artillerie fo plentifully, nor fo com. modiously. Neither can the ship be so strong with a decke and a halfe, as with two deckes, nor with two as with three nor carrie ber Mafts fo tant, nor foread fo great a clue, nor contrine fo many fights to answere one another for defence of offence. And the advantage the one bath of the other, experience daily reacheth.

Courfes for boording,

Difuse of engines of Anti-

That which hath beene foren of the danger of the Artillerie in boording is not to be wrested nor inter-Artillery after preted to cut off veterly the vie of all Artillerie after boarding, but rather I bold nothing more connection ent in Ships of Warre, then Fowlers and great Rases in the cage workes, and Murderers in the Cobridge 10 beads, for that their execution and speedse charging and discharging us of great moment. Many I know have left the vse of ibem, and of sandry other presentions, as of shreehookes, stones in their tops, and are ming them, Pikebolts in their males and diners other engines of Antiquitie. But open what inducement I cannot relate, unlesse it be because they never knew their effects and benefit, and may no doubt be used without the inconnensences before mentioned in great Ordnance. As also such may bee the occasion, that without danger some of the great Artillery may be used, and that with great effect, which is in the discretion of the Commanders and their Gunners, as hath beene formerly feene and daily is experimented In the Revenge of her Maiestes, good experience was made, who sunke two of the Spanish Armado lying In these boordings and skirmishes divers of our men were saine, and many hurt, and my selfe 30

Sir R.H. woun- amongst them received fix wounds; one of them in the necke very perillous; another through the arme perifning the bone, and cutting the finewes close by the Arme-pit; the rest not so dangerous. The Matter of our thip had one of his eyes, his note, and halfe his face thor away. Matter Henry Courton was flaine; on these two I principally relied for the prosecution of our voyage, if God by ficknes, or otherwife should take me away. The Spaniards with their great Ordnance lay continually playing vpon vs, and now and then parled and inuited vs to forrender our felues a Buena Querra. The Captaine of our ship, in whose direction and guide, our lives, our honour, and welfare now remained; feeing many of our people wounded and flaine, and that few were left to fultaine and maintaine the fight, or to reift the entry of the enemy (if hee should agains boord vs) and that our contraries offered vs good pertido: came vnto me accompanied with tome others, and began to relate the flate of our ship, and how that many were hurr and slain, and scarce any men appeared to trauerie the Artillery, or to oppose themselues for defence if the enemy should boord with vs againe. And how that the Admirall offered vs life and liberty, and to receive vs a Buena querra, and to fend vs into our owne Countrey. Saying, that if I thought it fo meet, hee and the reft were of opinion that wee should put out a slag of truce, and make some good composition. The great loss of blood had weakned me much. The torment of my wounds newly received made me faint, and I laboured for life, within fhort space expecting I should give vp

But this parly pierced through my heart, and wounded my foule; words failed mee where with to expresse it, and none can conceive it, but hee which findeth himselfe in the like & agonie: yet griefe and rage ministred force, and caused me to breake forth into this reprehension and execution following.

Great is the Croffe, which almightie God bath suffered to some upon mee; that assaulted by our profossed enemies, and by them wounded (as you see) in body, lying gasping for breath) those whom I reputed for my friends to fight with me, those which I relied on as my breshren to defend me in all occasions. Those whom I have nourifeed cherified foftered and loved as my children to succour me, beloe me, and to sustained my rejutation in all extremities, are they who first draw their swords against me, are they which wound my beart, in giving me up into mine enemies hands whence proceedeth this ingratitude? whence this faminesse of heart? whence this madnesse? is the cause you sight for, uninit? is the bonor and love of your Prince and Country buried in the duft? your (west lines are they become loath ome unto you? will you exchance \?) your liberty for thraldome, will you confent to fee that, which you have sweat for, and procured with fe great labour and adventure at the dispose of your enemies? can you content your selves to suffer my blood spils before your eyes? and my life bereft me in your presence? with the blond and lines of your deere brethren to be unrevenged? is not an honourable death to be preferred before a miferable and flaush life? The one fulfaining the honor of our Nation of our predecessors, and of our sectie; the other sonominious to our felues, and reproachfull to our Nation. Can you be perswaded that the enemy will performe his promise with you that never leaneth to breake it with others when be thinketh it advantagious? and know you not, Perfidinglinesse that with him all is consenient that is profitable? Hold they not this for a maxime; that, milla fides ell often found in fruanda cum hercticis. In which number they account us to be. Haue you forgetten their faith violated with my father, in S. Iohn de Vluz, the conditions & capitulations being firmed by the Vicetoy & twelve 63 Hoftages, all principall personages given for the more securitie of either partie to other? Have you forgotten their promise broken with Ishin Vibao, & bis company in Florida, having conditioned to give them shipping and victuals to carry them into their country? immediately after they had delinered their weapons & arms. had they not their throats cutibane you forgotten bow they dealt with John Oxenham, & bis Company, in this Sea, reclding upon composition? and how after a long imprisonment, and many miseries (being carried from Panama to Lyma) and there hanged with all his Company, as Pyrates, by the Instice? And can rea front how daily they abuse our noble natures, which being void of malice, measure all by sinceritie. but to our losse? for that when we come to demand performance, they stop our mouthes: Either with laring the inquition upon vs , or with delinering us into the hands of thetordinary lastice, or of the Kines Mmillers. And then orged with their promises, they shrinke up to the shoulders, and say, That they have wom no further power out os. They forrow in their bearts, to fee their promife is not accomplished; but now they cannot doe us any good office, but to pray to God for us, and to intreat the Ministers in our be- The tell of balle. Came wee into the South fea to put out flags of truce? And left we our pleasant England, with all this confe-10 her contentments, with intention or purpose to a maile our selues of white rags?

CHAP.S.S. 5. English valour bolding out against the advantage of the enemy. 1407

The Captaine and Company were perswaded to resolution; and in accomplishment of this promife and determination, they perseuered in sustaining the fight all this night, with the day They refolme and night following, and the third day after. In which time the Enemy neuer left vs day nor to fight out. night, beating continually upon vs with his great and fmall shot, Sauing that every morning, an houre before breake of day, hee edged a little from vs to breath, and to remedie such defects as The Enemy were amife; as also to consult what they should doe theday and night following. This time of breathch, interdiction we imployed in repairing our Sayles and Tacklings, in stopping our Leakes, in fishing and woolling our Masts and Yards, in mending our Pumpes, and in fitting and prouiding our felpes for the day to come : though this was but little space for so many workes, yet gaue it The English re-

30 great reliefe and comfort vnto vs, and made vs better able to endure the defence : for otherwise paire their our hip must of force have suncke before our surrendrie, having many shot under water, and our defects, Pumpes that to pieces every day. In all this space, not any man of either part tooke rest or sleepe, and little fustenance, besides Bread and Wine.

In the second dayes fight, the Vice-admiral comming voon our quarter, William Blanch, one of our Masters mates, with a luckie hand, made a shot vnto her with one of our sterne Peeces; it car- Vice admits ls ried away his maine Mast close by the deck wherewith the Admirall beare up to her to see what harme thee had received, and to give her fuch foccour, as thee was able to fpare : which we feeing, were in good hope that they would have now left to moleft vs any longer, having wherewithall to entertaine themselves in redressing their owne harmes. And so we stood away from them close 30 by at wee could : which wee should not have done, but profecuted the occasion, and brought our omitted. felues close vpon her weather gage, and with our great and small shot hindered them from repairing their harmes: if we had thus done, they had beene forced to cut all by the boord, and it may bellying a hull, or to le-wards of vs) with a few thot we might have tunke her. At the leaft, it would have declared to our enemies that we had them in little estimation, when able to go from them, we would not ; and perhaps beene a cause to have made them to leave vs.

But this occasion was let flip, as also, that other to fight with them, sayling quarter winds, or before the wind : for having flood off to Sea a day and a night, we had scope to fight at our pleafure, and no man haning fea roome is bound to fight as his enemy will with difaduantage, being able otherwise to deale with equalitie : contrariwise, every man ought to seeke the meanes hee

🗘 can, for his defence and greatest aduantage to the anoyance of his contrary.

Now we might with our fore-faile low fet have borne vp before the winde, and the enemy of force must have done the like, if he would fight with vs. or keep vs company and then should we have had the advantage of them. For although their Artillery werelonger, waightier, and many more then ours, and in truth did pierce with greater violence; yet ours being of greater bore, and carrying a waightier and greater that, was of more importance and of better effect for finking and spoyling : for the smaller shot passeth through, and maketh but his hole, and harmeth Their effects. that which lyeth in his way; but the greater shaketh and shinereth all it meeterh, and with the splinters, or that which it encountreth, many times doth more hurt, then with his proper circumference : as is plainely seene in the battery by land, when the Saker, the Demy-coluerin, the 50 Coluerin, and Demi-canon (being peeces that reach much further point blanke then the Canon) are nothing of like importance for making the breach, as is the Canon; for that this thot being ponderous pierceth with difficultie, yea worketh better effects, tormenting, shaking and ourr-

and so hide themselves in the Wooll or Rampire. Befides (our ship being yare and good of steeridge) no doubt but we should have plaied better with our Ordnance, and with more effect then did our enemies; which was a greater terrour being able to fight with leffe disadvantage, and yet to fight with the most that could be imagined, which I knew not of, neither was able to direct though I had knowne it ; being in a manner fensielle, what with my wounds, and what with the agony of the furrendry propounded, for that Errors in fight. 60 had feldome knowne it spoken of, but that it came afterwards to be put in execution.

throwing all; whereas the others, with their violence, pierce better, and make onely their hole,

The General not being able to succour his Vice-admiral, except he should veterly leave vs. gave them order to shift as well as they could for the present, and to beare with the next Port, and there to repaire their harmes. Himfelfe presently followed the Chase, and in short space fetched vs vp, and began a fresh to batter vs with his great and small shot. The Vice-admirall (having Aaaaaaa long, is omit

E.ferings. ynarmed.

to excelle.

faued what they could) cut the rest by the board, and with Fore-sayle and Myson came after up allo, and before the fetting of the Sun, were come voon our broad fide, we bearing all our Sayles. and after kepe vs company, lying upon our weather quarter, and anoying vs what shee could.

Here I hold it necessary, to make mention of two things , which were most presudicial unto us , and the pricespall causes of our perduion, the errours and faults of late dayes, crept in amongst those who fol-Learned from low the Sea, and learned from the Flemings and Easterlings. I mush that by our misfortunes others the flemings & would take warning, and procure to redresse them as occasions shall be offered. The one, is to fight manmed where they may fight armed. The other, is in comming to fight, to drinke themselves drunke. Tea. forme are fo mad , that they mingle Pender with Wine to gine u the greater force, imagining that it gisome are so man, that they mange a some and sale feare and doubt. The latter is, for the most part to a. To dri ke true, but the former is false and beastly, and altogether against reason. For though the nature of mine with moderation , is to comfort and regime the heart, and to foreifte and strengthen the Birit : net the immoderate ve thereof worketh quite contrary effects. In fights, all recents which adde courage and spirit, are of great regard to be allowed and vied; and few a draught of wine to be given to every man before be come to action, but more then enough is pernicious for exceeding the meanes, it offendeth, and infeebleth the sences, connerting the strength (which should refist the force of the enemy) into weakenesse: it dulleth and blindeth the understanding, and consequently depraueth any man of true valour. For that hee is desenabled to indge and apprehend the occasion, which may bee offered to affault and retire in time convenient, the raynes of reason being put into the bands of passion and desorder. For after I was wounded, this pimium bred great disorder and inconsenience in our 20 thip, the pot continually walking, infused desperate and foolish hardinesse in many, who blinded with the

Folly of the

furpatieth vs

perance.

fume of the liquor, considered not of any danger, but then, and then would stand at hazard; some in vans glory vaunting themselves ; some other rayling upon the Spaniards ; another inviting his companion to come and fland by him; and not to budge a foote from him : which ind: fcreetly they put in execution, and cost the lines of many a good man, flaine by our enemies Muskestiers, who suffered not a man to shew himselfe but they presently overthrew him with freed and watchfulnesse. For presention of the seconderrour , although I had great preparation of Armour, as well of proofe, as of light Corfelets, yet not a man would vie them, but esteemed a pot of wine, a better defence, then an armour of proofe : which truly was ereat madrelle, and a lamentable fault, worthy to be besided from awongst all reasonable people, and well to be weighed by all Commanders. For if the Spaniard furpaffeth us in any thing, it is in his temperance to and suffering: and, where he hash had the bester hand of vs, is hash beene (for the most part) through our onely in temowne folly, for that wee will fight unarmed with him being armed. And although I have beard many wen maintaine, that in Supping armour is of little profit; all men of good understanding, will condemne such desperate ignorance. For besides, that the sleightest armour secureth the parts of a mans bodie (which it courrest) from pike, sword, and all band weapone : it likewife greath boldresse and courage; a man armed, gineth a greater and a weightier blow, then a man enarmed, he standeth faster, and with greater difficultie is to be overthrowne.

The v'e & profit of arming, Spanifle.

Armes more necessary by

Sca, then at

And I neuer read, but that the glistering of the armour bath beene by Authors observed, for that (as I imagine) his show breedeth terrour in his contraries, and despairs to himselfest be be marmed. And exactly objet- therefore in time of warre, such as denote themselves to follow the profession of Armes (by Sea or by 40 Land) ought to couet nothing more then to bee well armed, for as much as it is the second meanes, next Gods protection, for preserving and prolonging many mens lines Wherin the Spanish nation descrueth commendation about others, every one from the highest to the lowest, putting their greatest care in providing faire and good Armes. Hee which cannot come to the price of a Corflet , will have a coate of Mayle, a lacket, at least, a Buffe-ierkin, or a prince Coate; Andhardly will they bee found without it, alben they line, and serue (for the most part) in extreame bot Countries.

Whereas I have knowne many bred in cold Countries, in a moment complaine of the waight of their Armes, that they smoother them and then cast them off, chuling rather to be host thing to with a bullet, or lanched through with a pike, or thrust through with a smood, then to endure a little travaile and suffering, But let mee eine these lazie ones this leffon that hee that will goe a war fare, must resolue bimselfe to fisht, 50 and he that putteth on this resolution, must be comented to endure both heate and weight, first, for the safeguard of his life, and next for subduing of his enemy; both which are bazarded and put into orest danger, if hee fight unarmed with an enemy armed. Now for mine owne opinion, I am resolved that armour is more necessary by Sea, then by Land, yea, rather to be excused on the shoare, then in the ship. My reason is , for that on the shoare the bullet onely hurteth, but in the ship . I have seene the shinters bill and hurt many at once, and jet the foot to have passed without touching any person. As in the Galeon, is which I came out of the Indies, in Anno 1597 in the rode of Tarcera, when the Queenes Maiefiel Sups, under the charge of the Earle of Esiex, chased us into the roade, with the plinters of one shot, were stame, maymed, and fore burt, at the least a dozen persons, the most part whereof had beene excused if they

And doubtlesse, if these errours had been forescene, and remedied by us, many of those who were slaine and burt, had beene on foot, and wee enabled to have sustained and maintained the fight much beiter and longer; and perhaps at last had freed our selues. For if our enemy had come to boord with us, our elofe fights were such as wee were seemre, and they open mute us. And what with our Cubridge heads, one anlivering the other, our batches upon bolts, our brackes in our Deckes and Gunner roome, it was inpossible to take us as long as any competent number of men had remained, twentie persons would have suffixed for defence, and for this such hips are called Impregnable, and are not to be taken, but by surrender nor to be our come, but with boording or finking, as in vs by experience was verified; and not in ve alone, but in the Revenge of the Queenes Maiestie, which being compassed round about with all the Ar- The Revenee made of Spaine, and boorded fundry times by many at once, is faid to have funke three of the Armado avenged. by ber fide.

Asbird and last cause of the losse of sundry of our men, most worthy of note for all Captaines, owners. The third and Carpenters: was the race building of our flip; the onely fault flee bad, and now adare; held cause, 10 for a principall grace in any bip : but by the experience which I have had , it feemeth for fundry reasons Race thips of versepresuducial for (bips of Warre. For in fuch, these which tackle the farles of force must bee open the deches, and are open without felter or any defence eyet here it will bee obieled, That for this inconnentence waste clothes are provided, and for want of them it is vinall to lace a bonnet, or some such shadow for the men: worthily may it bee called a hadow, and one of the most pernitions customes that can bee vied Wast-clothes, for the hadow or defence, being but of linnen or woollen cloth emboldneth many, who without it not to victuil would retire to better securitie, whereas now thinking themselves unseene, they become more bold then as other deviotherwise they would, and thereby shot through, when they least thinke of it. Some Captaines observing this errour, have fought to remedie it in some of his Maiesties ships, not by altering the building, but by denising a certaine defence made of foure or fine inch planks, of fine foot bigh, and fixe foote broad, run-

20 ning upon wheeles, and placed in such parts of the skip, as are most open. These they name Blenders, and made of Elme, for the most part, for that it smuers not with a shot, as Oake and other Timber will doe, which are now in vie and service, but best it is when the whole side hath one blender, and one armour of proofe for defence of those, which of force must labour and be aloft,

This race building, first came in by ouermuch boming in of our ships, and received for good, under colour of making our hips thereby the better fea-ships, and of better advantage to bull and try : but in my sudgement it breedeth many inconveniences, and is farre from working the effett they pretend by difinabling them for bearing their cage worke correspondent, to the proportion and monid of the shop, making them tender sided, and unable to carry sagle in any fresh gaile of winde, and diminishing the play of their Artillers, and the place for accommodating their people to fight, labour, or rest. And t am none of 30 those who hold opinion, that the ouer-much homing in , the more the better, is commodious and easier for the ship, and this is out of the experience that I have lawred, which with forcible reasons I could prove, to be much rather discommodions and worthy to be referenced. But withall I bald it not necessarie to dis-course here of that particularitie, but leave the consequence to view of winderstanding, and so surcease.

All this fecond day, and the third day and night, our Captaine and company fultamed the fight, not withit anding the difaduantage where they fought: The enemy being euer to windwards, and wee to lee-ward, their shot much damnifying vs, and ours little annoying them, for tage of Ships whenfoener a man encountereth with his enemie at Sea, in gayning the weather gage, hee is in toke ward. poffibilitie to finke his contrarie, but his energy cannot finke him; and therefore he which is forced to fight with this disaduantage, is to procure by all meanes possible to shoote downe his con-

40 traries Masts or Yards, and to teare or spoyle his tackling and sayles : for which purpose, Billets of some heavie wood fitted to the great Ordnance, are of great importance. And so are Arrowes And the best of fire to be shot out of Slur-bowes, and Cales of small shot loyned two and two together, with remedie. pieces of Wyer of fine or fixe inches long, which also shot out of Muskets are of good effect for tearing the layles, or cutting the tackling. Some are of opinion, that Croffe-barres and Chaine- Croffe-barre, shot, are of moment for the spoyling of Masta and Yards, but experience daily teacheth them not and Chamshot to bee of great importance, though neere at hand, I confesse, they worke great execution : but missiked. the round that, is the onely principall and powerfull meane to breake Mast or Yatd. And in this our fight, the Admirall of the Spaniards had his Fore-mast shot through, with two round The Spaniards shot, some three yards beneath the head; had either of them entred but soure inches Fore-Mass go further into the heart of the Matt, without all doubt it had freed vs , and perhaps put them into thice thor our hands.

The third day, in the after-noone, which was the two and twentieth of lune, 1594, according to our computation, and which I follow in this my discourse, our sayles being torne, our Mastes all perished, our Pumpes rent and shot to pieces, and our ship with sourceme shot vinder water, and feuen or eight foot of water in hold; many of our men being flaine, and the most part of them (which remained) fore hurt, and in a manner altogether fruitlesse, and the enemy offering still to receive vs a buena querra, and to give vs life and libertie, and imbarkation for our Countrey. Our Captaine, and those which remained of our Companie, were all of opinion that our best course was to surrender our selues before our ship sunke. And so by common consenta-60 greed the second time, to send a servant of mine Thomas Sanders, to signific vnto mee the estate of our ship and company : and that it was impossible by any other way to expect for hope of de- The Company liuerance or life, but by the miraculous hand of God in ving his Almightic power, or by an hotunate to nourable furrender, which in euerie mans opinion was thought most convenient. So was I deli- come to com-

ted by him to give also my consent, that the Captaine might capitulate with the Spanish Gene- position.

rall, and to compound the belt partide he could by furrendring our felues into his hands, woon condition of lite and libertie. This hee declared vinto mee, being in a manner word of fence, and out of hope to live or recover : which confidered, and the circumstances of his relation, I answered as I could, that he might judge of my flate, ready every moment to give vp the Ghoft, and vnable to discerne in this cause what was convenient, except I might see the present state of the Ship. And that the honour or dishonour, the wel-fare or misery, was for them, which should be partakers of life: At laft, for that I had fatisfaction of his valour and true dealing, in all the time. he had ferued me, and in correspondence of it, had given him (as was notorious) charge and credit in many occasions, I bound him, by the love and regard he ought me, and by the faith and duetie to Almighty God, to tell me truely, if all were as he had declared. Whereunto he made in answere, that he had manifested vinto me the plaine and naked truth, and that he tooke God to witnesse of the same truth : with which receiving satisfaction, I forced my felse what I could to periwade him to animate his companions, and in my name to intreate the Captaine and the rest to personere in defence of their libertie, lines, and reputation, remitting all to bis discretion: not doubting, but he would be tender of his duetie, and zealows of my reputation, in preferring his libertie, and the libertie of the Company abone all respects what soener. As for the welfare boped by a surrender, I was altogether unlikely to be partaker thereof, Death threatning to deprine me of the benefit, which the enemie offered; but if God would be pleased to free vs, the toy and comfort I should receive, might perhaps give mee force and firength to recover bealth.

Which answere being delivered to the Captaine, he presently caused a flagge of truce to be an out in place of our Enfigne, and began to parley of our furrendry with a Spaniard, which Don Beltran appointed for that purpose, from the poope of the Admirall, to offer in his name, the conditions before specified; with his faithfull promise and oath, as the Kings Generall, to take vs a buena querra, and to fend vs all into our owne Countrey. The promife he accepted, and faid, that under the same he yeelded, and surrendred himselfe, Ship and Company, Immediately, there same vnto me another servant of mine, and told me, that our Captaine had surrendred himselfe and our Ship; which understood, I called unto one Inan Gomes de Pineda, a Spanish Pilot, which was our Priloner, and in all the fight we had kept close in hold, and willed him to goe to the Generall Don Beltran de Castro from me, to tell him, that if he would give vs his word and oath, as the Generall of the King, and some pledge for confirmation, to receive vs a buena querra, and to give vs our lives and liberty, and prefent passage into our owne Countrey, that wee would surren. der our felues, and Ship into his hands : Otherwife, that he should neuerenioy of vs, nor ours any thing, but a refolution every man to dye fighting.

With this Message I dispatched him, and called vnto me all my Company, and encouraged them to facrifice their lines fighting and killing the enemy, if hee gaue but a fillip to any of our companions. The Spaniards willed vs to hoise out our boate, which was shot all to peeces; and so was theirs. Seeing that he called to vs to amaine our failes, which wee could not well doe, for that they were flung, and we had not men enough to hand them. In this parley, the Vice-admirall comming vpon our quarter, & not knowing of what had past, discharged her two chase peeces at vs, and hurt our Captaine very fore in the thigh, and maimed one of our Masters Mates, cal # led Hugh Mares, in one of his Armes, but after knowing vs to be rendred, he fecured vs : And we fatisfied them that we could not hoise out our boate, nor strike our tayles, the Admirall laid vs 2bourd, but before any man entred, John Gomes went vnto the Generall, who received him with great curtesie, and asked him what we required; whereunto hee made answere that my demand was that in the Kings name, he should give vs his faith and promise, to give vs our lives, to keepe the Lawes of faire warres and quarter, and to fend vs prefently into our Countrey; and in confirmation hereof, that I required some pledge, whereunto the Generall made answere; that in the Kings Maiesties name his Master, he received vs a buena querra, and swore by God Almighty, and by the habit of Alcantara (whereof he had received Knighthood, and in token whereof, he wort Gloue fent for in his breaft a greene croffe, which is the enfigne of that Order) that hee would give vs our lives to with good entreatie, and fend vs as speedily as he could into our owne Countrey. In confirmatir, on whereof, he tooke off his gloue, and fent it to me as a pledge. With this mellage Iohn Gomes returned, and the Spaniards entred and tooke possession of our Ship, every one crying buena querra, buena querra, oppor immaniana por ti: with which our Company began to fecure themfelues.

The Exglish

The Generall was a principall Gentleman of the ancient Nobilitie of Spaine, and brother to the Conde de Lemos, whose intention no doubt was according to his promite; and therefore confidering that some bad intreaty and insolency might be offered vnto me in my Ship, by the common Souldiers, who feldome have respect to any person in such occasions, especially in the case I was, whereof he had enformed himielfe; for preuention, he fent a principall Captain, brought 60 vp long time in Flanders, called Pedro Almeres de Pulgar, to take care of me, and whilest the Ship were one abourd the other, to bring me into his Ship : which he accomplished with great humanity and courtefie; defpiing the barres of Gold which were shared before his face, which hee might alone have enjoyed, if he would: And truely he was, as after I found by triall, a true Captaine; a man worthy of any charge, and of the noblest condition that I have knowne

The Generall received me with great courtesseand compassion, even with teares in his eyes. The mildnesse and words of great consolation and commanded mee to bee accommodated in his owne Cabbine, of a Generall where hee fought to cure and comfort mee the best hee could; the like hee vied with all after victoric. our hurt men, fixe and thirtie at leaft. And doubtleffe as true courage, valour, and refolution on, it requifite in a Generall in the time of battell. So humanitie, mildneffe, and courtefie after Whileft the fhips were together, the Maine-maft of the Daintie fell by the board, and the peoto plebeing occupied in rantacking and feeking for spoile and pillage neglected the principall; whereof enfued that within a flort space the Daintie grew so deepe with water, which increase fed for want of prepention, that all who were in her defired to fortake her, and weaved and cried for faccour to be faued, being out of hope of her recoverie. Whereupon, the Generall calling to- The Daintie in gether the best experimented men hee had, and consulting with them what was best to bee danger of done : it was resolued, that Generall Michael Angel should goe aboord the Daintie, and with Perishing. him threescore Mariners, as many Souldiers; and with them the English men, who were able to labour to free her from water, and to put her in order if it were possible : and then to recouer Per rice the Port of Panama for that of those to wind-wards it was impossible to turne vp to any of them, and neerer then to leward was not any that could supply our necessities and wants, which 20 lay from vs East, North-east, aboue two hundred leagues.

Michael Ansel, being a man of experience and care accomplished that hee tooke in hand, al- Michael Angel though in cleering and bayling the water, in placing a pumpe, and in fitting and mending her recourreth the Fore-faile he fpent about fix and thirtie houres. During which time the Ships lavalla hull: but this worke ended, they fet faile and directed their course for the Iles of Pearles : And for that the Dainie failed badly, what for want of her Maine-faile, and with the advantage which all the South Sea ships have of all those built in our North Sea. The Admirall gave which not withfranding (the wind calming with vs as wee approached neerer to the Land) twelue daies were ipent before wee could fetch fight of the Ilands, which to the Land) twente water representation of the leagues West South-west from Panama, and run Many Ilanis: 30 to the Southwards neere thirtie leagues. They are many and most inhabited, and those which haue people haue some Negros, slaues vnto the Spaniards, which occupie themselues in labour

In times past many enriched themselves with that trade, but now it is growne to decay. The Fishing for manner of fifthing for Pearles is, with certaine long Pinnaffes or small Barkes, in which there goe Pearles. foure, five, fix, or eight Negres, expert swimmers and great dieuers, whom the Spaniards call Bufor, with tract of time, vie, and continuall practife, having learned to hold their breath long under water for the better atchieuing their worke. These throwing themselves into the Sea, with certaine instruments of their Art, goe to the bottome and seeke the Bankes of the Oysters in which the Pearles are ingendred, and with their force and Art remove from their foundation, in which they spend more or lesse time, according to the resistance the firmnesse of the ground affordeth. Once losed, they put them into a bag winder their armes, and after bring them vp into their Boats, having loaden it they goe to the shoare, there they open them and take out the Pea les : they lie wnder the vetermost part of the circuit of the Oyster in rankes and proportions, under a certaine part which is of many pleights and folds, called the Ruffe, for the fimilitude it hath voto a Ruffe. The Pearles increase in bignesse, as they bee neerer the end or loynt of the Oyster. The meate of those which have these Pearles is milkie, and not verie wholsome to be eaten. In Anme 1 83; in the lland of Margarita, I was at the dregging of Pearle Oysters, after the manner we dreg Oysters in England, and with mine owne hands I opened many, and tooke out the Pearles of them; some greater, some lesse, and in good quantitie.

of the Land, or in fishing for Pearles.

30 They are found in divers parts of the world, as in the West Indies, in the South Sea, in the East Therefaces Indian Sea, in the Straits of Magellane, and in the Scottift Sea. Those found neere the Poles are more perfect, but are of a thickecolour, where such as are found neere the line are the Poles are are found. not perfect, but are of a thickecolour, whereas such as are found neere the line are most orient and transparent : the curious call it their water , and the best is a cleere white shining , with sierie flames. And those of the East India have the best reputation, though as good are found in the West India: the choice ones are of great valew and estimation, but the greatest that I have heard of, was found in these llands of Pearles; the which King Philip the second of Spaine, gaue to his daughter Elizabeth, wife to Albertus, Arch Duke of Austria, and Gouernour of the States of Great Pearle. Flanders, in whose possession it remaineth, and is called, la Peregrina, for the rarenesse of it, being

60 as big as the pomell of a Poniard. In this Nauigation, after our furrender, the Generall tooke speciall care for the good intreatie The Generall of vs, and especially of those who were hurt. And God so bleffed the hands of our Surgions (be-honourable vfides that they were expert in their Art) that of all our wounded men not one died, that was aline fage, towards the day after our furrendry, and many of them with eight, ten, or twelue wounds, and some with the ficke and more. The thing that ought to moue vs to give God Almightie especiall thankes and praises wounded, was, that they were cured in a manner without Instruments or Salues : For the Chests were all broken to pieces; and many of their Simples and Compounds throwne into the Sea; those which remayned, were fuch, as were throwne about the ship in broken pots and bagges, and fuch as by the Divine Providence were referred, at the end of three dayes, by order from the Generall, were commanded to be fought and gathered together. These with some Instruments of small moment, bought and procured from those, who had reserved them to a different end, did not onely ferne for our cures, but also for the curing of the Spaniards, beeing many more, then Starifo Surgie those of our Company. For the Spanifo Surgeons were altogether ignorant in their profession, and had little or nothing wherewith to cure. And I have noted, that the Spaniards in generall are nothing fo curious, in accommodating themselves, with good and carefull Surgeons, nor to fit to them with that which belongeth to their profession, as other Nations are, though they have greater need then any, that I doe know.

> At the time of our furrender, I had not the Spanish Tongue, and so was forced to vie an Interpreter, or the Latine, or French; which holpe mee much for the vnderstanding of those, which ipake voto me in Spanifo; together with a little frattering I had of the Portugall.

Through the Noble proceeding of Don Beltran with vs., and his particular care towards mee, in curing and comforting me, I began to gather heart, and hope of life, and health, my ferunts which were on foot, aduited me ordinarily of that which past, But some of our enemies, badly inclined, repined at the proceedings of the Generall; and faid, he did ill to vie vs fo well; That we were Lutheran; and for that cause, the faith which was given vis, was not to be kept nor performed: 20 Others, that we had fought as good Souldiers, and therefore deferued good quarter. Others, nicknamed vs with the name of Corfarios, or Pirats; not differning thereby that they included themselues within the same imputation. Some were of opinion, that from Panama, the Generall would fend vs into Spaine; Others faid, that he durst not dispose of vs, but by order from the Vice-roy of Porn, who had given him his authoritie. This hit the naile on the had,

To all I gaue the hearing, and laid up in the store-house of my memory, that which I thought to be of substance, and in the store-house of my consideration, endeauoured to frame a proportionable resolution to all occurrents, conformable to Gods most hely Will. Withall I profited my felte of the meanes, which should bee offered, and beare greatest probabilitie to worke our comfort, helpe, and remedie. And to, as time ministred oportunitie, I began, and endeauoured tofa- to tishe the Generall, and the better fort in the points I durft intermedole. And especially to perfwade (by the best reasons I could) that wee might bee sent presently from Panama: Alleaging the promife given vs, the cost and charges enturing, which doub leffe would bee such as deserved confideration and excuse : besides that, no www hilest hee was in place, and power, and authoritie in his hands, to performe with vs. that he would looke into his honour, and profit himfelfe of the occasion, and not put vs into the hands of a third person; who perhaps being more powerfull then himselfe, he might be forced to pray and increate the performance of his promile; whereunto he gaue vs the hearing, and bare vs in hand, that he would doe, what he could.

The Generall, and all in generall, not only in the Peru, but in all Spaine, and the Kingdomes thereof

(before our furrendry) held all Englishmen of Warre, to bee Cortarios, or Perats; which I laboured to 10

reforme, both in the Peru, and also in the Counsels of Spaine, and amongst the Chieftaines, Soulditti, and better fort, with whom I came to have conner fation; Alledging that a Pirate, or Corlatio, is be,

Miferifion of the terme Pi-Tars.

What a Pirate

which in time of peace, or truce foyleth, or robbeth those, which have peace or truce with them : but the English have neither peace nor truce with Spaine, but warre; and therefore not to bee accounted Pirate. Besides, Spaine broke the peace with England, and not England with Spaine; and that by Ymbargo, which of all kinds of defiances, is most reprodued, and of least reputation. The ransoming of prisoners, and that by the Canon, being more bono, able, but aboue all, the most bonorable is with I rumpet and Herald, to proclaime and denounce the warre by publike defiance. And (o if they flouid condemne the English for Pirats, of force, they must first condemne themselnes. Moreover, Pirats are those, who range the Seat without licence of their Prince; who when they are met with, are punified more severely by their cure for Lords, then when they fall into the hands of strangers : which is notorious to be en ore severely prosecuted in England (in time of peace) then in any the Kingdomes of Christendome. But the English buse all license, either immediately from their Prince, or from other thereunto amiborized, and so cannot in any sense be comprehended under the name of Pirats, for any kostilitie undertaken against Spaine, or the pany should be intreated according to that manner, which they have ever vied lince the beginning of the warre: without making further inquisition. Then if he were rich or poore, to see if he were able to give 4 ransome, in this also they are not very curious. But if this Spanish sip should fall a thwart his King! (0 Armado, or Gallies, I make no doubt but t'ey would hang the Captaine and his company for Pirats. Al reason is, for that by a special Law it is enacted : that no man in the Kingdomes of Spaine, may arme any ship, and goe in warfare, without the Kings special licence and commission; upon pame to be reputed a Pirate, and to be chaftered with the pun frment due to Corlarios. In England the cafe is de ren

The euftoma of Spaine for

And so the state standing as now it doth; if in Spaine a particular man should arme a ship, and goe in warfare with it against the English, and happened to be taken by them: I make no question, but the com-

CHAP.S.S. S. Buena Querra discussed Musket arrowes not Weed by Spaniards. 1412

for the warre once proclamed, every man may arme that will, and bath wherewith; which maketh for our oreaterexemption, from being comprehended within the number of Pirats.

With thele, and or like Arguments to this purpose (to avoid tediousnesse) I omit I convinced all those whom I heard to harpe upon this string; which was of no small importance for our good entreatie, and motiues for many, to further and fauour the accomplishment of the promise lately made vnto vs.

One day after dinner (as was the ordinary custome) the Generall, his Captaines, and the better fort of his followers, being affembled in the Cabbin of the Poope in conference, an eager contention arose amongst them, touching the capitulation of Buena Querra and the purport thereto of. Some faid, that onely life and good entreatie of the prisoners, was to be comprehended there- A disputation. in others enlarged, and restrained it, according to their humours and experience. In fine my o-concerning pinion was required, and what I had seene and knowne touching that point: wherein I pawfed Buene Quertai. a little, and ful pecting the Worft, feared that it might be a baite laid to catch me withall, and fo excused my felte: faving that where so many experimented Souldiers were joyned together my younging gement was little to be respected; whereunto the Generall replied : That knowledge was not alwaies incident to yeeres, (chough reason requireth, that the aged should be the wifest) but an Art acquired by action, and management of affaires. And therefore they would bee but certified, what I had feene, and what my judgement was in this point, ynto which feeing I could not well excuse my selfe, I condescended ; and calling my wits together, holding it better, to 20 shoot out my bolt, by yeelding vato reason, (although I might erre) then to stand obstinate, my will being at warre with my confent, and fearing my deniall might bee taken for discourtesie. which peraduenture might also purchase mee mislike with those, who seemed to wish mee comfort and restitution. I submitted to better judgement, the reformation of the present affembly . The Resolute. faying, Sir, under the capitulation of Buena Querra, (or faire warres) I have ener understood, and so it bath beene observed in these, as also in former times, that preservation of life, and good extreatie of the prisoner, have beene comprehended: and further by no meanes to bee veged to any thing contrary to his conscience, as touching his Religion, nor to be seduced, or menaced from the allegeance due to his Prince and Country : but rather to ransome him for his moneths pay. And this is that which I have knowne practifed in our times, in general amongst all Civill and Noble Nations. But the English, baue enlar-30 ged it one point more towards the Spaniards rendred a Buena Querra, in thefe warrest baue ener deline. The noble red toems, which have beene taken upon such compositions without ransome : but the conetousuesse of our viage of the age bath brought in many abuses, and excluded the principal Officers from partabing of the benefit of But abused in this primiledge, in leaning them to the discretion of the Viltor, being many times poorer, then the common this dayes, Souldiers their qualities considered, whereby they are commonly put to more, then the ordinary ransome, and not being able of themselves to accomplish it, are forgotten of their Princes, and sometimes suffer with this, Dow Bettram faid, This ambiguitie you have well refolued; And like a worthy Gen-pon 2 three tleman (with great courtesie and liberalitie) added; Let not the last point trouble you : but be of good latisfied and comfort, for I heere gine you my word anew, that your ransome (if any shall be thought due) shall be but answereth. 40 a couple of Grey-bounds for me; and other two for my Brother, the Conde de Lemes, And this I fineare to you by the babit of Alcantera. Provided alwayes, that the King my Master leave you to my difpose, as of right you belong voto me.

For amongst the Spaniards in their Armadoes, if there bee an absolute Generall, the tenth of all is due to him, and he is to take choise of the best : wherein other Countries, it is by lot, that the Generals tenth is given ; And if they be but two ships, hee doth the like, and being but one, the is of right the Generals. This I hardly believed, vntill I faw a Letter, in which the King willed his Vice-roy, to give Don Beltran thankes for our ship and Artillery, which hee had given to his Maiestie. I yeelded to the Generall, most heartie thankes for his great fauour, wherewith he bound me euer to feeke how to ferue him, and deferue it,

50 In this discourse Generall Michaell Angell demanded, for what purpose served the little shore Shore arrowes Arrowes, which we had in our ship, and those in so great quantitie : I satisfied them, that they for Muskers. were for our Muskets. They are not as yet in vie among it the Spaniards, yet of fingular effect and execution as our enemies confelled: for the vpper worke of their ships being Muskets proofe, in all places they passed through both sides with facilicie, and wrought extraordinary disasters, which caused admiration, to see themselves wounded with small shot , where they thought themselues secure; and by no meanes could find where they entred, nor come to the sight of a-

Hereof they proued to profie themselves after but for that they wanted the Tampkings, which ate first to bee driven home, before the Arrow bee put in and as then understood not the fecret, Tamphis is a 60 they rejected chem, as wncertaine, and therefore not to bee vied, but of all the lhot vied now a familipiece of dayes; for the annoying of an Enemie in fight by Sea; few are of greater moment for many re. wood urned fire the which I hold not contamine a season of the spects: which I hold not convenient to treate of in publike.

A little to the Southwards of the Hand of Pearle, betwixt feuen and eight degrees, is the great Pecce. River of Saint Buena Ventura, It falleth into the South Sea with three mouthes, the head of Iohn Oxnams Voyage to the South Sea. What the Symarous are.

Their habitation.

Their affiflance.

Iobs Oxnam capitulateth

with them.

His folly, Breach of promile. His purfuit.

La Pacheta.

The Generall

certifieth the

Audiencia of

The great ioy

his fucceffe.

of the Saa-

niarde.

which, is but a little diffant from the North Sea. In the yeare 1975, or 1976, one John Orner of Plimonth, going into the Well Indies, joyned with the Symatons. Thele are fugiting Negroes. and for the bad intreatie which their Mafters had given them , were then retired into the Mountaines, and lived upon the spoyle of such Spaniards, as they could master, and could never bee brought into obedience, till by composition they had a place limited them for their freedome. where they should live quietly by themselves. At this day they have a great habitation neere Panama, called Saint lago de los Negros, well peopled, with all their Officers and Commanders of their owne, faue onely a Spanife Gouernour.

By the affittance of these Symarons, hee brought to the head of this River, by piecemeale, and in many Journeyes a small Pinnace, hee fitted it by time in warlike manner, and with the so choice of his Companie, put himfelfe into the South Sea, where his good happe, was to meete with a couple of thippes of trade, and in the one of them a great quantitie of Gold. And an mong ft other things two pieces of speciall estimation, the one a Table of masty Gold, with Emralds, fent for a present to the King; the other a Lady of singular beautie, married, and a mother of children. The latter grew to bee his perdition : for hee had capitulated with these Symatons, that their part of the bootie, should be onely the prisoners, to the end to execute their malice youn them fuch was the rancour they had conceined against them, for that they had beene the Tyrants of their libertie.) But the Spaniards not contented to have them their flaves: who lately had beene their Lords, added to their feruitude, cruell intreaties. And they agains to feede their infatiable reuenges, accustomed to roait and eate the hearts of all those Spaniards, whom at any time they could lay hand upon.

John Oxnam (I say) was taken with the love of this Lady, and to winne her good will, what through her teares and periwasions, and what through feare and detestation of their barbarous inclinations; breaking promife with the Symarons, yeelded to her request, which was to give the prifoners libertie with their fluppes; for that they were not viefull for him; notwithflanding Oxnam kept the Lady, who had in one of the reftored shippes, either a Sonne, or a Nephew. This Nephew with the reft of the Spaniards, made all the hafte they could to Pamana, See the Storie and they vied fuch diligence, as within few houres, some were dispatched to seeke those . who before, This is little thought fo quickly to bee ouertaken. The purfuers approaching the River, were doubtfull added of later by which of the afore-remembred three mouthes, they should take their way. In this wavering intelligence. one of the Souldiers efpied certaine feathers, &c.

Comming in fight of the Ilands of Pearles, the winde beganne to fresh in with vs, and wee profited our felues of it : but comming thwart of a small Iland, which they call La Pacheta, that lieth within the Pearle Hands, close aboord the Mayne, and some eight or tenne leagues South and by West from Panama, the winde calmed againe.

This Iland belongeth to a private man, it is a round humocke, contaying not a league of ground, but most fertile. Insomuch that by the owners industrie, and the labour of some few laues, who occupie themselues in manuring it; and two Barkes, which he employeth in bringing the fruit it giveth, to Panama; it is faid to be worth him every weeke, one with another, a barre of filuer; valued betwixt two hundreth and fiftie, or three hundreth Pezos : which in a English money, may amount to fiftie or threescore pound : and for that, which I saw at my being in Panama, touching this, I hold to be true.

In our courfe to fetch the Port of Panama, we put our felnes betwixt the Ilands and the Main which is a goodly Channell, of three, foure, and fine leagues broad, and without danger; except a man come too neere the shoare on any side; and that is thought the better course, then to got a Sea-board of the Ilands, because of the Iwife running of the tides, and the advantage to stop the ebbe: As also for fuccour, if a man should happen to be becalmed at any time beyond expectation : which happeneth fometimes.

The fewenth of July wee had fight of Perice; they are two little Hands, which cause the Port of Panama, where all the shippes vie to ride; It is some two Leagues West North-west of the of Citie, which hath alfo a Pere in it felfe for imall Barkes, at full Sea, it may have fome fixe or feuen foot water, but at lowe water, it is drie.

The ninth of July wee anchored under Perico, and the Generall prefently adulfed the Asdiencia, of that which had fucceeded in his Iourney: which understood by them, caused Bonfires to be made, and every man to pur Luminaries in their houles; the fashion is much vied amongstithe Spaniards in their featts of ioy, or for glad tidings; placing many lights in their Charches, in their windowes, and Galleries, and corners of their houses; which being in the beginning of the night, and the Citie close by the Sea shoare, shewed tovs (being farre off) as though the Citie had beene on a light fire.

About eight of the clocke all the Artilerie of the Citie was shot off, which wee might 6 discerne by the flash of fire, but could not heare the report : yet the Armado being aduled thereof, and in a readinesse, answered them likewise with all their Artilerie: which taking end (as all the vanities of this earth doe). The Generall fetled himfelfe to dispatch aduice for the King , for the Vice-roy of Pern, and the Vice-roy of Nona Spana, for hee alio and beene certified of our being in that Sea, and had fitted an Armado to feeke vs. and to guard his coaft.

But now for a farewell, (and note it) Let mee relate vnto you this Secret; How Don Bel. Note. tran shewed mee a Letter from the King his Master, directed to the Vice-roy, wherein hee gaue him particular relation of my precended Voyage; of the hippes; their burden; their red by Siam for munition; their number of men, which I had in them, as perfectly as if hee had feene all with Gold his owne eyes; Saying vnto mee: Hereby you may discerne, whether the King my Master have friends in England, and good and speedy aduice of all that passeth. Whereunto I replyed; It was no wonder, for that hee had plenty of Gold and Silver, which worketh this and more strange to effects; for my Iourney was publique and notorious to all the Kingdome, whereunto he replyed, that if I thought it fo convenient, leave should be given me to write into England to the Queens Maiestie my Midresse, to my Father, and to other personages, as I thought good ; and leaving the Letters open; that hee would fend fome of them, in the Kings Packet, others to his Vncle Don Rodrico de Castro, Cardinall and Archbishop of Senill, and to other friends of his: Not making any doubt but that they would bee speedily in England. For which I thanked him, and aceented his courtefie, and although I was my felie vnable to write, yet by the hands of a feruant I have this of mine. I wrote three or foure copies of one Letter to my Father, Sir John Hawkins. In which Letter trans-

I briefly made relation of all that had fucceeded in our Voyage. The disparches of Spaine and New Spaine, went by ordinarie course in ships of aduice : but 20 that for the Pern was fent by a kinfman of the Generals, called Don Francisco de la Cuena, Which being dispatched, Don Beltran hasted all that ever he could, to put his ships in order, to returne the discourse to Lyma. Hee caused the Daintie to be grounded and trimmed, for in those Ilands it higheth of the whole and falleth fome fifteene or fixteene foot water.

And the Generall with his Captaines, and some Religious men being aboord her, and new naming her, named her the Vifitation; for that thee was rendred on the day, on which they celebrate the Visitation of the Virgin Maie. In that place the ground being plaine, and without to magnifie wantage (whereby to helpe the tender fided and sharpe Ships) they are forced to shoare them on their Spanish either fide. In the middelt of their folemnitie, her props and shores of one fide fayled and so worth either fide. In the middelt of their intentitie, her props and thores of one fide rayled and to The Dainie, thee fell ouer upon that fide findenly, intreating many of them (which were in her) very badto Iv. and doubtleffe had fhee beene like the thips of the South Sea, fhee had broken out her bulge : Differion but being without Mafts and emptie (for in the South Sea, when they bring aground a shippe, they leave neither Maft, Balaft, nor any other thing abourd, befides the bare Hull) her ffrength was such, as it made no great showe to have received any domage, but the feare shee put them all into was not little, and caused them to runne out of her faster then a vace.

In these Ilands is no succour, nor refreshing; onely in the one of them is one house of straw, and a little fpring of small moment. For the water which the Shippes vie for their provision, they fetch from another Hand, two leagues West North-west of theie; which they call Tabaga, having in it some fruit and refreshing, and some few Indians to inhabite it.

What succeeded to mee, and to the rest during our Imprisonment, with the rarities and parti-40 cularities of the Perm, and Tierra firms, my Voyage to Spains, and the successe, with the time I fpent in prison in the Pers, in the Torcers, in Souil, and in Madrid, with the accidents which befell mee in them; I leave for a fecond part of this discourse, if God give life, and convenient place and reft, necessarie for so tedious and troublesome a worke; desiring God that is Almightie, to give his bleffing to this and the rest of my intentions: that it and they may be fruitfull, to his glorie, and to the good of all: then shall my defires bee accomplished, and I account my felte most happie. To whom be all glory, and thankes from all eternitie.

CHAP. VI.

d briefe Note written by Master IOHN ELLIS, one of the Captaines with Sir RICHARD HAWKINS, in his Voyage through the Strait of MAGE-LAN, begunne the ninth of Aprill, 1593. concerning the (aid Straite, and certaine places, on the coast and Inland of Peru.

He second of Februarie, 1 592, wee fell with the Land of Terra Australia, in 500 degrees fiftie fine leagues off the Straite of Magelan, which Land lay Balt and by North, or East North-east from the Straite, which is a part of Terra Australia : from which Land wee entred the Straite vpon the West South-west course : then we ran ten leagues Weft North-weft, other ten leagues Weft South-weft, then eight leagues South-weit, and came to an anchor on the starboord side, in a hooke where you may moore any ship in twelve fathomes water. From thence wee ranne South-west and by Bbbbbb n:fb, and pringed by them ; action, much agreeing with where they luft Santa Maria, Valpar.fo.

South seven leagues, where we came to an Iland called, Penguin Iland, and tooke in five or five tunnes of Penguins, and flayed them, and falted them. Thence twelve leagues South South. west, and found good riding in twelve tathoms, fine fand: from thence to Port Famine, the new Towne of Pedro Sarmento, fine leagues South-west. Then West North-west fixteene leagues, where we anchored in good riding. Then North-west and by West, till wee came to the River of Geneuers, on the starboard side eight leagues. Then five leagues North-west. Then North-welt and by West thirtie leagues, till wee came out of the Straite, which is in length one hundred and eleven leagues. The mouth or entrance of the Straite is in thirtietwo degrees and an halfe, and the Out-let is in the same heigth. The middle is in fittle foure degrees and a terce. After wee were come out of the Straite wee went away North-west and by North fortie Mocha. leagues into the Sea ; then North, vntill wee came to the Iland of Moche, which is in thirtie eight degrees and thirtie minutes, where we had good trade with the People. This Ile is three leagues long, where great reliefe, of Mutton, Mais, and other things may bee had from the Indiane. This Ile is twelve leagues from the mayne Land. From thence wee went North, and patt by the He of Saint Marie: from thence vnto Valparato, which flandeth in thirtie three degrees, into which Hauen I went with our Boate, and tooke foure shippes, in which wee had Wines, and other good prouition : and there wee remayned the space of twelve dayes. And in this time I went on shoare , and tooke five houses , which were full of Wine , and other good things: And in this time there came a shippe by the Harbour, which the Generall went to a take, but hee did not : yet [with twelve men did take her, and within one houre the Generall came to vs. The shippe had clothes of Cotton for men to weare, of the Indian making, and tome Gold.

Gold. in the bottome of the Bay, where they make excel-Vaiparaile is a Port and a lent Wine. From thence eighteene leagues into the Land is Saint lage , a great Towne of Spaniards. From thence wee paffed to Arisa, which is in twentie degrees, as I take it. All Arica. Pi/co.

this Coast lieth North and South. From thence wee passed to Pifco and Chimcha, where the Chinchs. Generall, and the Maiter Hugh Cornello, went to goe on shoare, but they did not. Heere wee Sixe of the met with fixe of the Kings thippes, which came to feeke vs : but at that time wee efcared Kings Stips. them. These places are in fourteene degrees and an halfe. From thence wee passed by the Ci. w tie of Lima, which is in twelve degrees and an halfe. From thence by Paira, which is an Ha-Lima. Paita. uen, and a Towne, and standeth in five degrees. From thence wee passed by the Equinocally Atacame, Baia de Sante

Line, and went to Asacame, where wee were taken, the two and swentieth of Line, 1994. This place is in one degree to the Northward of the Line. There is from thence some eight leagues, a Bay called. The Bay of Saint Matthew. From thence were very carried vnto Panama, which is in nine degrees so the Northward of the Line : where wee were held Prifoners. From Panama wee were returned to Parta, and so to Lama. Lama is neere as bigge as London within the walls; the houses are of Lome baked, for want of Stone. There are neere twentie thousand Negros in Lima. There are in it of Horsemen an hundred Launces, and an hundred Carbiners, at a thousand Ducats a man by the yeere. From Lima I went to Gnamanea, 4 which is a good Citie fixtie leagues from Lime, to the South-eaft. Twel-e leagues from Lime Eastward it raineth, but neuer at Lana. Twentie leagues more Southerly, towards Gnamaga , at Paricacco , which is a Mountaine, it is as cold as in England in our Winter: But none will dwell there, because of the cold. Then is the Valley of Choose having Hills on both fides, and a River in the middeft. The Valley is eighteene leagues long, and well peopled, and hath divers Townes: it is fortie leagues from Lime, and to through that I travelled to Gnamanga.

From Gnamanga wee passed towards Cusco on hard wayes cur out of the Rockes by Gnamacape, with great difficultie by the wayes there are Tamboes or houses to lodge people, and some Villages. Then wee came to Cufco, which is a Citie about the bigneffe of Brifton , without a 19 wall, having a Cassle halfe a mile off on the side of an Hill, builded with stones of twentie tuns weight firangely iowned without morter. From Lima they trade to Cufco all that comes out of Spaine. They of Quito trade to Cufco, with wollen Cloth and Cottons: for Quito hath abuse dance of theepe about it, and is a great Citie. They drive theepe to Lima twentie thouland in a Flocke, and be halte a yeere in the Pallage.

Betweene Cuico and Potosi there is continuall trade, and the Lords or Cacionoes of the Niturals will entertaine you in the way, feed you in Silver veffell, and give you very good lodging, and if they like you, they will guide you with three or foure hundred Indians. In Porofi there are at worke neere an hundred thouland Indians, which the Cacianoes bring in for fo many daves to worke the Mynes; and then other Cacronoes bring in as many more. I have also two Letters writter by Thomas Sanders fernant to Sir Richard Hawkins, written to Sir Io in Hawkins out of the prison of Saint Lucar; in one of which bee maketh a large relation of Rer Too, Lucas, Sir 10 in Hawkins out of the prigon of Sann Lucas, when by with mention of one Master Lucas, condemned by the Holy House to the Gallies, and sent to Nombre de Dios, in which Veyage het died: on

CHAP. Sir R. H. bi Dfage. Sir Iohn Hawkins bis Pardon from K. Philip. 1417

of the other I have hither added this transcript touching the viage and respect which Sir Richard Hawkins found in Peru.

I wrote in like fort of my Masters health, and of his entertaynment in his taking, and in This is pare the Citie of Lima by the Vice-king of the Countrey, and how hee was beloued for his valour, of another by all braue men in those parts, the which I learned by many which came from thence . as well Letter, rich as poore, and many Negroes, ieruants to Merchants, which came from thence, and were there when hee came. Hee was received by all the best in the Countrie, carried by them to a Princely house all richly hanged, the which hee had to himselfe, with a great allowance from the King, befides many prefents from the Queene: but within fixe or feuen dayes hee was carto ried by the Fathers to the Holy Houle, not as a man to be executed, but to reft there would the heard from the King what should be done with them. &c.

Having occasion here to mention Sir John Hawkins, I thought good, in memorie of his name, to expresse a Tardon from the Spanish King Philip the second, to birn, and to the Master George Fitzwilliams, and the rest of their companie, both for the forme thereof, (being here printed from the Originall, superscribed and subscribed with the Kings owne hand) and to bew the strict prohibition of Trade in the Indies.

EL REY.

DOr quanto por parte de Iuan Aquins y Iorge Fitzwilliams Ingleses por si yen nöbre de todos los demas 🕻 Ingleses que han y do y estado en su compania, enlo que de yuso sedira, nos hasido hecha relaceon que noenbar gante lo que por nos esta prohibido yordenado paraque ningun estrangero yque no sea natural destos nostros Reynos, nauegue, trate, us contrate enla carrera de las Indias, ni enlos puertos y lugares dellas. Los susudos ban entrado y nanegado, tratado y contratado enla dicha carrera y puertos y lugares della, y porque su intencion no ha sido dermirnos ni offender ni damnissicar, a nostros Vasallos, y por que acua, y persone in the construction of the con terra, nos han pedido y supplicado que vsando da clemencia y de beniquidad conellos bixiesemos merced do perdonalles la culpa y penas en que anian incurrido, y nos por inft as canfas y confirationes que aello nos muenen y por les bazar merced lo anemas tenido por bien. T por la presenze les pardonamos y remitimos todas y qualesquier penas en que por razon de auer entrado y namegado enla dicha carrera de las Indixi y tractado y corractado enlos puertos y lugares dellas hasta agora ayan incurrido, y queremos que en la dicha razonno puedan er acufados ni molestadas, ni por esta razon ni cansa puedan contra ellos proceder los del unestro conceso de las Indias, ni los suezes do la casa dela contratazion, ni otros algunos. Perque no. Bra merced y voluntad es de les remittr como les remitimos todas las dichas penas, y de les librar, como les libramos y damos per libres y quitos delliu, bien assi como ficuellas no buniseran caydo ni incurrido, no embargantes qualesquiera lejes, ordenanças, provisiones y cedulas que en razon delo sufo dicho ayamos becho y dado, con quales quiere clausulas que enellas aja, o, bauer pueda, las quales todas paraen quanto 10 alo suso dicho las abrogamos y deregamos , aniendelas aque per expressadas & insersas de Verbo ad verbum, quedando en futuer en viper quante alademas. El que dicho perdon, gracia y remission qui-remos que se entienda y esienda no solo alos doos suan Aquins y lorge Fuzuvillums, pero a todos los demas snoleses queensu compania sauydo conque esto sea y se entienda ser enrespecto delo passado, pero que por esto no seanisto permitirles ni darfeles licencia paraque de aqui adelante puedan sin nuestra expressa y

YELREY.

Por mandado de su Mag. S. Antonio Gracian.

V. Md. perdonea Iuano Aquins Ingles y afus companneros le pena enque incurriente o perauer nanegade, y contratado enlas Indeas contra las ordenes de V. Md.

particular licencia, nauegar tratar y contratar enla dicha carrera, y que se lo besieren, demas de incurrir en las penas contenidas en nuestras lejes ordenanças, cartas y pronisiones, este pardon y gracia sea y ayadeser ninguno y de ningun valor y effecto, y mandamos alos del nostro conseio delas Indias y alos nostros

Inexes y Officiales de la cafa dela contratacion y a otras quales quier luexes y lufticias que affilo guar-

den y cumplan fecha enel monastero de Santt Lorenço el real a diez dias del mes de Agusto, anno del

Bbbbbb 2

Someor de mill y quinien tos y setenta y un annos.

CHAP.

Cuf.o.

Mateo.

Panama.

Gnamenga.

Paita.

Lima.

Petof.

Mafter Luc.rs

CHAP. VII. A briefe Relation of an * Englishman which had beene thirteene yeeres Captive to the Spaniards in Peru, &c.

* I found this paper amongs others of Mafter Hahl, with. our the name of the Author. Lima. Payea, Acapulca.

Mexico.

Atrizco. Angeles. Pera Cruz-

Spint I, de

He eleuenth of October, 1602. we departed from the Citie of Lyma, and that dev wee fet Tayle from the Callon, in the Contadora, Captaine Andrea Broche. The fifteenth of October wee came in o Payta, and there watered, and tooke in fresh victuals; and fet fayle from thence the foure and twentieth of the fame, for to The fourteenth of December we came to an anchor in Acapuica, we were becalmed in 17. degrees and an halfe, foure and twentie dayes, and were fet with the current into

23. degrees to the Northward, we came all the coast alongst from Colyma and Nanydad to Acatulica. The twentieth of December we came from Acapulca, with fixe Mules: and on Christman Day in the morning we came to Zumpanga, a Towne of Indians; where wee remayned all that day being betweene this Towne and Acapulca thirtie leagues, no Towne betwixt. The laft of December wee came to Quirna vaca a Towne in the Marquesado of Hernan Cortes, thirteene leagues from Mexico. The first of Ianuarie we came into the great. Citie of Mexico, where we remayned until the 20

fenenteenth, at which time we came from Mexico, in the evening, and came two leagues that night. The next day we came to Irazing, which is feuen leagues from Mexico, where wee remayned two dayes. The fine and twentieth of Ianuarie wee came to Pueblo de los Angelos, pala fine in our way the Vulcan being from Mexica twentie leagues, and thorow Chullula. Thethirtieth of Innuarie I went to Atrizes, where we were fixe dayes, being fine leagues from Mexics. The fixteenth of Februarie we came from the Pueblo de les Angelos, with fourteene Carts, fine or fixe temes of Oxen in a Cart, for to come to the Citie of Vera craz. The leventh of March, 1603. wee came into the Vera cruz, the new Towne, where wee remayned vntill the eight of Aprill, flaying for a fhip of aduife.

Tuesday the eight of Aprill, we set sayle from Saint Ino de Ullna, in a Barque of aduise called, w the Saint Lazaro, the Captaines name was Diego Garces, being of the burden of thirtie tunhes. the Pilot named Diego V yedall, we were eight and twentie persons. 1603. The nine and twentieth of Aprill we had fight of the Mariyrs, and were in two fathomes water, off them we faw no more nor no other, while we fell with Alla Rocha in Barbarie, which was the 14. of June.

The fixteenth of Iune wee had fight of Chiprone, and Cales, that night we came into S. Lucar. The feuenteenth of June in the morning, the Kings Officers came aboord of vs for the Kings Letters, and the Letters of the Mexico Fleet : where I heard newes of our good Queene Elizabethi death, and our King lames his comming to the Crowne in peace, Heere I was discharged , and had my libertie given me, fo I went to Symil the nineteenth day, where I remay ned vntill the one and twentieth of September: at which time I came to Wellus in the Condado.

The fift of November I came from Wellus in the George of London. Mafter Inano Whary, the thip was Mafter Hangers. I arrived at the Reculluers the fewenth of December, 1602, being fince my departure from England thirteene yeeres and nine moneths of captiuitie for the which the Lord be praised, and make me thankfull all the dayes of my life. Amen.

CHAP. VIII.

The Relation of ALEXANDRO VRSINO concerning the coast of Terra Firma, and the secrets of Peru, and Chili, where he had lived foure and thirtie yeeres. He first Towne inhabited of the Spaniards is Saint Iohn in the Ile of Portovicco, it is a very poore Towne. They have no Bread, but in flead thereof they vie 2 certaine Rootecalled Cazane. There is in the Towne about fixtie Spaniards, and oa Fort. In Saint Domingo there is a very strong Fort with aboue eightie great Preces of Ordnance. It is one of the fairest Cities in all the Indies: there are aboue feuen hundred Spaniards in it. It is a Bilhoprike. There is next the Towne of Monte Christo, wherein there are about eightie Spannards. There is a small Fort. Then Ocoa, which is a very good Port, where the Fleere both comming and going, doe put in for fresh water and 60 wood, and other necessaries. Then Porto de Plata, a small Towne, with a little Fort, about seuentie or eightie Spaniards. Porto Reale, a dishabited Towne, but a very good Port. There is nothing else in the He of Spagnola, of any importance. There are about 22000. Negros, men and women, flaues.

Saint Dominto.

From Saint Domingo to Iamaica, an hundred leagues in this Ile there is but one Towne, which Iamaica. fundeth three leagues within the Land. There are in it about fiftie Spaniards. In all these places they make Sugar in great abundance, but especially at Saint Domingo there are about eightie Ingenies, or Sugar houles. They have neither Silver, nor Gold. They eate of the forefaid Roote for Not one nature Bread in every place. The lle of Spaniola is inhabited onely by the Spaniards, there is not one Naturall of the Countrey.

From lamaica to Cartagena one hundred leagues. This Cartagena is a faire Citie, a very strong entagena. Fort in the Hauen mouth and Artilerie in three parts of the Towne. A Bishoprike. They have neither Silver nor Gold : there are about 150. Spaniards. Next to this is Tula inhabited of the 10 Spaniards about fortie or fiftie : it is eighteene leagues from Cartagena alongft the coaft.

Then Santa Martha, a Citie with a imall Fort, about 100, Speniards: there they gather great Saint Mariba, quantity of Gold very fine : they are a fierce people. Santa Martha is fiftie leagues from Cartagena longft the same coaft. Vpon the same coaft is Nombre de dier about seuentie leagues from Nombre de dier. Cartagena, they have no Fort but upon the haven fide there lyeth foure peeces of Artillary there are in it about fixthe Spaniards. It is vinder the gouernment of Panama, Then Veragna, about fementie or eightie Spaniards : they gather great store of Gold aboue a million and a halfe yearely. V non the fame coast about one hundred leagues from Veragua, fleth a towne called Coffarices, coffarices, inhabited onely of the naturals : they gather great flore of Gold.

Ouer against Nombre de Dies on the other Sea of Sur lyeth the Citie of Panama, eighteene Panama 20 leagues diffant from thence : there is an Audience, and a Prefident, and an Archbilhope there are about four ehundred Spaniards; it is a very rich towne, full of treasure : all the Gold and Silver that com neth out of those parts into Spaine, commeth by that towne: they have no Fort but foure preces of Or inance that I ye vpon the Hauen; but to returne to the coast of the ocean Sea. From Carragena Eastwards there is a River called Rio de Labache, vpon this River a prettie towne, with two hundre ! Spansards, where is gathered great abundance of Pearle . about one million euery yeare : there is a little Fort.

A little beyond that you come to Baxemete, which is in the government of Valenzaula, and Venduela. Barbaruta, three leagues within land. Then Toom five leagues within land. Then Margarita with a strong Fort, in all these places is gathered most fine Gold. Nombre de Dies, Cartagena, Santo ta Martha, Tulu Rio de Labathe, Veragua, Barbaruta, thefe haue bin spoiled two or three times by the Frenchmen.

Margaria is the vemost Towne of the Spaniards upon that coast, from whence passing into the Countrie, about foure dayes journey we came to Granade, a towne in the government of Va- Granade. lanzanola, from thence to Trugillo, which is the vemost towne of that Progince. So to Villetta, where beginneth the Nuevo Regno de Granado, Vele Pampelona, Ocagna, Tinza, a proper Citte with foure hundred Spaniards, Santa Fe del Nuevo Regno di Granada, the principall Citie of the Kingdome, fine hundred Spaniards an Archbishop, a President, and an Audientia; Tocayma, Ayuage, Cariago, Arma, Caramanta, Santa Fe di Antiochia, Anzerma, Cali, Buga, Popaya, 2 gouernment. Armage Mocoa, Scanze, Timana, La Plata, Nena, Pasto. The end of the new Kingdome 40 of Granada. In all their Cities is gathered great abundance of Gold.

Quito the first Citie of the Kingdome of Poru. There is a Prefident, an Audience, and a Bishop. Quite. Riobamba, the Gouernment of the Squifer, Auila, Baena, Acedenia, Tombamba, Guaiaguill 2 Port towne in Mar del Sur, la Panca de Santa Helena, Porto, visio in Spanift, Manta in Indian, Parta, Port Townes, Colibamba. The gouernment of lobn di Salma, Sarigra, Saint lacomo de las Valles, Santa Maria de las neves, Valladelid, Combinama, Zaem, in thefe fix townes is gathered the greatell quantitie of Gold and the finest of all the Country of Porn, Chachapaia, Moiobamba, Guanico vpon the Sea, Malabrigo, the port of Tragillo. Trugillo is two leagues within the port of Reque, Santa, Casma, Guagnara, Chancai, Lima, Cagnette, Ica, Camana, (Aerquipa, Quilea and Chali, ports of Areguna) Arica, all these are upon the Sea coast of Peru, Guamanga and Guancanallica, where they gather all the Quick-filuer aboue fine millions enery yeare : the Citie of Cofee, the chiefe 50 Citie of the Kingdome of Peru, Chogunge, Choquifaca, Potoffi, and Porco, where all the Silver is gathered in the Kingdome of Pers. And this is the end of the Kingdome of Pers. In the Prouince of Tuquema, subject to Peru, Tuquema the principall Citie of the Province. Saint Ia- Tucana como de las Torres, Arrian, Calchaqui. In the Province of Chirignana, subiect to Pern: Santa cruze de la Sera. In the Prouince of Chili alongst the coast; Tarapaqua, 110, Copiapa, Co- Chili. quimba , la Serena, S. Iacomo , La conception , Cuyo, la Imperiala, Paraifo, Valdinia, Oxorno. From Margarita or Barburata to Santa Fe del numo regne di granada is 300.leagues by land, the ordinary way. From Santa Fe to Cuito 250, leagues. From Quito to Lima 300. leagues. From Lima to Chognifaca, or Potoffi, or Porce 300 leagues. From Potoffi to Copiago chie e Citie of Chili 6) 500, leagues. And thefe are ordinary travailed waies.

There are in Potoff and Porco 300, mines of the Spaniards, and 5000 of the Indiant. The Silver Potoff and that is for the King (which is supposed to be two millions) and all the rest that is sent into Spaine Pace. is brought upon Sheepes backes unto Arica or Port of Pern from thence by Sea into Lima, A Sheepe will carry 100.li, three leagues in one day.

laden at Cartagena yearely the Kings and as much of otherMerchants Arequipa, Cusco.

The Gold that is gathered in Chili, the Kings part which is about a million, and of others a million and a halfe is brought by Sea vnto Lima. All the Gold and Silver that comes to Lima is about twelve millions from thence it comes to Parama, from Panama by land to Nombre de Dior, from thence by Sea to Cartagena, The Gold that comes out of the new Kingdome of Granada and the Province of lobndi Salina is brought by a River to Cartagena. So that at Cartagena there is laden out of those parts for Spaine every yeare of the Kings about five millions, and as much of other Merchants.

In all the Country of Chili there are not about 1200, Spaniards. In Arica 100, Spaniards, A. regnipa is 17. leagues diffant from Chuli or Quilea the ports : it hath about 200. Spaniards. In Lie ma 1000. Spaniards. In Seutu 100. Spaniards. In Trugillo 200. it is a very wealthy towne (the Port of it Malabrigo two leagues from Trugillo. The Citie of Cufco is bigger then Rome : there is a Bishop and about 1000. Spaniards. They have the Inquisition in Lima, In Payer which is the harborough for all the Fleete for fresh provision; there are 100 men. Porto Vicio, is also another harborough where the Fleete taketh in fresh victuals. There are not three Spaniards in the towne. but about fine leagues of there is a small towne called Mante, where there are but 50. Spaniards In Panama aoo. In February the Silver comes from Potoffi and Porco to Lima: about the fame time the Spips returne from Chili to Lima with Gold.

In Aprill they fet forth from Lima foure Ships, and in fifteene dayes they arrive at Panama. From the point Saint Helen to Copsago it never raineth : this dry tract extendeth from the Sea coast into the Country in some places 40. miles, in some places 50. and in fundry parts of the 40 Country it is to hot that no man can endure it, and within fixe miles of that place to cold againe, that it is inough to kill any man. This thrange tract extends 1200. leagues. In the Citie of Lima and Trugillo there grow Oranges, Pomgranets, Citrons and Melons, bigger farre then those

La Lama de Camanais a very fertile scile, yeelding abundance of graffe, which beginnethat Camana and paffeth by Quilca towards Chuli eight eene leagues from Camana. The lame Loma, is in some part within a mile of the Sea and in some other places a league off from the Sea. The fame Loma is in breadth in some places halfe a league, and in other places a league, which is the greatest breadth that it be areth.

Betweene this Loma de Camana and the Sea, is nothing growing but barren fands and ftones. And within the faid Loma, is also barren for the space of eight or ten leagues. And in all the faid circuit both of the Long, and from it to the Sea, and also in rowards the land the faid diffance of eight or ten leagues it neger raineth. But farder into the Land where the hils and mountaines are, there it raineth and sometimes snoweth.

A di 24. Luglio 1981. Aleffandro Orfino Romano antico dico che fon de tempo de cinquanta uno agnos. lo fon fiado Trenta quatro agnos nel regno del Peru, e ho cammado todo el regno.

CHAP. IX.

Notes of the West Indies, gathered out of Pedro Ordonnes de Cauallos a Spanish Priest, bis larger observations.

Emeralds.

Ansa Fe de Bogasa, is the Mother Citie of the New Kingdome of Granada, an Archbishops See, and of the Chamber, Maso is subject to it, where is store of the best Emeralds taken out of a rocke, which a long time cannot waste. The fifth thereof is of ineffimable value to the King. An Indian found there a stone which was fent to King Phillip, and his daughter Clara Eugenia, the price where- 19 of was about all price, nor could the Goldsmiths value it. In Saint Juan de los laboue 14000. Negros which worke in the Mines there. In Onite two things are deere, Wine, which is worth eight Rials a quart, if brought from Lima, and twelve from Spaine: and Affes, of which one hath beene worth 1:00. Pelos. and that for the flore of Mares in those parts. It is a prouerbe, What is dearest in Quito? An Alle. In Lima no houses are covered with roofes, bee they never so large, because they never have raine. No Citie in Indiais richer then it. Out of Potofi are yeerely gathered great treasures. Ouer the top of this Mountaine alway

Potafi and the hangs a cloud, even in the cleerest dayes, as it were marking and pointing out the riches there- 62 of. It rifeth in forme of a Pyramis, three leagues high, enuironed with cold ayre. At the foot is the Citie Potoli, inhabited by twentie thousand Spanish men, and ten thousand women, as many Negroes and foure thouland Indians. Within fix leagues about is no pasture of graffe, to that toit, Wood, and Corne are brought from other places. The entrance and Myne-workes are to dangerous, what they which goe in , vie to take the Sacrament of the Altar , as if they went to their death, because few returne. The Earle of Villar made a proclamation, that all the Indiens should have leave and libertie to labour in this Myne, and to have foure Rulls 2 day for each mans worke, which they were before forced to doe for nothing ; fince which the King hath received greater profit. The King receiveth thence yeerely eight or ten millions of Silver. The metalls lie two hundred Stades " (or mans heights) beneath the earth. Raine is "The Latine very needfull for the Myne-workes, which viually falls about Christmasse. Then the President of word is Stade. Chareas comes thicher (as alfo to have care of the Quick-filter) that in Februarie and March they which in ordimay be readic for Lima. Chile hath two Bishoprickes, of Chile and Saint lago. It brings forth the naryfinfe were to fruits of Callile, greater then Spaine it f. Ife. There are many Gold Mynes, if the Auracan Indians could be compelled to the workes, which doe our men great harmes. I went into Chile from facica. Pers, and thence returned to Quito.

Mexico is as great as Simil. There dwell in it three thousand Spaniards, many more women, Mexico. two hundred thousand Indians, twentie thousand Negros. The Natives are capable of Arts and Diffinline. They very much honour Priefts, Monkes, and Regulars, and when the Bell rings Rond to to Sermon, the Indian Boyes run vp and downe the streets croffing their fore-heads. When they Prieffs, goe out of the Church, they cry, Bleffed be our Lord lefus Chrift, and bleffed bee his Mother Saint Marie; the Priest answeres, For euer, and they, Amen. They are liberall Almes-giners; to mee Deare Maste, faying Maffe, I remember they gave an hundred Duckets. D. Martin Cortez Marqueffe of the 20 Vallee, was author of this reuerence to Priefts by his owne example, which would stand still bare headed, till a Priest were past, and sometimes would goe forth to meet him and kisse his hand. Hides. In New Spaine is such store of cattell, that one man often kills one thousand Beenes, and as many Goates, and fends their hides into Spaine. The Magurie tree or Cabuya yeelds Wine, Vineger, Mayer tree Hony, Beds, Threads, Needles (out of the prickles of the leaves) Tables and hafts of Knines befides many medicinable vies. From Mexico to Acapulpo the Hauen on the South Sea, are ninetie leagues, and well inhabited.

The Vice-roy is President at the Court at Lima, and Gouernor and Captaine Generall of that The Vice: ov Territory and of Charcas and Quito. He hath fortie thousand Duckets salary, and the charges of of Poru. Warre are paid by the King. The Territory of Lima containeth in circuit three hundred leagues. Callao. 30 Callao is the Port, two leagues from Lima, the chiefe in all the South Sea, where the Vice-toy vfeth to abide much for furnishing the Fleets which carry the treasure.

The Mynes of Ornes are given over for want of Quck-filder, or as force fay, left the linkabitants of Potofi should remove thither. Gnaconelica bath rich Silver Mynes, which yeerely weeld eight thouland Quin: als. But fome Mountaines falling have ftopped the mynings. Saint Process of Quito is vnder the line very temperate, three hundred leagues from Lima. There is a Chancery. Bishop, Deane, and Vniuersitie. The Territory of this Court extends two hundred and fixtie leagues. Neere the Citie are many burning Hills.

There is a twofold government in the Indies, one of Spaniards, which is the same with that of Indian govern-Spaine; the other of Indians. The Spaniards in these parts neither plow the ground, nor worke in mint. 40 the Mynes, especiall there where they are accounted gentlemen, Scarcelly shal you find any Spanishyouth, which will betake himselfe to the service of any man, except the Vice-roy. They trade with Merchandise, are set ouer the Kings Rents, Garrisons, and Myners.

The Indians are base minded. They solemnize the Feasts of the Sacrament, Easter, and Midsomerday, with Dances, Muficke, Processions, and in the Temples religiously. On Mandy Thursday they are all chastised. In guilds they are observant. On a certaine day they are compelled to fitten & state. render account of all their goods and poffettions. They procure Maffes at Funeralls. They are generally wittie, liers, and ffrong drinkers. They will drinke two or three dayes together cloffy. and sometimes a whole weeke. Their Feaths are hie the Negros with songs and dances. With these Rites they say they pray for the dead. They never make an end, till they have spent all, and 50 then they returne to their labours. They are very expert in the Arts which they learne, although it be writing or reading, which yet is not granted them to learne. They pay yeerely to their Gouernours a certaine tribute of Silver and other things, after they are eighteene yeeres old, till fiftie. The Commendator receiveth these things, conditionally to maintaine a Priest and a Corrigidor, and to pay the tenths to the Church. Tuis and other places are there given for two liues, the sonne or eldest daughter succeeding. The Corrigidors amongst the Indians are prohibited merchandile. A Vilitor is appointed in enerty Court to goe to the places of that Precinct to en- Inflice itines quire of affaires, and to decide controuerlies.

The number of Meffices is great, which wander vp and downe poore and beggarly, nor give Mefitos. their minds to learne any handicrafts. It were good they were forced to labour.

A Councell celebrated at Lima, 1583, in the third Seffion, Chap. 22. approved of the Pope and Indian Provinour King, decreed that whereforeur one thousand Indians are found together, a Teacher and Priest ciall Councell. should be set ouer them. The Indians Priests wie at the Kings charges to carrie with them many religious men : and the Lefuites by the supreme Councell of India, with aduite of the BB. are commanded to fend many thither for the Bishops affistance.

14000. Negret Wine and Affes deare.

Ecclefiafficall

The Rents and Tenths of Bishoprickes are decided into four parts, one of which goeth to the Bishop, a second to the Deane and Chapiter, so as the Deanes proportion is 150, the dienities 130. the Canons 100. The third and fourth part are divided into nine fhares called Ninths, of which two returns to the King, and are besto wed on the buildings of Cathedrall Churches; and ther ninth and halfe on the Fabrickes, another ninth and halfe on the Hofpitall buildings, the fourth remayning are paid to the Vicars, Singers, Organists and other Church Officers. What remayneth is ipent on the Fabrickes. All are laid out by the Bishops order. In my in gement it were very good if every Bishoprick had Seminaries and Colledges wherein the children of their

Caciques and chiefe men might be educated, to be maintayned by the Caciques. The Bishopricke of Cuses is 200. leagues long and 70. broad : that of Lima is greater by the Is one halfe, as is that allo of Quite. Whereupon the Bilhops of the New World writ to the Kine that it were better to make them more Bishoprickes, each of which shall yet retaine 20000. Pezos. Euery feuenth yeere ordinarily is a Prouinciall Synod in Pers, to which the Bilhoppes come, some by Sea, some by Land 400. or 600. leagues, the wayes not admitting Coaches. Some have fought for Vniverficies in fome places to bee erected (as those of Quito) at least for Divinitie, and the liberall Arts and Indian Tongue : the Profesiors to have foure or 5000. Ducketsa piece yeerely. There is no question but of the Indians many learned men may adorne the Schooles and Pulpits.

The Kings Revenue out of the West Indies is twelve Millions yearely growing out of the fifth Kines Reuenus 12. Mil- of Gold and Silver, great Meltings, Customes of Ports, Indian Tributes, sale of Offices, the Cru- 20 lions from ten zade, Tribute of Rents, Quickfiluer, Fines of Courts, and the ninth part of Eccletiafticall Rents. Popes Buls and Collations of Benefices Ecclefiasticall and Secular are subject to the King, and ordered by his fupreame Councell of the Indies

CHAP. X.

Relation of the new Disconerie in the South Seamade by PEDRO FERNANDEZ GIROS Portugez 1609. with his Petitions to the King, one Englished, another in Spanish.

His man being a famous Pilot was fent with two ships from Pera to discouer the Ilands of Salomon. After hee had taken his course in the height of the Straitsof Magellanne, little more or leffe, he did discouer a mayne Land, and sayled eight hundred leagues vpon the Coast, vntill he came to the height of fifteene degrees to the Southward of the Equinoctiall Line where hee found a very fruitfull and pleafant Countrey and well peopled, abounding with Pearles, Gold and Silver, great flore of Limons; Orenges and other Fruites excellent good, and in great quantitie : great store of Goats, Hogges, Geele, Partridges, Conies and Fowle, Pepper and Spices. The Countrey is very temperate and healthfull, great store of fish of many different forts; full of wood and so goodly high Trees for thipping; very good pasture, ground for Corne and Cattell.

The men of the Countrey are some tawnie, and some white of good disposition, more civil and politike then the Indians of Perwand News Hifpania.

There is in the Coast a Bay of some ewentie leagues into which there fals two great Rivers out of the Countrey, which is the place where they purpose to settle their first Plantations. There are many Ilands in the same Coast both great and little, plentifull they are all and well

This Captaine Giroz shall be presently fent unto Pers, with order and Commission to take up twelve hundred men and shipping with other necessaries for the Voyage to inhabit, and as many more shall be fent the yeere tollowing from None Hispania, and for the whole businesse he 50 is to receive five hundred thousand Duckers.

Walfingham Grefley.

The Copie of a Petition presented to she King of Spaine, by Captaine PETER FERDINAND de Quir, touching the Discourrie of the fourth part of the World, called Terra Australis incognita : and of the great riches and fertilite of the same : Printed with licenfe in Siuill, An. 1610.

SIR. *Perhapsi is an one of those and the state of the state o later, which followeth in Spoulfs, contaying more particulars then this bath: Or elfo it may be of Luyia Vary, &c.

nies, vnto the Land which your Maiestie hath commanded to bee discouered in the parts of Miss, vincomita. And yet to this houre no resolution is taken, neither have I received any aniwere or hope, whereby I might reit affured to obtaine my dispatch, although I have attended fourteene moneths in your Court, and haue imployed fourteene yeeres in this Difcouery without any profit or other respect but the benefit thereof; with which, notwithstanding infinite contradictions, I have gone 20000. leagues by Land and by Sea, and have diminished and finke my estate, I haue trauelled with many affictions in my person, and suffered such strange and extraordinary croffes that they feeme almost incredible to my felfe; and all, that fo Religious an undertake should not unworthily be abandoned. In regard whereof, I do most humbly be-

10 feech your Maiestie in the bowels of the divine charitie, that you would be pleased to take order. that I be not depriued of the fruits of this Defigne, which with fuch instance I doe defire, and which with fo much inftice are due vnto my continuall paines and trauell : nor that I bee debarred from the effects of 10 confiderable and well grounded a request, whose principall scope is the elory of God, and of your Maiestie, and from whence infinite benefits are likely to iffice forth. which will live as long as the fabrick of the World shall subsift, and after the dissolution thereof will remaine to all Eternitie.

1. Touching the extent of these Regions newly discouered, grounding my indeement on that which I have seene with mine owneeyes, and voon that which Captaine Lemes Paez de Torres Admirall of my Fleet hath represented vnto your Maiestie, the length thereof is as great as all

20 Europe and Afia the leffe, vnto the Sea of Bachn, Perfia, and all the Iles, atwell of the Ocean, as of the Mediterranean Sea, taking England and Island into this account. This vnknowne Countrey is the fourth part of the Terrettriall Globe, and extendeth it felfe to fuch length, that in The printed trey is the fourth part of the leftertrain Globe, and extended it lefte to mentergy, that in discourse (so I probabilitie it is twice greater in Kingdomes and Seignories, then all that which at this day doth call it rather acknowledge fubication and obedience vnto your Maiestie; and that without neighbourhood ei- than translati. ther of Tarkes or Moores, or of any other Nation which attempteth warre vpon confining Coun- on) in English treves. The Land which we have discourred, is all feated within the Torrid Zone, and a great tract cais it the fith thereof reacheth vnto he Equinoctiall Circle; the breath may be of 90. degrees, and in some part but the places a little leffe. And if the fuccesse proue answerable vnto the hopes, they will be found Anthe fourth, tipodes vnto the better part of Africke. vnto all Europe, and to the greater portion of Afric. But perhaps acyou must observe, that as the Contreves which we have discovered in 19 degrees of latitude, are counting the better then Spaine, fo the other which are opposed so their elevation, must by proportion and East Indies for analogie prooue tome terrestriall Paradife.

2. All those quarters swarme with an incredible multitude of Inhabitants, whereof some are and this the white, others blacke and in colour like Mulatos, ortraifer Mairen, and others of a mingled com- fourth, reckoplexion. Some weare their haire long, blacke, and feattered, others have their haire cripfed and ning all the thicke, and others very yellow and bright. Which divertise is an apparant argmument that there first knowne is an apparant argument, that there is commerce and communication among it them. And this first confideration together with the bountie which Nature hash bestowed on the foile, their inex- Description of perience of Artillery and Guns, and their viskilfulnesse in labouring in Mynes, with other sem- the peopleblable circumstances, doth induce mee to inferre, that all the Countrey is well peopled. They know little what belongeth to artificiall Trades; for they have neither fortifications nor walles, and live without the awe of Kings or Lawes. They are a simple people cantoned into partialities, and exercise much disagreement amongst themselves. The Armes which they vie are Bowes and Arrowes, which are not poisoned or steeped in the juice of venemous herbes, as the custome is of many other Countreyes; They doe also carrie Clobs, Truncheons, Pikes, Dartes to hurle with the arme, all which are framed only of wood. They doe couer themfelues from the wafte or girdling place down to the halfe of their thighs, they are very fludious of cleanlineffe, tractable. cheerefull, and wonderously addicted to bee gratefull vnto those that doe them a courtefie. as I have experienced many times. The which doth build in me a beliefe, that with the affstance of 50 God, if they may be gently and amiably intreated, they will bee found very docible and easie of mannage, and that we shall without much worke accommodate our selues vinto them. And it is most necessary to observe this way of sweetnesse, especially in the beginning, that the Inhabitants may be drawne along to this fo holy and fatting an end, whereof we ought to take a particular care and zeale, aswe'l in small things, as in matters of more importance. Their houles are built of wood, couered with Palme-tree leaves; they have Pitchers and Veffels made of earth, they are not without the my flerie of weauing, and other curiofities of that kind. They worke on Marble, they have Flutes, Drummes, and wooden Spoones, they fet apare certaine places for Oratories and Prayers, and for buriall places. Their Gardens are artificially fenered into beds, bordered and paled; Mother of Pearle and the shels which containe Pearle, they have in much vie and estimation, of which they make Wedges, Rasors, Sawes, Culters, and such like Instruments: They also doe make thereof Pearles and great Beads to weare about their neckes. They that doe dwell in the Hands, have Boats very artificially made, and exceedingly commodious for See of their fayling, which is a certaine argument that they confine upon other Nations that are of a more Boarsin Maires polified and elegant behaulour. And this also they have of our husbandry, that they cut Cocks Voyag . and gold Boares.

Vies of the

1444

2. Their bread is viually made of three forts of Roots, which grow there in great abundance. Neither doe they imploy much labour in making this bread, for they do onely roft the Roots vntill they are loft and tender. They are very pleasant to the tafte, wholfome and nourishing, they are of a good leng. hethere being of them of an Ell long, and the halfe of that in bigneffe. There is great store of excellent fruits in these Countreyes. There are fixe kinds of Plane Trees, Almond Trees of foure forts, and other Trees called Obs., resembling almost in fruit and greatnesse the Melacatones; store of Nuts, Orenges and Limonds. They have moreover Sugar-canes, large in fize and in great plentie, they have knowledge of our ordinarie Apples; they have Palme-trees without number; out of which there may easily bee drawne a juyce, which will make a liquor alluding much to Wine, as also Whey, Vineger, and Honey, the kernels thereof are exceeding to fweet. And they have fruits which the Indians call Cacos, which being greene doe make a kinds of twine, and the pith is almost like in taste vinto the Creame of Milke: When they are rine they ferue for meate and drinke both by Land and Sea : And when they wither and fall from the Tree, there sweateth out an Oyle from them , which is very good to burne in Lampes, and is medicinable for wounds, and not unpleafant to be eaten. Of their rindes or barks there are made Bottles, and other like Veffels, and the inner skin doth ferue for calking of ships. Men doe make Cables and other Cordage of them, which are of sufficient strength to draw a Canon, and are fit for other domesticke vies. But that which is more speciall, they do there vie the leaves of Palmetrees, which they amaffe together, to make fayles of them for Veffels of small bulke and burthen. They make likewile fine thinne Mats of them, and they do ferue to couer the house with a out, and for hangings within. And of them they doe likewise make Pikes, and other forts of weapons, as also Oares to row with, and Vtensils for the house. You are to note, that these Palme-trees are their Vines, from whence they gather their Wine all the yeere long, which they make without much coft or labour. Amongst their herbage and Garden fruites; Wee have feene Melons, Peares great and little, and fundry forts of pot-herbes. And they have also Beanes. For fleth, they are stored with a great number of Hogs which are as tame as ours : they have Hennes, Capons, Partriges, Duckes Turcles, Pigeons, Stock-doues, and Goats, as one of my Captaines did fee. And the Indians themselves have given vs notice of Cowes and Oxen. There are also fundry forts of fish, Harghi, Perfereyes, Lize, Soles, Trowts, Shads, Macabifes, Cafanes, Pampani, Pilchard, Thorn-backes or Skate-fish, Cuculi, Congers, Porposes, Rochets, Muscles, Lobiter, & and many other, the names whereof I cannot now remember. But it is probable that there are duers other kindes, fince those which I have recounted were taken hard by our ships. And your ripe and ferious confideration of that which I have represented voto you, a man may easily collect, that fuch plentifull and different varieties of all things, may yeeld great and fingular delights. There is stuffe for Marchpanes and sweet Confections of all forts, without borrowing any Spice for the composition of them elsewhere. And for my Mates the Mariners, besides those particulars which I have before fet downe, there will bee no want of Gammons, Sawfages, and other falt meates which Hogges doe yeeld; neither of Vineger, Spiceries, and other Sawces that ferue for delicacie, and to awake the appetite. And you must oberue, that many of these things, are the same with those which we have in our parts, and possibly they are there in greater abun- a dance; by all which it is easily to be coniectured, that this Countrey is fit for the production of all that which groweth in Europe.

4. The Riches which I have feene in those parts, are Silver and Pearle; another Captaine in his Relation, doth report that he bath teene Gold, which are the three most precious Darlings that he and are cherished in the bosome of Nature : wee have also both seene much Nutmegs, Mace, Ginger, and Pepper. There is also notice of Cinamon: and it is likely that Cloues may be found in those parts, tince so many other forts of Spiceries and Aromaticall drugges doe prosper there; and that the rather, because these Countryes Ive very neere the parallell of the Iles of Terrenatte, Bachian, and the Moluccos. There are likewife materials for all forts of Silke, and wee haue seene Anise-seed, and excellent good Ebonie, as also other kindes of wood proper for the 50 building of as many thips as one will defire, and thatfe to make fayles for the fame. Three forts of materials there are wherewithall to make Cordage, and one of them is very like vinto our Hemp-Moreover out of the Oyle of Cocos, whereof I have already made mention, there is a kind of bis tuminous stuffe extracted, called Galagala, which may be well vied for Pitch. They make also a kind of Rolen with which the Indians pitch their Boats, which they call Piraguas. And ince there are Goats and Kowes in those parts, without question we shall have Goat-skins, Leather, Tallow, and flesh in full abundance. The Bees which we have seene there doe make proofe, that there will be no scarcitie of Honey and Waxe. And there is good appearance to discouer many other things which are not yet knowne, to fay nothing touching the forme and frite of the Countrey. Vnto all which it that bee adioyned, which the indultry of man may contribute to 60 those parts, fince there is such abundance of commodities which the Country it felte doth yeeld, and tuch hope to transport thither those things which grow with vs(the best and choisest which Peru and New Spaine bring forth, I have refolved to transferre thicker) it is to bee hoped, that this will to enrich that Countrey, that it will be able to nourish and furnish not only the Inhabitants of the lame, and those of America, but give an accession vnto Spaine it selfe both of Riches and extent of command : and this may bee accomplished after the manner which I have projected, and will vnfold vnto those which shall lend an affilting hand for the guiding and confummation of this worke. Now by that Land which we have alreadie difcouered outwardly and along the shoares, without entrance into the inward parts, we doe conceine a certaine Argument, that as much Riches, Commodities, and greatheffe may bee hoped from thence, as wee have already in their Countreyes. And you may bee pleafed to understand, that my principall ayme was to take a view only of thefe ample Regions which we have discoursed : for hy reason of many ficknesses which have weakened me, and some other chances whereof I will at this time 10 make no mention, I was not able to furuay all which I defired, neither could I ma full moneth have feene all that, which I was of my lelte inclinable to view. You are not to make your indgement of the Indians that inhabit thefe Countreyes, according to the honour of the people here. or conceive them to bee affected with the fame defires, pleasures, necessities, or estimation of things that we are: But you are to make account that they are a people whose care is flidicully placed vpon this, that they may live easily in this World, and paffe their dayes with the leaft paine and perturbation they can. And this is indeed their practife, for they do nor bestow them-felnes on those things, which with such vexation and torment we here labour to obtaine. e. There are found in this Country as many commodities, both for the support and delectaeion of the life of man, as may bee expected from a foyle that is Manurable, pleafant and verie 20 remperate. It is a fat and fertile Land, wherein many places clay is found, which will propue of excellent vie to build houses, and to make Tiles and Brickes, and will ferue for what focuer is vfually made of earth. There is Marble and other good ftones, wherewith if there bee occasion there may bee built fructures of greater State and Magnificence. The Country abounded him wood, fit for all workes and vies, whereunto the fame is commonly put. There are spacious and goodly plaines, and fields that are divided and interlaced with Brookes, Trenches, and Rivers, There are great and high Rockes, fundry Torrents, Rivers great and little, on which water-mile for Corne may with much commodiousnesse built and placed, as also Engine to moke Sugar. Tucking-mils, Forges, and all other Infrumencs which in their vie toe require water. We have found Salt-pits there, and which is a note of the fertilitie of the foile, there are in many places Canes whereof some are five or fixe handfuls thick, with fruit answerable to that proportion. The top of that Fruit is verie small and hard, and the skinne thereof is exceeding sweet. There are alfo flints for fire, equall in goodnesse with those of Madrid. The Bay of Saint lames and Saint Philip, hath twentie leagues of banke, and is without mudde; into which there is a fure and fafe entrance both by day and night, It is sheltered and couered with many houses, which in the day time we have feene afarre off to fend forth fmoke, and in the night flore of fire. The Haven called The true Croffe, is of that spacious capacitie, that it is able to containe a thousand thips. The P. delayed bottome as I have faid is without mud, and bath a blackish colouted fand where withall it is co- cruz. nered. There are no gulfes or deepe pits, but an affured and easie anchorage in what part focuer you will, from forty to halfe a fathome; and it is betweene the mouthes of two Rivers, the one

40 whereof is as great as that of Guadalquinir, and hath mud of a fathome deepe, ouer which our shallops and boats did passe. For the other River, when our Skiffe went to water there, they Rivers, found the entrance fafe & easie. And a man may from the very mouth of the river take in as much fresh water as he will. The place where ships may be violaded hath three leagues of grauell, mingled with little flints blackish and very heavy, which will serue for ballast for ships. The bank is Araight and united, on which much green graffe doth grow and prosper, and that makes me to conceine that the Sea doth not beate or rage thereupon, I observe that the Trees are straight, and the branches not dismembred, which is a token that there are no tempests there. Touching the Port, besides the commodities which I have alreadie discoursed of, there is one of marvellous pleasure and contentation. And that is, that at the dawning of the day you shall heare from a 50 Wood which is neere at hand, a fweet and various harmonie of a thoutand Birds of all forts, among which we could diffinguish the Nighting les, Black birds, Quailes, Gold-finches, Swallowes almost without number Parrochitos, and one Parret wee marked there, and or accres of fundry other kinds, even downe to Grashoppers, and Field-crickets. Every Morning and Evening we received a most odoriferous sweet imell, sent vnto our nostrels from the infinite diversitie of Flowres and Herbes which grow there, amongst which wee oblessed the blossemes of Orange and Bafill. All which (with a number of other varieties) doth make vs thinke that the Aire is cleere and healthy, and that the nature of the place is of a good temperature. The Hauen and the Bay are therefore of the greater estimation, because they have the Neighbourhood of fo Great Hands. many goodly Hands that are there, and especially of those seven, which are faid to have two hun-

60 dred leagues of extent; and furely one of them (which is some twelue leagues distant from the Hauen) is fiftie leagues in circuit. In briefe Sir, I doe affrme vnto your Maiestie, that you may give command to have a goodly and great Civie built in this Port and Bay which are 15, degrees Bayin 16 deg. and fortie minutes of the Southerne El uation, and those that shall inhabit there, shall have plen- 40 minutes, tie of riches, and all other conuenisncies which they can defire. Time will shew and discouer all thefe commod ties and in this place there may be made the discharge and valcading of all the wares and merchandizes of the Countries of Chiur, Peru, Panama, Nicaraqua, Guatamala, News Spaine, Terre naste, and the Philippines, all which Countries are under the command of your Maiellie. And if you shall acquire vnto your selfe the Dominion of these Seigniories which I doe now preient, I doe make to great an efteeme of them, that belides their being the Key of all the reft, they will (in my opinion) proue another (hing or Iapan, and equalize the other rich Hande which are on this fide of Afia, in trafique of curious and precious merchandizes, to fpeake no. thing of the augmentation and extent of your power, and the establishment which you may make vato your felfe of your Dominions, by the accession of so great a Countrie, That which I have given voto your view in my discourse, is of much stendernesse, in regard of that which I to doe probably conceine of this land, the which I am ready to make appeare in the prefence of Man thematicians. Neither will I vexe this paper to demonstrate voto you, that these Countries will be able to nourth two hundred thousand Spaniards. In summe, this is Sir, the world whereof Spaine is the Center, and that which I have related, is the nayle by which you may judge of the whole body, which I pray you to take into your observation.

6. You may judge by that which I have already represented, what the goodnesse and temperature of the ayre is: whereunto this may be added for a further tellimonie, that although all our Companie were ftrangers, yet neuera one of them was ficke, aloeit they were in continual travell and labour, and did fometimes (weate, and fometimes take wet. They dranke water fafting, and fed many times on that which the earth did there bring forth. Neither had they any 20 regard to keepe themselves from the " Serenes, nor from the Moone or Sunne, which indeede in those parts is not ouer-vehement. Onely about midnight, they covered themselves with Wooll. which fals eueand did lye and repose themselves thereupon. And for the Inhabitants, they are commonly healry night in great (almost) thie, and many of them very aged, although they have nothing but the bare earth for their palgreat amount of the which is an argument of the whole comnected and purenesse of the loyle. For if it were a wet Gions to those and weeping ground, or had any viciousnesse in the mould, they would raise their lodgings which are 2- higher from the earth, as they doe that line in the Philippines, and other Countries which I have viewed. And this is further confirmed by their Flesh and Fish, which although it be vnsalted, are, as moe-fore observed yet will it keepe sweete and without corruption two dayes and more. And the Fruits which in praire Voi. are brought from thence are exceeding good, as we had proofe by two that I tooke care to bring 30 alone with mee, although they had not their full maturitie and growth when I gathered them from the Tree. We have not feene any barren and fandie ground, nor any Thiftles or trees that are thornie, or whose rootes doe shew themselves, no Marishes or Fennes, no Snow vpon the Mountaines, no Snakes or Serpents, no Crocodiles in the Rivers, no Wormes that vie with vi to hurt and confume our Graine, and to worke vs fo much displeasure in our houses, no Fleas, Caterpillers, or Gnats. This is a Prerogative that hath the advantage of all the priviledges that nature hath bestowed on other places, and is worthy to be compared, or rather preferred before any delicacie of the Countries of India, tome of which are abandoned and vnhabited, meerely by reason of these incommodities, and of sundry others that are distattfull vnto the Inhabitants, as my felte haue oftentimes beene witnesse.

7. These (Sir) are the greatnesse and goodnesse of the Countries which I have discourred, of which I have already taken the possession in the name of your Maiestie, and vnder your Royall Banner, as appeareth by the Acts which I keepe fafely in my power, whereunto I proceeded after this enfuing manner. First (Sir) we erected a Croffe, and built a Church in honour of our Ladie of Loretto. Then we caused twentie Masses to be celebrated there, and our troopes made hafte thither to gaine some Indulgences, granted on Whitfunday. We also made a folemne Proceffion, and observed the Feast of the blessed Sacrament, the which was carried in Procession, your Banner being euer displayed, and marching before it, through a great circuit of Countries, which were honoured with the presence of the same. In three severall places we set up your Title, in energy one of which we prepared and erected two Columnes, with the Armes of your Ma- 50 ieste tricked and garnished thereupon: so that I may with good right affirme, that since this will challenge to be one of the Parts of the world, the Impresse of Plus oltra is accomplished, and because it ilretcheth vnto the continent, whether it be forward or behinde it skills not, the bounds of your Dominions are with much spaciousnesse enlarged. Now all this which I have performed, receiveth its roote from this the faithfull zeale which I beare vnto your Maiestie, that to all the Titles which you already doe possesse, you may adioune this which I represent, and that the name de la Austrialia del Spiritu fanta, may bee blazoned and spread out the face of the whole world to the glory of God, who hath revealed this Countrie, and hath given mee the grace to guide my course thither, and to returne to the presence of your Maiestie, before whom I doe present and prostrate my selfe with the same affection and zeale 60 vnto this worke which I had before, and which hath growne vo with mee as it were from my cradle, and for the nobleneffe and worth thereof, I doe still tender and cherish the same with the

8. I dee confidently beleeve, that your Maieslie doth wie fo much produce in your Councels, and are so magnanimous and full of Christian pietie, that you will (with your best care) embrace ail the conducements which may further the habitation of these new-discouered Countries. And the principall reason to put a tye and obligation vpon we not to leave them abandoned is in. regard that this is the fole ordinary way to establish the knowledge of God, and fai h amongst them, and to bring to passe that his name may be adored and called vpon, where the Divell viura peth to much reuerence and insocation. And this ought to be embraced with the more readineffe, because it is the channell to conuey and disperse all abundance of commodities among it your fubiccets. And hereby you shall be eased of many disturbances and vexations, which will affuredly be put voon you in case the Enemies of the Church of Rome should enter and nestle there, no and should vent their erronious doctrines among it them, whereby they would connert all the bleffings which I have hitherto recounted vnto you, into affored incommodities and mifchiefes, and would arrogate voto themselves the names of the Lords of the Indias to the veter ruine and defolation of those Countries. I make no question but your Maiestie well weigheth, of what importance this danger, of which I speake, may proue, and what cuill consequence some other hazards may carrie with them, which are either at this time imminent, or may succeede hereafter. And if this hould happen, it would coft you in umerable thoulands of gold and men, before you shall be able to give a remedy vnto the same. Acquire therefore Sir, whiles that occasion is offered you (that one day you may parchase heaven vnto your selfe) acquire (I say) with a little money which you milplice voon Perm, a neuer-dying reputation, and this New-world with all so the benefits which it reacheth out voto you. And fince there is none that craueth a reward for thefe good tidings, that is brought you concerning fo great & fingular a bleffing, which God hath bin pleased to locke vp vitill your happie time, I am he Sir, that doe demand it, and my humble request ynto you is onely this, that you would be of that gracious nesser onee, as to dispatch and rive me mine answer; for the Gallions are readie to hoife faile, and I have much way to goe. and many things must be fitted and disposed for the voyage. There is no houre passeth, which carrieth not with it an affured loffe both in regard of fpirituall and temporall bleffings, the damage whereof can never be made up or repaired.

If vpon a bare suspicion Christopherus Columbus did pursue his designe with so much obstinacie, you are not to account it ftrange in me, if the things which I have beheld with mine 20 eyes, and touched with mine hands, doe put some kinde of confirming voon mee to be im-portunate.

Let it therefore please your Maiestie, amongs so many expedients which you have at hand, to feuer and put apart some one for the accomplishment of this worke, that after all thefe languishments. I may at length meete with the facceffe of my defires. I doe affure you that you will finde my propolitions most just, and that I shall be of fufficiencie to give you fatisfaction in all things, This, Sir, is a great worke, amongst which the Divell doth bandie himielfe with all the puissance hee may: And it is not consonant to reason, to abandon these Countries to his tyrannic and power, whereof, know your Maiestie is Defender.

Here followeth another Petition or Declaration in Spanish, which I have not translated, that the 40 Originall may be of more authoritie; and have added for further explanation and notice of particulars. I had thought also to have given the other in Spanish, and had accordingly prepared it, but for the English Readers fake, have corrected the once printed Copie by it, and not troubled vou with both.

🗜 L Capitan Pedro Fernandez de Quiros : Xa be dicho a V.M. que de la parte del Sur, esta oculta Lla quarta parte del Glono, y que el descubrimiento que en ella biza, lo es de vente y tres is las, cuy es nombres son. La encarnacion. San Iuan Bantista. Santelmo, Las quatro Coronadas San Miguel Archangel.La conversion de san Paulo. La Dezona. La Saguaria. La Fuostina.La del Pereorino. Nuestra 50 Sennora del Socorro. Monterrey. Tucopia. San Marcos. El Vergel. Las Lagrimas de san Pedro. Los portales de Belen. El Pilar de Zaragoça, San Raymundo. Ila is la de la Virgen Maria. Y suntamente de aquel las tres partes de tierra llamada la Austrialia del Espiritu santo : en laqual tierra se ballo la Babya de san Felipe, y Santiago, y puerto de la Veracruz, adonde estunimos surtos con los tres navios 3 Navies. treinta y seu dias. Entiendiose ser todus tres una gran tierra, y sus altas y dobladas Serranias, y aquel Rio lo dan rio Iordan por su grandez a pare ce que osseguran la de latierra, como de todo mas largo consta por una informacion quehize en Mexico, con diez testigos delos que fueron comigo, a la qual me remito. Mande V. M. que sea vista, y que se haga una innta de Matematicos, y Pilotos, y personas platicas, pues al presente las ay muy insignes en esta Corte, y la causa lo merece, y a V. M. le importa muchissimo. Aduierto que cita inito macion la hiziera, con todas quantas personas vinie ron de la ior-60 nada si fuera bien admitida la ofrenda que para esto bize, o sue ra ayudado, o yo pudiera, que no me oblique a impossibles, y me veo obligado a ellos.

Digo pues sennor que en una ista que se llama Taumaco, que al parecer dista de Mexico mil y do. Taumaco ista. zientas y cincuenta leguas, estuumos surtos diez dias, y que el sennor de aquella islaas, cuyo nombre es Tamay, hombre de razon, buen cuerpo, talle, y color algo moreno, los osos hermosos, la nariz afilada, las broad in the

Illy versa erande tierra que se llama Manicolo.

barnas, y los cabellos crecidos, y crespos, y a su modo grane, nos ayudo con su gente y embarcaciones, aha. zer a guada, lenna, de que en aquella sazon estanamos muy necessuados. Este tal vino a verme a la Nac y dentro en ella le exemine, en la manera signiente. Lo primero le mostre su isla y la mar, y nuestra: nau. I gente, apunte a todas partes del Orizonte, y hize otras ciertas fennas, y con ellas le pregunte, si ania visto nausos. 7 hombres como los nuestros, 7 a esto dixo que no. Preguntele si jabia de otras tierras lexas o cerca nobladas o despobladas, y luego que me entendio nombre a mas de tetenta Illas, y a una grande tierra que se llama Manicolo: posennor las fui escriniendo a todas tentendo presente la guia de nauegar, para laber bazia el rumbo que cada una demorana, que viene a ser de aquella su isla a la parte del Smeste. Suo Sudeste, o Este, y Nordeste; y para que yo entendiesse quales oran las pequennas, bazia pequennos circu-Sudefic, o esfer y two users; y pur myen y transmission of the state o bazia mayores circulos, y las mismas demostraciones : y por aquella gran tierra abrio ambos los braces. sinboluerlos a iuntar, mostrandoque prosegnia. I para dar a entender quales eran las lexanas, è estaum de alli mas cerca, mostrana el Sol de Lenante a Poniente, recostana la cabeça sobre una mano, certama los osos , y contana por los dedos las noches que en el camino se dormia, y por semeiancas dezia, quales gentes eran blancas, Negros, Indios, y mulatos, y quales estanan mezelados, y quales ran sus amigos, y enemigos, y que en algunas istas es comia carne humana; y para esto hizaque mojo dia subraco, mostrando claro querer mal à estagente, y deste, y de otros moder al parecer, se entendio quanto dixo, 7 se lo repeti tantas ve zes, que mostro, cansarse dello. T dando con la mano hazia el Sur Sudeste, y otras partes, dio bien a entender quantas mas tierras ania. Mestro desseo de bolner a su casa, dile cosas que llenasse, y se despedio de mi, aandome paz en el carrillo, y con an

El signiente dia fui a su pueblo, y para mas bien enterarme delo que Tumay declaro, llene comigo muchos Indios a la playa, y teniendo en la mano el papel, y presente la agusa de marear : a todas fus presuntando muchas vezes porlas tierras a que Tumay pujo nombre, y en sodo conformaron todos, y discos noticia de otras pobladas, todas de gentes de los referidos colores, y inntamente de aquella grande tierra, in la qual con propriet sennes dixeron que auia Bacas, ò Bufalos : y para dar a emerder que auia perros ladrauan, y por çallos y gallinas, cantanas, y por puerces gruunian. T affi detta mauera dezaan lo que que. ruan, y responduan a quanto se les preguntana : y porque les mostraron pettas en el boton de con reservo, dieron a entender las ausa. Todas estas preguntas y diligencias, biz seran otros de mi compannia este dia, otras vezet a estos, y a otros Indios, y fiempre dixeron lo mifmo, y por esto fo entendio fer gente que tra- 20 taverdad.

Quando fali desta ista de Tammaco, biza e coper quatro muy gallardos ludos, los tres se becharon a nado, y el que quedo, y despues se lama Peitro; declaro en el puerto de Acapaco, y por el camino, y enla cindad de Mexico adonde murio junendole vista et Marques de Montes claros lo siguiente, sia nunca variar, annque se le pre gunto en diuer se tiempos, y por muchas personas, y de muchos modos, y se le negawan, y contraderian (sis diches.

Lo primero dixo Pedro, ser naturalde suassila que se llama Chicayana, mayor que la de Taumaco adonde de ballamos, y que de la una a la otra ay quatro dias de camino, de sus embarcaciones, y que Chicayana es tierra rasa y muy abundante de los frutos y a referidos, y que la gente della es de su bue na color de Indio, cabello suelto y largo, y que se labran como el lo estana, poco enel rostro, ombros, y pechos, y que se tambien ay hombres blancos que tienen les cabellos rubios, y muy largos, y que ay mulates, cuyo cabello no e: frisado, ni de todo suelto, y que el era texedor, y soldado fleshero, y que en su lengua se llamana Luca, a muger Layna, fu hlio Ley.

Dixo mas, que en aquella su isla ay muchas Ostras, como de las que vi sus conchas, y traxe algunas, que aqui tengo de tres tamanuos. El primero, es el comun de la Margarita; el segundo mayor al doble; y el tercero de palmo, mas y menos de diametro, y que a todas estas Ostras llaman Totofe, y que en ellas fe hallan perlas, a las quales llaman Futiquilquil : y por esto le mostre las conchas, y el las tomo en las manos, y en ellas fue mostrando las partes a do se crian. T preguntado quantas eran, y de que tamanno, dixo, que en vnas se ballan mas, y en otras menos; y para dar a entender el grander dezia que las ay como arena, y como fal, y como pedrezitas, y como cuentas de rofarios, y como botones como tenia en un coleto, 150 otras mayores, y que se pescan en enenos de medio estado de fondo, de piedras y arena, y que son muy gran des los trechos de mar, que alli tienen pocofondo, y que el mismo sin cabullirse las sacana con la mano, y las ponia en sie Canoa, y que folo las quieren para comer su sarne, a la qual llaman Canofe, y que la conchas les firmen para haz er auz nelos cucharas, y otras cofas, y que las perlas no les firmende nads.

Dixo mas, que ay en esta misma isla de chicayana otra suerte de ostrat, a la qual llaman Taquila: 3 para dar a entender su tamanne, sennale el grandor de una buena rodela: y por bazer seme increpble la mucha camidad que deco de todas perlas, y la grandeza destas Taquilas, le pregunte si nacian dentro en los cocos, o en los arboles, o en las pennas, o en la zierra, o por fuera de las conchas dixo que no se ballan ino en le suelo del mar, y deutro en ellas las perlas, y que las oftras las unas estan recostadas a sodos lades, y otras enbestas y abiertas hazia arriba, y que si en algunas destas ostras entran la mano que se cierra, y luego 60 go dixo no aymano, y que a esta cansa las sacan con palos, y con lazadas de cuerdas, y que tienen grande y muy buena carne que ellor comen , y no bazen caso de las perlas, y que las vezes que las He made ewo queria el mismo las pescana, y las llenana a su casa. T como el Otro Viage yo mismo ci a las Indios de la isla de Santacruz, traer del enello colgadas muchas patenas mayores y menores, todas de conchas de nacar, entendi fer leque Pedro de zia, lo mismo de las patenas, y a esta causa no hazia mucha cuenta deste dicho: mas viendo que unas vezes se enoiana, y otras con muy grande abines trabaiana por darse a entender, por esto le mostre un guijarro negro y redon do, del tamanno de uniterwela temprana, y le pregunte si en su tierra ania per las assi como aquella, dixo que no, porque aquel oniarroeraneoro, y las perlas blancas como papel, y que quando las mirana al Sol, que la vistimbre dellas le dana en los osos, y affi hazas con ellos como fi las traviera presentes. Y preguntado fi las ania tan orandes coma el referido omigaro, dixo que otras ania chiquitas como el guijarro. Y luego sunto la cabeca del dedo pulgar con la del indice en forma de circulo, y alli con ou dedo de la otra mano, fue fema lando may ores r menores perlas, y que en cada hostia no ay mas de una sola : y con todo temiendo ser lo que dezia las pate-

10 nas de mi sospecha, le pregun te si eranchatas, o redondas, o de otras formas. No me entendo por este len qua ge. Luego hize como que queria poner el guy arro en el fuelo a fon de correr : y afficomo lo vio, dizo con aran demostración, que anando las echa nan en el fuelo ynan rodando por manera que a mi entender dio claramen ta fer perlas redondas, y de los tamannos referidos, y que fu bijo trabia al cuello una dellas; y que el mismo la horado con puedra blanca, y delgada, y que el fondo de adonde las sacana es de dos estados mas y menos, y que en fiu conchas dan de comer a los puertos. Preguntele fi las grandes conchas tienen el milmo luft e que tienen las ordinarias que le moftre dizo que fizodas estas y otras preountas le bize muy trocadas. y como en su tierra se llaman los arcabuzes, y otras de nuestras cosas, dixo que no las ay nor manera que fiempre respondio fin fospechas, y folo dio nombre con mucha resolucion a las cosas que ellos tienen, yo afirmo por verdad que no entends escrimir la grandeza, ni el mucho numero que dizo aner de y no sé quando.

20 toda suerte de perlat , por parecerme noticia nunca orda : mas considerando que naturaleza es po derosa para criar como ya se ban visto grandes perlas, y de las comunes tan gran suma en el rio de la Hacha. Margarita, y Cubagua : y yo porfie tanto en inquirir esta su declaracion, pareciome dener dezir lo que este Indio me dixotantas vezes, y a otras muchas personas, que no con menos cuy dado le examinaron, y en suma yo hago las dilegencias, y escrino como hombre que tengo de morir.

Dixo mas, que de la isla de Taumaro a tres dirs de camino, y de Chicayana ad os; ay otra isla mayor que Guatoso isla. las dos dichas, que se llama Guay topo, poblada de gente tan blanca, como lo es en comun la nuestra, y que basta los hombres tienen rubios los cabellos mas y menos, y tambien negros, y que se labran las barrigas, y a su mbel todo en rueda, y que todas tres istas son gente amiga, y de una lengua, y que u san darse 30 la vec en los carrillos, y que tienen por sennat de enemigos quando buyen los rostros, y que en esta isla ay muchos oftrales de los tres generos menores, en grandes trechos de mar, de fendo affi coma el de Chica yana, y que tienen muchas perlas. Y preguntado si el ania estado en ella, dixo que no. Luego le bolui a preguntar como fa bia lo dicho, y lo como deffa manera que de nquella ifla falio em nauto gran de los sinyos, con mas de cincuenta personas, a buscar conchas de Carer, de que o san bazer çarcillos, y otros inguetes que cualçan de las oreus, a otra isla poblada que lleman Mexitaylay, que estando a vist a della. Ces dio un vicato contrario que les obligo a buscar su isla, de la qual estendo cerça, bolnio el viento a ser contrario, y que andando en estas bueltas se les acabo el bastimento, a cuya falta murieron quarenta personas de bambre y sed, y que el estana en la Isla de Tammaco, quando este nauso aporto alli con solos siete bombres muy blancos, excepto eluno que era moreno, y con tres mugeres blancas, y bermofas como E-40 Spannolas, que tenian los cabellos rubios, y muy largos, y que sodas tres venian cuburtas de cabeçasbasta los pies con vuos como mantos az ules, o Negros, ymuy delgados, a que llaman fosfoa, y que de todas estas diez personas, solo quedô vino el Indio Olan, al qual los nuestros quando alli lo viero en Tanmaco, san blanco y tan bermeio. le llama ron el Flamenco, como queda referido, y que este Indio Olan y otros le contaron quanto ba dicho, de aquella isla de Guay tupo, y que el musmo vio ve nir a se isla de Chicayana, otro nanio de aquellos de dos vasos cargado de gente blanca y bermosa, y con muchas y muy lindas muchachas, y dio a entender contando por los dedos de diez en diez, ser por todos ciento y diez per-

Dixomas, que de etra isla que se llama Tucopio, que es a donde los dos Indios se ceharon a nado, como queda referido, a cinco dias de su nauegar, ay aquella gran tierra Manicolo, poblada de mucha gente lo-SC ray mulata en grandes pueblos, y para dar a entender su tamanno, sennale el de Acapulco, y otros mayores, y por esto le pregunte si ania pueblos tan grandes como Mexico, dixo que no, mas que muchas gentes, y que son su amigos, y no comen carne humana, ni se entienden las lenguas, y que es tierra de muy altas ferra nias, y grandes rios, y que alzunos dellos no se pueden vadear, sino passarse en canoas : y pue para ir de la ista Tucopia a aquella sierra, quando sale el Sol les queda a la mano izquierda, que viene a fer del Sur para el Sudeste. Dico que si que si esto es assi como lo dixo, que viene bien con la cordillera do sierras que se vieron si corriendo a la buelta del Poniente, como esta dicho en su lugar, quando fusmos desgarrando. Mucho encarecio Pedro la grandeza po placion y fertilidad, y otras cosas desta tierra, y que el y otros ludios fueron a ella en una de fus embarcaciones, a bufcar un tronco de un grande arbol, do los muchos que ay en ella, para hazer una piraqua, y que vio alli un puer so, y dio a entender sermayor, y

60 de boca mas cerrada que lo es el de la Babia de san Felipe y Santiago, y que el mirô su sondo ser de arena, y suplay a Del astre como el otro ya dicho, y que tiene dentro quatro rios y mucha gente, y que per la cesta de aquella tierra andunieron hazia el Poniente mas camino que ay de Asapulco a Mexico sin verle sin, y se bulmeron a su ssa. Admierto que como yo ania visto aquella ssa de Tucopia dixe adrede que sabia aner en ella muchas oftras y perlas, y que dixo que no ay fino mucho fondo, y que es affi verdad porque lo hize

Fono funo Isla

Pilen.1fla.

Pupan Ifla.

Dixo mas, que de Taumaco atres dias de camino, y con viento fresco a dos, ay otra isla que se llima Fonofono, partida en muchas illus pequennas y rofas, y por esto a causela le dixe, que ama en ellas orandes rios : pues grandes rios en silas pequennas, y rafas, no los puede auer, dixo que no fino poços, y que for todas mus fertiles, y mus pebladas de gentes loras, Indios y mulatos, muy alsos en demafia, y tanto que con ser algomas alto que 70, sennalo en una pared todo quanto pudo alcançar con los dedos, estendidos braco y ma no y dixe fer aquella su eltura, y que son sus amigos mas no de su lengua, y que en estas illas ar grandes trechos de mar, de poco y de mucho fondo, communchas de muchas hofiras, y que el milmo las faco para comerlas, y que te man perlas de los tamannos que tiene dicho, excepto las Taquilas, o que ar alli un muy buen puerto : y tambien dixo que cerca destas ifias ay otra que fe dize Pilen, y otra Nupan, y que tienen lo mismo de comidas gentes y persas y de oydas y no de vissa, dio nombre a otras muchas iffas, y de todas dixo lo dicho. Admertefe, que en tedas las Indias en folo la Margarita, en el rio de la bacho, se ha sacado y va facando la mulestud de las perlas que se sabe, de xo las pocas v no tan buenas de Panama, y digo que si es assi como est a dicho, que muchos numeros se pueden esperar de adonde diela noticia, alli por ler muchas estas partes, como par la grandoza de los mares que dixo sienen poco fondo, mas se admierte que solo dixo de las oitras que alcançan a ver los ous, y solo con las manos cogen sin zabuirfe, quedando fiempre referuadas las dos, quairo, ocho, y mas braças como or fe pefcan en fa

En Marcio llere a Pedro per des veces a cafa de un broudador de petelas, y a má ruego le mostro de teolo les generos comunes : affe emo lo vio fe degen muchos, y due con gran el mostrator y encençamento, y due que fairer a y muchos petela y mas bianchea que aquellas. Al girale may o uno barrueco, o affecto, y grandes y abromados, bien mai e gilo, y discupte aquello no era busao, y que en fairera ausa mesor. Mas sidirencia bien el Maldet mayor del puerto de Acopulo, dan Pedro Flores, puer la mojiro vua cadena de muchos i artas de predez, y le preguno fi, on fai terra ausa de aquellas cadenas disca que co. La gordina de muchos i artas de petelas, y le preguno fi, on fai terra ausa de aquellas cadenas disca que co. La gordina de muchos i artas de petelas, y le preguno fi, on fai terra ausa de aquella cadenas disca que co fi, on mas que no estambo por aduelas, y fe pueda prefumir que a faita de brocas, y de taladros, so fe aproue-chan de la perda y de las combes a form faita de brocas, y de taladros, so fe aproue-chan de la perda y de las combes a form faita per la mesor petença y de la mismo de bordar.

Pouro gran tierra. Dixo meu, que en Taumaco es va Índie gram piloto 3 que fabe las nombres de muchas iverras, estas queste hetitado muchas ivez est, que de va Grantivita que fe llame Pouto mos poblada, cu y a gente ence, cludios, algenos son amigos sa yos este mos beltegos y guerres os entres, i traxo a fa sila de Taumace va pagaga yo de pecho y cuello colorado, y cierta si secha con puntas a sorma de cuchillo, y que en simson las vos, y las tenios, y deo a entender que les querias para ence ales mater mas facilmente, por este la mismo las vos, y las tenios, y deo a entender que les querias para en el as mater mas facilmente, por este la mossiva vos consecuentes que en consecuente que en la composição de las puntas tan blancas como ella, amecha y exest se contradive este delos, y sempre mas se assumo des que este desta para en con a casa municas sectoras entre se desta manera como esta de desta por la composição de las Endos Postas que la data vame en la Babara de las Estas Postas que la data vame en la Babara de las Estas Postas que la data vameda se tentas entre se entre da come en la Babara de las Estas Postas que la data menta se tentas entre se entre da come en la Babara de las Estas Postas que la data menta se entre de las para entre e

Adaurtis, que en la banga as jon teur jumento, a come con consentante de persona est per peladas, que a cas que terranen dos partes ten germéns, cada von dellas como entra nevez, y que en la cuidad de Mexico vu don Franciso Pacheco ducenno de minas, y un Diego Jomez, de Moluma las viermo en mi mi posada, y el von dellos un gonificano lanco de cois de plada, por glos inlemanos lungo assad de un ensiguador que lo pujo en un crifol, y ella por sus razones le dio tamos suego que el crifol se desfondo, y assimo se vior a da toda via, yo me auna quedado con la vira parte que el ensigado regumo y a sissimo se vierba de la martino se con la vira parte que el ensigado regumo y a estis se se con esta el consenso de la vierba de la martino se vior pueda en junteron se sistenda al martino se con la vierba por la vierba se la vierba de la martino se vierba de la vierba de vierba de la vierba de vierba de la vierba

Estas piedras ania mostrado a Pedro, y asse como las vio, dixo que en los cerror de Tanmaco a y muchas dellas, y que se la mora Traque, y que subien las aye na apullo gen enterna Manicolo, y y que sobi a Induo Ia quieren, los vues para laberas se, vores para inniexes se con ellas y do misso dixo Paulo de sistierra, que es la Bahia de san Eelipe, Santage de adoude se traxeron, y dixee mineros que adoude y suitives, a metales, y que por la misse se se desperan la mina de plata y ovo de S. Lusa de la muna Estoma, y las de avague de Guancauelica del Pira. Ta daverto, que dexir Pedro que vio sicolis con puntas de plata, parece que por reacon de la poca que se bailo en aquel poco metal que tan a cus se servicio del sirvos de la servar a cus se situa se por la displició ne de la terra y a clino ser para los dels truodes se situa se recergue puede se aficio con o dexis.

Adaustra (e mas que Pedron despues que sapo darse a extender en uns sira lingua, conserm o contedio que aixeron los Indios de Tammaco, y esto esti en la tierra grande, como en las muchas sistas muchas sistas para las contras en pulsanta labrada; y par labra varas costres, la que con cabellos rubos, negros, siria cinceres por esta en la como en la com

esperar meior a en todo lo apuntado. Aduiertase que la primera vez que el Adelantado Aluaro do Mendassa, sue y descubrio las 1, as que

fulo comen la carne affeodo las oftras, y que el tegundo viage que bizo el mismo e Adelantado, desen. The second bris de nuevos la jula de Santacraz, domáe mirro, y que co esta y amino viamecha concisa, y auxilia Voisica muchos de nuevos la jula de Santa Miguelislo, y que este desen para el tenta de la carectera de la constanta de la carectera de la carectera de la carectera de la constanta de la carectera, que instantado o que desen dela constanta de la carectera, que instantado o que desen desen de la carectera que la carectera, que instantado o que desen desen de la carectera de la carectera de la carectera que instanta do que desen desen de la carectera de l

U. M. en effs. Dixo mas Pedro que al diablo llaman Terna, y que habla con los Indios de un palo. sin ser visto, y que a el mismo, y asados ellos de noche, y muchas vezes, les palpana los rostros, y los pechos con cosamuy fria, y que queriendo saber lo que era no hallauan nada : y esto dezia mostrando cierto recato y temor dan do bien a entender se cosamala y para ellos bien aborrecible; y tanbien dixo a otros que no ami, que antes que a su tierra sueramos, na el diablo les ania dic ho que los aniamos de ir a matar. Mostrana muchos desses de bolner a su tierra, para dezir al semor de Taumaco, todo el bien que le auiamos becho, y que lo e an otros Indios (su companneros, ellos mismos se hecharon de las naos a nado, que nosotros no les hizimos ningun mal. I tambien mas, para dezir a todos (us naturales quan buena cola es fer Christiano, y que a el despues que lo era, el diablo no le hablo, ni le o yo, ni de noche le palpo, y para traer su hijo, y ventrse a vinir con no sorros. I tamcien dixo, que en su ila de Chicayana, ay perros grandes como los nuestros. ane los llaman Ticuri. y que ay muchas anas como las de Europa, mas que no las sabien comer : y una fruta quiso dezir mançanas porque las vio, y mucho gengibre, y que en su tiempo baze buen frio,con ser en tan poca altura. Timas dixo, que a los que matan bonbres los aborcan, y que nuestros cauallos son buenos para andar en ellos, mas no para fer fernido de los bonbres. Era Pedro al parecer de edad de venticinco annos, y en aquella sazon que declaro sabia poco de la lengua Castellana, y a esta causa costo mucho trabaso esta su declaración, porque se le ha negado y repeti do muchas veges, y parece que si viniera diera 30 mas razon que ba dado: mas yo creo que es mas paracreer lo que esta dicho, que no lo fuera. Si llegara a ser se ladino, con que yo y todos quanto le trataro le teniamos por hombre de verdad, y de verquença. Va dia entro en la y glesia de San Francisco de Mexico, ypor ver en ella muchos Crucifixos dixo, que como ania alli tantos Diofes, fi le dezian que no ania mas que un felo Dios Fuele respondido ser todos retratos del verdadeao Christo. Y con esto, y con lo demas que se le dixo parecio satisfacerse y los frayles que le oyeren se alegraron por ser pregunta de hombre que sabia discurrir; y finalmente Domingo de Ramos murso : yo fio de la misericordia de Dios, que pues por unen estranno modo le trazo al bautismo, y a morir confessado, y olea, le y en tan sennalado dia, y son muestas de buen Christiano, que ha sido para darle su fanta gloria Y este fue su dichoso fin, del qual deuo estar muy consolado, y parece que su diuma Mage-And va ordenando, que casí no ay amedios humanos para, acabar Aquella Tu tan grande obra, o alme-20 nos que falten Aquellos en que mas estrine, o puedo estrinar.

El ciro Indio se llamana Paulo, era muchacho de hasta ocho annos, decolor toro, cabello frisado, tenia muy hermosis, com muy hermosis, memor condicion, s tanta que todos quantos le trataron le querian macho, por se tan docil, agradable: sabi como estero las que todos quantos le trataron le querian macho alegras, bautrado p buen Christiano le leuco Dios el dia dela Ascenson i dana razon del Demonio, y que so ilamanas s'hadanas, y de como babla em oles sindais sin servido, s tambien la dana de perros mayores; machoris y de von animal como gato, de van granderio bazia la parte de spueblo que en Aquella su tierra a mucha gente guerrera, comiga avuade ostra, y queno se come curne bumana : y esto se deste creer porta mucha que tienen de puercos, y gallinas, y tanta otras comidas, pues el comer se carro bumana entre otras gentes; parece proceder de la este cludad de si tierra; o de la vostitutad de su moradore: y porque erra 50 minos y silanas ostrano como controlo con controlo de la vostituta de las tierras, o de la vostitutad de su moradore: y porque erra 50 minos y silanas ostrano con controlo con con controlo con con controlo con con

le que pude iunter de les longues de Petro y Taulo, le que dezir, que es muy pronunciable.

Pertodo lo divio fe vue clearamente, que folo ba anidodo grandes partes de iteras a partadas defia Europa, y de la Africa, y Afie : la primera es la America, que deficiebro, Christolael Colon, y la fegunda y postrera del mondo, es la que vi, y pretendo poblar, y acabas de deficiebro; Para V. M. Esta grandesa deus de fer abreçada, al jope rener tanto de Dios, como por fer dar principa vara tar que obra, y de tautos, y tan grandes lienes, que ninguma otra de su genero puede ser mus, ni santo al presente.

adeliuse, como lo padre mossira se si son y ocupantado.

Si indo pues este caso tan adminable quento suenta, y osendo, tan empennada mi concioncia. I serme sueste que que per abrevier, prometo a D. M. de pudieve lugar con ella, e por suente de le tenera, a vor. para mas abitgar a V. M. a lo que vas obiquado le turis el titulo de Rey Catolico, y disso sor de la Fe, recuerdo, quan Real, y semanda merced de Dios es esta, megada a todos los Reyes del mando, y islo a V. M. concedada, cuyo sondo, ò resm. es suerça carsar grandes invaitas, y a la nessa de coloni ella V. M. concedada, cuyo sondo, ò resm. es suerça carsar grandes invaitas, y a sue esta coloni ella V. M. concedada, cuyo sondo, ò resm. es suerça carsar prandes invaitas, y a sue esta coloni ella V. M. concedada, cuyo sondo, ò resm. es tenerça carsar al mestro que esta sondo sue en con comercio con corsos de alonas, y redumidas por la persona de Christo, servicio de alonas, y redumidas por la persona de Christo.

IS. Grados.

The first Voy.

£ 000003

CHAP. II. Policie to deny planting Wine and Oyle in New Spaine.

con la esperanea que queda de quantas se han de saluar andando tiempos , siendo la saluación de una sola de tanto precio, que si necessario fuera el mismo Christo viniera, a dar la vida por ella. T con esto quedo Sennor bien entendido de quanto valor es este becho, y quantos premios dara Dios, por auerlo (contanto amor y fersior) intentado; y quantos mas grados de gloria tendra. V. M. si da fin a esta obra de tanta piedad y miler scordia, y tan digna de recebir en la memoria de las gentes: aduirtiendo que no fera con tanto valto de dineros, ni de bombres, ni con Aquellos estragos, ruynas, y escandalos, que suele auer para anerioar el derecho de muy pequennos estados, sino poner debaxo de la proteccion Real con medios todos muy fuanes, y in tificados, quanto los puedo mostrar una tan gran parte de toda la tierra poblada, pera en ella lembrar bienes, y costellos frutos que yo espero en Dios han de ser muchos, muy duices, muy ricos, y mur duraderos: y lolo quiero por paga de tanto quanto tanto vale, que V.M. crea la mportancia del cafo, to y quanto conusene loque pido, y que en todo trato verdad, y que es animo de vender todo lo paffado, presente, y venidero por un precio, y este es Sennor de valde.

A note of Australia del Espiritu Santo. Written by Master HAKLYYT.

S Imon Fernandez, a Filos of Lisbone, told me Richard Hakluyt , before other Portugals in London, the eighteenth of Murch 1604. That he having beene in the Citie of Lima in Petu, did perfeelly understand, that joure Sops and barkes departed from the Said Citie of Lima, about the yeare 1600, 20 in the moneth of February toward the Philippinas. Their Generallwas a Meltizo, that is to fay, the Sonne of a panier', and an Indian woman. And that feeking to make way toward the Philippinas, they were divinen with strong Northerne winds to the South of the Equinoctial Line, and fell with divers rich Con trejes and llands, as it femeth, not farre from the lles of Salomon. One chiefe place they called Monte de Plata, for the great abundance of filmer that is like to be there. For they found two crownes worth of filner, as he reported, in two handfuls of dust. And the people game them for Iron as much, and more in quantitie of filuer. They report that this place is two moneths fayling from Lima, and as much backe agame.

Concerning this Voyage also: the Licentiate Luis de Tribaldo, a Gentleman of qualitie in the Conde de villa Mediana, the Spanish Ambassadours house, told me Richard Hakluyt, that two yeeres past he faw at Madrid, a Captaine of quality fuing for license to conquer this place, & that be obtained the same. And that divers religious men and Fathers were to goe to convert them to Christianitie. They arrived at their returns from this Voyage at Peru, in the moneth of August.

CHAP. XI.

The Historie of LOPEZ VAZA Portugall (taken by Captaine WI-THRINGTON at the River of Plate, Anno 1586. with this Discourse about him) touching American places, discoueries and occurents; abridged.

Part of this Discourse was M. Hak out of interred that -

Ona Hift ania was called so by the Spaniards, when they made Discouery of it, for that it was like the Country of Spaine, though the people of the Country termed the Land after their owne Countrey Language (some one partafter one, some after another) the most part of the people called it Eucata. This Countrey hath fundry great Provinces in it, to fruitfull of all kinde of necessaries in it for man, that there is neither Africa, Afra, nor Europe, that is better ; for that of fulle- 10 have added & nance for mans bodie there lacketh no store, as Wheat and all other Graines, all beafts necessary for man to eate or to vie, with great store of Silkes, Mynes of Gold, Siluer, Stones, and Pearle. The Countrey is very well inhabited, fo that it is thought there is no part of the Worldbetter. uing outsuch The King of Spame because hee hath many other Countries under him, hee doth little esteeme of as before have this Countrey, but doth take out of it all things that are for his profit, having vied those people with great crueltic, and taking of them much Tribute; this Land hath many Ports in the North Sea, and much more in the South Sea, the principall Ports in the North fide is Saint Inan de Lua-At this place doth he discharge the Armadas that come from Spaine, and from this place they carrie their Merchandize to the great Citie of Mexico: which Citie is fixtie leagues within the Land, and knowne by the Parithes in the same, to have a hundred and fittle thousand faire hou- 60 ies of Indians, and fix thousand faire houses the Spaniards have in it.

The feare and reverence that they vie towards the Spaniards is fuch; that one Spaniard may goe among a thousand of them, and thrike the chiefelt of them and vie his pleasure, without any word given by the Indians to the contrarie, fuch is the feare that thefe filly people have of the Spaniards. But now, thankes be to Almightie God, the Indians of that Country and Kingdome are become Christians : yet notwithstanding now and then the old men, having not forgotten their former Law, doe vie their Idolatry, which being knowneare very cruelly corrected by the Friers for the same offence. The people of this Kingdome are of a sharpe wir, and good underflanding, for what foeuer it be, Sciences or other Arts, thele people are very apt to learne it with fmall inftructing, the Indians of this Countrie doe make great flore of Woollen Cloth and Silkes, Silkes and to that they now beginne to carrie of these Silkes for Spame. And have all other things necessarie clothes. that any other Kingdome of the Christians have, onely Wine and Oyle, which the King of Sazine denieth to have made there, but fuch as commeth from Spaine, because of his customes, denied 10 notwithstanding the King doth allow them to plant Vineyards for to eate of the Grapes. This Vineyards Land is greatly commended not for that about mentioned, nor yet for the Gold and Silver Mynes Ports and that it hath, but for the great number of Ports for shipping it hath in the South Sea, where they shipping. make many great ships, with the which ships they have traffique with them of Peru, and Parawna, and then they have a Trade to the Philippinas, and to the Hands of Molnecas and China, fo that the commodities which the Portugall carrieth for Portugall out of the East Indies, are likewife brought to the Citie of Mexico, by reason of their shipping, although not in so great quantitle, as they carry for Liftone, not for that they of Mexico either want Thipping or abilitie, but because the Spaniards would conquer it with the Sword as he hath done other Linds, and not by the way of Traffique, as the Portugall loth, the principall Port from whence this Merchandize 20 doth come, is called Aguatorke, in the Coast of China on the North fide.

After the Conquett of this Kingdome of Mexico, the order how the Spaniard did divide this Land, was this. The principall Cities they refined to the King of Spaine, and to the Generall of this Conquett, who was renowmed Ferdinando Curtie, they affigned vnto him a great Valley, or Cornanate Valas we call it a low Land betweene two Mountaines, which was called Cornovake, by which, Val-leyley he had the name of Marquesse of the Valley, where there were great Townes, in which some houses in this affirme to be about 400000. hre houses; whereby the rent was to him better worth then three Valley. hundred thousand Duckets by the yeere. These Rents were confirmed to him and his for ever.

The other part of the Land that remayned, was parted among the reft of the Captaines and Souldiers which were at this Conquest, fome had a hundred thousand Duckets by yeare, and 40 other fortie thouland Duckets, and tome fittie thouland Duckets, and hee that had least had rea thousand Dickets by the years, so that now there are very few which have this Rent , for that they are most of them dead, so that great part of the faid Rents are fallen into the Kings hand, wherefore there are many infurrections against the King, which cost many a mans life.

And now to proceed farther along the Coast, which is a Land full of great Mountains, and very hot with much raine, for which caule it is a very viholfome Country, where breedeth all notiome wormes and beafts, therefore there are very few Indians dwelling there, and no Spaniards, so that the Countrey is almost desolate. The first Land that is inhabited by the Spaniards along the Coast, is called Veragua, this is the most richest Land of Gold then all the rest of the Indies : therefore it is inhabited with Spaniards. In this place the people are alwayes ficke, and it raineth Gold. 40 continually, and the Land yeeldeth no fruit, lo that all their fustenance commeth from other places, all which necessities the Spaniards suffer with great patience for the couetousnesse of the Gold , the which Gold they get out of the Rivers with the helpe of a number of Negroes. I doe verily beleeve that if this Land were now the ancient Romanes , or elfe the Egyptians, they would furely make a channell from the end of this Riner de Carinas (which A Channell to iffueth from the Lake of Nicaragua) to the South Sea, for that there is no more but foure bemade, leagues betweene the Sea and the River, to that there they might Trade to the Moluccas, and to the Coast of China, to would it be fooner and easier done then the long and troublesome Voyages of the Portugals, and fooner made, then to goe through the Straits of Magellan; which is almost vnpofinle to palle thorow.

From this Land of Veragua vnto the Hand of Margereta , the Coast along is called the firme Tera finna. 50 Land, not for that the other places are not of the firme Land, but because it was the first firme Land that the Spaniards did conquer after they had path the Hands. This Land is very hot, and hath much raine, and for this cause is very vnhealthfull, and the most vilest place of all the rest, is Nombre de Dies cailed Nombre de Dios: which is the first place inhabited after you have passed Veragua. There first may be in Nombre de Dios: about foure hundred houses, and hath a very good Port for shipping. The cause why the Spaniards inhabited here in this place, was for that it should bee the way by Land to the South Ses, and for the Trade of Pern, that is from hence vnto the Citic of Panama Panama. eighteene leagues. And Panama standeth on the Coast of the South Sea. To this Towne of Nombre de Dies doth come all Spanish thipping, and there discharge them, then put they the 60 goods into small Barkes that goe vp a River to a house which is called , The bouse of Crosses, where the small Barkes doe discharge the goods againe. And then they put it on Mules to to carrie it to Panama, which is feuen leagues from This house of Crosses, all which they doe with much labour and great charge, because the Land hath great store of raine, and full of Mountaines, and very vnhealthfull, therefore they often want victuals, for the victuals they have come published by concayning the whole, I bin by others

The Ports. Mexico.

o Sitteralia Districted febre Oxenh.m. which you haue be are more com-Visire mide with the de-

cras.

from Pern, and Nona Hilbania. This Towne of Numbre de dios, fince they have had the traffice out of Spaine, are growne maruellous rich, and very well inhabited, but in fhort time the people "Here follow- left the Towne, laung onely the Merchants, because of the vnhealthfulnesse " thereof. The King of Spaine hearing of the affaires of Drake and Oxenbam, fent cut of Spaine three hundred Souldiers which should make warre against those Negros that had aided the Englishmen which were flaues vinto the Spaniards, but runne away from their Mafters, and loyned with the Englishmen, thinking that way to be revenged of the Spaniards crueltie. But when these three hunared Souldiers were arrued in the Countrie, at their first comming they tooke many of the Negros, and did on them great inflice; according to their faults committed, but afterwards the Souldiers were a long time before they could get one Negro. Which newes being fent vnto the King by his Captaines, as alto how the Countrie was tull of Mountaines and Rivers, and very unhealthfull, infomuch that his Souldiers died, he did write to his Captaines to make agreement with those Negros, to the end the Countrie might bee in quiet. And the Negros inhabited two places where the Spanuards willed them, to was the Kings pardon proclaimed to all those Negros. from the time that they fled from their Mafters into the Mountaines vinto that prefere day, on condition that all those Negros that did runne from their Masters that day forward they should be bound to bring them dead or aline; but if they brought them not, that then they should bay for them, and to make all quiet in the Mountaines : and on these conditions all things were Meso Fosness concluded and agreed upon. So the Negros dwell in great Townes, where they have Spaniards for their Teachers, and a Spaniard for their Judge; and with this they hold themselves very well an contented, and are obedient vnto their Rulers. The King of Spaine hearing that Englishmen, as well as Frenchmen, have vied that Coast, hee caufed two Gallies to be made, and well appointed, to keepe the Coaft; the first yeere that they were made, they tooke fixe or feuen French shippes, and after this was knowne, there vied few Englishmen, or French men of warre, to come on the Coast, vntill this yeere 1586, that the aforefaid Francis Drake came with a strong Fleet, of about four eard twentie ships, and did such harme as it is well knowne to all Christendome : but God sparing the King of Spaines life, he will sufficiently provide to keepe his Subjects from the invasions of other Nations.

Same Evench thins taken by two Gallies. Fr. Drake with 24. fhips.

Cartagena .

Now, to goe forward with our begunne worke, the first People that is in this Coast, being past Nombre de Dios, is called Cartagena, it is a healthfuller Countrie, and a greater Towne then to the other, and a better Countrie, with plentie of Victuals, and a very good Port for shipping, passing any of the rest, and is called Carragena, for that it resembleth very much the Citie of Care tagena in Spaine : there are in it about foure hundred fire houses in the Citie; it is very rich by reason of the ships staying there when they goe or come from Spaine. And if the ships chance to winter before they goe home, then they lie at Cartagena: also it is greatly enriched by the Merchandife that here they doe discharge, for to carrie to the new Kingdome of Granada; and much New Granada. Gold commeth from the faid Kingdome vnto Cartagena. This new Kingdome of Granada, is two hundred leagues within the Land. From Cartagena to this Kingdome they cannot travell by Land, because of the Mountaines, and standing waters, which lie in their way, so that they carrie their goods up a River, called The great River of Magdalene: they can goe with their to Barques up this River but twentie leagues, yet the River is both large and very deepe, but there runneth a great current, fo that the Barques discharge the goods at a place in the River, called Branco de Malambo, into small Canoas which rowe close by the shoare side.

great Riner. The River of B-ance de Ma-

Magdalena a

There is a passage by the New Kingdome, and Popayan, from Cartagena to Pern, by Land, which is about fine hundred leagues, fo that taking the two hundred leagues, which they goe vp the River, the other three hundred leagues is a Countrie well inhabited, and quiet travelling, fo that oftentimes the Poils paffe to and fro, but because the way is long, the Merchants doe not trauell that way but when they are forced thereunto, if any forraine Nations should take and keepe the South Sea, the King might have his treature brought to this place from Peru, and to into Spaine. For in times palt there was a rebellion in Peru by the Spannards, against the King, 50 and thorow thele Prouinces he fent his power to supprelle them.

Santa Marta is a very poore Towne, because it bath beene often robbed of the Frenchmen, and hath no trade, but by a few Indians that dwell about them. Here beginneth the great Moun-taines conered all with fnow, which compaffeth all the Countrie of India and Pern, vntill you come to the further end of the Straites of Magelan, their Mountaines are feene with the fnowe upon them about thirtie leagues into the Sca, in the bottome of this Wilderneffe, or Mountains,

Land that is joyning to it is full of Mountaines, and the Inhabitants are very many, and withall of a good courage, and they vie to poison their Arrowes, to that in flriking of a man, hee can-

Great Mountaines couered with inowe.

Tagrona Valley, there is a Valley called Tagrona, which is the richest place that is knowne: but because the

70, Tands, Santa Domingo.

notefcaye death. Therefore it beth vnco: quered, and many Spanife Captaines there have 60 On this Coast of The Firme Land, there are at one fewentie Hands of Sante Domingo, and Cuba Cuba and Porta and Porto Rico, although it be not very great, yet it is inhabited by the Spaniard; the rest of all the Hands have beene inhabited by Indians, where was good store of Gold, and Pearles, and Emeral's: but the Spaniards have deltroyed all those Indians from off the Earth, and in many of those Hands is nothing of any value, therefore I have small cause to intreat of them: but Santa Domingo is an Iland of great bignesse, and hath beene very full of people and rich Mines of Gold and Pearles, but now all is waited away; for it was as full of people as any place of that hienelle in the world, yet now are there none left, for they were men of so hard a heart . that they killed themselves, rather then they would serve the Spaniards. It happened on a time, that 2 Spaniard called certaine Indians to goe to worke in the Mines, which kinde of labour did most grieue them, and would rather doe violence on themselues, then to goe; which the Spaniard to keepemen perceiving, he faid voto them, feeing you will rather hang your felues then to goe and worke, alue. will likewise hang my selfe, and goe with you, because I will make you worke in the other world : Eur the Indians hearing this, faid, wee will willingly worke with you, because you shall not goe with verto vinwilling they were of the Spanards companie: fo that of all the Inhabitants of this lland, there was none elcaped death, but onely these few, which was by the meanes of this Spaniard for elfe they would have hanged themfelues alfo.

There is neere this Iland another Iland greater then Santa Domingo, called Caba; it is like cuba. vnto Santa Domingo, athough there is not fuch flore of Sugar; the chiefest place in this Hand is called Labanana, and is a very good Harbour : thefe people are very rich, by reason of the thip- La banana, ping that doth touch there, which are bound for Nona Hoffania and Peru, therefore there is a Cattle in this Harbour kept with Spanifs Souldiers; for there is no other Cattle in all the Land, 20 nor Souldiers but onely here, and in Florida. There is also another Hand inhabited with Soaniards, neere voto this, which is called Porto Rico: it is but little, and every way as plentifull as Porto rico.

the other two are.

I will follow my Dicourie of the Port Townes along the Coast of the maine Land, and pas- The Port fine once the Hand of Margareta, there are no Townes inhabited by the Spaniards, till you come to Fernanbote, which is on the Coast of Brafill: yet betweene the Hand and Fernanboke, there is Fernanbote. the great Rmer of Maranoyn. This River is one of the greatest in the world, it was first found The River of when as the Spaniards did feeke out the other Coaft, but none can goe into this River because of Maranon. the great current that commeth downe; and withall there are many shelues of fand lying about the mouth of it, whereby it was long before that the Riches which is in the Riper was knowne, which time that the Land of Pers was conquered; at which time a Captaine called Gonfalo Piziarro, entring into the Countrie of Pern, came into a Land which they named La Cane- La Canela, la, because there tame from thence great store of Cinnamon , but not altogether so good as that which commeth from the Indies. Proceeding further into the Countrie, he came to a great Ri- The great Riner, where he faw many of the Countrie people come vp in Canoas , bringing Gold to buy and uer of Meranfell with the Spaniards. The Captaine feeing this, was defirous to fee the end of this River, but "on. could not travell by Land because of the Mountaines, wherefore he made a small Pinnace, to goe fee from whence thele Indians brought their Gold; and he fent in this Pinnace, a Captaine under him, called Orillans, with thirtie men, the which went downe the River, but could not returne to their Captaine Picarro, because of the great current which was very strong against them, 4º and forced them to passe the River, and enter into the Sea, and so came to the lianu of Marga- Margareta at reta: but as they pailed the River, they found it well inhabited with Indians, and to have good Iland, ftore of Gold. There men with their Pinnace were passing downe this River a yeere and a halfe; for the River lieth very crooked, which maketh a long way by water, and the Spaniards never durit land, because they saw the Countrie so full of people; but tooke many Canoas, where they had good flore of Victuals, and some Gold. Now this Captaine Orillana comming vnto Margareta with this good newes and riches, hee determined with himfelfe, not to returne againe vn to his Captaine Pizarro, which fent him, but tooke his way from hence to the King of Spaine, and prefented him with the Gold that he brought out of the River. Whereupon the King fent him with a Fleet of ships, and fixe hundred men, to inhabite the faid River: but because of

to the great current, and shoald that are in this River, he left the most part of his men, and ships, and with thole that remained, hee went vnto certaine Hands hard by the River, and built him Pinnaces: but the Countrie being very vnhealthfull, hee himfelfe died, and many of his men, and the rest that remained, went every one the way that pleased him best,

The fame of this River was straightway spred thorow Spaine and Portugall, so that a Gentleman of Portugall, called Leus de Melo, which asked licence of Don Inan the third, then King of Poringall, that he might goe and conquer this faid River: for from the mouth of this River to the mouth of this River of Plate, is that part of America, which the Kings of Portugal doe hold according to the partition that the Kings of Spaine and Portugal both made betweene Brafill con themselues ; fo that the King of Portugall hauing this River in his part, hee gaue it to the said quered.

60 Lem de Melo, to conquer: who taking ten ships, and eight hundred men, among which there were many Gentlemen, and comming to the mouth of this River, hee loft all the shippes faving two fayle, and in one of them that were faued was Leus de Melo, also the most part of the men that were in the ships were faued and got to shoare, and so went along vinto the Hand Margaresa, from whence they were disperfed throughout all the Indies. Thus thele two fenerall Flee's of thips being call away, by fuch will fortune, never any Captaine after, would give the attempt to con other this faid River. Yet from the new Kingdome of Granade, before spoken of two or three Captaines have gone by Land to difcouer it.

Pedro de Orque, None of all these came to any plaine discouerie till few yeeres past, a Capraine of the Conn. trie of N : narre, called Pedro de Orane, who came into the Countrie of Peru, neere the place where before Capraine Pizzero had first difcouered, and had with him about feuen bundred men. all Spaniards, which was maruell that he could have so many, and amongst them there were many ny G. ntlemen, and old Souldiers of Pers, which cauled many mutinies and infurrections, With all there men ne came to the head of this River, (all the matters that come from the Mountainer or Pers. and the Rivers which runne within the Land from fixteene degrees, and the Line, runne w all v. to this River, which caufeth it to be fo great.) Now at the head of this River, the Captaine Pedro de Orzana ma le niceene Pinnaces, with many Canoas, in which he carried about two thous fand Indians to helpe him, with many Horles and other provision, for to inhabite there foris was not politible for him to carrie all his prouition by Land, for that the Mountaines bee very great, and betweene them many small R uers, which issue out of this great River about twentie langues into the Land. So this Captaine having all his things in good order, went downe this River with all his men, and came to a plaine Countrie from the Mountaines, where the Indiane diddwell, and there held a Counfell, determining in that place to build a Towne, and to fortile it very firong, because he would leave all his stude, there and such men as were not Souldiers. So they began to make the faid Towne, and worke on it all the Winter, where because it raineth a much, and is with all very hot, whereby ficknesse did beginne to rife among them, and also want of Victuals; wherefore his men began to murmure. These men came all out of the Land of Pers. which is the fruitfulleft Land in all the World, and most richeft; therefore these men were the more given to have their fill of Bread and Meat, then to lay their bodies to labour, which was the caule: that although the Countrie in which they were, was very fruitfull , and also they faw with their eyes, the Gold that was there, as also how up in the Countrie it seemed much better then the place in which they were, notwithfranding they murmured, and would needs returns for Pers, from whence they came. There was among thele men a Souldier of Bifea, called Lopez de Agira, a very little man of body, and was lame of one of his legs, but very variant, and of good experience in the warres (this man was one of the principall mutiners in Peru, and therefore given vivally thereunto) this fellow asked the Souldiers, what they went to feeke in those Wilderneffes where as they went brought, for faid he, if you feeke riches, there is enough in Perm, and there is, faid hee, Breid, White Flesh, and faire Women to that it were better to goe this her and conquer that, and take it out of the hands of the Spaniards, for that would easily be done; for that all the Souldiers, & poore men of Pers would turne vnto them, and that were a better way then to goe and conquer the faunge people in those Mountaines, so that they once having the government of Pers, that then the King of Spaine should agree with them, if not fail he, we shall not lacke them that will fend ws fuccour for to have the riches that is in the Land of Pers. By thefe pertivations hee brought many Souldiers to be of his minde; and agreed with a young Gentleman of Simil, called Dos # Fernando de Gosman, the which was in loue with a yong woman, that the Captain Pedro de Orzas The Captaine or Offene had, and therefore he did the fooner agree with Lope de Agire to fulfill his intent. Ont night, the Captaine being afleepe in his bed, theie Souldiers entred into his Bed-chamber, & flabbed him with their Daggers, as also they floe all the Captains friends, and they made a great cite, faying, Line the King, line the King, wherwith all the Campe was in an vprore. Then Lope de Agus made vnto the So. Idiers a long Oration, & got them all to confent with him fome by force fome because they durst not say to the contrarie, and others with their good will, in the end they all agreed vnto his determined purpole. So they made the gentleman their head, and Lope de Agne was made Captaine, this done, and because the people should the better hold their opinion, hee did as great a villanie as euer any Spaniard did, for hee made an Altar, on which hee and all the Souls for diers did denie their feruice vnto the King of Spaine, and fo as people without a King, they choic the faid Don Fernando to be their King, and did vnto him homage.

Loper de Azira his mutinie.

Fernando de Gafman cholen King.

These matters being finished, they agreed among themselves which should be the best way for them to goe to Peru, for they could not goe up the River from whence they came, for the great current, and also it they should goe thorough the land, they should be very weake for want of Horiemen, therefore they determined to goe downe the River. Then faid this Lope de Agire, that they would carry nothing with them, but the Pinnaces and Souldiers which should fight, and that it were beit to leave behinde them, all the Indians that they brought from Peru, with the women, and ficke men, vnto which their Generall Don Fernando would not agree, for that he greehearing this, and longing to bechiefe Gouernour him life over all, and taking vnto him thirtie of his owne Countrie men, of his own disposition, he fodainly killed Don Fernando, whom not twentie daies before hee had fworne to obey. But now by his fubtile working, and being knew that when they were gone, the people of the Countrie would kill them all. Lope de A. 6. withall eloquent in his talke, he cauted the people to make himselfe Governour, and made the people belieue that all these cruelties were done to sue themselues, but the tyrannie of this man did not end here (he was of the Countrie of Bifca, a land loyning vnto France, therefore I rather believe that he was a Frenchman then a Spaniard, for that in the heart of a Spaniard there is not Haid concein fo much crueltie as this man had.) Now he being ready to goe his way, he determined not to of Frenchetu. carrie with him any Gentleman or other of high degree, and therefore hee flew all those which city by Span, hee did know to be of high degree or Gentlemen, and then departed onely with the common Souldiers, and left behinde him all the Spanish women and ficke men, with all other

If I should rehearse all the cruell murders of this wicked man one by one, I should be over much to tedious vnto you; onely I fay in as few words as I may, that this man proceeded downe the River, and had with him onely foure hundred men, but before he passed this River, and came to Margareta, he had no more left but two hundred and thirtie men, for the rest hee had done to death, and left afhore among the people of the Countrie: he vied this tirannie because hee al- Nothing to waies flood in feare of his life, for that if he had feene but two Souldiers talke together, hee proceeding thought that he had alwaies confulted on his death, and therefore hee yied the order about faid, from an ill now he never went any way but that they had in his companie thirtie Bifcains of his owne will conficence, and minde, for to execute his cruell defire: As these Souldiers with their Captaine came downe the River, they faw many Canoas with Gold in them going to and fro, and people on both fides the River, where in their passage many times they landed and got good store of Gold, and

Now did they see also that which Oryllana had reported, which was that there were Ama- R. Amazone zones, women that fight in the warre with Bowes and Arrowes, but these women fight why so called, to helpe their husbands, and not by themselves as Orillana reported from the company of men. Note the truth there were of these women in diners parts of the River, and law the Spaniards fight with their hath mocked husbands, and came and helped them, and shewed themselves more valuant then their husbands, men touching and therefore is named the Rouer of the Amazones : the Spaniards intent onely was to paffe Amazone in A. downe the River, and therefore never fought to know the Countrie within the land; yet tooke fa, Africa and they good itere of Gold, and put it into one of the Pinnaces where he went himielte, which America. None Pinnace at the mouth of the River was cast away, but he himselfe escaped, because as yet he had by credible 30 not made an end of his bloudie minde. But comming to the Hand of Margareta, the Gouer- repostablene nour thereof thought he had beene one of the Kings Captaines, received him with Pinnaces, and foundbut wasbrought to him good ftore of vict sals, but he put him to death prefently and landed on the I. like wines, and lands, and tooke it and two Shippes that were in the Ilands, and tooke perforce one hundred nimamians. and fiftie men to goe with him, and others that went willingly, with good flore of victuals Historyfon at and many Horses, and then returned to the maine land, saying that with his small force Margarita. hee would fubdue the whole Indies; thinking that all the old Souldiers and poore people in seeing of him would all turne to his side, and take his part, and so hee went deceived in his owne conceit, for he had not gone two dayes lourney up in the Land, when the Captaine of new Granade came against him with a power of men , but Lope de Agire hoping that the 40 other Souldiers would have come all vnto him, whereby his strength might bee the more; but hee was deceined, for his owne men left him and tooke the Kings Captaines part. Now feeing himfelfe defficute of his Souldiers, and voide of all helpe, he then fnewed himfelfe more cruell then did the tyrant Nero, for this man killed his owne daughter, being but fixteene yeeres of Love de Agree then did the tyrant Ners, for this man killed his owne daughter, peing out exteen years of age, which he brought with him from Term, for that the fhould not be made the bed of Villains, age, which he brought with him from Term, for that the flower has been discussed by the bed of the b nor be called the daughter of a Traitor: these words he vied vnto her, after he had given her her is flaine. d-aths wound : but before hee could finish this cruell deed, the Sould ers came vpon him , and euc him in pieces; yet his daughter did die of her wound in that place, and thus you have heard the emil end of this cruell man, for hee was the cause likewise that the King would never suffer to have this River discovered, so that the riches restert to this day vinknowne that is in Greatriches this River.

Now having ended with this River of Marannon, all the Coast between this River and the Ri- the River of uer of Plate, is called the Coast of Brasil, taking the name of the wood in the Countrie, which Maragnon. is called Brafill wood (for there is great store of it.) Brafil was first found by Pedro Arnales (a - Briff). brall in the second time that the King of Poringall sent his ships for the East Indies, and so tooke possession of this Land, for the King of Partugall. The King Don Emanuel, having newes hereof, fent ships for to discouer the whole Countrie, and found it to be the Land of America, which ioyneth to the West Indies; wherefore there was some controuerie betweene him and the King of Spaine, but in the end being both kinfmen, and great friends, they agreed that the King of Portugal fhould hold all the Countrie that he had discovered, the which was as I have faid, from 60 the Rouer of Marannon to the Rouer of Plate, although the Spaniards fay that it is no further then the lland of Santa Catalina, and hereupon there have beene many contronerfies, betweene the Portugals and Spaniards and many men flaine.

There came in the years 1587, into this River of Plate two English Ships and a Pinnace of the Section flories honorable the Earle of Comberland, being bound for the straights of Magelanor, and anchored ten fap. i.s.

CHAP.II.

Paraga now i habred by Saniards Fernamback hash 3000. houses.

As Ilhas bath

reo, houles.

port called la Para Ina, which few yeares patt, the Frenchmen hearing of the troubles that were in Portugall, came to this place, and made there a Fort, and fo the French Ships came energy verse thither to lade Bratill wood. But they of Fernambucke with the helpe of the Spaniards went and burnt fire thips within the Port, and tooke the Fort, but fome of the Frenchmen ranne into the Mountaines, and others flaine, to that the Spaniards doe there inhabit to this day. Now to returne vnto Fernambocke, inhabited by a Portugall Captaine called Eduarte Coelio, this is the orea tell Towne in all that Coast, and hath aboue three thousand houses in it, with seventie Ingenios of Sugar, and great flore of Brafill wood, and good flore of Cotton, yet are they in great want of victuals, for that all that they have commeth out of Portugal, and from other places thereon .. the Coaft. It is a barred Harbour, and for small Barkes, this place belongeth yet to the Sonne of Eduarte Coelio. Palling hence is the Cape of Saint Augustone, and next to that is the River of Saint Bayastown be- Francisco, which is alto a great River, Betweene this and the Bayba, it is all a Wildernesse, inhabia longing to the ted with cruell Sauage people; for whom focuer they take they kill to eate. The Towne of Bone King for hee belongeth to the King, and therefore the Gouernour that gouerneth all the Coast along, is in this gaue most part Towns of Baya, and also the Bishop; it is a Towns of a thousand houses, and hath tortie Ingenios or trus Country to Gentle. of Sugar, and much Cotton, but no Bratill wood. The Sea runneth vp fourteene or fitteene men because leagues, where they get some yeares good store of Ambergreece; here there is plentie of victuals. they found no and although it be hot, it is a healthfull Country, and holesome aires. The next Coast is called Las Ilhas .: t is a small Towne not about one hundred and fiftie houses, there are but three I igenios of Sugar, the most part of these people are labouring men, and carry victuals to Fernandoct in three small Barkes; this people belong voto a Gentleman called Leucas Geralde. From hence, the next to this Towne is called Porto Sequero : this hath four fmal Townes, and leagues within this River, at a little Hand hard by the Hand called Seall Hand, &c. There is a

Paris Sequeto are in all about three hundred houses, it belongeth to a Gentleman called Vasco Fermandes Conh th toure fmall rownes. Rio de Ienero hash aco. houtes. Villagaon ns tenio : from hence they goe to the River of lenero, which hath about three hundred houses. In this place also the Frenchmen inhabited first, whose Captaine was called Monsieur de Villegaran, het made here a Fort, and planted good Ordnance thereon, and lades enery yeers great fore of Brafill from thence, and had great friendship with the Sauage people, which ferued him very well. Fortisken. Of But the King of Portugal fent a power of men aganft the Frenchmen , and first tooke the French him and it you thips by Sea, and then landed, and befieged the Fort, and in time tooke them with the Captains, and because the French Captaine was a Gentleman, and neuer hurt the Portugals, therefore they gaue thirtie thousand Duckets for his Ordnance, with all things that they had in the Fort, and to fent him for France, and the Portugals inhabited the River. There is not at this prefent but two Ingenios, and great flore of Brafil-wood, with plentie of victuals. From this River of Ienero, they go along the Coast of Saint Vincent, which hath foure Townes, the greatest is called Santos, and hath foure hundred houses, there are here three Ingenios, buta very poore Country. About few yeeres past there came two English thins into this Harbor, which were going for the Straits of Magellanes, who being in this Port, there came thither three of the King of Spaines thips, and fought with the Englishmen, but the Englishmen funke one of them, and therefore the King commanded a Fort to be made, because that no English shippes that were bound to the Straits should not victuall there, the which Fort standeth on the mouth of the Harbour, this Countrey belongeth to a Gentleman called Martin Alonfo de Soufa, this is the laft lahabitance in all the Coast of Brafill; this faid Coast is very full of Mountaines, and raineth much therefore they cannot goe from Towne to Towne by Land. All the dwellings in this Country are by the Sea fide, yet the Portugals have many times travelled up in the Countrie a hundred and fiftie leagues, but finding no profit, inhabited in no place. The Coast from Saint Vincent is all full of Mountaines, till you come to the Iland of Saint Ca-

The Coaft of Saint Vincent harh toure townes. Two English fhips by Fenton and Ward.

See fuo. in

Breed of to.

Saint Unicent, salina, from this Iland till you come to the Straites of Magellanes, is very plaine and with-The River of Plate was discovered by Solis, and after by Sebastian Cabot , which went one ? hundred and fiftie leagues vp in it and built a Fort; after by Don Pedro de Mendoza, who having lost eight fhips, died in the way homewards : the poore men which hee left behind him for very hunger, died the most part of them, for that there about were very few Indians, and therefore small store of victuals, but onely lived by hunting of Deere and fishing. Of all the men that this Don Pedro left behind him, there was living no more but two hundred men, which in the flip. Boats went up the River, leaving in this place called bonas arres, three Mares and Horfes. But it is a wonder to fee, that of thirtie Mares and feuen Horfes which the Spaniards left in this place, that in fortie yeeres these beafts have so increased, that the Countrey is twentie leagues up full of Horses, whereby one may see the pasture, and fruitfulnesse of the Countrey. The Spaniards that went up this River, were three hundred leagues up, and found the Country & full of Indians, where were great store of victuals, and the Spaniards dwelt among them as their friends, and the Indians did gue their Daughters to wife vnto the Spaniards, and fo they dwelt in one Towne together, which the Spaniards called La Afcention, which standeth on the North fide of the River. Thefe forefaid Spaniards, were twentie yeeres in this place, before any of them in Spains heard of these poore mens dwelling in this Ruer. But the Spanierds now waxing old, and fearing that if they were dead, that then there Sonnes which they had in this Country, which were very many, thould like without the knowledge of any other Christians; determined among themselves to make a ship, and so to send newes into Spaine, with Letters vnto the King, of all things that had passed within the River among them. Vpon this newes the King sent them three (hips, with a Bishop, Friers and Priests, and more men and women to inhabit with all kind of cattell. When this fuccour was come, they inhabited in two places more on the North fide of the River, and travelled three hundred leagues beyond the Afcenfion , but found neither Gold nor Silver, but returned backe againe to Afcenfion: the people are fo multiplyed in this Citie, that to it is now one of the greatest Ciries in all the Indies, and hath about two thousand houses, it is a fruitfull Countrey of all kind of victuall, and there is Sugar and Cotton, from this Citie of Afcension, one hundred and fiftie leagues toward the Rivers mouth, there is another Towne, which they call Santa Fee. Also five yeeres past, they have inhabited agains the Towns of Bonos Arres Santa Fee. on the South fide, because they would have some Trade with them on the Coast of Brafil, but Bones Aprel there fortune was such, that the first time that they went to Brafill, and would have returned to the River of Plate againe, they were taken by two fhippes of England, that were going to the Straits of Magellanes. The Coaft along from this River to the Straits of Magellanes, is a Land which hath not beene discouered, neither by Seanor Land, saving only certaine Ports which they have feene going to the Straits. 20 The next that lought to passe the Straits after Magelanes were two shippes of Genea which came to the mouth of the Straits, and with a great fforme were put back againe, and one of them whose Master was called Pancaldo, put into the River of Plate, and was cast away about Bonos Arres, and to this day there is part of the thip to be feene, and fome of the men are yet living in the River among the Spaniards, and the other thip went home to Genea againe. Also there was a Bishop of Placencia in Spaine, coueting Riches, made a fleet of foure ships to passe the Straits, and so to goe vnto the Molucess, and getting license of the Emperour, he fent his ships to the Straits, and had very faire wind til they came thither, and entring the Straits twentie leagues, the storme of Westerly windes tooke them, and droug three of them ashoare, and the other went into the Sea, and the storme being past, hee returned into the Strait to feeke his companions, and found 30 many men going on the shoare side, but the ships were heaten all in pieces, and they on the Land called vnto the thip. But the Captaine feeing that his thip was but little, and had im.ll flore of victuals, he would not goe to them alhoare, but went on his Voyage, and paffed the Straits, and because he was alone, he would not goe to the Molnegas, but went to the Coast of Pers vnto the Citie of Lone, where the thip is yet vnto this day, the men that were in the Straits, where the three thips were cast away, were to the number of two hundred and fiftiemen, whose Captaine was called Queras, being Kinsman to the Bishop of Placentia, it is fortie yeeres fince their men Captaine were left there, but neuer heard of vnto this day. A yeere after this, certaine Merchants of the Quers, Quieds Groine in Galizas, fet forth other three thips, which thip also came to the Straits mouth, where one of them was cast away withall the men, and the other returned for Spaine, also I have had in-40 telligence that there bath beene certaine Portugal thips, which have come to the mouth of the Straits, and loft two of their Pinnaffes which they fent to know the Land, and so the ships returned, and after these other two French ships were sent from the River of lenero, by Mensioner de vollagagnen over for the Straits, but when they came into the height of fortie five degrees, they put backe againe by a great storme of contrary winds. After all this the Gouernour of Chile, called Don Garcia de Mendoza Sonne to the Marquesse of Tanera, would also disconer the Straits from the South Sea, and fent from Chili two thips with a Captaine called Latherelio; but the danger to feeke the Straits by the South Sea, is more then by the North Sea, because all the stormes on the North Sea, come from the Land, and in the South Sea the wind and stormes came all out of hauchs and the Sea, and forceth the ship on the shoare, so that these two ships were lost in fiftie degrees. The Cand Bet, a in 50 feeking of the Straits of Magelenes is fo dangerous, and the Voyage fo troublesome, that it is other English almost vnpossible to be obtained, so that for the space of thirtie yeeres, no man made account of and Ducio oy-

the Straub be-Captaine Drate carried from the Coast of Perm, eight hundred fixtie fixe thousand pieces of tore, filter, which is eight hundred fixtie fixe Kintals at a hundred pound waight, the Kintall, and enery Kintall is worth twelve hundred Duckets of Spaine, which is a Million, thirtie nine thoufand and two hundred Duckets, befides this, he carried away a hundred thousand pieces of Gold, which is ten Kintals, and every Kintall is worth fifteene hundred Duckets of Spaine, which amounteth to a hundred and fifthe thouland Duckets, besides that which hee had in the ship that was not cultomed, which I doe not know of, as well Pearles, Precious stones, and other things of great value, besides the money he had in coine, with all this he went towards Noua Hispamia and at an Iland which is before you come there called The Iland of Cockles, he discharged all The Iland of things out of his ship and graved her there, and remayned there fittle dayes, from hence he went Cochets along the Coast of Hispania, where he tooke many thips laden with Spices, Silkes, and Veluets: favine Hand but no Gold nor Silver, for here is none on this Coaft.

it, till of late veeres one Francis Drake an Englishman, &c.

of Caria.

Pedre Sarmiento was fent to the Straits with two thips, and at the Straits met with a storme

Fiftie degrees fige minutes.

and he not knowing how, nor which way in a night he was put into the Straits, the other thin runne more into the Sea, and came into fittie eight degrees, the fforme being pall, he found many Hands forming to the maine Lands, and fo returned with faire weather all along the shoare, and neuer found any other way to enter the Straits, but only that which Magellanes did discourwhich is thought to be otherwise by the fayings of others, which affirme the Straits to be full of Ilands, to the Southwards,

Pedro Sarmiento entred the Straits, where his men were in a mutinie, and would have return ned for Lima, but he hanged one of them, and so went on his Voyage for Spaine, and sold the King that there were two narrow points in the Straits, where he might build a Fort, and that the Straits was a very good Countrey, and had great flore of Riches and other necessaries, and very well inhabited with Indians. Vpon whose words, and for that there were more things ma. king teadie in England to paffe the Straits; The King fent Diego Floris de Valdes with three and D. F. de Valdes twentie ships, and three thousand five hundred men, as also the Governour of Chili, with five hunhis diaduen- dred old Souldiers new come out of Flanders. These thips had the hardest hap of any ships that went out of Spaine fince the Indies were found , for that before they came from the Coaftof Spaine, a storme tooke them and cast away fine of the shippes, and lost in them aboue eight hundred men, and the rest put into Calls, notwithstanding the King sent them word that yet they should proceed : and so did with fixteene faile of thips, for that other two ships were so shaken with the ftorme that they could not goe, and in the fixteenth faile Pedro Sarmiento was fentto bee Gouernour in the Straits, and had committed vnto him fine hundred men for to ftay in the 2 Straits: he had also all kind of Artificers to make his Forts and other necessaries, with great flore of Ordnance and other Munition.

This fl. et because it was late, did winter on the Coast of Brasili in the River of Ieners, and from hence they went where the Winter was past, and about the height of fortie two degrees they had a florme, fo that Diego Flores beat vp and downe about two and twentie dayes, in which time he had one of his best ships sunke in the Sea, and in her three hundred men and twentie women, that went to inhabit the Straits, and also most part of the munition that should bee lestin the Straits. In the end the storme grew so great, that the ships might not indure it any longer, but were put back agains voto an Iland called Saint Catalina, and there he found a Barke, wherein were certaine Friers going for the River of Plate, which Friers told him of two great thipsof England, and a Pinnaffe that had taken them, but tooke nothing from them , nor did them any harme, but only asked them for the King of Spaines thippes. Now Diego Flores knowing that thefe English thippes would goe to the Swaits, hee also was determined to goe to the Straits, ale though it was the moneth of February, and choosing ten ships of the fifteene that were left, hee fant three ships that were old and shaken with the storme, he put in them all the women and sick The Riper of men that were in the fleet, and fent them to the River of Ienero : and left two other thips which were not for the Sea at the Hand, and he with the other ten ships returned agains for the Straits. Now the three ships in which the licke men and women were, came to the Port of Saint Vincent, where they found the two English ships, so they would have the Englishmen gone out of the Harbour, and hereupon they fell at right, and because that these three ships were weake with the foule weather that they had, as also the men were the refuse of all the fleet, the Englishmen cashy put them to the worst, and sunke one of them, and might have funke another if they would, but they minded not the destruction of any man; for it is the greatest vertue that can be in any man,

Port of Saint

Vpon this the Englishmen went from this Port to Spirito Santto, where they had victualifor their Merchandize, and fo returned home to England, without doing any harme in the Country. lobn Drake went from them in the Pinnaffe (the cause why I know not) but the Pinnasse that when he may doe hure, he will not doe it.

Iohn Drakes

came into the River of Plate, and within five leagues of Scale Iland, not far from the place where the Earle of Cumberlands ships tooke in fresh water, this said Pinnasse was cast away vpona ledge of Rockes, but the men were all faued in the Boate. They were eighteenemen, and went 50 ashoare upon the North shoate, and went a dayes journey into the Land, where they met with the Sauage people, these people are no man-eaters, but take all the Christians that they can, and make them there flaues, but the Englishmen fought with them, and the Sanages flie five Englishmen, and tooke the other thirteene aline, which were with the Sauges about fifteene moneties. But the Master of the Pinnaste, which was Richard Fairemeather, beeing not able to indure this mifery that hee wasin, and having knowledge that there was a Towne of Christians on theother fide of the River, he in the night called John Drake, and another young man which was with them, and tooke a Canoa which was very little, and had but two Oares, and so passed to the other fide of the River, which is about nine leagues broad, and were three dayes before they could get ouer, and in this time they had no meate, and comming to land, they his you a high way 65 that went towards the Christians and feeing the footing of Horfes, they follow it, and at last came to a House where as there was Corne sowed, and there they met with Indians which were Servants vnto the Spaniards, which gave them to eate, and clothes to cover them, for they were all naked; and one of the Indians went to the Fowne, and cold them of the Englishmen, fo the Captaine fent foure Horlemen, which brought them to the Towne behind them, then the Captayne clothed them, and prouded for them lodging, and Iohn Drake fate at the Captaines Table, and so intreated them very well, thinking to fend them for Spaine, But the Vice-roy of Peru hearing of this, fent for them, fo they fent him lohn Drake, but the other two they kept, because that they were married in the Countrey. Thus I know no more of their affaires. But you this newes, there were prepared fiftie Horfemen to go ouer the River, to feeke the reft of the Englishmen and Spaniards, that were also among these Sanage people, but I am not certains where they went forward or noc. But now let vs returne to Diego Flores, who palled from the Hand of Santa Catalina, towards the to Straits in the middle of February, and comming in the height of the River of Plate, hee fent the Gouernour of Chili, with three ships vp the River Bonas Arres, and so to go over land to Chili. Of these three ships they lost two, but faued the men and the other provision, and the third returned for Spaine. Then Diego Flores with the other feuen thips came as high as fiftie two degrees, which is the mouth of the Straits, and because it was the end of March, which is the latter end of Summer, to that the Countrey was full of flow, and withall a further fforme came, that he could not fee Sarmiento and his men ashoare but returned the second time to the Coast of Brasil, to the River of lenero, where he heard newes of the English thips, by the two thips that elcaped from the Englishmen, whereupon hee left his Lieutenant Diego de Ribera, and Sarmiento, that they might the next yeer returne for the Straits. So Diego de Flores with foure thips which hee had 30 left, and other foure which the King had fent to fuccour him , went all along the Coast to seeke for the Englishmen, but could not find them, for they were gone directly for England, to he went vnto a Port called Parayna, where he found five French thips, and burnt three, and tooke two, and also the Fort that the Frenchmen had, and put in Spannards, and the Frenchmen runne into the Mountagnes to the Sauages, this done, he returned for Spaine. And his Lieutenant Diego de Ribera, and Sarmiento had the next yeere fuch good fortune, that they arrived fafely into the Straits with all their thips, and to fet a hore foure hundred men, and because the thips Boat could not land being once laden, the ship that had all the victuals and munition, that ship they runne ashbare in a Bay, and as the water did ebbe they tooke all things out of her, this beeing done, Diego de Ribera left Sarmiento with foure hundred men, thirtie women, and a flip with victuals 30 for eight moneths, and with the other three returned, being in the Straits but eight dayes.

Now Pedro Sarmento made a Towne at the mouth of the Straits on the Northfide, and put Ped a Samitor therein a hundred and fiftie men, and from hence hee went by Land, and fent the ship further in- 10 builded to the Straits, and fiftie leagues within the Straits at the narrowest place of all, where is a very within the good Port, here he made another Towne, which he named the Towne of King Philip, and also Two rownes. would have made a Fort, and planted Ordnance for the defence of the Scraits, but the Snow and in the Scraits, the Winter was fo great, that hee could not proceed in it; but hee tooke about fine and twentie Nombre de le-Mariners into the thip with him, and taid, hee would goe fee how the other people did; and fo fus and Philips came to the Straits mouth to the Towne, and after hee had beene there a day or two with them, Citie, he faid, that a fforme put him from the Straits by force, and broke his Cables (but his men faid to 40 the contrary, that he himselfe cut his Cables: God knoweth the truth) and so he came to the Ri-

uer of lenero: and not finding any fuccour there came from the King, hee went to Fernambocke, asking aide of the Captaine for victuals, the Captaine incontinent, laded his thip with victuals and clothes for the men, fo that having these things, hee tooke his way for the Straites, but betweene the Cape of Saint Angustine, and the Baya, the wind came out of the Sea, with fuch violence, that it torced the flip to runne ashore, where Sarmiento had three of his men drowned, and he with the rest hardly escaped; the ship was lost, and all that was in her. And then he came by Land to the Bara, and the Governour of Brafill, bought a Barke that was there in the Harbour, and lading her with victuals and clothes for the men, hee having this provision, with divers other more that were needfull for his men, he tooke his Voyage for the Straits, and comming as high as fortie foure degrees, he met with a fidden florme, and was forced to throw all ouer-board 50 that he carried, and was yet in the end compelled togetime for the River of lenero; where hee flayed for faccour from the King a whole yeere; but there came not fo much as a Letter for him. for the King was fore grieved at Pedro Sarmiento, because he told him that in the narrowest place of the Straits it was but a mile over, but Diego de Ribera and others told the King that it was ahouse a league broad, that if a fhip came with wind and current. all the Ordnance in the World could not hurt them, whereby the King thought that Pedro Sarmiento had deceived him, in making him to lofe formany men, and to be at fogreat a charges to no effect. Also the Governour of Sarmier a wa miento went in his thip for Spaine, which he came last in from the Straits, and it is faid, that he was " Rad go 60 taken by Englishmen, and lo carried for England. It is reported that this Sarmenty is the be ft Ma- Barkes. tiner riall Spane, and hath fayled farthett. After all this, the Captaine of the River Jenero, lent This circuit a small ship with victuals for the Straits, but was also put backe in fortie degrees. Three all the was with Diffeourry that hath beene of the Straits of Maneianes, as well by the Spaniards, as other Nati- 1880. ons, vano this years 1586. It is four yeares fince thele poors and miferable Spaniards were life 1983-

Baya, feeing the King wrote not to him, would give Sarmiento no more faceour, wherefore Sar- taken by Six

Dadada a

The Land that heth from the Straits to the Coast of Chili, no man hath travelled it by land. because of the great Mountaines of Snow that Iye in that Countrey, as also I may well say, that it hath not often beene done by Sea, for that all the fhips that have paffed that way, have at the Last gone thirtie leagues of the shore, because of the shoalds, and many little Hands that lie of the mayne land, and therefore there is nothing knowne what is in that Countrey. The first Inhabitance that you have after you palle the Straits, is on the Coaft of Chili, and is called Caftre, it is the worst place of all the Coast, for that in it there is small store of Gold, and little victuall, and very cold; this place is compaffed with many shoalds, so that it is a Port but for small Barkes. It The next to this is Baldinia, but before I palle any further, I will declare vnto you the fituation of Chili.

This Coast lieth North and South, and is in length about a hundred leagues; and it is not in breadth aboue fine and twentie leagues at the most, there runne from the great Mountaines into the Sea great store of Rivers, which maketh many Valleyes, and is the fruitfulless land in the World, for that it bath bread, wine, and other victuals great flore. These Rivers bee very richof

Gold, and for to shew you in few words all that this Province hath : I say, that this land lack-How chi'l was eth nothing, but might be called Paradife, but for that it lacketh only one thing, and that is first discovered peace. This land was first discovered in this order, after the Spaniards had conquered the Kins. dome of Peru, as hereafter I will fhew vnto you, they found in this Kingdome of Peru great a flore of Gold, and asking the Indians from whence it came, they answered from Chils, wherefore Don Diego de Almagro, which was one of the Captaines that conquered Peru, went vpon this newes toward Chils with three hundred Horsemen. Now he must go round about the Mountains of Snow, which way the Indians that were his guides, did carrie this Captaine, because they should die all of cold. Yet the Spaniards, although they lost some of their Horses, came to the first Inhabitance of Chile, called Copiago: which is the first plain land in the entring of the Prouince but from hence he returned backe againe for Peru, because he had newes that the Indians had rifensgainst the Spaniards, & enclosed them sopon which newes he returned without going any farther into the Countrey, Now this Captayne Don Diego de Almagro, beeing flaine in the Warresof Peru, after his death, another Captayne called Don Pedro de Baldinia, with foure hundred Horsemen went vnto Chili, and with small labour he ouercame halfe the Country, which were

Pedro de Valsubject to the Kings of Pern, for they of Chili, knowing that Pern was overcome by the Spaniards, they straight way yeelded the Land vnto the Spaniards, but the other halfe which was the richest, and the fruitfullest part, so had God made the men the valiants and most furious that shall be found among all the Sawage people in the whole Land:

El Estado de The Province which they inhabit, called El Estado de Aranco, is but a small Province about twentie leagues in length, and is gouerned by ten principall men of the Countrey, out of which ten they choose the valiantest man for their Generall in the Warres. The Kings of Pers in times past could never conquer this part of Chile, nor yet any other Kings of the Indians. The weapons vsed by these people of Araneo are long Pikes, Halberds, Bowes and Arrowes: they also make of them lacks of Seale-skinnes , and Head-pieces : in times past the heads of their Halberds and Pikes were of Braffe, but now they have gotten store of Iron. They pitch their battels in manner like the Christians : for putting their Pikemen in rankes, they place Bowmen among them, and marshall their troupes with discretion and great valour. Now the Spaniards comming vnto this Prouince, fent word vnto them by other Indians, faying, that they were the children of God, and came to teach them the Word of God, and that therefore they ought to yeeld themselves vnto them; if not, they would shoot fireamong them and burne them. Thefe people not feating the great words of the Spaniards, but defiring to fee that which they had heard reported, met them in the field, and fought a most cruell battell : but by reason of the Spaniards great Ordnance and Calculers, they were in the end put to flight. Now these Indians thinking verily that the Spa- 70 wiards were the children of God, because of their great Ordnance which made such a noise, and breathed out such flames of fire, yeelded themselves vnto them. So the Spaniards having divided this Province, made the Indians to ferue their turnes, for getting of Gold out of the Mynes, which they enjoyed in fuch abundance, that he which had least had twentie thousand Pezos, but

Captaine Baldinia himfelfe had three hundred thousand Pezos by the yeere. The same of these riches in the end was fored as farre as Spaine; from whence foone after reforted many Spaniards Villanueua de to the land of Chile, whom Captaine Baldinia caused to inhabit fixe Townes: to wit, Villanueus de la Serena, called in the Indian Tongue Coquembo; the second Sant lago, which the Indian call Mapocha; the third, La Conception, called by the Indians Penco; the fourth , La Imperial; the fift, Imperial, Baldis Baldissa; and the fixt, La Villa Rica. Also he built a Fort in the middle of all the land, wherein 60

he put Ordnance and Souldiers : howbeit all this their good fuccesse continued not long : for the Indians in fort time perceiung that the Spaniards were but mortall men as well as they, determined to rebell against them : wherefore the first thing that they did, they carried graffe into the faid Fortfor the Spaniards Horfes, and wood also for them to burne, among which grand the InCHAP.II. Spaniards discomsited by a stratagem. Arauco. Atacama.

dians conveyed Bowes and Arrowes, with great Clubs. This done, fiftie of the Indians entred the Fort betooke themselves to their Bowes, Arrows and Clubs, and stood in the gate of the fast the rolling a figure vinto other of their Nation for helpe, they wanne the Fort, chili, against and flue all the Spannards. The newes of this overthrow comming to the Towne of Conception, the Spannards. where Captaine Baldinia was, he presently set forth with two hundred Horsemen, to seeke the Indians: taking no more men with him, because hee was in haste. And in a Plaine hee met the Indians; who comming of purpole alto to feeke him, and compassing him about, slue most part of his companie, the rest escaping by the swittnesse of their Hories: but Baldana having his Horie flaine voder him was taken alue. Whom the Indians wished to be of good courage, and to feare 10 nothing; for the cause (siid they) why wee haue taken you, is to give you Gold enough. And having made a great banquet for him, the last service of all was a Cup full of melted Gold, which The death of the Indians forced him to drinke, saying, Now glus thy felfe with Gold: and so they killed him. This Ba'dinia. Baldinia was a most valiant man, who had beene an old Souldier in the Warres of Italie, and at the facking of Rome.

Voon this discomfiture the Spaniards chose for their Captaine, one Pedro de Villa grande; Pedro de Villa who affembling all the Spaniards in Chila, and taking with him ten pieces of Ordnance, marched grands. against those Indians; but with so bad successe, that hee lost not onely the field, and many of his men, but also those ten Peeces of Ordnance which he brought. The Indians having thus gotten the victorie, went itraightway against the Towne of Conception, from whence the Spaniards 20 fled for feare, and leit the Towne delolate. And in this manner were the Spaniards chaled by the Indians out of the Countrie of Arance. But newes hereof being brought to the Marquelle of Cannete, Vice-roy of Pern, he ient his fonce Don Garcia de Mendoza, against those Indians, with a great power of Horsemen, and Footmen, and store of Artilene. This Nobleman having subdued Chili againe, and flaine in divers battels aboue fortie thouland Indians, and brought them the second time under the Spaniards Subicction, newly erected the faid Fort, that stood in the midit of the Land, inhabited the Towne of Conception againe, and built other Townes for the Spaniards: and to leaving the Land in peace, he returned for Pern. But ere he was cleane departed out of the land, the Indians rebelled again, but could not do fo much mischiefe as they did before, because the Spaniards tooke better heed vnto them. From that time vntil this present, there hath beene no peaceat all ; for not withflanding many Captianes and Souldiers have done their vttermoft, yet can they not bring that People wholly in fubicction. And although the Spaniards haue in this Prouince eleuen Townes and two Bishoprikes, yet haue they little enough to main- 11. Towns, and haue in this Prounce eleuen I ownes and two Binoprikes, yet haue they fittle enough to many a Biftoprikes tayne themselves, by reason of the Warres; for they ipend all the Gold that the Land yeeldeth in chik.

in the maintenance of their Souldiers : which would not bee fo, if they had peace; for then they might worke in all their Mines. Thus having spoken somwhat of the situation of Chili, and of the troublesome conquest there. A description of, I will return to my former discourse where I lett, Baldwia therefore being of 150 bours, of the Townes hath twice beene burnt and spoyled by the Indians; so that now it is waxen poore, but before the Badding. Indians facked it, it was very rich : and it standeth vo a River foure leagues from the Sea. Pal- The Province 40 fing from hence you come to the plaine Countrie of Aranco, being fituate over against the Iland o Aranco, over La Mocha, on which Iland the Indians that inhabite belong to the maine Land.

Hauing passed this Plaine of Aranco, the next Towns of the Spaniards that you come vnto, is situate in 38. La Concepcion which hath beene the greatest and the richest Towne in all Chili; but by reason degrees and a that the Indians have burned the same source times, it is now growne very poore, and hath small half flore of people: rt containeth about fome two hundred houses. And because it adiovneth vpon La Concepcion, the Plaine of Aranco, where there valiant Indians bee, therefore this Towne is enuironed about with a ffrong wall, and bath a Fort built hard by it : and here are fine hundred Souldiers contimually in Garrison. Betweene this place and Valparizo, the Indians call the Coast by the name Valearizo, of Mapacha. Sant lago it felfe standing fine and twentie leagues vp into the Countrie, is the Port of S. lage 50 principall Towns of all Chili, and the leat of the Gouernour; it conflicts of about eight hun-finderin 31.

dred houses. The Port of Valparizo whither the goods come from Lima by shipping, hath about d gr. 40 min. twentie houses standing by it. The next Towne neere the Sea fide beyond this is Coquimbo, Coquimbo, the which standeth two leagues up into the Land, and containeth about two hundred houses. Next dethin 29 deg. vnto Coquimbo flandeth a Port-towne, called Copiapo, inhabited altogether by Indians which ferue the Spaniards: and here a Gentleman which is Gouernour of the Towne hath an Ingenio for Sugar : at this place endeth the whole Prouince of Chili. Here also the Mountaines ioving hard vpon the Sea, are the cause why all the Land betweene Capiano and Pers, contayning one hundred and fixtie leagues, lieth defolate.

The first Towns on the Coast of Pern, called Atacama, is inhabited by Indians which are flaues A description 60 vnto the Spaniards. But before I palle any turther I will here also declare vnto you the first Dil of Pera. couerie of Peru, with other matters there o b. longing, and then will I returne to the Sea-coalt againe: and to the end you may understand me the better, I will beginne with Panama. After that the Spaniards had inhabited the North tite of this mayne Land, passing over the Mountains they discouered the South Sea : where because they found Indian people with Gold and Pearles,

1443

Sant lago La sia, LaVilla Rice, :he firft

Calita.

Boldinia.

Coriaso.

they built a Towne eighteene leagues to the West of Nombre de Dios, hard vpon the Sea fide and called it Panama. From hence they discourred along the Coast of Nuena Espanna: and for that Nuena Espanna was at the same time inhabited by Spaniards, there beganne a trade from thence to Panama: but from Panama by Sea to the Coast of Pers they could not trade in a lone time, because of the Southerly windes blowing on this Coast almost all the yeere long, which are a hinderance to ships fayling that way: and by Land the passage was impossible, in regard of Mountaines and Rivers : Yea it was fifteene yeeres before they passed the Illand of Persis. which is but twentie leagues from Panama. There were at this time in Panama two men, the one called Francisco Pizarro, borne in the Citie of Traxillo in Spaine, a valiant man, but withall poore; the other, called Diego de Almagro, was very rich. These men got a companie vinto them, and prouided two Carauels to difcouer the Coast of Perw. and having obtayned licence of the Gouernour of that place, Francisco Pizarro set forth with the two foresaid Caranels, and an hundred men; and Diego de Almagro stayed in Panama, to fend him Victuals and other nocessaries. Now Francisco Pizarro sayling along the Coast, met with contrary windes and raine. which put him to great trouble; and hee began also after a while to lacke victuals, for hee was fayling of that in eight moneths, which they now passe in fifteene dayes, and not knowing the right course, heeranne into every River and Bay that hee saw along the Coast; which was the chiefe cause that he stayed so long on his Voyage: also thirtie of his companie died by reason of the vnhealthfulneffe of the coast. At last he came to an Iland called by him Isla del Gallo, being fituate from the maine Land fixe leagues. From hence he fent one of his ships to Panama, for a 19 new supplie of victuals, and of men : which ship being departed, fortie of his men that remayned behinde made a mutinie, and palled vp into the Countrie, meaning to returne by Land to Panama, but in the way they all perished, for they were neuer heard of vntill this day. So that

Tumbez.

Francisco Picarro was left upon the faid lland onely with thirteene men : who although her had his ship there, in which he might haue returned, yet would hee rather die then goe backe; and his thirteene men also were of his opinion, notwithstanding that they had no other victuals, but fuch as they had from the maine Land in the night feafon. Thus hee continued nine moneths, before any succour was brought him from Panama: but in the end his ship returned with fortie men onely, and victuals: whereupon hee profecuted his Voyage, till hee came to the first plaine Countrie of Pern, called Tumber, where hee found a Fort, made by the King of to Perm, against the Indians of the Mountaines, Wherefore Pizarro, and his men were very glad, in that they had found a People of so good understanding and discretion, being rich also in Gold and Siluer, and well apparelled. At this Port of Tumbez, hee tooke thirtie thousand Pezos of Gold in trucke of Merchandise, and having two few men to proceed any further, he carried two Indians with him, to learne the Language, and returned backe for Panama. Vpon this Discourrie, Francisco Pizarro thought it expedient to travell into Spaine, to crave of the King the Conquest of this Land. Whither being come, the King granted his request. And with the money which he carried ouer with him, he hired a great number of men, with a Fleet of shippes, and brought alfo along with him foure of his Brethren, very valiant and hardy men. And being come to Panama, he straightway went on his Voyage for Peru, being accompanied with his Partner, φ Diego de Almagro. They fayled first to the Hand, called Isla de Gallo ; where Francisco Pizare, and his Brethren went on Land, and left Diego de Almagro in the ships. And the whole number which afterward landed on the mayne Land were lixtie Horsemen, and one hundred and twentie Footmen, with two great Field-peeces. But before we proceed any further, wee thinke it not amiffe to describe vnto you the situation

Spaniards of a River fo named by the Indians, where they first came to the fight of Gold, From which River standing under the Line, till you come to Copiago, the first Towne on the Coast of Chile, thretcheth the Land of Perw, for the space of eight hundred leagues : vpon fixe hundred whereof, from Atacama to Tumbez, did neuer drop of raine fall, fince the Floud of Neab; and 50 yet is it the fruitfullest Land for all kinde of victoals, and other necessaries for the sustentation of The cause why mans life, that is to bee found in all the world besides. The reason why it raineth not in this Land, is because it being a plaine Countrie, and very narrow, and lowe, situate betweene the Equinoctiall and the Tropike of Capricorne, there runneth on the Well frontier, not about twenty leagues from the Sea called Mar del Sur, Eastward thereof, a mightie ridge of high Mountaines couered with Inowe; the heigth of which Mountaines fo draweth the moiltare of the cloudes vnto it felf, that no raine talleth vpon the Vallies of Pers. From these Mountains inue great store of Rivers into the South Sea, with the waters whereof drawn by certaine fluces and chanels, they moutten their Vineyards and Corne-fields, and by this meanes the Land is so exceeding fruitfull Betweene thele Mountaines and the Mountaines of Chil, that firetch vnto the Straites of Ma- 60 gellin, Letha Plane of fixtie leagues ouer, being fo cold, that it yeeldeth no Wheat, but good Hore of other vict als. This Countrie of Peru is full of people well apparelled, and of civil behauseur. Is bath many mines of God, and more of Siluer, as also great store of Copper, and Tinne-mines, with abundance of Saltpeter, and of Brimftone to make Gun-powder. There are of Pers, and the naturall disposition of the Inhabitants: This Countrie was called Pers, by the

of all others, for the vie of man: howbeit the Spaniards fince their first comming have replenifhed this Countrie with Horses, Kine, Sheep and Goars, and likewise with plenty of Wheat. So that in few words, this Land hath abundance of riches and victuals, and is the healthfulleft place in the world. There were in times past Kings of this Land which were mighty Monarchs, whose Dominions stretched twelue hundred leagues, and their Lawes were very civill, faue that they were worshippers of the Sunne. At what time the Spaniards first entred this Land, there to were two Brethren of the bloud Royall, which strong who should have the Kingdome, the one called Mango Inga, and the other, Atabalipa. Now Mango had possession of all the Mountaines Atabalipa and and the Land within them: and Atabalipa was Lord of all the Sea-coast, and of the Vallies in the sailed tuate between the faid Mountaines and the Sea. The Indians feeing the Spaniards at the first arrive Galbar, in woon their shoare, called them Vira coche, which in their Language fignifieth, The fome of the Sea. Arise. Alfo Atabalipa the Indian Prince fent vnto them to know what they did in his Land, and what they fought for; the Spaniards made answer, that they were the messengers of a great Lord, and that they came to speake with the Prince himselfe : who fent them word, that they should come with a very good-will; and fo Atabahpa flayed for them at a Citie called Caxamalca, being thirtie leagues diffant from the Sea fide. Whither being come, they found the Indian Prince fit. 20 ting in a Chariot of Gold, carried upon mens shoulders, and accompanied with aboue sixtie thousand Indians all ready armed for the warres. Then the Spaniards told them that they were fent from an Emperour (vnto whom the Pope had given all that Land) to convert them vnto the Christian Faith. Whereunto Acabalina answered, that he would gladly be friends with the Emperour, because he was so great a Monarch, but in no case with the Pope, because he gaue to likewise Cartell of all forts, among which there is a beast, in shape somewhat resembling a Ca-another that which was none of his owne. Now while they were thus in talke, the Spaniards discharging their two Field-peeces, and their Caliners, fee voon the Indians, crying, Sant lago. The Indians hearing the noise of the Ordnance, and small thot, and seeing the fire, thought that flames of fire had beene come downer from Heaven vpon them; whereupon they fled, and left their Prince as a bootie for the Spa-

30 mards. Whom they at the first intreated very gently, wishing him not to feare, for that their comming was onely to feeke for Gold and Silver. During the time of Atabalipas imprisonment, his Captaines had flaineshis Brother Mange, and had fubdued all the Mountaines, and plaine Countries. Vpon which newes Atabatipa told the Spaniards, that if they would refeafe him, hee would give them all that they should demand. This communication having continued a whole day, at length a Souldier named Soto faid vnto Atabalipa; what wilt thou give vs to fet thee free? The Prince answered, I will give whatforeer you will demand. Whereto the Souldier replied, Thou shalt give vs this house full of Gold and Silver, thus high, lifting vp his sword. and making a stroke voon the wall. And Acabalips faid, that if they would grant him respite to fend into his Kingdome, he would fulfill their demand. Whereat the Spaniards much marvel-

40 ling, gaue him three moneths time, but hee had filled the house in two moneths and an halfe : a matter scarce credible, yet most true: for I knowe about twentie men that were there at that time, who all affirme, that it was aboue ten millions of Gold and Silver. Howbeit, for all this, they let not the Prince goe, but thought that in killing of him they should become Lords of the whole Land, and fo the Spaniards on a night ftrangled him. But God the righteous Iudge feeing this villanous act, fuffered none of those Speniards to die by the course of nature, but brought them to cuill and thamefull ends.

Vpon the newes of these great riches, there came store of people out of Spaine, and inhabited many places in this Countrie. The King in recompense of the good feruices of the two forefaid partners, appointed Diego de Almagro Gouernour of halfe the Land, and Francisco Pizarro of the other halte, whom also he made a Marquesse. But these two consorts in parting of a Land

50 belonging vinto other men, fell at variance and sharpe warre betweene themselues: and at length Pixarro having flaine Almagro, got all the Land into his owne hands. Howbeit, this profession tie of Pizarro continued not long : for a baltard-sonne of Diego de Almagro, to bee reuenged of his fathers death, flue Prarre, for which act he lost his head. In this controversie betweene these two partners were flaine, also two brothers of Pizarro, and the third was carried priloner into Spaine, and there died in Prison : but the fourth, called Gonfalno Pizarro, rebelled with the whole Countrie, and became a cruell Tyrant, vanquishing many of the Emperours Captaines in battell, and possessing the Countrie in peace for two yeeres; howbeit, being in the end ouercome, hee loft his head like a Traitour. And thus died they all an euill death, that were causes of the 60 death of that innocent King Atabalipa. And yet there are mutinies raifed oftentimes by the Spaniards, but the Indians never rebelled, after they had once peace granted vinto them. The Indian people of this Land, are parted among the Spaniards, some being flaues vnto the Gentlemen that conquered their Land, other fome to others, and the refidue to the King : and thefe Indian; pay each man for his tribute feuen Pezos of fine Gold, which is about ten Ducats and an halfe, There mell but no bigger then a Steere of a yeere old; they ferue to carrie burdens, their flesh being Peru, called good to eate, and their wooll apt for many purpoles. This beaft is accounted the most profitable Llamas.

The Pronince of Tucuman. Cordona.

Acari.

Al Calao.

Lima

Same.

Paita.

Nine Bifton- are in this Countrie aboue fortie Cities and Townes inhabited by the Spaniards: also they have ricks, and one here erected nine Bishopricks and one Archbishopricke. Now after this Countrie was fully conquered and brought in good order, certaine Spaniard.

being defirous to difcouer the land on the other fide of the Inowie Mountaines, found a very wholefome Countrie, and there inhabited. The faid Province fituate behinde the Mountaines is called The Province of Tucuman, wherein are five townes inhabited by the Spaniards, the last of them called Cordona, from which towns vnto Santa Fee lituate vpon the River of Plate it is feuentie leagues. This towne of Santa Fee was built in that place, to feeke a way to Peru by the River of Plate. And from hence downe the faid River to Buenos Agres are 120.leagues, and from Buenos Ayres vinto Seal-sfland you have 40.leagues. Now having out down all that I know concerning the Countrie of Perm, and of the way from the River of Plate vinto Tucuman, I will returne vinto Atacama the Southermost town voon the coast of Pern, where I left. From this towne of Acacama till you come to Arica, all the coast is inhabited by Indians tubiect vnto the Spaniards. But fince Captain Drake was here, they have built Towers by the Seatide, whereon, seeing any faile that they doe miftruft, they prefently make Smoakes, and so from Tower to Tower they warne all the Country. Hauing before spoken of Camana. Arica all that I can I will now proceede to the next Port called Camana being a Towne of Spemiards, and containing about two hundred houses. Here they make store of Wine, and hauez-bundance of Figges and Reifins. The next Towne called Acars containeth about three hundred houses, and here is made the best and greatest store of Wine in all Pers. From hence passing along 29 the coast you come to El Calao the Port of Lima confisting of about two hundred houses; and here was a frong Fort built fince Captaine Drake was voon the coaft. The Citie of Line flanding two leagues within the land, and containing two thousand houses, is very rich, and of more trade then all the Cities of Pers befides, and this Citie is the feate of the Viceroy, the Archbifton and the Inquitition.

Next vnto this Handeth a small towns of the Spaniards by the Sea fide called Santa and next vnto Santa is another imall towne of Christians called Cannete. From hence they faile vnto a rich Connete Citie called Truxillo, being one of the principall townes of Permand containing about five hun-Truxille. dred houses. Then followeth Pana which hath to the number of two hundred houses. Leaung this towne they passe to Gnaisquil which standeth fortie leagues up into a great Bay or Riner, 10 Gusiaquil at the entrance of which River standeth Tumbez, a towne of the Indians, All this coast along Tumbez. from Atacama to Tumbez it never raineth, as I have before faid : fo that all the houses in their townes are not tyled, but covered with boards to keepe off the heate of the Sunne, for they feare Salfaperilla. noraine at all, Guaiaquil is the first place where it raineth, and here they gather Salfaperila. Here Ships built at is also great store of timber, and at this place they build many Ships. Hence they taile along the Guaraquil. coast to a small and poore towne called Puerto Viero, which in times past hath beene rich with Purte Vieis 2 Emralds : but now fince the leftones in regard of their plenty are growne nothing worth, this place where towne likewise is waxen very poore. Below this Village francet hanother called La Buend Emralds a-Venture : but whofoeuer goe thither must needes meete with enall fortune, the place it felte is La Buchaven so waterish and vinholesome. Here abide not aboue twentie men, who serue onely to transport 40 goods into a Citie standing fiftie leagues within the maine, in a Prouince called La governacion La governacion de Popaian. From Buena ventura and Popaian till you come to Panama there is no other towne, by de Posaian. region of the high Mountaines, the manifold Rivers, and the viholetomenetle of the Countrie, in Negros fled fro this place doe inhabit the Negros that run from their Maiters, and voon these Mountaines was their Mafters. Oxenham the English Captaine and his men taken as is before mentioned. Beyond their Mountains standeth the Citie of Panama, being a rich place, by reason that all the treature which commeth from Perm is brought thither, and it consisteth of about foure hundred houses. The coast running along betweene this Citie and Nucua Espanna is called Cofta rica. Next vnto Costa rica, which is a Mountainous and detolate place, lieth the coast of Nicaragua, being inhabited by the Spaniards, and having many good ports belonging to it and is frequenced with trade of Merchandize; but having no knowledge of the fituation thereof, nor of the towns therein contained, I furceafe to speake any more of it.

A certaine Viceroy of Nuena Espanna called Don Luis de Velasco caused certaine Ships to be The discovery built for the discovery of the Malucos and of the coast of China: which Ships in failing : hitherof the Philipp- ward from certaine Illands, eightie leagues diffant from the maine land, which the Spaniards, according to the name of their King, called The Philippinas : and having conquered one of their lands called Manilla, inhabited with a barbarous kinde of people, they built a fort and a towne thereupon, from whence they have trade with the people of China. Vnto their Illands they have four great Ships that vitually trade, two of them continually going, and two comming: so that fuch Spices and Silkes as the Portugals bring home out of the Est Indies, the very same doe the Spaniards bring from these Islands and from China, for Mexico the chiefe Citie of Nuena Espanna. The principall Port townes of the coast of Nuena Espanna are Guatules, and Acapulco.

All the Viceroyes and Gouernours that the King of Spaine fendeth for Pers and Nuena Ef-

CHAP.II. Iles of Salomon discouered, their bounds pudiscouered. Great storme. 1447

panna haue a custome, for the obtaining of his favour, to feeke and discouer new Countries. But the greatest and most notable discovery that hath beene from those parts now of late, was that of the Isles of Salomon, which were found in manner following. The Licenciate Castro being The discourse governour of Perm, fent forth a Fleete of Ships to discover certaine Islands in the South Sea, vpon of the Isles of the coalt of Pern, appointing as Generall of the fame Pleetea kiniman of his, called Aluares de Salomen, Mendanio, and Pedro Sarmiento as Lieutenant, and in the Viceadmirall went Pedro de Ortega. This Fleete departing forth of the hauen of Lima, and failing 800, leagues Westward off the coast of Pern, found certaine Islands in eleven degrees to the South of the Equino Ctiall, inhabited with a kinde of people of a yellowish complexion, and all naked, whose weapons are Bowes and Ar-10 rowes, and Darts. The Beafts that they faw here were Hogs and little Dogs, and they found some

Hens. Here also they found a muster of Cloues, Ginger, and Sinamon, although the Sinamon Cloues. Ginwere not of the best; and here appeared vnto them likewise some shew of Gold. The first Island ger and Sinzthat the Spaniards disconered, they named Santa Izabella; and here they built a small Pinnace. mon. with the which, and with their Ships Boate they found out betweene nine and fifteene degrees of Southerly latitude, rleuen great Illands, being one with another of eightie leagues in compasse. The greatest Island that they discourred was according vnto the first finder, called Guadalcanal, The Isle of on the coast whereof they failed 150. leagues, before they could know whether it were an Island Guadalcanal. or part of the maine land : and yet they know not perfectly what to make of it, but thinke that it may be part of that continent which stretcheth to the Streights of Magellan ; for they coasted 20 it to eighteene degrees, and could not finde the end thereof. The Gold that they found was voon this Island, or maine land of Guadalcanal, whereas they landed and tooke a towne, finding small graines of Gold hanged up in the houses thereof. But because the Spaniards understood not the language of the Countrey, and also for that the Indians were very flout men, and fought continually against them, they could neuer learne from whence that Gold came, nor yet what store was

These Indians vie to goe to Sea in great Canoas, that will carrie one hundred men a piece, wherein they have many conflicts one against another : howbeit unto the Christians they could doe no great hurt; for that with a small Pinnace and two Falcons a few may ouercome one hundred of them. At this place foureteene men mistrusting nothing, rowed to land, to take in fresh 30 water whom on the fodaine certaine Indians in foure Canoas fet vpon, tooke the Ships Boate, and flew all the men therein; wherefore a man cannot goe on flore too flrong, nor yet be too warie in a strange land. Hereupon the Spaniards went on shore in their Pinnace, and burnt the Towne, and in this towne they found the small graines of Gold before mentioned. They were discovering of these Islands from one to another about foureteene moneths, at the end of which time (because that your the coast where they were, the winde continuing still in one place, might be an occasion of longer tarrying) they consulted which way to returne. Southward they durit not goe for feare of great tempelts which are that way vivall : wherefore fayling to the North of the line, they fell with the coaft of Nuena Espanna; on which coaft they met with such terrible stormes, that they were forced to cut their mains maits ouer-boord, and to lye nine moneths beating it vp and downe in the Sea before they could get into any harbour of the Christians. In which time, by reason of euill government, and for lacke of victuals and fresh water, most of the men in their Admirall dyed; for five whole dayes together they had neither water Abundance of nor meate : but in the other Ships they behaued themselves so well, that the greater part of good vietuals them came fafe vnto the land. He that paffeth the Straits of Magellan: or faileth from the coast vpon the isles of Chili directly for the Malucos, must needes runne in fight of some of these Islands before spoken of. At which Illands lying to conveniently in the way to the Malacos, you may furnify your Anewrich felfe with plenty of victuals, as Hogs, Hennes, excellent Almonds, Potatos, Sugar-canes, with trade for Gold divers other forts fit for the fustenance of man in great abundance. Also among these Islands you shall have some quantity of Gold, which the Indians will give you in trucke for other commodi-50 ties. For the Spaniards in their discovery of these Islands, not seeking nor being desirous of Gold, brought home notwithstanding 40000, pezos with them, besides great store of Cloues and Ginger, and some Smamon also, which is not so good as in other places. The discouerer of these Iflands named them the Illes of Salomon, to the end that the Spaniards Supposing them to be those of Salomon, Isles from whence Salomon fetched Gold to adorne the Temple at lernfalem, might be the more defirous to goe and inhabit the fame. Now the fame time when they thought to have fent colonies vnto these Islands, Captaine Drake entered the South Sea; whereupon commandement was given, that they should not be inhabited, to the end that such Englishmen, and of other Nations as passed the Straits of Magellan to goe to the Maluces, might have no succour there, but such so as they got of the Indian people.

A Town burns

Panama. Ofta rico.

bound.

THEA.

of Nicarasua.

The Iffaref

CHAP. XII.

Briefe extracts translated out of IEROM BENZOS, three Bookes of the New World, touching the Spaniards cruell handling of the Indians, and the effects thereof.

He ferued $4. year es in the Span (b. Indian expeditions. C.3. C.3+

Nno 1641. Ierom Benzo went from Millaine to Smill in Spaine, and thence to the New World, where he was entertained of the Spaniards, and practifed with them the huntings of the Indians; which they did by lurking in couerts, till fome of the Natiues came within their reach; by bribing the Cacikes with trifles to procure captines, and other meanes. Peter Chalice came while we were thereto Amaracan with about 4000. flaves, and had brought many more, but with labour, wearineffe, hunger, and griefe, for lofe of their Countrie and friends, many had perifhed in the way. Many also not able to follow in the Spaniards swift march, were by them killed to preuent their taking armes. A milerable spectacle to see those troopes of slaves naked, with their bodies rent, maimed, flarued: the mothers dragging or carrying on their shoulders their Indians spoiled, chil iren howling, the neckes of all, armes and hands chained; not any growne Maide amonest them which the spoilers had not rausshed, with so profuse lust that thence grew contagion and pernicious difeafes. The Sp milb horfemen in those warres vied quilted lackes with Launces and Swords; the footemen, Sword, Shield, and Croffe-bow, with lighter lackes. The moisture and great dewes made Pecces vnferuiceable in those parts. The Illanders in Hispaniola leeing no hope of better, or place for worfe, killed their children, and then hanged themiclues. The women by the juice of a certaine hearbe caused abortions, that they might not procreate flaues to the Spaniards; others hanged themselues, as their husbands had done: some threw themselves from the tops of steepe hils, o hers into the Sea and Rivers; fome started themselves, and others with sharpe stones ripped and rent out their entrals: sothat of two millions there found at first, now scartely one hundred and fiftie perions remaine. Is this to convert Sauages to the Christian faith! The fame altogether hath happened in Cuba, Iamaica. Porto Ricco, and other places. Yea whatfoeuer flaues haue beene after carried into the I-3 flands, to preuent their defolation, though in incredible multitudes, have almost all perished with miferie. Once, in whatfoeuer places the Spaniards have displaied their colours, by their examples of crueltie they have left to the Natives eternall monuments of implaca-

L.3.C.1. Negro: lucs

Law of Bayon diuclish de-

After the native Islanders were killed with too much labour, the Spaniards procured slaves from Guinnee in great multitudes, and vied their feruices in the Mines; which being exhault, they employed them in Sugar-mils, and in breeding of Cattell. Some of the Spaniards are to cruell, that it a flaue hath not brought his diarie or day-foot, or otherwise hath angred his imperious Mafter, he strips him naked to cloath him with stripes (according to the Law of Bain, as they call it, denifed I thinke by some cruell Dinell) his hands and feete bound, and the prostrate sp flaue tied to some crosse timber, with a rod or roape he is beaten till the bloud issue from all parts: after which the Mafter droppeth fealding Pitch or Oyle over all that wretched corpes, and then washed with Pepper of the Countrie and Salt mingled with water, he lies on a boord in a sheete or blanket till his Mafter thinkeshim fit for labour. Others make a hole in the ground and thee fet him, his head onely excepted, all night long, which these Phistitians doe to cleanse and cute the vicers of corrupt bloud. If any dye in these torments, his Maiter hath no other punishment but to pay the King another for him. These cruelties caused the Negroes to flie and wander to boat, till gathering head together they grew dreadfull to the Spanife Ilanders, whom they (when they got any into their hands) repaied with like cruelties. While, I was in that Hand, their ar-Armie of 7000 mie was faid to containe 7000, men, infomuch that the Spaniards feared to be driven out by 50 thele Moores and Negros. And when as An. 1545, the Prelident Cerate viged Cefars Edict for the Indians liberie, the Iland was almost brought to a difert, not about 1100. Spaniards remaining therein ! which (the ftrangers increasing) were in danger to Loofe at once their his with the Hand. And the wonted meanes of getting wealth failing therein, few Spaniards are willing to flay there.

Oxenbans ftc-

c. 11.

Indians,

Numbre de Dios, in regard of the heate and moilture immoderate, is vnholefime, as also forthe See Drakes and Weiterne Marish or Fenne, whence are frequent funerals of the inhabitants. Not farre from it to the East, some fugitive Negros keepe in the woods, which have thine many Spariards, and have entred into league with the Indians, hooting likewife poiloned Arrowes, and killing all the Spaniards which they can get. Gotierez a Spanish Captaine going up the River of Suera, feathed 60 the Caethes of Suera and Chiuppa, and faid that he came thither to reduce them from their Idolatry and the Direls tyrannie, and to thew them the truth; namely, that Isfus Clerift the Some of God came from heaven to redeeme mankinde: and that he had brought a Price with lim. for no other purpose but to instruct them in Christianitie. It herefore (land he) errors your titues to the beneat the Dinine Law, and to acknowledge the fourraigntie of Chatles the fifth, Cafar, King of Spaine, and Monarch of the whole world. The Indians antiwered nothing, and returned home. The next day the Gouetnour fent for two other Caciques by a Spaniard, which truffing on his promife, came, and were bound in his Chamber with hard viage. They had before given him 700. Duckets ; now he picked a quarrell with them, and extorted from one 2000. Duckets, wrought in the formes of fieres, Fishes, Birds, and other creatures : which the Gouernour seeing smaller then his expectation, caused a great fire to be kindled, and a cheft to be brought forth, threatning to burne him, if in foure dayes he did not fill it with Gold fix times; which hee promiting to doe, found meanes to eleane. Other Caciter of the Countrie hearing hereof, burned their houses, cut downer 10 their truite trees and corne, and feating a wildernesse to the Spaniards, fled to the Mountaines. The other Cache yet in durance, having beene often threatned with death except hee brought the Gold demanded, the Gouernour commanded to be cast to the Dogs : hee answered, that bee could not but marnell at the Governours vanitie, which had fo often threatned that which be had rather should be performed, then to line so miferable a life & contrary to his expectation, which had woluntarily come to him upon his promise. Hee added, that he meruailed much what kinde of creatures Christians were, which executed fuch mischiefes where some they same, and that the earth could longer beare and nourith (nch crnell beafts to patiently.

But at last the Governour carried him prisoner in a miserable expedition, where at a turning the Gouernour demanding of a captine Indian, whether way would bring him to some Indian 20 habitation, he answered, he could not tell; whereupon he commanded his Negro slaues to kill him, which was done. Then he demanded of the Cacite, and having like aniwer, gaue like fentence. He presently threw downe his burden, and prepared his head to the fatall stroke, with fuch patience , that the Gouernour remitted it, and gave him his life. Three flarued Spaniards were there left, and after killed by the Indians. The Gouernour commanded the Does to be killed for food, keeping the prouisions left to himselfe. I gave my part to another, because of the Hungry March wormes therein; and went to the Gouernour, hoping to receive fomewhat of him, who fent me to the roots of trees to feed thereon. Then faid another Spaniard; Sir Gonernour, if wee may not have together in good and had fortune, warre you alove. Hereupon hee divided three pounds of Cheele into foure and thirtie parts amongst vs. Two dayes after, the Indians suddenly let on vs. 30 and flue the Gouernour as hee was doing his eafement. I with anothers Helmet escaped that showre of stones, wherewith it was then exceedingly battered; and the rest being staine, with two others fied thorow a troupe of Indians making way to the Hills top, where wee found the Priest, with two others which had escaped by flight in the beginning of the fight, and after that, foure and twentie others joyned themselves to vs. The Indian perfixed vs. armed with our owne weapons, and dauncing about vs, cried in the Spanish tongue, Here is Gold Christian, bere is Gold. Two which had lurked in the Woods till the Indians were gone, told vs, that the Indians had carried away the head, hands and feet of the Gouernour, and of two Negres, the reft being spoyled were throwne into the River. If we had had but foure Horses (these they feare more then all armes) they had neuer adventured on vs. On foot the Spaniards are commonly overthere and times they had recent assertion and the state of the state o That which hath carried the Spaniards into those Prouinces, is onely courtousnesse, whatfoener profession they pretend of Christian Faith. Neither will any of them stay in any place Examples of where Gold is not found. Antonius Sedegnus died with thought after three yeeres travell in couetoufnelle. where Gold is not found. Antenine Sedegma died with thought after three yeares trauet in Sedegma and Paris with feuen hundred men, not finding this golden Sun-finie, fiftie onely of his men returbis 700 men. ning. Soto Spent in Florida, what he had gotten in Pers. He threatned fifteene Cacikes, to burne Sotos acts in them, except they brought him to the place whence they had their Gold. These promised any Florida. thing to preuent present execution, and after twelve dayes wandring were sent away with their hands cut off. When he told a Cacike which vifited him with a Prefent, that he was a Christiana to the fonn of God, Creator of Heaven and Earth; and came thither to teach them the Divine Law: If the God, faid the Cacite, bids thee robbe, kill, burne, and commit all mischiefe, wee can nei- Pam, Hanace, ther beleeve Him, nor bis Law. Soto finding no Mine, died at last of the bloudy Fluxe. The like may be faid of Narnaez, twelue of whose companie fell mad with famine, and fell to biting and tearing each other. Of fixe hundred which hee carried forth, scarcely ten returned, which at Mexico reported that with breathing they had cuted the ficke, and had raifed three dead men to life. But I craue pardon of their holinesse, and shall easier beleeve that they killed four eliving men, then that they raifed halfe a dead one. Cortez fet forth by Velafquez gaue him no accounts at all. Peter Aluarado left by Cortez at Mexico, fell upon the Indians amidft their dances , and flue them. And when Cortex had returned from the defeat of Narnaez, and befirged Mexico, Cortex and Al. 60 the Mexicans gathered all their Gold and Silver, and threw it into the Lake, and by no torments ustate. could bee compelled to confesse where it was; although Cortex tortured the Kings Scribe to death, and put the King also to vaine tortures for that purpose. Some fay that Cortex stran-salled Gonzallus, a man of scuentie yeeres of age, and well skilled in the Spanish Tongue. Hee Indiana conceit one morning, litting neere him, fixed his eyes on my face, faid, Christian, what are Christians? they require Maiz, Honie, Silke, a Garment, an Indian Woman to lie with; they demand Gold and Silver, Christians will not worke; they are Gamsters, Dicers, lend and blasphemous. When they goe to Church to beare Masse, they back bite the absent, and they strike and wound each other. Hee concluded, that Christians were not good. I said, they were the bad, and not the good, which did fuch things : hee replied, Where are those good? for I never yet faw any but bad. I asked, why they fuffered Christians to enter their borders. Hee answered, Honest friend, thus it is : When the same of the cruelty of Christians, which where some they came, filled all with fire, sword and robbers, differof the streets of Columns of the street of t Councell, of all our friends, and generally decreed rather to die then to yeeld our felnes subjects to the Christians. When they badentred our Borders, wee made head against them, but most of ve after lone fight terrified by the Horses, fled. And wee sent two mellengers to destre pardon, and peace; with no other purpese but to game time to re-enforce our firengib. Wee carried them many presents, entertained them with dances, and within three dayes fell on them againe, but with ill successe; we seeke peace agains, and after that by common confent decree rather to die then to ferne the Christians, and to kill him who. Court foull fire from the battell. Tour wee take Armes. But our Wines come weeping to us, and befeech verather to ferne the Christians, then to die Samefully : atherwise, to kill them first, with their children, that they may not after loffe of their bufbands, come into the power of those bearded and cruell man. aren, was suc; may not more my bearts, and wee voluntarily submitted our persons and goods to the 20 greedy Christians. Some yes, prounked by wrongs, rebell; but were punished grienously by the Christians. ans, not frame the very Infants. Others also which were innocent, were made flames; and wee were then possessiber of our wines, nor children, nor any thing else. Many impasient bereof, killed their children , others hanged, and others familhed themselves : till the King of Caltues Proclamation, by

When I first trauelled in Nicaragua, I was entertained by a principall Cacike of those parts,

The Indians, especially the sonnes of their Cacikes which can write and reade, confesse Gods Commandements good; but wonder that wee, of whom they have them, doe not keepe them. and vie thus to lay. Ho fir Christian , God forbids to take bie Name in vaine, and then continually for enery cause, bee it mener so light, swearest and forswearest. God sayth, Thon shalt not beare falle per curry cause, oce is merer per infort, primer but flander, and fleade end. Oed commands to love your go winesse: but you Christians dee nathing but slander, and fleade end. Oed commands to love your go meighbours as your scluer, and to for give one another: You oppresse the parts, are regorous to your Denters, and if there be any poore Christians, you give them nothing, but fend them for reliefe to our boulet. ver, and 5 tours et any poor cultivaries, you goe to be the christians God, for the they are comes bitter, for this they have flabshed ver, and done fo many mifchiefes, for this they are never quiet, but diee, blass being, emfe, quarell, fielde, committ rapes, and too bhass being being are never quiee, bit.
There are Monkes which perpetrate those things openly by day-light, which others would which wee were made free, made an end of those miseries.

Monkes and

bee ashamed to doe by night. And a Franciscan publikly preached, that there was neither Priest, nor Monke, nor Bishop in india, worthis the name of a good man. For they all had given themselves so couetousnesse, and still went to the wealthie Countries, and avoided the poorer. For these words he was apprehended, and carried to Guatimala. I have also heard Priests discour- 40 fing together, that they came out of Spaine into India for gaine, and nothing elfe, A Caffee fonne, when hee was a childe of great towardnesse, proued afterwards very lewd; and being asked the reason, laid, Since I was made a Christian, I have learned to sweare by the name of God, and by the Crosse, and by the words of the holy Gospell, and to biaspheme by the life of God; and I denie him, nor doe I beleene. I have further learned to play with the Die, and never to peake truth. I have alfogot mee a Sword to make frayet, and now want nothing to line like a Christian, but a Conceibut, which timene to frang home forth. I once reproved an Indian, for dicing and blashemie: Wee, faith he, learned these examples of your selves. And the Indians which are so lewd, are such vival. ly as have beene brought up by fome Spaniards which studie nothing elfe. These for the most Span Miracles, part, are the Miracles which the Spaniards have done amongst the Indians.

Many other Indians being demanded whether they bee Christians, answere, they are, because the Bishop hath crossed and blessed them, they have built a Church, set up there our Ladies Image, and gotten a Bell. I asked one whether he were a Christian : What, faid he, would you have me bee a Bishops servant ten or twelve yeeres, and keepe bis Mule? Others asked thereof, fay, that 2 Priest washed their heads soure or fine times, &c. Hee reciteth the Letter of Didacin Lopez de Zunega, and other passages of Spannards vices.

Lib.3. c.1. Triumuirate.

In the third Booke Benzo relateth the Acts of the Spaniards in Pern. Francis Pizarro, Diego Almagro, and Fernard Luques a Prieft, enter into a league of Triumuirate for the Southerne Difcoueries, and therein to share equally, both the care, charge and gaine. They procure ships, and convenient provisions, and with two hundred and twentie Souldiers, Pizarro and Almagra, in 62 the yeere 1526. one a little after the other, fet fayle for Panama. Pizarro hauing fayled three hundred miles, goeth on land, and is repelled by the Indians, himfelfe wounded, and many flaine. Hereupon he returneth to Panama. Almagra went vp a River in another Region, and was kinda ly entertayned, and brought thence three thousand Duckets of Gold, with which in his returne he came neere to the place where Pizarro had received his bad entertainment, and him felfe turne necessity and the series and many of his Souldiers. Being comme to Panama with Second in fight with them loft one of his eyes, and many of his Souldiers. those showes of Gold, they redintegrate their delignes, and with two hundred Souldiers, and Voyage, many Indian flaues fetting layle, landed in another place, where they also were beaten backe to their thips, and many flaine. Thence they went to the Ile Gorgon, a small and defart Hand fixe 1.Gorgon, leagues from the Continent. The Golden hopes would not permit them to give over that which this strength could not enable them to winne, and therefore Almagro is lent to Panama to gen enforce and encreale their numbers. Hee returned with eightie nue Spaniards, and found Pis Third espedianters. zarre, and the rest almost starued. Being refreshed they set layle, and againe landing were reto pelled with the loffe of fome Souldiers, and went to a defart Hand, which they called Cack-Hand, for the thape of the Cape or Promontorie. Almagre againe returneth to Panama for more

Souldiers to bee reuenged on there Indians. Most of the Spaniards cursing their conetouinesse, would have returned with him, but were not permitted, no not to write to their friends; which yet tome clotely did complayning of the Countrie, the leaders and their defignes. Pedro de las Russ was then newly Gouernour at Panama, and hearing hereof prefently fent one to Gocke-Hand, cott Hand, to Pizzero that hee should not detay nearly there against his will, whereupon they all faue fourteene departed. These lived on fish till Almagro came, who also could bring no supply by rea-

At last they agreed to sayle by the shoare, and search if any riches there presented themselves. Fourth expe-20 They fayled hoe hundred miles, and came to Chira, a Prouince of Peru, and there going on shoare dition. tooke forme cattell, and Indians to learne the Spanish Tongue. Then returning to Tambez, when no Spaniard had so much courage, Peter of Candise (a Greeke borne in Candis) adventured to goe Peter of Candis on shoare, which he did, armed with a two-hand Sword. This spectacle of a bearded man was no little wonder to the Natiues. The Gouernour vied him kindly, leading him into the Fortreffe, wherein was a Temple to the Sunne, full of Aupendious riches. At the gate hee found certaine beafts like Lions, and two Tigres, but harmleffe. And when the Gouernour would have given him at his departure certaine pieces of Gold, hee feemed to contemne them vtterly, fo to diffemble the true cause of his comming. Then comming abourd he related what hee had seene: and they with joy returned to Panama.

Hereupon Pizarrois fent to Spaine, by Almagro and Luquez, to obtaine of Cefar the conquest Capa of that Province, for which purpose they borrowed zeco. Duckets. He not withfranding makes the fute in his owne name and accordingly obtayning commission, returned with his brethren Fernandez, Gonzales, John, Pizarri, and Martin de Aleantara, Hence grew a quarrell, his partners efteening him perfidious, till Game compounded the matter twixt him and Almegro (Las. ques being excluded, and therefore afterwards furnamed, The Foole) that Almagre (hould employ his wealth, and therefore participate in the honours, fwearing each to other, and taking the Sacrament thereupon. Thus Picarro went from Pasana with 150. Souldiers, and many Hories, Tith Voyage leauing Almagro thortly to follow. Hee came to Colonchia, thence to the Hand Pana, where hee Pana now was well entertained till rapes and robberies made the Natiues take Armes, which was to their Saint tage 40 greater loffe, the Spanards getting the victorie. Thence Pizarre went to the Continent of Tame bez, fiftie miles dittant, Where the Natives refused his friendship, and sought to oppose him: but he by night entred the Riuer, and being guided by vnpassable wayes made a great slaughter of them, spoyled the Citie, and robbed the Sunnes Temple. Atababba King of Peru, was then at Caffiamalea, who hearing that a ftrange bearded Peo. Caff.

ple had robbed his Subiects, fent to Prearro, threatning him, if he continued thus or there. Pi. Atabe zarro answered, that hee was sent by his Emperour to succour those which defired his friend- Malesaja. thip, nor might he fafely returne to him, except hee had first scene his Royall person, and declared to him things good both for his body and foule. Thus hee trauels thorow Chira, and by the Lords in the way is fued to for friendship, which hated Atabalba. Meeting with a nauigable to River, he layd the foundation of a Colonie there called Saint Michaels, and shared the spoyles saine Mithels. amongst his followers. Atabaliba derided their paucitie, and sends to them, if they loued their lives to be gone. But he proceeded to Caffiamales, and thence fent meffengers to the King (then two miles oif) to fignifie his defire of acquaintance. Fernand Pistere told him, that hee was brother to the Leader who was sent from the Pope and Cefar, to defire his friendship, and therefore defired audience, having some speciall matters to deliver to him, after which hee would bee gone. The King aniwered, hee would first have him depart his confines. The night following they prepared themselves for fight. The next day the King was in Pompe carried on mens shoulders, guarded with five and twentie thousand Indians. Friar Vencent de valle virids a Do- Prier Vincente minican, carrying in the one hand a Crosse, in the other a Breuiarie, went to him, and by an In- embasiage, not

60 terpreter, fignified that hee came to his Excellency by the mandate of the Imperiall Maieflie, in Gods name. and that with the authoritie of the Roman Bishop, Vicar of the heavenly Saviour, which hath given to Cefer the Lands before vakmowne, and now first discovered, that hee might fend this ther learned and godly men, to preach his most holy Name publikely to those Nations, and to "So he calls free them from Diabolicall errours. Having thus faid, he gave to the King, the Law of God ", and his Bremary.

fayth, that he had created albthings of nothing, and beginning with Adam and Ene, tells how Christ had assumed slesh in the wombe of the Virgin, and died on the Crosse, after which he rose againe, and ascended into Heauen. Then auerring the articles of the resume tion and of enerls. Ring life, he sheweth that Christ appointed Peter bis first Vicar for the government of the Church. and that this power succeeded to his successors the Popes, declaring lattly the power and wealth of Cafar the King of Spaine, Monarch of the whole world. Therefore the King should doe as be. same him, if he accepted his friendship, and became his tributarie and vassall; and if lastly hee refected his falle gods and should become a Christian, Which if he would not doe voluntarity, let him know, that be should thereunt o be compelled by force and armes.

The King answered, that not viwillingly hee would accept the friendship of the chiefe Mo- to narch of the world, but for a free King to pay tribute to a man whom hee had neuer feene, fee med scarsely honest or inst. As for the Pope, the must needs appeare to be a foole, and a shameless. man, which was so bountifull in giving that which is none of his owne. Touching Religion. he denied that hee would alter that which hee professed; and if they beleeved in Christ, whom they confessed to have died on the Crosse, they also beleeved in the Sunne which never died. And how (fayth he to the Frier) doe you knowe that the Christians God created all thingsof no. thing, and died on the Croffe. The Frier answered, that hee was taught it by his Booke, and withall reached it to him, which he looking on, faid, it faid nothing to him, and threw it to the ground. The Frier presently tookevp his Booke, and cried amaine to the Spaniards, Gee to Christians, oce to, and make them fmart for fo hainous a deed, the Goffels are derided and throme a. 10 way. Kill thefe Dogs which fo flubbornly despife the Law of God.

Presently Przerro gives the signe, and leades forth his men. The Gunnes amaze the Indiana. asalfo the Horfes, Drummes and Trumpets. Eafily are they hereby, and terrour of their Swords chafed, and Atabalba himtelfe taken by Pizarro, which commanded the footmen: without hurt or flaughter of any Spaniard. Ferdinand his brother, Captaine of the Horfe, made a great flaughter among the Indians, sparing neither age nor fexe, and filling the wayes with Carkaffer. The Priet alfo all the time of the battell animated the Spaniards, admonithing them to vie the thrust rather then the Broke with their Swords, for feare of breaking them.

The next day Pizarro visits his prisoner, and giveth him good words, who grieved with his The next day rezerro vines an principle, and Sold and Silver veffels (fo that they st should not breake them) as should fill up the roome as high as a man could reach. But when halft fo much was not brought in a moneths space, they perswaded Pizarro to kill him. The King excused himselfe by the length of the way, that it could not come in so some. If they would fend to Cufee, they might fee them folues cause to credit him. Sete is fent thicher with two Spemiards, which met Indians all the way laden with treasure. Almagra came to the sharing of Pizare notwithflanding retayned his former purpose to kill him, that so hee might entry the Countrey. Atabaliba defired to bee fent to Cafar, which hee refuied. And none that consented to his death, came to a prosperous end, When Pixarre had told him of the Sentence, hee exclaimed bitterly, and then turning with his denotions to the Sunne, hee expo 40 stulated with Powers for breaking his eath, not onely to restore him to libertie wpon his ranfome, but to depart out of his Countrie: but hee commanded his Negros to execute him, which with a cord faitned to a flicke, and wrung about his necke was toone dispatched. Then marched hee to Cafeo, and was encountrered by Quifquiz, Atabalibu Captaine, whom hee ouerthrew, and entred Cufco by force, and got there more prey then before by Asabaliba. The Souldiers tortured the Inhabitants to confesse their treasures ; yea some killed the Indians in sport, and gaue them to their Dogges to eate. After this hee begannethe Cite of Kings, on the River of Lima, and made Almagro Governour of this new Province. Cafar also gaue him primiledge to bee Marshall of Pern, and to conquer three hundred miles further then Pizarros conquest, for himselte. Hence arose suspicions and icalousies of Pizar- 19 ro to Almagre, and after some quarrels Almagre is sent to Chili by Pizarre, so to ridde his hands honourably of him. New Oathes also pailed. Hee passeth ouer the snowy Hills, where divers both Men and Horles were frozen to death. Picarre receiveth foone after, the ritlect Marqueffe, from Cafar.

Cap.56

Mango Inga, brother of Atabaliba, whom Francis Pizarro in those broyles had crowned, was by Fernandez Pizarro taken and committed to chaines in Cufco: and vpongreat promites by his brother lohn freed: who feeing the Spaniards tooke a courfe of robbery rather then wants rebelled, flue many Spamards at their Mines, and fent a Captaine to Cufco, which tooke it, and flue lobn Pizarro, with some Spaniards. The Spaniards againe recoursed it, and againe lost it Mango belieging it with an hundred thousand Indians, which burnt it, and slue the Spanieds, 53 The Marquelle fent Diego Pizarro, with feuentie Spaniards, against Mango; but not one of them was left to carrie tidings of their deftruction. About the fame time Morgonius had like faccelle with his Spanis Band, going to relieue Cusco. Gongales Tapia wastent with eightie horse, but he and most of his were flame neere Guamanga. Gaeta another Captaine with his fiftie Spani ands ranne the same fortune. The Marquesse sends Godoies with fortie Horse, but he being affavled, and feeing his men flaine, fled, and brought newes to Lima. Then did the Marqueile fend Peter Lerma with fiftie Horfe, and followed himselfe, and slue many of the Indians in battell; two hundred Horles, and foure hundred Spaniards, had beene loft, neither could hee heare of his brethrenany thing. He sent therefore to Cortefe, to Truxille, Nicaragua, Panama, to Alonso Aluarado, who first came to his fuccour with three hundred Spaniards, the most Horsemen. He overthrew Tizoia (Mangos chiefe Commander) with 50000. Indians, and againe in another battell. Means while Almagro (whom the Marqueffe thought to bee dead) returneth out of Chili.

which had not answered his expectations, the fame whereof caused Mange, fearing to be hem-To med in of all fides, to leave Cufer, (delpairing to recover his efface) with twenty thousand Indians, fetling himselfe on the Mountaines over Guamanga. When Gafca the Prefident fent for himafter, promifing him peace, he refuied, as warned by Acabalibas example. Almagro would have entred Cules in his owne right, as Governour, which Fordinand Picture refused till he had leave from the Marqueffe. But he by night entred, and imprisoned both Gonzales and Ferdinale Pizarro. The next day hee was proclaimed Governour, according to the Imperial commission. He hearing of Alwarado, and fearing his comming, fent to him Mellengers which Alwarado itaved but was foone after taken by Almagro in his Tents.

Then doth hee returne to Cuico pompous, swearing to cast out all the Pizarrifts. Aluarado and Gonzales corrupting their keepers get out of prison, and acquaint the Marquelle with thele 20 things, who prouided five hundred men to march against him, but the case was compromitted. Ye; did the Marquesse fer men to murther Almagro by the way as hee should come to the place appointed, which tooke no effect, hee being warned thereof. After this they are reconciled, Onthis going before and after, which foone after were broken, and brake out into open warres, in which Almage was taken, fentenced to death, which no pleading, appeale, interceffion Almage put to could reverfe; but he was first strangled in prison, and then beheaded by Ferdinand Pizarro, who death had before beene his prisoner, His Father is not knowne; hee left a Sonne by an Indian Concubine, bearing his owne name Diego.

The Marquesse sent his Brother Ferdinand to Spaine, with the processe of Almagro, and the Kings hers, In the meane time one Rada a friend of Almagro, with yong Diego ha for confining to against the Marquelle, who contemning their meannesse, was by them saine in his owne house with his halfe brother Martin de Alcientara: Diego Almagio invades the government, and makes all to (Weare to him till Gold had otherwife prouided. Her gotth to Cufes, and there layeth Garcia Alumade, who had the best Sortells, and would have done as much for him.

Gefar hearing of these browles fent the Licentiate Paces di Cafire thither with commission. betwick whom and Diege was fought a bloudy battell, three hundred slaine, on Cafari fide one Vacca de Cafro hundred and fifthe. Dago fleeth to Cufee, but by Rodering Salazar, on whom hee had bestowed cuts off Diego. many benefits, was betrayed to Passa, who cut off his head.

About this time the Decree for the Indian libertie was promulged and Blafen Numer Vela made Vice-roy of Pers, who arriving at Numbre de Dios, A. 1544, there met with many Spa- Vice-roy Vela.

40 mards which had gotten much by the fale of Indian flaves; hee committed to the Officers, and would have conficated their money, as against the late Law; which being done by him in a place out of his iurifdiction, it was upon interceffion restored. Going to Panama hee causeth the Indians to be freed, at Tumbez he meets with a Priest and a servant of Gonzales Pszarro, which had beene in the battell against Almagro, and hanged them both. He executed a Frier allo which had taxed the securitie of Casar Edick, and ill rewarding those which had served him. And whileshe Capata would remit nothing of vemost rigour, he procured the hate of all, which after brake forth into a rebellion. He committed Vacca de Castro into prison, whereupon the Spaniards choic Gonzales Pizzarro their Leader, Gouernor, and Procurator generall of the Person Prouinces. The Vice-roy also put the Kings Factor to death, whose brother the Licenciat Carnaial sware to be avenged of him. The Vice-roy after this was taken and imprisoned, but soone after sentenced to be sent back 50 to Spaine by Aluarez, who at Tumbez freed him. His brother Vela Nunnez leeking to raife forces Cap. 12 for him was taken and executed. Civill wars grew hot, a battel was fought betwint Pizarro and the vnfortunat Vice-roy there taken, whom Carnaial in reuenge of his brothers death canfed to be done to death. Gasca, a man of great subtilty, was sent to appeale those affaires; who made the Indians to cap. 22. beare the carriages of his Armie on their thoulders, chained on a rowe, to present their flight; fome fainting under the weight of their burthens, others with extreme thirft. Those which could not march with the Armie the Spaniards freed by cutting off their heads, to avoide the delay of the chaine: or if they were tied with ropes, they rannethem thorow with their wea-60 pons: of some they cut off the legs, of others the nose, or armes. Gonzales Pizarro the chiefe of the Rebels, overcame Centenns in one battell, but in another was taken by Galca, and executed; and after him his Camp-maiter Carnaial, a cruell man, which would deride his owne Countrimen, when he executed them; bidding them, because they were Gentlemen horsemen. chule, which tree they would hang on. Gafea ordained that the Indians should pay tribute to his acts. * The Cirie:

Ferd, (ent ro in prifon. The Marquelle

Mango Inca

fome fay they held the Castle. Spanift dif-

1454 Spaniards called Viracocha and bated. Peru Language and Letters. L 1 B.V II.

their Lords onely of such things as the Gountrie yeelded. For before, the Spaniards forced them by tortures to bring them Gold: if any not having it fled those torturers into the Woods, the Soundards hunted them out with Dogs, and many to found were tornewith Dogs, others hanged themiclues. Once; the men of Pers conceived to hard an opinion of the Spaniards, and of their era lies, that they not onely denied them to be the former of God, but thought that they were not borne into the world like other men, supposing that so sierce and cruell a creature could not be prescreated of man and woman. They sailed them therefore Viracochie, that is, Sea froth, as if they thence had received originall. Nor can any alter this their opinion fo deeply rooted. but God Almightie; taying, The winder overthrowe trees and houses, fire burnes them, but thefe Viracochie denoure all toings, in attably facting Gold and Silver, which as Jone as they have getten, they to play away at Dice, warre, will one awarber, robbe, blaffberne, wickedly for fine are and device God, never peake strust; and vestbey have poyled of our Counsese and fortunes.

Laitly they curie the Sea, which hath brought to the Land fo fierce and dreadfull an iffue. If Lasked for a Christian, they would not answers, nor looke on mee. But every while could lay. There goeth a Urracochie. They hid their ansient treatures, that the Spaniards should not finde them; laying, that all which they got, in comparison of the chisklen, was but as a graine of Maiz to a dilhfull. Some they buried in the Earth, and some cherk theew into the Sea. &c. Some city outled in the series and the series are series and the series and the series are series and

Observations of things most remarkable, collected out of the first part of the Commentaries Royall, written by the Inca GARCILASSO DE LA VEGA, Naturall of Cozco, in nine Bookes, Of the Original, Lines, Conquests, Lawes and Idolatries of the Incas, or Ancient Kings of Peruhand and and the

His Authors of the blend of the Incree or as about call thous Ingas, Emperent of Fig. Grouper (9, 100 tenns of 100 february 10 febr Paruan occurrente, Of he Floridan Hilleria wee have analy bonrowed a few motes, bringing on an Stage a Portugall, spenningle of that leaves, is an income parties, our near Ait or Booker, our of the uther I purposed uper citier above, that them might have a Perusa, fleake of Pour. but the Worke growing fo great, and wee having out of Acottagend for many other spreferred formuch before, fearing to clay the Reader with fulnelle fimbich map, if not bere fatte fiel, goo to the Anthour) have principally collected fuch things, as estimated for had necessitive for fully enformation received and decement their Readers, whom this a surface sorrelisticates of better missingence. Before, the bee fernes to bold counterpose, so drawing things from their original, with our Mcxican Pitture-

Tongue. Three pronunciations.

Monie.

L.8.c. Z.

Ex Descritions. THe Language generall of Pers, both three manner of pronunciations of fome tylladles much Octobe 18/16 different from the Spanish, in which variety of pronunciation lieth the different figures. tions of the same word. One way in the lips, another in the palate, and the third in the throat. The accent is almost alway in the last tyllable but one; sildome so the tyllable before that, and never in the last of all, as some ignorant of the Tongue have affirmed. That Language of Cuzco b.4, f.g i. x. L. doth allowant thefe letters following, b, d, f. g, i contonant, the fingle I (they wie the double if as on the other fide they pronounce not the double rr, in the beginning or midst of a word, 32 but alway fingle) and a : fo that of the Spanish Alphabet they want eight letters, accounting the fingle I, and double rr. Hence they hardly pronounce Spanish words in which their letters are. Neither is there any plurall number, but certaine particles which fignifie pluralitie, otherwife the fingular ferues for both numbers.

In my time about 1560, and twentie yeeres after, in my Countrie there was no money coyned, but they reckoned by weight, the marke, or owner; as in Spaine they reckon by Duckets, fo in Pera by Pezos or Cattellans, euery Pezo of Silver being foure hundred and fiftie Marauedies, and reduced to Spanish Duckets, enery fine Pezos are fixe Duckets.

The first Brook A Not 1484. Alonfo Sanchez of Huelua, in the Countie of Nuclia, traded in a small ship from 60 of the fifthpart. A Spaine to the Canaries, and thence to Madera. In this his triangular trade, hee was one day taken with a tempelt, which carried him twentie and eight or nine dayes hee knew not whence nor whither, and then the tempest ending, hee arrived at an He (which fome thinke to bee Hi-(Baniola) where he went on land, and tooke the height. Hee wrote all occurrents, and after 2

CHAP.13. First voiage to America and Peru. Names and traditions of Peru. 1455 tedious voyage arrived at Tercera, but five of seventeene being lett, which all died there (ipent This Spanishrewith their ill passage) at Christopher Colon or Columbia his house, which gave him that heart and port some of courage to the difcourry of the New World.

ourige to the discours, and 1513, discoursed the South Sea, & was thereof made Adelantado, there deny see and the conquest of those Regions granted him by the Catholike Kings. He made three or four [up.ca.1.6.4. Ships for discourty, one of which passed the line to the South, failing along the coast; and seeing To. 1,2,1 have an Indian Fisherman at the mouth of a River, foure of the Spaniards went ashore faire from the here guennis place where he was, being good runners and fwimmers to take him.

The Indian margading what kinde of creature the Ship under faile might be, was taken in the the particulars to mids of his mule and carried a shipboord. They asked him by signes and words (being somewhat are so full and refreshed after that dreadfull furprize and bearded fight) what Countrie that was, and how cal- plaine in this refreihed after that dreadfull Jurprize and bearded ngnt) what Countrie that was, and now can author where-led. The Indian not violeritinding what they demanded, answered and told them his proper as Geman Suita name, faying Beru, and added another word, faying Pelu: as if he should have faid, if yee aske neither in the me what I am, my name is Bern, and if you aske me whence, I was in the River, Peln being the man, nor time. common name of a River in that language. The Christians conceived that hee had vinderstood hor place, &co common name of a River in that language. The Christians conceived that nee that vincettood is agreed on: them, and answered to the purpose; and from that time Anno 1515, or 1516, they called by fee Gim 22. the name of Peru that great and rich Empire, corrupting both names, as they vie in Indian words. 613. Some later authors call it Piru. After the discouery of the Incas Kingdome the name still conti- Name of Peru nued, howfoeuer the Natines to this day (feuentie two yeares fince the conqueit) will not take whence and 20 it in their mouthes, although they speake with Spaniards and understand them; neither have how, they one generall name for all those Provinces, as Spine, Italy, France with vs. but call each by its proper name; and the whole Kingdome they called Tanantinfism, that is to lay, the fourth may below part of the World. That River alto where they tooke the Indian, was after by the Spaniards called read or china.a Pern. Tucatan received the name from like accident, the first discourrers asking the place, the In- name no: ther dian answering telletan, telletan, that is, I understand you not, which they vinderstood of the pro- knowne, &c. per appellation, and corruptly called the place Tucatan.

From Panama to the Civie of Kings, the failing is very troublesome, by reason of Southerne windes which alway runne on that coast, as also of many currents: these forced the Shippes in Sir F. Dr. ete that youage to make large boords of fortie or fiftie leagues into the Sea, and then againe to land- teacher of na-30 ward; vutil Fraceis Drake an Englipman (which entred by the Magellas (trait 1 779.) taught been them a better course of folios sun or three honder Heavy the Magellas (trait 1 779.) taught them a better courie of failing two or three hundred leagues into the Sea, which the Pilots beforedurst not doe, being searcfull of calmes, if they were once one hundred leagues from land, otherwise also vincertaine and ignorant.

Touching the original of the Incas Kings of Perm, this author affirmeth, that when hee was a childe, his mother reliding in Cafeo her Countrie, enery weeke there came to vilite her some of Atabasica or her kindred which had escaped the tyrannies of Asasbualloa, at which time their ordinary dif Atabalpa his course was alway of the originall of their Kings, of their Maiettie and great Empire, Conquetts, cruekies. and Gouernment : fuch discourses the Incas and Pallas hold in their vilitations, bewailing their loiles. Whiles I was a boy I reioyced to heare them as children delight to heare tales, but being 40 growne to fixteene or feuenteene yeares of age, when they were one day at my Mothers in this discourse, I spake to the ancientest (my Mothers Vncle) desiring him to tell me what he knew of their first Kings, feeing they kept not memory of their antiquities, as the Spaniards vie in writing, which by their Bookes can tell all their antiquities and changes which have happened fince God made the World. I defired him to tell me what traditionary memorials he had or their Originals. He willing to satisfie my request, recounted to me in manner following, adusting mee to lay vo thele layings in my heart.

In old times all this region was untilled and overgrowne with bushes, and the people of those times sixed Indian tibles as wilde beafts, without religion or policie, without towne or boufe, without tilling or fowing the ground, without raiment, for they knew not how to worke Cotten or Wooll to make them garments. They lived by nals. two and two, or three and three, in caues and holes of the ground, eating graffe like beafts, and rootes of trees, and wilde fruits, and mans flelb. They concred themselves with leaves, and barkes of trees, and skins of Beafts, and others in leather. Once they lined as wilde heafts, and their women were in common and brutish. Our Father the Sunne (this was the Incas manner of speech , because they derined their pedegree from the Sunne; and for any besides the Incas to say so, was blash bemie, and incurred stoning) seeing men live in this fashion, tooke pittie on them, and sent from beauen a Sonne and a Daughter of his owne, to instruct men in the knowledge of our Father the Sunne, and to worship him for their God; to give them lawes also and precepts of humane and reasonable course of life in civill fashion, to dwell in houses and townes, to husband the earth, to fowe and fee, to breede cattle. With thefe ordenances our father the Sunne placed these his two children in the lake Titicaca, eightie leagues from Cuico; and gave them a 60 barre of Gold two fingers thicke, and halfe a yard long, for a figne that where that barre frould melt with one blow on the ground, there ther thould place their residence and Court. Laster, bee commanded that when they had reduced the people to ferue him, they Bould uphold them in instice with clemencie and gentlenesse, behaving themseines as a putifull Father dealeth with his tender and beloved children, like as he bimselfe gaue them example in giving ligh; and heate to all the world, causing the seedes and grass to grow, and the trees to fruelifie, the cattle to encrease, the seasons to be faire, and encompassing the world once enery day: that they hould imitate him, and become benefactors to the Nations, being fent to the earth for that purpole. Hee constituted also and named them Kings and Lords of all the Nations which they fould mistruit and civilize.

1456 Inca-traditions of Manco Capac & Mama Ocllo the first Incas, LIB, VII.

After these instructions he less them, and they went up from Titicaca translling to the North, still as ther went firshing with that barre of Gold, which never melted. Thus they entred into a resting place feuen or eight leagues Southwards from this Citie Culco, now called Pacarec Tampu, that is, morning ileepe, and there flept till morning, which be afterwards caused to be peopled, and the inhabitants boalt greatly of this name, which the Inca imposed. Thence they translled to this valley of Cuico, which was then a wilder wildernesse, and flaid first in the billocke, called Huanacanti, in the midft of the Citte; and to there making proofe, bis Golden Barre easily melted at one stroake, and was no more scene. Then said our Incato his Sister and Wife, In this Valley our Father the Sunne commands vs to make our aboades and therefore O Queene and Sister, it is meete that each of us goe and doe his endeuour to affemble and draw bither the people to instruct and benefit them as our Father the Sunne hath enioned vs. From the billocke Huanacauri our first Kings went each to gather together the people. And because that is the the first place on which they were knowne to have set their feets, and thence to have gone to doe good to men; wee builded there a Temple to worship our Father the Sunne, in memorie of this benefit

The Prince went to the North, and the Princesse to the South : to all the men and women which they The Prince went to the 19010, and the 17 their Father the Sunne had sent them from heaven to found in those wilde thickets, they space, saying that their Father the Sunne had sent them from heaven to 20 become instructors and benefactors to all that dwell in that land, to bring them from a brutifi life to cimilitie, with many other words to like purpose. Those Sanages seeing these two persons attired and adorned with ornaments, which our Father the Sun had given them, and their eares bored and open, as their de Cendants have continued, and that in their words and countenance they appeared like children of the Sun, and that they came to give them sustenance; they gave them credit, and reverenced them as children of the Sun, and ob ayed them as Kings, and calling other Sanages and acquainting them berewith many men and women came together and followed our Kings whether they would conduct them. Our Primces gane order that some frould be occupied in providing victuall in the fields, least hunger should force them backe to the Mountaines; others in making cottages and boules, the Inca instruction them bow Cules or Cores they foodld doe it. In this manner this our Imperial Citie began to be peopled, being divided into two fift inhabited halues, Hanan Cozco and Harin Cozco, that is, the high and the low Cozco, these which the King 30 drew thitber dwelling in the high, those which followed the Queene in the low. One halfe had not more primitedges then the other, but they were all equall; but those names remained as a memoriall of those which each had attracted onely those of high Cozco were as the elder, and the other reduced by the Queen as the second sons of the same parents; or as the right band and left. In like fort the same division was beld in all the great townes and small of the Empire, by the high linages and the low, the high and Moreoner, the Inca taught themen to doe the offices pertaining to their fexe, as to till the Land, to fowe feedes (freming them which were profitable) teaching them to make instruments for that purpofe, to make trenshes for the water, & c. The Queene on the other fide taught the women to worke in Cotten and 10 Wooll, and to make garments for their husbands and children, with other boufhold offices. Thefe Indians thus civillized, went thorow the hilt and wilde places to fearch out others, and acquainted them with thefe affaires, telling them what the children of the Sun had done for them, Shewing for proofe thereof their Vie of Armes, new garments, and meates, and so brought much people buther, that in fixe or seuen yeares the Inca bad trained many to armes for their defence, and to force those which refused to come to him. He taught them Bowes and Arrowes, and Clubs, &c. And to be fort, I fay that our first Father Inca reduced all the East to the Riner Paucattampu, and Westward conquered eight leagues to the great Riner Apurimac, and nine leaques Southward to Quequetana. In thu Region our Inca caused to people aboue a bundred Townes, the greater of them of one hundred bouses.

These were our first Incas, which came in the first ages of the World, of whom all the rest of us have to The Incas Em descended. How many yeares have passed since our Father the Sunne sent the le his first children, I cannot The incas Empire duteda - precifely fay; we hold that it is about 400. yeares. Our Inca was called Manco Capac, and our Coya, pure united a ... Pour and Ocilo Huaco, brother and fifter, children of the same Sunne, and the Moone, our progenitors. Valera bath 5: thinke I have given the clarge account of that which then defiredly, and because I would not make the cry, I have not recited this storie with teares of bloud fied by the eyes, as I feed them in my griened heart, to fee our Incas come to an end, and our Empire loft.

This relation I hauefaithfully translated from my mother tongue, which is that of the lace, to the Spanill, which is farre shore of the Maiestie of the stile, nor so significantly as that language affordeth, and have abbreviated some things which might make odious the discourse. It is enough that I haue deliuered the truth of their conceit, as befits an Historian. Other like things 60 the faid Inca told me in those visitings and discours: at my mothers house, which I shall recite in their due places.

The common people of Perm recite other fables of their Originals, the Collafum which dwell to the South from Cozeo, and the Cuntifuju, which dwell to the West; fabling that after the floud, the waters cealing, there appeared a man in Tahnacann Southwards from Culco, so mightie that he duided the World into foure parts, and gave them to foure men which hee called Kings, to Manco Capac, the North; the South to Colla; to Tocay, and Pinabua the East and Welf, and fent each of them to their gouernments, &c. Those of the East and North haue another tale, that foure men and foure women in the beginning of the world came out of a rocke by Parcartampu, all brethren and fifters, the first of which was Manco Capac and his wife Mama Seefup, 1060.

CHAPIZ. Fabulous antiquities, Manco Capacs Townes, Lawes, Alts and Arts. 1457

Oello which founded Cofco (which fignifieth a nauell) and fubiceted those Nations: the second Ayar Cachi or falt; the third Ayas Vehn (a kinde of Pepper) the fourth Ayar Sanca, that is, mirth and contents. Their fables they allegorife allo, and fome Spaniards would here finde the To eight perions which came forth of Noahs Arke; wherewith I meddle not, nor with the other fables which other Indian Nations have of their progenitors; there being no honourable stocke Conceirs of which is not derived from some Fountaine, or Lake, or Lyon, Tigre, Beare, Eagle, Centur or the originals other Birds of pray, or Hils, Caues, &c. But I by the faid Incar relation, and of many other In- of all check facas and Indians of those townes which the laid Inca Manco Capac peopled, in the space of twenty yeares which I there lived, received notice of all that I writ: for as much as in my childen hood they related their stories to me, as they wie to tell tales to children; and after being grown the old, telling me how their Kings proceeded in peace and warre, and how they handled their fubicets : and as to their owne Sonne they recounted to me all their Idolatrie. Rites, Ceremonies. 20 Sacrifices, Feafts, and Superstitions, much whereof I have seene with mine eyes, it being not wholly left when I wastwelue or thirteene yeares old, who was borne eight yeares after the Spaniards had gotten my Countrie. I also purposing to write a storie of their things, did write to my Schoolerellowes for their helpe to give me particular information of the scuerall Provinces of their Mothers, each Countrie keeping their annals and traditions; which reporting my intent to their Mothers and kindred, that an Indian, a childe of their owne land, ment to write a Historie thereof, fearched their antiquities, and fent them to me; whereby I had notice of the conquests and acts of every Inca.

in age they gaue me large notice of their Lawes and gouernment, comparing this Spanish with

Manco Capac to the East of Cofco, peopled thirteene townes of the nation called Poques, to the West thirtie, with the Nations Masca, Chilqui, Papuri; twentie to the North of foure peo-

30 ples, Majn, Cancu, Chinchapucyu, Rimac tampu: 38.01.40. to the South, 18. of which were of the Nation Ayarmaca, the others of the Quespicancha, Muena, Vrcos, Quennar Huaruc, Cauinna, This Nation Caninna, believed that their first Parents came out of a certaine Lake, to which they work fay the foules of the dead have recourfe, and thence return into the bodies which are borne. They had an Idoll of dreadfull shape, which Manco Capac caused them to leave, and to worship the Sun, as did his other vallals. These townes from 100. housholds the greater, and 20. or 25, the lesse, grew to 1000. families, and the leffe to 3. or 400. The tirant Atauhualipa for their priviledges which the first Inca and his descendents had given them, destroyed them, some in part, others wholly. Now a Viceroy hath remoued them out of their ancient scituation, joyning five or fixe townes together in one place, and feuen or eight in another, a thing fo odious and inconvenient spenish altera-

40 that I ceale to mention it . Manco Capac to reduce the abuses of their women, ordained that adultery should be punished with death, as like wife murther and robberie : hee enjoyned them to keepe but one wife, and to Mances lawes. marrie in their kindred or tribe that they should not be confounded, and that they should marrie from twenty yeares vpwards. He caused them to gather together tame and harmelesse cattle in flockes and heards to cloath them; the Queene teaching their women to spin and weave, Hee taught them to make the shooe which they call V futa. He set a Curaca (or Cacique) ouer each seuerall Nation, chusing them to that dignitie which had taken most paines in reducing the Sauages, the mildest and best minded to the common good, to inftruct the rest as fathers. He orda:ned that the fruits which were gathered in each towne should be kept together, to give to each 50 man as he had neede, till lands were disposed to each in proprietie. Hee taught them how to build a Temple to the Sunne, where to facrifice and doe him worthip as the principall God, and to adore him as the Sun and Moone, which had fent them to reduce them to civilitie. He caused them to make a house of women for the Sunne, when there should be women sufficient of the Suns Nunnery bloud royall to inhabit it; and propounded all things to them in the name of the Sun, as inioy-

ned by him; which the Indians simply believed, adoring them for his children, and men divine Manco and his fuccessours were their haire poled, vsing to that purpose Rasors of flint, a Poledheads. thing so troublesome, that one of our Schoolefellowes seeing the readinesse of Scissers faid, that if your Fathers the Spaniards had onely brought vs Sciffers, Looking-glaffes, and that if your rathers the spanisher had onely brought Silver in our Land. They weare Combes, wee would have given them all the Gold and Silver in our Land. They weare their eares with wide holes caused by art to grow into a strange and incredible widenesse, whereupon the Spaniards called them Oreiones, or men with great eares. Hee ware on his head as a Diadem or royall entigne a kinde of Ribben of many colours, which compaffed his head foure or five times a finger breadth, and almost a finger thicke. These three were Fillers. Mances

Enfignes of dienitie.

e Mancos deuses, the llaute or ribband, the wide hole in the care, and polling, as a kinde of Royaltie; and the first Primledge which the Inca gave to his Vaffals was to weare the fillet or ribband like the Inca, but theirs of one colour only, his of many. After some time, hee vouchfafed (as a great fauour) the polling divertified in Provinciall differences of the Eare-fathions (which was a later and greater fauour) both for the boaring and Eaning, or Iewell there eulea and the Neighbours Incas by priniledge, which none elfewere except of the Royall Dia-

The Inca growing old, affembled his principall Vaffals in Cufco, and in a folemne fpeech told them, that he intended to returne to Heauen, and to rest with his Father the Sunne which called him. (which was practifed by all his fucceffors, when they perceived themselves neere death) and now at his departure he minded to leaue them his chiefe fauour, to wit, his Royall Title, commanding that they and their D. Gendants should be Incas without difference, as having beene his first jubiects which he loued as children; and hee hoped that they would likewife ferue his Reyall bloud. Sicceffor, and augment the Empire : hat their wines alfo should be called Pallas, as those of the Royall bloud, Only he refer ed the Royall Head-rire to himfelie and his Descendents the Kings which was a fringe or lace coloure ', excending from one fide of the fore-head to the other. His firmame Cap to fignifieth rich (which they understood of the mindes vertues) and mightie in armes. The name Inca lignifieth Lord, or generally those of the Royall bloud. For the Caraca, though great Lords, might not viethat Title. The King is diftinguished from all others by the appellation Capa, Capa Inca lignifying the only Lord, as the Grand Signier among the Turkes. They fuled him alfo Huarchacurak, that is, Benefactor to the poore. They called them alfo Intip cha- m rm, the Sonnes of the Sunne. Manco Capac leigned, tome fay thirtie yeeres, others fortie. Hee had many children by his Wite Mana Oello Huaco, and by his Concubines (laying it was good to multiply children to the Sunne.) He called his Vaffels also of the better fort, and recommended his Heire as by Testument in way of discourse to them, and to the rest of his children their loue and feruice of the Vaffals, and to the Vaffals their loyaltie to their King, and obedience to the Lawes. Then difmiffing the Vallals, hee made another speech in secret to his children, that they should alway remember that they were children of the Sun, to worship him as their God, and to maintaine his Lawes giving others examples therein; also to be gentle to the Indians, to uphold them in luftice without oppression : that they should recommend these thires to their posterities in all generations, faying, that they were the people of the Sunne, which he left vn- to to them as his Teltament; to whom he was now going to reit with him in peace, and from Heauen would have a care to succour them.

Marce die:h. Sinchi Raca fuccredeth.

Curacas.

Mancos Fune-

Thus died Manco Capac, and left his Heire Sunchi Roca the eldeft brother, and begotten of Cons Mama Ocilo Haaco his wife and lifter. Belides the Heire, those Kings left other somes and daugh ters which married amongst themselves to keepe the Royall blow entire, which they tabulouly believed to be divine, and of others humane, alchough they were great Lords of Vaffals. called Curacas. The Inca Sinche Roca married with his eldeit litter, af er the manner of his parents, and of the Sunne and Moone, thinking the Moone to be fifter and wife to the Sunne. The Ince Manco was lamented by his Vaffals very heavily, the Obsequies continuing many moneths They embalmed his corps to preferue it among it them, and worshipped him for a God, Senne 40 of the Sunne, offering many Sacrifices of Rammes, Lambes, Birds, Graines, &c. contessing him Lord of all those things which he had left.

The name Inca descended to all the posteritie by the Male Line, not by the Female; all of this ranke were also called Trip churin (children of the Sunne) and Augus, or Infanta, which Title they kept till their Marriage, and then were called Inca. The lawfull Queene was called Cora; alio Mamanchie, that is, Our Mother. Her daughters were likewife called Coya; the Concubines and other wives of the blood Royall, were called Palla, which fignifieth a woman of Royall bloud, Concubines which were not of Royall bloud, were called Mamacuna, Mother. All the Royall Daughters were called Nufla, and if not of Royall Mothers, the name of the Prounce was added as Colla Nusta, Quitu Nusta. The name Nusta continued till they were married, and $3 then they were stilled Palla.

The fecond Booke.

Amautas, the learned Peru-Pachacamac the name of

He first Incas and their Amantas (which were their Philosophers) by light of Nature acknowledged God the Creator of all things, which they called Pachacamac (the Sunne they held to be a vitible Gou) Pacha lignifieth the World, and Camac to quicken, of Cama, the Soule, as if Pachacamac, were the foule or quickner of the Vniverle. This name they had in fuch veneration that they durift not mention it; and if they were by occasion forced thereto, they did it with holding downe the head, and bowing the bodie, lifting up their eyes to Heatien, and calling them downe to the ground, lifting vp their hands open straite from the shoulders, giving smacks or lip-motions to the ayre (Rites performed only to him and the Sunne) holding Pachacamac in 60 August mZ. ret. more internall reverence then the Sunne, whom they named commonly on any occasion. They fail that he gave life to the World, but they knew him not, for they had never feene him, and iw ie V acent therefore neither built Temples, not offered Sacrifice to h m; but faid they worshipped him in de valle variai, that they held the Sun for God, the earth for Mother, & Pachacamar for Creator of all.

their minds, and held him for the waknowne God. The Spaniards, which tooks him for a Deuill and knew not the generall Language, found out another name for God, Tier Uira-cecha, which Tiraraha and mether I, nor they know what it meaneth : and if any should aske mee how I in my Language fush hey had would call God, I would answee, Pachacamac : nor is there in that generall Language any o. no proper ther name for him. And all those which Authors report are corrupted of other Languages, or name tor God.

deuted by them. The Lucas in Cazco kept a Croffe of Marble, White and Garnation, which they call lafee Critisline. They know not how long they had at Anno 1 , 50. Hert it in the Veftry of the Cathesiral Church of that Cities The Croffe was fquare, three quarters of a yard lond and to these fingers thicke , and so much in breadth , all of some piece well wrought. They the Spaniards kent in one of their Houlds Royall, in a some which they call Hance, a holyplace, came. They did not adokent, but hald it in generable efteemes deither for the goodlineffe , or for some other respect which they knew not. The lucas and all Nations Shired to them, knew not what it was to fweare : you have heard of chein respect to the name Pachacamee. The Witnesless were salestanely demanded in waightie cates by the Indge, Doef then Notwesting. primife to sell sputh to the line a? swisch he promiting, the tudge gave him a care at for lying or concealing. They exceedingly feared to lye, and strhey were found to doe it; were grieuoufly punithed, and in cases of great importance, with death, as having lied to the drive: for to they toake to the ludge as if it were to the med whom they worthipped for God. Befides Pachacamac, the 20 Sunne, and Moone (as his wirband: fifter) and starres, they were forbidden by Law to adore Acollaby this any thing. Pachacamae the supreme God had no Temples ordinarily, yet in a Valley called Pa- will be better any times. A Temple dedicated to that vintagivne God. The Spaniard attribute many other winderfield & Gofs to the Loca through ignorance of their Rives in the first and second age, and of their lan-corrected. guage; and not knowing the dates fight fourious of the word Hance, which in the last ivillable pronounced high in the roofe of the mouth figurierh an idell. It fignified also chings facred in which the Denill gane answeres, also things conferreted as effetings to the Sunne; Temples likewife and Chappels and Sepulchres whence the Peuill fpake; they gave that name all to all Huaca and the things eminent and imperexcellens in their kind, as the fame R Trees, occ. On the contrary they exists there called the filthieft and most months bus things Hasen; which might cause horrour, as the great of voknowne 30 Snakes of fue and twerrie of shirtie foot long. Hutes was applied to all things also which go out to the Seani. of the common courle, as to a woman which had Twinnes, making great Fealth, and firbwing and occision flowers in the Greet with Dances and Song stor such her fruitfulntifie. The fame name they gate to heepe which had Twinner (for virally there the the the het and in their Sacrifices rather Twins rate. offered a Twinze Linbe, if thewhad it, then another likewife to ah Hege With two yolkes, to shole which had in their birth any member more or leffethen vitually as if one had in toes on his foot, a horne lip, &c. alfo to Roussainer which yeelded extraordinary fource of waters, to the rapke of the inowice Hills which ranne thorowall Pera to the Mayelane Straits, to all extraordinary Mountaines Neither did they (as the Spaniardi fay) hold thefe for Gods, nor worship thein, but for their eminence held them in the venerable refpect. The fame word Huaca pro-40 nounced with the last fyllable in the inner part of the throat, fignifieth to weepe; a thing vitall in that Language, for the same word in differing pronuntiation, to fignifie things different. As for the Idoll Tangatanga, which one Authour faith they worthipped in Chiaquifaca, and ration is the that the Indiang fail it was three in one, and one in three : I know no fuch Idoll, nor is there any Sume, & worsuch word in the general Language of Perachut the Promince it one hundred and eightie leagues thip or reucfuch word in the general Language of Persons the Frontiness one hundred sind eighter leagues react of the from Cozeo, and the Spaniards corrupt all the words they take in their mouthes. It is likely that Inte. the Indians to Batter with the Spaniards, when they heard them preach of the Trinitie pretended Acola raxed. tome fuch likenesse of beliefe. The like I hold concerning their confessions, all which was inven- See before in ted by the Indians to currie failour with the Spaniards. I speake this as an Indian which know the Acotta page naturall condition of the Indians: and I fay that they had no Idoll with the name of the Trinitie, 1041, 66.

nor had any fuch word in their Language.

50 They believed the immerialitie of the foule, that the bodie was of earth, and called it Allow- Their beliefe camafea, that is quickenedearth. They beleeved another life after this, with punishment for the oithe foule. bad and reit for the good. They disided the Viniverio into three Worlds, Heaven called Hanan pacha, or the high World, whither they faid the good men went to bee rewarded for their vertues : this World they called Hurin pacha, the World below: the third von pacha, the centre of the Earth, called, also Cuparpa buacin, that is, the house of the Denill. The life in Heaven they faid was quiet, free Three Worlds from troubles, as that of the inferior World, which we call Hell full of paine and trouble without any rest or content, whereas this present life participated of both. Amongst the loyes of the other life they did not reckon carnall delights nor other vices, but quietneffe of the minde only

63 with reft of the bodie. They believed the Refurrection vinuerfall, not glory nor paine, but to Refurrection this same temporall life. They made great reckoning of their haire which they polled or combed from their heads, to lay it vp in some place, or ma hole of the wall, and if another Indian had seene it felne thence, he would take and lay it up fafe. I have often asked the caule, and they Have superwould tell mee that wee were to return againe to live in the World (they have no word for the fitting

* He feemeth

cheis

Peru dict.

tres befor al arre

or Officers.

Persona no Man caters. principall, next Rammes, and then barren Ewes; Conies, all Birds which were for meate. and Sewet, or Tallow; Corne and Pulle to the Herbe Cuca, and fine garments (which they burned inftead of Incense; their drinkes also, as that made of water and Maiz; and in their ordinarie meales when they have eaten and are about to drinke (for they never drinke whiles they are eating) they put their finger in the midft of the firth veficil, and looking up to Heaven with reve- to rence, they turne vp as it were, with a fillip, a drop of that drinke, offering it with thankfulnes to the Sunne, for that hee hath given them to drinke, "and kiffing wife mooued their lios twice or thrice to the aire, which with them is a figne of adoration; and then drinke off the self without more Ceremonies. This I have feene them often doe. Yet did not the Indiane of the fecond age (which began and ended with the Incar government) offer the bloud or fielh of men. but prohibited the eating thereof, wherein Historians haue bin deceived, it beeing true indeed of fome Regions before the conquest of them by the Incas. Neither did they facrifice either men or children when their Kings were ficke, as one Historian writeth; for they held them not for difeales, as those of the common people; but esteemed them as Messenges of their Pather the Sunne, which came to call his Sonne to reft with him in Heaven; and those were their ordinary speeches, when they were to die. When they entred into their Temples, the principall of those which went in, put vo his hand Eybrow-rite, to his eye-browes, as if he would pluck off some of the haires, and whether he plucked off any or no, he puffed to the Idoll in figne of adoration and offering; this they did not to their Kings but only to their Idols, or Trees, or places where the Deuill gaue answeres, Their Priests and Witches did the like, when they went into their corners or fecret places to conferre with the Denill. This I dolatry I have also frene them performe.

Acol: and others taxed. Incat conceit of fickneffe.

Priefts of Peru.

The Priests of the house of the Sunne in Coace, were all Incar of the Royall bloud : for other feruice of the Temple were Incas of those which were such by printledge. They had a High or Chiefe Prieft, which was Vncle or Brother to the King : or at least legitimate of the bloud. The 30 Priefts had no peculiar Vestment. In other Prounces where were Temples (which were many) the Natines were Priefts, the Kinfmen of the Lords of those Countries; notwithflanding the politzarothers principall Prieft (or Bilhop asit were) was to bee an Inca, that to they might hold conformitie, had asit were? As Director Person Warre they had Inof Rites with the Metropolitan : for in all preeminent Offices of Peace or Warre, they had Incas their Superiours. They had many houses of Virgins which observed perpetuall Virginitie without going out of their house; and others of the Concubines for the King.

Pricits.

All their Lawes Civill and Sacred were attributed to Manco Gapac, faying, that hee had left and perfected fome himselfe, the others for his Successors to accomplish in their times : so to give All Ordinan- authoritie to all, as from the Sunnes Ordinance. And though fome of the Incar were great Lawces arributed makers, yet no memory is left of any particulars under their name, but all is attributed to the 40 to Mante. Division of

The Incas decided their Empire into foure parts : they called it Tauantinfuya, that is, the foure parts of the World. Hereof Cozes was the Centre, which in that Inca-language lignifieth the Nawill of the Earth, or Land. The East-diution they called Antifurn of the Province Anti(a name Anti, called by alio given to the Rew of Snowie Mountaines in the East) the West Cuntifagu, the North Chm-Acofu, Ander. chafuyu; the South Collafuyn; each name derived of some Province therein so called, and continued to the furtheil extent that way, as Collafuna to Chali, fixe hundred leagues from Colla, and Chinchasun to Quin soure hundred leagues from Chincha to the North. They ordained that in every Towne great or small of their Empire, the Inhabitants should be registred by Tithings, and one of them should take charge of the other nine, as a Decurian or Ti- 50 Tithings and thingman, called Chunca Chancapa. Five of thele Decurions had another Superiour, which had the charge of fittie. Ouer two of those was another Superiour or Centurion. Fine Centuries were subjected to one which had charge of five hundred, and two of those charges had a Chili-arch or Captaine of one thousand : higher they went not. The Tithingman gave account to the Governour of those in his charge, to provide them Seed Chunga Camaju, or Bread corne, or Wooll, or House-reparations, or other necessaries. He also was to informed thir faults to the Judges, which according to the greatnesse of the offence were also dinerlified in order for dispatch of luftice, and to take away need of Appeales, except in cases betwixt one Prouince and another, for which the Incasent a special Judge. If the Decurion neglected to informe, the fault was now made his owne, and hee corrected for it : as also in the other case of 60 proussion. Hence there were no Vagabonds nor idle persons. The Father was corrected which did not educate or correct his children; the children also were punished in correspondence of their age : and the Tithingman was to informe of both. The ludges punished them, they faid, not for the fact, but the fault in transfertling the Incas commandement which they respected as Gods.

Tithingmen. See the like with vs in Lamb .pranb. of Kent. Orders of Of-

They had no purse-punishments, Fines or Confifcations; for to leave them poore, Washut to Penalties. sine them more albertie comuse. It any Chanca rebelled and deferued death; his fohrie fucceded No fines. not withflanding to his States. In water they had Natines for Captaines ouer their counc Gountrimen, habing memotorotheir Superiours. The Judge durft not arbitrate, but execute the Law . at life bee deal for breaking the Royall commandement. " This feueritie of the Officers anchof the Lawes which for light offences inflicted death, produced rather gentle then Nothing more crattl and barbatous flow daring to transgresse vio that all that Empire, extended thirteene hung mercial then dred leagues; and wonfilting of, to many Nations and Languages, was governed by one Law, as if fewerine vaichiad besne que houte, ohe ratische caule chey held the fame diune, and from the Sunnes bridge in the same divine, and from the Sunnes bridge in the same divine bridge in th

10 nance by the locals and the second And alte Litwibreaker was abereiore accounted facrilegions and accomfed informed that fome baueprooued accused by their own o conferences have made confessions without other actiliers, fearing to bring fauers or mens publike plagues annte State/as Difeatetos Dearths, which they foughteospreuent by appealing God with their deaths. And I conceine, that from thefe publike confellions, the Spanith Hillorians have weiter chat the Indian of Port had confession in secret like Christians, and Confession to get barfains appropriated : which is falle, for in Printhey had no other then Hime mentioned and the rels, and con-Indians which told the Spaniards thus, aniwared to to their questions, as they thought might best sequently pleafe chema Heither had they any Appealer Civill or Criminall. Every Fowne had a ludge, warres then and for highermatters they went to the Superiour Judge in the Mother Citie. The Semences of when & where 20 ordinary Judges; were every moneth related to the Superioth Tudges; and theirs to others their they have not Superiours, which were in the Court in diners degrees according to the qualitie of Cales. The Su- beene. preame were the Prefidents or Vice-royes of the foure parts of the World. This report was made No auricular to examine Sentences which had paffed, and if they were found vniuft, the Authors were feuere-

ly punished. The manner of sendring these reports to the lines, and to those of his Counsell, was by knothin lines of duers colours, which ferued them as it were Ciphers ! for the knots of fuch ludgements or fireh colours declared the offences, and certaine threads of druers colours fastned to the lines, examined. flogwed the publishment. This was their Arithmetike in which they were expert and certaine. Quippes. forme applying themselves to nothing elie. If any Provinciall controversie could not be decided by those whom the King tent, is was suspended till his Visitation of those parts , and then hee 30 himfelfe would fee, heare and fentence.

The Tithingmen allo gaue account enery moneth of all which were bottle or died, and like- Monethy and wileas the end of the yeere; fuch as perifhed in the warres; they also relided. The like Officers yeartly acand Orders were in the Campes of warre, as in the Townes of peace. They permitted not to counter. facke the Townes which they conquered by force. For every of those foure divitions of the Empite the Incaliad Councels of Warre, of Infice; of necessary businesse. These had subordinate Officets in divers degrees which rendred accounts of all to the Supreme Councell. Each had a Pre- But foure prifident or Micessey swhich received those accounts, and rendred the fiffer to the King. These lors. were Includegitimate, of great experience in Warre and Peace. And these source only were Counfellors of State.

Roca succeeded his Father Mango: he was called Simbi, that is , valiant; excelling in manly Roca Incahis feates of Activity, Running, Leaping, casting stones or Dirts, Wrestling, any of his time. His acts. Fathers Oblequies beeing finished, hee sought to augment his Empire, affembled his Curacas to that end, and put them in minde of that which his Father had faid to them, when he would returne to Heauen, commanding the conversion of the Indians, to the knowledge and worship of the Sunne; whereunto he was now obliged by his place, and for the profit of the bordering Nations which had need thereof. They promifed all readinesse, and he made his expedition to Collasmy and perswaded with faire words, the Nations Puchina and Chanchi, being simple and cre- Indian credulidulous of enery neueltie (as are all the Indians) and fo proceeded without violence twentie tie. leagues that way to the people Chuncara, irrall things following his Fathers example. Hee also 50 brought in other Nations on each hand; some affirme a great many. He is thought to have reigned thirtie yeeres : and then professing that he went to rest with his Father the Sunne, hee left Lio-que Tupanqui his sonne to succeed him, and a numerous Iffue besides. His name Lloque Fignifieth Lloque Tupanleft handed (for so he was) Tunarani was added for his vertues, and signifieth, thou shalt account or quiche third reckin, to wit, his great exploits and good parts. If any thinke the word may imply a well the linea. recounting of vices, let him know that in that Language it is not fo, the fame Verbe not beeing flexible to cuill transition which is vied to good, nor to good which may be applyed to cuill; but their elegance enforcetha change of the Verbe in change of the object. The name Tupanqui, as Grammer. that of Capac were for their merits given to three other Incas. He reduced under fubication proceeding by the Collasurs, the people Cama by perswasions. The Ayavari refused and fought with 60 him, and after fortified themselves and indured many skirmlihes, but by fiege and famine were

After that he went to Pucara, which was a Fortreffe builded by him : and fent to the Pancarcalla and Hatancolla, which liftned to his proposition, being a great Nation, or rather a multitude of Nations, which had many fables of their originall, fome from a Fountaine, others from a

Caue, others from a River. They worthipped a white Ramme as their principall God, being Lords of much cattell. They faid that the first Ram in the world about, made more reckoning of them then other Indians, and had multiplied their Cattell. They offered to that Ram Lambs and tallow in Sacrifice, All of them agreed in this Ram deitie, in other their gods differing, bue now exchanged all for the Sunne. Afterwards Tuienen, and Chuengen, and Harin Pacalla Were fullilled by him. Now to intermixe somewhat of the Sciences which the later had. Their Attrologie and and natural Philosophie was little, by reason their America or Pohylo-

Of the Peruan Aftrologie,

Dreames of Ecclipies.

fonher, wanted letters. They better understood morrall learning, and left it written in the practile of their lawes. They oblerued the folitices and equinoctials by certaine towers. The Moneand Moneth they called Quilla, the yeare busts. The eclipies of the Moone they attri-bated to her fickneffe, fearing that the would dye and fall from heaven, and kill all below. and to therefore they founded Trumpets, Cornets, Drums, and such Instrumencs as they had, beating, and making their Dogs also to houle, thinking her affectioned to Dogges, for a certaine feruice which they fable done by them, and therefore imagine the would respect them, and awake our of her fleepe caused by ficknesse. The ecclipse of the Sunne they say happenerh for some offence done against him, for which he is angrie. The spots in the Moone they fable to have come of a Fox: which being in love with the Moones beautie, went to heaven, and touching her with his forefee: eleft thate foule memorials. They make their children to cry Mama Cuilla, Mother Moone doe not dye left all perift. The men and women cry likewife in her ecclipte with horrible noise: when the recouers her light, they tay Pachacamae hath cured her and commanded her not to dye, that the world should not perish; and give her great thankes. All this I have seene with mine eyes. The lightning and thunder they adore not for gods, but honour and efteeme them as the Sunnes feruants retrient in the ayre, not in heaven. Like account they make of the Ramebow, which the Kings Incar placed in their armes and foutchion. In the house of the Sunne was a roome for each of them. They made no Prognostications nor Predictions by signes of the Sunne, Moone, Comets, but by their dreames often and strange, and by their facrifices. The Sun every evening fet in the Sea, and with his heate dried up much of the water, and fwam vader

the earth thorow it to the East. For Phisicke they vied purging and bleeding, but had no skill of Vrines or Pulse: some rootes and hearbes they made medicinable vse of, especially of

In Geometrie they had some skill for partitions of their grounds, but nothing for speculations and so much Geographie, as with plats or pictures to expresse the Nations. I have seene one of Culco, and the confines admirably artificiall. Arithmeticke they practifed with knots, as is faid, and with graines of Maiz, and fmall ftones, making perfect accompts. Musicke they had in forme tu es of art; with divers Instruments, as Pipes proportioned to a confort, and flutes and songs.

The Amentas also had some practice of Poetrie, and composed Comedies and Tragedies. The Sometimes also

Pachacamac

To this office

Viracocha

Thou fendit forth haile.

Thou lends forth fnow.

The worlds maker,

Hath thee placed

And authorifed.

Thunder and lightning. Runnow.

Dream-diuina-

Medicine.

Chorography. Arnhmeticke.

Mulicke.

Poctry.

Actors were not base persons, but Incas and the Nobilitie, sonnes of the Cararas. The argument was the acts of their ancestors. Their were represented before the King and Lords at Court. They had no base or dishonest parts intermixed. They made Verses short and long with measuring the syllables without rimes, I have given an inflance; the argument is (like that of la- 10 piter and lune in our Poets) the daughter of a King had a pitcher full of water to moisten the earth, which her brother brake, and with the blow caused thunders and lightnings. They were found in knots and particoloure threads, being very ancient. The words are thus in Pernan and Engin bondake verfes.

lifb, the fyllables also in like number and meeter Fairest of Nimphes, Cumac Nusta Thine owne Brother, Totallay quim This thy Pitcher Pujunuj quita Now is breaking; Paquir Cayan Whose hard striking Hina Mantara Синин низнани Thunders, lightens, And throwes fire-bolts. Ylla pantac Camri Nusta But thou fweet Nimph, Thy faire Pitcher Unuya Quita Para Munqui Powring, rainest:

Now for Handicrafts, the Goldsmiths (of which they had so many) knew not to make an anule of Iron, nor of other meetall; nor to cast Iron, although they had Mines thereof. They vfed for anuites certaine hard fromes, of a pale greene colour, which they plained and imported with rubbing one against another. They were rare and precious. They knew not how to make hammers with handles of wood, but wrought with inframents made of Copper and Laton mingled, in forme of a Dye, of feuerall fizes, which they held in their hands to firike with as area 60 doe with stones. They had no Files nor Chiffels, nor Bellowes for easting of mettals, but wfed Pipes of Braffe, halfe a yard long or leffe, and joyned eight or tenne together as there was neede. Neither had they skill to make tongues. And yet did they make maruellous workes. Their Carpenters were as much to feeke or more, hauing no fron tooles, but an Axe and a Hatcher and

Chich manaui

Riti munqui

Pacha rurac

Pacha camao

Vira coch a

Cay besapas

Churafungui

Cama fungui.

those of Braffe; no Saw, nor Augre, nor Plainer, nor Nailes, but fastned all things with lines or ropes of a kinde of heath, Neither were their Masons in better case: they vied a certaine blacke Masons. from not to cut but to beate their stoneworks with force of their armes, and yet have left incredible Monuments of their art. The lefuster and other Religions have instructed the wouth fince in other arts, in Dialogues and Comedies of Scripture. One Iesuite in praise of our Lady the Virgin Mary composed a Comedie in the Aymara tongue, the argument was Gen. 3. I will Note. virgin comary composed a Comment and between the feed and her feed: She (to the Romiffer reade and make of it this remarkeable vie) [ball break; ib) bead, &c. A dialogue of the faith was recited at Potoch before 1 2000. Indians, and another of the Sacrament at the Citie of Kings beto fore innumerable, the Indian youth acting and pronouncing with fuch feemely gestures as much affected the Spaniards. The Licentiate Inan Cuellas read the Latin Grammet to the Mestizos of Cozco, with good fruite.

Mara Capae followed his predecessors examples, and went forth with 12000 men (the for-mer expeditions had beene with less company, as of 7000 and so vpwards as the state en-Booke. creafed) and couering his couetoufnesse and ambition with pretence of conuerting people to his religion , came to the disemboking of the great lake Titicaca, and made Boates for transport- This iesson ing his army. He brought wnder by faire meanes the Tiahnanacu, which people had admirable the Spaninas buildings. One was a hand-made Mount admirable high, founded on stones ioyned with moran ter, none could tell for what caufe. In one roome thereof flood two figures of Giants cut in flone with long garments downe to the ground, with coverings on their heads, well worne with age. Admirable There was also a huge wall of stones so great that it may breede wonder what force of men might buildings. Pebe able to bring or raile them where they are, feeing that in a great distance there are no quar- dro de Cisona. ries. There are other braue buildings, great porches or frontals, in diners places each made of cherchane eti ries. There are other braue buildings, great porches or trontais, in divers places each made or this it in his one flone in all the foure parts; yea to greater admiration some of these are set on flone, of which owned to fome are thirtie foote long, and fifteene broad, and fixe in front, and these stones fo great, and the more largely. porches are of one peece; nor can it be imagined with what inftruments they were wrought. The Naturals fay they are ancienter then the Ineas times, and that they imitated thefe in building the fortreffe of Cozeo; and knew not who made them, but have a tradition that they were ao all made in a night. It feemeth that they were neuer finished, but were onely beginnings of what the founders intended. Diego de Alcobaças Priest, my Schoolefellow, & borne in the same house that I was, being also my totter brother, and a Preacher to the Indians; which hath beene there, wrote to me that in that Region Tiabnanaen fast by a lake called Chaquinita, there stands a marueilous house, with a faire Court fifteene yards square, compassed with a high wall, on one side whereof is a great hall 45, foote long, and 22, wide, couered like the house of the Sunne in Casce. This Court with the wals and floore, hall, roofe, porches, and thresholds of two doores (the one of the hall, the other into the court) is all made of one peece wrought in one rocke : the wals of the hall and of the wall are three quarters of a yard thicke. The roofe though it feeme of that ch is of stone. They say it was dedicated to the Maker of the World. There are also many stones cut at in shapes of men and women, so naturall as if they were alme drinking with cups in their hands, fome litting, some on their feete, others as it were passing, others with children in their armes, and 1000, other postures. The Indians lay that for their finnes, and for stoning a man which palfed thorow that Prouince, they were converted into flatues. But to returne to our Inca, he lubdued many Nations or pettie habitations; fuch as would not be wonne by perswasions, hee maftered with feege and hunger. Battels were very rare. Hee died having raigned about thirtie yeares, and was bewailed a yeare after the cuftome. His Sonne Capac Tupanqui succeeded, the Capac Tupatqui

His first care, after his Diadem affured, was to visite his Kingdome; in which visitation hee fpent two yeares, enquiring into the courses of his Ministers and Gouernours. After this hee 50 Went up from Cozco with 20000. men, and went Westward. Hee caused a Bridge to be made in the River Apprimac at Huacachaca, lower then that of Aceha. Hee passed over it to the faire Province Tanabura, which gladly received him; thence to Aymara, there being betwixt those two Prouinces a Region dishabited of thirtie leagues; which passed, he found at the hill Mucanfe much people of that Province (which is thirtie leagues long, fifteene wide, rich of Ofyer Bridge, Minesof Gold, Silver Lead and Cattell) to encounter shim. But he fought rather to befeege them on the hill, having purposely sent men about, and by hunger forced them to composition after a moneths fiege. Having pacified the Armaras, hee proceeded to Cotapampa and Cotanera of the Nation Quechna; and after to the Vallie of Hacari, great and fertile. Hee made another expedition, leaving his Brother his Lieutenant of his Kingdome, and the foure Mafters 60 of his Campe his Councellours, chusing others to ferue him; and went to the Lake of Paria, where two Gwacas at contention , made him arbitrator , and themselves his subjects in the diuifion Collafurn. Thence thorow a fpicious Countrievnpeopled, but full of Cattell and hot Springs; hee came to the Provinces Tapacri and Cochapampa. Hee made another Bridge in the water-passage of Tuicara, The former of Huacachasa was made of Olyers, this of Bull-

Ffffff

Handierafes.

rulhes there growing, of which they made foure cables as big as a mans legge, reaching from one fide to the other; on which they laid great bundles of the same matter as bigge as an Oxe. from ly tied together and to the Cables: over these bundles they made two other cables which they faftened firely with the bundles: wpon these they laid other little bundles as bigge as a mans arme, wouen into each other and with the cables; these were as the causey of the Bridge. This Bridge is thirteene or foureteene foot broad, and about one hundred and fiftie paces long. They renewed it enery fixe moneths. Often vie made readinesse and quicke dispatch. They remoued it as they faw occasion. The In. a passed further to Chapanta, thorow a dishabited Countrey : this with fine other great Provinces he subjected, and then returned to Cozco, and rewar-

Remouing of people from one place to

The Kingdome now reached one hundred and eighty leagues from Cafes Southwards, and Westwards to the Sea, sixtie leagues one way, and eightie another ; to the East thirteene, to the South-east fortie. He adorned the houses of the Sunne which Manco Capac had founded, and that of the Virgins, with other great workes. After this he fent the Prince Roca with an army of 20000, men, by the way of Chinchasingu Northwards from Cuzco, which had continued ata flay tince Manco Capac, but feuen leagues from the Citie, the Country beyond being rough and enpeopled. He entred into the rich Countrey of Sura, which gently received him, as didalfo the next called Agucara, which was in enmitte with the former. The like successe hee had in Rucana, Nama (ca, and other Vallies to Arequepa eightie leagues outright, and foureteene in breadth. The Inca transplanted people from those parts to Aparimae, both being hot Regions. Old Inca Capac Tupanqui after the ethings dyed, leaving about eightie children (fome of them left one hundred, fome two hundred, and fome about three hundred) and his Sonne Rees (ucceeded. Let vs now speake of Cozco and the holies thereof.

Many children Religious reputation of

One of the principallest Idols of that Empire was Cofco, the Imperiall Citie, which the Indi. ans worthipped as a thing facred, because it was founded by Inca Manco Capac, and because it was the house and Court of the Incar their gods. If an Indian in the way met another which Cozco and the came from Cozco, though otherwise equall, and now he himselse were going thither, he gave him Inperactious holies therein. respect therefore as his superiour for having beene there; how much more if he were a neere dweller, or Citizen there? The like was in Seedes, Pulie, or what focuer was brought from Cozco, more efteemed for that cause then those of other parts in other respects as good. To hold it full in reputation, the Kings adorned it with fumptuous buildings, of which the principall was the Temple of the Sunne, every Inca increasing it, which is said to be builded by Tupanqui, because he enriched it, being before founded by Manos. The Chappell or shrine of the Sunne was that which is now the Church of Saint Dominge (although not the fame altogether) wrought of polished stone. The high Altar (that we may so call it, for they knew not how to make an Altar) stood to the East, the roofe was thatched (for they could not make tile.) All foure wals were couered from the top to the bottome with Plates of Gold. In the East or high Altar stood the Rich hangings figure of the Sunne, made of one planke or plate) of Gold, twice as thicke as the other plane on the wals; the face round with rayer and flames of fire, all of a peece. It was fo great that it to Suanes image. tooke vp all the end from one wall to the other. Neither had they any other idols in that or any other Temple but this : for indeede (whatfoeuer others fay) they worshipped no other gods but the Sunne. This Idoll fell by lot, in the Spanish Conquerours sharing, to one Marcin Serra, whom I knew and left aline when I came to Spame, who loft it at play in a night, whence they faid Prouesbially, bee had placed away the Sunne before it was up. Hee was street chosen the ordinary Alcalde of the Citie many yeares, and grew to abhoore play very much. But by such a share falling to one man, may be guessed the exceeding riches of that Citie. On the one fide and on the other of that Image were the deceased bodies of the Kings, placed according to their antiquitie, as children of the Sunne, embalmed (wee know not how) Bodiesof Kings fo that they seemed alive. They were set in their seates of Gold placed on plankes of gold, 50 holding their faces to the people. Onely Huapna Capac was placed before the figure of the Sunne with his face to it : as his best beloued sonne, whom they worshipped in his life time for his vertues. These corpes the Iudians did hide with the rest of their treasures, the most of which is not yet knowne. Anno 1959, the Licentiate Polo tound fine of them, three of the Kings, and two of the Queenes. The principall doore looked to the North, as it fill abides. That and the other leffe doores were lined with plates of Gold, in manner of a Porch. Without the Temple, on the top of the wats ran all alongst a chamfred worke of gold, in forme of a Crowne, about a yard broad, round about the Temple. Beyond the Temple was a Cloister of foure squares (one of which was the Temple) round 20

Инаупа Сарас.

ArichCloifter bout the top whereof was such a crowne of chamfered gold, as is before mentioned, about a Fine Chappels yard broad, inftead of which the Spaniards have fet vp one of white plainer. There were 63 iquares, or seuered Chappels standing by themselues, couered like a pyramis, which made the Moone Chap- three other fides of the Cloifter. One of them was dedicated to the Moone, all which and the doores thereof was covered with places of Silver. Her Image was placed therein like that of the Sun, with a womans face in a planke of Silver. Thither they went to visite her, and to commend themselves to her as the wite and sister of the Sunne, and mother of the Incas, and all their generation; and called her Mamaquillia, Mother Moone: but offered no Sacrifices to heras to the Sunnes On each hand of the Moones image were the bodies of the Queenes deceafed ranked in order of their antiquitie. Mamaoello Mother of Huayna Capac flood before the Moone face to Chappell of face, for producing such a Sonne. The next roome to that of the Moone, was dedicated to the Venus & Stars. Planet Venus, and to the seuen Starres, and to all the Starres in common, which they held to Charpellof be the seruants of the Moone, and therefore placed them about their Lady to be ready at hand Starres size. for any feruice. The next roome was lined with filuer also, and the porch of filuer. The roofe Chappell of was made with refemblances of Starres great and small, like the starrie streament. The next shunder, hight-10 to this of the Starres was dedicated to the Thunder and Lightning and Thunderbolt, all ning and bolt, which were fignified in one word Tlaps. They worshipped them not for gods, but held Chappellor Rainchow. them for feruants of the Sunne. They made no picture thereof. The fourth roome or Chappell was dedicated to the Rainebow, which they effeemed feruant to the Sunne; this roome and the former were all garnished with gold. On the golden plankes of this was the Rainebow painted. When they law a Rainebow in the skie, they couered their mouth with their hand, faying, that if their teeth were vincouered they would confume. The fifth building was for the chiefe Priests, and the other Priests which serued in the Temple, not to eate or drinke in. but for confultation about their Sacrifices: it was garnished with gold from the top to the

CHAP.13. Rich Chappels of Moone, Starres, Thunder, Rainbow: Priests.

The chiefe Priest was called Villac Vmn, that is, the Priest which speaketh, namely to the people, Priests what the Sunne hath given him in charge, or divels, or dreames, or other divinations have foretold. Three of those fine roomes remaine, the Gold and Silver except. Those of the Moone and Starres are downe. Every file had foure Tabernacles without, which had like workes on them in stone, as within of metcall. Not onely the wals but the floores of those Tabernacles also was of Gold. The Images were alto pouldered with Gemmes, Turkesses, and Emeralds; for they had no Diamonds nor Rubies. There were twelve doores to the Cloiffer, and as many Tabernacles or shrines, besides that of the Moones Chappell and of the Starres, these were of S luer, the reft were all plated ouer with Gold in forme of Porches. They had also in the house of the Sunne Women might many other roomes or chambers for the Priefts and feruants of the house, which were Incas of not enter. 30 priviledge: For none but an Inca might enter into that house; nor any woman, no not the wines Moneable or daughters of the King. The Priests semed their courses by weekes, which they reckoned by weekes, the quarters of the Moone : in which space they departed not out of the Temple day nor night. The Porters and all inferior officers were of the fame townes which ferued in the Kings house; Seruitors, there being no difference made in the two houses of the Father and the Sunne, but that one had Sacrifices, Bromen, the other no Sacrifice in it, equall otherwise in Maiestie. For severall Sacrifices they Foundames had severall roomes. In the house were fine Fountaines of water which runne chence in pipes of Gold : the Pillars were some of stone, others of Gold hollow, others of Silver ; there they washed the Sacrifices. Onely one of these Fountaines were left to water the garden of the Couent, till 1558, when it being occasionally broken, no Indian could tell whence that water came, or 40 how tohelpe it. Such traditions of facred things it feemes were kept by their Priefts, and now loft, Occasion seuen moneths after found the water, which they amended without further search of the Fountaine, the pipes lying very low.

This Garden was in the Incas time a Garden of Silver and Gold, as they had in the Kings and filure. houses, where they had many forts of Hearbes, Flowers, Plants, Trees, Beafts great and small, wilde tame, Snakes, Lizards, Snailes, Butterflies, small and great Birds, each fet in their place. They had Maiz, Quinua, Pulle, Frust-trees with the fruite on them all of Gold and Silver, refembling the natural!. They had also in the house heapes of wood, all counterfeit of Gold and Golden coun-Silver, as they had in the house royall : likewise they had great statues of men and women, and terfeits, children, and many Pirms or Troffes for corne, every day inventing new fashions of greater Ma-50 iestie, vfing yearely on the Sunnes chiefe festigities to present him so much Silver and Gold wrought into counterfeit formes. All the Veffell (which was infinite) for the Temples fernice, Pots, Pans, Tubs, Hogheads, was of Gold and Silver, even to the Spades, and Pickaxes for the All reffels and Garden. Like to this Temple of Cozco were others in many Prouinces of that Kingdome, in influments of which every Comma indevoured according to his power to have fuch riches of Gold and Silver. Gold.

But the most famous was that of Tricaca. This might for Gold and Silver compare with that of Coxoo. It is an Iland in the mids of a Lake of the same name, where their fables tell that after the floud, the Sunne first shined; and after that, he exposed his Sonne and Daughter (as ye have heard) to civillize the world. In these Rich Temple respects it was holden for a place sacred thorow all that Empire, and a Temple was built therein, all lined with plates of Gol., dedicated to the Sunne. All places fibiect to the Empire, yearely offered Gold and Silver and Precious stones, in thanks giving to the Sunne for his benefits there done them. This Temple had the fame Service as chat at Cozco. Of the offerings of Gold and Silver was fuch a quantitie flored in the He, befides that which was wrought, that it is more matter of wonder then credit. Blus Valera faith, that the Indians reported that there was enough Fiffff 2 and that he should never want bread all dates of his lite.

Gardenof gold

to build another Temple from the foundation, and when the Spaniards came, they threw it all In the Valley of Orcos, fix leagues Southwards from Cuzco is a little Lake aboue a mile abour.

but very deepe, into which the report was that much of Cnzco treasure was throwne. Some raing for trea- Spaniards agreed to be at colt to emptie it, Anno 1557, but having entred fiftie paces into their mains worse, by which they had thought to have conucied the water into the River Tucay, they were encountered with a rocke, which feeking to make way thorow, they brought forth more fire then stone, and were enforced to giue ouer. The Indians are thought to have hidden infinite treatures. But for that barren rockie Ice the Incas were at further coft to couer the stone with good earth, that it might beare Mayz (which growes no where in that cold Region) of which a 10 little quantitie grew, and by the King was offered to the Sunne in his Temple, and to the chofen Virgins in (#200, which were to fend it to other Monasteries and Temples, one yeare to one. and another to another, that they might have of that graine which feemed to have come from heauen. They fowed it in Gardens of the Sunnes Temple, and made fuch adoe about keeping and b. frowing it, that that Indian thought himfelte a happy man which had a graine of that Maiz, were in it old arily 1500. Nunnes. Some of them were ancient, called Mamacuna, that is,

Mothers which take charge, or core of the reft. Some were as Abbeffes, others as teachers of the Nousces both in rices and nandiworkes, as to ipin, weave and low; others were porters, or pro-unders of necessaries. They haved in perpetual closure to their dying day, neither might they fprake with any man, or fee any man or wom an, but those of their owne house. Onely the Cors and her daughters might have leave to enter and conferre with them. By them the Inca but for the Queene, or to receive Nounces. They had twentie Porrers, which men might not patie the second gate under paine of death. They had fine hundred Girles for service of the Mo-natherie, daughtets to thole which the first Inca had priviledged to be Inca. These also had their Manacunas. The principall exercise which the women of the Sinne did, was to make all the garments and robes that the Inca or his Copa did weare, and those fine robes which were offered to the Sunne. The King himfelfe might not give those Garments to any of his Curacae which were not of his bloud. They made also the Bread for the Sacrifices to the Sunne at the great

All the Vtenfils of the house, even to Pots and Pans, were of Gold and Silver, as in the house of the Sunne. They had such a Garden also as the other, of golden Plants, Birds and Beatls, O-40 bedience and Virginitie was perpetuall, under paine of burying quicke. Any man which should defloure, must not onely dye himfelfe, but his wife, children, kindred and neighbours. Such the Law, but there was neuerfound cause of execution. Like to these of Cuzco, dedicated to the admitted e ofe of the bloud Royall, pure, and mixed, and daughters also of the Curacas as a great fauour. Also some of the fairest of the common people to be concubines for the Inca, and not for the Sunne, but kept with like vigilance. Their life waslike the other, and their maintenance from the Inca. Their workes the Inca might impart with others, and themfelues alfo he might take out for his Conculines, which then might not returne againe, but either ferued the Queene or were tent into their Countries with great credit. Those allo which were old in these houses to might have like licente. Those that were dedicated for the King present, when hee was dead, were called Manacumas, and were inftructers of those Concubines which entred for the Enery of these houses had a Governour, which must be an Inca: a steward and othersoff en featts Raymi and Sittua, called Zanen, and the drinke which the Inca then dranke.

fencto know how they did, and whereof they had neede. The principall gate was not opened 30

Superfictious

The fourth Houses of Var-

The Inc. at had houses of Virgins retired in many Provinces, touching which the Spanish Hitternas have been edectived. I will speake of the house at Cusco called Aclashus, that is, the loufe of the chofen, to wit, for their beartie, or Hocke, to ferue the Sunne. Thefe lived not in the 20 Temple of the Sume, but ciffant a ffreete from it, a row of houses going betweene them. For ne ther might men enter where the Nuns were, nor women where the Priefts were. It was neceffary that these women hould be of regall bloud, without any mixture of either side. There 1500. Nuns.

Facerding ftr. keneffe.

Nunsworkes.

Robes for perfume.

Gelden Gar-P. rpetuall vir-

Other Nunnes Sunne, were other Nunnes and houles in principal! Provinces of the Kingdome. In which were

Mamieumzi

All the vessels were of Gold and Silver, as in the houses of the Sunne and of the King, so that all the Gold and Silverin the whole Kingdome was spent in manner in the Sunnes ferrice, and or thole which were effeemed his descendants. The Curacus were flinted what veilels of Place they might haue for their owne vie, which was but little. They might neuer be bestewed ono-Sparifbaurhors ther men, which had beene choien women for the Inca; for they held it a profanation of that which was holy; yea to be a flue to the Inca was more efteened then to be wife of another Lord. efteeming him as next to the Sunne; wherein some Spanish authors have beene deceived, yet did he reward his great men with women, but they were the daughters of other Curucus of Captaines, which held this for a fauour done them that he should eitheme their daughter is 4 iewell, which with his owne hand he would bestow. Sometimes (but feliome) hebestor rates

some of the Caracas his owne Daughters which were (as they esteemed such as were not of the wholebloud) battards, which hee had by women not of his Inca-kindred, which was holden

Befides thefe, there were many other of Royall bloud which lived retired in their owne hou- Another fort fes with vow of Virginity, though not inclosed in any Monastery : which tooke libertie to goe of Nunnes. out to visit their kindred neere them in their ficknesse or travell. Such were highly reputed and were called Oclio, a facred name : and if they loft their chaftitie, were burned aliue or caft to the Lyons Denne, One of these very old I knew, which visited my Mother, beeing her Grandfatherstifter. Willowes in the first yeere of their widow-hood kept very close; those which had Widowis to no children married againe; but those which had, continued continent all their lines : in which

refrect the Lawes allowed them many priviledges, and the tillage of their grounds before the

CHEACAS OF THEAT And for matter of Marriage in Coace, once in a yeere or two, the King affembled all the youth Marriages. of both Sexes, of his owne Linage, the Males of twentie to foure and twentie, the Maids of eighteene and fo to twentie (he permitted them not fooner to marry) and called them forth, fuch a man and such a maide, and having towned them with his owne hand, delivered them to their Parents : after which the Marriage Feath was folemaized by the new Parents, two, foure, or fixe dayes. These were legitimate wises and the most honoured. The day following his Officers did the like for the Citizens, observing the distinction of High and Low Cozco. The Governour 30 in each Division with the Caracas did the like in their governments, the Inca never wirrping but affifting the Caracas Iuriforction. Those of one Prounce might not marry with those of another, wards, not inbut observed the Rites of the Tribes of Ifrael : nor might they goe to live out of their Provinces termarrying, or out of their owne Townes, or the Wards of the fame Towne.

In defect of children by the lawfull Wife, the Inheritance by Law fell on the eldeft of the mance. bloud lawfull, as from Huafear :o Manco and never to Baftards : for which Lawes take Atabueloe destroyed all the Royall bloud, hee being a Bastard. Others might not marrie their fifter, but the lace only. The Prouinces differed in some cases, the elder Sonne of the lace succeeding, in other places all the brethren after each other, and somewhere the best esteemed of the Sonnes. Divers cu-

Such viages were before the Incas times, and not broken by them.

30 The Inca made a great Feast at the wayning of the cohieft Son, which was at two yeeres old or vowards, & they first cut off his haire with a flint-razor, the Fathers beginning, each following in his dignity; then did they name him and offer presents. The fame was imitated by the Curacas Care of Inand the people. Their children were brought vp without any dainty niceneffe. Affoone as they fants. were born they washed them in cold water, and then put them in blankets. They gave them the breaft but at morning, and noone and night, thrice a day, how much focuer they cried, left they should be gluttons. But of I fould follow our Author in honfrold affaires, I fould be too long.

Inca Roca their fixth King puriued his Northerne Conqueits to Chanca, a valiant Nation, Inca Roca the which fay they descended of a Lyon, and therefore worthipped the Lyon for God. I have seene them in their Feast of the Sacrament twelve of them like Herenles, attired in a Lyons skinne. He 40 proceeded to the end of the Prouince Autabuarila and thence to Bramarca and Hancobualis and Villes, Sulle, and Viunfulls. After that he tent his Sonne the Prince Tabuarhuarac to Antifugu of the East, where fince Mance Capac they had done nothing. They say that when this Prince was borne, he wept bloud, and fo his name ngnifieth. Other Historians haue herein beene decei- Acoffe and oued. He tooke with him fifteene hundred Warriours , and three Campe-mailers. Hee went to ther, fay that Hamfes (Which was after, the lot of my Father Garculaffe de la Vega) and thence to the Vallies it was thorow where the herbe Caca groweth, so much esteemed by them: and beyond it to Cannac-buay which rivite. bath five leagues of delicent almost perpendicular, and striking terrour to the beholders : how cuca. much more to them which goe downe, the way winding like a Snake? In these Provinces of the Steep & deepe Antis they worthipped Tygres and great Snakes five and twentie or thirtie foot in length, called descent of the Marn, which doe no harme, being as fome lay, charmed to that innocence by a great Magi-

50 cian. They worthinged also the herbe Cuca or Coca as the Spaniards call it. In this Expedicion the Prince added thirtie leagues to the Empire, but ill peopled. The Inca Roca leaving the Prince his Deputie, went with thirty thousand to the Conquett of Chareas : and added fittle leagues square to his Sourreigntie : after which he dyed and his Sonne Tahuar Huacac succeeded. Rocas Tahuar Huacac Lawes and Schooles which he is faid first of all to have founded in Cozco, for the Arts aforesaid, the seventh I omit. He was wont to fay that Pachacamac must needs be a great King which had such a house linea. as the glorious Heauens to dwell in : alto, that if he were toworship any thing below, he would Apophibegmen worthip a wife and understanding man: Yet faith he, that which beginneth, groweth, dieth irrecoverably, ought not to be worthipped. 60 Tahnar Huacar or weep-bloud, for the ill distinings of that accident at his birth, stayed a good While in visiting his Kingdomes before hee thought upon Conquests. Yet at length hee sent his Brother Inca Marta with twenty thousand South-westward, which conquered from Arequesa to Tacama. After this he minded a more haughtie Defigne to conquer Caranca and other Regi- Tabun buscat ons in the Divition Collafuyu valiant people, but was foone called to other thoughts by the ill acts.

Tribes, towns;

Lawes of Inhe

Fiffff 3

Beare of his Seance

demeanour of his eldest Sonne, whom therefore hee purposed to dishert for his cruell conditions. He caufed him to line with the Shepherds which kept the Cattle of the Sunne in Chita, which he did, carrying himfelte like a Shepherd three yeeres and a halfe. He came one afternoone to his Fathers house and sent to speake with him, who sent him word that he should goe thicker where he had placed him, having incurred death by breaking his precept. Hee fent word that hee came with a mellage from as great a Lord as himfelfe, which when he had deliuered he would returne. He manuelling what Lord that should be, admitted him to his presence, and heard him tell that A vision of the at moone that day, as he was feeding the Sunnes cattell, there flood a man, before him in a ftrange habit and forme, having a beard on his face aboue a span long, and clothed to the foot, with anwhichowne creature failtened to his necke. He faid (that be was the Sonne of the Sanne and brother les of Manco Capac the first Inca, and therefore to them all: that hee was named Viracocha Inca, and came from the Sunne our Father to gine him aduife that the most of the Proninces of Chinchaluyu; both [ubiects and others, were in armes and comming with a mightie Armie to destroy the Imperiall Ciooto juouetta ana sooti, mee en armes onna commune una a conquesta attine te uniterio tota imperio ele-tic COCO: that therefore be floudd preuent and proude in time. And fores thom not, for un badifi-ener adurefità un'il factour these au my field and blond. After these words hee vanished away. His ener adurefità un'il factour these au my field and blond. Father chid him and would not beleeve him. Three monethes after came newes of the Rehellion of many Nations which had killed their Gouernours, and had aftembled thirty thousand Souldiers in demand of Cozco: Hancebualla was their Generall. This was the first Rebellion of the Propinces which the Incas had conquered, and was fo judden to Tabuer Huacae that hee fled out of Cozce with a few followers, with purpose to secure himselfe in Collassyn. The Citizens were readie to fice each his way, till some thinking of the Prince (whom vpon that Dreame or Vition they called Viracocha Inca, his former name is vnknowne) gaue him intelligence thereof, He gathered what forces he could, and followed his Father to whom having prefented in a pithy forech, the milerable leaving of the house and holies of the Sunne, and of the Sunnes Virgins to fuch prophane Enemies, hee bid those which loued an honourable death before a shamefull life to follow him : which foure thousand of the Royall bloud did, to whom others from all parts affembled. Hauing fet order in Cozeo, hee went with eight thousand resolute Warriours to meete the enemy which had now passed the River Aparimac.

He next day came newes of 20000 men, comming to his aide from Cantifaya, which 30 hee attributed to Viracetha which had promifed him fuccour in all diffress; this bred him. respect, and confidence to the businesse with the Indians. He entertained these supplies toy fully, which told him of other fine thouland comming two dayes behind. To thefe hee lent word to Embulcado themselues in a place appointed, that so in the fury of the battle they might come forth vn-xpected. This they did and much daunted the enemies, especially when with shours and cryes manifold small troupes came in alto which were of such as had fied from Cozca, who hearing of the Princes relolation made head as they could and made the Rebels thinke that they should neu. r fee an end of their enemies. A brute was alto railed, and sumoured in both Campes that Virachoca turned stones and trees into men, to fight for the Prince. The battle continued eight hours with fo much bloud, that 40 a Brooke in the Plaine rame therewith. Twentie thouland were flaine on both fides, twelve and his Son not about him, beleeuing but two Gods the inuifible and visible as is said; the Indians telling Fables to pleafe the Spaniards, and fome things for want of the Language were not rightly understood by the Spaniards. The Prince after the Victory fent three Messengers, the first to the house of the Sunne (for in all things they dealt with him as if he had beene a bodily man, fet-

Advantage by Acolla taxed, thousand of the Rebels side besides their Generall and Campemasters taken.) Father Acosta hath Sec [49, 1060. much of this Viracocha, but altogether fabrilous. For the Indians efteeme him next to the Snine,

Their dealing

Why the Spacalled Viraco-

b Acofafaith they came by Sea, in con-

ting him meate and drinke, &c.) the other to the house of the Virgins, the third to his Father. He dealt very mildly with the Rebels and their wines and children, pardoning them and protiding for the Widowes and Orphans. Hee was received with great libilee in (ozeo, and thence 52 went to the Straits of Muyna, to visit his Father which feemed malcontent. They spake some words in private, and the Prince came forth and faid that his Father would not returne to Cozco. This (whether true or falle) was enough, and in vaine had he now gainfaid it; fo that a Pallace of pleasures was there built for the Pather to spend the rest of his dayes, his Sonne taking the Diademe. This Vision of Virachoca with a heard and clothed to the foot, whereas the heardlelle Natines are clothed but to the knees, was the cause that the Spaniards at their first comming were called Virachoca: and for that they tooke and killed the Tyrant Asabuallya, which had flaine Hussear the right Heire, and wrought fo many cruelties. Which caused that fix Spaniardiacalled because lone, of which was Soto and Bares, went to Cozes two or three hundred leagues without harms. They called them also Incas, Sonnes of the Sunne. That which some fay, b that they were cal- 60 hed Vorachuea, because they came by Seasfaying that the word signifieth the fat(or fourime) of the for mme or the Sea, they are deceived : for Viracheen is the Sea of far, or tallow (Vira, febo; cocha, mar) to that it appeares to be a proper name, and not compounded, I conceiue further that the Artillery was the cause that they were called Viracheca.

CHAP. 12. Temple, Conquests, Aqueducts, improving, dividing tilling of lands, 1452

This luca Uiracocha by his victorie and vision was so esteemed, that in his life time they worthipped him as a God ient by the Sunne for reparation of things amiffe , reverenced him Beyond his predecessors. He built a Temple for memoriall of that Vision to Diracacha in Cacha, therein Viretarhas initating, as much as was possible, the place where hee faw the fame, and therefore without a Temple. more; it was an hundred and twenty-foot long, and eighty wide, of those fairely wrought, with foure doores, the Easterne onely open, with his figure in a Chappelly formewhar refembling those Images which were make of the Apostles. The Spaniards destroyed it, as they did other famous worker which they found in Peru, icariely any Monument remayning : which they did to fearch for steafure vinder them. He made alto two hoge Birds called Continues (to great; that Condines or o some have beene found with the extremes of their wings extended, fine Varas, or specific vanis. Contors, huge afunder) they are fowlesof prey, fo fierce, that their dammes breake their talons, take beake for Strong, that ar once they will breake the hide " of a Cow. Hee made the picture of these two " curo, pet-Birds, one representing his father in my florie fleeing from Corce, the other Unacoche, He fought haps it should to gratifie his Commanders and Subicets, and fought new conquests. Hee fent Pahnac may to Inco his brother against Caranca, Thaca, Lips, Chicha and Ampara. Their two last worthstoped the ranke of Hills for their heigth , and for the Rivers which they yeeld. These were all subjet Oted : and Eastward to the Sierra, or fnowy Hill, Sonthwards to the firtheil Province of Chara cas two hundred leagues from Cozco. So that the Sea and the Hills on each hand, and Southward the Defarts betwint them and Chill, bounded the Empire. Northwards het went with 20 thirty thousand warriours to Huamanea, and other Nations which hee fubiected. Hee made a tour tourist it water-pallage twelve foot in the channell, to run an hundred and twenty leagues from betwint Huge Aque. Paren and Picay to Rucana; and another thorowall the dinifion Cuntifugu from South to. North one hundred and firty leagues from the high Sierras to the Quechuas: which may be ranked with the Wonders of the world confidering the Rockes they brake thorow without infiruments of steele, and onely by stones with force of hands. Neither know they to make arches, but were . driven to goe about. The Spaniarde have fuffered them all to perifh : as they have permitted two third parts of those which were to water the Corne grounds to be lost also.

E nbaffadours came from Tuema (the Spaniards call it Tuemnan) to the Juca, offering vaffalage, Tuema, whom hee made to drinke in his prelence (an inestimable fauour) and promised somuelt better 20 respect as his course deserved. Hancobnalls notwithstanding all his kinde viage, left his Countries to got feeke new and the Inca fent Colonies to the Chances. This Inca they fay had a forttelling of the Spaniards comming. Hee died, and left his sonne Pachacines luca his home. It is suppored that he raigned aboue fiftie yeeres. Anno 1,60. I faw his body in Cozes, in the posfestion of Licenciate Polo, with foure others : this with white haires, the fecond of Tapas thes See fup. Acoust Tupanqui, the third of Huayna Capac, which two were heavy but not white: the two other were Queens; Mama Runtu wife to Viracocha and Mama Oslo mother of Huana Capar. They were fo whole that there wanted not haire eie-brows nor haire on the eie-lids. They had their garments, ribands, & diadems, as while they lived. They were fet as the Indians vie with their hands across on their breatts, the right hand ouer the left, their eyes downwards, as looking on the ground, 40 and seemed as if they had beene aline, and full fieshed. The lindians would never tell the Spaniards their embalming arte. They weighed so little, that they were easily carried to the Gentlemens houses which desired to see them. The Indians by the way kneeled to them with sighs and tears.

When the Inca had conquered any Province, and fetled the government, hee improved the lands which would beare Mayz, fending Enginers to that purpole for conueyance of waters, Manner of image without which they fowed no Mayz in those hot Countries. They also made plaine the fields, allotting and layd them in figures, the better to receive the water. They made plaine the Mountaines lands. which were capable of feed, as it were in scales or steppes, one plaine subordinate to another, therefore called Andenes. Having thus improved the Land, they divided it, to each Towne their fhare by themselves; each subdivided into three parts, one for the Sunne, a second for the King. The Sunne, and the third for the Naturals; with that prouition, that alway the Naturals should have suffi-50 cient, and if the people increased, the Sunnes and Incar part were lessened, that they should not want. The like division they made of the grounds which needed not such watering towed with other feels. The Andenes commonly belonged in greatest part to the Sunne, and the Inca. The Mayz grounds they fowed every yeere, heartning them with dung, as Gardens. They first husbanded the Sunnes grounds, next that of Widowes and Orohanes, and of the Order of tile old and ficke, all which were holden for poore, and had peculiar men in every Towne appoin. lage. ted Officers for that purpose. They had feed alto, if they wanted, out of the Store-houses. Each man was tied to husband enough for prouision to his owne houshold. The lands of those which Care of Wiferued in the warres were provided as those of the poore; their wives for that time being re-

60 spected as widowes. And if any were flaine in the warres, great care was had of his children. After thetelands, each man tilled his owne, one helping another in courfe; then those of the Curaca, which were last cultivated in enery Towne. In Huayna Capacs time, one of the Chachapuyas was hanged for tilling the Curacas land his kiniman, before the widowes, and the Gallowes was fet up in the Curacas land, where hee had transgressed the Incas precept. The last of all was the Incas lands, which thought his good to be grounded on the prosperitie of his Subiects. There and those of the Sunne were common workes which they did with their best ornaments and rayment, with spangles of Silver and Gold, and feathers on their heads, as on feathers fitual dayes; with fongs in breaking vp their ground, in praise of their God and Prince. One. Anden neere Cozco, being the first in the Kingdome which was dedicated to the Sunne, wastlaled onely by Incas and Palles of the bloud Royall with a great feast in their beast iewels, making Some of Harli, that is, of triumph. Their Plough (or Spade rather) was of wood, a yard long. plaine before and pointed, round behind, foure fingers thicke; halte a yard from the point was a firrup of two pieces of wood taftned to the principall, in which he fet his foot, leaping and a natural ing it forcibly into the ground up to the filtrup. They went in companies, feuener eight me together, and digged up turtes of incredible bignetie. The women went besides them to helps with clieir hands to lift up the earth, and weed out the rootes, and to cheare them with Songs. The Land was divided to each man according to the number of his familie, and to the Cmaca in greater proportions : likewife the water and other things necessary.

1470 Order of tillage, tribuses of labour or Lice; Prefents, Store-boufes. LIB.VII

Workes in with feftmall alacritic. Incas abour.

Spade.

Tributes of Labour.

Wames.

The principall tribute which they payed was this labouring the grounds of the Sunne and Inca, gathering their fruits, and keeping them in places appointed. Of their owne private lands they payd nothing. Other tributes were their making of clothes, shooes and armes for expense in watte, to which end they had wooll of the Cattell of the Sunne and Inca, which were innimetable in the Hills, and Cotton in the Plaines. The poore were sied to give on certaine daves · Lowie-tribute- to many pipes of Lice fo to acknowledge fubication, and to keepe themselues cleane. The Roy-

Scotteemen, all kindred, Prieits, Ministers, and Curaius were tribute-free; the chiefe Captaines to Centurions, the Iudges, Officers and Souldiers in time of feruce, young men under 24, and old men aboue co. and all women and maidens: Their labour was not imposed but voluntary. Gold, Silver and Gemmes were not reckoned tribute, nor treasure, nor price of other things bought uer no money, and fold, or of mens labour. Onely they efteemed them for beautie, and thereof made voluntary presents for the Temples, Nunneries and houses Royall. For they might not visite a Superious without a Prefent. The Caracas in the principall feafts must visite the Inca, and made him Prefents of these or other things of account, as materials for buildings, Lyons, Tigres, Beares, Parots, Monkies, great Snakes, or any other thing faire, fierce, great or strange. The King had in every Towne two places, one to keepe his goods for the feruice of the Sunne and himfelfe, ano 30 ther for prouifion against deare yeeres; besides others for high-wayes, &c. Wooll was distributed every two yeeres, as any had need for garments for them and theirs, fo that none needed to Hospitals.

conquelts.

begge, neither had they any beggars in later times. I neuer faw Indian man or woman in my time that begged but one old woman named I fabell, which did it more to goe from housew Innes and tra- house, as a Griptie or Luggler, then for any need. The lucas also caused to build publike Innes for entertainment of Strangers, which had all necessaries free out of the Kings Store-houses: and & any were ficke, they were likewile prouided for. None trauelled in private affaires, but in the Kings businesse. When any new con quest was made, they recorded on their quipus the quantitie, Course in new qualitie, fite and other conditions of the lands of each Prounce, Towne and Diuision, that order might accordingly be taken. The Mines were given to the Caracte. Salt, Fift and Cotton were so common, none to applie any part to himselte, but to gather what hee needed. Each man might plant trees in his owne ground and enjoy them at his pleafure. The lands were divided as you

The Sixth Booke. Supendious buildings and

THe fertice and ornament of the houfes Royall of the Iseas may freme to have exceeded any Kings of the world in some things. The buildings of their Houfes, Temples, Gardens, and Baths were adorned with stone fairely wrought, and let to close that the joynture could not bee feene. Many of them had melted Lead or Silver or Gold for the joyning, which cauted the totall destruction of them all, by the Spaniards feeking for those metals. They had the counterfeits in Gold and Silver of herbs which growe on walls, as if they had beene the plants there 50 growing: and likewise the relemblances of Mice, Butterflies, Snakes great and small, Lizards Their houles, feeming to moue; the Iness chambers were lined with Gold, with figures of Men, Women, Birds, all knowne Beafts wilde and tame, all in their naturall figure and largenefic in Gold and Silver; the Incu Chaires of state were of folid Gold, without backes, having a great square Table of Gold ouer them. All the veffels of service both for Table, Butterie and Kitchin, small and great, were of Gold and S luer, and that in all the Kings houses, so that when her sourneyed in progresse they did not remoue them from one house to another, as likewise in the Prounces where he had occasion to march with his Armies, or to vitite his Kingdomes. Hee had in them also of like metals many Granaries and Repositories not to keepe Graine, but to expresse

Carmente Cieça, Zavate, Gemera,and o.her Spa-

Hee had flore of rich garments, the Inca never ving to weare one thing twice, but guing of the food them once worne, to his kindred. The bed-furniture was of the wooll of the Vicunna, to hire, gious treatures that King Philips Beds are thence turnished. Feather beds they had not, but had fuch Mandes layd ouer and under them. Tapitire was tupplied with linings of Gold and Silver on the walls. CHAP.13. Golden Gardens and Woodstackes. Court-officers. Hunting; posts. 1471

Their prouisions for diet were abundant, they preparing for all their kindred and feruants: the hours were from eight to nine in the morning, and in the evening lightly by day-light. Their drinking lafted till night, for whiles they eate they drinke not.

Their Gardens and Orchards had all the fairest trees and plants planted, and many others Gardens, Oscounterfeited of Gold or Silver; as Mayz with the leaves, stalkes, roots, and reedy tops of gold chards and and illuer mixed, and foin other herbs and flowers; fome comming forth, fome halfe growne, Baines, some ripe; with counterfeits of Lizards, Butterflies, Snakes, Foxes, wilde Cats (for they had none tame) Birds of all forts and pollures, fet on trees and plants; Decre, Lious, Tigres, and whattoeuer creatures the Land had, fet in due places. Their Baths had great veffels in 10 which they bathed themselves, of gold and filver, and water pipes of the same. They had also wood-flackes counterfeited thereof. The most of which treasures the Indians hid from the couctous Spansards, vinwilling that others should bee served with that which was for the service

The feruants and officers for Water, Fewell, and the Kitchin, for the Table of state (for the Seruants and Women and Concubines provided for the Inca himfelie, Butlers, Porters, Keepers of the Ward, Officers, robe, lewels, Gardens, and in other Offices, were not particular persons: but for enery Office they had two or three Townes affigned, whose charge it was to fend men of abilitie and truft, by dayes, weekes, or moneths changed in courfe : and this was their tribute; the whole Towne being punished in any defect. These Townes were within fixe or feuen leagues of Cozco, being

20 thole which Manco the first Inca had reduced from Sauages to Townes of civilitie, and thele were Incar by proulledge, and had the title and attire according. The Incar huntings were at Huntings. certaine times of the yeere with twentie or thirtie thousand men, one halfe going on the right hand, the other on the left, circling in twen ie or thirtie leagues, bringing in whatfoeuer wilde beafts in that compasse, and killing all they pleased. Every foure leagues they had Posts , swift Posts. runners for fudden mellages, called Chafquis, eicher by word or quipus. But now wee will re-

Pach source having finished the folemnities visited his Kingdome, to examine the courses of Pachscutee, his Gou-mours : and then fet forth his brother Capac Tupanqui with an Armie, which paffed the night ince, thorow the Province Sanfa, corruptly by the Spaniards, called Xanxa, which professe to be de- Sanfa Dog-30 scended of a man and a woman which came out of a Fountaine; their Townes were lke Fortreffes: they worthipped the fig tre of a Dog, and did eate Dogs flesh sauourly. They had also an Holl like a man, in wi ich the Deuill spake. This people called Huanca were subiccted, the Tarma and Pumpu also and Chucurpu, Ancara, Huayllas (in which Province he grieuously punifined Sodomites, a finne before vnknowne to the Indians) after which conquests hee returned to Cozeo, having guned fixtie leagues North and South in that Expedition, continuing three Benefite and yettes. Pathamete was built in making Lawes, building Temples, founding Houfes for elect or peropaine of chofin University in the Principes (which was to make find) Principes. Circums and Natural of Numerica and cho for Ungins in the Provinces (which was to make fuch Provinces, Citizens and Naturals of Sun-temples Cozeo) in erecting Fortresses also in his frontiers, and Royall Palaces in the most delectable places, and Store-houtes to keepe prouitions against yeeres of dearth. He spent three yeeres in visi-

40 ting his Kingdome, and after tent his brother Inca Capac Tupangui with his fonne the Prince Inca Tupanqui, knighted that yeere after their manner, and fittie housand men by Chinchusus to Peruan Knighte Pincu, Huaras, Piscopampa, Cunchucu, which being tubiceted, hee proceeded to Huamachucu, where they worshipped particoloured stones, and facrificed mans flesh, which was in that conquest altered. After that they came to Cassamerea (famous for the taking of Atahualpa by the Spaniards) where they first stood out and after yeelded, and there was founded a Temple for the Sunne, and a house of Virgins, which after grew one of the chiefe in the Kingdome. In re- Forme of Pt. turning they subdued the Tanious, and were with festivall pompe entertained in Cozco, each Na. 1448 trumphe tion in the Citie gracing the folemnitie, fingled in their feuerall bands with warlike Musike, adding Songs of triumph: betwixt the Generall and the Prince went the Inca Pachacutec, till

50 they came to the limits of the Temple of the Sun, and then they put off their shooes, except the Shoo error Inca which at the doore of the Temple was vnshod also, where entring, adoring and rendring monic. praises for the victories, they returned to the Market place where they folemnized the feath with longs, dances, and good cheere. Each Nation arose from their place and tung and danced before the Inca after their Countrie guile. This continued a moneth.

After this the King with his fonne and brother went to the conqueft of the Vallies Pifce, River mine Tea, Chincha, which Countries hee enriched with a Ruer from the Sierres, tuning the course cae of the Ica, Courcha, Which Countries hee enriched with a Ruer from the Sierra, turning the countries which naturally went Eastward into the West, to water the grounds. All those Nations for Sea worship. fine hundred leagues space worshipped the Sea, besides the particular Idols of each People, and ped. called it Mamacocha, or Mother Sea, for her plentie of fifth, which three gains them to eate. They Pachacomaco 60 worthipped allo the Whale for the monthros greatnesse. In another expedition the Vallies Rung Temple, and buanac, Huaren, Malla, Chilea, all subiect to one Prince, were subdued, the Inca besieging and fa- Oracle 12.4 milling their Armie. Then palled they to the Vallies of Pachacamae, Rimae, Cancay and Huaman, which also hid one King, called City maness. The Spaniards corruptly call Rionac. Lima: Pachucamac had the name of the inmulible God, neither had they any Temple to him in all Pern

Cursmancy refused tubiection to the Incas demands in name of the Sunne, faying his Pachacamac was the Creator and prefereer of all, and therefore greater then the Sunne, to whom they had erected a Temple, where they offered the best things they had, and held him in such reue-Rices of Pacha- rence, that when the King entred his Temple to worth p him , he did not dare to looke on him, Io samer Temple but he and the Priest went backwards with their shoulders towards the Idoll : and that hee also adored Rimac which fore-told things to come; and Mamacocha, the Sea. The Inca fent him word that they also in their hearts worthipped Pachacamac, but without Temple or Sacrifice. because they knew him not, and were fearefull to pronounce his name. Many other words of perswasion passed, and peace was concluded, on condition that they should worship the Sunne. as did the Incas, and make him a Temple apart as to Pachacamae; that they should take away their Idols in the Temple of Pachacamac, and worth p him without Statue; and that they should cease humane Sacrifices : that a House of Virgins should be erected in the Valley of Pachacamae: that Cursmanen should remaine in his Loruship, acknowledging the Inca Lord Soueraigne, and obeying his Lawes, and that Rimacs Oracle should still bee in estimation. And thus Royall af- 20 faires, and those of greatest moment were after consulted of in Pachacamacs Temple, vulgar bulin fles were remittes to Rimac. Pachacutec having beene a great King and Priest and Cantaine, enriched the Temple of the Sunne, courring the walls with plankes of Gold, as also the Shrines, and or the Cloutter. Where the Idoll of the Sunne was, there is now the bleffed Sacrament, and in the Cloitter are Processions, and yeerely Festivals in the Couent of Saint Dominge. Hee fent his some in another Expedition, who comming to the Valley, entred Pachacamaes

Temple, but without Sacrifices or verball Oritons, onely professing mentall adoration. He vifited also the Temple of the Sunne with rich offerings, and then the Idell Rimae : and after marched to Huamac, where Chimu a great Lord reigned : from thence to Truxille in the Vallies Par-munca, Hualims, Santa, Huarapu and Chimu. Here while Chimu would admit no new Gods, a 20 bloudy warre followed, which at last ended in his vasfallage. The Inca now having enlarged his estate aboue an hundred and thirty leagues North and South, and in breadth from the Hills to the Sea forme fixtie or feuenty leagues, fell to founding Townes, Temples, Store-houses, and reformed the Empire, ennobled the Schooles, augmented the Schoole-masters, caused all the Ca-races and all Officers to learne the (wico Language (as common) and much enlarged (ozco. Hee reigned about fiftie yeeres, or as others, aboue fixtie, and left Tnea Tupanqui his successor . leaving about three hundred fonnes and daughters. The Spanish Authours confound the father and the fonne. Many of his sentences and lames are recorded by the authour, here omitted: as likewise the transplanting of Colonies, order of bringing up the Curacas beires in the Court; the common or Court Tongue; the description of Cozco, the Schooles, and the three Royall Palaces, Almes, &c. for all these $10

Cozco was another Rome, in which the Sunne had foure Festivall folemnities observed, the

I remat the curious to the Authour, fearing blame for this our length. Tet their chiefe Feast of the Sun, principall in Iune, which they called Truip Raymi, as it were The Sunnes Eafter, and absolutely

Raymi, in acknowlegement of the Sunnes Deity ouer all, and his being Father of the laca, Manco and his descendants. All the principall Captaines which were not then in the warres came to it, and all the Curacus, not by precept but of deuotion, in adoration of the Sunne, and veneration of the Inca. And when age, ficknesse, distance or butinesse in the Kings affaires detained them, they fent their formes or brethren with the chiefe of their kindred to that folemther; yet in this Featt proper to the Sunne, the King himfelte, as first-borne of the Sunne, was the principall Solemnizer. The Curacas came in their greatest brauerie, and best deuises; some like Hercules, in Lions skinnes with their heads in the Lions head-skinne, as boafting of descent from a Lion : Iome like Angels, with great wings of a Cuntur fourteene or fifteene foot dillant in the extremes ftretched out, as descended of that Fowle; some with vizors of most abominable and deformed formes, and those are the Tuncas; others with golden and filter ornaments; and others with other inventions. Every Nation carried the armes which they yield in fight, 25

nitie. The King did performe the first ceremonies as Chiefe Priest: for although they had a high 50 rites of triall and installing of Knights, I have added.

fundand.

Common Tongue,

See of their Frafte in Acofta.

Corco as Reme. mother of fuperfittions.
Raymi, hat is, the Feaft.

Generall affembly.

The King was chiefe Priest at Priest alwaies of the bloud Royall, Brother or Vncle to the King, legitimate by Father and Mo-

Faft of three tie, or accompanying with their wives all that time. The Fast ended, or the night before the

Bowes and Arrowes, Dirts, Slings, Clubs, Lances, Axes, &c. the pictures also of what soeuer exploits they had done in the feruice of the Sunne or Incm. Once; all came in their best accoultre. 69 ments and branerie that they were able. They prepared themselves to this festivitie with a rigorous Fast, in three dayes eating nothing but a little white raw Mayz, and a few herbs with water; not kindling a fire in the Ci-

Feath the Priests Incas made ready the Sacrifices and Offerings , which every Nation is to prorealt the Fileto and of the Sunne make that night a great quantity of dowe of Maiz called cancer, Bread fefficial. whereof they make little loues as bigge as a common Apple. Neyther do thefe Indians euer cat their Maiz made into breadbut at this Feath and at another called Cuna; then eating two or three bits at the beginning of the meale; their ordinary meales in flead of bread have care parched or boyled in graine. The Virgins of the Sunne prepare this bread for the Inca, and those of his bloud; for the reit, innumerable other women are appointed, which make it with Religious case.

In the morning early the face goeth accompanied with all his kindred, a mixed according to Aderation of 10 their age and dignitie, to the chiese flerest of the Citie called Hauespain: and there expect the the sifing sun. Sunne rifing, all barefooted, looking to the East with great attention; as soone as he peepes forth, fall on their elbowes (which is as kneeling here) adoring him with their armes open, and their hands before their faces, giuing killes to the ayre (as in Spaine it is the vie to kille a mans owne hand, or the Princes garment) to acknowledging him their God. The Caracas fet themselues in Festivall and another freet next thereto, called Coffipses, and make the same adorston. After this the King Drinke, it is the same another freet next thereto, called Coffipses, and make the same adorston. After this the King Drinke, the same and the same adorston the same and th of drinke, the one in his right hand, as in the name and fteed of the Sunne, as if he did drinke to his kindred (this was their greatest courteste of the Superior to the Inferior, and among it friends, to give them drinke) and powres it into a pipe of Gold, by which it runneth into the house of 20 the Sunne. After this he drinketh part of that in his left hand, giving the reft to the Incar in 2 fmall Cup,or out of the same vestell (this fanctifying or giving versue to all that is brought forth) enery man crinking a draught. The Curaem drinke of that which the women of the Sunne have bare-foot made. This done, they went all in order to the House of the Sunne, and two hundred paces before they came at the doore, they put off their shooes; only the King stayed till hee came at the doore. Then the Inca and his entred in and adored the Image of the Sunne, as naturall Sonnes. The Curacus abode in the street before the Temple. The suca offered with his owne hands the Oblations's veffels in which he had done that ceremony; the other lucas gaue their veffels to the Priefts (for they which were not Priefts, might not doe the Prieftly office, alchough they were of the blow.) The Priests having received the lacas offered vessels, went forth to receive those of the Ca-30 reces which brought them in order of their antiquity, as they had bin fubitect to the Empire; they gaue also other chings of Gold and Silver, with Sheep, Lizards, Toads, Snakes, Foxes, Tigres, Li-rings. one, variety of Birds, and whatforuer most abounded in their Countries. The offerings ended, they returned to their fireets in order. Then the lucas Priefts, bring forth great flore of Lambes, barren Ewes and Rams of all colours (for freep in those parts are of al colours, as Horses in these all being the Cattle of the Sun. They take a black Lambe (which they efteeme the holiest colour for Auguries. Sacrifices and the Kings weare commonly black) and offer that first for Soothfaying (a thing wied Black faireft. by them in all things of moment in peace and warre, looking into the heart and lungs for prog- Soothfaying noffications) they let the head to the Eath, not tying any of his feet, open him alius (being hold, field, den by these or four ladieur) and that on the left fide, to take out his heart and entrals with Kites thereof. 40 their hands, without cutting. The best Augury was if the lungs mooued when they were taken forth: the worst, if the Sacrifice in the opening arose on the feet ouercomming those which held it. If one producd valuckie, they assayed another of a Ram, and another of a barren Ewe; if all procued valueky they gave over keeping the Feart, and faid the Sunne was angry for some fault. which they had done, and expected wars, Dearth, Murrayne, &c. After this Augury, they opened not the other Sacrifices abue but out off their heads, offering the bloud and heart to the Sun.

The fire which they vied must bee new, given them, as they faid by the hands of the Sunne, which they did by the force of the Sunne beames finning thorow a Iewell which the High Prieft Holy fire. sheld in his hand (as by a burning Glaffe) on Cotton. With this fire they burned the Sacrifice and rofted that dayes fielh : and carried thereof to the Temple of the Sunne, and to the house of Vir-50 gins to keepe all the yeers. And if the Sunne did not thine, they made fire with motion of two mooth round flickes; but this absence or refusall of the Sunne they esteemed valucky. All the fieth of those Sacrifices was rosted openly in the two streets aforesaid; they parted it among it the Inca, Curaca, and common people which were at the Feast, giving it with the bread canen. After this they had many other Viands: and when they had done eating they fell to drinking, in Festival eating which vice they exceeded, though now the Spaniards example have that way done good, and and drinking, this vice is infamous among it them. The Inca litting in thate lends his Kinfmen to the principall in his name to make them drinke, first the valorous Captaynes, next the Caracas which have not bin Commanders in war, then to Cozeo-lucas by priviledge: the manner was this; the Inca which brought the drinke faid, she Capa Inca fonds thee banketting drinke, and I come in his name to drinke

60 with thee. The Captaine or Caraes tooke the Cup with great reuerence and lifted vp his eyes to the Sunne, as giving him thankes for such a favour, and having drunke, returned the Cup to the Inca with shew of adoration, not speaking one word. Hee tends to the Captaines in generall; but to some speciall Curacas only; the rest the Incas in their owne name, and not in the Kings, cause to drinke. The Cups were holden in great veneration because the Capa Inca had touched them with his hands and lips. After this beginning they fell to freer drinking one to another. and after that to dancing, the Fealt continuing nine dayes with great iollity, but the Sacrifices held but the first : and after they returned to their Countries.

1473

Manner of Knights.

Now for their Knights, till they had that order, they were not capeable of the dignities of warre or peace. The youths of the Royall bloud (for none elfe might be in election) from fixteen yeeres old vpwards, first made experiments of themselves in rigorous tryals, whether they could indure the hard Aduentures of warre. Euery yeere, or each other yeere, these noble youths were thut yo in a house where old Masters examined them. They were to fast seven dayes strictly. with a little raw Come and water, to try their endurance of hunger and thirst. Their Parents and brethren allowated for them to intreace the Sunne to fauour them. They which could not 14 fuffaine this falt, were rejected as vnfufficient. After this they heartned them with meate. and tryed their activitie in running of a certaine Race a league and halfe long, where was a Banner fer. which he that first came at was Captaine of the rest; others also to the tenth were subordinate. ly honoured. Their next tryall was in skirmish, one halfe to keepe, the other to get a Fortz and they which were now keepers, were another day befiegers, where eagernesse and emulation fometimes coft some their liues in that ludicrous warre. Then followed wreftling betwixt eguals, leaping, throwing small and great stones, also a Launce and a Dart, and other Armes, shoos ting, casting with a sling, and exercise in all weapons of warre. They caused them to watch ten or twelue nights as Centinels, comming fuddenly on them at vncertaine houres, shaming those which they found fleeping. They tryed with wands how they could indure ftripes, beating them 10 cruelly on the armes and legs (where the Indians goe bare) and if they made any lad remonstrance of forrow they rejected them, faying how would they beare their enemies weapons ? They were to bee in manner vnsensible. A Fencer also made semblance with a two hand Club called Macana, another while with a Pike, to hit or ftrike them, and if they shrugged , or in their eves or body made show of feare, they were rejected. Next they made triall whether they had skill to make their armes of all forts, and shooes called Vata, like those which the Franciscans

After all these, the Captaines and Masters of these Ceremonies tell them of their pedigree from the Sunne, the noble Acts of their Ancestors, and instruct them in courage, clemency and mildenelle to the poore, with other parts of morality. The Heire apparant indured no leffe rigorous to tryals then others, except in running for the Banner, and all that tryall time (which was from one New Moone to another) he went in poore and vile habit to teach him to pity the poore. These things done, the King solemnly attended, made a Speech to them, and each on their kneet receiued at his hand the firit Enfigne of dignity, which was to boare a hole in their eares.

The New Knight kiffed his hand, and the next person to the Inca put off his Vintas, and put him on gallant shoots of Wooll. Then did he goe to another place, where other Incas put him on breeches, as the token of manhood, which before he might not weare: after which they put on his head two kinds of flowres, and a leafe of another herbe which will long keepe greene. No other men might werre those flowres. The Prince had the same Entignes, and differed only in his yellow tringe of Wooll (which none but he, and that first after his tryall, might weare) and 45 an Axe of Armes with a kinde of laueline aboue a yard long; which when they put in his hand, they faid Aucumapac, that is, for tyrant Trayters. The Kings fringe was coloured; he ware befides on his head two feathers of a Bird called Coreguenque, which are faid to bee but a Male and a Female, in one place only called Pillacannia. Their they weare vpon their fringe: and every new Successor must have new. When the Prince is Knighted all of the bloud Royall adore him as

The feventh Інса Тирапциі The Music in-

T Nea Tupanqui bestowed three yeeres in visiting his Kingdome, and afterwards resoluted on a difficult deligne, namely to paffe the Anta Eastward from Cozco, that having traversed those high Hils, he might find paffage by some Rivers running thence Eastward: for the Hils them- 50 the renth Inca. felues fill covered with Snow raine and falling were impaffable; mooned by a tradition of many Habitations and Countries in those parts. One of which was called Musu (by the Spaniards, Moxes) to which he might enter by a River in the Antis divided into five, which all make the River Amarumayu; which I suspect to fall into the River of Plate, the greatest River knowns after Orellana, With this determination he fent to cut a great quantity of that stuffe which the Spaniards call Higuera, wherein they fpent two yeares, making thereof a kind of Boats, so many as received ten thouland Souldiers with their provisions, each holding thirtie, fortie, fiftie more or leffe, with their prouisions in the midft. Thus went they downe the River, and had great encounter with the Chancha which lived on both fides the River, all painted and naked with feathers on their heads armed, with Bowes and Arrowes. They were reduced to fubiection, and 60 fent presents of Poppenjayes, Monkies and Huacamayas, Waxe and Honey, which they continued till the death of Tupac Amara the last of the Incas, whom the Vice-roy Francis de Toledo

A Colonie of these was planted neere Tono, some fixe and twenty leagues from Cozco. They proceeded in their Conquest till they came at Musu two hundred leagues from Cozco. These hearing their Relations of the Incas conquests and deuotions, and Viracochas vision, were content to accept of their friendship, and confederacie, but not to acknowledge valiallage. They permitted them to make a plantation there, and gaue them their Daughters for Wives, being now Peruan Colons not about a thousand left, the rest wasted in the ill wayes and warres. They fent an Embassage in the Musius alfo to Cozes which were well entertained and inftructed in all their Rites. Thefe Peruans would Countrie, have returned into their Countrey about the time of Huayna Capacs death ... but hearing of the Spanish cor quest, stayed.

Anno 1 564. One Diego Aleman a Spaniard hearing of Gold in those parts, with twelve others Spanish atto went on foote with an Indian Curaca for his guide (the ill wayes admitted no Horses) and ha- empts fruuing travelled into the Mulm Countrey after eight and twentie dayes, were fet vpon and tenne frace. Spannards killed, Dugo himielte taken, and two only escaped in the darknesse of the night. The Indians made Diego their Captaine (of a Captine) against their enemies. About this Golden prize the Spaniar de after fell into contention, divers having gotten the grant, and many were flame by their emulous Competitors, and fo made an easie prey to the Chunchu. Three they took and after two yeeres dismilled them. One of them was a Frier and Priest whom they requested at his departure to fend for their conversion which was not done. But let vs returne to Inca

After this Expedition to the Mafin, hee resolved on the Conquest of the great Province 20 Chiribnana, which is voon the Antis Eaftward from Charcas, And because the Countrey was Chiribnana. vaknowne, he fent Spies which brought word that it was a wretched Countrey, wilde Moun- A Sanage beaffe taynes, miry Marishes, Lakes and Bogs, vnprofitable for Seed and Husbandry, and the Naturals brutish worse then beatls without Religion or worship of any thing, without Law. Townes. or Houses, and eating mans fielh, hunting to that end the Neighbour Provinces, and drinking their bloud, without difference of fexe or age; eating also their owne when they dyed, and we en they had eaten their flesh, they layd the bones together and mourned for them, burying those Relikes in Rockes or hollow Trees. They were clothed in skinnes, and abstayned not from fifters. mothers, daughters. Good Inca Tupangui (fo they vied to call him) hearing this, faid they were more bound to the Conquest, to the end to civilize them; for therefore our Father the Sun hath

Hee fent tenne thousand men which spent two yeeres, and returned without having ef- Invasions of feded their Deligne by reason of the ill condition of the Countrey. Neyther had the V ce-roy the Incas and Don Francis de Tolodo any better fuscelle in the like attempt. Anno 1 572, in which by reason of Santards 10 the badnesse of the waves vnpassable for Mules, his Litter was carried on mens shoulders, whom the Chiribnanas followed with cryes threatning to eate them. Such terrour they cause to the borderers, that an hundred of them will flee from ten: yet this little conversation with those which the Inea fent, inftructed them to leave eating their dead friends, and to dwell in houses

The good King Inca Tupanami after this , proceeded to another purpole of conquering Chili, Chili dif. care

40 and from Atacama fent Spies to discouer it, and the difficulty of the wayes: which pasted the red-Deferts and left markes in the way left they should loofe it at their returne, there beeing eachty leagues of Wildernesse from Atacama to Coparapa, which is a little Prouince well peopled, from which to Cuquimpu are other eightic leagues vnpeopled. These having given advice to the Inca. he fent ten thousand men of warre vn ler the command of Smebirnes with provisions necessary; and after them fent ten thousand others both to succour them, and to terrifie the enemy. When words would not perswade the men of Copayapa to receive the command of the Lord of the foure Sudued parts of the World, they came to skirmillies and after to composition, upon the comming of the fecond Army, The Inca hereupon levied other ten thousand, and tent them to follow the tormer which marched eighty leagues, and after many troubles came to another Valley or Prounce called Cuanimpu, which they jubdued. And fo proceeded conquering all the Nations which are

50 fill you come to the Valley of Chile, whereof that whole Kingdome takes the name. This exploit was fixe yeeres in hand, the Inca still tending fresh supplies of men and provisions of armes. clothes and other necessaries, to that he had fiftie thousand men of warre in Chils. They went fitty leagues further Southwards to the River of Maulli, ftil vfing faire meanes rather then cru-l- Brele at Putie to reduce them. And thus the Empire was adjunced about two hundred and fixty leagues rumanes. beyond Atacama: yet ambition looking further, they paffed the River Maulli with twenty thousand men. Three dayes they fought cruelly till halte of both fides were flame; the three dayes following they were content to fit till in expectation, and after that departed from each other without further accomplishment. Maslis was now the Southerne boundarie, and 60 the Inca having intelligence fent them word rather to cultivate and order what they had gotten then to feeke new Conquests. Thus they fortified the Frontiers and attended the admi- Spanishads in nistration of Indice, and building Houses for the Sunne and the King. Diego de Almagro was the first Spaniard which discouered Chili, but haung purchased nothing Almagros Di-

An old Chili Captaine his by draucoha.b Spaniards.

Others fav. molten gold downe his throate. Later accidents in Pers and Chili. Prodigious flowers of fand & aibes

> zen of lago in * Noze the A-Vaucans armes

the Spaniards.

residivia de-

but the fight and innumerable troubles in the way, he returned to Pern, which was the cause of the generall Rebellion of the Indians of Peru, and of the difcords and Civill warres of the Spa-P. d. Valibilit, niards. Pedro de Valdinia, made the next Dilcouerie, and happily conquered them, but as vn. happily was put to death by the Arancars his vallils, after hee had raised his profits to a hundred thouland Pezos yeerely, which yet did but enlarge his appetite. The Arancans had affembled twelve or thirreene thouland, notwithstanding which numbers Valdinia still had the better, by reason of the Horsemen, ten of which would breake thorow a thousand Indians, which therefore would not deale with the Spaniards in the Plaines but kept the Hils. A certaine old Cantaine hearing hereof, would needs goe thither to fee what that Military my flerie might be, that taine hearing nercor, would need specificate to many thoulands. He called a Councell, and asked one hundred and fiftre men should hold under so many thoulands. He called a Councell, and asked to if the Spaniards were mortall and made of flesh, subject to humane infirmities of wearinesse and fleepe; and likewife of their Horfes; which being affirmed, hee taught them another course of battle, dividing all their thousands into so many bands single, each of which should fight, and doe what they could, and when they were wearie should conuay themselves away, and give place to another Regiment; meanewhile to recollect themselves into their ranke againe, and to refresh themselves: to likewise should the second and third and all of them doe in their order. Thus they fought and fled, and still feemed to the Spaniards both broken and whole. they having often broken the bands, which yet kept fill neere the number which they hadat fift. This troubled them, their bodies and horses yeelding to wearinesse by long continuance from morning till afternoone : and then Valdinia commanded his men that they should re- 20 coyle by degrees, making a defensive warre till they might recover certayne Straits, where they might eatily by the strength of the place bee defended. This was heard by one Philip a Philip berray- Chili Servant of the Governours (by his Indian name, Laurram) who fled to his Countrimen. ethiis Mofter, and told them this his Mafters intent. Whereupon they fent fome Regiments to make good that place, fo that about Sunne-fet the Spaniards thinking to fecure themselves there, came to the Sunne-fet and irrecoverable night of their Fates. The Governour and a Frier were taken, the rest slaine : three Indians fled and carried newes of this difaster. Ualdinias death is dinerfly told; fome fay that that Philip killed him, fome that another Captayne did it with a Clubbe whiles others by his promifes were wonne to give him libertie. Francie de Rieros which then was a Captayne in Chili, from the reports of 20 Indians, tels that the Chilois made dances all night, at the end of each dance cutting off a piece of the flesh of both their Priloners and eating it before their faces, Notwithflanding they doe not ordinarily eate mans flesh. This was Anno 1553, and ever fince the Rebellion hath continued : at which time Don Sebastian rebelled in Potos and Francis Hernandes Giron in Cozco, Rebellions later then those of the Pizarrifts and Almagrifts.

I might adde to thefeaffaires of Chile, the great Earth-quakes, A. 1600. in Peru, at Arequesa the rayning of fand, as also of ashes about twenty dayes from a Vulcan breaking forth; the ashes falling in places aboue a yard thicke, in some places more then two, and where lest aboue a quarter of a yard, which buried the Corne-grounds of Maiz and Wheat, and the boughes of Trees They tell also were broken and fruitlesse, and the Cattle great and small dyed for want of patture. For the 40 fand which rained couered the fields thirty leagues one way, and aboue forty another way round about Arequepa. They found their Kine dead by five hundred together in feverall Heards, and Seep. 1930. whole Flookes of Sheepe and Heards of Grates and Swine buried. House fell with the weight of the fand, others cost much industry to faue them. Mighty Thunders and Lightnings were heard and feene thirty leagues about Arequepa. It was fo darke whiles those shownes lasted that A Letterwitt- at m dday they burned Candles to fee to doe their bufinesse. This from Perm: from Chile they tenby a Citi. Write that the Rebellion of Arauco groweth enery day stronger. On Wednesday the source and twentieth of Nonember 1599, there came in the morning upon the citie of Valdinia, about fine thousand Indians 6. Matermoet 3 yu. there is more in the more reportant of the content of the bordering places, and of the places adopting to Imperial Pica, and Purent, three thoughand borfferen and the rest four, [seeing of them Harcabuse men, and two bundred in coster of Maule (Cots.) 50 They came unperceived having fet double Espials on the citie. They came in Squadrons ranked in order; for they brew that the Spaniards were afterpe, and had but foure men in their Corps de gard, and to walke the round. They were blinded with their fortune some twentie dayer before having beaten the lindians from their Fort in Vega, and the Marishes of Paparlen, slaying many that for eight lesques a bout no Indian durft be feene. Thus entred they the freets of that unhappy citie, and fired the beufet; then tooke the gates, and in two boures space with fire and Sword destroyed the Towne , and wanne the Fort and Artillery, killing foure bundred Spaniards of both Sexes; Sacked three bundred thousand Pezor of floile, consuming all the rest. The shipper of Vallano, Villaroell, and another of Degode Roias, were at anchor in the River, and if some had not escaped in Canoas to carry them newes, they had runne the like fortune. The Spaniards fenerity a little before made them this cruell, hauing fold fo ma- (0 ny of their wines and children for flanes to Merchants, which carried them out of their Countries, bo ing baptized, and basing kept Priests fiftie yeeres. Now first, they destroyed the Churches, and brace the Images in pieces. Ten dayes after Coronel Francisco del Campo, came with three bundred men for from his Excellence from Petu, to succour those Cities. Having seene this lamentable destruction, he from the Execution from and Villarrica, and fad Ymperiall, of which bee know nothing but that it had Ymperiall timibeene besteged a yeere by the enemies, having nothing to cat but dead Horses, Cats, Dogges, and Hides. fiel. But first be succoured Oforno, to which the victorious enemies had gone from Valdiuiz. Newes came at the Jame time, whiles I was writing, that those of Ymperiall were dead with famine, all faue twentie whom hunger forced to a worfe destine, to one to the Indians. Lord baue mercy on vs. Amen. March 1600. from Saint lago.

CHAP. 13. Span. diftressed in Chili. Cosco Fort wonder of the New World. 1477

Faiber Diego de Alcobazi (whom I haue before mentioned) writ to me, Anno 1601, that the Indi- Another letter ans were growne of such dexteritie in warres, that every Indian on borfebacke with his Lance, durit 1601. 10 fally out on any Spanith Souldier, were be neuer forvaliant : and enery neere many goe from Perushither Indians valous. but none returne. They have facked two Townes, and killed all they found in them, carrying away the women and daughters and fernants : and lastly, they killed in an Enboscada the Governour Loyola, which Governour was married to a daughter of Don Diego Sayritupac the Inca, which went from Villacapampa, be. Loyda flaince, fore your Worlhip went to those parts. God have mercy on the dead, and give remedie to the living. Octier things he writ fo irkefome, that I forbeare to recire, as of the plagues of Arequepa, one of which Dearth, was that Wheate was worth that yeere ten or eleuen Ducats, and Maiz thirteene. Anno 1602. the difafters of Arequepa, continued as the Jejuites have written. Anno 1604. Padre Maeftro Francisco de Castro gaue mee this turther Relation of Chili. Of thirteene Cities which are in this

Realme of Chili, the Indians baue destroyed sixe, viz. Valdini, Imperiall, Angel, Sancta Cruz, Sixe Town destroyed. 20 Chillan and Conception. They wasted and consumed therein, the Houses, Churches, Denotion, Beantie of the fields; and yet the greatest misery is , that the In hans have nathered heart and courage for greater poyles and destructions of Cities and Monasteries. They have bent their minds to mischiefe and cunning fratagems. They belieged the Citie Otorno, and confuming the Spanish forces, they retired to Oforto Forc a Fort in which they have held them as it were in a continual fiege, the befreged fustagning themselves taken. with feeds and herbes. In one of the fieges which that Citie sustained, they broke the Images: in the Last they killed the Centinels, and safely entred and seised the Fort, the Spaniards not perceiving, and whiles they were busie in shorle, the Spaniar is came on them, and got from them the women and Nunt. The last Unitory of the Indians, was the taking of Villarrica, with great flaughter of Spaniards, firing Villarrica tak it in foure parts. They killed all the Friers of Saint Domingo, Saint Francis, and our Lady of Pitte; ken, and the Clergie men: they captined all the women which were many, and of a good account. Now let vs returne to the Inca Tupangus, who now determined to ceasie further invading and conquest, His Realme now extending a thousand leagues. He made many Fortrest's and Temples to the Sunne, and Nunneries, and Royall Palaces, and Conueyances of water. Especially hee bestowed paines on the Fortrelle of Cozco, for which his Father had brought great flore of ftones. He visited his Kingdome to see with his eyes the necessities thereof that he might remedie them, which he did with fuch care, that he merited the furname of Pione. After which heedyed full of Trophees, having enlarged his Earpire to farre to the South, and a hundred and forty leagues Northwards. Tupac Inqua Tupanqui his eldest Sonne succeeded. The Fortresse of Cozco which hee built may Tupanqui inca 40 feeme a worke of Deuils rather then men, the flones (or Rockes rather) in three circuits about his acts and being fo many and great, the Indians auring heither Iron nor Steele to cut or worke them, nor death, Oxen, nor Cares to draw them, but all done with force of men with great Cables, and that thorow vneuen wayes in rough Mountains. Many of them they brought ten, twelue, fitteen leagues; Forreste of particularly that from which the Indians call Sajenfea, that is, mearied, which was brought fif- Core arme teene leagues, and palled the River Tucay little lelle then Guadalquinir at Corduba. The most came worke. from Murna, fine leagues off. Many of them are fo close, that feat fly the place where they are Sec (80, 1956. joyned can be differend, which required the lifting vp and often ferling one ftone vpon another, Acolini Reahaving neither Square, nor Rule. Nor could they make Cranes or any fort of Engine to helpe tion. them. It feemes that the Ireas thought hereby to expresse their magnificence and power, and

50 the skill of their workmen. This Fortreffe was built on a Hill on the Northfide of the Citie. fo fleepe that way that it could not be alkulted, and therefore one wall ferued on that fide two hundred fathomes long. They had no morter but vied a kind of coloured clay fafter then it. On the other parts they made three wals one before another, each about two hundred fathomes, in forme of a halte Moone; there were itones in them, but fuch as were admirably great. A Prieft of Montilla having beene in Peru and feene them, told me that hee could not imagine how they The wonders could be laid but by the blacke Arc. And indeed this in respect of the want of Art may be faid or the world to exceed the feuen Wonders of the World : for it is easie to conceine how the Pyramides of nor fo wonder-Egypt and wals of Bubylon might be made, which here is not. Eurry wall in the midd had one Fortreffe. gate which had one ftone elenated the breadth and height thereof. Betwixt one wall and ano-

60 ther was about thirty foot : the battlements were about a yard high. The height I cannot exactly tell. Within those wals were three firong Forts, the middlemost called Moyor Marca, or the round Fort, in which was a Conduct of good water brought farre off under ground, the In-One round dians knew not whence : it was knowned only to the lecaland tome chiefe Councellors. In this Fort and two the Kings remained when they went to visit the Fortrolle, and the wals were all adorned with square,

Gggggg 2

gold

Labyringh.

gold and filter and counterfeits of beafts, and birds, and plants, enchafed therein, which ferued for Tapefiry. The second Fort was called Paucar Marca, the third, Saellac Marca, both square, with Roomes for Souldiers which must be Incas of priviledge, for no other Nation might enter. it being the house of the Sunne for warre, as Temples were for Prayer. The Captaine was of the bloud Royall legitimate. They had under earth passages from one Fort to another very artificiall with Labyrintian windings and turnings inextricable but by a Thread. When I was a Boy I often faw the ruines thereot, but none of vs durft enter the Vaults further then wee had

The whole worke was of stone, some polished, some rude. They had to draw the great Stone Serenica twenty thouland Indians with Cables, one halfe before, the other behind; in one vne- In uen pailage it killed three or foure thouland Indians. They call it mearied, because they were wearie and neuer layd it in the building. The Architect was Calla cunezus. The Spaniards not only doe not repaire the Fortreile, but pull it downe to build their private houses, every of their houfes in the Citie beeing therewith adorned. In such manner have they call so great Maiesty to the ground. The three wals stand because they cannot ruine them for their greatnesse, yet some part they demolished to seeke the Chaine of gold which Huayna Capac made. This Inca beganne this Fortreffe which continued fiftie yeeres before it was finished.

The eighth Tupac Inca Yupanquithe 11. King of Peru.

He Great Tupac Inca Yupanqui (his name Tupac fignifieth Resplendent or Illustrious, for such were his Acts) after the accomplishment of Tolemnities concerning his Fathers Funerals, and and his owne Coronation, which confumed one yeere; vilited his Kingdome, the better to know and to be knowne of his Subiects, and for better execution of Justice by his Officers and Judges, in which he fpent foure yeeres. This done, he leuted forty thousand Souldiers to proceed in the sourse of his Fathers, which palliated their ambition of Souereigntie and Dominion, with reducing men from Barbarifme and beastiality to Civility and Religion. He marched to Cassamarca, and entred the Prouince of Chachapuya. Eastwards from Cassamarca, a Countrey of valiant men and very faire women. They worthipped Snakes, and the bird Cuntur was their principall God. It then contayned aboue fortie thousand Families, Their chiefe Armes were slings, and they wore a kinde of fling-net for their head tyre (bee cals both by the name honda.) Beyond them are the Huacrachucu a fierce and warly Nation, which weare on their head a blacke leash of Wooll 30 with white flyes here and there, and for a feather a piece of a Deeres horne: these worshipped · in those times Snakes, and kept them pictured in their Temples and houses. These lay in the way to the former, and much bloud was loft in fight on both fides; whereupon the Inca, after their ancient custome, fought to reduce them by faire meanes, intimating that hee came more to doe them good as they had done to other Nations, fuffering the Curasas to rule still; then to rule ouer them, feeking no more but that they should worship the Sunne, and leave their barbarousnesse. He divided his Armie, and sent some to take the most commodious places, so that they were forced to feeke peace. He stayed there, the Countrey being rainy, till the next Summer, and fent for twenty thouland men more , inftructing the Huncrachucus meane while in his deuotions and Lawes, and to conuay away the waters, and make the grounds fit for feed to their so

The next Summer hee entred the Province Chachapaya, where notwithstanding the wonted gentle message he was incountred with a cruell warre. This Prouince was fiftie leagues long, and twenty broad, reaching to Maynpampa, which is thirtie leagues long. The Hils were craggie, and in places very steepe and snowie; three hundred which he fent to spie, were drowned in the fnow, not one escaping. The prowesse and numbers of the Inca brought all by degrees to subje-

Rion, Pias, Charmac caffa (an open passage of the inowie Hill, very dangerous where the three hundred were loft) Cuntur Marea, Cassa Marquilla, all Mountaynous and craggie places, till hee came to Rayminampa, so called of a Feast which he folemozed there to the Sunne in his Campe, being a faire Valley; and thence to Muyupampa, where Ancohualla entred as is before laid in Vi- 52 racochas time, tather then he would bee a subject to the Inca; these and Casenjunca now yeel-

ded. The next Summer hee marched on to Huancapampa, a great Nation, but divided amongit every one as himselfe pleated. These he tamed by hunger (starting such as came not in) and gave them Mafters to instruct them in husbandry , and how to clothe themselves, to water their fields, and to plant Townes, to that it became one of the best Prouinces in Peru. More to ennoble it, hee after built there a Temple and house of Virgins, prohibiting the eating of mans fleth, and gaue them Priests and men learned in the Lawes to instruct them. Afterwards he added three great Provinces, Cassa Ayahnaca and Callua to his Signory, which lived civilly, having

Huervechucus

Busnespanies. themselves, naked and warring not for wealth but women, worthipping Birds, Beatts, Plants,

Three civill

Нивпаси от

Townes and Fortrelles, and a kind of Republike or free State, having their meetings and choice 60 of Gouernours. These Conquests ended, he spent long time in visiting his Kingdom, and be iding Temples, Nunneries, Store-houses, Aquaducts, especially taking care of the Fortreffe at Cozco. Some yeeres this way spent, hee marched Northward to Huanucu, which containeth many difunited Nations, whom he easily conquered, and planted I ownes there, being a fertile Coun-

trie, and temperate, making it the chiefe Province of many others in those Confines. He built Pedrade Circa there a Temple for the Sunne, and a houle of choicen Virgins, twenty thousand Indians personmino feruices in coarfe to those two houses. He went next to the Prouince Cannars, which ware also, he calls it their haire long, tied on a knot in the Crowne. By these head-tires in the time of the Incas, each Guanus, and Indian was knowne of what Nation he was; which in my time they continued, but now they is hithere was fay all is confounded. These Cannaris before this worshipped the Moone as chiefe Derty, and great Trees and Stones in the fecond place; but now were brought to the Incas Sunne-religion, of great flones and their Countrie ennobled with a Temple, Nunnerie, Palaces, Water-paffages, &c. The Na cunningly tion Quillacu is belowe the Cannari, the most miserable of Nations, neither having good land, placed; neere to nor aire, nor water, whence grew a Prouerbe applied to couctous milers, bee is a very Quillacu: on these the Inca imposed a tribute of Lice, that is they might learne to be cleanly. Tupac Inca &c. The angus and his sonne Huayna Capac much ennobled those Provinces of the Cannaris, and of Cannaris. Tumpampa, with building Royall houses, adorning the Lodgings in flead of Tapeftry with coun. Quillacu. terfeits of Herbs, Plants and Creatures of gold and filter, the Porches chased with Gold and inlayed with Emeralds and Turqueiles: a Temple alio of the Sunne enchaled with Gold and Sil- calls it Thomeuer, the Indians custome being to make oftentation of service to their Kings, and to flatter them bamba, and is filling their Temples and Palaces with all the treatures they were able (in Pots, Pannes, and o- large in this ther vellels of gold and filuer and much coftly raiment.) Having returned to Cozco, his ambition Point.

not long after brought him backe to Tumpampa, where he gained many Prouinces unto the con-20 fines of the Kingdome of Quitu, viz. Chanchan Moca, Quefaa, Pumallacia, (that is, the Land of Lions, by reason of the store there, being also worshipped for Gods) Tiezampi, Tiu cassa, Capampi, Vrcollasu and Tincuracu, barren and barbarous Regions, which heient Masters to teach Ciuilitie and Religion. Atter that, he made another expedition with fortie thousand men to Quin, Quin, the name of the Kingdome and King. It is feuenty leagues long and thirtie broad, fertile and rich. They worthipped Deere, and great Trees. The warre continuing long, he fent for his tonne Huanna Capac to come with twelve thoufand men more to exercise him in warre. Huayna Capac tignifieth from a childe rich in magnant. moss exploits. Capac was a title given to things of greatest eminence. And this seemed præeminent in him that he neuer denied any woman any fute, wing to them gentle compellations of Hugna Capaci 30 Mother, Sifter, Daughter, according to their age, &c. Tugas Inca returned to Cozeo, and left his sonne to dispatch the warre, which was three yeeres before Quan was reduced, befide two yeeres which his father ipent : the reason whereof was the Incas cultome to gaine not by fire and fword, but as they could make the Natiues for sake it; which had this effect, that their conquett was more durable, and their vaffals bare them better affection. At the end of those fine yeeres the King of Quitu cied, and the people subjected them to Huayna Capac, which vied them gently. He palled on to Quillacenca, that is, Iron-nofe Province (fo called for their boring the Quillacena, nostrils, and wearing lewels thereat) a vile, brutish, lousy People, without Religion, eating any carion. They were easily subjected, as likewise the next Prouince of like condition Pastu, and Otamalla a People more civill and warlike, and Caranque a barbarous Nation which worthip-40 ped ligres, and Lions, and great Snakes, in their Sacrifices offering the hearts and bloud of men which they ouercame in warre : thefe he civillized allo.

Tupac Inca was busie in his Fortresse at Cozco, keeping twenty thousand men at worke therein with great order and emulation of each Nation to exceed other. Huajna Capac returning, was received with great triumph, : and becaute he had no children by his eldett Sifter Psilen Huaco. he was secondly married to his second Sister Rana Octio, the Incas still ving that marriage in imi- Huayna Capaci tation of Manco Capac, and for certainty of the bloud on both fides. King Tupac, and his Councell ordained that both should be lawfull Wines, and holden for Queenes, and not for Concubins. Hee married also Mama Rucu, his Vocle Amara Tupacs eldest daughter the next in bloud to the former, having no third Sifter of whole bloud. By Rana Oello he had Huafear Inca; and by

50 his Cousin-german, Manco Inca. Tupac Inca drawing neere to death called together his children (which were about two hundred) and made the wonted discourse or Testament, commending Tupa Incar peace and inflice and care of their vaffals to them, and to shew themselves indeed the children of the Sunner: recommending to the Prince, the reducing and conqueit of the Sauages to the service of the Sunne, and a politike life, and to follow the example of his Fore-fathers, and to chathife the Huilleausleas which had flaine his Captaines in rebellion. Hee faid h. was now going to another life, his father the Sunne calling him to reft with him. Thus died Tupac Inca, tamous for the benefits done to his Countrie, therefore called Tupac Yara, Illustrious Father. By Mama Oello he had fixe fonnes; the elicit, Huayna Capac: the fecond, Augus Amara Tupac Inca; the third, Quehuar Tupac; the fourth, Huallpa Tupac Inca Yupangus (my mothers grand-60 father;) the fith, Triu Inca Rimachi; the fixth, Agus Masta. They embalmed his body which

Haw Anno 1549, as if it had beene aline. The rest of this eighth Booke the Authour hath frent in description of the creatures of principall note of those parts, in which out of Acosta, and others baning beene redious already, we will not here trouble the Reader.

for whom he made twenty dayes feath; began to propound great and rare deuties to himfeife. One was a Chaine of gold, much fought but neuer feene by the Spaniards. The Indians vie much dancing, and are as eatily diffinguished one Nation from another by their dances, as by their head-tires. The Inca had a grave kinde of dancing in meatures, men alone without women, hand in hand, finging in then foft paces, three hundred or more in a folemne feast, the Inca himselfe lometimes dancing with them: at other times they danced about, still comming necrer to that Royall centre. This holding of hands in a ring gaue occasion to make the golden Chaine, that they might cance by it without touching hands, as I have heard the fore-mentioned old Inca, (my mothers Vicle) discourse. Hee told mee that it contained the length and Io bredth of the great fireet of Cozco, which is feuen hundred foot, and the bignesse of euery linke A gold chaine thereof was (he faid) as bigge as his wrett. Augustin de Zarate calls it Maroma, a Cable, trom of incredible the report of Indians then huing, and fayth, it was as much as two hundred Indians could lift) Much have the Spansards lought for this and other treatures, whereof they could never finde any toot-print. Prince Inis Cust Huallya (that was his name before, and fignifieth Huallya the Sunne of reioneing) was in memorie of that which was made to honour his birth called Hualcar, an r added to Huasea (which fignifieth a Rope, their Language not differencing a Chaine from a Rope) by which addition Huafear might be without fignification, and anoyde the ill found of a Rope, which was added to his former name at his maining and polling Feast, when hee was two yeeres

old. After that hee leuied fortie thouland Souldiers, and went to Quitu, in which Voyage hee 20

Thence he went to the Plaines, and made conquest of the Valley of Chimu (now Trueille) and

Chacma, Pacasmayn, Canna, Collque, Cintu, Tucusi, Sayanca, Mutupi, Puchin Sallana, bestowing

much cost to conuey water, and benefit his new conquelts. After some time spent at Quis, hee leuied another Armie of fifty thousand, and conquered Tumpiz (a vicious, luxurious People, and Sodomiticall, which adored Tigres and Lions, and facrificed the hearts and bloud of Men) and Chunana Chintuy, Collouche, and other confining places. Hee made a faire Fortresse in Tumpic, and fet there a Garrison : he built a House of the Sunne, and another of Virgins : and after that entred into the Prouince Huancanillea, which had killed those Masters which his Father him, which durft doe no other, with all the chiefe men, to whom one of the Mafters of the Campe made a Speech of their treaton and bad demerits: Notwithstanding the Inca ving his naturall clemency, and making account of his title Huacchacuyac (The benefactor or louer of the poore) both pardoned all the common people, and would fo farre remit the better fort which had beene doers in that businesse, that though all had deferred death, yet one onely of tenne whom the lot should designe to execution, should die : and of the Caraca, and Captaines, each should lose two teeth in the upper iaw, and as many in the lower, both they and their descendants, in memorie of fallitying their promile to his father. They which feared that all should palle the that tooth-loffe, and did likewife to their fonnes and daughters, as if it had beene a fauour. One of that Nation I knew in my fathers hoafe at Cozce, which largely recounted the premilles.

fword were content, and the whole Nation would needs both men and women participate in 40

The Inca fpent much time in vifiting his Kingdome from Quite to Charcas, about feuen hunured leagues, and tent Vifitors to Chil, whence his father had drawne much Gold. This done, he railed an Armie of fifty thousand men of the Northerne Preuinces, and having visited the Temple of Pachacamae, and caused the Priests to consult with the Oracle, which promised prosperitie to his delignes, and the like at Rimac; hee passed thorow thole Vallies to Tumpiz, and fent to the Iland Pana, twelue leagues in compaffe, the Lord whereof was called Tampalla, a man which kept many women and boyes for his luft; besides the Sea, their common Deitie, they wor-mands, but after killed and threw ourrboard his men as they were conveying them to the Continent, and facrificing fome of them, which the Inca feuerely reuenged, both on them, and on their confederates in the Continent, and commanded them to keepe the memorie of that dif-mall execution in mournfull longs; enjoying them to obey his Gouernour which kept the Fertreffe of Tumpiz. From Tumpiz he proceeded in vifitation of his Kingdome to the Chichas, with intent to doe the like in the Southerne part, and fent Prefents fine garments to the Gouernours, Curacas, Captaines and Royall Officers, according to the cultome of the Incas. But hearing that the Chachaphyas were in rebellion (to whom hee fent Messengers, which received ill viage and answers) he made a Bridge, and marched ouer the River, and came to Caffu marquilla, with thip Tigres and Lions, and facrificed the heart and bloud of Men. Thetereceiued the Incar com- 50

Tupac Inca Tupanque had fent to infruct them. Hee commanded all the Curacus to come before 30

tooke for his Concubine the eldest daughter of King Quitu aforefaid, which was there kept in the House of the chosen, or Nunnerie; and by her had Atahuallan, and other children.

Ta He mighty Huayna Capac, after other things fee in order, having a fonne (Huafear) borne.

Atabuallyss mother. Further conquests. Vallies in the length and greatnelle.

Huafcar as Roper.

Plaines iub. ducd. Tumpiz or Tumbez lubducd. Huancauilea punifhed.

El unechacumac a title of the

Their treason.

Drerylongs.

Ciarva; uyas

purpose to destroy them. The people nor being able to hold out, fled into the Mountaines, and others more wifely knowing his gentle disposition, procured a Matron of their Countrie, which had beene Concubine to Tupac Inca Tupanqui to meet him with a multitude of feminine supplicants, which so well played her pitifull part in a perfesative speech seconded with cries and lamentations of that chorus of women, that the Tues relented, taking her vp from the ground, called her Mamanchic (our mother) granted her request, and gave her commission to make an end of the bulinelle, tending fome volarmed lineas with her to that purpole. The Chachapinas in rememi rance Thinkinhelle. of this fact encompalled the place where thee had met the Inca, with three walls, not permitring the foot of man or beaft to touch so holy ground: the vttermost wall of clay, the second of Rose unpolished, the inmost of polished stone, which the conetoninesse of the Spaniards overthrew, as they did other the best buildings, to search for treasure.

Huanna Capac went to Manta (in which Countrie stands the Port which the Spaniards call Marta. Puerto Vieto) which worthipped the Sea and Fillies, Tigres, Lions, and great Snakes, and a Puerto Vieto. no mongft other things a great Emerald, which they lay, was little leffe then an Effriches egge. deuctions, In their greater Feafts they shewed it publikely; the Indians came from farre to adore it, and facrifice to it, and to prefent it with small Emeralds, as daughters to the mother; the Pricits and Cacike, telling them that this was the most agreeable offering. Thus were many Emeral Is 22-thered here together, where Don Pedro de Aluarado and his companions (one of which was my father Garculaffe de la Vega) found them in the conquelt of Pern, and brake most of them on an Anuil, laying (like bad Lapidaries) that if they were precious flones they would not breake with the greatest blowes, and if they brake they were but Glaste. But their goddesse-Emerald Emerald the Indians had conveyed away before, neither could it fincebe found by any industrie. The people of Manta were open and shamelelle Sodomites, and in their marriages the Bridegrooms kins-20 men and friends had first hanfell of the Spoule. They flayed the Captines which they tooke in Warre, and filled the skinnes with aftes, and hanged them vp at the doores of their Temples, and in their feasting and dancing places. These with the Apichians, Pichinfli, Sana, and other Nations confining on the Coast, he subjected. These were more brutish then the Mantans, and not onely saced their faces with stones, but deformed their children with laying one boord on the fore-head, and another in the necke, to keeping them in presse from day to day, till they were foure or fue veeres old, to make them broad-faced, shauing away the haire of the crowne Platter-faced and necke, and letting it growe on the fides, making it curle and bush out to more monitrofitie, From these he went to Saramifia and Paffan, vnder the Equinoctiall Line, where they wor- Burbarous fhipped nothing at all, and had neither Towne nor House, but hued in hollow Trees, went na-30 ked, vied women in common, neither did their luits flay there; had their faces quartered into foure coloures, yellow, azure, particoloured and blacke, their haire, long, curled and full of filth, (I faw them with mine eyes when I came for Spaine) and are the fauagest people that can bee imagined. Huayna Capac would none of them, but faid, let vs returne, for those are not worthie to have vs to be their Lord. The Indians have a tradition that at the Point of Saint Elena Gianes. See there came in Boats of Rulhes, huge Giants higher then common men from the knees vpwards, Jup in Acoffa. their eyes as bigge as Success, and other members proportionable; they had no women with pegicos, or, them, and were clothed in beafts skinnes, or naked. They fetled themselues there, and digged Welis admirably deepe in the Rocke, yeelding very coole water. One of them did eate more then fiftie men; and were forced to get fish for their diet. They killed the women of 40 the Countrie in vling them ; were great Sodomites, and were therefore at last by fire from Heauen confumed, leaving onely fome bones of them as memorials, which have beene, and still are there found. Anno 1550, there were as great bones found at Mexico. In this Point of Saint Elena, neere to Puerio Unio, are certaine Fountaines of pitchie substance fit to calke thips, boi- Bituminous ling out very hot. Huayna Capac one Rayms or Feathday of the Sunne, looked up to the Sunne, which the high Reuerence to Priest, one of his Vincles, told him was vulawfull. But soone after hee looked up againe, and the Sunne, againe was reproued by the Priest: but he answered, Answere mee to these questions ; I am your Lord, and which of you dares bid meerife and goe a long lourney? None, faid he, would bee to mad. And if any the greatest Curaca be commanded by me to goe from hence to Chili, will he not doe it? The 50 Priestanswered, that none would disobey him in any thing. Why then I fay (faid the Inca) that Wise apopta-

our Father the Sunne must needs have a greater and mightier Lord then himselfe, which commands him theyme. See enery day to take (uch a lourney: for if he were a superiour Lord, he would some time or other rest himfelfe. The Carangues rebelled and were feuerely chaftifed, and 2000, of them beheaded in a Lake, and therefore called Tahnarcocka, or Sea of blond. After this, with much griefe that he was forced to fuch therpe medicines, he went to Onen, and finding his Sonne Atabuallya, wittie, wife, war- 2000 perhans like, and comely of perionage (as vivally were the Incas and Pallas) hee much affected him, and including all thill would have him about him, and fo handled the matter, that with content of his Brother His- which were afear, he fet him in possession of the Kingdome of Quita, and other Provinces, guing him expe- fline in the afcar, he let him in pullelion of the Kingdome of Dinin, and other Proninces, gining of the ware.

timented Captaines and part of his Armie, the better to fecure himfelfe, and to pacific the vn disharlia pur 60 fettled new-gained Prounces in his Fathers life time, to that end transplanting Nations from one in possession.

Region to another. Huayna Capac made two famous Royall wayes, the one along it the Hills within Land, the other Provinother by the Sea-fide, From Cozco to Quien are fine hundred leagues by the Sierras, rockie and cestablued by craggie way, which hee made plaine, breaking downe the high, and exalting the lowe places fometimes fifteene or twenty stades or mans heights, that a Cart might have gone on them rill the wars of the Indians and Christians much endammaged them. By the Plaines he made another workers of later difficultie, making mud-wals to hold in the way, forty foote breade with a high cause the me works both in the Vallies, and in the fands, driving flakes therein to know the way which is there fo mourable and changeable, the like space of 500.leagues.

Builed in these affaires and great workes he had newes of the Spaniards (those which Rases Names de Balbox arti discouerer of the South Sea, had ient upon discourry 1515, who, as before is tail, appoled the name Pers) which filled him with wonder and care. Hee lived after this in peace eight yeares, and dyed Anno 1 522, having saigned two and fortie yeares, not minding the Prophefies and profecueing of further conquerts after the had heard of the Spanife Ship, by realon of a Prophefie Io or ancient Oracle which the Incas had, that after to many Kings a ftrange Nation should come and deliroy their Kingdome and Idolatry. Three yeares before that Ship was feene, as they were Prodicies fore- celebrating the Sunnes feitinall folemnity, an Eagle Royall, which they call Anca, purfued fine figurying the or fixe kiftrels and as many small haukes, which fet vpon the Eagle and beate her, so that having Lift, or the Im no way to escape, the fell in the market place among it the Incas, as feeking helpe at their hands. They tooke her and did what they could to relieue her; but within few dayes she died; an augurie feeming to prefage some difafter to that ftate. There were also greater earthquakes then the ordinary (to which Perm is vivally lubiect) and the Sea often fwelled over the shores: the aire no leffe terrified them with comets. The Moone in a cleere night had three circles round ahour her very great, one of bloud, the middlemost blacke, the vemost of smoake. Lingua a diviner 20 told the Inca; Onely Lord, know that thy mother the Moone aduleth thee that Pachacamac threatneth the royall bloud, and to fend great plagues on thine Empire; the first circle fignifying the blouds warre which fall follow when thou art gone to rest with thy Father the Sunne, betwixt thy posteritie, that in few yeares it shall altogether faile: the second shewer the destruction of our Religion and republique and alienation of thy Empire, which shall turne all into smoake as is signified by the third circle. Inca was troubled, but put it off laying, thou haft dreamed thefe fooleries last night, and failt my Mother hath fent me fuch intelligence. But the Soothfayer answered, he might fee it with his owne eyes, and confult with other diumers, which he did, and found the same fight and answere : hee yet made feemings not to belieue, faying hee did not beleeve the Sunne would permit that to happen to his progenie, He offered notwithstanding many Sacrifices to him, and appointed the 30 Soothfayers in all parts to confult with their fenerall Oracles, especially with Pachacamac and Rimac, whole aniwers were cofcure and doubtfull. Their things I heard of two Captaines of Huayna Capacs guard, then eightie yeares old, and baptifed, speaking hereof with teares. Die luan Peshuia, and Chanca Rimachi, as also of Cushhualpa that old Inca, and of my Mother and her Brother Don Fernando Huallpa Tupac Inca. Huanna Capac one day bathing himselfe came forth cold, and found himselfe deadly sicke, Huayna Capacs fickneffe and laft will, or furech before bis death.

